INEXPRESSIBLE HEIGHTS OF GLORY

During the writing of this book, a certain thought crossed my mind and I often hesitated to document it. I felt sad that I had not begun to enjoy the Gospel of St. John earlier on in my life. Had I done so, I would have spent the rest of my days soaring in the glories that this Gospel offers. These are glories that are hard to communicate in any human language.

As I studied the Gospel of St. John, I came to understand the meaning of what Origen, meant when he wrote his meditations and sermons on this Gospel. He stated that he believed he could not complete his interpretation of St. John until he had passed into heaven. Only there would he be able to complete that task! Indeed, I feel that no one can achieve a full understanding of the depths of St. John's writing; and that all would be revealed only as we meet with our glorified Savior and as we partake in His heavenly glory. Only then will we comprehend the amazing implications of this Gospel, and in a way that transcends all that can be said here.

May the Holy Spirit carry every soul into God's divine embrace. May He enlighten the inner vision so that the soul may enjoy all the divine glory and understanding that our amazing Lord wishes to offer to us. Consequently, we will be ablaze with divine love and longingly seek to meet with our Savior.

INTRODUCTION TO THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ST. JOHN

The Gospel according to St. John answers the need of everyone: the simple and the scholar. St. John's words are extremely simple: hence he appeals to the simple as they find themselves closely drawn and comforted. On the other hand, those with spiritual experience find the opportunity to dive into his writings without ever reaching its depth<sup>1</sup>.

THE GOSPEL OF ST. JOHN AND THE EARLY CHURCH

The Gospel according to St. John attracted the heart of the early Church and lifted it to perceive the sublime divine mysteries. This is the result of the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. Moreover, St. John uses a style that is spiritually attractive and which is far removed from difficult philosophical terms or dry theological language.

- ❖ We may venture to say that the Gospels are the first- born of all the Holy Books, and that from among the Gospels the first- born is the Gospel of St. John. Unless we lean on the Lord's bosom (Jn 13:23), and accept St. Mary through Jesus Christ as our Mother (Jn 19:27), we will not understand its message. By doing so, we become another St. John, and the Lord Jesus Christ will appear to us just as He had appeared to St. John. According to those who have presented a truthful report about St. Mary, she had no son other than the Lord Jesus Christ. Jesus had said to His Mother: "This is your son," (Jn 19:26). He did not say: "This is your son as well." It is as though He was telling her: "This is Jesus whom you have conceived." Indeed, every person who has become perfect does not live but rather it is Christ who lives in him (2 Cor 4:7). And since Christ lives in him, it is possible to refer to him and tell St. Mary: "Here is your son, Jesus Christ."<sup>2</sup>

Origen

- ❖ All the others - the evangelists Mathew, Mark, and Luke - have risen slightly above earthly matters. That is they have dealt with the events that Jesus did on earth, while they spoke only briefly about His divinity. They seemed to be just like other people who had accompanied Him on earth. In contrast, the Eagle - that is St. John - is the one to preach the sublime Truth, as well as the one who contemplates and turns with piercing vision towards the inner eternal Light...

In spite of that, we are the ones who are weak and crawl upon the earth: we walk among men with difficulty, we venture to uphold and comprehend these sublime matters, and we lead ourselves to believe that we have comprehended these issues since we have meditated on them or spoken about them.<sup>3</sup>

St. Augustine

- ❖ As for the blessed St. John...we find that he possesses a fiery desire and a mind that yearns for matters that surpass the human mind. He ventures and draws close in order to explain the sublime Birth which is impossible to report in its totality - the Birth of God, the Word. Yet he realizes that "It is the glory of God to conceal matters" (Prov 25:2); and that the honor due to God exceeds our understanding and comprehension. Hence, it is hard for anyone to understand or explain the features of the Divine Nature.<sup>1</sup>

St. Cyril, the Great

The Gospel of St. John specifically achieves the 'fullness' of the Holy Bible: it is as though that Gospel represents the 'epicenter' of the mystery of the Bible.

Fr. Maximus, the Confessor likens the Holy Bible to the Holy Church, and the Gospel of St. John as the Holy of Holies within Her. Through St. John's Gospel, we enter into the sanctified depths of the Holy Bible, we get acquainted with Its Mysteries, and we break through the veil.

St. Clement of Alexandria justly calls it the ‘spiritual Gospel’ that leads the soul to recognize the glories that have been prepared for her through the love of God the Father, the redeeming act of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the comfort of the Holy Spirit. St. Clement finds that the Gospel of St. John constitutes the spirit while the other three Gospels constitute the body. The latter present the tangible facts and events in the life of the Lord Jesus Christ, His service, and His redeeming work. The Gospel of St. John comes to present an interpretation of what lies behind these events, and to reveal their depths and implications. Hence the Gospel is in harmony with the words of the Lord: “...that they may know You, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom You have sent” (Jn17: 3).

This is the spiritual Gospel since it raises the believer into the spiritual world. It does not allow him to remain on the material plane: For when He had satisfied the multitudes with bread, they rejoiced (Jn 6:26), but He invited them to partake of the eternal Food (Jn 6:27).

In the Lord’s conversation with Nicodemus about the new Birth, the Jewish scholar’s concept was limited to his own mother’s womb. However, the Lord Jesus Christ raised him to see with his heart’s vision that “that which is born of the Spirit is spirit” (Jn 3:1-6).

In the Lord’s conversation with the Samaritan woman, we find that her thought is limited to her material bucket, Jacob’s well, and his herds. However Jesus lifts her heart to the Divine Source. From this, He offers her Water that will gush within her into sources of Living Water that flow into eternal life.

When St. John Chrysostom began to give sermons about the Gospel of St. John, he spoke about St. John, the evangelist. He presented His Gospel and made a comparison between him and other speakers and actors. He explained how the latter attracted the masses by their skillful use of the language as well as music, and by parading in attractive masks. As for St. John the evangelist, he spoke as though he stood on a heavenly platform: Many of the people to whom he spoke had already become like angels; and he yearned that the rest of his listeners would be transformed likewise. He only armed himself with the Grace of God and considered himself in the company of heavenly hosts. To these, St. John presents the joyful message of the Lord Jesus Christ.

❖ Now this man appears before us: the son of thunder, the beloved of the Lord Jesus Christ, the pillar of all Churches in the world, the one who holds the keys of heaven, who drank of the Lord’s Cup, was baptized by His Baptism, and confidently leaned on his Lord’s bosom... He entered wearing the robe of incomprehensible beauty, for he appears before us having put on the Lord Jesus Christ (Rom 13:14; Gal 3:27). His beautiful feet are shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace (Eph 6:15); and he is dressed, not with a girdle around his waist, but around his shoulders. His robe is not made of crimson hide, neither is it covered by gold on the outside. But it is woven and fashioned of the Truth Himself. Now St. John appears before us to head and proclaim openly the Truth. He does not appear wearing a mask and ready to play a theatrical role. He does not attempt to force the crowds to believe him, but rather uses gentleness and kindly looks and words to achieve his message without resorting to musical instruments such as the violin or similar objects. Indeed he only uses his tongue and speaks with a voice that sounds sweeter and more effective than a harp or any other musical tool. His platform is all the heavens and his stage is the whole inhabited planet. His band consists of all the angels. As for his hearers, they are human beings, many of whom are angels or wish to become likewise. These will not be able to enjoy fully his words unless they get transformed and demonstrate that change through their acts. As for the rest, they are like young children who hear yet do not understand... they are playful and leisurely, and only live to possess wealth, power, and sensual pleasures. What they hear is the Truth, yet their demeanor does not stress that which is great or noble since they hurry towards the earth that is used to make bricks.<sup>1</sup>

❖ He is no longer the fisherman and the son of Zebedee, for he is now the one who knows ‘the deep things of God’ (1 Cor2:10), and of the Holy Spirit - by this I mean that he plays on that harp. Therefore, we wish we would listen to him. Note that he does not speak to us as a person in any way, for his words come from the depths of the spirit, and from the mysteries that have not been revealed even to the angels. Indeed, the angels have learned about them from the voice of St. John, and at the same time as we have. So they really got to know about matters through us and which we already knew. Another apostle explains this by saying: “...to the intent that now the manifold wisdom of God might be made known by the church to the principalities and powers in the heavenly places (Eph 3:10). Therefore, if the leaders, powers, cherubim, and seraphim have learned these matters from the church, it becomes clear that they are very eager to listen to these teachings. Indeed, we are granted such a great honor since the angels have learned about these things which they had not known before.”<sup>2</sup>

==THE WRITER

* The word John means: ‘Jehovah is tender.’

* He is the son of Zebedee from the house of Sidon in Galilee. The Lord Jesus Christ called him and his older brother, James, to follow Him. Herod Agrippas, the First, killed James in the year 44 B.C.

* It seems that he was relatively well off as his father used to hire men to handle his boats (Mk 1:20). Moreover, the high priest knew who John was (Jn18: 16). His mother, Salome was a virtuous and pious woman who always followed the Lord (Mk15:40)...She participated with the other women in buying expensive spices for the body of Jesus. Most probably she is the sister of Mary, the mother of the Lord Jesus Christ (Jn 19:25).

* He became a fisherman by trade, and he and his brother James were fishing partners with Simon (Lk 5:10). The Lord Jesus Christ chose Simon, Andrew, John, and James to be His first disciples. Because John and his brother had fiery tempers, the Lord named them ‘Boanerges’ which means the ‘sons of thunder’ (Mk3:17). John became the apostle of love. He was extremely gentle and his gospel, letters, and revelations all revolve round ‘love.’ He continued to preach about love till his old age. In his interpretation of the Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Galatians, St. Jerome reports that in his old age, the disciples of John used to carry him and take him up into the pulpit to hear him utter these words: “My children, love one another. This is the Lord’s commandment: if you follow just this one commandment, it will be good enough for you”<sup>1</sup>. John is known as ‘the disciple whom Jesus loved,’ (Jn21:20).

* St. Ireneaus reports that John was twenty-five years old when the Lord Jesus called him to be His disciple.

* Like Peter and James, John is considered from the special ones privileged to be alone with the Lord Jesus in many instances: such as at the Transfiguration (Matt 17:1); the raising of the daughter of Jarius (Mk 5:37); in the Garden of Gethsemane (Matt 26:37); and at the time the Lord predicted the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem (Mk 13:3). The Lord entrusted him and Peter to prepare the place where He would hold the Passover with the disciples (Lk 22:8).

He in particular leant on the Lord's chest (Lk 13:23); and he accompanied the Lord and stood at the foot of the Cross where he received St. Mary as his mother (Jn 19:20-27).

* After the resurrection of the Lord, he was with Peter when he healed the lame man at the gate of the temple that is called Beautiful (Acts 3:1-6). He was also with Peter when they were sent to Samaria to lay their hands on believers so that they might receive the Holy Spirit (Acts 8:14-17).

* St. Paul considered him to be one of the pillars of the church (Acts 15:6; Gal 22:9).

* He preached in Asia Minor, namely in Ephesus; was tortured under Dematious, and was exiled to the Island of Patmos. There he enjoyed the revelations concerning the Day of the Lord: The book of The Revelation of Jesus Christ. He remained in exile until his death. According to St. Jerome, St. John remained in the world for sixty-eight years after the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ. Based on that, he lived for two or more years into the second century A.D. This means that he lived to be almost one hundred, for he was a few years younger than the Lord. Others believe that he died in the year 98 A.D. during the reign of Trojan (98 - 117 A.D.).

* In his book 'The History of the Church'<sup>2</sup>, Eusebius the Caesarian recounts a story about St. John the apostle. It reveals how much he was concerned, even in his old age, about the salvation of the human soul and the amazing ways he used to fulfill that task. The historian borrowed the story from the book written by St. Clement of Alexandria entitled 'Who is the Rich Person Who will be Redeemed?'

The story recounts that after St. John returned from the Island of Patmos; he went to the city of Ephesus to resolve ecclesiastical matters and to appoint bishops. He also visited some of the neighboring pagan areas. In one of these cities close by - probably Izmir - he introduced to the bishop of the local church a young pagan who had accepted faith. St. John was very concerned about him and underlined that that youth would be a trust he delivers into the bishop's hands. The latter consequently tended him until he was baptized. However, the youth soon made the acquaintance of some corrupt youngsters who encouraged him to lead a life of pleasure and squandering. When they needed money, they resorted to stealing and he would join them. Thus he became progressively involved in one crime after another and he even formed and led a gang to steal, plunder, and kill. Eventually, St. John returned to the city and asked the bishop about the youth. The bishop informed him: "He was led astray...he spiritually died, for he has reverted to his evil days and has become an indecent person and a robber. Instead of being a church member, he has gone to the mountains with a gang who shared his disposition." The saint could not bear the news, and asked for a horse that he mounted in spite of his old age. He rode to the area where robbers hid where they captured him and carried him to their leader. Upon seeing the saint, the gangster felt so embarrassed that he tried to flee. However, St. John ran after him and shouted: "Why are you running away from me? My son, I am your father and I am harmless and advanced in age. If need be, I am willing to die for your sake just as the Lord Jesus Christ suffered death on our behalf. For your sake, I will sacrifice my life. Stop. Believe, for the Lord has sent me to you." The youth instantly felt ashamed and stopped. He held his head down, and spread his arms in fear while he wept bitterly. St. John was overjoyed and led him back to church, where he stayed with him until he felt assured he would be well.

* St. John Cassian tells the following story: "As St. John was one day cuddling an eagle, a young hunter came by and wondered at the sight. He asked the saint why a great man like him would waste his time as such. The saint responded by asking him: "What are you holding in your hand?" The youth answered: "It is a bow." The saint said; "And why is it loose?" The youth replied: "Because if it remains taut all the time it loses its flexibility which is what I need to have when I shoot an arrow." The old saint said: "Therefore you should not be upset with me, my young friend, because I sometimes release the strings of my soul. Otherwise I would lose its power and I would be let down when I turn to it in the time I need."<sup>1</sup>

* The historian Eusebius<sup>2</sup> also reports how St. John was extremely concerned about preserving the upright faith from the trends of heretic thoughts. He bases his report on the writings of St. Clement, bishop of Lyon. He reports that the Saint went into a public bath to bathe, and there he heard the heretic Kirnasius (proclaiming that the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ is an earthly one; and that He loved to go to dinners and engage in impure physical relationships). Upon hearing that, St. John jumped out in great dismay, and ran away as he could not bear to be under the same roof with that man. He told his companions to follow his example and said: "Let us escape lest the bath would collapse due to the presence of Kirnasius, who is the enemy of truth"<sup>3</sup>.

* Using the words of Apollonius - who is believed to have been a bishop of Ephesus, Eusebius<sup>4</sup> the historian, also tells us that the apostle St. John, by the grace of God, raised a person from the dead.

*The scholar Tertullian<sup>5</sup> reports that St. John was thrown into a tub filled with boiling oil and that the Lord rescued him.

PLACE AND DATE OF WRITING

According to the testimony of St. Iraneaus, Bishop of Lyon (177 A.D. - 200 A.D. approximately), who is a disciple of St. Policarpus, St. John delivered his Gospel to the bishops of Asia where he lived with them until the reign of Emperor Trajan. He had it published in Ephesus.<sup>6</sup>

This testimony continues to be accepted in both the Eastern and Western Churches with hardly any opposition. However, some critics have recently raised doubts concerning the authority of St. John and consequently questioned the place and date of his writings.

Concerning the place of writing, some think it to be Antioch or Syria. They base their assumption on the information given in the Acts of Ignatius<sup>7</sup> - (which is a document with uncertain date) - and which mentions that St. John was closely bound to Antioch. The response to this is that St. John did stay in Antioch for a short time, but then he went to Ephesus where he resided for a long while..

Other critics believe it was written in Alexandria and their claim to that is that the oldest manuscripts of St. John's Gospel have been found in Egypt. They also explain that the writing reflects a Hellenic style that corresponds to the thought of the School of Alexandria and that had been inspired by Philo, the Jewish Alexandrian thinker. The response to this theory is that the academic climate of Egypt led the School to have it in its possession at a very early date. By having it at the School, the Gospel could play a significant role in the life of her church and its fathers. This does not necessarily lead to the conclusion that it was written in Egypt<sup>1</sup>.

Concerning the rejection of some critics to the testimony that the Gospel was written in Ephesus, their view is based on the following:

First: Most of the recent critics confirmed, during the first half of the twentieth century, that the style of writing of the Gospel of St. John is Gnostic and Hellenic. They say that it is a style that is not consistent with the First Century after Christ but belongs rather to the Second Century. Therefore, they insist that even if St. John was the one who wrote the original text, yet it had to have been rewritten by a Gnostic hand in Alexandria or Antioch during the Second Century. In 1947, the Manuscripts of the Dead Sea were discovered, as well as the complete Gnostic library found at almost the same time in Naga Hamadi in Upper Egypt. These confirmed the opposite of what these critics insisted upon. Consequently, scholars withdrew and believed in the veracity of ecclesiastic tradition. Most of them became convinced that the Gospel of St. John was written in the First Century and that St. John most probably is the one who wrote it while he lived in Ephesus. We will return to this subject when we will speak about “the Gospel of St. John and Gnosticism.”

Secondly: Some critics have tried to raise doubts concerning belief that the Gospel was written by St. John in Ephesus. They claim that the saint was martyred with his brother by Herod Agrippa the First in Jerusalem in the year 44 A.D. They have presented evidence that can be refuted based on the following considerations:

1- In St. Mark's Gospel, chapter 10:39, the verse says that James and John would drink of the same cup as the Lord Jesus Christ. They claim that this means that John must have been martyred with his brother; otherwise St. Mark would have changed his version. The response to that is that St. Mark was obligated to report the exact words of the Lord Jesus Christ, and had no right to alter any of them, thereby leaving the interpretation to the reader. The Lord used the cup as a symbol to prophecy the sufferings that the two disciples were to undergo. It does not necessarily indicate martyrdom or the spilling of blood<sup>2</sup>. Besides, if Herod had killed the two brothers together, St. Luke would not have mentioned the death of James only (Book of the Acts of the Apostles). He would have mentioned both brothers: “Then he killed James the brother of John with the sword. And because he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to seize Peter also,” (Acts 12:2, 3).

2- The critics depended on a brief expression that occurs in the writings of two later authors: namely, Philip of Sidea, a writer of the Fifth Century; and George Hamartolus, who wrote in the Ninth Century. In their writings, they referred to Papayas who stated that the Jews had killed John and James. The response to their statements regarding that matter cannot be taken seriously since these two writers are known to be inaccurate historians<sup>3</sup>. C.K. Barrett states that Ireneaus and Eusebius are acquainted with the writings of Papayas and that he does not mention anything about the martyrdom of St. John<sup>4</sup>. Moreover, the fact that Philip of Sidea names St. John as the Divine leads one to be suspicious since St. John was not known by that title in the days of Babias- in the Second Century. Concerning what George Hamartolus has written, the matter was not taken seriously as he came back to the subject and reported that St. John had passed away peacefully (without martyrdom).

3- In the Syrian records of the Acts of the Martyrs - 411A.D.<sup>1</sup>- the commemorations of St. John and St. James are celebrated on the same day, i.e. December 27. They are celebrated as two apostles from Jerusalem. This agrees with the Calendar of Carthage- written in 505A.D. approximately<sup>2</sup>. Yet some scholars point out the error that is made as the Baptist follows the name of St. John. Moreover, in the sermon of Fr Avrahat,<sup>3</sup> he says that we may add the names of John and James only to the names of Stephen, Peter, and Paul as apostles who died as martyrs.

The response to the above is that some confusion has occurred between St. John the Baptist and St. John the Apostle. The following provides positive evidence that St. John did not die with his brother:

1- St. John is mentioned as one of the pillars of the Church in Galatians 9:2: and the date to that is after 44 A.D.

2- The archaeological finds of the grave of St. John in Ephesus by Austrian scholars support the traditional ecclesiastic thought<sup>4</sup>.

3- According to Polycrates, the Bishop of Ephesus had written to Victorinus, the Bishop of Rome, in the year 190 A.D. approximately, to confirm that John the Apostle had lived in Ephesus and had died there<sup>5</sup>.

Concerning the date of the writing of the Gospel of St. John, it was penned towards the end of the apostle's life. This is based on ecclesiastical tradition. It is clear that it was written after the destruction of the temple of the Jews in Jerusalem in the year 70 A.D- (refer to Jn 2:19, 20; 4:21). Thus the writing took place probably during the period after the believers had been banned from the gatherings of the Jews around the years 85 to 90 A.D. - (refer to Jn 9:22; 16:2).

THE AIM OF THE WRITING

The Evangelist tells us about his object in writing the Gospel in the following words: “...that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have life in His name,”(20:31). Note the following in the above verse:

A- The word ‘believe’ occurs in Greek as ‘pioteonte’ and this appears in the Seniaid, Vatican, and Koredethi versions. It is used in the present tense and not in the past tense to indicate that the Gospel has been written to reinforce a faith that is established already<sup>6</sup>. Hence, he is not presenting a new faith, but rather he seeks to uphold the faith of the church, and which she already enjoys, and seeks to prevent anyone from deflecting from it.

B- The core of faith is that Jesus is the Messiah, and that He is the Son of God. According to W.C.Van Unnick<sup>7</sup>, the word ‘Messiah’ is not a mere title but it necessarily implies ‘the one anointed’: ‘The anointed king.’ In contrast to the Gentiles, this is the issue that only the Jews could recognize. As for the expression ‘Son of God’ the Hellenic world could understand it more than others. In any case, the association of the two expressions was fundamental to indoctrinate and ascertain faith of those from Jewish or Gentile origin. Every believer has to recognize that Jesus is the subject of all the old prophecies, and that He is the Son of God and is consubstantial with Him in essence. Hence He is able to offer redemption and renew our nature.

Scholars have remarked that the word ‘Messiah’ occurs in this Gospel only without any translation and just in its own right. It is as though St. John intends to underline the concept of the Jews. Consequently, we find him presenting us with the words of Philip to Nathaniel: “We have found Him of whom Moses in the law, and also the prophets, wrote...” (Jn 1:45). Also the invitation of Andrew to his brother Simon Peter: “We have found the Messiah” (which is translated, the Christ) (Jn 1:41). This is the picture of the Lord Jesus Christ that we find in the Gospel of St. John from its very beginning - a Messianic picture<sup>1</sup>.

It is the picture of Christ as the King and Messiah that the Jews have awaited for long, and Whom the Evangelist ascertains in more than one passage. He reports that when the Lord entered Jerusalem they “...cried out: ‘Hosanna! Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord! The King of Israel!’...His disciples did not understand these things at first; but when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things were written about Him,” (Jn 12:13-16). Before Pilate, the Lord admitted that He had a Kingdom (Jn 18:33-37). He was claimed as King of the Jews (Jn 19:3, 12-15, 19, 20). St. John is the only one who reports that the crowds sought Him to crown Him as King but he withdrew from their midst (6:15). The Lord did so because their concept of a Messianic King was different from His own.

This presentation of the Lord Jesus Christ as the Messiah King whom the Jews had been awaiting for so long, led some scholars to consider that St. John was a Jewish man with a bitter heart. They explain that this was due to the enmity that the Jews expressed towards the Lord Jesus Christ. This is what Lord Charnwood claimed in 1925. However, some scholars, such as F.Taylor, observe that this was not the main object; and that St. John was bitter towards anyone who expressed hostility towards the Lord, whether that came from a Jew or from a non-Jew. Other scholars- such as A.T. Robinson<sup>2</sup> -find that the Apostle did not direct his Gospel to the Jews, but rather to Christians of Hellenic origin.

C- The aim of this Gospel is to ascertain the Divinity of the Lord Jesus Christ, as He is the Son of God. The Apostle had no intention to go into theoretical discussions or philosophical arguments. He just proposes that we enjoy life in His Name. Our faith in the Lord’s divinity touches our lives and redeems our very souls. Consequently, after the New Testament had been written, the first sermon we find in our hands begins with these words<sup>3</sup>: [It is appropriate for us, dear brethren, to think of the Lord Jesus Christ as the Son of God, the Judge of the living and the dead. Therefore we should not belittle the issue of our redemption, for if we do, we will be belittling (the Lord Jesus Christ) and will consequently receive so little from Him<sup>4</sup>.]

It is as though this Gospel comes to claim, with greater clarity and elaboration, what the other evangelists have presented to us. It announces the divine aspect. In this context, Origen says: [None of the evangelists announced the Lord’s divinity as clearly as St. John. He is the one through whom the Lord says: “ I am the Light of the world”, “ I am the Way, the Truth, the Life”, “ I am the Resurrection”, “ I am the Door”, “ I am the Good Shepherd”].Moreover, we find in Revelations: “I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End, the First and the Last”<sup>5</sup>.

In other words, this Gospel presents to us the eternal relationship between the Father and the Son, as well as the implications of this unique relationship in the lives of believers and its role in their redemption. By revealing the Person of Jesus Christ as the only Son of God, St. John wishes us to believe in Him, become saved, and attain eternal life. The evangelist underlines that the Lord’s contemporaries neither realized the full extent of His perfection nor the implications of His words nor deeds. That seemed to be beyond their comprehension. His blood relatives, such as His Mother, and His brothers (His cousins), His friends, the Jewish teachers, the priests, as well as the Samaritan woman and Pontius Pilate...all these did not comprehend His words and were astonished at His acts<sup>1</sup>.

* I dare to say, dear brethren that St. John himself did not speak of the issue in its entirety. Rather, he speaks insofar as he was able to comprehend. For he was a human being who spoke about God. It is true that God inspired him, yet he remained a human being<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

D- The Lord preserved the life of this apostle and did not allow him to be martyred at an early time as the other disciples. It was His will that St. John would present to the young Church the Truth in a clear manner - the Gospel of St. John - and to lead her to the Day of the Lord so that She could ultimately perceive the opened heavens and the Revelation of the Lord Jesus Christ.

* Can't you see, it is not without a reason that we say, this Apostle is speaking to us from heaven? Just observe how, from the very beginning, he attracts the soul upwards, and provides her with wings, and lifts up the minds of his hearers. In this manner, he lifts the soul above all that is tangible matter, and to heights above the earth and sky. He holds the soul's hands and leads her to heights that are above the Cherubim and Seraphim themselves; and even above thrones, authorities, and powers. In a word, he urges her to go on a journey that transcends all creatures<sup>3</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* St. Paul's spirit was heaven- bound and he said: "For our citizenship is in heaven," (Phil 3:20). The same is true of St. James and St. John; and therefore were called 'Sons of Thunder' (Mk 3:17). St. John was like someone who lived in heaven and consequently saw the Word of God<sup>4</sup>.

St. Ambrose

St. John lived into the end of the First Century and was the last one from among the Lord's disciples and apostles to leave this world. He lived to see a new generation of Christians, and he was - if we can correctly say so- the link between the Apostolic Era and the Post-Apostolic one. He wished to convey the final apostolic word about the nature of the Lord Jesus Christ, and to protect the Church from the invasion of wrong ideas.

Some scholars find that the Evangelist intended to face some of the Gnostic movements, such as Docetism, as these proclaimed that it is impossible for the Divine Word to become real flesh and incarnated. This was due to their perception of matter as being evil. Consequently, the Apostle ascertains in his Gospel that Jesus is truly the Son of God and that He truly became incarnate. This was not fiction, for he says: "The Word became flesh." We could not have enjoyed redemption if He had not carried our nature in Him, and actually shared our life. The Evangelist reinforces the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ: in the wedding at Cana and as he takes on the role of everyone's servant. He turns the water into wine, a task that involves creation, yet he presents it as a humble service and does not expect to be given a seat of honor. At the well of Sikhar, the Lord appears tired and thirsty. At the tomb of Lazarus, he is overcome and weeps. In the upper room, he washes His Disciple's feet; and on the Cross, He got thirsty.

The aim of this Gospel is to link the historical Jesus and the Lord who is present in His Church. He uses the events that occurred in the life of the Lord to proclaim His nature as the glorious God Who works in His Church<sup>1</sup>.

OTHER AIMS OF THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN

Some scholars find that five theories have been proposed about the aim of writing the Gospel of St. John:

1- To allow the believer to attain the promise of eternal life through the Lord Jesus Christ, the incarnated Son of God, and to make him experience heavenly matters as the Evangelist himself demonstrates (Jn 20:30-31). This is what we have discussed earlier.

2- To answer heretics and contemporary inventions, as well as antagonistic Jews. Doing so entails defending the Christian faith: a matter we will discuss later on.

3- The theory of wanting to complete what had been recorded in the other Gospels regarding other events. Among those who hold this theory are Eusebius the Caesarean<sup>2</sup>, and St. Jerome<sup>3</sup>. It is hard to believe that this is what the Evangelist aimed to accomplish. He really provides us with a revelation of the Holy Spirit through reporting the conversations and discussions between the Lord Jesus and certain persons and groups. These reveal the nature of the Lord, His redeeming mission, and His divine capacities. The Lord puts these to our service, besides granting us His sublime gifts and sending the Holy Trinity to live within us. St. John presents to us a wonderful and practical source of writing about the Living God and provides a most complete body of theological knowledge.

An old tradition holds that St. John wrote his Gospel in answer to the request of the Bishops of Asia Minor who were his partners in the ministry. St. Clement of Alexandria reports (in about the year 190 A.D.) the following: [John, who is the last of them all, having understood the apparent facts revealed by the Gospels (the other ones), was urged by his disciples and inspired by the Holy Spirit to write a spiritual Gospel<sup>4</sup>.] It seems as though they requested him to write a theological interpretation to what the Apostles had written earlier on. Though, historically it is necessary to remark that each Evangelist has recorded his Gospel through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit and has conveyed a distinctive theological principle that is also complimentary to the other Gospels.

4- St. Clement of Alexandria was inclined to side with what some called the didactic theory, which presents the Lord Jesus Christ as the Teacher. Although this is a fact, yet He is not a Teacher Who presents external or apparent knowledge. Rather, He is a Teacher Who embraces His students as members of His Body, savoring His life as a life they could live and attain as their own.

5- The theory of counteracting contemporary philosophies with the purpose of harmonizing between philosophy and Christian faith does not appeal to us. We do not believe that this is the object of the Holy Spirit. Rather, the object of writing this Gospel is to present the Divine Gospel Truth. It does not mean that this Truth rejects or opposes all philosophies, but that It sifts them and rejects all falsehoods. Especially during the time of St. Clement of Alexandria, the School of Alexandria was preoccupied with studying the possibility of harmonizing between the living Faith and philosophy. This involved what truths they embodied, and not what human beings had corrupted by their dreams and imagination<sup>5</sup>.

THE RESPONSE TO HERETICS, CONTEMPORARY INVENTIONS, AND HOSTILE JEWS

Some of the Church fathers, like St. Iraneaus- Bishop of Lyon<sup>1</sup>, St. Jerome<sup>2</sup>, and Victorinus of Pattau, as well as others, find that the aim of St. John's Gospel is to respond to contemporary heresies and inventions and to the hostile Jews who resisted the Church.

Victorinus of Pattau reports that towards the end of the Third Century and at the beginning of the Fourth Century, St. John wrote his Gospel after he had finished the Book of Revelation. [This was after heretics had spread their writings, such as: Valentinus, Kirethus, Apyon. There were many others who belonged to this satanic school of teachings in all the other parts of the world. This obliged the bishops in the neighboring areas to meet with St. John and obligated him to write a Gospel of his testimony<sup>3</sup>.]

It is true that the Apostle undertook the defense of Christian faith facing a number of groups who resisted the Church. However, his Gospel is essentially focused on the gift of the Holy Spirit Who has inspired the Evangelist to reveal the Divine Truth in touch with our redemption. Thus, His Gospel does not stop at the negative side.

There is no doubt that this Gospel provides a living Source out of which the Church continues to drink and draw strength as she confronts the inventions that appear through the years. In the response of St. Iraneaus to heresies, he quoted one hundred verses out of St. John's Gospel. Hipollituss; St. Athanasius, the Apostle; and St. Cyril, the Great quoted from him too. St. Clement of Alexandria often borrowed from him as well.

FIRST: THE RESPONSE TO THE HOSTILE JEWS

The resistance of the Jews to the Lord Jesus Christ is apparent in the three preceding Gospels. St. John uses the word 'Jew' seventy times, in contrast to its use five or six times in each of the corresponding Gospels. He uses the word to convey different meanings, such as the following:

- * With a national implication that has nothing to do with religion; for example, in the conversation with the Samaritan woman (9:4).

- * In the context of religious authority, such as the authority of those in Jerusalem who opposed the Lord Jesus Christ (22:9); 18:3; 8:13).

The Bible makes a distinction between the words 'the Jews' and 'Israel.' The latter has a positive meaning and refers to the real inheritance mentioned in the Old Testament. St. John the Baptist had come to baptize with water until Jesus appeared to Israel (1:31). Nathaniel was described as an Israelite in whom there is no guile (1:47). When St. John speaks about the feasts and customs of the Jews (2:6, 13; 7:2) we do not get any sense that indicates embarrassment or scorn.

The Jews resisted the Lord Jesus Christ: "You are His disciple, but we are Moses' disciples," (9:28). They sought to kill Him, therefore the Lord counted them as 'children of Satan' (8:44 -47). This is because they wanted to carry out the murderous acts of their father from the beginning of time.

The Jews denied that He is the Messiah and the Son of God (5:18; 8:40-49). They conspired and planned to kill Him (10:30-39; 11:8-50). They banished from their gatherings those who confessed their belief that He is the Messiah (9:22; 12:42).

There was also another group called The Ibyonions. These were believers of Jewish origin. They were adamant that it was necessary for Christians to uphold Jewish customs and the tradition of the fathers. In their zeal for Moses and the prophets, they considered that the Lord Jesus Christ was merely the son of David and that he had never existed prior to His incarnation. They believed that the Lord was just a great prophet whom they had been expecting. They called themselves 'Ibyonions': that is a Hebrew word -ebyon- that means 'poor.'

ST JOHN CLARIFIES THE FOLLOWING POINTS IN HIS GOSPEL:

- * There does not exist any sort of comparison between Moses- the recipient of the Commandments and the Law- and the Lord Jesus Christ the Giver of grace and Truth (1:17). The first provided manna, whereas the Latter is Himself the Bread of Life (Jn 6:23).

- * The end to Jewish traditions (1:-10).

- * Worship is not associated with the Temple (2:1-10)

- * The resentful Jews are not the children of Abraham, but rather the children of Satan (8:39-44).

- * The resentful Jews will not meet with Moses to share fellowship in the Lord's glory for he will condemn them (5:45).

SECOND: THE SUPPORTERS OF ST JOHN THE BAPTIST

Some believe that a few of the disciples formed a group that glorified St. John the Baptist and favored him over Jesus Christ. They believed him to be the greater one since he came before Him, and since he was baptizing. In Recognitions, a work credited to St. Clement, we are told that these disciples considered St. John the Baptist to be their teacher and not Jesus. These people lived in the Christian world and they opposed Christianity. They were influential, especially in Ephesus (Acts 19:1-8).

Those who hold that opinion - that this Gospel has been written to resist those who favor St. John the Baptist- find that the Evangelist ascertains that the Lord Jesus Christ is the Light of the world (1; 8-9); that the Lord came after St. John the Baptist although He really existed before St. John the Baptist; and that the Lord is greater than him (1; 30). Besides, he confirms that the Lord - and not St. John the Baptist- is the Messiah (1:20; 3:28); and that St. John the Baptist came to bear witness for the Lord so that the Lord increases while St. John the Baptist decreases (3:30).

St. John confirms, through the testimony of St. John the Baptist himself, the greatness of the Lord Jesus Christ: The Baptist is not the Light but rather he is a witness to the Light (1:6-8); that he is not the Groom but the friend of the Groom (2:28-30); that he is not the Lamb bearing the sins of the world, but that the Messiah alone is the Lamb of God Who bears the sins of the world (1:29).

This Evangelist has clearly proclaimed the deep feelings of the Lord Jesus Christ more than any of the others. This is powerfully apparent in the Lord's final prayer in Chapter 17 when He prays out loud. Thus the Evangelist offers to us a picture of the Incomprehensible Lord which he admits is so hard to express: he leads us into the perfectly divine mystery and reveals the Lord's utter manhood so that we stand in awe and astonishment!

St. John did not ignore the greatness of St. John the Baptist, for he recognized that he was a messenger sent by God (1:60); and that he was the burning and shining light (5:35).

THIRD: THE RESPONSE TO SOME INVENTIONS

St. Iraneaus, who lived in the Second Century, mentions in his book 'Against Heresies' that the Gospel of St. John opposes Kirethus, of Asia Minor, who is the proponent of the Gnostic trend. St. Iraneus believes that Kirethus claimed that the Lord is the son of Joseph and that the Messiah is a heavenly element that descended upon Him at the time of His baptism, and that It departed from Him after His death. He also claimed that the Creation occurred through a creative power and not through God.

St. Iraenius, the Bishop of Lyon mentions Ibyion together with Kirethus; and this led St. Jerome to believe that the Gospel of St. John was written to answer Ibyion and his followers who belonged to a conservative Christian faction.

There is also the opinion that St. John's Gospel is directed against the declared Docetists who spoke about visualization concerning the body of the Lord. They claimed that Jesus, the Messiah, did not really become incarnated and that His body was not real but seemingly real or ethereal, or a fancy of the mind. Hence He appeared to be human and consequently His suffering and death were manifested.

FOURTH: A CALL TO DISPERSED CHRISTIANS OF JEWISH ORIGIN

St. John mentions twice those who have believed in the Lord but who lacked the courage to proclaim their faith. Such people feared they would be banished from the meetings of the Sanhedrin. Mention is first made in Ch 12:42: "Nevertheless even among the rulers many believed in Him, but because of the Pharisees they did not confess Him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue." The second mention occurs in Ch 19:38: "After this, Joseph of Arimathea, being a disciple of Jesus, but secretly, for fear of the Jews, asked Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus."

FIFTH: SUPPORTING ALL CHRISTIANS IN THE WORLD, REGARDLESS OF ORIGIN

The Lord Jesus Christ came into the world to be the Light for every person (1:9). He is the Lamb of God Who carries the sins of the world (1:29); He came to redeem the world (3:16); having been raised on the Cross, He attracts everyone to Him (12; 23); for He is the Savior of the world. The Jews scornfully wondered if He would go to the Dispersion to teach the Greeks (7:35). Thus they prophesied unwittingly of the work He would do among the Gentiles. We hear about that from some of the Greeks who asked Philip: "Sir, we wish to see Jesus," (12:20-21). In talking about His task as a Good Shepherd, Jesus ascertains that He has other sheep that do not belong to this fold and that He must bring them so that there will be one flock and one Shepherd (10:16). In 4:35, we learn that the Lord has come to save not only the Jewish nation but to gather and unify the dispersed children of God. Some Samaritans made the acquaintance of the Lord and recognized Him as the Savior of the world. He Looked upon the fields of Samaria and found that they were white and ready to be harvested (4:35).

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN AND THE SYNOPTIC GOSPELS<sup>1</sup>

Although the Gospel of St. John is different from the analogous or Synoptic Gospels- the gospels of Matthew, Mark, and Luke- yet we cannot chop it completely away from them. This is because the Evangelist assumes we have knowledge of the preceding three publications; or that at least we are familiar with the tradition on which they are based <sup>2</sup>.

The first ecclesiastical opinion is embodied in the words of St. Clement of Alexandria<sup>3</sup>

and this states that St. John wanted to present a spiritual interpretation to the three Gospels written earlier. This opinion has prevailed throughout the ages and is still accepted by many scholars. However, some recent critics find no positive or negative relationship between this Gospel and the other three. Others believe that St. John knew St. Mark and St. Luke but did not know St. Matthew.

It is worthy to note that we assume that the reader is familiar with the other three Gospels. For example, in John 1:40 St. Andrew is introduced to us as follows: “...Andrew, Simon Peter’s brother...” although no previous mention had been made of St. Peter. In John 6:67, St. John assumes that the reader is familiar with the twelve disciples. In John 1:23- 34, he records St. John the Baptist’s witness for the Lord, and assumes that the reader knows about the Lord’s Baptism at his hands.

Some are of the opinion that the three Gospels are similar to the itinerary or journey of the Lord Jesus Christ from Galilee to the holy City where He offered Himself as the unique Passover offering. On the other hand, they find that the Gospel of St. John relates a number of occasions when Jesus resided in Jerusalem; and he mentions the feast of the Passover three consecutive times. Finally, he speaks about the eve of the last Passover when the Lord died as the Lamb of God in order to present a new feast for the whole world, to be filled with the joy of His Resurrection, an event that would be commemorated and celebrated as “the Christian Passover.”

St. John the Beloved has recorded this Gospel through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit; and after the time of the writing of the three Synoptic Gospels. He records his Gospel to the universal Church to clarify the nature of the Savior, who is the divine and eternal God, the Son of God, and the Savior of the world

* It is for a good reason that St. John begins his story with the Eternal Presence. In contrast, St. Matthew starts his Gospel with the relationship of the Lord with Herod, the king; whereas St. Luke starts with Tiberius Caesar; and St. Mark starts with the Lord’s baptism at the hands of St. John the Baptist. St. John skips all these matters and crosses over all the times and ages<sup>1</sup>.

* Why does St. John speak briefly about God’s plan: “And the Word became flesh...” (14), whereas the other evangelists began by speaking about it? He left out all the other matters: the pregnancy, His birth, His upbringing, and His growth to... speak promptly about His eternal Being? ...He does so in order to frustrate those who wish to belittle that subject, and to attract them towards heaven. That is why it is for a good reason that he starts his story from a heavenly peak and from the eternal Being. Thus while St. Matthew, St. Luke and St. Mark begin by speaking respectively about king Herod, Tiberius Caesar, and the Baptism of St. John the Baptist; St. John the Evangelist abandons all these matters and draws the minds of his listeners to the ‘Beginning.’ He does not wish their thoughts to be attached to any detail or be bound by certain limits as the other evangelists have done by mentioning Herod and Tiberius and John. What we are trying to indicate is that it is astonishing that St. John, who dedicated himself to this sublime teaching, did not ignore the Plan (of Redemption). The other evangelists were not confined to these limits either and are not silent about His actual Being before all ages. It is for a good reason that One Spirit moved all these souls and they therefore demonstrated great harmony in their stories<sup>2</sup>.

* St. John was particularly favored, above all the other companions and evangelists, and granted a special gift from the Lord. He leaned on His chest during the Passover - an indication that he drank deeper mysteries out of the Lord's profound heart. Consequently, he spoke of matters that pertained to the Son of God. These matters could arouse the curious minds of children but they would not satisfy them as they are beyond their comprehension. On the other hand, for those who are more developed and have attained some kind of inner manhood, these matters provide words that can be experienced and are fulfilling<sup>1</sup>.

* In the four gospels, or more correctly in the four books that constitute one message of good news or 'gospel', St. John is deservedly likened to an 'eagle' due to his spiritual discernment. Through his words, he has achieved greater and more sublime heights than all the other three evangelists. By his ascendance, he has sought to elevate our hearts too. This is because the other three evangelists walked with the Lord on earth as though He was a human being. They speak very rarely about His Divinity. As for St. John, it is as though he belittles His passage on earth- as is evident in the introduction. He shakes us with his thundering words and carries us not merely above the earth, but beyond all the surrounding air and skies. Indeed, he carries us above all the angelic hosts and other ethereal armies. Thus he attains the One Whom 'all things were made through Him, and without Him nothing was made that was made'<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

St. John relates only the following events in the way the other three gospels do, but that is where all resemblance ends:

- * The Lord's Baptism- (by implication) 1:23-34.
- * The Cleansing of the Temple 2:13-16.
- * The Feeding of the Crowds 6:1-13.
- * Walking on the Water 6:16-21.
- * The Anointing in Bethany 12:1-8.
- * The Lord's Triumphal Entry in Jerusalem 12; 12-19.
- * Announcing the Betrayal 13:21-30.
- * His Sufferings and Resurrection presented in a special way.

Besides, St. John mentions seven miracles only. He chooses them out of countless miracles and wonders; and the ones he relates are new to us since any other evangelist does not relate them. An exception to that is the Lord's walking on the waters; and the feeding of the crowds, which he records as an introduction to his words about the Eucharist.

St. John mentions events and conversations that have not been mentioned by any of the evangelists and thus his words are new to our ears. He does not repeat what has been mentioned before, such as the birth of Christ, His lineage, His temptation, the sermon on the mount, the transfiguration, the parables, the last supper, the suffering in the garden of Gethsamene, the resurrection, etc...he is often satisfied by merely alluding to them.

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN IN THE LIGHT OF THEOLOGY AND HISTORY

There is no doubt the St. John's Gospel has a distinctive character that sets it apart from the other gospels. Thus if the latter have been inspired by the Holy Spirit for a historical purpose while each, at the same time, focuses on one specific aspect of the Lord Jesus Christ; then this Gospel has an overwhelming theological nature, even though it is also presented within a historical framework.

St. Mark mentions one trip from Galilee to Jerusalem (Mk10:1). As for St. John, he mentions three trips (Jn 2:13; 5:1; 7:10). In St. Mark's Gospel, the event of the cleansing of the Temple is related towards the end of the book (Mk 11:15); whereas in St. John, it is mentioned near the beginning (Jn 2:13 etc...).

St. John the Evangelist focuses on the Person of the Lord Jesus Christ. He wishes to proclaim that the Word of God Who transcends time has submitted to time, and consequently holds a place in the history of mankind. Actually, he did not wish his Gospel to be an exposition and history of the life of the Lord; but rather intended to underline His reality as the Logos - the Divine Word, the Light, the Truth, the Life, the Resurrection, etc... It is as though this Gospel intends to ascertain that to experience the internal joy of the Kingdom of God, it is essential to get acquainted with the Person of the Messiah and Redeemer; and to realize how His mysteries work within us. That is why the Lord submitted to time and 'the Word became flesh' (1:14).

As human beings, we are clothed with flesh that obeys and submits to the factor of time. By willingly submitting to time and invading our history through His incarnation, the Lord Jesus Christ has not shattered time but has sanctified it in a special manner. That could explain why St. John speaks intensely about the ages and the times.

He says:

"...now it was about the tenth hour..." (1:39);

"...it was about the sixth hour..." (4:6; 19:14);

"It has taken forty-six years to build the Temple..." (2:20);

"...and it was winter." (10:23);

"And it was night." (13:30).

The Apostle's interest in recording time could be to underline that the Lord had a real body and became part of the history of mankind. His incarnation was not mere fiction as some have claimed, such as the Docetists.

As St. John delves deeper into theology, and as he is the first theologian, he explains to us God's Intention and "Plan" (in Greek, 'eikos ecomomia', eikos meaning house, nomos meaning law or tradition): "Wisdom built herself a house" (Prov 9:1). Wisdom is the Lord, and the first house for Him is the holy Virgin Mary. By His incarnation through her, the Lord came into the world. The holy Virgin is the image of the Church that is also the house of God (1 Cor 3:9-17)<sup>1</sup>.

THE RISE IN THE IMPORTANCE OF THE HISTORICAL ASPECT

Recently, some scholars have attempted to interpret the Gospel of St. John from a purely theological perspective, and thereby missing its historical value. However, they have found themselves faced with this reality: this theology has been recorded within a historical framework<sup>2</sup>. Consequently, the trend grew towards the inclusion of the historical, social, and geographical aspects of this Gospel; giving special importance to the events that have been recorded in it and are not found in the other Gospels. Examples of these studies are those made by each of these scholars: Albright, Higgins, Leal, Pallard, Stauffer, and others. These have focused on the following<sup>3</sup>:

1- The events recorded in Chapter four which speak about the Samaritans: their theological beliefs, their manner of worship on the Mount of Ghorazim, and the exact location of Jacob's well.

2- In Chapter five, there is detailed information about the pool of Bethesda: its name, location, and architecture.

3- Theological essays concerning the Feast of the Passover (Chapter 6); and the Feast of the Tabernacles (Chapter 7, 8). These provide us with accurate information about certain celebrations and feasts, and the readings made in the Jewish Temple during these occasions.

4- Specific details about Jerusalem: such as those mentioned about the pool of Siloam (9:7); Solomon's Porch being a shelter in the winter time (10:22-23); and the Pavement in the court of Pontius Pilate (19:13). In other words, we may state that this Gospel presents us with accurate knowledge about Palestine before the destruction of Jerusalem in the year 70 A.D. and the demolition of its landmarks.

CHARACTERISTICS OF ST JOHN'S GOSPEL

1- A Gospel of Divine Holiness

This Gospel reveals to us God's holiness in a marvelous and joyful way. The word 'holiness' in Greek is 'ayios' and means non-terrestrial. Holiness is a name that pertains to God alone and St. John uses it to proclaim matters beyond our comprehension. In the past, God's holiness was associated with fear:

"...so that all the people who were in the camp trembled," (Ex 19:12 -25).

"You cannot see My Face, for no man shall see Me and live" (Ex 33:20).

"Woe is me, for I am undone! Because I am a man of unclean lips...For my eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts," (Is 6:5).

The Gospel of St. John reveals to us the depths of the New Testament as he announces that the Heavenly has descended on earth and His holiness is associated with glory and not with fear: "...the Word... dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory..." (Jn 1; 14).

2- A Gospel of Faith Activated by Redemptive Love

This Gospel is characterized by its use of certain terms that are repeated, and that are different from those that occur in other Gospels. Probably, the most important words repeatedly used are: believe- (98 times); know- (55 times); live- (55 times); testify- (21 times). These words have not been repeated at random or without reason, but it is done by the will of divine inspiration in order to reveal the aim of this Gospel: that is to instill faith based on spiritual knowledge, so that man may live with a spirit of love.

Note that the word 'believe' has been used 98 times, out of which it has occurred 74 times in the first 12 chapters. These chapters are called 'the book of wonders or miracles', and they cover seven miracles made by the Lord. They all seem to focus on 'faith' as it is the mysterious essence of our life and redemption. Note also that the word 'believe' occurs in this Book 39 times to convey not just the belief in the Lord's words, but the necessity that man surrender himself to God or that he move towards Him in a practical manner and as indicated in 12:11: "...because on account of Him many of the Jews went away and believed in Him." It could be that the word originates from the Hebrew language and means that a person surrenders himself trustfully <sup>1</sup>.

The word 'know' occurs repeatedly too. This enables the Apostle to ascertain that faith, that implies the trustful surrender to God, involves the surrender of the wise soul that accepts God's love and becomes acquainted with his mysteries, and consequently runs into His embrace. Faith is not accepted by the foolish, and it does not imply ignorance, but it goes side by side with real knowledge. That is especially true of the knowledge God Himself reveals and makes acceptable to the mind; for even though it exceeds the mind's ability, yet it does not oppose or contradict one's being in any manner.

Knowledge in this context does not imply mere theoretical understanding. It implies full unity and integration with Love and Truth: fellowship with Life. The Evangelist clarifies this point in his First Epistle: “...that which we have seen and heard we declare to you, that you also may have fellowship with us, and truly our fellowship is with the Father and with His Son Jesus Christ,” (1Jn:1:3).

The purpose of that knowledge is to have ‘fellowship with God’ so that he may live and work within us. Consequently, we will embody the nature of His love. This love is a sacrificial love that He pours within us so that we may experience and live it in practice. The Gospel tells us: “For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life,” (3:16). This is the redeeming love that the Son has offered, as the Lord explains: “And I, if I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all peoples to Myself,” (12:32). “...when Jesus knew that His hour had come that He should depart from this world to the Father, having loved His own who were in the world, He loved them to the end,”(13:1). Faith in the Cross enlightens our perception, and enables us to get acquainted with God as the redeeming Lover of mankind. Hence the Lord confirms: “When you lift up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am He,” (8:28). We will know Him as the living God, who loves His creation to the very end.

That explains how faith is associated with knowledge and love: leading man to experience the living faith through spiritual knowledge, and to practice the nature of love.

The Redeeming Love that we taste and that consequently leads us to respond to God with love arises from the eternal nature of love that exists between the Father and the Son (3:35; 15:9). Through that love, we too show it towards one another (13:14).

Thus, the evangelist St. John, who is the apostle of love, speaks to us about the following:

- God’s love for the Lord Jesus Christ.
- God’s love for mankind revealed through offering His only begotten Son.
- The Lord Jesus Christ’s redeeming love for mankind, especially in His farewell words.
- Our love for God.
- Our love for one another as an indication of our fellowship with the Divine Love.

3- The Gospel of Truth

The word ‘truth’ occurs in this Gospel 25 times. It is used in a different sense than that used by the Gnostics or the Hellenic writers<sup>1</sup>. Here ‘truth’ is not the fruit of mere human thought, or a human philosophy to be acquainted with. Rather, it is the ‘evangelical truth’ that implies the following:

First: The Divine Word Himself who frees the soul from bondage to sin: “And you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free,” (8:32). Through the Divine Word, we become holy according to the farewell words of the Lord: “Sanctify them by Your truth. Your word is truth (17:17).

Second: It is divinely announced to us, for the Lord says: “He who is from God hears God’s words; therefore you do not hear, because you are not of God,” (8:47). Also, “ But the Helper, the Holy Spirit, whom God will send in My name, He will teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all things that I said to you” (14:26).

Third: Truth implies living and practicing a way of life: “But he who does the truth comes to the light, that his deeds may be clearly seen that they have been done in God,” (3:21). “...Walking in truth,” (2 Jn:4).

4-The Gospel of the Spirit

The Evangelist transports us to the realms of divinity in order to acquaint us with the holy mysteries. He enables us to taste and experience them. In this way, there is no need for human controversies or philosophical debates. Rather, there is the need for the Holy Spirit Who enlightens our inner sight. Since it is the Spirit that inspires the Apostle to write, then he asks his readers to enjoy the work of the Spirit. Consequently, they will be enabled to understand the mysteries of the written Word, and perceive the redemptive Divine work as events unfold.

The disciples were not spiritually guided to understand the words of the Lord Jesus Christ until He was glorified, for He said to them: “Destroy this Temple, and in three days I will raise it up”...‘Therefore when He had risen from the dead, His disciples remembered that He had said this to them; and they believed the Scripture and the word which Jesus had said,’ (Jn2:19, 22). ‘His disciples did not understand these things at first; but when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things were written about Him,’ (12:16). ‘For as yet they did not know the Scripture, that He must rise again from the dead,’ (20:9).

They had heard the words of the Lord and witnessed the events, yet they needed the Spirit to open their inner sight so that they could understand and believe. It is for this reason that St. John underlines that physical sight alone is insufficient and that faith is what grants the sight to gain inner vision.

‘Jesus said to them: “But I said to you that you have seen Me and yet do not believe,” (6:36).

“And this is the will of the Father who sent Me, that everyone who sees the Son and believes in Him may have everlasting life; and I will raise him up the last day,” (6:40).

“Thomas, because you have seen Me, you have believed. Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed,” (20:29).

‘...And immediately blood and water came out. And he who had seen testified and his testimony is true; and he knows that he is telling the truth, so that you may believe,’ (19:34, 35).

‘Then the other disciple who came to the tomb first, went in also; and he saw and believed,’ (20:8).

The Gospel clearly states that there are those who perceive with the physical eye, but do not discern with their inner vision: ‘And Jesus said: “...I have come into this world, that those who do not see may see, and that those who see may be blind”,’ For it is through faith that the Gentiles saw the One Whom they had not seen actually in the flesh. In contrast, the Jewish leaders were blinded in spite of having seen Him with their own physical eyes.

The same principle of physical and spiritual sight applies also to the sense of hearing. There are those who hear the sound with their ears yet their inner ears are closed. The Bible tells us: ‘Then a voice came from heaven, saying: “I have both glorified it and will glorify it again.” Therefore the people who stood by and heard it said that it had thundered...’ (12:28, 29).

* The words of St. John do not matter at all to those who do not wish to be liberated from this earthly bestial world. Moreover, no benefit is gained from worldly matters. Thunder shocks us, as it is a sound void of meaning; whereas the voice of that Man comforts a believer and relieves his weariness. It does not upset us: it upsets devils only and their slaves.<sup>1</sup>

5- The Gospel Witnessing for the Lord Jesus Christ

There is no doubt that the essence of apostolic life is to be a witness for the Lord Jesus Christ. And St. John writes his Gospel to proclaim his testimony for the Lord as He is the ‘Messiah, the Son of God.’ He presents his confirmation in a manner that would appeal to the mentality of the Jews and within the framework of their traditions. Therefore he presents a number of different testimonies:

A- The Testimony of the Law for Jesus Christ: St. John clearly explains that He fulfills what came in the Books and prophecies, which specifically refer to the events pertinent to His sufferings (12:38; 13:18; 15:25; 17:12; 18:9; 9:24; 19:24, 36). The Lord Himself asks us to search the Scriptures (5:39).

B- The Testimony of St. John the Baptist: (1:7, 15, 19, etc...; 3:26, etc...; 5:53, etc...).

C- The Samaritan Woman: (4:39).

D- The Testimony of the Crowds: (12:17)

E- While the Lord proclaims that man cannot be his own witness, He clarifies that the Father witnessed for Him on various occasions: (5:31-36; 8:17 etc...; 10:37; 14:10 etc...).

F- The Testimony of the Holy Spirit for Him (15:26, etc...).

G- The Testimony of the Disciples for Him (15:27).

We will postpone, at this point, writing about the testimony for Jesus Christ as the Son of God and the confirmation of His divinity. We will deal with these issues when we get to the main exposition of the Gospel in order to avoid repetition and unnecessary extension. Actually, this subject is the core of the Gospel and the Evangelist opens and ends his Book with it: he clarifies the eternal relationship that exists between the Father and the Son. This is what angered the Jews and drove them to seek to kill Him (5:18).

Notice how St. John, the beloved, focuses the light of the Lord Jesus Christ on certain persons as he relates them to the Lord. Thus, he calls St. Mary ‘the mother of Christ’, and calls himself as “the disciple whom Jesus Loved.” It is as though the saints carry names merely to indicate their closeness to the Lord Jesus Christ.

6- The Gospel for the New Commandment or the Gospel of Love

Although this Gospel has not reported the Sermon on the Mount, or the Parables of the Lord, or any rules related to Him specifically; yet it presents to us a new commandment that the Lord has focused upon. This commandment is neither a charter of rules nor a code of laws. Rather, it is a way of love that does not burden man but that offers fellowship in the nature of the Lord Jesus Christ, the Lover of Mankind. He Himself says: “A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another; as I have loved you, that you love one another. By this all will know that you are My disciples, if you have love for one another,” (13:34, 35).

He spoke in length about the relationship of God and the universal Church as being one of love. Union with the Church is like union between newly wedded couples. St. John the Baptist describes the Lord as the Groom/Bride of the Church: “He who has the bride is the bridegroom...therefore this joy of mine is fulfilled,” (3:25-28). He also ascertains that growth is achieved by eating His Body: “I am the living bread which came down from heaven. If anyone eats of this bread, he will live forever...,” (6:48-51). The Lord likens Himself to the good Shepherd (10:11); the Doorkeeper (10:3); and the Door (1:7). He then describes Himself as the Vine and the Church as the Branches (Ch 15).

In this Gospel, the writer is described as the one who leaned on the Lord’s bosom, and as the disciple whom Jesus loved. The Lord is depicted as the One who shares with people their daily lives as for example in the wedding at Cana (Jn 2); and at the tomb of Lazarus, when the Lord shares the grief of the sisters and weeps (Jn 11). The same is evident when the faith of someone grows weak: as in the case of Thomas, and the Lord strengthens him (20:27-28); and when Paul fails, the Lord encourages him not to retreat and supports him by telling him about love (21:15-18). St. John introduces the Lord’s farewell speech by saying:

“...having loved His own who were in the world, He loved them to the end” (13:1). This is no exaggeration, for He sacrificed Himself for our sakes: “For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life” (3:16).

Note that in the Gospel of St. John, there is no explicit parable except when the Lord speaks about the good Shepherd (Jn 10).

7- The Messiah of the Joyful Youth

The Lord began His service by attending the wedding at Cana, for He is the Friend of young people and the Source of their joy. St. John does not mention the names of the couple at whose wedding the Lord went and made His first miracle (Jn 2). They were probably related to the Lord by family ties and consequently He had been invited with His mother to attend.

8- The Gospel records the Dialogues of the Lord

Most of these come in the form of questions or arguments directed to Him. Through His responses, the Lord reveals the truth about Himself and His mission. As examples, we mention the following:

- * Nathaniel: “How do you know me?” (1:48).
- * The Jews: “What sign do You show to us, since You do these things?” (2:18).
- * Nicodemus: “How can these things be?” (3:9).
- * The Samaritan Woman: “How is it that You, being a Jew, ask a drink from me, a Samaritan woman?” (4:9).
- * The Jews: “How can this Man give us His flesh to eat?” (6:52).
- * At the Feast of the Tabernacles: “How does this Man know letters, having never studied?” (7:15).
- * The Crowds: “You have a demon. Who is seeking to kill you?” (7:20).
- * The Scribes and the Pharisees: “Teacher, this woman was caught in adultery, in the very act. Now Moses, in the law, commanded us that such should be stoned. But what do You say?” (5:8).
- * The Jews: “We are Abraham’s descendants, and have never been in bondage to anyone. How can You say, ‘You will be made free?’” (8:33).
- “Do we not say rightly that You are a Samaritan and have a demon?” (8:48).
- “Are You greater than our father Abraham who is dead? And the prophets are dead. Who do you make Yourself out to be?” (8:53).
- “You are not yet fifty years old, and have You seen Abraham?” (8:57).
- * The Disciples: “Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?” (9:1).

That is how this Gospel achieves its aim: it presents the questions and the arguments and how the Lord answers and reveals His mysteries!

The Gospel also contains a number of general speeches and that could be directed to certain people:

- 1- Baptism and the New Birth (3:1-21).
- 2- Eternal Life (4:5-21).
- 3- The Source of Eternal Life (5:19-47).
- 4- The Bread of Life (6:29-59).
- 5- The Teacher of the Truth (7:14-29).
- 6- The Light of the World (8:12-20).
- 7- The Crucified Lord is the focus of faith (8:21-30).

- 8- The Spiritual Liberator (8:31-59).
- 9- The Good Shepherd (10:1-180).
- 10- The Oneness of the Divinity (10:22-38).
- 11- The Savior of the World (12:20-36).

The Gospel also presents the Lord's farewell speeches to His disciples. He speaks to them about the following:

- 12- His Death on behalf of the Whole World (12:20-36).
- 13- Holiness and Sanctification (13:31-14:31).
- 14- Union with the Lord (15:1-27).
- 15- The Holy Spirit, the Comforter (16:1-33).

9-A Liturgical Gospel

The Gospel of St. John is the most 'liturgical' of all Gospels. In other words, it proclaims the mysterious presence of the Lord Jesus Christ. He announces the presence of the Lord at the wedding of Cana- not as a mere guest- but as the mystery of a hidden joy as He turns the water into wine. He reveals His divine presence through His conversation with Nicodemus, at night, about the mystery of baptism. This is also portrayed in the healing of the man of Bethesda.

As soon as the Lord gave up His spirit, one of the soldiers pierced his side with a spear. At once, water and blood came out (19:34). This is the Blood of the Eucharist, and the Water of Baptism. It is as though the Church is born at this instance: a new Eve is born from the side of the second Adam.

Thus the Messianic events and speeches in this Gospel have a truly liturgical quality embodying ecclesiastical mysteries. Examples are found in the dialogue of the Lord with Nicodemus about the new birth or baptism (Jn3), and in His speech with the crowds that can be called Eucharistic speech (Jn 6).

10- The Gospel of Power and Energy

The Gospel of St. John is characterized by a distinct and dynamic energy. It offers us the flow of creation towards the Father through the Messiah and the Lord Jesus Christ: "...Jesus knew...that He had come from God and was going back to God," (3:1, 3). It is a true Passover episode through which the Lord raises believers into the Father's embrace through the Cross. He says: "Your Father Abraham rejoiced to see My day, and he saw it and was glad" (5:56).

The Gospel of St. Mark is likened to a lion as it makes believers rejoice with the heavenly hosts, singing hymns of victory and thereby sounding like conquering lions. The Gospel of St. Luke is likened to a bull's face: a symbol of believers who give their lives as a sacrificial offering of love to God in the name of the Lord Who is the true sacrificial Offering. The Gospel of St. Matthew is likened to the face of a man. In contrast, the Gospel of St. John is likened to an eagle that carries us up and soars to the heights of divinity. He leads us upwards into the heavens themselves to acquaint us with the sublime mysteries of God, and hence we can exclaim: "...and we beheld His glory!" (1:14).

11- His Interest in Certain Numerals

For example, the number 3 is used to record in the following instances:

- * The Lord goes to Galilee three times.
- * In Galilee, He chooses to do three miracles;
- * The Lord goes to Judea three times;
- * There, He does three miracles;
- * The Gospel records three out of the seven pronouncements the Lord makes while hanging on the Cross!

He was also interested in the number 7:

* The Gospel mentions seven witnesses for the Lord (review the section here entitled A Gospel witnessing for the Lord, the Messiah)

* In the whole Gospel of St. John, only seven miracles/ wonders performed by the Lord are recorded.

* The expression 'the last Day' is repeated seven times.

12- His Style is Absolutely Overwhelming

In reading the Gospel of St. John, the believer experiences a special pleasure for he discovers the ultimate in spiritual inspiration. The style is pure and extraordinary in that the writing is robed in apparent simplicity. The topic is the 'Messiah' Himself Who is the 'Word of God.' It is He Who raises the soul to enable her to discover the Divine Mysteries through Him and with no intermediary.

St. John lived for more than half a century after the death of the Lord Jesus Christ. He meditated on Him by the help of the Holy Spirit Which the Lord had promised to send: "...for He dwells with you and will be in you...He will teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all things that I said to you," (14:17, 26). "...He will guide you into all truth..." (16:13). His personal experience with the Lord during His life on earth, and the special place he held as His disciple, enabled his soul to take flight, through the Holy Spirit, and explore heavenly matters. Consequently, his spirit enjoyed her beloved and glorified Lord Jesus Christ; and he was enabled to write, by the spirit, this Gospel. He sought to elevate every soul so that it would taste that very same experience.

13- The Last Book of the Holy Bible to be Written

We have mentioned that this Gospel is distinguished from among the Synoptic Gospels as it was written towards the end of the First Century. It was probably the last book of the Holy Bible to be written. It was done with the purpose of completing, rather than repeating, what had been written before. Consequently, it possesses the following features:

* Whereas all the written Gospels are concerned with the service of the Lord in Galilee, and have not dealt with any other trip except the one the Lord took to Jerusalem in the last week of His life on earth; this Gospel is more concerned with the Lord's service in Judea, in Jerusalem, and in the Temple. That explains why some have called the first Gospels 'Galilean' Gospels, while they called St. John's Gospel 'The Jerusalem Gospel.'

* The first Gospels relate in simple language the Lord's interaction and dialogues with the common people. As for 'The Jerusalem Bible', it deals with the interaction between the Lord and the Jewish scholars and leaders more than with His interaction with the public. Consequently, some scholars claim that the Messiah of the Synoptic Gospels seems to be different than the One portrayed in 'The Jerusalem Gospel.' Actually, it is the Lord Jesus Christ Who speaks to the people in a common language: He draws on examples from their daily lives, is He Himself who uses another form of language when he converses with scholars and frankly reveals Himself and His Father. This led the disciples to tell Him: "See, now You are speaking plainly, and using no figure of speech!" (16:29).

14- A Combined Artistic and Historical Unity

The Gospel of St. John represents an artistic and historical unity, so wonderful and unique. The Lord's sermons and dialogues are linked to events concerning time, place and objectory. St. John includes seven miracles linked to seven speeches that reveal the nature of the Lord and His divine mysteries.

15- The Use of Analogy

This Gospel is distinguished by its use of analogy or parallels. We mention the following as examples of this feature:

- * The Book of Genesis begins by the sentence: 'In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.' St. John starts his Gospel as follows: 'In the beginning was the Word...All things were made through Him...'

- * The act of Creation was completed in six days; and the renewal of the Creation started from the sixth day after St. John the Baptist began witnessing for the Lord (1:19-2:1), to the moment the Lord attended the wedding at Cana. At that event, He changed the water of our lives into the wine of His love.

- * We find a parallel and contrast between the vacillating Nicodemus, a Jewish leader (Ch 3), and the Samaritan woman who is an outsider yet witnesses for Him and attracts the whole city (Ch 4).

- * When he spoke about eating His holy Body, many were repulsed (6:66). This is paralleled and contrasted by the disciples' increasing devotion to Him. This is expressed by St. Paul who says: "Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life... ." Also, we have come to believe and know that You are the Christ, the Son of the living God," (6:68, 69).

- * When the Lord opened the eyes of the person who was born blind (Ch9), the Pharisees met to challenge Him and claimed that He was a sinner (9:24). In contrast, the one who was healed witnessed for Him right before their eyes and challenged them with his words. Therefore the Lord said: "For judgment I have come into this world, that those who do not see may see, and that those who see may be blind," (9:39).

16- Variations in Style

St. John's Gospel displays a variety of styles. Thus he sometimes uses symbolism, at others he uses a narrative style, besides using dialogue, sermons, logical reasoning- (Sophism), didactic or instructive style...However, all along, he maintains a harmony and fluency that achieves a unified and complete literary work that indicates that it is written by one person.

Indeed, one of the features that characterize this Gospel is its language. While the expressions 'the kingdom of God' and 'the kingdom of heaven' occur often in the Synoptic Gospels, they are used twice only in St. John's Gospel. In contrast, the expression 'I am He' is repeated in this Gospel while it is not found in the other Gospels<sup>1</sup>.

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN AND THE OLD TESTAMENT

The Gospel of St. John is considered the Gospel that quotes the least or that quotes indirectly from the Old Testament. In the Greek text- the 'Nestle Greek Text'- we find only 14 quotations taken from the Old Testament. In the 'Westcott-Hort' text, we find 27 quotations taken from the Old Testament. In contrast, there are 70 in the Gospel of St. Mark, 109 in St. Luke, and 124 in St. Matthew. In spite of this, many scholars find a strong link between the Gospel of St. John and the Old Testament since the picture he draws of the Lord Jesus Christ is consistent and typical with that presented in the Old Testament: both present the Lord as the Messiah, the suffering slave, the King of Israel, and the Prophet<sup>2</sup>.

Donald Guthrie<sup>3</sup> reports that the great emphasis put on the extent to which Hellenism has affected the Gospel of St. John has hampered the study of the Old Testament in the light of St. John's Gospel. Actually, St. John presents the Lord Jesus Christ as part of Jewish history; and that when the Jews rejected Him they were really rejecting Someone related to them: 'He came to His own, and His own did not receive Him,' (1:11). The Lord went to the Temple and practiced his rightful authority 'when He had made a whip of cords, He drove them all out of the temple, with the sheep and the oxen...' (2:15). Nicodemus who was a ruler of the Jews knew the rights of the Lord as a Teacher (3:12). The Lord considered Himself as one of the Jews who had the promise of salvation. Accordingly, He tells the Samaritan woman: "...we know what we worship, for salvation is of the Jews," (4:22).

Some scholars find that the Old Testament is of paramount importance and influence on this Book, especially the Books of Genesis and Exodus, as St. John moves from the letter of the word to the Spirit of the word; and from the shadow and symbol to the Truth:

1- The Book of Genesis opens by speaking about God as the Creator who has conceived the whole world out of His love for mankind. The Gospel of St. John opens by speaking about the Word of God (the 'Logos') through Whom everything came into being. He is the Creator and the Renovator of creation, He enlightens every person with His brilliance.

2- St. John underlines the struggle between the Lord and Satan who has murdered people since the beginning of time (Gen 3; Jn 8:44). The Lord has granted us victory over Satan, as He says: "now the ruler of this world will be cast out (12:31). For He has come Who is born of a woman and Who shall bruise the serpent's head (Gen 3:15).

3- In the Book of Exodus, the Ark of the Tabernacle represents a sanctuary in which God lived in the middle of His people. St. John's Gospel comes to claim the glory of the Son of God incarnated and dwelling among us (1:14).

4- The healing bronze serpent (Num 21:4-9), is a symbol of the Lord Jesus Christ, our Savior (Jn 3:14).

5- The heavenly manna (Ex 16), is a symbol of the sacrificial Body of the Lord (6:25-58).

6- The water from the rock (Ex 17:1-7), is a symbol of the Lord Jesus Christ who says: "If anyone thirsts, let him come to me and drink," (7:37).

7- The pillar of fire that served for light to them (Ex 13:21-22), points to His words: "I am the Light of the world" (8:12; 12:35).

8- In Exodus, God reveals Himself to Moses and says: "I AM" or "I AM WHO I AM" (3:14). The Lord Jesus Christ ascertains more than once in St. John's Gospel and says: "I am He."

9- The Passover occupies a central place in the Book of Exodus (Ch 12). During the Passover, the Israelites crossed from Egypt and out of slavery to flee towards the Promised Land. The Gospel of St. John comes to reveal to us the real Passover: it is our crossing away from this world and going to the Father (13:1, 16:28).

The Evangelist mentions the three Feasts of the Passover that were celebrated during the Lord's service on earth. If he had not mentioned them, we would not have been able to know that the Lord had lived for about three years and a half after the thirty years preceding His baptism.

* At the first feast (2:13 etc..), The Lord cleaned the Temple, and in doing so proclaimed His zeal for it. He ascertained to the Jews that He would rebuild a new Temple in three days-through the resurrection of the temple of His Body.

* At the second feast (6:4 etc...), the Lord announced the offering of His sacrificial Body as the true Bread granting eternal life.

* At the third feast (12; 31), the hour had come for His glorification as He rose on the Cross, thereby granting His believers eternal life.

10- The Lord gives new meanings to the Old Testament: the Jews, according to the Old Testament, proudly maintained to be the children of Abraham who was given the promise. They proclaimed that they observed the law - especially by observing the Sabbath. The Lord clarified to them that He is the Only Begotten Son and Giver of true adoption: He is the Lord of the Sabbath! He indicates to them that they are not Abraham's children, but the devil's because of their denial of Him and of their desire to kill Him. They did not observe the Sabbath, and even Moses would accuse them to the Father (5:45).

11- The Lord Jesus Christ urges the Jews to read the Old Testament so that they would realize that it testifies for Him. He tells them: "You search the Scriptures, for in them you think you have eternal life; and these are they which testify of Me. But you are not willing to come to Me that you may have life," (5:39, 40). He underlines that anyone who believes in Moses, believes in Him, for Moses has written about Him (5:36). By saying so, the Lord clearly explains the continuity that exists between the Old and the New Testaments.

12- This Gospel underlines clearly that what has been achieved through the Lord Jesus Christ is directly related to our redemption. Besides, it had been predicted fully by the prophets of the Old Testament. For example:

- * The victorious entry of the Lord into Jerusalem (12:14).
- * His being rejected by the Jews (12:38, 40).
- * Not breaking the Lord's legs (19:36).
- * Abraham's vision of the day of the Lord and consequent rejoicing (8:56).
- * Isaiah's vision of His glory (12:42).
- * Isaiah's prophesy about John, the forerunner (1:23).

Guthrie comments as follows: [The Lord's quoting from the Old Testament and the comments of the Gospel of St. John indicate that the whole of the Holy Bible points to the Lord Jesus Christ: He is the fulfillment of the Old, and the Truth that will guide us to interpret the implications of the Gospel<sup>1</sup>].

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN AND Gnosticism<sup>2</sup>

By just flipping through the Gospel of St. John, we discover a feature that is totally different from the other Gospels. For while he presents the life of Jesus Christ in Palestine, he also underlines that in the Lord all the prophecies of the Old Testament have been fulfilled. However, and until very recently, scholars considered that the personality of Jesus Christ, according to St. John's exposition of Him in this Gospel, is more compatible within a Hellenic and Gnostic setting than with the way the Lord is depicted in the other Gospels. This opinion is being rejected by many scholars, as we shall observe later on in this work.

Some critics have maintained that Gnosticism, with its focus on inner knowledge as the road to salvation, has affected the writer of this Gospel. Yet Gnosticism appeared in the Second Century after Christ, whereas the Gospel of St. John had been written at the end of the First Century. Some may argue that the roots of Gnosticism are to be found in the earliest stages of paganism and even in Jewish times; and that some Christians in some way or other had accepted it since the First Century.

* In any case, the Gospel of St. John battles Gnostic ideas as they deny the humanity and sufferings of the Lord Jesus Christ. In Jn 19:34, a soldier pierces the side of the Lord with a spear and blood and water immediately flow out. What else could this be but an instance of His humanity? St. John accordingly says: "And the Word became flesh," (Jn 1:14). In St. John's First Letter (4:2-4), and in the Second Letter (v. 4), he says that those who do not confess that Jesus Christ came in the flesh are deceivers and are not of God.

Some scholars claim that we do not find in this Gospel the same Lord Jesus Christ that we find in the other Gospels that relate the parables and simple instructive behavioral teachings. Rather, St. John's Gospel presents symbols and specific definitions, such as: "I am the Bread", "I am the Light", "The Door", "The Shepherd", "The Truth", "The Life", "The Way", and "The Vine." We also find names such as 'The Logos', 'the Truth', and 'Knowledge.' Note also the use of antithesis, such as: the light and darkness, truth and falsehood, the spirit and the body.... All this has driven scholars to say that the Jesus depicted in this Gospel seems to be moving in a Hellenic world in the Second Century. Other scholars add that the writer believes in Gnosticism.

It is true that the Lord Jesus Christ, according to the Gospel of St. John, presents Himself repeatedly in awesome sacred expressions: "I AM HE." He came into a dark world that hates the light; he came into a world of falsehoods as of being the Truth; into a world of hatred and enmity while He is Love Himself. By His coming, He distinguishes between two categories of men: one that accepts the Light and another that flees from the Light. The first category believes in the Truth, while the other rejects It. Yet this thought is different than the duality found in Gnosticism. Indeed, the Gospel of St. John does not present a specific teaching concerning the origin of truth or that of evil; and that is what precisely occupied the Gnostics.

These studies could have constituted an obstacle as they seem to arouse doubts in some of the simple-minded concerning the validity of this Gospel and whether St. John the Evangelist is the writer. However, two important discoveries were made around the year 1947 whereby the Lord willed to transform these studies into factors that would strengthen believers all the more.

First: The discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls or the scrolls of Qumran: these have presented the world with a library about the sect of the Essenes. They document a period of time between 140 B.C. and 68 A.D. These writings reveal that the thoughts and expressions used in the Gospel of St. John are typically Palestinian and reflect the First Century after Christ.

Secondly: The discovery of a complete Gnostic library in the region of Naga Hamadi in Upper Egypt. This offers to the world, and for the first time ever, Gnosticism in its principal origins. Previously, we were gaining information about this subject from the writings of the fathers who opposed this school of thought. We had heard about the names of books without finding complete editions. Today, this discovery has provided us with information that reveals the vast disparity between the world of Gnosticism and the Gospel of St. John; besides indicating the definite differences between them. There is no longer any doubt that this Gospel does not depend on Gnostic sources. Indeed, it has been revealed that any words that were thought to have Gnostic origins are actually pure Jewish and Palestinian words that were in common usage in the First Century after Christ.

Some scholars, such as Braun, Barret, and Quispel have made comparative studies between the Gospel of St. John and the Gnostic manuscripts found in Naga Hamadi. Examples of these manuscripts are: 'The Gospel of Truth' (dating back to 140 A.D.), and 'The Gospel of Thomas.' They compared the ideas and expressions and came to the following conclusions:

1- It is impossible to place the Gospel of St. John among the Gnostic writings that have been found in Naga Hamadi. But it is possible to say that the Gnostics have made use of the Gospel of St. John in their writings during the Second Century A.D.; and that they have presented ideas not found in this Gospel.

2- There are strong distinctions between the Gospel and these manuscripts in the content of thoughts as well as expressions.

3- There are some expressions that are shared in both writings, yet the Gospel uses them in a specific way while the Gnostics have used them with different implications and for completely different purposes.

The above explains the relationship between St. John's Gospel and the writings of Christian Gnostics or heretics. Yet, we may ask: "Is it possible that this Gospel has opened the door to Gnosticism?" or "Has it prepared the way for it?"

* Some scholars find that the Gnostics could have been influenced by Judaism as they misunderstood some of the texts of the Old Testament and not because of St. John's Gospel. This Gospel has distinguished between light and darkness, yet it has not presented an ideology concerning the source of either of them.

* The Gospel of St. John focuses on 'faith' and considers 'knowledge' to be a 'divine gift' granted through a divine revelation. This is an issue that contradicts Gnostic thought.

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN AND HELLENISM

St. John has been accused - or the writer of this Gospel - of divesting Christianity with a Hellenic character for the purpose of attracting the Hellenic mind. As proof, they cite his use of the term 'the Word' or 'the Logos' as a borrowing from Greek philosophy.

The answer to the above is that St. John does not use this term in the same way as it used by Hellenic or Gnostic philosophers; or as used by Philon - a Jew from Alexandria who presented Jewish thought in a symbolic Hellenistic style. St. John gives the term a scriptural meaning that can be understood in the light of the Old Testament and its teachings about 'Wisdom.' It is Wisdom that has come to mankind to transform them into houses of God, and as the Book of Proverbs says:

"Wisdom calls aloud outside; she raises her voice in the open squares;

"Wisdom has built a house, she has sewn her seven pillars," (9:1).

'The Word' in Hellenic thought represents the governing mind inherent in the creation: it is the first newborn creature. In contrast, St. John speaks about 'the Logos' as God's own utterance. The Logos is the Only Son: He is of God and resides with Him. He does not exist outside God for He is indeed one with Him in essence. In Hellenic thought, we do not find the expression 'the Word of God incarnate dwells among men for He proclaims to them His divine mysteries.' There is then a distinction between 'the Word' as used by Hellenic scholars and 'The Word' according to the Bible.

If we study carefully the 'LOGOS' according to St. John's proclamation in his Gospel, we will find that It is equated with 'wisdom' as per the teachings in the Old Testament:

A- Eternal: (Prov 8:22; Sirach 24:9; Ws 9:5). [Read Jn 1:1].

B- Seated in Heaven, He descends to the earth, to live in the midst of Israel (Prov 8:31; Baruch 3:37; Si 14:8). [Read Jn 1:14; 3:41; 6:38; 16:28].

C- A bounty of the glory of the Most High: (Ws 7:25); [Jn1:14; 8:15; 11:4; 17:5).

D- Teaching the divine mysteries to man: (Ws 9:16); and all that pleases God (Ws 8:4); leading people to Life (Prov 8:25; Si 4:12). [Jn 3:19; 7:40; 14:19]

E- Uses the voice of the speaker "I" (Prov 8; Si 24)

F- Calls man and appears to him (Prov 8:1; Ws 6:16); [Jn 5:14; 9:35;]. He calls His disciples "My children" (Prov 8:23; Si 6:18), [Jn 13:33].

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN AND THE LORD JESUS CHRIST

It is regrettable that many critics have recently become exceedingly engaged in researching the extent to which this Gospel is marked by Hellenic thought, language, and culture. This has led some to believe that the writer could never have been a Jew! However, the study of this Gospel exposes the writer's relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ and the character of the Evangelist: St. John is preoccupied with revealing the nature of our Lord Jesus Christ.

First: As the King of the Jews: He is the spiritual King, the Messiah that the prophets awaited, and the One Who preoccupied the people of the Old Testament.

“Rabbi, You are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!” (Jn1:49).

“Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord!” (12:13).

- Pilate...said to Him: “Are You the King of the Jews...Are you a king then?” Jesus answered: “You say rightly that I am a king...” (18:33-37).

“Shall I crucify your King?” (19:15).

- And the writing was: JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS (19:19).

Secondly: The Gospel affirms repeatedly 21 times that the Lord Jesus Christ is the Messiah. This is in contrast to 19 times in the Gospel of St. Matthew. Indeed, the words spoken by the Lord, as well as His acts, all fulfill the Messianic hope<sup>1</sup> to the people of God:

* He came to purify His Temple in Jerusalem (2:13-22).

* He is the One “...of whom Moses in the law and also the prophets, wrote...” (1:45; Deut 18:18).

* In Him, the words of the prophet Isaiah were fulfilled (6, 35:5), when He opened the eyes of the blind (9:6); and made the deaf to hear, and the lame to walk, etc...

* The true Light that shines on those sitting in darkness (Jn1:5; 9; 8:12; 12:46; Is 9:1; 60:1).

* The Source of Living Water given to quench the thirst of His people (7:37 etc.; Ch 4; Ex17:1-7; Is 55:1; 58:11).

* The Shepherd King who personally cares for His people (Jn 10; Ez 34).

* The Judge of the living and the dead, and this is a Jewish title used distinctively for God (Jn 11).

* The Gospel, in its entirety, almost repeats the words of the Samaritan woman: “I know that a Messiah is coming” (who is called Christ)...Could this be the Christ?” (4:25, 29).

Third: This Gospel is characterized by the claim of the Lord Himself: “I AM He” with which He presents Himself to mankind. In the Old Testament, “I am He” indicates the One God, the Maker, and the Savior (Ex 3:14; 10:2; Is 42:8; 43:10-11; Ex6:7). That explains why the words of the Lord are repeated in this Gospel: “I AM He” proclaims the nature of God as the Source of Salvation:

“I am the Bread of Life,” (6:35).

“I am the Light of the world,” (8:12; 9:5).

“I am One who bears witness of Myself,” (8:18).

“I am the Door of the sheep,” (10:7).

“I am the Good Shepherd,” (10:11, 14).

“I am the true Vine,” (15:1, 5).

“I am a King,” (18:37).

Fourth: The principle theme running from the beginning to the end of this Gospel is the presentation of the Lord as the Kingdom in itself: note that the Kingdom has been mentioned twice only (3:3-5; 18:36). Yet He is revealed through our delight in the Lord Jesus Christ Himself who is our eternal Kingdom.

“...that everyone who sees the Son and believes in Him may have everlasting life,” (6:40).
“.... No one comes to the Father except through Me,” (14:6).
“.... He who has seen Me has seen the Father...,” (14:9 etc.).

This clear theme that runs throughout this Gospel has also been presented in the other Gospels. It is the ultimate outcome and conclusion that people reached towards the final days that the Lord Jesus Christ spent on earth.

Fifth: The Lord Jesus Christ is not presented as a lawgiver setting forth laws or rites. Rather, He is presented in Person as the mystery of life. He is ‘Life’- (14:6; 1:4). He announces to His flock the mystery of His coming to earth: “...I have come that they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly,” (10:10). “...Because I live, you will live also” (14:19). The Lord affirms to Martha: “I am the resurrection and the life,” (11:25). He came to graft us onto Him and be branches in His Vine, thereby carrying His life within us (15:1-8).

Our delight in the Lord Jesus Christ - ‘the life’- is achieved through the complete change that touches our nature during the mystery of Baptism - (3:3-8), our unity and steadfastness in Him through the mystery of the Eucharist - (6:52-58), and receiving remission of our sins continuously through the mystery of Repentance - (20:23). All these have been fulfilled by the power of the Cross and the blessings of His Blood.

Sixth: In each chapter, St. John presents to us a certain aspect of the nature of the Lord that grants us salvation and fulfills all our needs.

* By reading the Gospel of St. John, we get to understand the Lord from the perspective of His divinity: the Creator of all; and from the perspective of His incarnation: He came to reform the fallen creation<sup>1</sup>.

* Do not be in doubt - in your understanding of the mystery of the Trinity- that you are doing anything beyond man's capacity. St. John, the Evangelist, did just that: for he soared beyond the flesh, beyond the earth that he walked upon, beyond the seas that he saw, beyond the air where birds fly, beyond the sun and moon and stars, beyond all the intangible spirits, and beyond his own mind. He did so with his own reasoning mind, and sublimated and spilled himself above and beyond all this, high up wherever He may be found<sup>2</sup>.

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN AND THE FATHER

Since the Lord Jesus Christ is the focus of this Gospel, the Evangelist affirms that He is the Eternal Word of God. He came to reveal Himself to us and to accomplish the messianic and redeeming offering on our behalf - (20:47), granting us life- (10:10), since He is from above and above all- (3:3). At the same time, the Evangelist affirms the role of the Father in order to save us from falling into the error committed by the Gnostics. Hence the only Son is with the Father, and He is the Word and the Son at the same time, Who has been sent by the Father- (5:36; 6:57; 11:42; 20:21). He came to proclaim the words of the Father (3:34; 6:29; 17:3); and to perform His work- (10:36) He who sees Him sees the Father, and he who believes in Him perceives the Father- (5:23 etc; 12:44 etc; 14:9).

Therefore this Book is the Gospel of the Messiah: The Messiah is the Word of God and the Redeemer. Consequently, the Messiah is one with His Father, fulfilling the Father's will that is at the same time in harmony with His own. This is what we shall notice more clearly as we proceed with our study.

* St. John is like an eagle soaring upwards and reaching the Father Himself. He says: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God- (1)...The chaste writer explains mysteries that married people could not handle<sup>1</sup>.

St. Jerome

ST JOHN AND THE HOLY SPIRIT

Some name this Gospel "The Gospel of the Holy Spirit." Throughout this Book, the issue of the Holy Spirit is clearly and powerfully raised.

In the discussion between the Lord Jesus Christ and Nicodemus, the Lord speaks about the role of the Holy Spirit in the new birth (Ch 3). The Lord clarifies the difference between natural birth (physical) and spiritual birth. It was hard even on the Jewish teacher Nicodemus to understand the work of the Holy Spirit. Therefore the Lord presented to him a tangible example; He likened the Spirit to "the wind that blows where it wishes, and you hear the sound of it, but cannot tell from and where it goes. So is everyone who is born of the Spirit" (3:8).

The discourse of the Lord in this passage about the birth granted by the Holy Spirit is considered one of the principal signposts of the Gospel of St. John. It is in harmony with the rest of this Book, for we will be able to comprehend the divinity of our Lord Jesus Christ only through our grasp of the Holy Spirit. Moreover, this will enable us to worship God in spirit and in truth (4:24). This is possible through the Spirit of God Who lives within us and not due to our own ability.

The Lord saw the crowds, celebrating the feast and practicing its rites, without feeling any inner spiritual fulfillment. Consequently, He stood up on the last day of the feast and promised to offer the Holy Spirit as the living water springing within the believers (7:37-39).

In His farewell speech - Ch.14-17), the Lord could offer nothing else to comfort His disciples but the promise of the Holy Spirit. He is the Comforter- the Paraclete- that the Lord grants to His Church in order to affect and shape it constantly and ultimately transforms her into the image of her Groom:

* For He is Her Advocate [this is the literal translation of the Greek word: the Paraclete]. He is the Spirit of Truth that bears witness to the Lord. He does so not through mere theoretical words but through His power to shape our nature into the image of the Lord Jesus Christ and His likeness.

* The Holy Spirit is the speaker as the glorious Lord Jesus is no longer present in the flesh (since He has risen to heaven). He teaches, leads, and guides the disciples the truth, and bears witness through them (14:26; 16:13etc).

* He is the Comforter- (16:6 etc...) as we carry the Cross of the Lord Jesus Christ.

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN AND THE CHURCH

Many scholars consider that the earlier holy Gospels have been written for the world - whether the people are Jewish, Roman, or Greek- in order to acquaint them with the Lord Jesus Christ as a spiritual King, a true Servant, and the unique friend of all mankind. Consequently, all would believe in Him, and enjoy His redeeming work. Ultimately, they would rise from being slaves to become sons of God. As for the Gospel of St. John, these scholars consider that it has been written specifically for the Church and therefore it has been called 'The Gospel of the Church': it presents to us 'the Christ of the Church', even though St. John does not use the term 'church.'

The principal theological premise here is to establish a link between the historical Jesus as He appeared to be in His life on earth and the Christ of the Church Who is ever-present and works within Her. In other words, since the Lord Jesus Christ who is 'the incarnate Word of God' is central to the Gospel, then His Church- with Her ministry and worship, including specifically the holy mysteries- holds a principal position in His favor. St. John therefore discusses the following points:

1- The mission of the Church (Jn.4:31 etc; 12:20 etc.).

2- Her offering of worship 'in spirit and in truth.' He strips the Temple in Jerusalem of its glory in order to proclaim it - through the Church – of the crucified Lord resurrected from the dead (1:14, 51; 2:13 etc, 4:19 etc).

3- Regarding the holy mysteries of the Church: We find that St. John puts special emphasis on the mysteries of the Church such as Baptism, the Eucharist, and the Priesthood:

* The Evangelist presents the baptism of John as a testimony for the Lord Jesus Christ - (1:8) and a preparatory road to His baptism by the Holy Spirit (1:15; 25:23).

* At the wedding in Cana (2:1-12) The transformation of the water used by the Jews for purification into wine is a Messianic sign that His hour had come (2:4); and probably points to the Eucharist too.

* The Lord spoke clearly to Nicodemus about the mystery of Baptism (3:1-7).

* The Evangelist speaks clearly about the Eucharist (6:22-50). This is also referred to in the event of the feeding of the crowds (6:1-13). Here we see the Lord as He satisfies believers through the mystery of the Eucharist offered in His Church.

* The mystery of Baptism is also referred to in the healing of the lame man of Bethesda (5:1-14), since human nature is healed. Also in the event of opening the eyes of the blind man (9:1-7) by washing him in the pool of Siloam that means the one dispatched or sent forth.

* The Blood and Water flowing from the side of the crucified Lord (19:34) indicates the unity of the two mysteries: Baptism and the Eucharist, and the way they complement each other.

4- In the earlier Gospels, mankind is divided into good and evil; whereas in this Gospel the Evangelist writes about 'Christ of the Church' and makes a distinction between believers and non-believers. In believing, we are not judged (3:18) and we are granted eternal life (3:36). Moreover, we move from death to life. However, it should not be mere theoretical belief (13:34,35), but a living faith coupled with love and observation of God's commandments (21:114-24).

5- The promise of the gift of the Holy Spirit in the farewell words of the Lord as the Spirit would be the Comforter of the Church, Her Intercessor, and Leader (Ch 14- 17).

6- The Lord Jesus Christ presents Himself repeatedly as 'I AM' since He is the focus of life, glory, and hope in the life to come. In the same way, He is now the focus of His present Church.

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN AND THE UNIVERSALITY OF THE CHURCH

As this Gospel has been written for the churches found all over the world, it bears the thought of the "Universal Church." It is, therefore, not directed solely to the Jews. This line of thought is clear throughout this Gospel. We may quote a few examples:

1- The Gospel of St. John presents the Lord Jesus Christ as:

"The Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world," (1:29).

'That was the true Light which gives light to every man who comes into the world' (1:9)

'But as many as received him, to them He gave the right to become the children of God, even to those who believe in His name,' (1:12).

"For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have everlasting life," (3:16).

"And I, if I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all peoples to Myself," (12:32).

'...He prophesied that Jesus would die for the nation, and not for that nation only, but also that He would gather together in one the children of God who were scattered abroad,' (11:51,52).

"And this is the will of Him who sent Me, that everyone who sees the Son and believes in Him may have everlasting life, and I will raise him up in the last day," (6:40).

"And other sheep I have which are not of this fold; them also must I bring, and they will hear My voice, and there will be one flock and one shepherd," (10:16).

"I do not pray for these alone but also for those who will believe in Me through their word; that they all may be one," (17:20,21).

"... Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed," (20:29).

2- The Universality of the Church became evident due to rejection of the Lord Jesus Christ by the Jewish people: They turned their backs to their Redeemer and sought to kill Him (4:3, 44; 7:1-8; 11:7-16). Jerusalem had become the capital of Israel and the city of the Messiah (12; 12-19). That city was marked by turmoil (1:19 etc.; 5:23). The Lord abandoned the Temple (8:59), and moved away from the walls of the city as He headed towards Golgotha, (19:17).

3- 'The Temple of Jerusalem' is replaced by His Father's house- (2:12), full of glory- (12:14), from where redemption is granted- (4:22). The Lord proclaims the glory of the Temple of His Body- (2:20 etc) that offers a mystery of resurrection to all mankind.

4- The heretic city of 'Samaria' is transformed into a place of worship in spirit and in truth (4:23 etc...).

5- The whitened fields that are ready for the harvest point to the harvest of future times and are symbolic of the non-Jewish world.

6- Because the Evangelist is writing to all peoples- even the non-Jews- he interprets the words: Rabbi- (1:31); Messiah- (1:41); Cephas- (1:42). He also elaborates on the Jewish custom of purification- (2:6), and of burial- (9:40); as well as their relationship with the Samaritans- (4:9); and the Passover as a Jewish feast- (4:6). We find that he also gives a geographical description of Bethesda- (5:2); and the court of Pontius Pilate known in Hebrew as Gabbatha- (19:13)...All this reveals that St. John is writing to speakers who lived in Ephesus and used the Greek language- whether these are of Jewish or Gentile origins. He believes that the universal Church is not confined to the Jewish nation.

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN AND ETERNAL LIFE (eschatological life)

The Synoptic Gospels lead the reader towards the Kingdom of God which is anticipated at the end of time and would be fulfilled soon by the second coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. In contrast, St. John the Evangelist affirms that a believer attains eternal life through his everyday life.

This Gospel does not describe the end of time and the end of the world; or the final coming of the Lord to judge the world. Rather, it speaks about eternal life that is achieved through the redeeming work we enjoy when we accept the Cross. Consequently, we taste eternal life through its pledge here on earth; and as we experience its glory by the kind of life we lead here:

- * He proclaims the glory of the Lord- (1:14; 2:11; 11:4, 40). This brings the Church to taste the pledge of eternal life where we see the Lord in the fullness of His glory and get acquainted with His mysteries.

- * Redemption actually elevates us above time and is a victory over death. It is achieved through active faith, and as the Lord says: “Most assuredly, I say to you, He who hears My word and believes in Him who sent Me has everlasting life, and shall not come into judgment, but has passed from life to death,” (5:24).

- * Eternal life becomes a reality for us as we observe the following:

- A- The prince of this world has been condemned (3:18, 19).

- B- The Evangelist proclaims that the fullness of time has come and that history has been fulfilled at the time the Lord Jesus Christ died on the Cross.

As whoever tastes the Gospel of St. John, truly finds himself elevated to eternal life - through its pledge - and hence he beholds the glorified Lord within his innermost depths, and experiences the real victory over death and over the love of this world. One feels victorious over Satan who subjected the world for a while and who is now bound and driven out as he has no place within us. The cross of the Lord has led us into this living and heavenly experience.

- * Don't you realize that it is not without reason that the Evangelist speaks to us from heaven? Notice how from the very beginning he draws our souls and gives them wings and ascends with the minds of his listeners. He holds our hands and leads us above all tangible things, above earth and heaven and above the angels themselves: above the cherubim and seraphim: above the thrones and leaders and authorities - in brief, he leads us on a trip that travels above all creatures<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

C.H. Dodd<sup>2</sup> believes that St. John was trying to correct the intention of the Ecclesiastical and Eschatological thought; and that he, therefore, presented 'a realized eschatology.' That means that eschatology is an actual reality and not just a mere future prediction. However, scholars have rejected this as a main premise for the Gospel. Their argument is based on that though some chapters that speak about the life at the end of time as a life that is experienced in the present through its pledge. The Evangelist does not ignore the future life at the end of time (5:25-29), but both paths run side by side<sup>3</sup>.

THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN AND THE MIRACLES

In the Gospels preceding the Gospel of St. John, we find an abundance of miracles performed by the Lord Jesus Christ. Through them, the Lord reveals His divine tenderness and great love for mankind. Although St. John knows about them all, he chooses to relate only seven of them in his Gospel whereby we would accept to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ - some consider he chooses eight of them. He says: "And truly Jesus did many other signs in the presence of His disciples, which are not written in this book; but these are written that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have life in His name," (20:30,31). "And there are also many other things that Jesus did, that if they were written one by one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that would be written," (21:25).

It is, therefore, clear that the Lord performed these miracles to lead us to have faith and enjoy eternal life. This is what Nicodemus felt as he said: "...no one can do these signs that You do unless God is with him," (3:2). The Lord also affirms: "Unless you people see signs and wonders, you will by no means believe," (4:48). He holds these signs as testimony against unbelievers, as He says: "If I had not done among them the works which no one else did, they would have no sin..." (15:24).

The chief priests and the Pharisees realized how these miracles would affect the life of the people, and so they said: "What shall we do? For this Man works many signs. If we let Him alone like this everyone will believe in Him..." (11:47,48).

THE AUTHORITY OF THIS GOSPEL

The universal Church unquestioningly accepted the authority of the Gospel of St. John from the beginning. The testimonies of the Church came even from heretics and heathen groups and these admitted that the writer of this Gospel is St. John ever since the beginning of the

Second Century, that is shortly after its writing. Only a few known as the 'Algi' group disagreed with this, according to St. Epiphanius<sup>1</sup>. These opposed the Gospel as it contradicted their belief in the Logos. It is not clear whether the Algi were a group or just one person. At any rate, they did not have an audience among the public or in the Church.

FIRST: THE TESTIMONY OF THE CHURCH AND THE HERETICS

The Gospel of St. John was found among the Old Greek manuscripts that contained the New Testament, such as the Sinai and the Vatican versions. These had been written from versions that were even older than them. They were similar to manuscripts of the New Testament that had been translated before and could date back to manuscripts written in the Second or Third Centuries, just as the Syrian or Latin ones that included this Gospel. As for the testimony of the first Fathers of the Church, we do not hear anyone voice having any doubts concerning the author or any suspicion that someone other than St. John has written this Gospel. We mention the following as examples:

* St. Ireneaus, Bishop of Lyon in the Second Century: he based his case against the Gnostics on the Gospel of St. John. He testifies that the authorized versions are four. He also testifies that St. John published his Gospel in Ephesus<sup>1</sup>.

* Some fathers have borrowed certain expressions directly from this Gospel, or have used them without referring to the source. This is found in the following: the Epistle of Barnabas; the Book of the Shepherd by Hermes; in the writings of Papias; Clement the Roman; St. Justin, the martyr; Theophilus of Antioch; St. Ignatius of Antioch; St. Polycarp; Tertulian, the scholar; Origen; and St. Clement of Alexandria.

*The testimony contained in the Muratorian Canon, in the Second Century-170-200A.D. approx.-is powerful in its statement that the writer of this Book is St. John.

* Tatian, the disciple of St. Justin, borrowed much from this Gospel, and began his work entitled 'Diatessaron' with the same introduction as that of St. John's Gospel.

*Many heretics borrowed from St. John's Gospel, such as Heraclion and his teacher Valentinus besides Basilides-in 120A.D. Moreover, Gnostic writings- such as the Gospel of Truth- borrowed from this Gospel.

SECOND: THE TESTIMONY OF THE HEATHEN

The heathen philosopher Salsas, an enemy of Christianity, borrowed from this Gospel the material he used to write his book against Christianity and to attack the four Gospels around the year 178A.D. He mentions details that have been written only in the Gospel of St. John.

OPPOSITION TO THE AUTHENTICITY OF ST JOHN AS THE WRITER

Many scholars and critics have discussed the validity of the authorship of St. John, the son of Zebedee. They have presented numerous and complicated theories. Some have attempted to consider that it has been produced by the apostolic Church and not as the work of one person. Some suggested that its form indicates it was written in the Second Century. This could be due to possible links they saw between the Gospel and Gnosticism, as we have pointed out earlier. Others have tried to confirm that the writer is a non-Jew.

E Haenchen presents a summary of the critical problems relevant to this matter and covers the period from 1929 to the fifties<sup>2</sup>.

The following is a summary of the response to those who deny the authority of St.

John as the writer of this Gospel:

CLUES IN THE GOSPEL THAT REVEAL THE CHARACTER OF THE WRITER

Although the Evangelist has not mentioned his own name in this Gospel, yet he has included clues to his character through which we are able to recognize him. These are:

A- HE IS AN EYE-WITNESS

In the introduction of the Gospel, the Evangelist says: "We saw His glory," (1:14). Some have tried to interpret the plural term 'we saw' as an intention to convey 'all Christians', and does not refer to the writer. Hence the term alludes to a spiritual rather than a material meaning. In this way, the writer of the Gospel is 'The Apostolic Church' and not a witness<sup>1</sup>. Many scholars do not accept this line of thought especially that the verb, used in the Greek context means physical sight and not spiritual sight. Even if it were interpreted as spiritual vision<sup>2</sup>, St. John confirms in more than one place that he is a witness who is reporting the truth:

'And he who has seen has testified, and his testimony is true; and he knows he is telling the truth, so that you may believe,' (19:35).

"This is the disciple who testifies of these things, and wrote these things, and we know that his testimony is true," (21:34).

It is clear that the writer is a 'disciple' and an 'eye witness': this is relevant to St. John who writes in the same style in the introduction of his First Epistle: "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, concerning the Word of life...the life was manifested, and we have seen, and bear witness, and declare to you that eternal life..., "(1Jn1).

B- THE BELOVED DISCIPLE

One of the indications incorporated within the Gospel itself, and pointing to St. John as the writer, is the title he humbly gives himself without mentioning his name: '...the disciple whom Jesus loved,' (21:20; 19:26). Some modern critics have attempted to raise suspicion concerning that issue but have differed on defining the identity of that disciple. They claimed he is:

1- The rich youth who, it is reported, Jesus looking at him, loved him (Mk10:21). Yet we have nothing in the Bible or in tradition to prove that the youth returned and believed after he had left the Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore this opinion is of no value.

2- Nathaniel: the response to that is that we know very little about him. Moreover, when the Evangelist speaks of him he mentions him by name (21:2), while in that same chapter we get the words: 'the disciple whom Jesus loved....' (21:20). Therefore the last words are intended to distinguish him from Nathaniel

3- Lazarus<sup>3</sup>: as the sisters had sent for the Lord saying: "Lord, behold, he whom You love is sick," (11:3). The response to that is that Lazarus was not with the Lord in the 'upper room' when he would have leaned on His chest and for the verse to be relevant which says: '... Peter...saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following, who also had leaned on His breast at the supper...' (21:20). It is clear from the three other Gospels that the Lord Jesus Christ was solely with His disciples during the last supper. Moreover, the Evangelist repeats the name of Lazarus in chapters 11 and 12, so why would he hide his name after that?!

4- Some believe that this title does not indicate a specific person but carries a symbolic

<sup>3</sup> J.N.Senders defended this opinion in many works, including: B.A.Mastin: The Gospel According to St. John, 1986. This was followed by F.V.Fison, and E.F.Harrison significance. In this way, the writer of this Gospel could be the Church as an entire entity and not as one person. This thought is not satisfactory and hard to accept for it denies that disciple any historic place as an eyewitness; and this is contradictory to all that is reported about him in this Gospel<sup>4</sup>.

The above exposes the different conflicting opinions. As for positive indications that St. John is the disciple whom Jesus loved, they are the following:

1- Ever since the Second Century, the writings of the church fathers speak about the disciple whom Jesus loved and identify him to be John, the son of Zebedee. To them, St. John is the writer and this was a matter they did not question. M.F.Miles<sup>1</sup> notes that Origen, and St. John Chrysostum have found in the description: 'the disciple whom Jesus loved' the key that reveals the object of this Gospel.

2- He is one of the Lord's disciples according to the testimony of the Gospel of St. John and in which he is referred to as 'the disciple'- (21:20). This is further underlined by the indication that he leaned on the Lord's chest during the last supper (21:20)

3- Some scholars find that St. John is one of three disciples who were close to the Lord, and who accompanied Him on many occasions when the rest of the disciples were absent<sup>2</sup>. When St. James was martyred in the year 44 A.D., St. Peter and St. John were still alive: for we are told that both were together in Jn 20:2. Therefore this could be no other but St. John.

4- St. John is mentioned by name in the other Gospels: twice in Matthew's, nine times in St. Mark's, and six times in St. Luke's. In St. John's Gospel, however, he is never mentioned by name. It is evident that the writer is St. John and that he refrained from giving his name due to his humility.

5- This disciple was very close to St. Peter as we are told in (21:7; 20:2). The only time St. John appears without St. Peter is when the Lord, from His Cross, entrusted him with the Virgin Mother to be his own (19:26). So who is that disciple who always accompanied St. Peter? There is no doubt that it was St. John the son of Zebedee since he was with him and with James, while the other disciples were absent, on many occasions and as we have mentioned earlier (review Mk 5:37; 9:2; 14:33). The Lord appointed these three to prepare the Passover for Him (Lk 22:8). They were together even after the Lord's resurrection (Acts 3:1; 4:13). They are mentioned in Acts 8:14 as the ones delegated to go from Jerusalem to Samaria. When St. Paul speaks about the pillars of the Church, he mentions James, Cephas (Peter), and John (Gal 2:9). All this indicates that this is St. John: the disciple whom Jesus loved and who was St. Peter's companion.

6- Some scholars note that when St. John the Baptist is mentioned in this Gospel his name is just mentioned as 'John 'without any title attached to it. This strongly supports the ecclesiastical concept that the writer is St. John the son of Zebedee who insisted on not mentioning his own name in this Gospel: he found that there was no need to make a distinction between himself and St. John the Baptist by including a specific title.

C-THE PALESTINIAN BACKGROUND

Some wonder if the Gospel, having been written by St. John the son of Zebedee, bears any proof that the writer is a Jew who had lived in Jerusalem? And was he an eyewitness of the Lord? Or was he a Second Century man from Antioch or Alexandria?

Scholars respond that this Gospel includes many indications and testimonies that prove that the writer lived in Palestine in the First Century, and that he was a Jew. For example:

1- His knowledge of Jewish customs and traditions

He often presents accurate details about the Jewish way of life and traditions during the period prior to the destruction of Jerusalem, such as:

- * The rites of purification [2:6].
- * The rites of the Feast of the Tabernacles [7:37; 8:12(the Enlightening)].
- * The rites of purification for the Feast of the Passover [18:28; 19:31-42].
- * The teachings of the Jews governing their lives, such as the law governing the observation of the Sabbath [5:10; 7:21-9:14, 23, et...].
- * His knowledge about the anticipation of the Jews for a prophet with the spirit of Elijah [1:19-27]; and their understanding that Christ, the Messiah, 'remains forever' [12:34].

2- His knowledge of Jewish history

The writer knows exactly the years it took to build the Temple (2:20). He knows about the enmity that existed between the Jews and the Samaritans (4:9). He also knows that the high priest at the time of the Lord's crucifixion is the same Caiaphas and that his father in law was Annas (18:13; 11:49; etc..)

3- His knowledge of Palestine's geography

The writer has accurate knowledge of Palestine: he knows the Hebrew name for the Pool near the Sheep Gate and that it has five porches. He knows that there are two villages named 'Bethany' (12:1;???28:1). He speaks about the spring of 'Aenon' near Salim (3:23); and says that the Sea of Galilee is the Sea of Tiberias (4:21). Moreover, he indicates that the city of Ephraim is close to the wilderness (11:54).

4-He retained the style of the Hebrew language

Although St. John has written his Gospel in Greek, yet it bears the style of the Hebrew language. This is due to the difficulty faced by a writer using a language other than his own native one. This feature appears in the terms and the expressions he uses, as well as in his emphasis on figures.

5- He incorporates details not mentioned in the other three Gospels: these could not have been included by anyone unless he has been an eyewitness and is acquainted with the people and their names, for example:

- * The detailed report about Nicodemus (Ch3).
- * The report about Mary and Martha (Ch 11).
- * The incident with Malchus (18:10).
- * The report about Annas and Caiaphas (18:19-320
- * The report about the women at the Lord's tomb (20:15-17).
- * The report about the Lord's delivery of His mother to St. John's care while He was on the Cross (19:27).
- * The report about St. Peter and John himself after the Resurrection (21:5-23).

St. John also records fine details about events that can be presented only by an eyewitness. For example: he states that there were six water-pots (2:6); the distance the disciples had rowed away from the coast was two hundred cubits approximately (21:8); and the number of fishes they caught was fifty three, (21:11). He also mentions that the loaves were made of barley (6:9); that the odor of the oil of spikenard filled the house (12:3); the emotions of the officers when the Lord was arrested (18 :); and the weight of the spices used for the Lord's body (19:39).

Note also the accurate description of the reactions of the disciples (2:11 etc.; 4:27; 6:19; 12:16; 13:22; etc...); and the Lord's sympathy and reaction (13:1.61??; 6:15, 24; 2:11).

The above examples and many other details confirm that St. John is an eyewitness to all he has written in his Gospel.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO JOHN, THE FISHERMAN

Some scholars refuse to recognize that St. John is the writer of this Gospel. They validate their stand by saying: 'Is it logical to believe that an illiterate fisherman can write such a Gospel while we consider it to be better than anything that Sufi philosophers have ever written? This is a kind of unparalleled and unforced fluency that is awesome?'

The response to this is the following:

First: Even if the disciple were illiterate, yet we believe that the entire Holy Bible has been inspired by the Holy Spirit (2Peter1:21). Hence, even though the human element is instrumental yet the Holy Spirit sanctifies, elevates, and grants it tremendous power. He also embraces the human being to shield him/her from committing any fault.

Second: St. John was actually qualified to write this sublime 'spiritual Gospel' based on the following:

1- He was not illiterate as many claimed. Actually, he was not just a fisherman: he was a merchant who traded in fish and his father had people who worked for him just as any rich man would have at that time. There is a great probability that he enjoyed learning and sought to increase his knowledge. It is a typical custom of the Jews to take up a certain craft such as fishing- and every Jew had a craft-just as Saul of Tarsus practiced the craft of making tents (Acts 18:3).

2- We know that the Word of God is offered to all mankind- beginners as well as mature people. This is clear in the words of St. Paul: "...we speak wisdom among those who are mature..." (1 Cor2:6); "But solid food belongs to those who are of full age (Heb 5:14). Just as the three evangelists-Matthew, Mark, and Luke offered the Word of God to the simple people, we may say that St. John was one of three who were very close to the Lord and who were chosen to accompany Him in grave circumstances. These were events that revealed the mystery of His Person and His message. It is this disciple whom Jesus loved and who leaned on His chest - (21:20) - who was to write to the mature. It is as though the first three Gospels represent the invitation to accept the faith and belief in the Lord Jesus Christ as the redeeming Messiah, the Servant of mankind, and the divine Friend. As for this Gospel, it represents the complementary education in faith for mature believers. It is the 'spiritual Gospel' that is offered to those who have become genuine Christians and hence it elevates them to enjoy the ultimately divine mysteries.

Third: We have commented on the extent to which this Gospel is related to the Old Testament as it underlines that the Lord is the true Lamb of God, and not a Passover symbol, for in Him the prophecies are fulfilled. The discussion between the Lord and the Jews is meant to reveal that He is greater than Abraham and Moses...this agrees with St. John since he is a Jew who perceives the divine mystery. He yearns that every Jew, as well as every Gentile, enjoy the One Who is the 'subject of the prophecies.'

Fourth: We have also indicated that this Gospel does not contain any kind of Hellenic Gnosticism. A number of scholars had made this claim before the Gnostic library was discovered in Naga Hamadi. The discovered manuscripts that were found and brought to light around 1947, however, reveal that the writings belong to the religious group known the Essenes or monks from the Jewish city of Quomran. The style of St. John is similar to that of these manuscripts and appropriately so since he studied under St. John the Baptist who lived in the wilderness. He learned lot about them being neighbors. The attitude of the Essenes towards religion was a spiritual, Sophist, mystical, and symbolic one rather than a tangible concept. Their life rotated around the conflict between light and darkness, between truth and falsehood...It is as though St. John came to announce to them that he had found the One Who would fulfill their heart's desire. He was Someone who would not only lead them to know the light and the truth, but Who would offer Himself to them as the 'true Light' and the 'Truth': through Him we are enlightened and enjoy the Truth!

SYNOPSIS

Scholars have agreed that this Gospel is notable for its detailed and goal-oriented parts. In spite of that, they are not unanimous about the breakdown in itself. For instance, the divisions D. Mollat sets up are that the Gospel, after the introduction, is divided into nine parts according to the liturgies observed for the principal Jewish feasts:

A-The Introduction to the Gospel Ch 1:1 - 18

B-The Nine Parts

1- The first week of Messianic service Ch 1:19 - 2:11

2- The First Passover Ch 2:12 - Ch 4

3- The Sabbath Ch 5

4- The Second Passover Ch 6

5- The Feast of Tabernacles Ch 7 -Ch 10:21

6- The Feast of Dedication Ch10:22 - Ch 11:54

7- The Third Passover Ch 11:55 - Ch 19:42

8- The Resurrection Ch 20

9- The Appearances of the resurrected Jesus Ch 21

However, the most prevalent manner of marking the divisions is the one proposed by A. Feuillet, C.H. Dodd, and R.E. Brown. This consists of two main parts plus an introduction and a conclusion:

A- The Introduction Ch 1:1- 18

B- The Book of Signs Ch 1:19 -Ch12

C-The Book of Suffering Ch 13 -Ch 20

D- The Conclusion Ch 21

Feuillet finds that the Gospel as a whole covers two subjects: the proclamation of the Lord Jesus Christ and His submission to suffering until death on account of this proclamation. Based on that, it is possible to divide the Gospel as follows:

The First Book: The Book of Signs

1-Establishing a new testament by instituting baptism and the gift of the Holy Spirit Ch 1:19 - Ch 4:42

2- Revealing Himself: that He is one with God, the Source of life Ch 4:43 -Ch 5:47

That He is the Bread of Life Ch 6

That He is the Light of the world Ch 7 -12

The Second Book: The Book of Suffering

1- Revealing Himself to His disciples through love, comforting, and oneness Ch 13 -17

2- Suffering is the road taken to establish the Church Ch 18 -Ch 19

3- Resurrection and its association with the descent of the Holy Spirit Ch 21, 22

To facilitate the study of this Gospel, we propose the following divisions:

First: The Introduction: The Word Incarnated Ch 1:1-18

Second: Signs and Deeds that reveal His Divinity Ch 1:19-Ch 12
Third: His Revelation of His Identity to His Own Children Ch 13-17
Fourth: The Son of God Sacrificed Ch 18-19
Fifth: His Resurrection Testifies to His Divinity Ch 20
Sixth: The Conclusion Ch 21

AN INSPIRATION FROM THE GOSPEL OF ST JOHN

GRANT ME TO SOAR WITH YOUR EAGLES IN YOUR SKIES!

*Allow me to lean on Your chest with the Beloved St. John
And to accompany You up to the Cross
And to receive Your Mother from You as a Mother for me.
Yes, and grant me the wings of the Spirit so that I become an eagle, and join him
In flight in your heavens, and enjoy fellowship and glory with You.
I would live among Your angels
And get to know Your divine mysteries that provide heavenly food and satisfy my innermost depths!

* Grant me to soar with my thoughts towards Eternity,
This that cannot be conceived by a heavenly or earthly being.
I stand and rejoice at Your birth before the beginning of time
Shine upon me O Word of God, with Your Father and Your Holy Spirit,
Then my soul will be filled with the brilliance of the Trinity.
Hence I will tread upon the darkness of the world
And soar in this amazing brilliance!

*You became incarnate for my sake, O holy One who has granted me life,
You have enlightened me; hence I am no longer counted as one of this world.
Indeed, by Your grace, I enjoy divine adoption:
Having become a Son of God, the world cannot find room for it within me!

*May Your Holy Spirit carry me to the mysteries within Your Book:
To see You- the King- hanging on the Cross!
I do not seek You to reign in the way the crowds sought to have You
But, rather, to establish Your throne in my depths that I may cherish Thee.
I will not take the road of philosophical arguments
For I recognize that You are the royal Messiah Who grants lordship.
I perceive You as the King of kings and the Giver of a Royal Life.

*You are the Lamb of God Who carries the sins of the world!
You have been crucified and hence reconciled us with Your Father.
You have drawn us to You, and hence our sins have been replaced by Your righteousness.
You have opened Your arms to embrace and enfold the Jews, Samaritans, and Gentiles together.
By Your Cross You have poured love into us, O Lord of true love,
We have become an icon of You and will not become separated from Love, neither will You leave us.
We have received fellowship with Your Nature, and love flows in our veins.

Neither hatred, nor contempt, nor wickedness can ever creep stealthily within us.
* Grant me, with the bride and bridegroom of Cana, to drink of the wine of Your love.

Grant me, with Nicodemus, to discover the mystery of the new birth.
Grant me, with the Samaritan woman, to drink from the sources of Your Holy Spirit.

Grant me, with the one born blind, perception that enables me to see You within me.
Grant me, with the sick man of Bethesda, to be steadfast and rejoice,
Hence I would walk towards Your divine Embrace and reach my true home.
* Let me hear You as You reveal Yourself to me.
Your words 'I AM' have a special sweetness for You are Jehovah who lives within me!

According to Your promise, let me hear Your voice saying:
I am the heavenly Bread, he who eats Me will enjoy the eternal feast.
I am Life, without Me you would not exist.
I am the Light of the world, I shine on you hence you experience the eternal light.
I am the Truth, I bring you into the divine mysteries.
I am the Resurrection, death will never be able to bind you!
I am the Door, I lead you to come into My embrace.
I am the Good Shepherd, I carry you - with all your frailty - on My shoulders!
I am the true Vine, stay steadfast in Me and I will abide in you!
* Allow me to accompany You in the upper room, as well as to Gethsemane,
Let me go with You where You will be judged and crucified,
And to sit at Your tomb looking out for Your resurrection.
Reveal Yourself to me, and make Your resurrection shine within my depths!
Yes, throughout the days of my estrangement I will continue to meditate on every detail of Your amazing work:
These events will continue to be my reason for offering praise with all the heavenly ranks.

To You be the glory, O true Love and Truth: the One who grants love and freedom!

AMEN

CHAPTER ONE

THE INCARNATED WORD

The soul watches in astonishment and deep awe as the Evangelist, St. John the Beloved, appears as an eagle in flight. He soars in the realm of divinity rather than in the tangible world. He invites us to cross over, and join him to go beyond time. He leads us to perceive the Word of God Who is never separated from the divine Mind. The Mind, too, is never separated from His Word: the only Son and consubstantial with His Father in one and the same essence. St. John invites us to perceive and acknowledge the Giver of life and the Source of light, the Creator of time and of every being in the heavens and on earth. Nothing preoccupies His Divinity other than His unique and beloved man!

Being inspired by the Holy Spirit, the Evangelist leads us to divine truths that affect our being and our future eternity and glory. Thus he does not present us with a mere literary form, but he invites us to partake of the depth of God's love and which cannot be fully explained in human words.

Witnessing to the Lord Jesus Christ

In this chapter, St. John speaks about the divinity of the Lord Jesus Christ and presents his own testimony:

[1-5; 10-14; 16-18]. He also presents the testimony of St. John the Baptist: [6-9; 15; 19-37]. The Lord manifests Himself to Andrew [38-42], to Philip [43-51]. Their testimony is also indicated in these verses.

1- The Lord Jesus Christ is the everlasting Logos, one in essence with the Father [1-2]. He is the Donor of life and light, and through Him, we are granted the privilege of adoption to the Father [3-13].

2- St. John the Evangelist opens his Gospel by introducing the divine Word as the Source of all divine blessings, especially blessing the creation and our adoption to the Father, besides a wealth of other blessings 'grace for grace' [16-18] that he elaborates in the next chapters.

3- The official testimony of St. John the Baptist before Israel: 'priests and Levites' came to ask him three questions. His answers are extremely concise. It is a testimony that represents a public confrontation between them. Briefly, his answer is that he has no name, for he is only 'the voice of one crying in the wilderness' announcing the coming of the Lord, [19-28].

4- The testimony of St. John the Baptist before his disciples [29-37]: He initiates and elaborates about the Lord as he is speaking to the remnant about whom Isaiah prophesied: "...the remnant will return, the remnant of Jacob to the Mighty God" (Is 10:21). St. John the Baptist is speaking to the new Israel who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and Who will lead them into the New Testament. He affirms that the Messiah is coming, not in the person of a glorified king as the Jews thought, but as a suffering and rejected person: His glory is His love and His shouldering of the sins of the world [36].

5-The submission of St. John the Baptist's disciples to the Lord Jesus Christ: here a truly personal and sincere meeting occurs that leads to a full renewal of life, of name and of the whole existence. We watch the Lord Jesus Christ entering into the core of Simon's being and occupying his depths thereby transforming him into Peter the apostle. Hence, his name, his mission, his life, and his whole existence are changed [42].

6- The invitation of the Lord Jesus Christ to the rest of His disciples in Galilee since the beginning. St. John announces the revelation of the eternal and hidden mystery as he affirms that man will see the heavens open and angels of God ascending and descending upon the person of Jesus Christ [50-51].

1-THE WORD OF GOD

The Gospel of St. John begins with an introduction that is different than that of the other Synoptic Gospels. The introduction to the Gospel of St. Mark presents a description of St. John the Baptist and his work as an angel who prepares the way before the Lord Jesus Christ. He is the One whom the prophets and fathers yearned for and they waited the day of His coming. The introduction to the Gospel of St. Matthew presents the lineage of the Lord beginning from Abraham. He then proceeds with the story of His birth, and indicates that He is the unique King who has come to restore the fallen kingdom of David, and to convert believers in Him into a royal nation. St. Luke begins his Gospel by writing a public and literary introduction (1:1-4), followed by the story of the birth of St. John the Baptist, then by that of the birth of the Lord Jesus Christ. He indicates how the Lord's sacrificial love and unique friendliness satisfies every soul, and fills every inner vacuum. In contrast, St. John begins by revealing the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ as the eternal Word long before He became incarnated. He does so to liberate us from the constraints of time and to soar into the embrace of the eternal Father. Consequently, we learn of God's plan concerning us and His will to lead us to redemption and eternal glory. He acquaints us with the One with Whom we will have fellowship in glory and eternal life. The introduction [1-18] thus underlines what is written in the Gospel as a whole: God proclaims Himself through His Word [1-13] as well as through His deeds [2-5] and ultimately through the divine incarnation for the glory the Father [14-18].

The introduction is mostly written in a distinctively poetic style and uses particular words that mark it from other Gospels. This has led scholars to question if that was a liturgical hymn that the apostle has borrowed? Or is it an addendum that he affixed after he had written the rest of the Gospel and could serve as a summary that reveals the aim of the Gospel and interprets it? Or is it an introduction written to announce the subject of his Gospel before beginning the task? The truth of the matter is that the object of the introduction is to introduce the reader to the Lord Jesus Christ, Who is the subject of the Book, as the eternal Word. He is the One who works with the Father in the Creation. As He is the Father Himself, He proclaims the Father, and presents Him to us as though He is presenting Himself. He is the Wisdom of God speaking to us. He presents Himself, the Word of God, so that we might possess Him as a mystery granting us eternal life. He is the Life of every being, the Light of every person. He is the Eternal Who became incarnated and lived as a man. His own, the Jews rejected Him in spite of the testimony of St. John the Baptist for Him. However, a sincere remnant was found and they accepted Him and became children of God and members of the Divine Family.

We sing this introduction and the following verses each morning (Jn1:1-17) in order to comprehend that meeting the One Who alone can lift us up and carry us into His Father's embrace is actually the reason for our daily renewal. This does not lead us to hold in contempt or belittle time but rather, it leads us to sanctify it as a means to go beyond it. In the morning prayers, we think of our Savior as the Alpha and Omega- the Beginning and the End- and so enjoy a holy beginning and a glorious ending.

St. Augustine<sup>1</sup> tells us that his friend Simplicius informed him that a philosopher and follower of Plato commented on the sentences found at the beginning of the Gospel of St. John and said they deserve to be written in letters made of gold.

Matthew Henry reports that Francis Junius, who was totally immoral in his youth, got converted and became upright by the grace of God and after accidentally coming across this Gospel and reading it. His father had told him about it. He experienced the power and influence of St. John's Gospel over him, and it gripped his attention. For an entire day, he became oblivious of his surroundings and his movements, and physically shook with fear. This day marked the beginning of his spiritual life.

The verses (1-13) present eight great truths about the person of the Lord Jesus Christ, these are:

A- He was and continues to be the Eternal One: 'In the beginning was the Word' [1].

B- He was and still is the notable icon distinguished from the Father: '...and the Word was with God', [1].

C- He was the Word while He was still God, [2].

D- He is the Partner with the Father in eternity, [2].

F- He is the Source of all life and light, [4, 5, 9].

G- He is God Who proclaims Himself to the fallen world, [10].

H- He came into man's world and His own rejected Him [11]; as for those who received Him, they attained a new birth [12-13].

The Logos

In the Chaldean manuscript, in an attempt to rewrite the Old Testament, the Messiah is called 'Memra' meaning 'Jehovah's word .' It also says that many of the matters that are reported in the Old Testament and that were brought about by God were really done by the Word of God. Moreover, it teaches the Jews that 'the Word of God' was with God.

The word 'Logos' is used to mean two things:

* The Word that brings about creation or pregnancy or Logos endiathetas; that means the thought by which the mind gets impregnated. This enables the achievement of all activity as it works in unison with the soul. Hence it is appropriate that the Second Icon be considered the Word of God; born of God, He is the principal and eternal Wisdom. There is nothing more certain than the fact that we think, and there is nothing more mysterious than the discovery of our thought processes.

*The articulated word Logos prophorika, that is speech itself, is the natural signal to what is in the mind. In the same way, Jesus is the Word used when the Father spoke 'in these last days' (Heb 1:2); and He guides us to listen to Him (Matt.17:5). He informs us about the thoughts of God as well as the thoughts of men. He is the Word speaking to us about things pertaining to the Father for He is the Truth and the Amen, as well as the true witness to the Divine Mind. In this aspect, He is different from St. John the Baptist who is 'a voice crying in the wilderness' and is not the divine Word.

St. Augustine makes a comparison between the bread that fills the stomach and the Word that satisfies the mind. When He provides food to the people, He cannot offer the same bread to all those present; whereas He offers the Word to everyone and all the people receive it fully in their minds. Truly, the word of man is amazing as it is presented to all in its entirety: how much more efficient would the Word of God, the Creator, be?

* If I wished to feed you, I could fill your stomach but not your minds. I would offer food to satisfy you, and do you not break it up to share together? Could my bread go to every single one of you? For if one of you gets it, then the rest would get nothing. However, note now that I am now speaking and you are all receiving my words. Not just that, but you all are receiving them in their entirety. How amazing are my words! So how much more amazing is the Word of God?! Hear this also: I speak with utterances so that speech is delivered to you without getting separated from me. It reaches you while it does not depart from me. Before I spoke, I possessed the words while you did not have them. Now I have spoken the words and you have started to receive without my losing any of them. How amazing are my words! And how much more would the Word of God be?!<sup>1</sup>

* O you foolish men, you speak as though you do not distinguish between the uttered word and the divine Word that exists before the beginning of time and is born of the Father! I say born and not just uttered. In Him there are no syllabic words but there is the fullness of the infinite Divinity and life without end (Col. 19,2:9, 3:4; Jn 1:4,5:26; 11:25, 14:6; Rev 1:18)<sup>2</sup>.

St. Ambrose

‘In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God,’[1].

Written in the Hebrew language, this statement is composed of three stanzas that are musically balanced, with the term ‘Word’ and the verb ‘was’ repeated three times. The use of the verb in the past tense reflects that the ‘Word’ has been continuously present from the beginning and does not refer to time. Note these stanzas: In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God:

‘In the beginning’: The Book of Genesis starts with these words: ‘In the beginning God created...’ The writer here is speaking about the beginning of Creation, or how time began with the Creation. As for the introduction of the Gospel of St. John, he starts with the state of things before the Creation and before time and history, when there was nothing but God Himself. He starts with the beginning of existence: ‘In the beginning was the Word,’ and so indicates the eternal Word Who began that which had no beginning. The Apostle repeats this idea when the Lord tells the Jews: “Just what I have been saying to you from the beginning,”(Jn 8:25). In other words ‘I am the Being who originally spoke or spoke since time infinite. In his First Epistle, St. John says: ‘ That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes...’ (1 Jn 1:1). The Lord tells the crowds: “ Your father Abraham rejoiced to see My day, and he saw it, and was glad...before Abraham was, I AM” (8:56, 58).

Origen presents a number of interpretations for the word ‘the beginning.’ He also distinguishes between the relationship of the beginning with the Creator, as well as that of the beginning with the Creation. Ultimately, He is the beginning as He is the Wisdom and power of God (1Cor 1:24).

The Apostle confirms that the Word is ‘in the beginning’, and before all time and not just before the Lord’s incarnation. From the beginning, the world came into existence through His creation, thus He was there from the beginning- that is before time was. The Psalmist sings of the timeless of God Who is ‘...Before the mountains were brought forth...’ (Ps. 90:2; Prov. 8:23).

He is with God, and no one is to imagine that believing in the Word would draw him away from God: for the Word is with God and can never be separated. They are of one essence (Heb 1:3), and He is the object of the Father’s joy (Jn 17:5), and His beloved Son (Prov 8:30).

St. John Chrysostom<sup>3</sup> wonders why the Evangelist does not begin by speaking about the Father and chooses to begin with the Son, who is one with Him in essence? Why did he begin by calling Him ‘the Word’ rather than the Son who is consubstantial with the Father? The Saint explains that the Evangelist begins by manifesting the person of the Lord Jesus Christ as being the incarnated ‘Word’ as this enables him to elaborate later on about His being the ‘Son of God.’ The title of ‘the Word’ confirms the oneness and the title of ‘the Son, one in essence’ confirms the distinction. Consequently, the two titles are complimentary to each other. St. John Chrysostom justifies that by explaining that one often separates between the Father and the Son, and thus thinks that a change - which was not there before - has occurred in God due to the birth of the Son. This is the result of one’s concept of a tangible birth as it actually occurs in the creation, and that it did not occur long before time ever was. If the Evangelist had started by speaking about ‘the Son of God’, some could have suspected that these were two separate gods. In order to avoid this, St. John begins by the title ‘the Word’ that no one would ever imagine is separated from God. Consequently He was the Father before which He was’nt such called * The Evangelist calls Him ‘the Word’ as he intends to begin teaching that this Word is the Only Son of God and so that no one would doubt that His birth is a tangible one. Thus, by giving Him the title of ‘the Word’ he voids and prevents, in advance, any wicked intrigues or concepts, which might trouble anyone. He underlines that the Son proceeds from the Father, and that He was born without pain (change)<sup>1</sup>.

* In order to prevent anyone from thinking that He was not a new born due to his use of the expression ‘in the beginning’, he immediately adds that He was ‘with God’ before proclaiming that He was God. He also wishes to prevent anyone from thinking that the Word is just a simple thing and a mere utterance or a thought so he adds a specific preposition...he does not say ‘He was in God’ but says ‘He was with God.’

* He does not call Him ‘Word’ but adds the defining article ‘the Word’ to distinguish Him from the rest of (men’s utterances)<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* The expression ‘In the beginning’ proclaims that there was nothing but the Everlasting Being, and that He is an absolute Being<sup>3</sup>.

* ‘He was the Logos’ since the term ‘being’ is used to refer to a person and when referring to present time. However, to refer to God we need to indicate infinity. Hence, when we use the verb ‘was’ we use it to indicate past events related to our nature; whereas when we use it to refer to God we are proclaiming His eternity<sup>4</sup>.

*The Word is an actual divine essence standing out as an icon and apart from His Father but free of any conflicting split. In order to avoid thinking that the divinity of the Son is lesser than that of the Father, the Evangelist promptly presents the evidence of His divinity by saying:

‘And the Word was God’<sup>5</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Since He was a newborn, it is with good reason that St. John and others - be they an apostle or prophet- have not ascertained that He was a created being. While He is the One Who spoke of Himself humbly during His stay on earth, yet He did not wish to remain silent on this issue.... He uttered humble words (Jn 5:30; 12:49).... If He had been a created being, He would have said: “Do not think I am born of the Father, but rather that I am created and not born, and I am not one in essence.” However, in face of His reality, He spoke words that oblige human beings to accept involuntarily the alternative thought, such as His words:

“...I am in the Father and the Father in Me...” “Have I been with you so long, and yet you have not known Me, Philip? He who has seen Me has seen the Father” (Jn 14:9). The Lord also says: “...that all should honor the Son just as they honor the Father...” (Jn 5:23); “For as the Father raises the dead and gives life to them, even so the Son gives life to whom He will (Jn 5:21). “My Father has been working until now, and I have been working (Jn5:17); “As the Father knows Me even so I know the Father (Jn10:15), “I and My Father are one,” (Jn 10:30)<sup>1</sup>.

* Isaiah the prophet was astonished and said: “And who will declare His generation? For He was cut off from the land of the living...” (Is 53:8). Indeed, all traces of the birth of the Everlasting One have been eradicated from the earth for it is inconceivable to the human mind. And since it is beyond comprehension, then how can we say that He is created? We can clearly define the time creatures came into being and how they came about; but we are incompetent when it comes to defining the time when the Beginning came to be.

* Concerning ‘the Beginning Archi’ Who is above all and over all ‘He was the Word.’ He is not one of the natural creatures that are found under the feet of the Beginning, but He is above all creation for He is ‘in the beginning.’ In other words, He is of the same character and is constantly present with the Father, having the same nature as the One Who gave Him birth...from Him and with Him; He has lordship ‘archi’ over all.

* By stating ‘He was in the beginning’ and not ‘after the beginning’ the implication is that there was no beginning without the Logos. In proclaiming that ‘the Logos was with God’ the Evangelist intends to indicate the absence of any fault in the relationship between the Son and the Father, since the Logos completely invades His thoughts while God is all pervading <sup>2</sup>.

* Fearing the inadequacy of our minds, lack of training and inadequate hearing, St. John does not present the title of ‘the Father’ lest we imagine the physical picture and associate that with the presence of a mother as well. Neither does he mention ‘the Son’ so that no one would conceive the Divine as some human being. That is why St. John names Him the ‘Logos.’ Therefore, when you hear about ‘the Word’ you will not imagine something that resulted as a whim: it is, rather, like the word that proceeds from your mind without any external interference<sup>3</sup>.

* Those who present to us good thoughts concerning such mysteries are actually unable to provide adequate expression concerning the nature of the Most Divine.

They speak mostly about the brightness of Good's glory and attempt to describe His essence (Heb1:3), the image of God, and that 'in the beginning was the Word and the Word was God' (Jn 1:1). All these expressions appear to us like gold from a treasure trove, as we have not seen the Divine Person. But to those who are able to perceive the Truth, this is more like 'gold with studs of silver' (Sg of Sol1:11), than mere brilliant gold. For, according to the Holy Bible, 'the tongue of the righteous is choice silver,' (Prov.10:20).

Thus we realize that the nature of the Most Divine is beyond any expression we use to attempt to comprehend Him.

Our understanding is comparable to what we set as our goal; yet no one has seen or could see Him except it is through a mirror and in part (1Cor13:12).

This reflects our thoughts or the reflection of what lies in the spirit in a specific manner.

Every word representing these ideas seems to be like a point that needs to be extended since it falls short of adequately expressing what is in the mind....

Moreover, every word that is said in an attempt to explain God seems like a tiny drop that cannot be extended to measure up to its intended target; for it is directed to express the incomprehensible by using limited expressions. It is only through faith in these concepts that it can establish independently a nature that transcends all intelligence<sup>1</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nyssa

* He is proclaimed as the Word, the Son, the Power of God, and His Wisdom: The Word since He is without blemish; the Power since He is perfect; the Son as he is begotten of and proceeds from the Father; and the Wisdom for He is one with the Father since time everlasting and one with Him in Divinity. This does not mean that the Person of the Father is one with the Son; for there is a clear distinction between the Father and the Son who comes as a result of birth. Thus the Lord Jesus Christ is true God from true God, everlasting from Everlasting, and perfect from perfect<sup>2</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* There is One God Who has proclaimed Himself through His Son the Lord Jesus Christ: He is God's Word (the Logos). He is not a mere utterance but an essence: He is not a mere vocal means of expression but a Person born by Divine Power<sup>3</sup>.

St. Ignatius

The word 'Logos' was a familiar word to both Jews and Gentiles: Heraclitus recognized it, in about 500 A.D. to mean the all-inclusive mind that rules and controls the universe. This was a popular concept adopted and propagated by Stoics. In Hellenic Judaism, the 'Logos' stood for an independent Person and this idea developed so that it was linked to wisdom (Sophism) (Ws 9:1,2; 18:15). Hence Philon of Alexandria incorporated philosophical expressions and Biblical concepts and said that the Logos has come into the world as an example and as an image of Divinity.

* In the Greek language, 'logos' has numerous meanings: it means the word, the mind, esteem, and the reason of separate things that depend on all this to come to existence. By all this we proclaim the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>4</sup>.

St. Jerome

* We do know that the Lord Jesus Christ was not born in the same way that an uttered word is born; for He is the ultimate essence and living Word. He is not uttered by lips and spread to vanish, but He is eternally born of the Father and cannot be described in essence. Therefore, ‘In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God’: Sitting at the right hand of God, the Word understands the Father’s will, is eternal, and everything exists by His command.

The Word descended and ascended, whereas the word - which we pronounce - just descends and does not ascend.

He utters ‘the Word’ and says: “I speak what I have seen with My Father...” (Jn 8:38).

The Word possesses authority, have dominion over everything, for the Father has delivered all to the Son (Matt11:27; Jn 5:22)<sup>1</sup>.

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* If there had been a time when the Son did not exist, the Father would have been a subdued Light; for if He has no brilliance, how can He be anything other than subdued Light? The Father is constantly present, and so is the Son...for the brilliance is born of the Light. Consequently, Brilliance is as everlasting as the Light from which it is born: Light is eternal and so is Brilliance. Light begets Brilliance, but has He ever existed without His Brilliance?... May you acknowledge that God gives birth to His everlasting Son<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

The use of ‘with’ here conveys the sense of ‘being with Him eternally’; that is the Word shares with the Father His eternal quality without any separation.

* ‘The Word was with God’ therefore He is as eternal as the Father Himself for there was no Father without the Word. Rather, God (the Word) was with God (the Father), Each having His own Person.

St. John Chrysostom

St. Ambrose underlines the equality of the Word with the Father. He bases his belief on the fact that the Evangelist mentions the Word before the Father. If the Father were greater with respect to the nature of Divinity, he would not have dared to do so. St. Paul the apostle also follows the pattern when he mentions the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ before the love of the Father (2 Cor 13:4). The order of the words (pertaining to the Trinity) is often the same, hence it is appropriate not to question the order or the degrees. In God there is the Father and the Son united in the Divinity and inseparable<sup>3</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom responded to the objection of the followers of Arius concerning the equality of the Word or the Son with the Father. They justified their claim by stating that the word ‘God’ is used here without a definite article: ‘And the Word was God.’ This is the same thought that the witnesses of Jehovah adopt currently. The Saint dismisses this claim as he clarifies that the Holy Bible sometimes speaks of the Father and the Holy Spirit without attaching to their names a defining article. Moreover, there are instances when the Son and the Word are referred to as the God and here a definite article is prefixed. Speaking on the same subject, the Holy Bible assigns to the Word the same characteristics of God Who is the Everlasting, the Creator, and the Giver of life and light. For had He been lesser than God, the Bible would have revealed that clearly to avoid any confusion.

* The Evangelist has not used any expression to indicate limitations, for he does not say: ‘He has a beginning’ but rather ‘In the beginning.’ By using ‘was’ he leads us to the concept

that the Son has no beginning. Someone may say: ‘Notice that a defining article precedes the Father (the God), whereas the Son has no article preceding it and therefore He is a god. How then can we explain the words of the apostle: ‘...our great God and Savior Jesus Christ,’ (Titus 2:13); and again: ‘...who is over all, the eternally blessed God,’ (Ro 9:5)?

It is true that here the Apostle refers to the Son without using the definite article, but he does the same thing with the Father, at least in the Letter to the Philippians (2:6), where he says: ‘...who being in the form of God, did not consider it robbery to be equal with God’; and again in the Letter to the Romans: ‘Grace to you and peace from God (with no article) our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ,’ (Ro 1:7).... And again when he speaks about the Father, he says: ‘God is a Spirit’ (John 4:24). Indeed, not having an article preceding the word ‘Spirit’ does not negate the spiritual nature of God. Similarly, in the instance where no article precedes the Son, the Son does not become lesser than God<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘He was in the beginning with God’ [2]

* By stating that ‘He was in the beginning with God’, St. John reveals to us that the Lord Jesus Christ shares with His Father the feature of eternity. Hence, upon hearing that the Only Begotten ‘was in the beginning’, you need to understand that He was before all reasoning creatures or before all ages.

*The Father has never been without the Word. Indeed, God has always been with the Word, but Each in His appropriate Person<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* ‘And the Word was with God’: The Father and the Son are not one in Person, for Each is a Person that can be perceived in the other due to their unity in essence: He is God from God, the Son from the Father.

* ‘He was in the beginning with God’, that is the Son, Who is with the Father, and born from His essence, is the only begotten Son who is referred to by the word ‘He.’

St. Cyril the Great

* The Logos can also be ‘the Son of God’ since He is trusted with the mysteries of His Father, Who is ‘the Mind.’ In contrast, the analogous Son is called ‘the Word.’ Just as the word exists within us and is the messenger to what the mind comprehends, so is the Word of God. For He knows the Father and proclaims that Whom He knows. No creature can enter into a relationship with Him unless He leads him. No one knows the Father except the Son and to whomsoever the Son reveals the Father (Matt. 11:27). As He is the Word, He is the great Counselor on Whose shoulders dominion rests (Is 9:6 LXX). He became King as He suffered and carried the Cross. The Book of the Revelation speaks of the Word, the Faithful and the True riding a white horse (Rev 19:11): I believe that He is coming to abide in us in order to clarify the Voice of Truth that He carries (mounts)<sup>3</sup>.

Origen

Origen, reports that the prophets of the Old Testament enjoyed the Word of God that was revealed to them (Ho.1:1; Is.2:1; Jr 14:1). Hence, it is reported: ‘The word of the Lord that came to Hosea the son of Beer...’ (Ho 1:1). The word Hosea means ‘the Savior’, and Beer means the ‘wells’; hence everyone who has enjoyed redemption is a child of the wells that flow out of the depths of the wisdom of God. He is Wisdom’s child, and according to the Holy Bible: “...wisdom is justified by all her children,” (Lk.7:35; Matt.11:19). Concerning the Father, the Bible says: ‘And the Word was with God’: it does not say ‘The Word came to God’ for the Word is eternal with the Father<sup>4</sup>.

* Nevertheless, the Word came to mankind who could not have previously accepted the journey of the Son of God, and Who is the Word. On the other hand, the Word did not come in order to be with God and as though it had not previously been with Him; for He has been always with the Father. In that context, the Bible says: ‘The Word was with God’ (Jn.1:1), since He did not come to be with God<sup>5</sup>.

* The same verb ‘was’ refers to the Word when He was in the beginning and when He was with God. He was never separate from the beginning and never departed from the Father. To reiterate, He did not come to be in the beginning as someone who was not there in the beginning. Moreover, He has not changed from being non-existent with God to being existent with Him: He has been there, since time everlasting and before all ages: ‘In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God’<sup>1</sup>.

* Additionally, by His coming to the prophets, He shone upon them with the light of Knowledge and granted them to perceive, as though with their own eyes, matters they could not comprehend before His coming. As for His being with God, the Word is God for He is with Him<sup>2</sup>.

Origen

‘All things were made through Him

And without Him nothing was made that was made’ [3].

The Evangelist presents the Word as the ‘Creator’ for by Him all was made, and without Him there was nothing that was made. St. John speaks about this only after clarifying the eternal relationship between the Father and the Word. Hence, the Father and the Son (the Word) and the Holy Spirit are intrinsically united: the absolute love and life. This Divine Nature that overflows with love does not need a heavenly or earthly creation to achieve love in a practical way. Love operates among the Divine Persons since eternity: the Creation is the result of overflowing divine love. It did not occur as a necessary instrument to achieve God’s love but, rather, it is the fruit of that love. What we say about the Creation is also true of Redemption since it is the New Creation.

The eternal Word is the Creator and the Redeemer: He achieves the will of God that is at one with the will of the Son.

In saying ‘All things were made through Him’, He is distinctly set apart from all heavenly, human, and material creations: He is the Creator of everyone and everything wherever it may be.

‘...through Him...’ underlines that through Him all came into being, or he Created all. The verb ‘was’ here, as used in the Greek text, has a different meaning from its use in the context of ‘the Word.’ Here it indicates creation while it refers to the Almighty Presence when used in conjunction with ‘the Word.’

The preposition ‘through’ is used to convey that He was the means, the path, and the sustainer. Indeed, He has created and continues to plan for His creation as He cares for it and guards it. This is how St. Paul the apostle expresses this thought: ‘For by Him all things were created... through Him and for Him...and in Him all things exist,’ (Col.1:16, 17;

'...upholding all things by the word of His power,' (Heb. 1:3); '...for in Him we live and move and have our being,' (Acts 17:28).

St. John Chrysostom finds that the Evangelist focuses on the unified work of the Word and the Father in the course of the Creation. He explains that St. John intends to reveal the divinity of the Word and His equality with the Father. Hence he says: '...and without Him nothing was made that was made,' in order to affirm that the role of the Word in the Creation is fundamental. Without Him, it would have been impossible to achieve the Creation or sustain its continuity.

When Moses the prophet speaks about the Creation, he says: 'In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth,' he was worried that someone would think the earth is eternal and so he ascertained it had a beginning and it is the masterful work of the Creator. If the Word had been a creature, the Evangelist would have affirmed his being created rather than speaking about Him as the Creator of all.

* Who could commit such a mistake and proclaim that the One who creates and makes all things is at the same time a creature? I wonder: Has God created Himself? ...who could think in this way? God in His wisdom has created all things (Ps104:24). If that is so, how can we assume that wisdom is created of itself? <sup>1</sup>

* If you assume that the expression 'through Him' indicates that He is lesser since it makes of the Lord Jesus Christ an instrument used for creation, then hear what (David) says: 'Of old You laid the foundation of the earth, and the heavens are the work of Your hands,' (Ps 101(102):25). What he says about the Father as a creator also applies to the Son: he would not have said this if he had not believed Him to be the Creator and not just another's helper. Hence the expression 'through Him' is used for the sole reason that the Psalmist has: no doubt that the Son was not born. Concerning His title of Creator, this underlines that He is no lesser than the Father in any way. Listen to how He speaks about Himself: 'For as the Father raises the dead and gives life to them, even so the Son gives life to whom He will,' (Jn.5:21)<sup>2</sup>.

* Do you not agree that by adding: '...and without Him nothing was made that was made', St. John has ended all the difficult issues? The statement: '...and without Him nothing was made that was made', is complemented by: 'All things were made through Him...' Hence, he embraces all things the mind can comprehend (things that exist in the intangible world) yet do not include the (the Holy) Spirit...

Lest someone says: "If everything was made through Him, then the Spirit was born as well"; I answer: "I am convinced that what was born was born through Him: whether it is tangible or intangible or in the heavens. That is why he did not use an absolute expression such as 'All things ', but he said 'All things..., made,' referring to creatures. As for the Spirit, he is not a creature...do you not see the accuracy of his teachings... he has excluded the Holy Spirit from all other creation.

As St. Paul had received the same grace, he writes in the same Spirit and says: 'For by Him all things were created...' (Col.1: 16). Notice here the same accuracy for the same Spirit (the Holy) has stirred this soul as well. None of the creatures are excepted from being the work of God...'whether thrones or dominions or principalities or powers.' The expression 'whether' is all-inclusive and underlines that there is nothing else to be understood other than this: 'All things were made through Him, and without Him nothing was made that was made'<sup>3</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Could the Word be made by God? No, Because He too was with God since the beginning. Are the things that God has created different from the things that the Word has created? No, because all things were made through Him. By what means were they created by Him? Because in Him was life and before creating them life existed. What has been created was not done by life but by the Wisdom of God, and before creating them, life existed. That which is created moves on and transpires, whereas that which is found in Wisdom can never transpire<sup>4</sup>.

* If you say: 'All things' then you will not be lying since this Word is called the Wisdom of God; and as it is written: 'In wisdom You have made them all' (Ps.104:24)<sup>5</sup>.

St. Augustine

* The bride regards attentively the hand of the bridegroom as it represents his power to work, saying, "My beloved put his hand by the latch of the door..." (Song of Sol 5:4). Yet it is impossible for human nature to embrace the infinity of divine nature, and the bride says: "And my heart yearned for him," (Song of Sol 5:4)...every soul is astounded at her capacity to comprehend the dazzling works made by God for they transcend human capacity. This is due to the inexplicable and incomprehensible Divine Nature that makes these wonders. Every living creature is the product of this Hand that appeared by the latch. That explains why St. John cries out in his Gospel saying: 'All things were made by Him, and without Him nothing was made that were made,' (Jn. 1 :). Isaiah the prophet expresses the same thought and calls the hand the power of God to work: "For all those things my hand has made, and all those things exist," says the Lord (Is.66: 2). The mind is unable to comprehend such achievement: the beauty of the heavens with the stars and the sun, and the rest of the wonders of nature. However, the human heart fears the power of God. If man is unable to understand all the works of God, then how can he comprehend God Who is above all that is in the creation?<sup>1</sup> =====

* Let us go back to these verses and benefit from the above so that they echo the words of the friends of the bride: "What is your beloved more than another beloved, O fairest among women? What is your beloved more than another beloved that you so charge us?"

Let us listen attentively as our veils have been lifted up: let us turn towards the Truth with our inner eyes.

How does the bride describe to her bridesmaids the One she is seeking?

How does she describe in words the stature of the One for whom she is yearning?

How does she prepare the virgins for the One they do not know? On the one hand, Christ has not been created yet there is an aspect of Him as a creature: we know that the One not created is eternal and found before the world was established, and that He is the Creator of all. On the other hand, there is an aspect that is created as He was formed according to our lowly flesh (Phil 3:21). We might understand these words better by examining them in the light of the Holy Bible: We know that in the beginning was the Word, that He had always been with God, that the Word was not created, and that without Him nothing was made that was made' (Jn 1:1-3). The Word was with God and the Word was God, and through Him all things were made. We also know that Jesus Christ was born, that is, He became flesh and dwelt among us. His incarnation clearly revealed his greatness: He is God, the only begotten Son of God who abides in the Father's embrace. He appeared in the flesh, and according to St. John: '...the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth,' (Jn.1: 14)<sup>2</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nyssa

* All things were made by Him, and without Him nothing was made that was made': since we believe that everything was created through the Son, therefore we cannot consider Him to be one of the whole (of the creation). Indeed, He is totally different for He does share the nature of the created beings. We do confess that He alone is by nature the true God.

* He did not receive power from someone else to create, but He is the power of God the Father. The only Son Who does everything with the Father and the Holy Spirit. For everything proceeds from the Father by the Son. If the Son were created separately from the Father, the Son would not have been able to say: "I am in the Father and the Father in Me," (Jn 14:10).

St. Cyril, the Great

St. Augustine says that some - such as the followers of Manni - believe that Satan has created certain creatures, such as flies for example. He answers such believers, as the followers of Manni, that God is the sole Creator of all things. He has created even these creatures that appear to be insignificant or harmful, for the well being of men and to dismantle him of pride. [You need to know, my brethren, that these creatures have been created to restrain our pride by presenting hardships for us. Thus God diminished the pride of the people under Pharaoh by sending flies, and frogs; rather than tanks or lions: He humbled them as they submitted to the most insignificant of creatures<sup>1</sup>.]

St. Augustine

'In Him was life, and the life was the light of men' [4].

The Evangelist draws a distinction between 'life' as a creative element and 'life' that is created and temporal. He speaks of the Word not just as a living Person but as 'life' as well. This is what the Lord Jesus indicated when He spoke of Himself as being born before all time: '.... to have life in Himself,' (Jn 5:26). For He is the essence of the incomprehensible life. Hence the Evangelist says: '...the life was manifested' (1Jn 1:2), and this is through incarnation.

Creative life grants life to others, "For as the Father raises the dead and gives life to them, even so the Son gives life to whom He will," (Jn5: 21). It is not that there is life in Him, but He is life itself. Hence 'All things were made through Him.' The Bible says: '...that you may love the Lord your God, that you may obey His voice and that you may cling to Him, for He is your life...' (Deut 30:20). The Psalmist also sings: "For with You is the fountain of life; in your light we see the light," (Ps 36: 9).

'...and the life was the light of men,' [4]. When we receive Him as our life, we become enlightened. Moreover, we realize that our temporal life on earth is a divine gift that motivates us to be attracted to 'eternal life' where the brightness of eternal glory shines. In heaven, we will be with the Lord Jesus Christ and know Him fully. We will enjoy seeing Him, become united to Him, and rest steadfastly in Him, and ultimately, we will have attained eternal life: 'And this is eternal life, that they may know You, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom you have sent,'(Jn 17:3).

Just as the Word is the creative Life and Giver of created life, He is also the essential

Light inherent in the divine nature and the One that cannot be approached. He shines upon us with His grace so we consequently become a light that reflects the radiance of His light wherever we go. When the Lord declared Himself to Saul of Tarsus, Saul said: “...a great light from heaven shone around me, and I fell to the ground...” (Acts 22:7).

* The Evangelist calls Him both ‘the Light’ and the ‘Life’; for he freely grants us light. It is light that proceeds from knowledge and the life that arises from it. The use of one name, or two, or three, or more is insufficient to teach us about God. We need to be ready to comprehend His mysterious features through numerous means<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

St. John Chrysostom believes that since the Lord Jesus Christ is Life or the source of life, He can only be eternal. Otherwise, who could have granted life if He Himself did not exist at some point in time?

* He is life...that has no beginning and no end; and therefore is truly Life as should be. For if there had been a time when there was no Life, then how can other life be formed if Life itself did not exist?!<sup>3</sup>

* St. John says about the Lord Jesus Christ: ‘In Him was life...’ so that just as the Father possessed life within Himself, He gave His Son the same innate possession of life.

St. John did not say: ‘And the life was the light of the Jews’, but he put it in an all-inclusive way, thus: ‘...and the life was the light of men.’ For the light was not for the Jews alone, but it was offered to all in general. They came to this same knowledge, as this light was set to shine on all.

You may wonder: what is the reason that led him to omit the addition of ‘angels’ to men and rather chose to say ‘...and the life was the light of men’? We say: Because what he said at the present time is offered to all mankind: He came to them to carry the glad news of good gifts<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Nothing that has been created has been made without Him; for He is the life that made the creation possible<sup>2</sup>.

St. Hilary, Bishop of Poitier

* ‘In Him was life...’: He grants the creation the blessing of existence, and He also grants the blessing of continuity. Out of His goodness, He grants eternity to creatures who do not possess it innately. Hence He becomes the life to everything that came into being so that it continues to exist within the limits of its nature.

* If the Son were not of the essence of the Father but rather from an external origin, then He would have been subordinate to the Father just like other creatures. But how then could He give life to all, while He is among all that has been created? ... How can we interpret these words of the apostle, St. Paul, concerning the nature of God: “...who gives life to all things...” (1 Tim 6:13). How can the Son be a creature and at the same time be able to give life to all...then the creation would be able to give life to itself and would not need God at all. Moreover, there would be nothing to differentiate between the divine nature and other creatures. Indeed, the creation would be like God and have power to do the same work as God.

* If the Son is not of the essence of God the Father...then how could the Psalmist conceive the amazing wonder of Him who is by nature God: “In Your light we see light,” (Ps.36: 9). If the Son, as a creature, shines on all things created, then the creation would be shining on itself and would not need the light of God, her Creator.

St. Cyril, the Great

* If anyone wishes to possess the Word, and if anyone wishes to have the Word, he does not need to search outside himself for something to offer: he needs to offer himself. By doing so, he does not lose himself in the same way that someone would lose the price of something he has bought<sup>3</sup>.

* He who possesses the Word, let him offer himself: that is the price of the Word. It is said that he who gives does not lose himself, but, rather, possesses the Word and is devoted to Him. Indeed, he wins his own soul too as he comes to the Word who is his own Creator<sup>4</sup>.

* The Bible speaks about Wisdom and says: “She is the radiance of the everlasting light...” And in another passage: “She is a reflection of eternal light, a perfect mirror of God’s activity and goodness,” (Ws 7:26)...let us draw a parallel from this to find a common factor between two elements as this will enable us to comprehend the fellowship found in the Eternal. Light proceeds from fire, and light produces fire. Hence we may wonder which is the result of the other? Every time and as we light a candle, we will have to remember that there is something intangible and indescribable: we know that a candle needs to be lit in the darkness of this world...present to me a fire without radiance and I will believe that the Father existed been without the Son<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

*Origen believes that the Messiah first came spiritually and then came physically. He came in the Old Testament to those who were perfect, and who had become mature and were no longer children. They were not in the custody of teachers and educators: they had matured in the fullness of their spiritual time (Gal.4: 4). Such is the case of the patriarch fathers and the prophets who contemplated the glory of the Messiah. Just as the Lord visited the perfect ones before the tangible journey He made in the flesh, He likewise does not visit those who remain children after He has come, and who do not wish to become mature<sup>2</sup>.

* If we understand that ‘In Him was life’, the One who said: “I am...the life,” (Jn 11: 25), then we will say that no one who lacks faith in the Lord Jesus Christ is alive. Moreover all those who do not live for Him are dead. Their lives are spent in sin rather than for the Mind (Logos): in other words, it is a life of death<sup>3</sup>.

* Let us study the expression: “He is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living...” (Mk 12:27). This is equivalent to the statement: ‘He is not a God of sinners, but a God of saints’.... He is the God of the fathers and of all the saints. No one can find a record anywhere that mentions that He is a God of any wicked man. Therefore, and since He is the God of saints, and that He has been described as the God of the living, we may state that the saints are alive, and that those alive are saints. Indeed, no one can be considered alive unless he truly exists as a saint<sup>4</sup>.

* If the life is equivalent to ‘the light of men’, then no one existing in darkness is alive; and no one alive exists in darkness. Indeed, everyone who is alive is also in the light and everyone in the light is alive. Consequently, only the one who is alive is the son of the light, and the son of the light is the one whose deeds shine before men (Matt 5:16).<sup>5</sup>

* St. Paul says that there was ‘darkness and now there is the light of God,’ (1Cor 2:14-15). Hence, it is possible for darkness to be transformed into light. This is not hard for someone who believes in the potential of man to change, and to become better. ...Or get worse<sup>6</sup>.

*It is possible for the One who possesses the light of men, and who gives its rays to fulfil works of light and is the the light of knowledge (Ho.10: 12 LXX). We also need to consider the opposite aspect, which suggests that, every wicked act, but still called knowledge, does not proceed according to the truth, and as such has darkness as its basis<sup>7</sup>.

Origen

* This kind of light affects the mind but not the senses: it enlightens the soul itself. The Lord Jesus Christ explains this: “No one can come to Me unless the Father Who sent Me draws him,” (Jn 6:44). On this theme, the Lord proclaims that He (the Son) is the One who gives ‘light’ [9] and therefore, if we hear such a saying about the Father, we should not think it speaks of the Father alone for it applies to the Son as well. The Lord also says: “All things that the Father has are Mine,” (Jn 16:15)<sup>1</sup>.

* ‘And the light shines in the darkness,’ [5]. He designates death and sin as darkness since the light of the senses does not shine within the darkness but rather shines on the outside of it. As for the preaching of the Lord, it shines in the midst of oppressing sin and dispels it. By undergoing death, He conquered death, and healed those who really believed in Him. That is how neither death nor sin can conquer the Word. It is radiant everywhere and shines with the power due to Him<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Light of the mind is more sublime than the mind and surpasses all minds. This is the Life through Whom everything was made<sup>3</sup>.

* Do not be in darkness, O mankind, and do not be unbelieving. Do not exist in darkness, in wickedness, in covetousness, in greed and lusting for the world: this is darkness. The Light is not absent, it is you who are absent from the light<sup>4</sup>.

St. Augustine

‘And the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend it,’ [5].

The work of the ‘Sun of Righteousness’ is to shine with His light upon the world, yet He does not oblige those sitting in darkness to receive His light. A man who rejects the light, and holds on to darkness, becomes a darkness that cannot comprehend or tolerate the light. Whereas a man who accepts the light becomes a light to the world and cannot tolerate darkness.

Since the Word incarnate is ‘the true light’; then Satan who has forsaken the source of light has become ‘darkness.’ He exerts himself to attract all mankind to his kingdom and consequently have dominion over them. That explains why the Lord called him ‘the power of darkness,’ (Lk.22: 53).

The kingdom of darkness is established in the absence of the true light. That is when mankind is separated from the divine Word and therefore have no “life”, no ‘light’, no ‘truth’, and no ‘peace.’ This is where deeds of darkness occur, such as spiritual death, denial, lies,

Darkness can neither comprehend the light nor tolerate it. Hence it takes a hostile stand as an attempt to prevent the light from touching it. The darkness imagined it could eradicate the 'Sun of Righteousness' by crucifying Him. It did not realize that through the Cross it has destroyed itself, and that consequently the 'Sun of Righteousness' shone on those who sat in the darkness: 'The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light; those who dwelt in the land of the shadow of death, upon them a light has shined,' (Is 9:2).

* 'Darkness' is the nature that needs to be enlightened- that is the created nature...he considers that the reasoning creation lacking the divine nature is darkness. Hence it is incapable to produce anything independently and with its own potentials.

* The Word, that is the Son is unknown to darkness. This is because the reasoning creature living on earth, that is man, has worshipped the creature rather than the Creator (Rom 1:25). He did not comprehend the light for he did not know the Creator.

St. Cyril the Great

* Light shines in the darkness, and in this life, and in the body. At the same time, darkness pursues it, yet it will not defeat it. I mean that the opposing power continues its shameful attack against the actual Adam but it collides with God and gets defeated. Hence by tearing darkness away, we get close to the light, and consequently become fully light and the children of the perfect Light<sup>1</sup>.

St. Gregory, the Theologian

* St. John says: "...the darkness did not comprehend it": for it is impossible to have a defeated Messiah. Moreover, He cannot live in souls that do not want the light. However, do not be disturbed if the light does not embrace all, for He does not abide forcefully or by intimidation. Indeed, as a result of a person's will and acceptance, God brings His light to him. Do not close your doors in the face of that Light for you will enjoy great happiness. However, this Light descends due to faith, and when it comes it richly enlightens the one receiving Him. Moreover, if you lead a pure life that is worthy of the Light, He will continue to dwell within you. The Lord promises that: "If anyone loves Me, he will keep My word; and My Father will love him, and we will come to him and make Our home with him," (Jn 14:23).

A man who closes his eyes cannot enjoy the sun's light. Similarly, no one can share and enjoy the Eternal Light unless he opens up his soul's inner perception and strives to keep his focus steadfast in every possible manner.

How can this be achieved? When the soul is cleaned from all desires: for all sin is darkness- a deep darkness. This is clear in the way people unconsciously and secretly commit sin: "For everyone practicing evil hates the light and does not come to the light, lest his deeds should be exposed," (Jn 3:20). "For it is shameful even to speak of those things which are done by them in secret," (Eph 5:12). Moreover, a man living in darkness knows neither friends nor foes: he is unable to make a distinction among the nature of things. That is typical of a man living in sin. Thus a the one who seeks to make huge profits does not distinguish between friend and foe; a covetous man carries hatred even to those closest to him; and a plotter is in constant conflict with everyone in common...

Briefly, a sinner is no better than a drunkard or a madman. Just as wood, lead, silver, gold, and precious stones appear to be similar at night due to the absence of light and thus hindering the perception of any distinctions among them, so is the one who leads a corrupt life:

he is unable to make a distinction and comprehend the grandness of self control or the beauty of philosophy (wisdom)<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* He who strays away from the true Light, that is moving away from God, becomes blind immediately. Yet, he does not realize the result and his judgment even though it has actually been delivered already<sup>1</sup>.

St. Augustine

* The Psalmist expresses our yearning: ‘Woe is me, that I sojourn in Meshech, that I dwell among the tents of Kedar! My soul has dwelt too long...’ (Ps 120:5; Vulgate 6). ‘Kedar’ means ‘darkness’, and darkness represents the actual world, for we are told: ‘And the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend it’<sup>2</sup> [5].

St. Jerome

‘There was a man sent by God, whose name was John’ [6].

The verb ‘was’ in Greek means ‘became’ as opposed to ‘was’ that occurs in verse 1: ‘the Word was...’ where it conveys ‘being’ in the sense that He was and is timeless

The Holy Bible does not say: ‘God sent John the Baptist’ for the focus is on the mission itself: ‘...a man sent by God...’ The aim of that mission was to bear witness to the divine Word who is the Light shining upon those sitting in the darkness.

* Since you are told that John has been sent by God, then do not think that he speaks of his own words. Rather, he speaks with the words of Him who has sent him; and therefore he is called an angel: “Behold, I send My messenger...” (Malachi 3:1). Note that the virtue of the angel is that he does not speak of his own words<sup>3</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘This man came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all through him might believe,’ [7].

St. John the Evangelist is preoccupied by the proclamation of the person of the Messiah: that we may believe in Him, and consequently enjoy the everlasting Life as our Light in this world and glory in the life to come. For this purpose, he presents numerous witnesses and we note the repetition of the verb ‘to witness’: it occurs 33 times throughout this Gospel as well as the noun ‘a witness’ that is repeated 14 times.

Concerning ‘the witness’ the reference is to: the witness of the Father for Him (5:31); the witness of the Lord Jesus for Himself (8:14); the witness of the Holy Spirit (15:26); the witness of the Lord’s deeds (5:36); the witness of the fathers and the prophets (5:39); the witness of John the Baptist (1:7); the witness of the disciples (15:27); as well as the witness of the Samaritan woman and the Samaritans to Him (Ch 4); that of the blind man whose sight was restored (Ch 9); and after His resurrection, the testimony of Thomas.

Origen says that the ‘voice in the wilderness’ witnessed for the Word. He presents six testimonies:

1- He witnessed to His greatness as He comes after Him even though He is the Eternal Who preceded Him. He is the Giver of all gifts and the Informant about the Father (Jn 1:15-18). All these expressions include in the testimony of St. John the Baptist who came before the Messiah, not, as some believe that part of it is the testimony of St. John the Evangelist.

2- His witness before the messengers sent by the priests and the Levites coming from Jerusalem (Jn 19:1-27).

3- For a third time, he testifies to the greatness of the Lord Jesus Christ and indicates that he is unworthy to loosen the straps of his shoes (Jn1: 26-27), while He is there among them and they did not know Him.

4- On the next day, St. John the Baptist testifies that He is the Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world (Jn 1:29).

5- His witness after he saw the Holy Spirit descending and resting upon Him (Jn 1:33-34).

6- For the sixth time, he witnesses before two of the disciples that He is the Lamb of God (Jn 1:35-36)<sup>1</sup>.

* Someone might ask: What does all this mean? Is the testimony of a slave to his master valid?... I answer by telling the words that the Lord Jesus Christ gave to the Jews: “Yet I do not receive testimony from man...” (Jn 5:34). If you would ask: If Christ did not need this testimony, then why did God send John the Baptist?! I say response is: He did not send John because He needed His testimony for this is a serious blasphemy. Then why? The Evangelist tells us himself: ‘...that all through Him might believe...,’ Do not think that John the Baptist bore witness in order to add some credibility or trust in the Lord. No, he did so in order to make those of his own nature (human beings) to believe<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Evangelist did not assume the role of being the sole witness to the Lord Jesus Christ; for although it is a true testimony yet he did not want to disobey the Law (that requires two or three witnesses)...this is particularly important as he is proclaiming matters that are above the grasp of the human mind. For that reason, he brings in St. John the Baptist to join him and bear witness.

* A veiled opinion spread among some people, that St. John the Baptist was not a real man, but one of the heavenly angels, vested by flesh, and sent by God to preach to people. This is a myth that resulted from misinterpreting the words of God, saying: “behold, I send My messenger, and He will prepare the way before Me,” (Mal 3:1 ;). Because these people had abandoned the truth, they had misunderstood the meaning of the word ‘angel.’ It means a servant or a messenger while it does not specify the real essence of that servant.

St. Cyril the Great

“He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness to that Light,” [8].

* The Baptist chose to live in the wilderness and away from the pleasures of the city. He proclaimed his steadfast adherence to a life of virtue. Hence he progressed to the pinnacle of righteousness to which no man could attain. This led people to be amazed at his style of living and some even imagined him to be the Messiah...Some imagined him to be the Light Himself.

* These words are reported about St. John the Baptist: “He was the burning and shining lamp...” (Jn 5:35). Although saints are said to be lights...yet we do not deny the gift that they have received from ‘the Light.’ Note that the light is in the lantern and does not come from it. Similarly, the light of the saints does not emanate from them: it is the result of the Truth that hence they ‘shine as lights in the world, holding fast the word of life (Phil 2:15, 16).

St. Cyril the Great

* St. John the Evangelist does not say these words for no reason otherwise his words would be of no value. He does so to dismiss any doubt as commonly thought that the witness is greater than the One for whom he testifies. Therefore the Evangelist immediately, and from the beginning, dismisses these assumptions and unearths them. He reveals the identity of that witness, the identity of Him for whom he witnessed, and the distinction between the two<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* John was a light, yet he was not the true Light. If he had not been enlightened, he would have suffered from the darkness. However, he became a light by his being enlightened<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

“That was the true Light which gives light to every man who comes into the world,” [9].

This was a popular expression used among the Jewish teaches, every newborn child sees the light of which he was deprived while he was in his mother’s womb. Here the light means the new life since the newborn is blind and at his birth he sees the light. In other words, at his birth he is introduced to a new life that is different from the prenatal condition. Similarly, the Lord Jesus Christ shines with the light of His presence upon a new world that everyone, who is born spiritually, enjoys.

St. Cyril the Great considers that faith is the lamp, and the incarnate Word of God is the light. He says: [God’s Word is the subject of our belief: He is the Light. The lamp is faith, while He is the true light that shines to every man who comes into the world (Jn 1:9)]<sup>3</sup>.

The word ‘true’ implies the sole Light that has the power to reveal the One Who is wholly Truth, and informs us of the divine mysteries. Indeed, He is a perfect and constant Light, that is never interrupted. This true Light is the sole One who can enter into the knowledge of the Father, the true God (Jn 3:17). He offers Himself to us the true and perfect divine Truth, the true Bread descending from heaven, the true Vine with Whom we can enjoy unity as branches of Him, who is the Vine. Through Him we can become true worshippers: worshipping Him in spirit and in truth.

He is the Light ‘...which gives light to every man who comes into the world...’ [9]. He wishes to save everyone and to attract him or her to the Truth. He does not wish to conceal Himself from anyone, yet He does not obligate any to accept Him.

St. John does not say ‘He gave light’ but, rather, that He ‘gives light’ as this is a constant situation: the door of His love is constantly open. Indeed, He descends to everyone to invite him to enjoy His light. Hence everyone is entitled to receive and enjoy Him.

He is the Light that enriches everyone receiving Him by granting him divine enlightenment that surpasses the mind. As for those who reject Him, they are like those whom the sun has hit in their weak eyes and blinded “He has blinded their eyes and hardened their hearts” (Jn 12:40) And as the Lord said: “For judgment I have come into this world, that those who do not see may see, and that those who see may be made blind,”(Jn 9:39).

‘...who comes into the world...’ does not refer to ‘every man’ but to ‘the true Light’, for the Word, the true Light, came to the world in the flesh. Human discernment didn’t occur, but in the same way as the sun shines on our earth from afar. This happened by His coming to our world and appearing among us.

* Where are they who claim that the Lord Jesus Christ is not a true God? He is called here ‘the true Light’, the Truth itself, and Life itself.

* If He gives light to every man who comes into the world, then how do we still find large numbers who are not enlightened yet? Because not all have become acquainted with the dominion of the Lord. Then how does He give light to every man? He gives light to all and according to the person's capacity to receive light within himself. As for those who reject or who shut off the eyes of their minds and refuse the rays of that Light, then their darkness is not due to the nature of the Light. It is due to their wickedness, which has turned them away from the Light<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* We will become like the Light as we come close to the light of the true Christ. According to the Lord's words, if we leave the dark atmosphere of the world and live in the heights, we become lights (Jn 9: 5; 1:9). The true Light that lights in the darkness descends to us. However, if the filth of sin covers our hearts, it darkens the brilliance of our light<sup>2</sup>.

St. Gregory, Bishop of Nyssa

* Anyone who originates from nothingness does not possess the power to progress. However, the rays of the Light that proceeds from men is granted to them when they become partakers of the divine nature (2 Peter 1:4). Thus, when they become the image of the divine nature they are called lights and each becomes a light.

* Since the Son is the splendor (rays) of the glory of God the Father, He is consequently the true Light.

* Since the mind of man is considered a lamp, and this is how the Psalm refers to it: "You will light my lamp"; then why is it said that we are light? Because a lamp receives its light from another source. Since the only Son is the sole One who shines in the darkness that is within us then He is the true Light; while we are definitely not the true light.

* If the Son is not truly the sole Light, and that this is also a feature of all creatures as well, then how do we explain these words: "But you are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, His own special people, that you may proclaim the praises of Him who called you out of darkness into His marvelous light," (1 Peter 2: 9-10). So why is there darkness within us? And what is this darkness that we were living in, if we are truly the light?

* The Holy Bible frequently speaks of the Lord Jesus Christ as the divine Light or the Light of the Father (Ps 4:6; 97:11; 89:15; 112:4; Is 60:1; 42:6; 2:5; Jn 12:35 -36; 1Jn 2:9-10).

St. Cyril the Great

* The light of the sun that is visible to us sheds its light upon everything - even upon the smallest and least significant animals. Similarly, righteousness and wisdom are the true Light, and the mind may be blocked and clouded from perceiving this Light and it gets confused as a result of some prevalent anger. Just like the sun that sets down upon man's anger, so is the case with this ship when the Lord is absent from it. Everyone shakes as a result of his own storms, wickedness, and evil desires<sup>3</sup>.

* The Lord Himself shone as gloriously as the sun. His clothes became white as snow, He Himself shone as the sun. Thus He indicated that He is the Light who gives light to every man who comes into the world. Just as the sun is important to the physical eye, so is the Lord vital to the eyes of the heart<sup>1</sup>.

St. Augustine

* A righteous and enlightened person enjoys constant daylight throughout his life. His light cannot be touched by darkness. He gives praise to God seven times a day for he has sublimated himself above this world that has been created in six days.

When I attain the Lord's Paradise, and contemplate on the reason for the creation and God's wisdom, I acknowledge that His rulings are altogether justice.

St. Didymium, the Blind

'He was in the world, and the world was made through Him, and the world did not know Him', [10].

This is so amazing! He has created the world through his power, and He has descended to it to be in our midst. He sends His Light to us and to be within us. However, the evil world has rejected Him and chosen to walk in the darkness of ignorance rather than in the light of knowing Him.

If a person walks in darkness, he cannot justify himself. His darkness is not caused by His Creator. It arises out of his evil will and actions which have rejected the true Light.

* St. John speaks of the Lord and says: 'He was in the world, and the world was made through Him....' By these words, the Evangelist carries us upwards too. He leads us beyond all time and into the presence of the only One. Anyone who hears that the world was made through Him is obliged to acknowledge, confess and worship Him. Even though a person could be extremely insensitive, or hostile, or waging war against the glory of God.

St. John says: '...and the world did not know Him,' for there are those who have deviated and cannot perceive distinctions. They have wrestled and become wild to the greatest extent; while there are others who have come to know Him.

St. John Chrysostom

* '...and the world did not know Him,': not because He is unknown but because the world is weak. The Son shines, yet the creation disperses the blessing. The Word granted the creation the power of sight so that all may perceive, through nature, that He is Lord. However, the creation has abused that gift and has turned all living things into stumbling blocks that obstruct meditation on the Lord. Creatures have become egocentric and have buried the gift of insight through negligence.

* Truly, the world is condemned for its ingratitude, and its inability to comprehend God...the Prophet expresses this reality as he quotes these verses in reference to the children of Israel: 'So He expected it to bring forth good grapes, but it brought forth wild grapes,' (Is 5:4).

St. Cyril the Great

* The world that the Lord has created is not the same one that has not known Him.

What is the world that He has created? The heavens and the earth.

How is it that the heavens did not know Him whereas the sun grew dark as He suffered on the Cross?

How is it that the earth did not know Him whereas it rumbled and shook as he hung on the Cross?

'The world did not know Him,' as we are told about its ruler the following: '...for the ruler of this world is coming and he has nothing in Me,' (Jn 14:30). The evil ones and the unbelievers are called 'the world': they are named after the thing they have loved.

By loving God, we become gods; and by loving the world, we become 'the world.'

However, ‘... God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself,’ (2 Cor 5: 19).

* All things witness to Him in every way, yet who were those who did not acknowledge Him? They are those who became known as ‘the world’ on account of their love for it<sup>1</sup>.

* The world was created by Him: the heavens, the earth, and all that is in them. Yet ‘the world did not know Him.’ Those who love the world, and hate the Lord: this is the world that did not know Him. For the world is evil since those who have preferred the world to God are truly evil<sup>2</sup>.

* ‘...and the world did not know Him,’: this is not the world that we are told about: ‘God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself,’ (2 Cor 5:19).

There is an evil world, as well as a godly world. The evil world consists of the evil ones in it, and the godly world consists of the godly ones. This is what we often notice in a field as we say: ‘This field is full of good seeds,’ or ‘ This field is full of weeds.’ Similarly, we may say that a certain tree is full of fruit while another may say that it is full of leaves. In each case both sayings are true, for the fact that it is full of leaves does not negate that it is full of fruit; neither does its being full of fruit negate that it is full of leaves.<sup>3</sup>

* The world is evil because its inhabitants are evil; just as a house is evil not due to its walls but due to its inhabitants<sup>4</sup>.

God has not created man to serve Him for He has no need for the services of mankind. His unique love for mankind, He wants each to be His very own and part of His household. According to Genesis 5:24: ‘...Enoch walked with God; and he was not, for God took him.’ Although we do not know how God took him, or where He took him, yet he was removed to be with God forever and to be welcomed as one of the members of the divine family.

The Lord shows His supreme love for believers by relating Himself to them in these words: ‘ I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.’ The prophet Moses reveals this relationship as one where God considers a congregation as His own personal portion: ...the Lord your God has chosen you to be a people for Himself, a special treasure above all the peoples on the face of the earth.’ (Gen 7:6). This thought has often been voiced by many prophets as they proclaim that God reserved a people to be His own.

And the Word incarnated descended to live among His own; yet His own did not receive Him. The rejection was a joint one as it came from the high priests, the scribes, the Pharisees, and the leaders of the people. Even one of His disciples joined and rejected Him, and thus these words were fulfilled: ‘...and those who hated me wrongfully have multiplied ....who hate me without a cause,’ (Ps 39:19; Ps 69:4).

* The Lord heard the prayers of the prophets and was concerned that mankind would be annihilated. Consequently, He sent His Son from heaven as a Healer. According to the prophet: ‘ And the Lord, whom you seek, will suddenly come...,’(Mal3: 1)...where? ‘...to His temple’! Another prophet, on hearing that, says: ‘O Zion, you who bring good tidings, get up into the high mountain...say to the cities of Judah....’ Say what? ‘Behold your God! Behold, the Lord God shall come with a strong hand,’ (Isaiah 40:9, 10). Moreover, the Lord Himself declares: “...behold, I am coming and I will dwell in your midst,” (Zech 2:10). Nevertheless, the Israelites rejected salvation and consequently He “will gather all nations and all tongues,”

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

Reflect on the words of St. John: 'He came to His own': not because the Lord needed them since it is inconceivable that the Divine entity would be in need; but He came to extend goodwill to His own people.

St. John emphasizes his admonition to those Jews more poignantly as he says: '...and His own rejected Him.' For although the Lord came for their well-being yet they rejected Him. And not only that, but they also threw Him out of the vineyard and killed Him

' But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name,..'[12].

He had come to His own yet His own rejected Him; yet in the midst of them a few faithful ones were found who received Him. These were driven out of the synagogue and were forbidden to worship in the temple. They were treated as though they were heathen and not as disciples of Moses nor as the children of Abraham, etc...The Jews did not realize that these few were the sacred yeast for the firstborn in the heavenly Church: this was the source of joy for Moses and the rejoicing of Abraham and Jacob. These would serve in the new Temple, and join the congregation of the saints and heavenly hosts.

In the early days, the Lord had called His people 'Israel...My Son. My firstborn' (Ex 4:22). And now this yeast has occupied that ultimate rank through God's adoption: they have become 'partakers of the divine nature,'(2 Peter 1:4).

* The Lord has adopted the slaves and made them brothers. He ransomed the exiled and granted them to be partners in His inheritance<sup>2</sup>.

* If they are children of God; if they have been redeemed by the grace of the Savior; if they have been bought by His precious Blood; if they have been born from water and the Holy Spirit; and if they have been appointed to inherit the kingdom of heaven; then they are truly the children of God<sup>3</sup>.

* "The heirs of God are heirs with the Lord Jesus Christ." He has no fear of having others sharing in the inheritance; since His inheritance will not diminish if many others come into it. Indeed, these will become part of His inheritance; and He in turn will become their inheritance. Listen to the means by which they have become an inheritance for Him: 'The Lord has said to Me, "You are My Son, today I have begotten You. Ask of Me, and I will give the nations for Your inheritance", ' (Ps 2:7,8). And listen to the means by which He becomes an inheritance for them: the Psalmist says: " You O Lord are the portion of my cup and my inheritance (Ps 16:5). Let us attain Him, and may He possess us as our Lord. May we attain Him as our Salvation and Light. What does He grant to those who receive Him? 'He gave them the right to be His children, even to those who believe in His name,' so that they may cling to the Wood and cross the sea<sup>4</sup>.

born of God according to His Word. For, initially, the Word first chose to be born of man in order that you could be born of God according to the plan of redemption. Hence, tell yourself: “It is not without reason that God wanted to be born of man, for He considered me so important and desired to make me immortal: for my sake, He was born as a man who is vulnerable to death<sup>1</sup>.”

St. Augustine

* Just as the Lord Jesus Christ is a true Son, so we also become children of God when we receive the Holy Spirit. The Holy Bible says: ‘For you did not receive the spirit of bondage again to fear, but you received the spirit of adoption,’ (Romans 8:15). Since we have become children through the power of the Holy Spirit, it is clear that in our Lord Jesus Christ we are called the children of God: ‘...as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God,’ (Jn 1:12).

St. Athanasius the Apostolic

* However, adoption rests upon us, that is it is dependent on ‘our willingness.’ St. John elaborates by saying that many ‘received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believed in His name.’ That indicates that they were not the children of God before they believed. However, by choosing to believe they are qualified to become His children<sup>2</sup>.

* He is not similar to you who have become enlightened and thereby have become children of God...thus you are children by adoption according to that which is written: ‘...as many as received Him, He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name: who were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.’ Truly, we have been born by the water and the Spirit, but Jesus Christ was not born from the Father in this way. At the time of His baptism, God spoke to Him, saying: “This is My Son,” (Matt 3:17). He did not say, “He has become My Son” but rather: ‘This is My Son.’ Thus God proclaimed that He is the ‘Son’ even before baptism<sup>3</sup>.

* If you ask: what have those who accepted Him received? I will answer: It is in the words of the Evangelist: ‘...as many as received Him, He gave the right to become children of God.’ The Evangelist explains this good gift that God grants to those who receive the Lord and underlined them in a few words: ‘He gave the right to become children of God’: whether they were slaves or free men, heathen or wise or foolish, whether women or children, elderly, rich or poor, leaders or common people: all become qualified to receive the same blessing. Who could be similarly just and benevolent to mankind?

In spite of that, not everyone is granted that grace: it is only granted to those who want to receive it, and to those who persevere to attain it. Those have the power because they have been offered to become children; and had they rejected the offer, grace would not pursue them or work in them. Granting grace is a gift from God, but receiving faith is up to man.

* Why did the Evangelist not say: ‘He made them children of God rather than ‘to them He gave the right to become the children of God’’? To clarify that we need great zeal to maintain the image of adoption which has been impressed upon us at the time we were baptized. This occurs by keeping ourselves free of impurity and depravity. Besides, no one can seize that power from us unless we first deprive ourselves from it. He who has delivered this grace into our hands is greater and higher than all. At the same time, he wants to show that grace does not descend on man without his will, but rather fills those who have desire and toil for its sake. Consequently, it becomes in their power to become God's children. Had they not chosen that for themselves, grace would neither have descended upon them, nor would it have acted within them<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘...who were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God’ [13].

For a Gentile to be accepted as one of them, the Jews used to demand that he fulfill three requirements: circumcision, baptism, and presenting a sacrificial offering. By doing so, he would be considered as born again and a member of God's people and worthy to enjoy the divine covenant. However, the Jews of Egypt neglected circumcision and could not be saved from bondage under Pharaoh. They could not enjoy being born again unless they would be circumcised and would offer the blood of the Passover. It appears to be necessary that their blood would mingle with the blood of the lamb in order to be sanctified, saved, and born again. However, when the only begotten Son of God came, He offered mankind to be sons of God, Who adopts them, by a spiritual birth blessed by the Water and the Spirit.

St. John, the Evangelist, reveals the action of the Word in the life of man. He presents Him as the Creator by Whom all things were made. Then, he clarifies that He is the ‘Life’ Who grants life. This is the true Life that shines on man to make him enjoy the light whose source is the true Light. Through this insight God reveals Himself to man who consequently has faith in Him. This faith is accompanied by a new spiritual birth through the Water and the Spirit. It is a new birth granted by the Spirit of God, and through it we become the first born of the new creation and the living yeast for the Gentiles: ‘Of His own will He brought us forth by the word of truth, that we might be a kind of first fruits of His creatures,’(James 1; 18).

It is a birth that is unique in its kind as it is not the fruit of natural elements. It neither proceeds from blood or from physical instincts. It is neither the result of a physical will nor achieved through a human plan. Indeed, it is a heavenly birth coming from God on high. It is a birth from God in which the natural element of blood has no share. It is free from all natural instincts, human ability or human planning.

In the Greek version, the word ‘blood’ occurs in the plural and not in the singular to indicate reference to the bloods of the father and mother. It does not refer to the Jewish ‘blood’; for they boasted that they descended from the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, of the blood of the chosen people.

This new birth is an issue of great value to St. John: ‘Behold what manner of love the Father has bestowed on us, that we should be called the children of God!’ (1 Jn 3:1). ‘ If you know that He is righteous, you know that everyone who practices righteousness is born of Him,’ (1 Jn 2: 29). ‘ We know that whoever is born of God does not sin; but he who has been born of God keeps himself, and the wicked one does not touch him,’ (1 Jn 5: 18).

* They have been born of Adam as a necessary process (and they had no choice in that)...but they are born of the Lord Jesus Christ through their own will and through grace.

Mankind is not obligated to be born from the Lord Jesus Christ.

They have not been born of Adam as a result of their own wish. In any case, all those who have been born of Adam are sinners bound by sin; whereas those born of the Lord Jesus Christ have become righteous through Him and not through their own power...

Death was the penalty of sin, and in the Lord was the gift of mercy and not a penalty of sin...

There was no blemish in Him that deserved the decree of His death, yet in spite of that He died. In your case, you have faults, so do you reject death? ...

You have died through Adam; therefore arise through the Lord Jesus Christ: both are tasks to which you have to submit.

You believe in the Lord now, therefore do not rebound to what is necessary through Adam.

The bonds of sin will not pursue you forever because the temporary death of your Lord has slaughtered your eternal death.

This applies to grace and to the truth, my brothers; for the Lord has promised both and has revealed them<sup>1</sup>.

* As mankind is granted the power to become children of God they are born of Him. Note that they are born of Him and are ‘... born, not of blood,’ as in the case of their first birth. The first is a miserable birth arising from misery. As for those born of God, what were they before that? What were they born of the first time? Of blood and from the union of the blood of a male and female: from physical union between a male and female. That is what they were born of.

What are they born of now? Of God.

The first birth proceeds from a male and a female, and the second proceeds from God and the Church<sup>2</sup>.

* They had been born, but they became born of God. The water of baptism is the uterus of their mother<sup>3</sup>.

* Do not imagine that becoming children of God is such a tremendous issue. He Who is the Son of God became the Son of man on your behalf. If He has become of a lesser stature, He Who was much more; can He not transform that which is lower - that is ourselves - so that we may become of greater stature?

He descended to us, can we not ascend to Him?

For us He accepted our death, will He not give us His life?

For your sakes, He carried your shortcomings; will He not grant you good blessings? <sup>4</sup>

* He works in this way to allow us to contemplate on the condition of our first birth and its humiliation as it arises from the will of the flesh and blood. We then become aware of the high rank of our second birth through baptism and the honor associated with it since its source is the grace of God. Consequently, we will be greatly cautious to be worthy of the gift granted to us by Him Who gave us this birth. Moreover, we will show great jealousy in the future, as we will be terrified to stain our beautiful garment. This could happen due to negligence or sin and then we would be driven out of the inner circle of the wedding - just like the unwise virgins, or like the one who was not dressed wedding clothes (Matt 22:12).

2- THE WORD BECAME FLESH

The mystery of all ages is that the divine eternal Word became incarnate. The divine united with the flesh and became one of us. Anyone who saw or touched Him saw the glory of the only begotten Son of His Father. This is according to the witness of St. John the Baptist [15] who enjoyed grace and truth [17].

‘And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth,’[14].

What a great way of presenting the Person of the Word as being in the Father and residing with Him even before all time. He is one in essence with the Father and the Creator of all things in heaven and on earth. He is the Giver of life, and the true Light that shines upon those sitting in the darkness. He lifts them up so that they may receive the blessing of by God the Father’s adoption. Now, and for the last time, the Evangelist will mention the name of the Word since He has become incarnate and has entered the world of mankind. The incarnation has not happened through a revelation, a dream, or the appearance of a strange guest. Rather, the Word came as a real and perfect person living among His younger brothers. He became incarnate to hide the magnificence of His divinity, which no human eye could gaze at. Yet, through that mystery, He opens the door of knowledge and perception. These allow the believer to enjoy God’s adoption and to get acquainted with His Divine mysteries. He does not wish to leave us hindered by the veil of the body and ignore His reality. That is why He says: “...blessed is he who is not offended because of Me,”(Matt 11:6).

St. John Chrysostom likens fallen mankind to an adulterous woman. Then the heavenly bridegroom comes disguised in the flesh so that she is not scared and runs away from Him. Rather, she meets Him and enjoys reconciliation with the Father. She accepts union with her heavenly bridegroom as she gets acquainted with His mysteries, and soars with Him into His heavens.

The Word became a person in order to encompass mankind within Him and consequently enable man to enjoy the divine proclamation and divine knowledge. This occurs as a result of union, closeness, and experience.

For our sakes, He dismantled Himself from any visible divine glory. According to St. Paul: ‘...who, being in the form of God, did not consider it robbery to be equal with God, but made Himself of no reputation, taking the form of a servant, and coming in the likeness of men,’ (Phil. 2: 7,8). This dismantling did not result in a change in His divine features since the divinity that united with his humanity did not mingle together. But through the incarnation, the Word became a full and real person while He is the Divine almighty God. In this manner, He opened before us the door to the Holy of Holies: ‘ Therefore, brethren, having boldness to enter the Holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way which He consecrated to us through the veil, that is, His flesh...,’ (Heb 10:19-20).

With the above words, St. John the Evangelist carries us upwards into the sphere of divinity where we feel completely incapable of comprehending the mysteries of the divine Word. However, he does not leave us in this state as he does not wish us to despair. Hence, he recapitulates to proclaim that the Word became flesh. He became very close and accessible to us. We can see, touch, and hear Him. Moreover, we can enjoy fellowship and share in His life.

As we contemplate on the Son of Man, we see Him, who is the Word of God, carrying the Cross. In this way, He condemned sin through the flesh as He offers it as a sacrificial offering for sin. It is done for the redemption of the world and for His glory. We see Him on the Cross at the hour of His invisible glory. Thus He carries us, through the Cross, to the embrace of His Father: we become the sanctified and glorified children of God. We have become partakers of the divine nature.

This amazing, crucified Body that has risen from the dead is the mystery explaining our steadfast adherence to Him Who is our glory, and our eternal life. He offers It to us constantly through the mystery of the Eucharist: for the remission of sins and eternal life to those who partake of It.

* Let us listen to the words of the holy Gospels and to St. John the Evangelist: ‘In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.’ St. John goes on to say: ‘...And the Word became flesh....’ It is not right to worship an ordinary human being or to say that the Lord Jesus Christ is God only and thereby denying His incarnation. If He is God, then this is the truth; but if we say that He did not become incarnated, then redemption would be a foreign concept to us.

Therefore let us worship Him as the God of those who believe in His incarnation. There is no gain from saying that He is a human being and not God; or what kind of redemption do we obtain if we reject admitting His humanity as well as His divinity?

Let us confess His presence for He is King and Physician. The Lord Jesus Christ, the King, became our physician as He put on the garment of our flesh and healed what had become sick.

The perfect Teacher of babes became a babe among them (Romans 2:20), so that He might give wisdom to the ignorant. The Bread of life descended to the earth so that He might feed the hungry!<sup>1</sup>

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* Having proclaimed that those who receive Him are born of God and become His children, the Evangelist explains the condition and the reason for this astonishing honor: ‘...the Word became flesh,’ [14], for the Lord took the image of a slave.

He who is the Son of God became the Son of Man so that the children of men might become children of God.

If the Almighty meets with that which is of lower rank, His honor is not degraded. Indeed, He lifts up the degraded from their utter humiliation. That is how things worked out with the Lord.

His nature was in no way degraded by His humiliation. Indeed, he lifted us up into an amazing glory- we who were constantly residing in shame and in darkness.

This is what happens when a king speaks to a poor person with concern and tenderness. This does not tarnish the king with any shame. Moreover, everyone would look upon him with concern and respect<sup>2</sup>.

When you hear that ‘...the word became flesh,’ do not be disturbed and do not fall. The Lord Jesus Christ was not transformed from His essence into a body. Such thoughts are blasphemous and atheist. He remained the same in essence and additionally took on the image of a slave.

If you were to ask: Then why has the Evangelist used the word ‘...became...’ My answer would be that it served to stop the mouths of the propagators of inventions. Since there are people who say that God’s plans were altogether figments of the imagination and an obsession, the Evangelist added these words ‘...and the Word became flesh.’ He does so in order to stop, from the early stage of writing, their blasphemous words; and to indicate that He took on a real body...

‘He dwelt’, or ‘resided’ for ‘skeenoso’ in Greek, means constructing a temporary accommodation or tent for a shelter. This is relevant when speaking of the human aspect of the Lord. The Tabernacle or the Ark was symbol for that in the Old Testament. It is a lodge that could suffer death, yet it does not split away from His divinity. This term is also used in Greek to refer to a building that is used for events and celebrations. Hence, the incarnation of the Lord has transformed our lives into an everlasting celebration.

Since man’s heart has become attached to the world, he has imagined that his residence in it is eternal. As a result, he is no longer able to soar, with his heart or thoughts or feelings, beyond the limitations of the earth and of time. However, God proclaimed His yearning to live among men since early times. He wanted them to have a taste of the Creator of heaven and earth and consequently desire to fly to Him and live with Him. In the days of Moses, ‘...the cloud covered the tabernacle of meeting and the glory of God filled the tabernacle. And Moses was not able to enter the tabernacle of meeting...’ (Ex 40 34-35). In the age of the prophets, the Lord proclaims: “ Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion! For behold, I am coming and I will dwell in your midst,” says the Lord (Zech 2:10). In the land of captivity, where the people lost the promised land as a home, the Lord promised not only to bring them back to live in Canaan but also to make within them a holy dwelling place for Him. This would be better than an earthly place: “My tabernacle also shall be with them; indeed I will be their God, and they shall be My people,” (Ezekiel 37:27).

صفحتان لم تترجما ص 124-125

The mother of any person, whoever he may be, becomes pregnant through a physical union. Everyone is born from two human parents: from a father and a mother. As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He was born of the Holy Spirit and St. Mary, the holy virgin.

He came to us but He was not separated from His own Self (His divinity). Yes, His own Self being God will not be split but He took what belongs to our nature.

He came to something that He was not like, and He did not lose what He was like.

He became the Son of Man, and He did not cease to be the Son of God...

He did not come to us as someone who leaves the Father. He also departed from us but He has not left us. And He will come back to us again but He will not leave the Father<sup>1</sup>.

* So that we may get to see Him, if we still cannot see God the Word, let us listen ‘ ...the Word became flesh...’ and remember that we are flesh. Therefore, let us listen to the incarnated Word who came to serve this end. Besides, it is for this reason that He bore our weaknesses: so that we might accept the powerful words of God, carrying our weakness.

It has truly been called the ‘milk’, for He gives milk to the babes in order to offer the meal of wisdom (the flesh) to those who are mature.

May you feed patiently now in order to refresh the desire of your heart that is filled with eagerness...

Since babes lack sufficient power that would enable them to eat the meat placed upon the table, what does the mother do? She transforms the meat ‘ incarnate’ to the matter of her body and transforms it into milk. She transforms it into an element that we are able to take.

In the same way, the Word became incarnated so that we, being truly like babes regarding food, can be refreshed by the milk.

However, there is a difference: the mother transforms the food by turning the meat into milk, and the food into milk. As for the Word that lived by Himself, He became flesh without undergoing any change so that He might appear as one texture made up of both <sup>2</sup>.

* Let us first comprehend the degree to which God has humbled Himself. Hence, let us degrade ourselves and become humble for our own benefit. Let us raise our eyes to the Lord Jesus Christ Who also humbly debased Himself for our sakes and not for His own benefit...

Confess your weakness, and kneel before the Physician patiently.

When you comprehend the degree to which He debased Himself you rise with Him, not raising Himself being the Word, but merely by us realizing Him more and more.

He doesn't increase, but you advance. Consequently, He seems to be elevated with you...

Behold a tree: first, its roots shoot downwards so that it might grow upwards. It establishes its roots underground so that it might stretch its trunk to the sky. Can you strive to grow except by practicing humility? Then, may the Lord Jesus Christ 'dwelt in your hearts; that you, being rooted and grounded in love, may be filled with all the fullness of God...' (Eph. 3: 17-19)<sup>1</sup>.

* Believe that in this flesh the Son of God partook fully of our nature. In other words, He possessed the same reasoning self and the mortal body like ours, except that He was without sin. He partook of our weaknesses but not of our wickedness. Thus, by sharing our weaknesses, He has power to release the bonds of our wickedness and lead us into His righteousness. He had to drink of the same cup of death as ours and so He filled it with the Life that He possessed<sup>2</sup>.

* He existed before His body existed. He created and chose His mother out of whom He would be made. He created the one who would bring Him into the world (according to the flesh). So why are you astonished? For I am speaking to you about God: '...and the Word was God....'

I am speaking about the Word, that is our Lord; and he bears some resemblance to the word spoken by mankind. However, the similarity is far from being an equivalent one and there is no point of comparison. At the same time, there is something that may imply a certain degree of similarity. Indeed, the words that I pronounce were in my heart. They reached you yet they did not leave me. It begins to be with you while it was not in you. And it continues to be with me while it went out to you.

Hence, just as my word came to you while it did not get separated from my heart, so the Word has touched our senses while it has not become separated from the Father.

The word was with me and it took the form of a voice. The Word of God was with the Father and It took the form of a Body. But can I do with my voice what (GOD) can do with His Body? I am not master over my voice when it is emitted, whereas He is Master not only over His Body- to be born, live and act, - but also, when he died - to raise and glorify It in the Father. The Body is the vessel that carries Him and came to us in It <sup>3</sup>.

St. Augustine

* The Word became flesh to allow us to cross over from the flesh into the living Word. The Word did not cease to remain in Its original state (The Word), just as human nature did not change when He put it on through birth<sup>4</sup>.

‘John bore witness of Him and cried out saying, “This is He of whom I said, ‘He who comes after me is preferred before me, for He was before me,” [15].

As St. John begins to reveal the work of the incarnated Word of God, he presents the testimony of St. John the Baptist. Although He came after him, yet He existed before him. Accordingly, Jesus says “...before Abraham was, I AM,”(Jn 8: 58). This is because this testimony is fundamental and of great importance. Hence the Evangelist says: ‘John bore witness of Him and cried....’ The word ‘cried’ expresses the action of shouting aloud to attract attention to his proclamation for, it has to do with the life of mankind, its redemption and glorification.

Shouting and giving witness occurred earlier when his mother, Elizabeth, recognized the incarnated Word within the womb of the virgin St. Mary. St. John the Baptist was still in his mother’s womb, when the Virgin Mary went to visit Elizabeth, and St. Luke reports the event in these words: ‘...and Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit. Then she spoke with a loud voice and said: “Blessed are you among women and blessed is the fruit of your womb!” (Lk 1:41-42).

The Lord Jesus Christ has been called ‘the Son of the Highest’ (Lk 1:32); while John was called ‘ the prophet of the Highest’ (Lk 1: 76). John was a servant of the ‘new covenant’, while Jesus is the Mediator of the ‘new covenant.’ John was a great person, and he had a great name and mission: it’s him who prepared the way for the Lord Jesus Christ. Like all the other prophets, he sits at the feet of God to learn and to receive revelations. As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He exists in the embrace of the Father (Eph 3:11).

St. John the Baptist is the voice crying in the wilderness to prepare the way for the Lord Jesus Christ (Is 40:30).

‘...for He was before me,’ since He has created me and brought me to life. He is the First, and this is a title that belongs to God as He is the ‘beginning and the end’ (1 Cor 1:17;). He is the Everlasting One (Mi 5: 2).

* St. John the Evangelist says the following about St. John the Baptist: ‘John bore witness of Him and cried out saying....’ In other words, John proclaimed boldly and loudly, as he was free of all despair.

St. John the Baptist did not proclaim that Jesus Christ is the only Son of God or the true Son. Rather, he proclaimed that: “This was He of whom I said, ‘He who comes after me is preferred before me, for He was before me.” This is analogous to mother birds who do not teach their young immediately or in one day the whole manner of flying. They would take their chicks out sometimes and at others just let them rest. Then on the following day, they would take them to fly for a much longer period than that of the previous day. In this manner the little ones are eventually led to fly to the desired heights. Similarly, John the Baptist led the Jews to fly and soar above the earth gradually, rather than leading them immediately to sublime concepts.

St. John Chrysostom

‘And of His fullness we have all received, and grace for grace.’[16]

St. Cyril the Great, St. John Chrysostom, and St. Augustine all agree that these words are not intended to complement the testimony of St. John the Baptist. Rather, they are the words of St. John the Evangelist who wishes to proclaim that He who is filled with grace and truth [14] is the secret of fulfillment of the whole Church. He is the Source of grace that never dries up, the overflowing love that bursts forth constantly. Due to His eternal and perfect fullness, He grace overflows upon His Church so that each of her members may enjoy having and partaking of the Divine nature.

He is the Source of all blessings, and He fills our treasuries (Prov 8:12). We receive from Him all grace just as the riverbeds receive water from the sources. Divine blessings are the grace or grotius, that means free gifts (Rom.12: 6). That is because the Father is pleased with the Son, and consequently is pleased with us in Him (Eph 1:6).

‘...and grace for grace.’ Every gift is a talent that God gives us. We need to trade with it and gain another gift or talent (1Peter14: 10).

‘...and grace for grace.’ This indicates that the gift of God continues to flow on us constantly for God does not give the Spirit by measure’ (Jn 3:34). It ‘pleased the Father that in Him all fullness should dwell’ (Col 1:19) since the Lord Jesus Christ, is the incarnated Word. He is, therefore the sole One with unlimited fullness; and has power to fill each one according to his own measure. That is what Paul, the apostle, conveys in his words: “ For in Him dwells all fullness of the Godhead bodily; and you are complete in Him, who is the head of all principality and power,”(Col 2:9-10). Also read: “ ...the fullness of Him who fills all” (Eph 1:23); and “...that you may be filled with all the fullness of God,” (Eph 3: 19); and our terminal goal in Jesus Christ is .”..till we all come to the unity of the faith and the knowledge of the Son of God, to the perfect man, to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ...”(Eph 4:13).

* Since He is the true light that shines within each person, then He also enlightened and informed St. John who affirmed and confessed that truly ‘...of His fullness we have all received’ [16].<sup>1</sup>

* After stating that ‘of His fullness we have all received,’ St. John adds: “ ...and grace for grace” (Jn 1: 16). The Jews were saved through grace and according to the Lord’s words: “ I have chosen you not because you are many in number but because of your fathers.” If God chose them but not because of their good works, then it is clear that they have received this dignity through grace. We too are redeemed through grace. Yet we are redeemed in a different manner and for a different purpose: we are redeemed in a manner that is far greater and more sublime. Consequently, the grace we have received is not the same as theirs. That is because He has granted us not only redemption from sin (for we are their partners and all have sinned), but we have been granted righteousness, sanctification, adoption, and the gift of the Holy Spirit. We have received these in a more generous and glorifying manner.<sup>2</sup>

* I believe that He has existed before me, and that He enjoys greater honor with the Father than I do. That is because the prophets who came before me and I have received a great and prophetic divine grace proceeding from His Fullness. Truly, the gift we have received from Him is that of free will.<sup>3</sup>

Origen

* What is the implication of the words: “And of His fullness we have all received”?... He says that He does not own this grace because He is a partner; but He owns it since He is Himself the Source and the origin of all goodness. He is Life itself, Truth itself, bearing within Himself, the richness of His righteousness, rather He overflows on others. At the same time this fullness continues and does not diminish as it reaches out to others. Indeed, He constantly keeps overflowing and grants others fellowship of His blessings. He remains as perfect as ever. What I receive is granted through fellowship (that is I receive from someone else. I receive a small share of the total. To me from others, It is as a pitiable drop of water when compared to an infinite downpour or sea. This example cannot really convey fully what we intend to explain...let us imagine a source of fire, and from that source we kindle hundreds of lanterns...doesn't the fire remain the same in its power and fullness, even though it has offered what it possesses to all those lanterns? It becomes clear to everyone that this is true.<sup>4</sup>

* He who grants us grace has also granted us the Law. However, He had delivered the Law through His servants, whereas He Himself descended to deliver grace.

What are the means used to bring mankind under the Law? Their disobedience led them to be subject to the Law; for those who obey do not become subject to it since they agree with it. As for those subjugated by the Law, they remain sentenced by it and do not get relieved.

If the Law subjugates all mankind, they become condemned by it. It hangs over their heads, and reveals their sins without showing any mercy.

The Law issues commands, and the Giver of the Law understands concerning its implications. However, mankind fails when they attempt to depend on their own power to conform to the Law and its commandments. This is due to their bold stubbornness and rashness. They have become guilty as they are not in agreement with it and therefore have become sentenced by it. As a result, they plead and pray to the Giver of the Law for help. On account of guilt feelings experienced under the law, the proud become sick. Consequently, their sickness becomes a confession before the humble ones.

Now, the sick confess their illness, so that the physician may come and heal them.

Who is the physician? He is the Lord Jesus Christ.<sup>1</sup>

* What does “...grace for grace,” mean? This involves faith; for God once more becomes our defender and seeks our benefit. As we are unworthy to be forgiven we received such a great gift and this is what is called grace. What is grace? That which is granted freely...for you receive a gift from God: a gift of life through faith; with the promise of eternity and life everlasting as a reward. That is grace!<sup>2</sup>

St. Augustine

‘For the Law was given through Moses, but grace and truth came through Jesus Christ’[17].

The Law in itself is a great blessing and it comes from God. It is intended to prepare the way for the gift of the Gospel. However, there is no point of comparison between the shadow and the Truth. The Truth offers a bounty of blessings: He enriches the poor with heavenly treasures, frees the slave from the power of Satan, carries believers on His Divine Hands in the midst of their sufferings, grants continuous knowledge concerning the divine mysteries, grants power to confront weaknesses, and pours His glory within us in times of humiliation. He has delivered the Law to us, with all its commandments, duties, and prophecies to function as shadows or semi-divine gifts. In contrast, the Lord Jesus Christ has brought us into the depth of the commandments in order to acquaint us with the Creator of heavens Himself hidden behind it. He has carried us so that, as we worship Him, we may experience, through the Holy Spirit, heavens itself. That is where He came from, and that is how we can live His heavenly life.

Origen, wonders: ‘If the Lord Jesus Christ proclaimed that He is the Truth (Jn 14:6), then how has truth come through Him? This is his answer: All of God’s blessings in the Old Testament are symbols of the gift of the New Testament which is 'Truth.' That explains why the glory of the New Testament is greater than that of the Old Testament (2 Cor3: 10). Hence the discovery of grace has become easier, and its distribution has become more generous. It is in this way that we have obtained the grace of the New Testament as a substitute for the grace of the Old Testament. This is not to say that one opposes the other, but to indicate that the New Testament fulfills the Old and perfects and affirms it within our hearts. As we are changed into the image of God and move from glory to glory, and from one rank to a higher rank (1 Cor 3:18).

The grace we receive is more like a brand that shapes and conforms us into icons of the Lord Jesus Christ. As such, we continue to grow in a pronounced manner (Romans 8:29). Hence we become heavenly icons (1Cor 15:49).

As we enjoy the Lord Jesus Christ, we receive grace and truth. That is so because He is the Source of grace and the treasury of wisdom. Indeed, He who is truth and grace offers Himself to us so that we might enjoy Him

In the Old Testament, we received the Law in an atmosphere of terror (Heb 12:18). In contrast, we receive the New Testament in an atmosphere of grace: the promises declared in the Old Testament become fulfilled in the New Testament. They are coupled with mercy and truth and according to God's promises.

Having tasted and enjoyed the grace of God, we become more thirsty and wish to receive more. This is because every grace within us calls for more and attracts it to our inner depths. Hence our depths become the target to an endless flow of coordinated divine blessings.

* The Law was delivered through God's servants, and it sentenced mankind as sinners. Now pardon came from the Emperor, and redeemed sinners<sup>1</sup>.

St. Augustine

* In any case, truth comes to mankind through the Lord Jesus Christ. It came in this way to St. Paul and to the apostles. It is not strange to state that although the sole Truth exists, yet from Him flows, as it were, many other truths. For instance, the prophet and king, David, knew many truths; and he says: '----- (Ps 30: 24). For the Father of truth demands many truths of those who possess them and thereby are redeemed<sup>2</sup>.

Origen

* Note the great difference between 'was given' and 'came'... the first instance implies an object to be served such as when a person receives an object and delivers it to someone according to an order to do so. In the second instance '...grace and truth came...' are appropriately used to convey that it is the King Himself Who has power to forgive sins and to grant grace<sup>3</sup>.

At the time of the war with Amalek in Sinai, Moses' hands were supported by Aaron and Hur, who stood beside him (Exod 17:12). But when Christ came, He stretched His hands on the cross by Himself. Don't you notice how the Law was given, but Truth came.

* 'No one has seen God at any time. The only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, He has declared Him' [18].

We might be correct in saying that this statement is considered the conclusion of the introductory section to the Gospel of St. John. It introduces us to the Divine Word as the Divine Person Who is united and consubstantial with the Father in essence: He has become incarnated for our sakes. Therefore here the two truths are connected: He is the eternal Word and He became a true human being for the sake of mankind.

Since He is the true Word and the only begotten Son, then He alone sees the Father for He has existed in the same essence with Him. No other being on earth or in heaven can occupy such a status. There is no point of comparison between Him and Abraham- the father of fathers, or Moses who received the commandments, or any other prophet. There is also no point of comparison between Him and any of the heavenly ranks.

Moses, who is great among the prophets saw ‘the form of the Lord...’ (Numbers 12:8) yet he was unable to see His face (Ex 33:20).

He is the only true Son Who resides within the embrace of the Father and is never separate from Him. He is the reason for His Father’s joy, and He has power to proclaim Him and reveal His divine mysteries and sublime plans. Consequently, it is the Lord Jesus Christ Who has clearly declared to us the Father, Who was never seen by anyone. This is a gift and grace and this is divine truth that we have come to possess through the Lord Jesus Christ: this is ‘knowledge.’

God is a Spirit, and the body cannot perceive Him. That is why the Son became incarnate; in order to grant us the new spiritual birth that would enable us to perceive Him Who is invisible (Heb ...), and to live through Him. He alone will open the seals (Rev 5:9) and acquaint us with the mysteries of God.

What about the proclamations in the Old Testament? What do we comment about the voice of Isaiah the great who proclaims: ‘...I saw the Lord sitting on a throne, high and lifted up, and the train of His robe filled the temple’, [Isaiah 6:1]?

How do we respond to Daniel who says: “ I watched till thrones were put in place, and the Ancient of Days was seated; His garment was white as snow, and the hair of His head was like pure wool. His throne was a fiery flame. Its wheels a burning fire,” (Daniel 7:9)?

And how do we respond to Jacob when he had the vision and was dubbed as Israel, which means ‘the one who has seen his God ’ (Gen 32:28)?

Furthermore, how do we respond to Moses who spoke to God saying: “Please show me your glory” (Exodus 33:18)?

Many others have seen God, so what does St. John intend by saying: ‘No one has seen God at any time’? This is what he wishes to convey: These visions fitted His descent and appearance but did not fit His essence. Had these persons seen the actual nature of the Divine God they could not have really seen Him. For the nature of God cannot ever have a form, it cannot sit, stand, or walk: these are all attributes of bodies.

St. John states that all these were examples relevant to His descent and not a vision of the Essence Himself<sup>1</sup>.

Some may object and say: If the essence of the Divine cannot become available to the senses, then why do we speak of these matters?

Well, if I cannot drink the whole river, would that mean that I couldn’t drink of it in moderation and as much as it is convenient for me?!

If my eyes are incapable of absorbing all the fullness of the sun’s rays, will I not partake as much as I need of it?!

And upon entering a great garden, and I cannot eat all its fruit, do you desire me to leave feeling hungry?!

Therefore, allow me to worship and glorify God, our Creator, as we have been granted the divine command that says: .....

I now seek to glorify Him without describing Him. Nevertheless, I am aware of my incompetence in fulfilling that task appropriately. Yet, just preserving to achieve that is considered a good exercise and the Lord encourages me in my weakness through St. John's words that say: 'No one has seen God at any time'<sup>2</sup>.

* It is impossible for us to see God with our human eye since what is not physical cannot come within the sphere of the physical eye. The only Son has witnessed to this- the Son of God Himself says: 'No one has seen God at any time.' Let us attempt to understand what Ezekiel writes about his vision of God (Ez 28:1)? What does the Holy Bible say? He saw 'the form of the Lord', and not God Himself as He is but in the form of His glory. Now, if beholding the form of God's glory filled the prophets with trembling; then surely a person would die if he attempts to see God Himself. According to the words of God: "...no man shall see me and live," (Ex.33: 20). That is why in His tender mercy, He has spread the heavens as a veil so that we may not be destroyed. This is not my own interpretation, but it echoes the words of the prophet: "Oh, that You would rend the heavens! That You would come down! That the mountains might shake at Your presence," (Is 64:1).

Why are you astonished to see Daniel fall to the ground upon seeing 'the form of glory'? Note that he fell upon seeing the angel Gabriel although he is only the messenger and servant of God. Yet he trembled, fell upon his face, and was unable to answer the angel although he had appeared to him in the form of a human being...read Daniel 10:9, 16, 18. If the appearance of angels frightened the prophets, then can a person see God as He is and not die?!<sup>3</sup>

* St. John says: 'The only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father.' This indicates that the authority of the Son is equal to that of the Father. Because the eternal Father never had in His embrace any other but His own essence, then this saying reveals to us that the Son has always been consubstantial and one with Him since eternity.

St. John Chrysostom

* The one who perceives is also the one who reports, yet his report does not convey all the grandness of what he perceives. Moreover, he is unable to report all what he knows, but as much as the receivers who are under the sentence of death (mankind), can handle <sup>1</sup>.

St. Jerome

WITNESSES FOR THE INCARNATE WORD

After this wonderful exposition about the Incarnate Word who is the Giver of grace, in the rest of Chapter One St. John the Evangelist presents the witnesses for the person of the Lord Jesus Christ:

- On the first day [19-28] St. John the Baptist witnesses before the priests and Levites.
- On the second day [29-34] he witnesses upon seeing the Lord Jesus Christ.
- On the third day [35-39] St. John the Baptist witnesses before two of his disciples.
- On the fourth day [40- 42] St. Andrew witnesses before Simon, his brother.
- On the fifth day [43-51] St. Philip witnesses before Nathaniel.
- On the sixth day: the practical testimony of the water turned into wine (Chapter Two).

Note the following points related to the witnesses that occur during the first week, and which probably took place after the Lord's temptation and return from the wilderness:

First: It is similar to what happened at the beginning of the creation- the world was created in six days, and God rested on the seventh day. In the same way, man's nature is renewed and the week ends with the transformation of the water into wine as the Lord fills everyone with joy and renews his life.

Second: The Book of Genesis begins with the words: ' In the beginning God created...' to indicate the starting point before the existence of time. A time when the sun, moon, and planets did not exist. A time when there were no ages, seasons, or days (24 hours). Rather, it was periodic batches of time, named as days however long that was. St. John's Gospel begins with the same expression: ' In the beginning', yet he refers to the Eternal Initiator Who has no beginning. Hence the reference is to eternity where the Logos is at one with the Father.

3- THE TESTIMONY OF ST JOHN THE BAPTIST

St. John the Baptist has been called a messenger or the angel of God (Mal 3:1). The Bible does not mention that he has performed any miracle, or that he had any visions or divine revelations. Yet he witnessed to the truth, and he led many to repent through the way he adhered to a strict and serious life marked by purity, chastity, and a clear goal- oriented vision. He desired the world to be redeemed and the growth of God's kingdom on earth; therefore he witnessed to the Redeemer, the true King.

The Light did not need anyone to witness to Him, for He witnesses to Himself by His own light. However, if a person shuts his eyes and insists on corrupting his heart with cravings and rebellion he becomes blind. Hence, he becomes needy for someone to motivate him and witness to the true Light. The Baptist was like a night guard who proclaims that daylight has come; so that those sleeping may arise and open their eyes to perceive the light.

St. John the Baptist came to proclaim that the Messiah has come indeed- the One believers have awaited for so long. He has come as the Redeemer of the whole world, and as the Giver of glory to the new Israel who are His people.

The Lord Jesus Christ is the true Light, whereas John the Baptist was the lantern carrying the light of the Lord within it. He was neither a fake, deceptive light; nor the real bridegroom. Moreover, he did not overpower the bride but, being the bridegroom's friend, he was joyful at his wedding and union with his bride.

The Baptist got to know the Lord more deeply upon His baptism and the appearance of the Holy Trinity. Hence he proclaimed that the Lord Jesus Christ is the slain Lamb of God (Jn1: 29; Ex 12; Is 53:7; 1Peter 1:19).

Now this is the witness of John, when the Jews sent to him priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, " Who are you?" [19].

This is the third time in this chapter that the Evangelist presents the Baptist as a witness (1:19, 15, 34- 37). The Evangelist does not focus on the personality of the Baptist but rather on his testimony. Therefore the apostolic tradition documents the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ and His work from the moment He is baptized by St. John the Baptist to the day of His ascension (Acts 1:21-22; 10:37-38; 13:23-24).

'...the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem...'[19]...Note that the term 'Jews' is mostly used in this Gospel to refer to the Council of the Sanhedrin that represents the top authority of the religious leadership. This Council had formed a committee to investigate the reality of the person of the Lord Jesus Christ and to evaluate His actions and popularity. They believed that in doing so they fulfilled a central and intrinsic commandment in the law. Actually, they were not being honest or loyal in their actions; and the following saying can be correctly applied to them: 'But a prophet who presumes to speak a word in My name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or who speaks in the name of other gods, that prophet shall die' (Deut 18:20).

The priests and Levites mentioned in the above verses were probably members in the Council of the Sanhedrin. They enjoyed a high degree of learning and erudition, and possessed authority and power. Since St. John the Baptist Himself was a descendant of Aaron, and since his father was a priest, therefore it was appropriate to send to him priests and Levites who would investigate his case and (the latter were also descendents of Levi, but not particularly of the tribe of Aaron).

They sent representatives to the Baptist not with the intention of verifying his message and co-operating with him; for they considered themselves to be the great leaders of their people. They were motivated to get acquainted with him out of curiosity; or out of a sense of responsibility- as people in authority- to reveal to the people the true character of a certain person if that was beneficial to them. It could be that they acted in this manner hoping to find fault with him: then they could muffle that voice that originated from a source other than the Sanhedrin that possessed the upper hand in religious matters.

St. John the Baptist was asked by the Jewish religious authority: 'Who are you?' (19,22). He clearly indicated that he was neither the Messiah nor Elijah (2 Kings2: 11), nor the redeeming prophet (Ex 15:18). He proclaimed that he was merely a 'voice' (Is 40:3) predicting the coming of the Messiah [23]. The authorities then asked: "Why then do you baptize..." since you have no official rank in the religious order? He replied that the baptism he performed was not an end in itself; but it was to prepare for a greater spiritual act. It would be performed by Someone coming after him but Who existed before him; and Whose 'sandal straps he was not worthy to loose.'

If you are wondering: ' Why did the Jews ask the Baptist this question: 'Who are you?', My answer is that they could not explain why the Baptist submitted to the Lord, whereas many things indicated to them that the Baptist was great and outstanding: First, they were impressed by his origin and his apparent honor and dignity since he was the son of their high priest. Second, by his food and his strict way of life especially his rejection of all mundane possessions. He was awesome in his clothes, in his food, and the living conditions which he had chosen throughout the past years and which he had spent in the desert. In contrast, what they could see in the Lord was the opposite of all that: they considered the Lord's origin contemptible and they lost no chance to show it in their words as they attacked Him on many occasions and said: " Is not this the carpenter's son? Is not His mother called Mary? And His brothers James, Joses, Simon, and Judas?" (Matt 13:55). The statement also implied the place where it was thought He had been born, and which was according to what Nathaniel had said: " Can anything good come out of Nazareth? (Jn 1; 46). Moreover, the Lord was not dressed in camel's hair and had no leather belt around His waist; neither did He eat honey and locusts. Indeed, the Lord led a life that was similar to that of those present; and He had shared meals with evil men and tax gatherers in order to draw them to Him. The Jews could not understand the Lord's behavior and they consequently mocked Him on that account, but the Lord states: " The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, 'Look, a gluttonous man and a winebibber, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!' But wisdom is justified by her children" (Matt 11: 19).

St. John Chrysostom

*While the shepherds guarded their sheep, they found the 'Lamb of God' whose pure bright fleece was wet with dew from heaven while all the ground around it was dry (Judges

6:37). He is the same whose blood would be sprinkled on the doorposts and would prevent the destroyer of Egypt from striking (Ex 12: 21-23), and would pluck out the sins of the world<sup>1</sup>.

St. Jerome

He confessed, and did not deny, but confessed: “I am not the Christ” [20].

From a negative perspective, St. John the Baptist confirmed that he was not that great for he was not the expected Messiah. He would not dismantle the Lord of His status or honor. The Baptist was so awesome that some believed him to be the Messiah. ‘ Now as the people were in expectation, and all reasoned in their hearts about John, whether he was the Christ or not...’ (Lk3: 15), therefore the Baptist was quick to indicate the falseness of the rumors by announcing that he was not the Messiah.

* St. John the Baptist was so transcendent that people thought he was the Messiah; and in that respect he gave proof of humility as he denied that he was not that One<sup>2</sup>.

* Although they were expecting His coming, yet when He came they opposed Him and tripped as they would over a slightly elevated stone. Truly, He was still a small stone that had been truly cut without hands from the mountain. This resonates with the vision of Daniel, the prophet, who saw a stone cut out without hands (Daniel 2:34-35)...the blinded Jew did not see the lower stone, and their blindness was so great they could not see the mountain<sup>3</sup>.

St. Augustine

And they asked him, “What then?

Are you Elijah?”

He said: “I am not.”

“Are you the Prophet?”

And he answered: “No” [21].

He confessed that he was not Elijah the prophet even though he possessed his fiery spirit that would prepare the way of the Messiah (Lk 1:17). That explains why the Lord Jesus Christ said that Elijah had come and they had not recognized him (Matt 17:12). Hence he was not Elijah according to the Jews who expected him to descend in the fiery chariot in which he had ascended to heaven; and who would bring to them certain material and earthly privileges. Moreover, he was neither the prophet that Moses had foretold (Deut 18: 15, 18) nor as any of the prophets of the Old Testament who had been preoccupied with the concerns of Israel and the adjustment of their political status.

* Had he claimed “ I am Elijah” that would have implied that the Lord will actually come in the second time for judgment, and not for the first time to be judged...he had come as a symbol (Lk 1:17). Elijah would come later on and in the appropriate guise for him; as for now; John had come in his likeness<sup>4</sup>.

* They did not ask John: ‘ Are you a prophet?’ In other words, if he was one of the prophets; but they asked “ Are you the Prophet?” By using a definite article, they meant the prophet that Moses had foretold and proclaimed (Deut 18:15). And John denied that implication yet he did not deny that he is a prophet. Rather, he denied that he is that Prophet.

St. John Chrysostom

“Then they said to him: “Who are you, that we may give an answer to those who sent us?

What do you say about yourself?” [22].

They asked him for an answer not in order to believe in him or to get baptized, but rather to provide an answer to those who sent them. They expected him to give them a clear answer based on his serious character and lucidity. And they got it.

* Note how they pressured him to give an answer. They pursued him by their repeated questions; while he tactfully removed all their erroneous concepts regarding his identity in order to present them with the truth<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

He said: “ I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness: ‘Make straight the way of the Lord” [23].

He was clear in his answer and he pronounced the truth. He explained that he had come to fulfill what is written in the Holy Book, and that he possesses the authority of the forerunner of the Lord Jesus Christ, preparing the way for Him.

St. John the Baptist spoke about himself as the voice crying out in the wilderness (Is 40: 3-4); and when he saw the Lord, he cried out [15]. What was his intention in crying out? It does not refer to a loud external sound or screaming. But it refers to the manner of speaking spiritually to God so that He would hear even when the tongue is silent; and by which the word would pierce the hearts of men. The Lord Himself confirmed that the testimony of the Baptist is true as He says: “ There is another who bears witness of Me, and I know that the witness which he witnesses of Me is true. You have sent to John, and he has bore witness to the truth” (Jn 5; 32-33).

* Although the rational voice of those who pray does not need to be too loud, yet it should not be weak. It is not appropriate for them to scream or shout, for God does hear all prayer. He tells Moses: “Why do you cry to Me?” (Ex 14:14) although Moses had not cried out loudly (since this is not mentioned in Exodus). However, in prayer, he cried out loud in that voice that God alone does hear.

That is also why David says: ‘ I cried out to God with my voice- and He gave ear to me” (Ps 77:1)<sup>2</sup>.

Origen

Origen finds that the desert mentioned here refers to the souls who reject God and virtue. St. John the Baptist knew how to speak to their hearts as though by a spiritual outcry.

* This verse occurs in Proverbs 4: 27: ‘Do not turn to the right or the left’ since in doing so, a person loses uprightness. Hence he becomes unworthy of God’s protection as he has deviated from the straight way. God is just and He loves justice. He beholds the upright (Ps 11:7) and He enlightens those he beholds<sup>3</sup>.

Origen

* When St. John the Baptist needed to describe the might and sublimity of the Lord Jesus Christ, he turned immediately to Isaiah the prophet. In doing so, he validated his own words and gave them credibility.

St. John Chrysostom

* Just as the sound is a different element from words we speak, so a sound may be issued and have no meaning if it comes without words. Besides, it is possible for the mind to receive words without there being a sound. This happens when we have inner contemplations. From a certain perspective, John the Baptist's voice carries the same relationship with the Lord Jesus Christ who is the Word- He is distinct from the Savior Who is the Word<sup>1</sup>.

Origen

* The announcer called the people to stand behind the judge, and John called the Judge to come. Yes, he truly called on mankind to come and meet that humble One so that they might be spared facing Him as the glorified Judge<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

* The bride compliments the bridegroom: 'His mouth is most sweet/ Yes, he is altogether lovely' (Sg of Sol5: 16). In other words: the mouth is located below the chin, and out of it the sound comes through the air tract where the vocal cords are moved by the air. As the words of the groom are as sweet as honey, so his voice is the member of the word. And the sound that comes from his mouth may be called the shepherd or interpreter of the Word that Jesus Christ speaks. This will enable us to understand the implication of the bridegroom's mouth. When they asked John the Baptist: 'Who are you?' He answered: ' I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness' (Jn 1:23). St. Paul presents evidence that the Lord Jesus Christ speaks within him and through Him his voice has become sweet (2 Cor 13:10). All the prophets have presented themselves as members of the voice of the Holy Spirit, and their voices have become sweet as the holy sweetness rested on their vocal cords. Kings and common men eat honey for its many health benefits. Yet having enjoyed it has not diminished a desire for more. That is why the bride says of her groom: 'He is all desirable always.' This expresses her reason for seeking him. How greatly blessed are the feet of the groom which make him so desirable. His feet are perfect in every good sense while all his other members are just as perfect and desirable. He is desired not only for his eyes, hands, and locks; but also for his feet, legs and voice. Each of the members have a specific importance and this is not diminished when one member has increased importance over the others<sup>3</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nyssa

'Now those who were sent were from the Pharisees [24].

And they asked him, saying:

" Why then do you baptize if you are not the Christ, nor Elijah, nor the Prophet?" [25].

Baptism was popular among the Jews for they baptized all who became believers in their faith so that they could enjoy all the Jewish privileges. Hence the cunning implication of the question by which they sought to trap him. If he were baptizing the Jews coming to him for repentance, then he would be dealing with them as though they came from pagan nations. Hence baptizing them would be a denial of their being one of God's chosen people. It would moreover be an insult to the honor of the whole of the Jewish nation who would seem to be unable to achieve the sanctity of the people. On the other hand, they feared that his baptism was a Messianic one and related to the expected Messiah. Then, it is being done by someone who is not a member of the priesthood or the Pharisees. As such he has withdrawn authority and separated himself from them.

* Do you not agree that this is what they were aiming at (so that he would stop baptizing or that he would claim to be the Messiah)? The reason they did not state their aim from the beginning is that they feared their intentions would be revealed before everyone<sup>1</sup>.

John answered them, saying:

“I baptize with water,

But there stands One among you whom you do not know” [26].

Armed with divine wisdom and a testimony of truth, St. John the Baptist asked them: “Why are you concerned about the baptism I carry out? It almost has no value if compared with the baptism about to take place. My baptism is a preparation for something greater: the baptism of the expected Messiah. The time has come and He is here among you, yet you do not know Him and that is how you sin. I wish you stopped being concerned with me and my baptism, and be concerned rather with the One I witness to and His baptism!” Just as Elijah was armed with a fiery spirit- he did not fear Ahab the king and the wicked Isabel: but he filled them with terror- so the new John boldly and fearlessly makes his statements before the committee that the Sanhedrin sent to him. He did not speak haughtily but with humility and truthfully at the same time.

Up to this very moment, the Lord Jesus Christ is closer to man more than we can imagine, yet we are unable to comprehend that. According to St. Augustine, the Lord lived within him in his innermost depths and above him in the highest of heights; yet he stupidly went out to search for Him while He was within him.

* St. John the Baptist said about the Lord Jesus Christ: “ ...there stands One among you whom you do not know” for it was appropriate that the Lord mix with the people as one of them. In this way He acquaints us, on every occasion, with his humble nature that is unblemished with pride.

St. John Chrysostom

* May you be worthy of having the Lord Jesus Christ within your midst.

For wherever there is peace the Lord is found; for He is peace.

Wherever there is righteousness the Lord is found for He is righteousness.

May He be in your midst so you can see Him and so that you might not be told that there “ stands One among you whom you do not know” [26]. The Jews who could not see Him were those who did not believe in Him. We look up to Him in love and seek Him with faith.

May He therefore stand among you so that the heavens that reveal the glory of God open up to you (Ps 19:1). Then you will learn His will and do His works. He who sees the Lord Jesus Christ finds the heavens opened up as they were opened for St. Stephen (Acts 7:56)<sup>2</sup>.

St. Ambrose

“It is He, coming after me, is preferred before me,

Whose sandal strap I am not worthy to loose [27].

It is as though St. John the Baptist is stating that the Lord Jesus Christ has a more honorable authority and a more glorious status.

* Although John was not performing a spiritual baptism yet he was spiritually inspired to preach and proclaim the Lord Jesus Christ... since they were not baptized in the name of the Lord neither through their belief in the Holy Spirit they could not receive the mystery of baptism<sup>3</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* It is as though St. John the Baptist is saying: ‘ Do not begin to think that you will find everything in my baptism. If it were complete, another One would not have come after me to offer a different baptism. I offer a baptism that is just a shadow or image; but One will come and add reality to it. Even the fact that He comes after me merely underlines His honor. If the first baptism were sufficient, there would have been no place for another one. He who comes after me possesses more honor and glory.’ To indicate how impossible it is to make a comparison, he says: “...whose sandal straps I am not worthy to loose”<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* To carry the shoes of the Lord Jesus Christ is a great matter, yet what is more important is to bow down to all the physical matters related to Him here below (on earth). As we do so, we are enabled to contemplate on His image and resolve all the difficulties related to the mystery of the incarnation... these difficulties are like the strings of His shoes. For one thing, He is the mysterious link and the One Key to knowledge (Lk 11: 52). Even the greatest among those born of a woman (Lk 7: 28) could not consider himself worthy to solve or reveal these difficulties; since only the One Who has tied and closed can grant, to whom He wishes, the power to solve and open up His shoe lace and all hidden matters<sup>2</sup>.

* The statement about the pair of shoes has a hidden meaning and we should not pass over it. I believe that the Incarnation is one of the shoes as the Son took on flesh and bones; then the trip that the Lord took, in the spirit, to Hades and the prison is the other shoe. Referring to the descent to Hell, Psalm 16:10 says: ‘For You will not leave my soul in Sheol...’ (Ps 15:10)<sup>3</sup>.

Origen

* There is no bridegroom other than the Lord Jesus Christ and according to St. John: “He who has the bride is the bridegroom” (Jn 3:29). That is the reason why Moses, Joshua, and others removed their shoes. As for His shoes, no one can loosen their straps for according to St. John: “I am not worthy to loose (His) sandal strap” [27]<sup>4</sup>.

St. Ambrose

Pope Gregory (the Great) borrows from Origen his concept of the shoes. He indicates that it points to the body that is subject to death since the shoe is made of animal skin after the animal has been killed. It is as though the Word, by His incarnation has put on the flesh- subject to death- and so has hidden His divinity. It was impossible for the Baptist to loosen His straps: in other words, until this time it was impossible for him to be acquainted with His mysteries through the spirit of prophecy<sup>5</sup>.

How humble he became! On that account he became so uplifted! For “... he who humbles himself will be exalted,” (Lk 14:11)... ‘He said: Not me, but Him’; whereas they said: ‘We.’ The Baptist is not worthy to loose His sandal straps. How humble would he have been had he claimed his worthiness. However, he revealed his great humility through his words: “...He, who coming after me, is preferred before me, whose sandal strap I am not worthy to loose.” When he said that he is not worthy to do this, the Holy Spirit filled him and so he knew just as a servant knows his Master. Thus he became qualified to be a friend rather than a servant<sup>6</sup>.

‘Bethabara’ or the house of crossing, for he had crossed the Jordan. Some believe that this is the same point where Israel crossed the Jordan on their way to the Promised Land under the leadership of Joshua.

* The Evangelist mentions the place to clarify the power of the Baptist’s proclamation as he announced his amazing confession. He did not witness to the Lord inside a house, or on a corner, but he directed to the Jordan and notified of Him among all those who were present that he had baptized and he announced this extraordinary confession.

* More correct manuscripts mention ‘Bethabara’ rather than ‘Bethany’ since Bethany does not lie beyond the Jordan. Moreover, it does not lie in the desert but close to Jerusalem<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* The meaning of ‘ Bethabara’ could be interpreted as the ‘ House of Preparation’ and this is appropriate for a baptism that is intended to prepare a people for God. ‘ Bethany’ means the ‘ House of Obedience.’ Which one is more appropriate for the one who has been sent as an angel before the coming of the Lord to prepare the way for Him, and to baptize than to consider him to be the ‘ House of Preparation’<sup>2</sup>.

Origen

The next day John saw Jesus coming toward him,

And said: “Behold! The Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world!” [29].

In this testimony by St. John the Baptist we note the following:

* The Lord Jesus Christ is the Lamb of God. Mankind was in the habit of offering sacrifices to God to appease Him. In this instance, however, God the Father Himself is offering His only Son to be the sacrifice.

* He is an offering for redemption or a guilt offering that has power indeed to remove sins: He is not a shadow or a symbol like animal offerings.

* The effect of the offering extends to cover all mankind. This is what is foreign to Jewish thought and the following words by Yalcut Rubeni is an example: ‘The Messiah will carry the sins of the Israelites.’ That redemption extends to the whole world is a concept that is rejected by the Jews.

This is the second time that the Lord Jesus Christ meets with his forerunner John the Baptist. The first meeting is recorded by St. Luke the Evangelist (Lk 1:39- 41) when Jesus was still in St. Mary’s womb and John was in St. Elizabeth’s womb. Origen draws a kind of comparison between the two meetings:

First: In the first meeting, the babe Jesus, while still in His mother’s womb, spilled a kind of His glory on the babe John who also was still in Elizabeth’s womb. Moreover, this made such an impression on John’s features that many could not distinguish between the origin and the image. Hence some thought that the Baptist is the Messiah (Jn 1:20), while others thought that the Lord Jesus Christ was John risen from the dead (Lk 9:7:15; Matt 14:2; Mk 6:14).

Second: Since the Lord Jesus Christ is the Word and the Baptist is the voice, then that voice was loud within Elizabeth’s womb. Hence she was filled with the Holy Spirit upon hearing St. Mary’s salutation. That led her to cry out and proclaim her testimony (Lk 1:42). Origen says that [this is why the babe John leaped and his mother became like the mouthpiece and a prophetess for the Son (the Word) declaring out loud and saying: “ Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb” (Lk 1:42)]<sup>1</sup>.

Origen wonders why the Savior is called a Lamb although the sacrifices in the Old Testament could be of any three types of animals and two types of fowls: a bull, a sheep, a goat, two turtledoves, two pigeons (Lev 5:6-7, 18). He answers by saying that two young sheep were always offered daily: one for the morning offering, and the other for the evening. [What kind of daily offering can be spiritual and offered to a spiritual Being could be better than the Word that is in the beginning: the Word that is symbolically called ‘the Lamb’...He has been sent to enlighten the soul (for this is the morning offering). It is also offered at the end (in the evening) when the mind is preoccupied with heavenly matters?<sup>2</sup>]. That is how we are to start from the very beginning of our lives: by the offering of the Lamb so that we might spend our entire days meditating on His redemption. Consequently, when we near the end of our lives, we will enjoy the same offering, which will carry us into the new day, the uninterrupted eternity. Then we will see Him with St. John the beloved: “...a Lamb as though it had been slain” (Rev 5: 6).

* What we need to understand is the greatness of the Lamb of God Who was slain to remove the sins of the whole world and not of just a few [29]. He suffered for the whole world: ‘And if anyone sins, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. And He Himself is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only but also for the whole world (1 Jn 2:1-2). For He is the Savior of all men, especially of those who believe (1 Thess.4: 10). By His Blood He has wiped the judgment pronounced on us, and He has lifted it from our midst so that there is no trace of sins: they have been erased. They have been nailed to the Cross by Him Who ‘has disarmed principalities and powers, He made a public spectacle of them, triumphing over them in it’ (Col 2:14-15). This is how we learn to be joyful when we undergo suffering in this world. We learn that the reason for our joy is that the world has been overcome (Jn 16:33). Certainly, the world has submitted to her conqueror. Hence all nations are freed from those who rule over them and have turned to serve Him; for He saves the poor from the oppressor through the power of His Blood and rescues the needy who have no helper (Ps 72:4-5)<sup>3</sup>.

*The Lamb of God became a young and innocent lamb taken to be slaughtered in order to take away the sins of the world (Is 53:7; Jn 1:29). The One Who grants speech (The Word) to everyone became like a silent lamb standing before its shearers (Is 53:7) so that we might all be purified through His death: this is distributed to those who desire to receive the Truth as a medicine that dispels the influence of the devil and sin. For the death of the Lord Jesus Christ has erased the powers that oppose mankind, and has vanquished with such indescribable authority all sinful living from the existence of every believer<sup>4</sup>.

Origen

* Although St. John the Baptist baptized the Lord like many others who came to him, yet no one should think that He came to the Baptist for the same purpose, that is to confess sins and wash in the river to repent. To present the correct proclamation once more, God granted the Baptist the time to state: “Behold! The Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world!” All doubt would therefore be removed.

It is quite clear that He who is so pure that He has power to remove the sins of others would not come with the intention of confessing sins. Rather, He came to give the opportunity to this marvelous announcer to confirm what he had proclaimed earlier, but in a more specific manner to those who have already heard Him as well as to the many others who would hear him.

St. John the Baptist used the expression “ Behold” because many had been looking for Him for a long time and, for the reason he states: and that is to carry their sins. Therefore, when the Lord came toward him, the Baptist pointed out to Him and said: “Behold’ here is the One you have been awaiting for so long, and He is ‘the Lamb.’”

The Baptist called Him the Lamb in order to remind the Jews of Isaiah’s prophecy that says:

‘He was oppressed and He was afflicted,
Yet He opened not His mouth;
He was led as a lamb to the slaughter
And as a sheep before its shearers is silent,
So He opened not His mouth’ (Is 53:7)

He reminded them of the shadow under the Law of Moses in order to lead them to that which is better, and from the symbol to the reality. The sacrifice offered by Moses did not remove the sins at once; whereas this One removes the sins of the whole world. The world was in danger of being destroyed so He descended quickly and saved it from the anger of God<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Be proud of the Lord’s Cross rather than be ashamed of It. While the Cross ‘ to the Jews is a stumbling block and to the Greeks foolishness’, it is salvation to us (1 Cor 1:23) ‘...the Cross is foolishness to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God’ (1Cor 1:18, 23). As we have stated earlier, the One who died for us was not absolutely a man: He is the Son of God and God incarnate.

Moreover, if the lamb in the days of Moses was able to make the destroyer pass over, will not He who is the Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world be able to remove our sins?!

The blood of dumb sheep granted salvation, so how much more powerful is the Blood of God’s only Son to save us?!

If anyone denies the power of the One crucified, let him ask the devils!

If anyone is unable to believe words, let him believe what is tangible. Many have been crucified in this world yet the devils were not fearful. But when they just see the sign of the Cross of the Lord who was crucified for us they tremble. The other men were crucified for their sins, but the Lord was crucified for the sins of others... ‘Because He had done no violence, nor was any deceit in His mouth’ (Isaiah 53:9; 1 Pet 2:22). Had the Baptist been the only one to make this statement we would have thought that he was taking his Master’s side; but Isaiah has made the same declaration. Although he was not present in the flesh yet he prophesied through the Spirit of the Lord’s coming in the flesh.

Why are we quoting only the prophet here? We also have Pilate himself who judged the Lord and said: “...I have found no fault in this Man...”(Lk 23:14). When he delivered Him, he washed his hands and said: “ I am innocent of the blood of this Person...” (Matt 27:24).

There is also another testimony to the pure Lord Jesus Christ who is without sin, and this is the one given by the thief who was the first to enter Paradise. He rebuked the other criminal and said: “ ...we receive the due reward of our deeds, but this Man has done nothing wrong” (Lk 23:41), and we are all under His authority<sup>2</sup>.

* ‘The flowers appear on the earth
The time of singing has come
And the voice of the turtledove
Is heard in our land.’ (Song of Sol 2:12).

The bridegroom says: behold the fields are budding with the flowers of virtue. Do you see purity in the beauty and smell of the iris? Do you see the flowers of humility and purple that represent the good smell of the Lord Jesus Christ? Then why do you not make a crown of these flowers? For now is the season for that. Use a branch to make a crown and adorn yourself. Now is the season for pruning. It is the voice of the turtledove that resembles ‘the voice crying in the wilderness’ (Matt 3:3). St. John the Baptist is the turtledove. He is the one offering us the bright spring that has brought to mankind the marvelous flowers ready to be gathered. He offers them to all who wish to reap them. It is he who has revealed to us the flower coming from the line of Jesse (Isaiah 11:1): “The Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world” (Jn 1:29). The Baptist is the one who clarifies to us the need to repent for our sins, and to live a life of virtue. The text says: “...the voice of the turtledove is heard in our land”; and is heard calling: “. O land.” The call is for those who have been judged for their sins: the ones that the Bible calls ‘tax collectors and adulterers.’ These have heard the voice of the Baptist while the rest did not accept his teachings<sup>1</sup>.

* “I will go my way to the mountain of myrrh
And to the hill of frankincense”(Song of Sol 4:6)...<sup>2</sup>

Human nature has been saved from the brand of sin since the Lamb of God has taken away the sins of the world and has destroyed evil (Jn 1:29). Therefore the Song says: ‘You are all fair, my love/ And there is no spot in you.’ Besides, the mystery of this emotion is indicated by the significance of myrrh (Song of Sol 4:6). Then there is the mention of the mixture of fragrant herbs and incense that indicate the divinity of the Lord Jesus Christ. A person who has fellowship with the Lord and partakes of the myrrh, will receive the sweet smelling fragrance of the herbs and frankincense. For the person who suffers with Him will receive glory with Him (Rom 8:17). Being granted divine glory, he will attain perfect beauty. He will be far removed from all ugly faults and will be separated from sin through and by the Lord Jesus Christ. He has died and has risen from the dead for our sakes and He has glory and power now and forever, Amen.

St. Gregory of Nyssa

*‘Behold! The Lamb of God’: He is not a branch extending from Adam; and though He has put on Adam’s flesh, He did not take on his sins. Thus, He is the One who washes our sins away as He has not taken the sin inherent in the dough out of which we are made<sup>3</sup>.

St. Augustine

* Ripping (the sin) away is enacted in everyone in the world so that sin is removed from the whole world, and so that the Savior may offer a kingdom fit for the Father (1 Cor 15:24). A place where there is no sin and where all submit to the Father’s reign in total submission. Hence the following saying about His Kingdom is fulfilled: ‘...that God may be all in all’ (1Cor 15:28)<sup>4</sup>.

* The Lord Jesus Christ is the righteousness that the nation had been expecting<sup>2</sup>.

Origen

* Let us meditate on the benefits of the upright faith. It is useful for me to know that for my sake the Lord bore my weakness and submitted to my carnal emotions. I should say that it was for the sake of each one He became a sin and a curse (2 Cor 5:21; Gal 3:13). For my sake He came in humbleness and submission, and for my sake He is the Lamb, the Vine, and the Rock (Jn 1:36, 15:1; 1Cor 10:4). Besides, He is the Slave and Servant (Mk 10:45; Jn 1:38, 13:4-5; Ps 86; 16, 116:14). He did not know the Day of Judgment, and for my sake He did not know the day and the hour (Matt 24:26)<sup>3</sup>.

St. Ambrose

What does the Evangelist mean by his use of ‘ the world’?

Origen, who believes in the salvation of all mankind, considers that the whole world will be redeemed. He bases his conviction upon the words of St. Paul: “...because we trust in the living God, who is the Savior of all men, especially of those who believe” (1 Tim 4:10). However, the prevalent idea in the Church at his time was that the indication of the ‘world’ was to point to the world that had already accepted the Savior’s light and had become a consecrated Church through His Blood. Origen expresses his concept by saying: [Some consider that the ‘world’ indicates the Church only since it is the ornament of the world. She has also been described as the light of the world and according to the Holy Book: “You are the light of the world” (Matt 5:14). The Church is the ornament of the world in which the Lord Jesus Christ is the primary Light of the world and her adornment...yet let us correctly say that the Church is the world that has been enlightened through the Savior<sup>4</sup>].

In the praise offered by the angels in the Prime/ morning Prayers we sing: “ O lord God, Lamb of God, son of the Father, who takes away the sin of the world, have mercy on us.” Some believe that this is the oldest song of praise offered in the East and West. In the West, believers say before communion: “ O Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world have mercy on us.”

“This is He of whom I said:

‘After me comes a Man who is preferred before me
For He was before me’ ”[30].

St. John the Baptist repeats the testimony that although he came before the advent of the Incarnate Word yet the main reason for that was to prepare the way. However, from the perspective of existence, the Word preceded him and existed before all time and hence greater honor is due to Him.

* St. John the Baptist states ‘the basic purpose of my coming is to proclaim the General Benefactor of the whole world and to baptize with water. His coming, in contrast, is planned to purify all mankind and to grant the power of the Holy Spirit. The One who comes after me will appear more gloriously for ‘ He was before me’<sup>5</sup>.

‘I did not know Him
But that He should be revealed to Israel
Therefore I came baptizing with water’ [31].

The ultimate aim of St. John’s Gospel is to present the Lord Jesus Christ to the people of Israel. St. John the Baptist had not yet seen or known Him until then. Therefore he could describe Him only as the Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world.

* Both were related according to the flesh...and in order to dispel the idea that the Baptist honors the Lord because of their kinship he states “ I did not know Him...”<sup>1</sup>.

* O John, how could you qualify to be a witness worthy to be trusted and believed? How do you preach a person that you do not know yourself? However, note that John did not say ‘ I was not acquainted with Him’...he said ‘ I did not know Him.’ By saying these words he became more trustworthy. And when we ask the Baptist: ‘ Then how did you know Him?’ His response will be: I knew Him when the Holy Spirit descended upon Him...

Could The Baptist have proclaimed the Messiah and led the people easily to Him without the need to baptize? My answer to this is that this could never have happened. Had he cried out and proclaimed His coming without baptism, people would not have come out of the towns in the way these multitudes came. Moreover, they would not have realized by the comparison made between both how the stature of One of them was so sublime. The crowds had come to be baptized and to repent for their sins and not on account of what they had heard about him or about his words. But when they came, he taught them and witnessed to the Lord and explained the difference between his baptism and that which the Lord performed.

St. John Chrysostom

* Although the Baptist had recognized the Lord while He was still in his mother’s womb (Lk 1:41-42), he certainly did not know everything about Him. Probably, he did not know that this is ‘ He who baptizes by fire and the Holy Spirit’ until he saw the Spirit descending and remaining on Him [33]<sup>2</sup>.

Origen

* And John bore witness, saying,
“I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and He remained upon Him” [32].

* Do not imagine that this is an incarnation, but it is an appearance. The appearance came before him so that through it would believe the one who hasn’t seen the Spirit. This appearance was accompanied by the proclamation that the Holy Spirit is at one with the Father and the Son: They share the honor of authority, unite and act mysteriously, and constitute one gift that is granted in baptism<sup>3</sup>.

* The Baptist appropriately says: “ ...He remained on Him”, because the Spirit inspires the words or actions of the prophets at His will, whereas He is constantly residing in the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>4</sup>.

* Do not doubt due to the words: ‘ on Him’ as they are used to indicate ‘ the Son of Man’ and this was the nature of the Lord at the time of His baptism. According to His divinity, the Spirit does not rest ‘on’ Him but rather ‘in Him’ just as the Father is in the Son and the Son in the Father<sup>1</sup>.

St. Ambrose

Pope Athanasius the Apostolic says that when the Holy Spirit rested on the Lord Jesus Christ [the purpose is to sanctify us so that we may have fellowship with the Spirit as well<sup>2</sup>].

* Unless they received the Spirit of the One who, by nature, is the true Son of God, they could not have become His children since by nature, they had been created. To achieve that, ‘the Word became flesh’ so that man could receive the Divine<sup>3</sup>.

* The Father carries out all His work through the Word and the Holy Spirit. In this way the unity of the Holy Trinity is preserved<sup>4</sup>.

St. Athanasius the Apostolic

* I am not speaking about the Lord Jesus Christ in whom the Spirit resides and as though He was granted energy or energoun ouchos. Rather, I am speaking about Him as a companion to the One who possesses the same honor<sup>5</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nyssa

St. John Chrysostom does not hesitate to proclaim that the Lord Jesus Christ was filled with the Holy Spirit. Since He is a Spirit then his very soul is in the same image (considering His incarnation): He is the Word of God as well as the soul’s energy.<sup>6</sup>

St. Gregory of Nyssa opposes the statement that the Spirit worked within the Lord Jesus Christ and says: ‘I wish to add to the indication that the Spirit abides in the Lord, that He dwells as a companion equal to Him in honor rather than as someone ‘giving Him power’<sup>6</sup>. It gave St. Gregory of Nyssa pleasure to speak about the Holy Spirit as a companion of the Incarnate Word and an informant Who revealed His works<sup>7</sup>.

St. Cyril the Great devotes the Anathema 9 to the teachings concerning the presence of the Holy Spirit in the Lord Jesus Christ. God the Word does not need to be filled through the Spirit for He is Holy by nature. In contrast, the body of the Incarnate Word received the Spirit as it contains the Divinity.

* He is the second Adam who looks like one of us; and He received the Spirit from the Father in order to preserve our nature... the Spirit had departed from us due to sin. Now the One Who knew no sin became like one of us so that the Spirit might remain constantly with us<sup>8</sup>.

* Due to sin, the Holy Spirit could not be pleased to rest in human beings. But when the Word of God became incarnated He became the new first-born for mankind. In Him alone could the Spirit rest and so rested upon us all<sup>9</sup>.

* Having become man, He could receive the Holy Spirit. Yet being incarnate and having no sin, the Spirit desired to dwell and remain in Him as He became the first-born of mankind and possessed a different nature<sup>1</sup>.

* As His entire body is filled with the invigorating living Spirit, He therefore indicated that His body is a spirit. However, He did not deny that it is a flesh <sup>2</sup>.

St. Cyril the Great

* The Messiah arrives, and the Spirit prepares the way for Him. He comes in the flesh and the Spirit is never separated from Him. He does amazing acts and grants healing through the Holy Spirit. Devils are cast out by gift of the Spirit and His presence demolishes them. The forgiveness of sins is granted by the Spirit, for according to 1 Cor 6:11: 'you were washed, but you were sanctified...in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of our God'<sup>3</sup>.

St. Basil the Great

* 'His eyes are like doves by the rivers of waters...' (Song of Sol 5:12). This text expresses the pure spiritual life through the imagery doves. St. John the Baptist saw something similar when the Holy Spirit descended from heaven and covered the waters (Jn 1:32). For this reason, a person who is appointed through God is like the eyes of the church's body and it is essential that he wash away any obstacle that impedes his sight. Consequently, he would be enabled to fulfill efficiently the task of supervision and watchfulness. The Lord tells us that there is many ways to wash our eyes and not just one; for there are many virtues that represent sources of purification. We should use these to clean and purify our eyes. Examples of these pure sources of water are: perseverance, constant labor, humility, truthfulness, righteousness, discipline and courage, the desire to do good, and being far removed from wickedness. These and other kinds of waters flow from one Source that gathers all their riverbeds into one bed. Through that one bed all the sources are purified of all the secreted reactions<sup>4</sup>.

'I did not know Him,

But He who sent me to baptize with water said to me:

"Upon whom you see the Spirit descending, and remaining on Him

This is He who baptizes with the Holy Spirit" ' [33]

* The Lord Jesus is the Son of God and (although the Gospel's core preaches our adoption as God's children through Jesus Christ) yet the Lord did not preach the Gospel before His baptism.

Since the Lord Himself has waited for the right and appropriate time, do we have the right- as His servants - to contradict this procedure?! (From that time Jesus began to preach) when the Holy Spirit descended upon Him in the physical form of a dove (Matt 4:17; Lk 3:22). This did not happen so that the Lord Jesus Christ would see and recognize Him, for He knew Him before descending upon Him in that way. Rather, the Spirit descended with a physical aspect in order that John who baptized Him would see and accordingly say: "...but He who sent me to baptize with water said to me: Upon whom you see the Spirit descending, and remaining on Him, this is He who baptizes with the Holy Spirit" (Jn1: 33).

If you too are wearing a strong shield, then the Holy Spirit will descend and rest in you; and the Father will speak to you from the high. He will not say: 'This is My Son' but rather "You have now become My Son." The simple present used in the statement "This is My Son" is applicable only to the Son who from '... the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God' (Jn 1: 1). Hence He is the only One of whom God would say: "He is My Son” since He is God’s Son eternally. As for you, it will be told you that “ Now you have become...” because you are not a son by natural law but, rather, you receive that designation through God’s adoption. He is a Son since time everlasting, whereas you have been granted that grace just recently<sup>1</sup>.

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* What is it that St. John the Baptist did not know? It is the power of the baptism granted by the Lord. It is a power that does not get conveyed from God to any other person, but it is clearly achieved in this way. Power does not pass from God to anyone whether the person serving is good or evil. The dove does not retreat from service if the servant is evil but she looks up to God’s power. Since God is righteous, what harm then what can an evil servant do to you?<sup>2</sup>

* St. John the Baptist knew that Jesus Christ is the Lord, and he confessed that He is the Truth. He also knew that he himself is a truthful person sent by the Truth. This is what John knew. So what did he not know about the Lord Jesus Christ? That the time had come for the Lord to retain for Himself the power of His baptism and not convey it to any other servant...so what did he not know? That the great authority of baptism belongs to God and that He reserves it to Himself whether He is present here on earth or when He is in heaven in His glory and absent in the flesh. Thus St. Paul and St. Peter cannot say: ‘...my baptism.’ Give attention and listen to the words of the apostles: none of them says: ‘...my baptism’; yet although there is one Message you will find that they refer to ‘...my gospel’ ...so they do not utter the words ‘...my baptism.’ This is what the Baptist got to know, my brethren. Let us learn what he learned from the dove too. For the dove taught the Baptist as well as the Church for she is the one to whom these words refer: ‘My dove, my perfect one, is the only one...(Song of Sol 6:9). May the Dove (the Holy Spirit) teach the dove (the Church)<sup>3</sup>.

* You tell me that this or that person has baptized you, yet it is through the Dove (the Holy Spirit) we are both told: ‘It is the (Lord) who baptizes you. Who do I believe: the Dove or the kite?’<sup>4</sup>

* This mystery is most sacred and even if it is performed by a murderous servant it cannot be corrupted or damaged<sup>5</sup>.

* What was the benefit when you accept baptism by a certain servant and you be unwilling to accept baptism by the Lord?

Since you have come to a servant, would you be unwilling to come to the Lord? If you have accepted to be baptized by a servant, will you be unwilling to receive baptism from the Lord?<sup>6</sup>

* If the Baptist did not know Him at all, he would not have told the Lord - when He came to the River to be baptized: “ I need you to baptize me, so how is it that You come to me?”...He recognized the Lord through the Dove: it did not concern what he did not know but it concerned what his Informer revealed to him by some manner, and concerning the aspect of the Lord that he did not know. This was done for our sake so that we might discover the Baptist’s position, what he did not know, and what he learned from the Dove<sup>7</sup>.

* I believe that we cannot stop seeing that fire when we read that the Lord Jesus Christ baptizes with the Holy Spirit and with fire [33] according to the words of St. John in his Gospel...That is why Jeremiah, having received the Spirit, says: "...His word was in my heart like a burning fire shut up in my bones; I was weary of holding it back..." (Jer 20:9). What does this mean- I mean that this fire becomes water, and the water requires fire- is this the gift of the Holy Spirit that burns our sins and washes them with water? For sin is washed and gets burned<sup>1</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* He accepted to be baptized by John with this intention: because He accepted what is of lesser value from someone who is of lesser stature, then He encourages us who are lesser to accept what is more sublime<sup>2</sup>.

* If the Lord Jesus Christ had been the only one who accepted to be baptized by the Baptist, then people would have believed that the Baptist's baptism is greater than that of the Lord. They would have said: ' This baptism is greater for only the Lord qualified for it.' However, the Lord came to be baptized to serve as a model of humility and to call us to receive redemption through baptism.

The Lord accepted to go through something which was not necessary for Him; yet it was necessary on our account.

Just to underline that what the Lord received through the Baptist is not to be preferred over baptism through the Lord, others were allowed to be baptized by the Baptist. However, their baptism was not sufficient since they had to go through the baptism offered by the Lord Jesus<sup>3</sup>.

* The baptism offered by the Lord Jesus Christ is fitting to His nature: it is the baptism of God, a divine one because the Lord is God<sup>4</sup>.

St. Augustine

'And I have seen and testified that this is the Son of God' [34].

* Note that John had baptized and Jesus had baptized too. The words that were pronounced at the time of Christ's baptism could have been intended for the Baptist. However, and in order to avoid any confusion in the minds of those who were present, the Spirit descended and rested on the Lord Jesus Christ.

St. John Chrysostom

4- THE TESTIMONY OF HIS FIRST DISCIPLES

- The testimony of the Baptist that the Lord Jesus Christ is the Messiah [35 -37] won Andrew over.

- Consequently, Andrew's testimony won Simon over and the Lord named him Cephas [42].

- The Lord called Phillip from Bethsaida on the Sea of Galilee, and he won over Nathaniel [45-51] an Israelite ' in who is no guile.'

Again, the next day, John stood with two of his disciples [35]

And looking at Jesus as He walked, he said:

"Behold the Lamb of God" [36].

'...looking at Jesus...' We are in great need to look and see Jesus. We need to look to Him in order to see Him looking at us and concerned with our redemption.

John the Baptist has testified that the Lord Jesus Christ is the Son of God [34]. No one listened to his words nor questioned him as to why or to whom he was saying them. He says it again here: “ This is the Lamb of God!” Yet their mortal senses did not respond, and he found their nature as that of hard ground that would be softened by his care. He would improve their muddled discernment by his words for he toiled with one purpose in mind: to bring them to the Lord. He strove to make them adhere to Him as he knew that if they accepted his words they would no longer need someone to witness to Him.

St. John Chrysostom

* When the time came for God to show mercy, the Lamb came.

What kind of Lamb is it that wolves do fear?

Of what kind is that Lamb that when it is slain, a lion is slain too? Since the devil is called a lion ‘ that walks about like a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour’ (1 Peter 5:8). By the Blood of the Lamb the lion has been defeated...

This is a great matter to behold: throughout the whole world the lion has been vanquished by the blood of the Lamb, and members of the Lord are saved from the lion’s mouth and united with the Lord’s Body<sup>1</sup>.

* The Lord wishes to own what He has bought alone. He does not wish anyone to share His possession with Him for:

He has paid a great price in order to be a sole owner.

You make Him a partner with Satan to whom you have sold yourself.

‘ Woe be to those who try to have it both ways’ (Sirach 2:12). Those who give part of their heart to God and the other to Satan.

This angers God as Satan gets a share of the heart. Hence He quits and Satan takes over the whole heart and possesses it. Therefore it is not in vain that the apostle says: ‘...nor give place to the devil’ (Eph 4:27).

Let us therefore, my brethren, know the Lamb and understand the price paid for us<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

‘The two disciples heard him speak, and they followed Jesus’ [37].

When they heard about redemption they adhered to the Savior promptly and without any discussion. Each moment of postponement constitutes an exposure of the soul to danger. Hence it is appropriate for you to go and seek Him without delay.

The two disciples who followed Him were eager to receive and accept the words of grace from His mouth rather than from the mouth of the forerunner. The number 2 stands for love and the two disciples refer to all those who accepted to be completely His followers, and to consecrate their lives to love God and their neighbors. These are the two disciples who urge and motivate us to sincerely follow the Lord Jesus Christ.

St. John the Evangelist recounts the invitation to two of the Baptist’s disciples to follow the Lord. These are Andrew and (most probably) John the Evangelist himself. The first went to call his brother Simon Peter. These are the first three who became the Lord’s disciples. In this way, the Church started on a very small scale that included three members who enjoyed looking to the Lord and be part of His kingdom.

Then Jesus turned, and seeing them following, said to them, “ What do you seek?” They said to Him: Rabbi”(which is to say, when translated, Teacher), “ where are you staying?” [37].

We always need to give an answer to the Lord's question " what do you seek" in every act, word or thought we are engaged in. Do we seek the Lord in every act? Are we preoccupied to be enlightened by His Holy Spirit? Do we yearn to be in the Father's embrace? Do we seek to develop and strengthen true knowledge, and constantly sanctify ourselves and our inner glory? Do we seek that which glorifies God and the well being of the Church?

This is the constant question that the Lord Jesus Christ puts to every person: What do you seek? Are you seeking worldly possessions, pleasures, men's praise and fake honor? Or are you seeking to be with the Lord wherever He may be? The Lord had no place where He could rest for He lived as a stranger. It is the same for those who seek him for they will live with Him as strangers on earth. Hence it is insufficient to seek the Lord and follow Him from time to time but we need to stay and remain with Him. As we get closer to Him, we will enjoy the brilliance of His glory and the wealth of His love; and we will not desire to be ever separated from Him.

We are in need to meet Him and stay with Him. We need to sit at His feet and be refreshed from the springs of His love. We will be enlightened by His Holy Spirit and get acquainted with His hidden and unspeakable mysteries. St. John Chrysostom expresses this thought in these words: ' They did not say teach us about opinions and beliefs or other important matters, but they said: Where are you staying?'

When they asked to stay with Him, His immediate was to invite them to come and see so that they could come promptly and without delay: '... now is the accepted time' (2 Cor 6:2).

The Lord knew exactly what was in their hearts when they asked to follow Him, so why did He ask?

First: To grant them confidence so that they would state their desire, to reveal His pleasure at their zeal for redemption and desire to lead a sanctified life, and in order to give them support.

Second: To state that He is ready to begin with us on the journey of our souls towards the Truth and eternal glory. Yet He will not begin without our will for He cherishes the freedom that He has granted to us.

* By granting us His gifts, we learn that He does not withhold our freedom. However, if we begin to seek Him, He will grant us real strength of will (inflammate our own desire for Him) and will offer us many means for redemption<sup>1</sup>.

* "What do you seek?"...By this question, the Lord makes them relate to Him more. Besides, He grants them greater boldness, and demonstrates to them that they are worthy to hear Him. They were probably shy and afraid since they were unknown to Him even though they had heard their teacher's testimony concerning Him. To help them get over that He puts this question to them rather than invite them silently to the house...He asked in order to grant them serenity and confidence and to remove their anxiety and timidity<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Third: St. John Chrysostom explains: [He gave them great attention and indicated that they were ready and qualified to listen to Him. It is understandable that they felt embarrassed and fearsome, as they did not know Him. He removed all their illusions and fears by asking His question rather than taking them silently to the house].

Origen says that after St. John the Baptist had pronounced his six testimonies to the Lord Jesus Christ, it now was the turn of the Word Himself to witness to Himself before the Baptist's two disciples<sup>1</sup>.

He said to them:

“Come and see.”

They came and saw where He was staying, and remained with Him that day (now it was about the tenth hour) [39].

St. John Chrysostom believes that the Lord Jesus Christ loved the two disciples as they followed Him after hearing their teacher’s testimony. Consequently, He engaged in conversation with them on the way and this made them feel they were no longer strangers to Him. Moreover, He sought to grant them the joy of hearing the divine voice.

Oh how much we need to walk with Him along the path of our lives, and to hear His divine Voice. Let us give Him the chance to talk with us. This is similar to what happened to the two disciples after the Resurrection and who were on their way to Emmaus (Lk 24: 13).

St. John Chrysostom comments as follows on the conversation that took place with two of the Baptist’s disciples: [May we therefore learn to consider that all matters are secondary to hearing God’s word. We need to stop thinking that it is sometimes not convenient to do so...food, washing, and all matters related to this life may have a specific timetable; but learning the Heavenly teachings do not occur at an appointed time for it is adequate to receive them at all times. St. Paul Says: “ Be ready in season and out of season. Convince, rebuke, exhort, with all longsuffering and teaching” (2 Tim 4:2). And the prophet says: “...in His law he meditates day and night (Ps 1:3) <sup>2</sup>].

The two disciples came to Him at ten o’clock to stay with Him wherever He stays. Those who obey His commandments (the Ten Commandments) proclaim a desire to obey and reside with their Savior each day of their lives. They do not get separated from Him until the day comes for them to meet Him face to face in the life to come.

* They did not follow Him in a haphazard way, but they adhered to Him<sup>3</sup>.

St. Augustine

St. Augustine considers that the number 10 indicates the Law as there are Ten Commandments. They went to the Lord Jesus Christ as He is the One who has given the Law and fulfilled it (Matt. 5:17). They wanted to learn the Law from Him who issued it for mercy rests on His lips (Prov. 31:26). St. Augustine goes on to say: [If you are unable to fulfill the Law, then flee to mercy. If you are unable to obey the law then use the promises, the links, and the prayers that the heavenly One has set and organized for He has gone the way of the Law and experienced it]<sup>4</sup>.

Origen finds that the Lord invited the two disciples to experience the pleasure of being and living with Him by leading a life of service and meditation. By calling them to “ Come” He invited them to an active life; and by saying “See” He invited them in order to set up the link between work and meditation on Him at the same time<sup>1</sup>.

And followed Him was Andrew, Simon Peter’s brother’ [40].

In the Greek language the word ‘Andrew’ means ‘ manliness.’ This is an apt naming for a person who follows the Lord Jesus Christ. You need to be eager to enjoy Him and live with Him. According to the Psalmist: “Wait on the Lord, be of good courage ...” (Ps 27:14).

The Evangelist does not report the name of the other disciple, since he is the writer of the words in this Gospel.

‘He first found his own brother Simon, and said to him:

“We have found the Messiah” (which is translated ‘the Christ’) [41].

By saying ‘He Found’, the Evangelist indicates how Andrew cared for his brother and looked for him so that he would share the new experience he enjoyed after meeting with the Lord. He said humbly: “We have found the Messiah.” He did not take the entire honor to himself for he had someone else with him. Yet he speaks proudly and victoriously of the One they have found: they found a pearl of great value and a true treasure. He did not repeat the words of his teacher, St. John the Baptist, who said ‘the Lamb of God’; but he used the words recorded in the holy Bible ‘the Messiah.’ To meet with Him constituted the desire of every Jew.

St. John Chrysostom considers that the invitation of Andrew to his brother Simon, and the invitation that people extend to each other represents a clear image of friendship in the Lord and of co-operation within God’s kingdom. He says that when God created Adam He did not leave him alone, but gave him a wife to be his companion and helper. Although Eve harmed this fellowship, a wise person can enjoy many benefits of fellowship. These are not limited to relations with the wife and children, but with our brothers. Therefore the prophet says: “Behold, how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!” (Ps 133:1). St. Paul the apostle also urges us not to abandon our meeting together (Heb 10:25)<sup>2</sup>.

* The expression ‘we have found Him’ indicates someone striving in order to be with the Lord. Someone who is seeking His advent from above, rejoices for achieving the search and finding Him, and hurries away to give the joyful news to others. This is the role of brotherly love as through a natural friendship and the Lord’s planning, we are able to extend a hand to others and offer spiritual riches<sup>3</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

THE INVITATION OF PHILIP TO NATHANIEL

And he brought him to Jesus.

Now when Jesus looked at him, He said,

“ You are Simon the son of Jonah.

You shall be called Cephas”

(which is translated, A rock) [42].

Philip received his call directly and not through the Baptist as in the case of Andrew and John. Neither was he called through Andrew in the way Simon Peter was called. Clearly, the Lord uses every possible manner to invite and call His children.

The Lord found Philip just like someone who would be looking for him and wanting to find Him. In Andrew’s case, he did not only witness for the Lord Jesus Christ but went and brought his brother to Him. He wanted his brother to come to the Source, to hear His Voice, and to see His work.

The Lord called Simon by his name and then changed it to indicate his mission as a witness to the belief in the Lord Jesus Christ.

His parents had named him ‘Simon’ which means ‘a hearer’ or ‘obedient.’ Actually, he met the Lord in a spirit of obedience and so the Lord called him ‘Cephas’ or ‘Peter’ since he enjoyed the Rock of faith: the Rock designates the Lord Jesus Christ (1 Cor. 10:4) whom Simon

Peter loved.

* You might wonder: But why did the Lord Jesus Christ do that? My answer is: In order to reveal that He is the One who has given us the old Law, and the One who assigned the names and rectified them. He is the One who called Abram as Abraham, and Sarai as Sarah, and Jacob as Israel. He has designated the names of many others from their birth, such as Isaac and Samson. Moreover, He has set names for those mentioned in the prophecies of Isaiah and Hosea; besides adding names to those who had already been named by their parents.

Everyone of those has received a different name. Yet now we all have received one surname and that is the greatest of all names and that is Christians and children of our God: His friend and His body. This surname is better than all others for in Him we have sufficiency as He uplifts and quickens us. Thus we become the fastest in doing virtuous acts.

St. John Chrysostom

‘The following day Jesus wanted to go to Galilee,
And He found Philip and said to him:
“Follow Me” [43].

The Lord went to Galilee to invite Phillip. The word ‘Galilee’ means ‘migrating’ or ‘proclaiming’ or ‘a circle.’ The Lord wanted to reveal the obligation for disciples to migrate from the sufferings of the present world in order to enjoy the delight of eternal glory. This occurs when the heart moves away from the confusion of temporal matters of this world and experiences sublime heavenly peace or the heavenly circle.

According to St. Clement of Alexandria, it was said that this disciple is the same one who asked the Lord permission to go and bury his father when the Lord asked him to follow Him (Matt.: 21-22). In Acts 6:5 his work as a deacon is recorded. Fr Theodorus, Bishop of Koresh believes that he preached in Phrygia (these two areas have the same name); and according to Eusebius, Philip is buried in Phrygia Pacatiana.

The city of Andrew and Peter’ [44].

‘Bethsaida’ or ‘the house of fishing’ was so called because most of its inhabitants were fishermen. It was an area known for its wickedness (Matt 11:21). Yet there were in it a few who remained consecrated to the Lord, and chosen according to His grace.

The Evangelist does not mention this city haphazardly but to communicate a symbolic meaning: ‘Bethsaida’ or the ‘house of fishermen’ actually indicates that those who accept the Lord’s invitation to follow Him become fishers of men (Matt. 4:19). Indeed and Philip’s first catch was Nathaniel whom he brought to the Lord.

* According to the Gospel (Jn. 1:44) Philip the apostle came from the same city as that of Andrew and Peter. He was blessed because he was the friend of the two brothers as these were the first to be honored by the Gospel.

Andrew perceived the mystery of the Lord Jesus Christ and followed Him after hearing St. John the Baptist saying: “Behold the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world.”

Andrew learned where the Lord lived and carried the joyful news written in the prophecies a long time ago and told his brother Simon Peter. Note that a person has to have faith before he can hear. Now the person whose heart is wholly attached to the Lamb becomes sanctified through a name change: hence instead of calling him Simon, the Lord called him Peter, and his name became Peter.

A name change applies also to Abraham and Sarah who went through many spiritual stages and then received the promise of God’s blessings: they became the grandparents of many nations through a name change.

This is similar to what happened to Jacob whose name became Israel after wrestling for long during the night with an angel.

St. Peter the great disciple developed through the same blessing. Having learned of the faith of his brother in the Lamb of God, he continued through faith and became the Stone. Due to his faith, Philip too deserved to become a friend of Andrew and Peter after the Lord found him. The Gospel says the Lord found Philip who became a follower of the Word of God: “ Follow Me” (Jn 1: 43).

Having being enlightened by the light of faith, Philip invited Nathaniel to come to the Lord, get acquainted with the mystery of faith, and be filled with His light. Therefore Philip said to him: “We have found Him of whom Moses in the law, and also the prophets, wrote - Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph” (Jn. 1:45). Nathaniel received the good news attentively and the mysterious prophecy concerning the Lord Jesus Christ sounded good to his ears. He knew that Bethlehem would be the first place where God would appear in the flesh, and that after that He would live in Nazareth and therefore He was called the Nazarene.

By searching the scriptures, Nathaniel learned that the Lord was to be born in the flesh from the line of David and in Bethlehem. Moreover, His mysterious birth had to occur in a stable that had swaddling cloths in which the baby would be wrapped and that there would be a man to look after them. According to the Holy Bible, many Gentiles lived in the region of Galilee (Isa. 9:1). Consequently, Nathaniel was enlightened and said: “ Can anything good come out of Nazareth? ” (Jn.1:46). At this point, Nathaniel came out from under the fig tree that had hidden the Light and he adhered to the One who had cursed the unfruitful fig tree and its leaves dried up. The Word of God testified that Nathaniel was a true Israelite in whom was no guile for he proved to be as pure as our father Abraham (Gen 25:27). The Lord Jesus Christ says accordingly: “ Behold, an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile” <sup>1</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nyssa

‘Philip found Nathaniel and said to him:

“We have found Him of whom Moses in the law, and also the prophets wrote - Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph” ‘ [45].

Nathaniel and Bartholomew are considered the names for one and the same person due to the following:

A- The writers of the gospels who have mentioned Bartholomew did not mention Nathaniel, and the opposite is also true.

B- The word ‘ Bartholomew’ is not the name of a certain person for it means ‘ the son of Ptolemy’, hence his real name is Nathaniel.

C- St. John the Evangelist speaks of Nathaniel as one of the apostles who went with the others to fish when the Lord appeared to them after His resurrection (Jn. 21:2-4).

Philip’s words reveal his zeal to search the Holy Bible especially the books of the law and the prophets. This inflamed his heart with eagerness to see ‘ Jesus ’ or ‘the Messiah’ who would come from the line of David...and finally he found the One who reveals Himself to those who seek Him.

Philip says that he is ‘ Jesus’ or in other words ‘the redeeming Jehovah’ in order to announce to Nathaniel that He is the Savior that the law and the prophets have spoken about for so long. As to calling Him ‘the son of Joseph’ it is not to convey that he had implanted Him, but to confirm that his lineage is the house of David from which Joseph is descended.

‘And Nathaniel said to Him:

Can anything good come out of Nazareth?’”

And Philip said:

“Come and see” [46].

* These words do not come from an unbeliever, nor from someone who deserves to be blamed. He is to be praised...why? And in what manner? Because Nathaniel was interested in the writings of the prophets even more than Philip. He had learned from the Holy Scripture that the Messiah would come from Bethlehem; from the city of David...the character of Nathaniel makes him a person that cannot be deceived easily. Yet he did not dismiss the Person who came to him and he came to the Lord with that great desire that he felt towards Him. Inwardly, he felt that Philip might have been mistaken about the place (and not about the Person)<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Fr. Bede believes that the word ‘Nazareth’ is appropriately used to refer to the mysteries of the Lord for it could be translated as ‘about purity’ or ‘his flowering’ or ‘separate.’ For the Lord is the holy Savior of the world who is wholly pure and He is apart or separate from any sin. In the Song of Solomon are these words: ‘ I am the rose of Sharon and the lily of the valleys ’ (Sg of Sol. 2:1); and Isaiah the prophet speaks about Him and says: ‘There shall come forth a Rod from the stem of Jesse and a branch shall grow out of his roots’ (Isa.11: 1).

Jesus saw Nathaniel coming toward Him and said of him:

The Lord praised him for being an honest Israelite that conveys that he is a real descendent of Jacob who struggled for the sake of the Lord and therefore deserved to be named ‘ Israel’ (Genesis 32: 28). By saying: “ An Israelite indeed...” the Lord conveyed that he deserved to be a descendent of Jacob as he not only believes in his God, but also worships Him and struggles to be loyal and sincere. By saying: “ ...in whom there is no guile” the Lord indicates that in spite of the corruption that characterized the nation at that time yet Nathaniel loyally held on to his faith and way of life, walking righteously and in godliness.

* It is as though the Lord is telling him: “ Although you are under the shadow of sin, yet I have chosen you.” As Nathaniel realized that he was there under the fig tree and no one else was there, he knew His divinity and answered: “ You are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!” These words were spoken by the one sitting under the fig tree yet he had not become a dry one for he knew the Lord<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

‘Nathaniel said to Him:

How do you know me?

Jesus answered and said to him:

Before Philip called you, when you were under the fig tree, I saw you “ [48].

What does the fig tree stand for?

First: Fr. Bede sees that the fig tree sometimes refers to the sweetness of divine love. However, since our first parents made for themselves clothes from the fig leaves, it has come to indicate the tendency to sin and to cover up rather than seek divine sweetness. Hence ‘ Nathaniel’ refers to ‘God’s gift’; while this gift has become corrupted due to its tendency to sin

* In this instance the fig tree stands for sin...as you know , the first human being covered himself with fig leaves when he sinned. With these leaves they covered up their nakedness as they blushed on account of their sins (Genesis 3:7). What the Lord had created for them as members of their body, they turned into an object of shame. Had wickedness not been involved, nakedness would not have resulted in shame.

St. Augustine

* May Jesus look at me while I am still under the fruitless fig tree, and may my fig tree give forth fruit after three years (Lk 13:6).

St. Ambrose

‘Nathaniel answered and said to Him:

“Rabbi, You are the Son of God!

You are the King of Israel!” [49].

When Nathaniel came in touch with the Lord Jesus Christ, he called Him ‘ Rabbi’, ‘Son of God’, and ‘King of Israel.’ The Lord had praised him for being an Israelite in whom there was no guile, and now Nathaniel bows down to accept Him to be King over himself and over all Israel.

According to St. John Chrysostom, this recognition is incomplete. Nathaniel said: “ You are the King of Israel”; and he did not comprehend that He is King and Savior of the whole world. Although he had uttered the same words of Simon Peter: “ You are the Son of God” yet the Lord did not bless him as He did Simon Peter. Nathaniel did comprehend neither the divinity of the Lord nor His reality, for he believed He was just a sublime teacher.

‘Jesus answered and said to him:

“ Because I said to you ‘ I saw you under the fig tree’ do you believe?

You will see greater than these” [50].

Some believe that Nathaniel was in the habit of sitting under a fig tree, and do what some Jewish teachers did: sit and read the Holy book, meditate calmly, speak with God, pray for the redemption of his soul and of all Israel. The eyes of God are upon His children especially as they sit quietly to enjoy their meditation on God and on His redeeming acts.

‘And He said to him:

“Most assuredly, I say to you, hereafter you shall see heaven open

And the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man” [51].

Some find that this imagery is taken from the procedures followed when a prince would visit a certain country: ambassadors would travel back and forth carrying messages from and to him. Similarly, the heavenly angels who are messengers will be sent to serve their King who has accepted to become incarnated and to walk on the earth as the Son of Man.

While Nathaniel testifies: “You are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel” [49], the Lord humbly calls Himself “the Son of Man.”

He may be speaking here about His second coming to judge the world.

* Do you observe how the Lord lifts Nathaniel gradually upwards and away from the earth; leading him to discover that He is not just a mere person?! For how can He be a person when angels wait on Him and ascend and descend to serve Him. That is why the Lord tells him: “ You will see greater things than these” [50]. To confirm that meaning, He presented the service of the angels to Him.

What the Lord intended to convey is this: 'Do you think that it is a great issue that you, Nathaniel, confess that I am the King of Israel? So what would you say about Me if you saw the angels ascending and descending for Me? By these sayings the Lord confirmed to Nathaniel that He is Lord over the angels for they descend and ascend as the servants of the Son of their true God.

The angels descended and ascended at the time of the Lord's crucifixion, at His resurrection, His ascension, and earlier when they came and served Him {Matt 4:11}. At His birth, they came to deliver the message:

“Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill towards men (Lk 2:11). They also appeared to Mary, and they came to Joseph<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* If they descend and ascend to Him then he is there above and here below at the same time. They would not ascend and descend to Him if He were not in the place to which they ascended or here in the place to which they descended ...

Let us perceive the presence of the Lord above and below through Saul. The voice of the Lord Himself came to him from heaven saying: “Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me?” (Acts 9:4) What?...

From where is he speaking? From heaven, therefore He is there.

But He asking “Why are you persecuting Me?” Then He is also down below (since Paul did not ascend to heaven in order to persecute Him)<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

St. Augustine<sup>3</sup> finds that our perception of the Lord Jesus Christ and of the angels ascending and descending to Him is far more important than our presence under the fig tree or under the shadow of death. Concerning the angels, they are messengers from the Lord and His disciples. For example, Paul ascended when he was taken up into the third heaven while he was in the body or out of it, he does not know, but he heard of matters, which cannot be uttered (2 Cor 12:2-4). He himself descended when he spoke to the people of Corinth who were not spiritual but physical and as children in the Lord who had to be fed with milk rather than with meat (1 Cor 3:1-20). The one who ascended to the third heaven for the sake of the Lord had to descend for His sake to the people. He had to speak to them in the language of immature children in the same way as mothers would speak to their young children. He ascended and descended and as he says: “For if we are beside ourselves, it is for God; or if we are of sound mind, it is for you” (2 Cor 5:13).

St. Augustine says: [If the Lord Himself ascended and descended, then those who preach about Him ascend through coping Him and descend through preaching<sup>4</sup>.]

DIVINE GRACE (GRACE for GRACE)

<sup>2</sup> Sermon on N.T. Lessons 72:6.

Throughout the whole of his Gospel, St. John the Evangelist presents to us the person of the incarnate divine Word as the Source flowing with infinite divine grace. That Source constantly continues to provide grace, especially the gift of creation and God's adoption of mankind plus an endless list of other blessings. The Evangelist says: “ And of His fullness we have all received, and grace for grace. For the law was given through Moses, but grace and truth came through Jesus Christ” (Jn 1:16- 17). Previously we have published a book in English about Divine Grace in the School of Alexandria. May the Lord enable us to translate and publish it soon. We would like to present here a simplified explanation of Divine Grace<sup>1</sup>.

What does Grace mean?

The fathers of the Eastern Church do not offer any definitions for any theological terms such as grace or other terms. However, they write extensively about the action of grace and its role in the life of the believer from birth to the day he meets the Lord in the clouds.

What occupies the mind of the Church, especially the Church of Alexandria, is the living experience and union with the Lord. This is the pledge for the enjoyment of eternal life. Therefore we are not surprised to find that Origen uses the name of ‘ Christ’ to refer to His gifts or His grace<sup>2</sup>. In other instances, he calls the Lord Jesus Christ ‘ the Kingdom in one Person.’ This is because anyone who enjoys the kingdom of God is actually enjoying the Divine Word Himself: He is the Giver of grace and the Provider of all needs.

Benjamin Drewery has attempted to present a definition of divine grace by studying the many writings of Origen. He states that we could presume that had we asked Origen to provide a definition for grace he would have responded as follows: ‘ Grace is the power God grants freely; yet it is not granted unconditionally. It is offered to mankind so that through that power redemption leads us to a new life achieving sublime heights. This new life is proclaimed and mapped in the Holy Bible and through the incarnate Lord Jesus Christ: for through Him His kingdom is set up in the world’ <sup>3</sup>.

Grace and the Word of God

When we are covered by divine grace we are embraced by the sublime love of God that we cannot measure in terms of height, breadth, depth, or height. We just have to read the Holy Bible in order to absorb God's wonderful promises.

God has indeed created mankind to communicate with Him face to face. Our first parents enjoyed hearing God's voice as they walked in Paradise (Gen. 3:8). However, when man turned his back to the Source of Grace, God did not abandon him but gave him the Law in order to raise him to attain the wealth of His grace. The Holy Bible is not merely some paper with printed words but behind these there exists a live meeting with the incarnate Word.

Whoever enjoys the grace of comprehending the mysteries of the Holy Bible enjoys * It is impossible to receive any good thing when we are away from God. An above all benefit is the understanding of the Holy Book that is written by inspiration<sup>1</sup>.

* Not all are able to comprehend the spiritual content granted by the Law. Only those who have been granted the grace of the Holy Spirit can attain the Word of wisdom and knowledge<sup>2</sup>.

* Let us pray God to open up our minds to the Lord Jesus Christ so that the Word grows within us and enable us to comprehend His holy words.

* Many strive to interpret the Holy Bible... but not all succeed because God has granted this grace to only a few<sup>3</sup>.

Origen

* ‘My beloved is like a gazelle or a young stag
Behold he stands behind a wall
He is looking through the windows,
Gazing through the lattice’ (Song of Sol. 2:9)...

This verse could be interpreted as follows: From now on, do not speak to me using the symbols of the prophets and the law. So that I can see you, appear to me so that I may come and enter into the Rock, the Holy Bible, and leave behind me the wall of the Law. So that I may hear you, let your Voice ring in my ears. If Your voice sounds so very sweet as it flows from the windows of the prophets, seeing Your beautiful face will bring so much more love and joy!!

The bride comprehended the mystery of the Rock in the Bible for the Word led her there by various ways and means (Heb 1:11) while He was standing by the window. Now, she wants Him, the Bridegroom, to appear in the flesh so as to see God incarnated and to hear His divine promises of eternal joy for all the deserving ones.

Note how the words of Simon conform to the desire of the bride: “ Lord now you are letting Your servant depart in peace according to Your word, for my eyes have seen Your salvation” (Lk 2: 29,30). Simon saw what the bride wanted to see. Similarly, all those who have accepted the sweet Voice of the Lord have acknowledged the grace offered in the Bible and have cried: “ Lord to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life...” (Jn. 6: 28)<sup>4</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nyssa

The Grace of the Creation

In our interpretation of the expression ‘grace for grace’ we have seen how God the Father of all mankind spreads His hands to grant everyone grace out of His generosity. It is true that there are blessings that are shared by all mankind, but there is also the special blessing or grace that the people of God have enjoyed in the past through faith and through the Law of Moses. However, what the Incarnate Word of God offers through the Cross exceeds all thought: it is the treasure of blessings available to each one who accepts and responds to Him. Probably, the first blessing that mankind has enjoyed is the ‘creation.’

St. Athanasius the Apostolic speaks extensively about the grace of the creation. God has not only created mankind into being out of nothing, but He created and blessed him by the grace of being in His image and likeness. Hence men should feel indebted to Him for all their lives. In this way men can experience a heavenly ‘paradise like’ life, and comprehend the mystery of knowing God and communicating with Him. Consequently, a person emulates Him and sees and lives eternally with Him. St. Athanasius explains the work of the Word (the Logos) the Creator who grants the grace of making us in the image and likeness of God. He has redeemed this nature by renewing it after it was corrupted.

* As long as we preserve this divine feature ‘Tautotis’ we will never lose the feeling of God’s presence; or stop leading a life of fellowship with the saints. As we regain the grace that God grants us we come to possess the special power coming from the Word of God the Logos. We find joy as we speak with God and lead a truly blessed and eternal life where there is no pain and no death. Since no obstacle will prevent us from divine knowledge we will constantly perceive, through our being pure<sup>1</sup>, the Image of God- that is God the Logos- who has created us in His image and likeness. We will be astonished constantly as we comprehend God's plan for the creation through the Logos.

Consequently, we ascend sublimely above all that is physically tangible and we get engaged in the divine truths that are real<sup>2</sup> in the heavens through the power of the mind. Only when our minds are not preoccupied by any external or other physical matters that arise out of the desires of our bodies is this possible. Indeed, our minds will have become perfectly sublimated and perfected in the same way as they had been created in the beginning.

As we put aside all tangible and human matters, we ascend to the highest heavens; and as we behold the Logos we see in Him the Father, the Father of the Logos, and experience the overwhelming joy of this revelation and our yearning for him is renewed.

This is similar to the condition of the first man created and named Adam (according to the Hebrew language). The Holy Bible tells us that at the beginning Adam's mind was focused on God and he was never turned down. He lived in fellowship with the saints as he contemplated on the real facts that he learned in that place which holy Moses named symbolically as 'Paradise.' At that time, the soul was truly pure and able to perceive God Himself and consequently see itself as in a mirror. This is according to the Lord's words as He says: "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God"<sup>3</sup>.

Fr Athanasius the Apostolic

The Grace of Freedom

God has granted our reasoning nature the freedom of will. He has blessed mankind with the power to define his needs in order to implement goodness in our lives. There is no forcing or involuntary action but all is the result of our own free choice. The enjoyment of free will leads us to the discovery of great truths. Naturally, if we abuse this free will we become, according to the words of the apostle, like the one who has invented evil things (Romans 1: 30). Everyone who proceeds from the Father is our brother, but as for those who refuse to join in doing good deeds then he has come to that of his own free will<sup>4</sup>.

The Grace of the Law

The law, whether we are speaking about natural law or the Law of Moses, is in itself a great grace. It is offered by God to prepare the way for the grace of Holy Bible. Yet there is no point of comparison between the shadow and the reality.

* The grace we have is not like the one given to them (the Jews). For we have received not just forgiveness for sins; but also righteousness, sanctification, adoption, and the Holy Spirit that overflows with brightness as well as joy and wealth. By such grace we yearn for God as we are privileged to be His children and friends and not as slaves. St. John describes this condition as having 'grace for grace.' Even the things that pertain to the law are considered to be a grace...since mankind have accepted the law as an expression of kindness, forgiveness, love and grace<sup>1</sup>.

* There was sanctification, and now there is the sanctification

There was baptism, and now there is the baptism

St. John Chrysostom

The Grace of Recovering What We Had Lost

When man lost his likeness to God his life became an unbearable hell. Paradise became a prison and the earth grew thorns and thistles. However, the grace of God would not remain as a helpless onlooker whatever the cost would be. Even if that meant that the Word had to become incarnate and proclaim His love by accepting death and the crucifixion. In this manner, He would grant us the joy of the resurrection, the righteousness of the Lord Jesus Christ, and His Holy Spirit gives back God's likeness in us.

* Therefore, how can this materialize? Who can be called upon to retrieve such grace other than the Word of God who, at the beginning, has created all things out of nothing? The truth is that He alone is involved in transforming that which is corrupted into incorruption and above all in achieving God's will. Besides, He is the Word of God the Father who is above all; He alone has power to retrieve what has been lost and to restore it to everyone; He alone can suffer for everyone's sake, and He alone can be everyone's Intercessor before God<sup>3</sup>.

The Grace of Resurrection and Victory over Death

The Lord Jesus Christ tells Martha: "I am the Resurrection." The body of Lazarus had suffered corruption as he had been dead for four days. In the same manner, corruption is present in every soul and body for man reeks from corruption due to death under sin. Therefore the "Resurrection" has come to grant us Himself and thus can enjoy fellowship with Him. He can liberate us from the power of death and no corruption can befall us. Through the power and victory He grants us we sing with Paul the Apostle:

"O death where is your sting?

O Hades, where is your victory?"

The sting of death is sin...but thanks be to God who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Cor 15: 55-57). This is the grace of Resurrection.

* For the incarnate Logos to restore the state of incorruption to those who fell into corruption, and in order to raise them from the state of death, the Lord Jesus Christ had to put on their body. In this manner he could vanquish death and remove it through the grace of His resurrection, like fire that devours grass<sup>1</sup>.

* Death has truly died...it is no longer disturbing. On the contrary, believers in the Lord Jesus Christ tread on death as they have no issue with it. Indeed, they would rather die than deny their faith in the Lord. This is all because they know that they will not expire through death and that they will live through the resurrection and become incorruptible<sup>2</sup>.

St. Athanasius the Apostolic.

* God commanded us to be baptized 'in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit' (Matt 28:19). He did not command us to be baptized in the name of the 'Creator and the created.' Although we are one of the creatures, yet we become perfected (through baptism) and consequently become His Children<sup>3</sup>.

St. Athanasius the Apostle

* If someone among you is enslaved to sin, let him be totally prepared, through faith, for the new birth in freedom and adoption. By discarding slavery to corrupt sin and resolving to be slaves to the redeeming God, we become worthy of inheriting the kingdom of heaven...

"Put off ...the old man which grows corrupt according to the deceitful lusts..."(Eph 4:22) by confession, in order "to put on the new man who is renewed in knowledge according to the image of Him who created Him," (Col 3: 10).

Through faith you will receive "...the Spirit ...as a pledge," (2 Cor 1:22) and you will consequently be received into the everlasting habitations (refer to Lk 16:22).

Come so that you may receive the mysterious seal whereby the Lord will clearly recognize you; and be counted as one of Christ's spiritually sanctified flock. You will be assigned to sit on His right and inherit the life He has prepared for you. As for those who are dressed in the defiled clothes of sin, they will stay on His left for they have not come through Christ to receive God's grace by being born anew through baptism.

By being born again I mean a new spiritual birth of the soul. Our tangible parents give us a physical birth but our spirits are born anew through faith. Since 'the Spirit blows where it wishes...', and if your conscience is no longer smeared by the sin of deceit<sup>4</sup>, you will be found worthy to hear the Voice saying:

"Well done, good and faithful servant..." (Matt 25:21).

The Grace of the Holy Spirit

The event of the baptism of our Lord Jesus Christ has often occupied the heart of St. Cyril the Great. He considers that the whole Church is the Body and Christ is the Head. Although the Holy Spirit belongs to the Lord and is inseparable from Him as they are of one essence, yet He descended upon the Lord at His baptism to allow the Church to enjoy the Spirit too. Hence the grace of the Holy Spirit is a gift to His Church and to each of her members from the Giver of all blessings and gifts. He has granted us the grace of the Holy Spirit that reproofs us for sin, condemns the enemy of goodness who seeks our destruction, and grants us Christ's righteousness. He offers us the Truth - i.e. Christ the Lord-, renews our nature, leads us in the Way - that is Jesus Christ, and unites us with God according to the rights we have received through Christ's Blood. Indeed, the Holy Spirit grants us fellowship with the Lord Jesus Christ and the heavenly ones as well as with one another.

* In the same way, the words of the Psalmist can be interpreted (Ps 44: 7-8) to indicate that had the Logos not anointed Himself with the Spirit, we could not have become partners with the Holy Spirit, nor could we be sanctified. For the incarnated Word who grants the Holy Spirit anointed Himself with the Spirit for our sakes. Therefore it is we who have received the Holy Spirit when it was reported that he had been anointed in the flesh. His Body was first sanctified when He was conceived to be man and then His Body received the Spirit. As a result, we receive the grace of the Holy Spirit as we take from Him the ‘ fullness of the Lord’<sup>1</sup>.

St. Athanasius the Apostle

* The Spirit is poured upon us; whereas in the case of the Lord Jesus Christ, who was in the image of man, the Spirit settled upon Him...in our case, the generosity of the Giver provides fullness, whereas the fullness of the Holy Spirit lives in a perfect state within the Lord Jesus Christ forever. He pours within us according to our needs and what He grants is neither separated nor divided. In contrast, the Lord possesses the whole and perfect unity with the Spirit that enlightens the vision of our hearts and shines according to our ability of endurance. Ultimately, we receive as much as our progressive minds demand in order to achieve the fullness of the intangible Holy Spirit. Yet He contributes by working within us and according to the potentials of our nature<sup>2</sup>.

The Grace of Fellowship in the Divine Nature

The Word of God put aside His own Self and put on the image of a slave in order to grant us the power of attaining sublime inner glory. In this manner we become the object of God’s joy as He finds His kingdom set up within us. The heavenly ones also rejoice for us as they glorify God for the richness of this sublime grace.

As we experience daily this inner glory in spite of the bitter storms of this world, we get to perceive the wondrous heights of glory that will be attained when we meet our heavenly Bridegroom upon the clouds. We will then carry His image and be received as a heavenly bride and as a queen seated at the right hand of the King of kings. This is the grace of fellowship in the divine nature and that works within our inner depths.

* The Apostle says: ‘ Know ye not that ye are the temple of God...’ (1 Cor 3:16). The Gnostic (the believer who possesses true spiritual knowledge) is, accordingly, divine since he becomes actually sanctified, and carrying God while also being carried by Him.

* The Holy Spirit is God’s farmer as He grants us to be heirs of the great and divine Father. This task cannot be transferred to any other as He deifies us by granting us heavenly knowledge and setting His laws in our minds and inscribes them within our hearts<sup>1</sup>.

St. Clement of Alexandria

* The Word of God became Man, in order to teach man how to become a god<sup>2</sup>.

* The Lord Jesus Christ shared our humanity with us in order to grant us a wealth of His riches<sup>3</sup>.

Pope Cyril the Great

* It is said that the Lord Jesus Christ as a man received what he always possessed as a God. We too could receive this grace that was granted to Him. Indeed, the Logos did not diminish by taking on the flesh and by seeking to receive grace. He not only deified that flesh that He put on but further granted that grace of the Holy Spirit to mankind<sup>4</sup>.

St. Athanasius the Apostle

enemies...and here he says that his youth has been renewed after experiencing old age and man's fallen state. For we have received renewal through baptism and through the Holy Spirit poured within us; and we shall also be renewed through the resurrection. As David says in another passage: "So that your youth is renewed like the eagle's..." (Ps 103:5). Therefore know the way in which we are renewed: "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow..." (Ps 50: 7). And in Isaiah: "though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow" (Is. 1:18). Anyone who gets changed and moves away from darkness- the darkness of sin- to the light of virtue and to grace, has been renewed truly. That is how a person who was previously smeared with foolish corruption now brightly shines whiter than snow<sup>5</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* The Lord Jesus Christ says: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the one who kills the prophets, and those who are sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her children under her wings, and you were not willing! (Matt 23:37). These words are consistent with our assumption that the Divine Nature has wings, and this is what the holy inspired passage states for a mysterious and unknown purpose. Since we know that the first man was created in the image of God and in His Likeness in every thing (Gen 1:26), then we may deduce that the first man was created with wings in order to be like the Divine Nature. It also becomes clear that the word 'wings' could refer to God, and they represent His power, grace, incorruption and everything divine. Man possesses all these qualities as long as he is like God in every way. However, our tendency to be evil has deprived us of our wings (We were not under the protection of God's wings, and our own wings were torn away from us). Therefore the grace and blessings of God appeared to us and enlightened our minds. Hence we could grow wings by being pure and righteous and after despising worldly desires and turning to God wholeheartedly<sup>1</sup>.

The Grace of the Fragrant Smell of the Lord Jesus Christ

* This is how St. Paul likened the bride who shares the virtues of the bridegroom. He likened His fragrance to the beauty that cannot be approached. Of the fruits of the Spirit is love, joy, peace and all the like. He made his fragrance and became worthy to be 'a sweet savor of Christ' (2 Cor 2:15). St. Paul inhaled this incomprehensible grace that surpassed all blessings, and offered himself to others as a sweet fragrance out of which they could draw according to their capacity. It depends upon each person's determination. St. Paul the apostle became a fragrance, whether in his life or death. If we were to place the same fragrance before a beetle and a pigeon, the effect will not be the same on both: whereas the pigeon may become stronger upon inhaling it, the beetle may die on the spot. The same applies in the case of the holy fragrance and with the great apostle St. Paul who responded like the pigeon<sup>4</sup>.

The Grace of Virtue

* We truly can describe the soul of St. Paul as a spiritual paradise as it bears the seeds of virtue for grace flourished deeply within him. Moreover, he constantly prepared his depths to enable his growth and development in grace. And when he became a chosen vessel he worked hard to purify himself. Consequently, he became worthy to have the Holy Spirit richly poured into him. In this manner, we are provided with multiple and wonderful rivers. It is not only the four rivers that sprang in Paradise, but there are many other rivers that flow every day. It is for everyone of us to drink from them- it is not only for the earth - but for the human souls too making them fertile for the growth of virtue<sup>1</sup>.

The Grace of the Father and the Son

Granting Divine grace is one Divine act: it is the work of the Holy Trinity who loves mankind. The Father grants His grace generously through the divine Word that is the power and wisdom of God. He offers grace to us through the Holy Spirit who is the spirit of power and wisdom. For Divine grace is grace of the Father, Son, and the Holy Spirit doing the one work of the Holy Trinity.

* It is impossible for the Father to offer grace and not to grant grace through the Son; for the Son exists in the Father. This is just like finding the rays in the sunlight. Yet this doesn't reflect a need or a weakness in God but it does indicate the Father who 'has established the earth through His wisdom' (Prov. 3: 19). He made all things through the Word that was born from Him and He brands the holy washing (by the baptism) in Jesus Christ. He has created all things through His Word- the Logos Himself – and fulfilled the holy wash in the Son. The Son is found wherever the Father is. This is just as true as finding the rays wherever the light is found.

This explains why Jesus promised the holy disciples saying: "...We will come to Him and make our home with him..." (Jn 14:23); and "that they also may be one in Us...just as We are one..." (Jn 17:21, 22). This indicates that grace is one and granted by the Father through the Son. St. Paul explains this in all his letters: " Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ” (Rom.1: 7; 1Cor 1:3; Eph. 1:2)<sup>5</sup>.

* For there is one grace proceeding from the Father through the Son just as there is one light proceeding from the sun and its rays. Moreover, just as the sun shines through its rays, so does St. Paul send- in the same manner- his wishes to the people of Thessalonica and says: “Now may our God and Father Himself, and our Lord Jesus Christ, direct our way to you...” (1 Thes.3: 11). Consequently, the unity of the Father and the Son is maintained. St. Paul does not say: (God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ) “both grant” which would make it appear that the nature of grace proceeds from a dual source and granted by two entities- i.e. granted by each separately. Note that he uses the word ‘ grants Katavtheinai’ in order to underline that the Father grants grace through the Son.

Therefore this ‘one grace’ reveals the unity of the Father and the Son; and that all that is granted comes through the Son. There is nothing that the Father does without the Son and the grace that is granted in this manner is assured to those who accept it<sup>1</sup>.

The Grace of the Inheritance of the Kingdom of God

God created us so that we may enjoy immortality with Him who is our Father, and that we may have a place in His divine embrace. This is what preoccupied the heart and thoughts of the Lord Jesus Christ as He carried the shame of the Cross on our behalf: so that we may be granted the gift of His kingdom forever. Indeed, our Lord continues today to prepare for each of us a place for He is concerned about our eternal inheritance.

* How have we received grace ‘ before time infinite’ and while we were not even born? Yet we have been born at a time that, had grace not been deposited in the Lord, it would not have come to us. Consequently, on the Day of Judgment, when each one will receive according to his work, the Lord will say: “ Come you blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world (Matt 25; 34). Then how and through whom has this kingdom been prepared before the time of our creation? It can only be through the Lord: through Him and for this purpose the kingdom has been created before all time. By establishing us on that kingdom as an integral stone we are enabled to participate in the life and grace that He grants us<sup>2</sup>.

When St. John Chrysostom speaks to us about the grace of the Inheritance of the Kingdom he underlines that in this eternal kingdom we will enjoy the grace of being incorruptible. This does not mean that we will be deprived of our body that has shared in the strife with the soul and that has been sanctified through the action of the Holy Spirit. Rather, it means that the body will be cleaned from all traces of corruption and will bear the nature of being incorruptible and so be appropriately ready for eternal life.

* He wishes to say: I take off that which is foreign to me, and the flesh is not foreign, but it is corruption that is foreign. Consequently, he says: We do not wish to take it off (i.e. the tent of the body) but we wish to put over it - that is to wear it- that which is incorruptible. Therefore, we take off the corruptible and put on the incorruptible; for we wish to despise what came as a result of sin. At the same time, we attain all that which the divine grace has granted to us.

In order to understand that what we put away does not refer to the body but rather refers to corruption and to death, listen to what it latter on says immediately after that: “ For we do not want to take it off but we want to put on over it.” He did not say: ‘ So that that which is not carnal may devour that which is carnal.’ So what did he say? “ So that that which is dead may be devoured by life.” Therefore he is actually speaking about dismantling death and corruption rather than dismantling the body or the flesh...For life which comes to the body through (the resurrection) will not destroy it. Indeed, corruption and death that are found in the body are the destructive forces.

Therefore we groan due to the corruption that exists in the body and not due to the body in itself. The body is a heavy burden. This is not the result of its inherent nature but because of the corruption that entered into it later on. Moreover, the body in itself was not created to become corrupt but rather to be incorruptible. Besides the body still retains this feature even though it has become susceptible to corruption. This explains why the shadow of the apostles pursued the ethereal spirits. Even the clothes they wore healed the sick and restored their health. Do not tell me about the diseases of the body and other matters claimed by the opponents of the body; for all these things were not part of the nature of the body: they resulted from the corruption that entered into it later on.

If you desire to know the reality and worth of the body, study carefully how each member has been created, shaped, the intricacy of their functions and how they are coordinated and work harmoniously. Then you will be assured that such a performance is more ideal than the performance of any city that respects its laws and all its citizens are wise<sup>1</sup>.

The Grace of Being Immortal in Him

* For now the Word has become Man and has taken on all that pertains to the body, yet these aspects no longer affect the body since the Logos has resided within them and they have been destroyed through Him. Therefore mankind is no longer sinful and dead according to their own inclinations for they have risen according to the power of the Logos. Thus they remained incorruptible and unvanquished by death forever.

When the Lord Jesus Christ took on a body from St. Mary the mother of God, it was said that He was born although He is the One who grants the origin of life to others. Now He Himself has come to represent our origin so that we might not return to earth as being mere dust of the earth. For once we have become united with the Logos He has transferred all the other weaknesses of the body to Himself and thus granting us to participate in eternal life not as human beings but as someone who belongs to the Logos.

We no longer die on account of Adam and according to our first creation. For our origin and the weakness of our flesh has been transferred to the Logos. We now rise from the dust since He has washed the curse of sin away who lives within us and Who has become a curse for our sakes.

For we all who are of dust die on account of Adam. However, we have been renewed from above and the origin of our nature has been restored to us through the water and the Spirit. We have been revived through the Lord Jesus Christ and our bodies are no longer earthly. Indeed, it has become deified (as it has received the feature of the Logos). This is the result of the wisdom of God who for us became flesh<sup>2</sup>.

* For if you oppose the issue of my liberation from the corruption in my nature, then be careful not to oppose the Word of God Who has lifted up from me the image of slavery. It is He who became incarnate and became man and accordingly we have become deified by the Logos.

The Grace of Knowing and Enjoying the Divine Truth

God Almighty has created man with a yearning to become acquainted with the eternal and unchanging truth. The Lord Jesus Christ presented Himself as 'The Truth' and the person who receives Him consequently enjoys knowing the truth which is a free and divine grace.

* 'We know that the Son of God has come and has given us an understanding, that we may know Him who is true, in His Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God and eternal life (1Jn 5:20). And God adopted us that we became His children through the Lord Jesus Christ and through grace for we share His Spirit since '...as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name' (Jn 1: 12). Thus, the Son is the Truth and He says accordingly: " I am the Truth"; and when He speaks to the Father He says: " Sanctify them by Your truth. Your word is truth" (Jn 14:6; 17:17). By speaking with Him, we become righteous and we become His children<sup>1</sup>.

* It is evident that mankind is truly ignorant. The Logos, however, being Himself God the Word knows all things even before they occur. For when He became man He did not cease to be God, and He did not stay away from the concerns of man due to His being God. On the contrary, being God He became incarnate and in this way He deified that flesh. To answer all questions He resurrected the dead revealing that He who restores life and spirit to the dead ultimately possesses the secrets of everyone. He actually knows where Lazarus lay, for He is the Logos and the totally holy God who for our sake bore all things; but He still asks so that by partaking of our ignorance He grants us the grace of Knowledge. It is the grace of knowing His Father, the only true one, and of knowing that He is the Son who has been sent to redeem us all: what grace can be greater than this? <sup>2</sup>

* 'Thus my heart was grieved, and I was vexed in my mind. I was so foolish and ignorant; I was like a beast before you. Nevertheless I am continually with You' (Ps.73: 21-22)...That is how man appears: he is like a stray beast compared to - not Christ - but even to the angels. However, even if this is the case, we need not despair for the Lord 'preserves both man and beast' (Ps36: 6). Therefore, since I have learned through You and not through my own resources, I adhere to You constantly in order to stop being a beast. At this point You will tell me: "But as for you, stand here by Me...!"(Deut. 5:31). When man, due to his ignorance becomes arrogant and assuming - and that is comparable to bestiality; he has to start anew and become a man. This occurs when he is embraced by the grace of God. He will be enabled through reason and grace to prove that he is a human being by that very act. Consequently, he will rejoice for he has become separated from the stray beasts, and will have become one with those that God supports and protects. For what is man but he of whom the Lord is ' mindful' (Ps 8:4) <sup>3</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* The strings of ignorance can quickly be removed through human faith and divine grace.

Our sins too are erased through the medicine of God's Word. Hence all our sins are washed away and we are no longer attracted or confused when faced by sinful ways. We do not go back to the old nature we had before being washed since knowledge comes hand in hand with enlightenment: in one moment we, who are ignorant, hear that we have become the disciples of the Lord. All instruction leads to faith, and we learn faith as we get baptized by the Holy Spirit. That faith is the one and ultimate salvation for all mankind.

The Grace of Being Steadfast in the Father and the Son

* 'By this we know that we abide in Him, and He in us, because He has given us of His Spirit' (1 Jn.4: 13). Due to the grace of the Holy Spirit that has been granted to us we abide in God and He abides in us. The indication here is that through the coming of the Spirit of God to abide within us, we too are counted to be in God and He in us for we have the Spirit.

However, we do not abide in the Father in the same manner as the Son who exists in the Father. The Son is not a partaker of the Spirit in order to abide in the Father as a result. Moreover, He does not receive the Holy Spirit in the same manner that we do. Rather, it is the Son who grants the Holy Spirit to everyone.

The Holy Spirit does not tie the entity of the Logos to the Father but, to be more precise, it is the Holy Spirit that receives from the Logos. Note that the Son abides in the Father as He is the Father's own Word and the rays issuing from Him; whereas we are strangers to God if we lack the Holy Spirit or are estranged from Him. When we partake of the Holy Spirit we become united to God. As a result, we abide in the Father, not by our own merit but through the Holy Spirit that is within us. We have to strive to keep Him through confession and St. John says accordingly: 'Whoever confesses that Jesus is the Son of God, God abides in him, and he in God' (1 Jn. 4:15) <sup>1</sup>.

The Grace of Contentment and Joy

* 'My tears have been my food day and night while they continually say to me "Where is your God?"' (Ps 42:3). Tears are appropriately called bread/food here for there is a hunger for righteousness. "Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness for they shall be filled" (Matt 5:6). On that account the tears become as bread since they strengthen and support a person's heart (see Ps 104:15). See also the words written in the Septuagint that are relevant to this subject: 'Cast your bread upon the waters' (Eccl 11: 1: LXX) for this is where the bread of heaven is found: where there is the water of grace. Truly, it is out of the hearts of those who believe in Him that living water flows (see Jn 7: 38; 10:4). They will receive help and encouragement from the divine Word as well as food of a mystical (internal) nature. Besides, this living bread (Jn 6:51) is found where tears and crying are the result of repentance: it is written: "They shall come with weeping and with supplications I will lead them" (Jer 31:9 LXX). Consequently, blessed are those whose tears are their bread for they deserve to laugh and according to His word "blessed are you who weep!" (Lk 6:21) <sup>2</sup>.

* 'I went with them to the house of God, with the voice of joy and praise, with a multitude that kept a pilgrim feast' (Ps 42:4). Truly, He cried because he lived on this earth while the heavenly places were waiting for him He would enter into the sanctuary of the Almighty at the right time (Ps 84:2,3,10). He has truly preferred and pursued this course above all the wealth of his kingdom. He testifies to that in another place where he says: One thing I have desired of the Lord, that will I seek: that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life to behold the beauty of the Lord (Ps 27: 4). The beauty of the Lord is found in His Church.

The Church is the icon of heaven: after the shadow passes away the icon truly appears clearly (refer to Heb 10:1; Col 2:17)...and the shadow is the Jewish Council that includes the Law; whereas the truth resides in the Gospels. That is why the icon of truth shines in the light of the Gospels. This explains why the Psalmist wept as the blessings were withheld although they were abundant and perfectly available with grace and joy<sup>3</sup>.

St. Ambrose

The Grace of Light

* The soul crosses over from falsehood to the truth, and replaces the image of her dark life by one of ultimate grace. St. Paul the apostle and bride of our Lord Jesus Christ crossed over from such darkness and into the light. He tells his disciple Timothy, just as a bride would tell her bridesmaids, that he has become worthy to be beautiful even though he was previously a 'blasphemer, a persecutor, and an insolent man' (1 Tim. 1:13). He also says that the Lord came into the world to give light to those sitting in darkness. The Lord did not call the righteous but sinners to repentance; and thus they shone 'as lights in the world' (Phil 2:15). This occurs through the second birth that washes away the earlier dark image<sup>1</sup>.

* The queen of Ethiopia visited King Solomon after hearing about his wisdom. She offered him presents of gold, precious stones, and perfumes (1 Kgs. 10:1-3). The secret behind this visit is revealed through studying the wonders of the Holy Bible. It is important to know that the Church arose from a dark community and from among nations that worshipped idols. These lived without any knowledge of God and were separated from Him by an enormous gulf of ignorance. However, when the light of the grace of God and His wisdom shone, He sent the rays of the True Light to those sitting in darkness and the shadow of death. However, Israel shut its eyes to the Light and rejected any fellowship with goodness. In contrast, the Ethiopians, from among the heathen, hurried into the faith. Those who were far away drew close after they had washed themselves of the darkness by the holy water. The Holy Spirit led them to God and they presented gifts to the King: incense for asceticism and worship, gold for recognition of God the King, and precious stones for the commandments and acts of virtue<sup>2</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nyssa

The Grace of Preaching and Witnessing

* Why were the angels not sent to preach the Gospel? So that man would not have an excuse for his laziness and carelessness. He would have justified himself by claiming that human nature is different than that of angels for that is a great difference.

It is truly strange that the word pronounced by an earthly tongue has the power to uproot death, forgive sins, restore sight to the blind, and transform the earth into a heaven. This leads me to wonder about God's power. Besides, my wonder and respect increase for Paul's zeal to attain this grace and to orient and prepare himself in order to be worthy to receive it.

I encourage you to follow this high example of virtue rather than simply be amazed. In this manner you will also become worthy to share with him his crown. Do not be surprised to know that it is possible for anyone to become a servant like St. Paul if he follows his example and leadership. Then that person will repeat in his heart St. Paul's words: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. Finally, there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will give to me on that Day, and not to me only but also to all who have loved His appearing (2 Tim 4:7,8).

Notice how he invites everyone to join him in his achievements and consequently in the reward that is also offered and extended to all.

Let us all strive so as to prove ourselves worthy of receiving the blessings promised to us. Let us look at the greatness and glory of a virtuous life as well as meditate upon the fixed goal through which this grace will be attained. Let us be aware that Paul did not possess a nature that is different from ours in any way, for he was like us. This illustrates that what seems to be hard and impossible to us has become easy and light. For after a short time of struggle and work we too will wear the eternal crown of incorruption by the grace and goodness of the Lord Jesus Christ to whom is the glory and the power now and forever and to the end of all ages. Amen<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* We now find him revealing an ecclesiastical role as he says that those who have been led by grace and have become witnesses for the Word do not conceal the truth or keep it to themselves. Rather, they preach it to those who have followed them. That is why the virgins tell the bride, who has met the truth face to face at first and enjoyed goodness and who has now deserved to become acquainted with the hidden mysteries: “ We will be glad and rejoice in you, we will remember your love more than wine” (Song of Sol 1:4)<sup>2</sup>.

A Dynamic Grace

For our benefit, the following is said of the Lord Jesus Christ: ‘ And the Child grew and became strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon Him’ (Lk 2:40). Also this verse: ‘And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and men’ (Lk. 2:40). Origen comments: [He made Himself of no reputation, taking the form of a servant (Phil. 2: 7)...by the same power used to empty Himself He also grew]. In this manner He brings us to the path of constant growth in grace. For the grace within us is the result of God’s constant and uninterrupted dynamic work.

*The use of growth here refers to the growth of the body for through the growth of the body of the Lord Jesus Christ God is proclaimed all the more (through the humanity of the Savior) to those who see Him. And as His divinity becomes more apparent, the grace of His humanity increases as He stands as a person before all peoples. Thus as a child He was carried to the Temple, then as a young boy He remained there and discussed the Law with the priests so that ‘they were astonished at His understanding and answers’ (Lk 2:47)<sup>3</sup>.

* The Child Jesus grows in various ways within the hearts of those who receive and want Him to live in them: in wisdom, in stature, and in grace (Lk 2:52).

The Lord lives within every pure heart yet in a different way and according to the stature of the person in whom He Lives. He reveals Himself according to the capacity of each one. He therefore appears as a Child or a youth or a mature person just as fruit appears on a branch.

The Lord does not appear in the same way on the Vine for He changes His aspect as time goes by: first as a bud, then taking root, then maturing, blossoming, and finally turning into wine.

When the vine bears fruit it brings with it the promise: it is true that it is not yet ripe enough to give wine but He waits until it reaches the stage of ripeness. At the same time we are not deprived of joy for we are gladdened the sense of smell as an alternative to taste giving hints of what will be. Through the perfume of hope He grants sweetness to the senses of the soul.

Steadfast faith in the hope for grace becomes a source of joy to us who are waiting patiently. Similarly, our energy and struggle bears the promise of wine. There is no wine but the seed of hope will take root and awaits grace which has not been granted as yet<sup>1</sup>.

* Although the stage a person has reached now is really higher than where he was before yet this stage does not limit his progress: it becomes the beginning of discovering a higher grace.

A person who ascends never stops for he constantly moves from one new point to the following one; and the starting points for higher grace are infinite. Therefore the desire of the ascending soul to find knowledge and to go to higher levels keeps increasing and continues to develop. This promotes progress towards the Infinite<sup>2</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nyssa

An All- Embracing Grace

* “I have become all things to all men, that I might by all means save some”(1 Cor 9:22). Divine grace is poured on both the righteous and the wicked (Matt.5: 45).

Is He the God of the Jews only or is He also the God of the Gentiles? Indeed, He is the God of the Gentiles as well, and He is truly the One and only God (Rom. 3:29-30). This is what the sublime apostle proclaims<sup>3</sup>.

St. Clement of Alexandria

* Thanks be to God for although the grace of adoption had been limited to Israel it has now become a greater grace than all what was allocated for them. Now it has been poured over the Gentiles through the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>4</sup>.

Origen

* Here is another point to contemplate on: ‘Truly God is good to Israel, to such as are pure in heart’ (Ps 73:1). Does this mean that God is not good to everyone else? He is truly good to all for He is the Savior of all mankind and particularly of believers. That is why the Lord Jesus Christ came: in order to save those who were lost (Lk 19:10).

He has truly come to carry the sins of the world (Jn 1:29), and to heal our wounds, yet not all wish to be healed!

Many avoid Him! Lest the leprosy be injected with medicine and so lose its power? He therefore heals those who wish to be healed and who do not reject Him.

Those who wish to be treated regain their health. As for those who resist the Doctor and do not call Him, they will not enjoy His goodness since they have not tried Him!

A person who has been healed regains health and the Doctor is good to those to whom health has been restored. Accordingly, God is good to those whose sins have been forgiven. Nevertheless, if a person has an incurable sin in his soul, how can he/she evaluate that the Doctor is good while at the same time he is avoiding Him?

To reiterate what we have said earlier, the apostle explains, therefore, that God ‘ desires all men to be saved ...’ (1 Tim 2:4), and that He is good to all men. Concerning the grace of the goodness of God Himself, it is guaranteed to all believers. These receive assistance by His goodwill and grace. However, when the psalmist says: ‘ Truly God is good to Israel, to such as are pure in heart...’ he is expressing the feelings of those who do not know how to enjoy what belongs to God specifically other than that He is good to all and abides in all<sup>1</sup>.

St. Ambrose

The Giver of Grace Prays for on our Account

* When the Savior says “All authority has been given to Me...”(Matt 28: 18); and “...glorify Your Son...”(Jn 17:1); and when Peter says: “...angels and authorities and subjects having been made subject to Him” (1 Peter 3:22), we need to understand all these passages in the same light. By that I mean that the Savior utters all these as a human being due to the flesh He has put on. Although He has no need for anything yet He has received everything as a human being and the words are reported as ones spoken by the Lord as one of mankind.

Consequently, as much as the Lord has received, and as much as grace has rested on Him, it is preserved for us. When someone takes for himself alone there is the chance of his losing that which he has received. This occurred in the case of Adam for he lost what he had received.

In order to make grace final - and never confiscated- and preserved for mankind, the Savior received it for Himself and stated that He received authority as a human being. This is the same authority He has always owned as a God.

Hence He who grants glory to others prays: “ Glorify Me...” to indicate that He has a body that needs authority and glory. We conclude from this that when He put on the flesh it became the flesh of the Savior who became man in particular. That is why it is reported that it is the Savior who received what was granted to Him<sup>2</sup>.

St. Athanasius the Apostolic

* The Logos appeared among us to redeem mankind. He became incarnate in order to sanctify and deify us (that is why He became flesh). It therefore becomes clear to everyone that when he became flesh He received the gifts of the Holy Spirit for our sake and not for His own. For the gifts of the Holy Spirit that are granted by the Father through the Son are given for the benefit of that body that He put on all the while He spoke and dwelled among men.

Let us meditate on the instructions that God demanded; and on what were these gifts that we are told He had been granted. Hopefully the heretics would regain their reason through such an exercise. We wonder that He prayed to be glorified (Jn 17: 1), yet He said: “All things have been delivered Me by My Father...” (Lk 10:22). After the Resurrection, the Lord says that He has received all authority on earth and in heaven (see Matt 28:18). Even before that He actually said: “All things were given to Me” for He is Lord of all for all things were made through Him” (Jn I: 3). We also find in! Cor 8:6 that there is ‘ one Lord Jesus Christ through whom are all things, and through whom we live.” When He prayed for glory, He was the Lord of glory as He always has been. St. Paul comments: “For had they known, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory,”(1 Cor 2: 8). Also when He prays for glory, He says: “ ...glorify Me together with Yourself, with the glory which I had with You before the world was”; He refers to the glory that He originally had before<sup>1</sup>.

Inspirations drawn from The Gospel of John Chapter One

My Heart Thirsts For You, O Giver of all Grace

*How do I see You coming to our world
While it is impossible for me to ascend to your heavens!
It is Your love that made You come to Me, You who are the Word and Creator.
You descended to earth to accompany me on my journey!

*Your incarnation proclaimed your amazing love for me,
My heart is moved and I thirst for You O giver of grace.
You are my life and without You I do not exist.
You are my light and without You I remain in the darkness of my corruption.
You have counted me as one of yours, and have descended so that I may adhere to You!

*By your sublime grace You have lifted me up
Every grace from You draws me to enjoy a new flow of graces.
You have created me into being from nothingness,
You have granted me to be in Your image and likeness,
You have offered me the law to assist me and it leads me to realize that I need You.
And finally You have offered Yourself to me, O giver of all grace!
You opened my eyes to behold the grandeur of Your glory!
Your brilliance proclaims that You are the only Son of God!

*My ears have been opened to hear the call, the voice crying in the wilderness!
That voice that echoes as though in a vast wild desert,
Yet it is a sweet voice that is a forerunner to You O divine Word.
His voice proclaims the Truth,
For You are eternal and One with Your Father.
His voice proclaims his unworthiness to loosen Your sandal straps,
For the mystery of Your incarnation remained until You completed the task of redemption on the Cross.
Allow me to come and loosen the stings of Your shoes,
So that Your Holy Spirit may reveal to me the mystery of Your salvation!

* The unborn child John recognized You and shouted joyfully.
Elizabeth heard his voice within her and her tongue sang in praise!
Yet he did not consider this recognition of any value when he experienced Your baptism!
He introduced You as the One who baptizes with the Fiery Holy Spirit.
You alone are the One who washes the soul with a unique water,
And inflames the heart with the fire of the Holy Spirit.

*Your counterpart draw the eyes of all to You as he cried:
Behold! The Lamb of God of whom the prophets wrote and yearned to see!
This is the Lamb of God and the source of the Father's joy!

*John was happy when his disciples were drawn to You to live with You.
His soul rejoiced to see each one witness to You.
Their hearts were moved to call one another to come to You.
As with Nathaniel, they all left the shade of the dying fig tree,
And came to see the angels ascending and descending around You!
They saw the heavens opened and the heavenly hosts yearning to serve You!
Indeed, my heart thirsts for You,
I will not be satisfied by any other but You, O Source of all grace!

CHAPTER 2

THE BRIDEGROOM The Giver of Joy to the Soul

The Wedding in Cana

In Chapter One, St. John the Evangelist introduces the first disciples. Now, in Chapter two, he presents the first miracle, which is the changing of water into wine at the wedding in Cana of Galilee. The Lord had just begun His service in a new Messianic era in which the waters of purification according to the old Law are turned into wine of a new order.

The Jews were anxiously waiting for the Messianic era that would be marked by a bounty of blessings and ultimate joy. Baruch 2:29 expresses this concept: ‘ On every vine there are one thousand branches, every branch bears a thousand bunches, every bunch carries one thousand grapes, and every grape includes a cor of wine (about 120 gallons)...this will be enjoyed by those who will be living when the world comes to an end.’ Pappias borrowed this view when he wished to imagine the time of the Lord’s coming in order to rule for a thousand years, and what His kingdom will include in the nature of imaginary vines<sup>1</sup>.

In the Gospel according to St. Mark the Lord Jesus Christ begins His ministry as He ‘ came to Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God...’ (Mk 1:14). In the Gospel of St. John, the evangelist tells us about the beginning of this joyful message by the Lord’s attendance at the wedding in Cana of Galilee and changing the water into wine. He preached through His presence and by restoring joy to the newly wedded and their families and friends. For the kingdom of God is like ten virgins who ‘ went out to meet the bridegroom...’ (Matt 25:1); or ‘ like a king who arranged a wedding for his son’ (Matt 22:1). In the case of Jesus Christ, His presence among His disciples changed their lives into a wedding. When He was asked:

“Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but Your disciples do not fast?” Jesus said to them: “...As long as they have the bridegroom with them they cannot fast. But the day will come when the bridegroom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast in those days” (Mk 2:18-20). St. Paul the apostle says: “ ...old things have passed away; behold all things have become new” (2 Cor 5:17).

Inviting the Lord and His disciples to the wedding was not meaningless for if the Lord Jesus Christ is the bridegroom then the disciples are the first born of the Church of the New Testament: they are the spiritual bride. It is as though the wedding in Cana has been performed according to the Jewish Law and tradition. In its center there is a hidden wedding of which no one was aware: the wedding of the Lord Jesus Christ to His Church which would last forever and until its proclamation on the great Day of the Lord (Rev 21:2) and not for just one week according to the Jewish custom (Gen 29:27; Judges 14:12).

In this Chapter, the Evangelist confirms the following truths:

1- The Lord started His ministry with the wedding in order to reveal His love for mankind. He wishes to carry all peoples to heaven as to the bridegroom’s chamber. We will consequently partake of the heavenly joy, and shine as we reflect the brilliance of His glory. The Lord affirms that He has come to the world in order to transform our lives into a joyful wedding: the transformation of the waters of our lives into wine is an indication of our eternal spiritual joy (Is.55:1; Eph. 5:18-20).

* The Word of God descended from heaven to earth in order to become the Bridegroom of our human nature. He has made our nature His dwelling place so as to engage and lead her. Ultimately this would result in the birth of spiritual wisdom within us.

St. Cyril the Great

* He who made wine at the wedding in Cana and changed the water in the six pots is He Himself who does the same thing every year in the vineyards... such an act no longer arouses wonder due to its continual repetition<sup>1</sup>.

* Is it not amazing that He came to that house for the wedding, and He came to this world for a wedding? Actually, if He has come to a wedding then there is certainly a bride there. Yet, what does the apostle say? “For I have betrothed you to one husband, that I may present you as a chaste virgin to Christ (2 Cor 11:2)... That is how He has a bride here whom He has redeemed with His blood, has granted her the Holy Spirit as a pledge, and has liberated her from the chains of Satan. He has died for her sins and rose again to grant her justification (Rom 4:25). Who would offer such matters to his bride?”<sup>2</sup>

* The bridegroom who was told: “...you have kept the good wine until now” [2:10] is the Lord Jesus Christ who has preserved the new wine- that is the Gospel- until now<sup>3</sup>.

St. Augustine

2- The Lord transformed the water of purification into wine as his first task is to transfer us from the literal understanding of the Law - where it speaks of purification- to the joy of the Spirit. Hence we would live in a new age with a new beginning. The Lord began His work with the two young wedded persons to underline His interest in youth. He requested to be their friend in order to grant them unending joy.

3- As the Lord brings us into His eternal wedding, He holds it in His holy Temple. Therefore, He cleansed the Temple [2:13-17]. The Jews requested a miracle [18], but He offered the miracle of His death and resurrection [19]. His enemies did not understand His words and even tried to distort them. However, His friends perceived its meaning after His resurrection (Matt 26:62; 27:40; Jn 10:18). The Evangelist takes us from the wedding to the Passover to show us our Lord as He purges the Temple from the sellers and moneychangers. He affirms that the new Temple will be built in three days [19] and so guides our eyes away from the stone temple to the temple in the inner soul where God will build His Kingdom. That is how we have come to possess a new Temple in a new age: a temple that neither grows old nor aged.

‘On the third day there was a wedding in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there’ [1].

‘On the third day...’ This is how the Evangelist indicates that with every new day the Lord Jesus went about doing a new service and a new act. Not a single day of His life on earth passed away without His doing services. In the same manner the lives of all those who are close to the Lord are spent in work and not a single day is lost in idleness.

The statement ‘On the third day...’ carries a symbolic significance since the Lord Jesus Christ Himself came to His Church to celebrate His wedding to her in the third age. The first age was that of the Fathers before the Law was given. The second age is that of the Fathers who lived under the Law. And the third is the age of grace in which the true Light shone on the world to dissipate its darkness.

* The wedding is celebrated on the third day- that is in the last age of the world- for the number three indicates the beginning, the middle, and the end<sup>1</sup>.

* The wedding takes place on the third day- that is at the end of all ages (in the fullness of time). The number three denotes the beginning, middle, and end: these are the three perspectives of all time. This agrees with the saying of one of the prophets: “ He has stricken, but He will bind us up. After two days He will revive us: On the third day He will raise us up...that we may live in His sight” (Hosea 6:1- 3).

St. Cyril the Great

By saying ‘Cana of Galilee’ the Evangelist wishes to distinguish it from the one with the same name found in Ephraim in the region of Samaria (Joshua 16:8; 17:9).

The Lord began His Ministry in Cana of Galilee the place of the tribe of Asher (Joshua 19:28). Jacob had foretold this, when he blessed the tribes, saying: “ Bread from Asher will be rich, and he shall yield royal dainties...” (Genesis 49:20). Hence the Lord comes to Asher and offers rich bread to the soul and spiritual dainties to the spiritual kings. The Lord began His work in a small corner of the kingdom, isolated from the capital ‘Jerusalem’ in order to proclaim that He has come to serve rather than seek glory from people. He came to serve the simple who do not resist like the Scribes, Pharisees, chief priests, and other religious leaders.

Bede considers that Cana of Galilee means ‘ zeal to immigrate.’ It is as though the spiritual wedding is fulfilled with those who have zeal for the race to immigrate away from imperfection to virtues, from the earthy to the heavenly based on hope and love.

* By attending to detail we notice that the celebration did not take place in Jerusalem but rather outside Judea. The meeting for the event took place in the country of the Gentiles (Matt 4: 15). It is very clear that the Council of the Jews rejected the heavenly King. Yet, the Church of the Gentiles received Him with a rejoicing heart<sup>2</sup>.

St. Cyril the Great

This is the first Christian wedding to ever take place in the world. It happened according to God’s will otherwise the friends of the groom would not have invited the Lord and His disciples. Besides, the presence of the holy virgin Mary indicated her concern for the wedded for she was a living example of the pure bride who opens her heart with love for everyone.

‘...the mother of Jesus was there...’[1] probably not as one of the guests but as one of the family. This would explain why she realized that they had run out of wine. The guest would not have known that for only those hosting the wedding would be concerned. This is important since in this wedding the Lord performs His first miracle in which He links the Old with the New Testament. Since the Virgin Mary descends from the tribe of Judah - one of the families in the Old Testament- she intercedes to her Son in order to restore the lost salvation. The wine of joy had run out, the prophets had been absent for a long time, and sadness and bitterness prevailed among the people.

The indication that Jesus and His disciples came to the wedding and stayed for the celebration reveals the spirit of the newly weds, their families, and their friends. They all walked in the path of the Lord. They did not plan for Jesus to come and leave after a short while so that they could switch their behavior and rejoice in an immoral and inappropriate manner.

* The Lord attended a wedding once only. This teaches us that a woman should marry once only (as long as her husband is alive. This fact would seem to oppose virginity if we were to fail in giving marriage its rightful significance...the heretics are the only ones who despise marriage and by doing so they step over the Lord's commandments. As for us, we listen joyfully to the Lord's words as He praises marriage. The Church does not condemn marriage but rather regulates it by a clause of submission<sup>1</sup>.

ST Jerome

* The Lord attended the wedding with the main intention of achieving a miracle and not just merely to share in the celebration. Indeed, He wished to sanctify the beginning of a new physical birth for mankind. This is appropriately done by Him who has come to renew the nature of men and bring it into a totally better state. He carries this blessing not only to those who have been born already but also promises it to all who will be born in the future and therefore sanctifying their arrival into this world...through the sanctification of marriage He has put an end to the old sadness and regret of being born<sup>2</sup>.

* He came (to the wedding) to sanctify the beginning of His birth - I mean His birth according to the flesh...with the purpose of providing grace and offering it to those to be born. Consequently, He ensures a sanctified birth for them too...

* Women have been informed by God "In pain you shall bring forth children" (Gen 3:16). Was it not of greater urgency to abolish this curse? Otherwise, how do we prevent a fatal marriage? Yet, because our Savior loves mankind, He is the One who can remove this curse since He is at the core of our joy and happiness. He honored the marriage celebration by attending and so eliminated the shame previously associated with pregnancy. If anyone lives in the Lord then he is a new creature, and the "old things have passed away; behold, all things have become new" (2 Cor 5:17).

* The Savior did not attend the wedding due to His will alone but because He had been invited. That is He was urged and begged by saintly voices. However, the wine ran out and the partakers had none left: this is a reference to the law that does not achieve perfection, and to the Law of Moses that did not give joy. Besides, the laws of nature ingrained within us were incapable of redeeming us.

St. Cyril the Great

* We have stated earlier that the Lord was known in Galilee and therefore was invited to the wedding. He responded to the invitation for He did not think of His honor but rather His goodness to us. It is He who did not reject to take the form of a slave (Phil 2:7), therefore it seems logical and befitting that He would not resent attending the wedding of His slaves. He is the same who sat with tax collectors and sinners (Matt 9:10) and so it is befitting that He would not reject to be present at the wedding.

Those who invited the Lord were unable to show appropriate acknowledgement to Him. They did not extend an invitation fit for a great One for they invited Him as a simple person and as one of many that they knew. The Evangelist presents this meaning indirectly as he says: '...the mother of Jesus was there...'; so they had invited Him just as they had invited her<sup>3</sup>.

<sup>3</sup> Homilies on St. John, Hom.21:1.

St. John Chrysostom

‘And when they ran out of wine, the mother of Jesus said to Him, “ They have no wine”[3]

The Evangelist does not mention that St. Mary had been invited to the wedding. Until that point he just says that the Lord Jesus Christ and His disciples- five of them- had been invited. However, she was there probably because she was one of the members of the family.

When the Lord Jesus Christ is invited through prayer, He comes and brings His saints (disciples) with Him. This transforms the wedding into a sanctified Church, and He blesses generously the newly wedded and all those present from the springs of His heavenly joy.

Some may wonder: Since the Lord had not yet performed any miracles, how did the holy mother Mary know that He could provide wine at the wedding in a miraculous manner?

Although the Lord Jesus Christ had not made any miracle publicly so far, yet St. Mary knew of His divine power, righteousness, and gentleness. She was certain He would do something to fulfill all the needs of the wedding. She was sure that He would step in when necessary to respond to and satisfy any need.

* It is appropriate to wonder how the mother got the notion that there is an element of greatness in her Son. He had not done any miracle yet and the Evangelist states: ‘ This is the beginning of signs Jesus did in Cana of Galilee...’[11]...indeed, the pregnancy itself and the events around it inspired in her great thoughts concerning Him. Significantly, St. Luke comments: “...His mother kept all these things in her heart...” as she heard all these things about the Child (refer to Lk 2:51).

St. John Chrysostom

“ They have no wine”[3]: This is the condition of Israel ever since they have lost the joy of salvation. The prophet Joel tells them: “Awake, you drunkards, and weep and wail, all you drinkers of wine, for it has been cut off from your mouth...”(Joel 1:5). The mother of the Lord, the daughter of Israel, discovered what had happened to her people and therefore shouted out to the heavenly bridegroom. He alone could provide an endless flow of wine and oil (Jn 2:7). On behalf of all mankind, she echoes what her father David says in Psalm 51: ‘ Restore to me the joy of Your salvation...’

What the holy Virgin proclaims is the result of her own experience of the new heavenly wedding. She had realized it when she bent her head down and accepted the incarnation of the Word in her womb. Her depths had then become an unspeakable wedding celebration and she sang : “ My soul magnifies the Lord and my spirit has rejoiced in God my Savior...: (Lk1:46).This is the wine of God that brings joy to the spirit, and restores glory and brilliance. Consequently, believers enjoy a constant wedding: “ And as the bridegroom rejoices over the bride, so shall your God rejoice over you” (Is. 62:5).

The way the holy Virgin Mary acted reveals the motherhood of a believer and the concern to respond to the needs of others rather than one’s own needs. A believer turns first to the Source to receive abundantly and in greater measure than from any other. Moreover, the request is made in a spirit of humbleness as a person presents the situation without offering the solution to God and as though claiming to be more knowledgeable or more loving to others than the almighty Lord.

* God is exceedingly generous and He does not despise us as we struggle and hunger for His riches<sup>1</sup>.

St. Cyril the Great

‘Jesus said to her: “ Woman, what does your concern have to do with Me? My hour has not yet come.” [4]

The Lord did not blame the newly wedded or their parents for not having bought enough wine; neither did He blame His Mother for being concerned. He simply underlined that for every action there is an appropriate and convenient time.

Some wonder why the Lord called His mother ‘ woman.’ However, this vanishes when we find Him on the Cross and He repeats these words: “ Woman, behold your son!” He speaks to her at the beginning of His miraculous deeds to indicate that the process of carrying His Cross has started. As His Person is increasingly revealed, the powers of darkness are enraged and plot for His death. He is not addressing her as His mother since it is not for her to define the hour of His crucifixion. Indeed, it is in the hands of the Father who has sent Him; for the Lord Jesus Christ came to fulfill the Father’s will that He sacrifice Himself to redeem and save the world.

It is true that the holy Virgin Mary was there for His first miracle, yet she was unaware that it was the opening hour of the crucifixion. She remained with Him until the last moment of the crucifixion as she is the representative of the Church. She is the new Eve who accompanies the Second Adam along the path of pain and so He pours His glory over her. After she became pregnant and carried the Lord in her womb, she was told: “...a sword will pierce through your own soul also...”...it started to pierce her soul at the wedding in Cana of Galilee to carry the wounds inflicted by love!

He Lord did not say “ O mother” but rather “ O woman..”, because what He was doing as He transformed the water into wine is not enacted of a man who has taken flesh from her but occurs as a result of His divinity. It is true that there is no separation between His divinity and His humanity, and that his actions result from His being the word of God incarnates, yet some acts result specifically from Him as the only Son of God while others proceed from Him as the Son of Man.

Why did He say: “ My hour has not yet come” yet He did do a miracle at that same time? He wished to clarify to her that the time to publicly enact miracles before the crowds had not yet come even though His work is continuous. He performed the miracle so quietly after the servants brought the water pots to Him that the master of the feast and the bridegroom did not get to know. The servants were the only ones who knew about it [9].

* In order to be convinced that the Lord respected His mother, listen to the words of St. Luke as he states that He ‘...was subject to them’ (Lk 2:51); while St. John reveals how He was providing for her in the actual moments of His crucifixion. When the parents do not present obstacles in matters concerning God yet they need to prepare the way for them and it would become a serious danger if that were not so. Nevertheless, if they were to demand an impossible request that would form an obstacle in any spiritual matter then it would be dangerous to obey! The Lord's answer is a result of that situation, and He replies in another incident by saying: "Who is My mother and who are My brothers...?" (Matt 12:48). This is because they did not think of Him as they should have. As the virgin Mary had given birth to Him, she wanted to direct Him in all things just as other mothers do. However, she needed to honor and worship Him. That explains His response in such situations<sup>1</sup>.

* The Lord was concerned for others and He used every means to inculcate the right idea concerning Himself. Therefore how much more concerned would He be with informing His mother of such matters<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

St. John Chrysostom believes that the Lord would have wished that the request came from those who had the need rather than from His mother. If what the Lord did was in response to the request of a friend, even though it was a great deed, yet some would be suspicious. Whereas if those in need had asked, then there would be no doubts concerning the miraculous act and hence it would have greater benefit. St. John Chrysostom likens the Lord to a skillful physician who enters a house full of sick people and although he does not speak to any of the sick or their relatives; yet He speaks only to his mother. This would annoy every body and arouse suspicions.

* The Lord wished to indicate that he did everything at the appropriate time and does not do everything instantaneously...He is not obligated necessarily by the times for He has set the order of the seasons and has created them. Consequently, He says "My hour has not yet come." By this He indicates that He has neither been revealed to many nor does He have a body of followers as yet...

Besides, it is as though the Lord is telling her that He should be informed by others rather than by His mother otherwise they would be suspicious of the miracle. It is appropriate that those who need the wine to come and speak to Him- although He is already aware of their need and does not need to be informed of it-but this would make them unanimously welcome and recognize the miraculous deed fully

When a person is needy, he becomes thankful upon receiving help, whereas someone who does not feel needy will not have any clear feelings towards a benefit he receives<sup>1</sup>.

* While He is being respectful to His mother yet He is more concerned with the salvation of her soul. He performs that which is beneficial to many and to accomplish that He came in the flesh. Therefore His words proceed from Someone who is stern with His mother but rather from Him who is wise in His plans. He leads her to think correctly, and wishes to ensure that His miracle is accepted with the honor due to it<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord does not wish to rush into any action as He does not desire to appear as a miracle maker to someone who has not requested anything. Indeed, He waits until the needy invite Him rather than satisfy those who are merely curious. He grants grace to the needy and not to mere spectators seeking to enjoy some sight.

St. Cyril the Great

* The Lord of the angels is not subject to time for He has created the times and hours as part of His creation. However, the holy Virgin desired that He would do a miracle when the wine expired. That explains why the Lord immediately answered and as though to tell her clearly: ‘I can do a miracle through my Father and not through My mother.’ For He who has the same nature as the Father worked miracles that issued from the mother, and this enabled Him to die which He did when He died on the Cross. He knew His mother and He entrusted her to His disciple with these words: “Behold your mother!”(Jn 19:27). Therefore, by saying: “ Woman, what does you concern have to do with Me? My hour has not yet come”, He wished to convey that ‘ the miracle is not a natural part of you and I do not recognize you in it. When the hour of My death comes, then I will know that you are My mother since having accepted that in you I know that I can die’<sup>3</sup>.

Pope Gregory the Great

Saint Bede adopted the same opinion when he stated that the Lord appears to say: ‘ there is nothing in common between what I have always possessed through the Father and the body which I took from you in the flesh. The hour has not come when I will prove the human weakness which I have taken from you. First let Me underline My divine and everlasting power.’ Nevertheless the hour will come when that which He shares with His mother will be revealed and that occurs when He dies on the Cross as well as when He entrusts His chaste disciple to look after the holy Virgin. When the Lord suffers human weakness He recognizes His mother from whom He inherited this weakness; but when He performs divine acts He appears as One who does not know her. This is due to His knowledge that she is not the source of His divine birth.

His mother said to the servants “ Whatever He says to you, do it ”[9]

She did not reprimand her Son for His words to her for she understood the mystery at least to a certain extent. She also sensed some signs of acknowledgement so she asked the servants to obey the instructions of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Evangelist uses the Greek word ‘ diaconis’ to reveal that they are the servants fulfilling the divine mysteries and which the Lord adopts to serve His people and bring them joy. The Church of the New Testament uses the term ‘diaconin’ for the deacons who serve at the altar and at the tables (being concerned with the needs of the poor and the sick...).

Being confident in the love of the Lord to serve and in His tenderness, she was sure that He would definitely act and satisfy every shortage. The Holy Virgin asked the servants to turn to Him and obey Him. This is the role of the holy Saint Mary and all the saints: to draw our attention to our Lord and obey Him completely.

* She began to work by orienting the servants so that would readily obey Him always.

St. Cyril the Great

* She knew that He abstained out of humility and not out of weakness. In order to avoid the assumption that He is imposing Himself and voluntarily rushing to work a miracle, she brought the servants to Him<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

St. John Chrysostom finds that St. Mary gives us a practical lesson in perseverance through her act. For in spite of the Lord’s response to her, she did not stop working, called the servants, and asked them to obey Him.

‘ Now there were set there six water pots of stone, according to the manner of purification of the Jews, containing twenty or thirty gallons a piece.’[6]

Six pots were used to correspond to the days of the week from Sunday to Friday, each pot consecrated for a specific day for purification. As for Saturday, it was a day for worship and rest—no one did any work that required purification.

It is not strange that the Lord transforms the water into wine, for it is He who extracts wine from the earth (Ps 104:14 -15) as He grants the soil to produce vines whose grapes are then pressed and made into wine.

Moses started his miracles during the ten plagues by changing the water into blood that carried bitterness and death. All had broken the Law and were therefore subject to a curse and death. As for the Lord Jesus Christ , He turned the water into wine for He offers the joyful message of salvation. Indeed, He came to save the world and not to condemn it. He came to grant inner fullness and joy. His evangelical invitation is : “Ho! Everyone who thirsts, come to the waters...come buy and eat...buy wine and milk” (Is 55:1).

These water pots were used for purification since it was not acceptable for a Jew to eat unless he washed first (Mk 7:3). This water was also used for other rituals relating to purification. A popular saying among the Jews was: ‘The one who uses water the most to wash himself

These water pots were used solely for water, and wine was not put in them. They were made of stone so that no trace would be left if they had been used for wine before. This is different in the case of clay water pots as they would absorb the old liquids and lend their taste to the new. The water pots were made of stone: Zechariah had seen the stone placed before the face of the Lord and it had seven eyes (Zech. 3:9). This indicates that he had spiritual knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ. St. Peter the apostle also saw Him as a living stone that would be used to build the altar of the Lord (1Peter2:4,5).

St. John Chrysostom notes that the Evangelist stresses that this is 'according to the manner of purification of the Jews' so that all may be aware that they were never used for wine but only for water for purification. He also notes that Palestine is a country known for scarcity of water- there are no canals or sources available every where. Therefore people used to fill water pots with water so that they would not have to rush to the river when they got desecrated at any time. In this way they had instant access to the means of purification<sup>1</sup>.

Some believe that the six water pots refer to the six periods of the world that humanity has traversed until the advent of the Lord that will occur in the seventh period (the seventh seal in the Book of the Revelation). It seems to point to believers across the years and generations who have been purified from their sins and drink the joyful spiritual wine. According to St. Augustine are:

- A. From Adam to Noah
- B. From Noah to Abraham
- C. From Abraham to David
- D. From David to the Babylonian Exile
- E. From the Babylonian Exile to John the Baptist
- F. From John the Baptist to the end of the world

St. Augustine goes on to say: [ Add to that the fact that God created man in His image on the sixth day; and in the sixth period He proclaimed the renewal of our minds through the Gospel so that we might become in the image of our Creator. Moreover the water was transformed into wine so that we might taste the Lord. This is proclaimed in the Law and by the prophets. That is why there were six water pots and He ordered that they be filled with water. These water pots now indicate the six periods that were not without prophecies; and they were divided and were separated, as it were, from the joints...and they will remain empty if the Lord does not fill them up...it is necessary to comprehend and find the Lord in each of these prophecies<sup>2</sup>].

What do these words convey: '...containing twenty or thirty gallons apiece'[6]? St. Augustine explains that the word 'rain' in the Greek language 'metpou' refer to a certain unit of measure and that the number 'two' refers to the Father and the Son, while 'three' refers to the Holy Trinity. Note that the Evangelist does not say 'some water pots containing two and others three gallons of rain' but said that 'each one had the capacity to contain two or three gallons of rain.’ In the Books of the Old Testament, the prophecies speak about the Father and the Son (the Lord Jesus Christ) and this included references to the Holy Spirit since He is the Spirit of the Father and the Son at the same time. St. Augustine finds that [ the Holy Spirit is the Spirit of love that binds the Father and the Son together. When allusion is made to two the reference is the Holy Trinity even though this is not expressed. When the allusion to three occurs then the reference is to the Holy Trinity and it is clearly expressed<sup>1</sup>].

We stated earlier that the six water pots refer to the six periods that would transpire and lead to the wedding of the Lord Jesus Christ with the Church that is made up of all nations<sup>2</sup>.

1- The first water pot starts with Adam who carries a union with Eve and so become one body (Gen.2:24). This is similar to the union between the Lord Jesus Christ and His Church (Eph. 3:31). They are the parents of all mankind and not of the Jews only.

2- The second water pot starts with Noah the representative of the Lord Jesus Christ, and he placed in his ark animals and birds from all over the world.

3- The third water pot refers to Abraham, who through his seed , all nations were blessed.

4- The fourth water pot is David who sang : “ Arise, O God, judge the earth; for you shall inherit all nations” (Ps 82:8). The tune was set by Asaph the singer.

5- The fifth water pot is the Babylonian exile when Daniel the prophet sees the Lord Jesus Christ as a small stone cut out without human hands and it filled the whole earth(Daniel 2:34).

6- The sixth water pot relates to John the Baptist the greatest born of women. It is said of him that he is greater than a prophet (Matt 11:11). He prophesied about the Lord Jesus Christ and that the Lord is sent for all nations as he says: “...God is able to raise up children to Abraham from these stones” (Matt 3:9). This is how St. Augustine sees that the sixth water pot has witnessed the marriage of the Lord Jesus Christ and His Church that is formed of all nations. [ Because we come from these nations, yet we could not have come from her if God had not raised from the stones children to Abraham. We have become Abraham’s children as we have emulated his faith and not by being born of him according to the flesh<sup>3</sup>].

‘ Jesus said to them: “ Fill the pots with water.” And they filled them up to the brim’[7].

The Lord could have created wine from nothing, yet He transformed the water into wine to stress that He did not come to ignore or abolish the Law. Rather He came to perfect it. Hence the Gospel is a spiritual extension to the Law without being literal. Besides, He intended that those who brought and drank of the water to become themselves witnesses to the actual miracle and testify that it was not mere fantasy.

St. Augustine finds that the water here refers to the Old Testament and ‘ the Law, the prophets, and the Psalms.’ The whole of the Old Testament had the taste of water to those who could not comprehend it spiritually and discover the mystery of the Lord Jesus Christ within it. Now the Lord has come to transform the water into joyful wine that has a new taste and effect. [ How did He change the water into wine? When He opened their minds and interpreted the Holy Books to them: starting from Adam and all the prophets and until they became as drunk men and said: “Did not our hearts burn within us while He talked with us on the road, and while He opened the Scriptures to us ?” (Lk 24:32). They therefore comprehended the Lord Jesus Christ in these Books whereas they had not recognized Him before. That is how the Lord transformed the water into wine and it had a taste it did not have before then. Now it was overwhelmingly intoxicating...a matter that did not exist before... He revealed that the Old Testament was issued from Him just as the water pots were filled with water at His command. They have been truly granted by the Lord in the same way as the Old Testament. However, they had no taste as long as the Lord Jesus Christ was not comprehended through them<sup>1</sup>].

In obedience to the Lord’s command, the servants filled the water pots to the brim. In the same way, it is not appropriate for a servant to rest before he /she completes the command and seeks to fulfill, by service, the work of the Lord ‘ the fullness of Him who fills all in all’(Eph.1:23)...‘for God does not give the Spirit by measure’ (Jn 3:34). Nothing could occupy a godly person other than the concern that every soul would enjoy fully the glory of the Lord Who is ever near. Consequently he/she would sing: “And of His fullness we have all received, and grace for grace” (Jn 1:16).

The One who transformed the water into wine, and Who sends rain could fill the water pots with water and then transform them into wine. However, due to His love for mankind, He does not disregard our obligation to work with Him. Since we are capable of filling the water pots, we need to do our best while He completes what is impossible for us to achieve. In the same way, and in many tasks, He grants us the honor of working with Him and for His Kingdom that lies within us. He therefore asks of those present to lift the stone from over the grave, and orders Lazarus to come out. He grants life and resurrection. He commands the disciples to free the dead from his grave clothes. We therefore sing joyfully with the Apostle: “...those who work with God...”!

‘ And He said to them: “Draw some out now, and take it to the master of the feast.” And they took it.”[8]

We do not hear that the Lord called upon the name of God or that He prayed to bless the water, but that He issued an order to fill the water pots and then instantly ordered to present them. He did not even ask them to give Him some in order to taste it.

The Lord did not perform this miracle in order to publicly reveal Himself. He did it to fulfill a need and so ordered the servants to offer it immediately. He has not granted the talent in order that we bury it but so that we might labor constantly and seize every chance to serve.

The Lord Jesus Christ was not 'the master of the feast' but rather the friend of the bridegroom and a Servant to everyone. This is the true seat of leadership and it evident when a person sacrifices himself lovingly and humbly for the sake of others.

'When the master of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and did not know where it came from (but the servants who had drawn the water knew) the master of the feast called the bridegroom.'[9]

The Greek word used to translate the term 'drank' corresponds to the colloquial Arabic word 'draw' which is used to indicate extracting from a deep source. Note that the water pots are very deep and have wide openings through which the wine is poured. So it is impossible to do so except by using a serving spoon with a long hand. This is true of a minister presenting the holy mysteries and a preacher of the Gospel as it is appropriate for them to reach far into the depths and draw from the wealth of God's great blessings. They are like someone drawing from the eternal and divine springs.

'And he said to him: "Every man at the begnig sets out the good wine, and wen the guests are drunk, then that which is inferior; but you have kept the good wine until now."'[10]

St. Chrysostom explains that the testimony comes from the master of the feast so that on one would say that the testimony comes from drunk men who, therefore, do not distinguish water from wine. Moreover, the master of the feast is careful not to get drunk since he is responsible for providing all the matters that concern the wedding in a dignified and wise manner<sup>1</sup>.

The Evangelist is specific when he says: 'When the master of the feast has tasted...' to indicate that he had not taken any drink, not even of this wine. He just tasted it.

In Cana of Galilee, the Lord Jesus Christ transformed the water into wine and by doing so He created a spiritual joy that spread throughout the celebration. In the New Testament, the Lord - by His Holy Spirit - transforms the wine into His Blood that is sacrificed for our sake, and this results in the creation of a heavenly joy that fills the life of those who partake of It.

* The Lord did not just transform the water into wine, but He also turned it into a wine of supreme quality. This is because the miracles of the Lord possess this distinction as they become more brilliant and far better than the quality of things existing in nature. In that respect, when He healed a crooked member in a person's body, that member appeared better than the other healthy parts. The proof is in that water turned into wine and becoming of supreme quality. This is not only the testimony of the servants, but to which the master of the feast witnessed as well.

St. John Chrysostom

'This beginning of signs Jesus did in Cana Of Galilee, and manifested His glory; and

His disciples believed in Him.’[11]

Here the meaning of ‘glory’ begins to be uncovered in this Book and it signifies the ‘Divine presence.’ God glorifies us when He proclaims His presence within us; while we glorify Him when we proclaim His presence in the world. In this verse the presence of the Father in His Son - consubstantial with the Father- is proclaimed and the Son reports about Him.

* The One who has made wine from water is able to make bread out of stone for authority arises from the same Source. Satan tempted the Lord by making a similar challenge, but the Lord rejected him, for as you know, when the Lord was tempted the devil suggested this to Him as He was hungry. But it sounded as though Satan could grant Him such power. However, the Lord practiced this (to be hungry) to demonstrate humility. The Bread (the Lord Jesus Christ) was hungry, the path was rough, the Giver of life was wounded, and life was dead...He did not make bread out of the stones. The One who could do so easily- just as He turned the water into wine... yet nothing could defeat the tempter as much as despising him. When the Lord overcame Satan’s temptations, the ‘angels came and ministered to Him’ (Matt 4:11)...

Why did He do this act and not the other?...When He turned the water into wine, what does the Evangelist go on to add? ‘...and His disciples believed in Him’ (Jn 2:11). Was it given to Satan to believe in Him?<sup>2</sup>

St. Augustine

* If someone states: there is not sufficient evidence to show that this miracle is the beginning of the miracles of the Lord and to specify Cana of Galilee where it all started; for it is possible that He could have done other miracles in other places.

Our answer would be as follows: John the Baptist had previously said of the Lord: “ I did not know Him, but that He should be revealed to Israel , therefore I came baptizing with water”(Jn 1:31).If the Lord had done wonders at an early stage of His life, the Jews would not have been in need for someone else to proclaim Him. Moreover, His previous fame would have spread every where and it would not have been necessary for Him (the Lord) to come among the people and to become known through his miracles. He did so for only three years and He needed this period to reveal Himself not only to the Jews but also to those in Syria and beyond (Matt. 4: 24).

I state that the One, Who in a short period shone upon you with wonders and therefore making His Name known to all, would not have achieved less than that if He had performed miracles at an earlier age. Moreover, He would not have remained unknown all that time (until He became thirty years old). Had he not remained unknown, it would have appeared strange for a child to do miracles...

Actually, He did not do anything when He was a child other than one incident that St. Luke reports as a witness (Lk. 2:46). He was twelve years old when He sat and listened to the teachers and they were astonished by His questions. Other than that, it is more probable and logical that He did not begin to do miracles at an early age otherwise things would have appeared suspicious. Many doubted in Him when He was of a mature age; so how much more would that have been if He had performed miracles as a young boy? This would have expedited His crucifixion before the designated time, and through the poison of hatred the facts of God's Plan would not have been accepted<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘ After this He went down to Capernaum, He, His mother, His brothers, and His disciples; and they did not stay there many days’ [12]

Origen<sup>2</sup> notes that the word ‘Capernaum’ means ‘ field of action.’ He says that the Lord and those with Him went to Capernaum but did not stay there for long. This is because those who are fallen or wavering do not have a place where the Lord and His saints could stay for many days. They represent the incline in the ‘field of action’ that has no potential to be receptive to much teaching, and is satisfied with very little movement. In contrast, souls that are spiritually sublime look upwards and enjoy the divine promise: “...lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age” and are not satisfied with just a few days.

When we are crucified with the Lord, He lives with us and within us so that we can join the Apostle and say: “ ...it is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me...” (Gal. 2:20). In this way He abides, lives, and speaks with us to the end of time.

* After the joy provided by the wine, it was necessary for the Savior, together with His Mother and the disciples to enter ‘the field of action’ in order to motivate the disciples that fruit is found in a fertile field. It is the Holy Spirit that makes the soul pregnant and fruit bearing. Besides, they wanted to motivate those who were present and were willing to benefit<sup>3</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

What does the Evangelist mean when he uses the expression ‘His brothers’? St. Augustine explains that it would include all those who have blood ties with St. Mary and therefore considered His brothers. St. Augustine supports this by quoting the Holy Bible: Lot, Abraham's nephew is called his brother (Genesis 13:8; 14:14); Laban, Jacob's uncle, was called his brother (Gen.29:12,15). Moreover, the Lord speaks about His disciples and calls them His brothers (Matt.12:46-50)<sup>4</sup>.

second is mentioned in Luke 6:1; the third in John 6:4; and the fourth falls on the day the Lord Jesus Christ was crucified (Jn 11:55).

Origen wonders about the addition of ‘Jews’ to ‘Passover’ ...is there another Passover that is celebrated besides the Passover of the Jews? He responds by saying that there were probably some who celebrated the Passover based on their own human understanding rather than following the Divine thought of the Holy Bible. That is why the Evangelist uses the expression ‘the Passover of the Jews.’ In the Book of Exodus, the expression used is: ‘It is the Lord’s Passover’(Ex.12:11). It does not say ‘It is your Passover’ in any place. When God announces His rejection of the people, He associates the feasts and fasts to them and not to Himself, and says in Isaiah 1:14: “Your New Moons and your appointed feasts My soul hates; they are a trouble to Me, I am weary of bearing them.”

* This is what happens when God’s people sin- they do not forget God. Similarly, God rejects feasts that are celebrated by sinners. Those that are set by the Lord are considered feasts of the Lord and the Passover is one of them. Although in the Gospel here, the wording indicates that the feast is not of Lord but of the Jews; yet in another part of the Holy Bible the Lord says the following : “The feasts of the Lord which you shall proclaim to be holy convocations, these are My feasts” (Lev 23:2)<sup>1</sup>.

Origen

Some thinkers believe that this incident occurred in the last week in the Life of the Lord on earth and that it helped to accelerate the events leading to His judgment and crucifixion. The leaders at the Temple considered the Lord’s act humiliating to them and to the holy building. However, St. John the evangelist puts this incident at the beginning of the Lord’s mission among the public in order to stress that He is the new Temple which replaces the old one. Besides, He is the unique Sacrifice that replaces the role of the bloody animal sacrifice. That is why the Lord chases the cattle and sheep with their sellers<sup>2</sup>. Many scholars believe that the Lord purified the temple on two occasions: once during the first Passover which took place at the beginning of His service and as it is mentioned in St. John’s Gospel; and again a second time during the fourth and last Passover which was at the time of the Lord’s crucifixion (Matt 21:12; Mk 11:15; Lk 19:45). It is as though the cleaning of the House of God is the Lord’s first and last task: He begins His service at the Temple and ends it there too. The prophet Malachi had foretold that task (Mal.3:2-4).

The Lord Jesus Christ found that there was a market in one of the buildings of the temple known as the People’s House. There people to sell bulls, sheep, and pigeons which they would use for offering sacrifice. This place was close to the pool known as Bethesda (Jn 5:2) and the head priests and those with them therefore used it to get material profit: in return for a certain fee they gave certificates stating that the sacrifice has no blemishes. That is how greed for money damaged the purity of worship (1 Tim. 6:5, 10). Besides, there were moneychangers who sold shekels of gold specifically indicated as offerings for the temple.

There is no doubt that the Lord had seen that sight before when He visited the temple. One instance was when He had gone to listen to the teachers and questioned them, but He was only thirteen years old at that time. But He only purified the temple when He began His ministry publicly. Besides, He did not complain or report about it to the head priests for He knew that they approved and encouraged what was going on.

The sellers of the sheep are those who transfer the salvation provided by the Lord , the Lamb of God, into a commercial business. They acquire a material possession at the expense of losing eternal salvation and seek that which is earthly rather than a heavenly reward.

* The Lord has justly said about such people: “ Many rulers have destroyed My vineyard, they have trodden My portion under foot, they have made My pleasant portion a desolate wilderness, they have made it desolate...” (Jer. 12:10). For truly the vineyard of the Lord has become corrupt for they have learned to crush divine worship. Through the greed of those appointed as guardians, the vine has been left barren and unfruitful for all the uninformed.

St. Cyril the Great

* Who are they who sell the sheep and the pigeons?

They are those who seek to satisfy themselves rather than serve the Lord. They are those who believe that all that matters is what sells and do not think of salvation. They do not ask to be bought but rather want to sell. Indeed, it would have been better for them to be saved by the Blood of the Lord and to possess His peace. Now however, what benefit do they get when they seek in this world a transient object? No matter what it is - be it money or pleasure of food, or honor that stems from people's praise- these are all certainly transient. Are not all these things as a cloud or steam? Do not all these pass away and vanish?...those who seek these things, my dear brothers, are only selling<sup>1</sup>.

St. Augustine

St. Augustine considers that the bulls to refer to the apostles (I Cor 9:9-10). And that those who trade in bulls are like those who adhere to the apostle and not to his Friend (the Lord Jesus Christ). Therefore St. Paul reprimands the Corinthians and says: “...Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul?...” (1Cor1:13); also “ I planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the increase,” (1 Cor 3:6-7). [ May those who pray for the peace of His servants say: May the Lord be glorified!<sup>2</sup>]

Those who participate in the bull trade are those who engage in teaching the Word and they are like those who plough in the Lord's field. Yet they do so as they seek a transient benefit rather than the joy of the Fruit of the Spirit. St. Paul says that these “...preach Christ from selfish ambition, not sincerely...” (Phil 1:16).

Those who sell the sheep are those who perform acts of mercy (woolen clothes and meat) in order to win human praise. They therefore receive their reward in this world (Matt 6:5).

Those who sell pigeons are those who misuse the gift of the Holy Spirit that appeared in the form of a dove. An example of this is the Simonist movement practiced in the ordination of priests: Simon wanted to buy with silver the power of the Holy Spirit. He then wanted to sell it and get material profit or temporary honor rather than receive the spiritual benefit (Acts 8: 19-20).

* The Lord does not allow those who are slaves to money as well as those who sell seats to enter His temple. For what do these seats represent but favors and honors? What are the pigeons other than the simple - minded and those souls that follow a clear faith? Has the Lord shut the door in the face of anyone that has been brought to His temple...yet those who sell honors and posts must necessarily be ordered to leave. It is vital to command the eviction of those who sell the simple- minded believers<sup>3</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* The cattle refer to transient matters since cattle are engaged in plowing the earth. The sheep symbolize unreasoning beastly matters as sheep are the most remote and unreasoning animals. Pigeons represent unsteady thoughts and their annulment ; while the coins represent what we think are good matters<sup>1</sup>.

* It is necessary to tear away these beastly and commercial matters from the temple which is the Body of Christ so that it does not become a house of trade<sup>2</sup>.

* It is also necessary that the temple be destroyed by those who devise plots against the Word of God; and that it would be back (risen) on the third day after its destruction...similarly, every person is purified when the Lord Jesus Christ tears and removes from him all manner of bestiality and commercial confusion. These are destroyed on account of the zeal of the Word within that person, and he will arise on the third day through the Lord...the temple is built on the first day following its destruction, and on the second day, and finally completed on the third when the resurrection is achieved. It will be a resurrection since having been buried with Christ, we arise with Him too (Rom. 6:4)<sup>3</sup>.

Origen

‘When He had made a whip of cords, He drove them all out of the temple, with the sheep and the oxen, and poured out the changer’s money and overturned the tables.’ [15]

It seems as though He did not chase the sellers or the moneychangers but only the cattle, sheep and pigeons. He overturned the money and the tables. He came not to judge but to purify and sanctify. He came to mend the corrupt. In His eyes, one soul is more precious than all these animals and gold and money.

* He reveals His feelings not only by words but by using cords. He chases them out with a whip from the holy places. He Justly applies the appropriate punishment for slaves for they have rejected the Son. It is He who grants freedom to man through faith.

* It is important that those who honor obedience to the law and proclaim the truth to realize that they deserve to submit to the stripes and sufferings of slavery when they revert to the spirit of slavery and reject to rejoice in freedom<sup>4</sup>.

* The rebellious Jews will be chased out of the holy places, and they will be ousted from the sanctified gathering of the saints. Even when they will present offerings , He will reject them. Moreover, He will subjugate them to punishment and the whip as they hold on to the cords of their sins (refer to Prov. 5:22).

St. Cyril the Great

‘And He said to those who sold doves: “ Take these away! Do not make My Father’s house a house of merchandise!”[16]

The Lord went up to Jerusalem in order to purify His Father’s temple and which had become a house of trade. Now He constantly goes up to the inner Jerusalem , to our depths, to build within us a heavenly temple sanctified to the Father. He purifies it from all trading and corruption.

* He says: “ Do not make My Father’s house a house of trade...” and He does not say “ our Father’s house.” This is appropriate for according to these words...the Word is understood to be of the essence of God the Father. The Word is not one of those who are children by grace. Therefore He separates Himself from the rest and calls God His Father.St. Cyril the Great * Yet do not keep our silence towards heretics who separate the Old fro the New Testament. We believe the words of the Lord Jesus Christ concerning the temple: “ Did you not know that I must be in My Father’s house?<sup>1</sup>” Also: “ Take these things away! Do not make My Father’s house a house of merchandise.” Here He affirms more clearly that the previous temple in Jerusalem is His Father’s house <sup>2</sup>.

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* The Lord did not say: “ Do not make the holy house...” but He said: “ Do not make My Father’s House....” So here He calls God His Father. They were not angered because they believed Him to be using that expression in a simplistic way and did not understand these words except after He explained that He spoke these words to equate Himself with God. They then got angered against Him.

St. John Chrysostom

‘ Then His disciples remembered that it is written: ‘ Zeal for Your house has eaten Me up.’ [17]

The disciples began to comprehend what lay behind the acts of the Lord as they began to remember that what is written in the Holy Book. Indeed, within the Word of God every word explains the other and clarifies it. Now they remembered that which is written in Psalm 69:9.

* The zeal for the house of the Father- that is the Church- burned in the heart of the Lord for He loved Her and delivered Himself for Her sake. He did so in order to grant Her eternal life and fellowship in His glory.

* ‘ Zeal for Your house has eaten Me up’[17]...everyone of you knows what to do in your home, with friends in their homes, at work, with those who are greater or lesser than you; and as much as God allows you to enter, when He opens the door for His Word - that never ceases to win someone for the Lord - for you have been won yourself through the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>3</sup>.

St. Augustine

* The Lord Himself says: ‘ Zeal for Your house has eaten Me up’: May we have true zeal for the Lord. I do not mean an earthly kind of zeal as this arouses envy. For peace to exist among you, the kind that surpasses understanding, may you love one another. Nothing is sweeter than love, and nothing is more blessed than peace. You know that I love you always, and now I love you above all else and as children of one Father: for you have become unified by the bond of brotherly love<sup>4</sup>.

St. Ambrose

3 - Requesting a Miracle

3 - Requesting a Miracle

So the Jews answered and said to Him, “What sign do you show to us, since You do these things?”[18]

When the Lord chased the sellers and purified the Temple He did so with such authority that the leaders could not display any resistance or opposition to Him before the public. They needed to underline their great respect and concern towards the Temple, as well as everything that happened there. So instead of admitting the corruption that had taken place as a result of the

of trade transactions carried on within its walls, they asked Him: “What sign do you show to us, since You do these things?” Moreover, they were really hurt as they would lose their dishonest money as a result. By asking this question, they therefore hoped to prevent Him from interfering with their business

When Moses appeared to save the people of God from slavery, he performed clear miracles. So what are the miracles that Jesus did that would make them accept and acknowledge Him? The leaders could not comprehend how He could purify the Temple without meeting any opposition, and even though He was not vested with any human power or official religious status or divine weapon. Indeed, His Divine Presence dissolved all darkness.

* If that matter was hidden from the Jews, it was because they stood outside. As for ourselves, it has been revealed to us since we know in whom we should place our faith. Soon, we will celebrate the destruction of the Temple in an awesome annual celebration. We urge you to be prepared for that since you will receive grace as believers<sup>1</sup>.

St. Augustine

* The Jewish leaders could not reprimand the Lord Jesus Christ...but they invented the means that would allow the dealers to escape. At the same time they found a way to excuse themselves for their unbelief and their inability to submit to Him immediately or unquestioningly. Therefore they could not receive Him as the Son of God if they were not given a miracle.

St. Cyril the Great

* Their utter insanity is so regrettable! Is there a need for a miracle before they could stop from their evil acts and liberate the House of God from such shameful transactions? Is not the greatest miracle evident in His jealousy towards that House? The disciples appropriately distinguished themselves as they remembered that it was written: “Zeal for Your house has eaten me up,” [17]. In contrast, the Jews did not remember this prophecy, and said: “What sign do you show to us?” They hoped that in this manner they would be able to stop Him and further embarrass Him so that He would perform a miracle. This would have given them the opportunity to find Him guilty<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“Jesus answered and said to them: “Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up,”[19].

The miracle that the Lord Jesus Christ did is that He came to our earth as the all-powerful Divine Presence. He alone could break the lock of Hades and destroy death that is the last enemy of mankind. By this, He granted those who believe in Him the power of the resurrection. This is the last miracle the Lord Himself has performed by His resurrection and before His ascension into the heavens. It was necessary for Him to die yet corruption could not affect Him (Ps. 16:10).

He asked them to destroy the temple of His Body indicating that they would lift Him up on the Cross; whereas they understood that He was speaking about the temple made of stone.

* Those who have described Him as the free One have well-said for He has the power to raise Himself...furthermore He is free who descended in order to set others free<sup>1</sup>.

St. Ambrose

‘ Then the Jews said: “It has taken forty-six years to build this temple, and will You raise it up in three days?” [20.

The temple was built in forty-six years. Some believe that building began in the days of Herodus in the year 19/20 B.C. and so it was finished by the year 28 B.C. approximately. Others believe that Herodus the Great began rebuilding it in the eighteenth year of his reign<sup>2</sup> and ended the main work in nine and a half years. However, repairs and additions went on for many more years. Herodus began the work in the year 16 B.C. and the reference here is to the time the Lord was thirty years old. In this way the temple was forty six years old and it was not yet finished. This indicates that the reference made here is to the last temple because the first one had been completed in twenty years. It therefore becomes clear that the beginning of the Lord’s ministry coincided with the time the Jews experienced the peak of their pride in their newly achieved temple. Therefore it was not easy for them to accept the words of the Lord concerning destroying it in three days.

It took the same time to build the temple when Zerbabel laid the foundations of the temple from the second year in the reign of Koresh to its completion in the year 32 in the reign of Artaxerxes.

* They belittled the miracle as they did not comprehend the depth of the mystery. Indeed, they held on tenaciously as they suffered from the disease of ignorance. This is their excuse and self-vindication for disobeying Him...How could He be incapable of doing anything however hard while He is the One who has mightily created the whole world in six days; while to Him belongs transcendental and inexpressible power: He just has to will something and it gets powerfully fulfilled?

St. Cyril the Great

St. Augustine presents a symbolic interpretation to the number 42: The four letters for the name of Adam represent the first letters for the four global points: Anatole for the east, Dysis for the West, Arctos for the North, and Mesembria for the South. It is as though Adam has been fragmented and scattered in all directions in the world. These are the Greek letters for Adam and they are equivalent to the number 42, as the (A) or Alpha is equivalent to the number (1), Delta (D) to number (4), and May (M) to number (40). So ADAM is equal to 1+4+1+40= 46. This is the Temple or the Body that the Word has taken from Adam and which He destroyed in order to raise him in three days and grant him eternal joy. Man has been raised by the will of the Father, the power of the Son, and by the Holy Spirit Who is the Spirit of the Resurrection<sup>3</sup>.

They revealed their ignorance as they misinterpreted the Lord’s words. He was referring to the temple of His body. Even so, would it have been beyond the Creator’s power to build a stone temple in three days?

Just as the new Messianic wine replaced the Water of Purification used according to tradition, so the temple of the resurrected body of the Lord replaces the temple of the Old Testament and which the army of Titus the Roman destroyed in the year 70 A.D. The Lord Jesus Christ has established a new temple within us and no army in the world can ever destroy it (1 Cor 6:19).

This saying has been fulfilled by the death of the Lord Jesus Christ and His resurrection on the third day. Moreover, this continues to be fulfilled in the Church which is His Body; as well as within every believer who is a member in the Body of the Lord Jesus Christ.

*Some may say: What was the purpose of the Lord for not explaining His puzzling words since He was referring to the building of His body and not to the stone temple. Rather, He kept silent and did not explain, because He knew that they would still not accept His words. If even some His disciples did not fully understand and did not know how to interpret what had been said to them, then it was logical that the people and the crowds could not understand the meaning of His words.

St. John Chrysostom

‘Therefore, when He had risen from the dead, His disciples remembered that He had said this to them;, and they believed the Scripture and the word which the Lord had said.’[22].

Many of the prophecies are hard to comprehend except after they have been fulfilled. Similarly, the disciples could not comprehend His words at that time for they were still like children in their concepts. When the Lord arose, He opened their mind so that they might understand the Scriptures. He also inflamed their hearts with the real understanding of the prophecies (Lk 24:45). Although their hearts were slow to believe yet they were fully convinced that His words are true.

* The Holy Spirit reminded the disciples of all what the Lord had told them previously. Indeed, they held onto the grace and talents granted to them, and displayed an enlightened existence, much wisdom, and plenty of conscientious work. They did not care at all for earthly blessings but transcended them so that they seemed like eagles in flight towards the heights. This was because they depended on the grace granted to them so that they reached the heavens themselves and ultimately possessed the grace of the Spirit.

<sup>3</sup> St. Augustine: On the Gospel of St. John, tractate 10:12.

St. John Chrysostom

‘Now when He was in Jerusalemat the Passover, during the feast, many believed in His name, when they saw the signs which He did.[23]

But Jesus did not commit Himself to them, because He knew all men.’[24]

They believed that He was the awaited Messiah, but they did not comprehend that He was the Savior of the world. Rather, they imagined that He was the King of Israel who would liberate them from being occupied and grant them a worldly power. They did not understand that He is the Savior of their spirits therefore their hearts were not changed and consequently the Lord did not place His trust in them.

Origen the Scholar makes a distinction between those who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and those who believe in His name (only). The Lord did not commit Himself to those who believed in His name only but He trusted those who believed in Him.

* The disciples were truly profound in their faith. Unlike the others who were attracted to the Lord because of the miracles He performed, they believed because they were attracted by His teachings. Those who were drawn to Him on account of the miracles revealed a dense frame of mind, whereas those drawn by His teachings were more determined and steadfast so that the Lord called them ‘blessed’ and said: “ Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed” (Jn 20:19).

As for those mentioned in this passage, they were not real disciples. This is what the following expression reveals: ‘But Jesus did not commit Himself to them...’[24]. Why Not? ‘Because He knew all men’<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* It is appropriate that we adhere to Him more than our adherence to His name. When we do miracles through His name we do not wish to hear the words that have been said about those who take pride in His name only (Matt. 7: 22-23). Indeed, we should follow St. Paul’s example and have the courage to say: “ I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me” (Phil 4:13)<sup>1</sup>.

Origen

* He did not entrust Himself to those who had newly accepted the faith...those who administer the sacraments of our Lord need to learn from this that they should not allow someone suddenly to enter into the holy sanctuary. Neither should they allow beginners, who have recently been baptized before being mature enough and have not come to the faith at the right time, to approach the divine altar.

*Just as God alone always sees our inner depths, so does our Lord Jesus Christ too. So how can He not be God by nature ?

St. Cyril the Great

The Lord Jesus Christ knows man for He is the Creator of all things (Jn 1:3), He is altogether wise () and the Discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart (Heb 4:12).

‘ ...and had no need that anyone should testify of man, for He knew what was in man.’ [25].

* Recognizing God is a characteristic of man’s heart and it proceeds from Him who has created the hearts with perfection. Solomon, in wisdom, prayed to God saying: “...then hear in heaven Your dwelling place, and forgive, and act, and give to everyone according to all his ways, whose heart You know (for You only, only You, know the hearts of all the sons of men) (I Kgs. 8:39). That is why the Lord did not need witnesses in order to know the plan of His creation for He knew all their their secrets.

St. John Chrysostom

* The expression : ‘ ...for He knew what was in man’ could betaken to refer to the powers of good and evil that work within man. So if a person makes a place for Satan (Eph 4: 27) allows him to come in. This is what Judas did when he allowed Satan to have a place in his heart and so betrayed the Lord...a person becomes blessed when he/she gives God a place within; for ‘ Blessed is the man whose strength is in You, whose heart is set on pilgrimage’ (read Ps. 84:6). The Son of God who knows all things, knows what is within man<sup>2</sup>.

Your Presence brings with You Your Mother, Your disciples, and those who love
Come, the wedding is ready!
Come, no one other than You brings joy to my heart!

* You have transformed the water into new wine
Instead of the literal commands of tradition which burden my frame,
You have granted me the Gospel that gladdens my heart!
Let me get drunk with Your love and let me adore Your heavens,
Then the world will no more have no place within me!

*Grant me, through Your fiery Spirit, to listen more to that voice saying:
Whatever He says to you, do it!
My obedience to you makes her heart and the hearts of all those who love you to rejoice.
Her prayers and intercession support me,
So I pray with an obedient spirit that I may observe Your commands.

* May You enter into my depths and consecrate them to be an altar for You:
May You chase away all the cattle and sheep from there,
Then there would not be any place for ugly profit within me.
May You grant me, through Your Holy Spirit,
To Possess the eyes of a humble dove.
May You remove all love for money from the table of my heart!

* Grant me the spirit of zeal for Your house, Then my heart will be enflamed with inner purity rather than being preoccupied with judging others.

* The Jews constructed the old temple in forty six years
And now You have resurrected the temple of Your Body from the grave in three days
In three days You have established Your Church as a heavenly Bride.
The darkness of the grave is no longer our place,
For we now live in the ultimate beauty of Your heavens!

CHAPTER THREE

NICODEMUS AND THE NEW BIRTH

THE TEACHER AND GIVER OF THE NEW BIRTH!

None of the chapters of the New Testament is as difficult as chapter three in the Gospel according to St. John. In spite of that, it has attracted many unbelievers to convert into the Christian faith. Those who are serious in their search for salvation find themselves reading the words of this chapter and standing with Nicodemus seeking to hold a secret conversation with the Lord Jesus Christ. When they learn of the new possibilities granted to them, they worship the Lord and pray to be united with Him as they desire to enjoy His Holy Spirit, and get renewed and born a second time through baptism.

Within the same framework of teachings that assure a new Messianic life and together with the revelation of: a new wine and a new temple, it now becomes necessary to reveal the new birth.

So this is presented in the unique meeting between a Pharisee, who has a wonderful personality, and the Lord Jesus Christ who is the living spiritual Source that flows into every soul seriously concerned about salvation. As a Pharisee, Nicodemus was thoroughly versed in the Torah and Jewish traditions. Being a moral man, he believed that it is in man's power to obey willingly the righteous traditions. This, he believed depended upon personal struggle and human will, as well as adhering strictly and literally to the Law based on his own study and observation. He found that the Lord Jesus Christ was a Jewish Teacher deeply concerned with the Law. This is probably why the Evangelist mentions Nicodemus as one of those most attracted to the Lord. In this context, St. John says: 'Now when He was in Jerusalem at the Passover, during the feast, many believed in His name when they saw the signs which He did...' (Jn. 2:23), and Nicodemus believed that He came from God (Jn.3:2). He might have been hoping that the Lord was a social reformer who based His teachings on the literal interpretation of the Law and consequently improve the condition of the Jewish people.

The mentality and experience of Nicodemus did not qualify or help him to accept the new life in the Lord Jesus Christ. He could not comprehend the grace of a new birth and the benefits of a new spiritual Law. He needed the Lord to help him lift up his thoughts, heart, and all his senses and potentials towards heaven. Only by doing so, Nicodemus could come to comprehend his need for a new birth through the One who "came down from heaven, that is, the Son of Man who is in heaven...." He alone ascends into heaven and carries all those who believe in Him to enjoy adoption through Him and be the children of God.

The meeting between Nicodemus and the Lord Jesus Christ draws our hearts to the Lord Jesus Christ as we get to realize His concern over every human soul as well as His gentleness as He converses frankly with each one.

We have seen the Word coming and dwelling among us to make us children of God (Ch. 1), and now He proclaims the manner of the new birth in His conversation with Nicodemus, a Jewish leader. Nicodemus yearned to see the Kingdom so the Lord stressed that he needed to be baptized by the water and the Spirit. This is necessary as it enables the believer to live permanently as a child of God and live according to His Spirit. In the passage of this Chapter, the Lord lifts us up from the earthly concerns and makes us preoccupied with heavenly matters. He tells that we can do so through our union with the heavenly One who descended to raise us up with Him to the heavens where He reigns [13].

The Lord links Baptism with the Cross as the Father proclaims His love for all mankind by sending His Son so that the whole world may enjoy eternal life [16].

By indicating the new birth, the Lord leads us away from the fear of condemnation and into the enjoyment of the Divine Light [21].

When St. John the Baptist saw what happened at the time the Lord was baptized, and what this implied concerning the blessing of adoption to those who believe in Him, his joy was complete. He heard the voice of the Bridegroom engaging His Bride so that She may live in the glorious heavens with Him [29].

1- A Discussion about the New Birth

‘There was a man of the Pharisees named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews’ [1].

Nicodemus: This is a Jewish name that means ‘the conqueror of the people.’ He was a ruler of the Jews that is he was a member of the Sanhedrin, the highest council for the Jewish nation.

The Divine invitation is addressed to the whole human race including all classes. However, few of those who occupied leadership, religious, or temporary positions could respond to that invitation. Indeed, a minimal number from among the Pharisees, less than the fingers of one hand, responded to it and one of these was Nicodemus. He came to meet with the Lord alone or He might have been accompanied by one or more of His disciples. Yet the Lord did not belittle that one soul for He has suffered death on the Cross for the sake of each human soul.

The Pharisees truly displayed a hostile and rebellious spirit towards the Divine truth. However, there were some among the learned and scholars who yearned to meet with the Lord and they found His door opened. The grace of God works in scholars as well as in illiterate people, in the common man as well as in leaders, in the simple as well as in the rebellious. Nicodemus came to the Lord yet his status remained to be among the rebellious; and he set his heart to act as much as he could and when the opportunity would come. And the time came when he could act while the disciples could not. Then he took permission from Pilate to bury the Body of the Lord in his new private tomb.

We are referring here to Nicodemus Ben Gorion mentioned in Jewish writings and said to be so wealthy that he could support all the people of Jerusalem for many decades. Yet some find some exaggeration in this report.

‘ This man came to Jesus by night and said to Him: “ Rabbi, we know that You are a teacher come from God; for no one can do these signs that You do unless God is with Him” [2].

Every time St. John the Evangelist mentions the person of Nicodemus, he presents him in connection with his visit to the Lord at night. This is repeated three times in this Gospel: (3:2; 7:50; 19:39). Why did he come to the Lord at night?

A- Because hearing the Lord’s public talks were not enough for him. Moreover, he did not enjoy seeing the miracles the Lord did openly. He actually felt that he needed to sit quietly and talk with the Lord about matters related to the salvation of his soul. He wanted to have a personal conversation with Him (Malachi 2:7). Even the Son of Man often withdrew from the crowds and His own disciples as He felt the need to spend the whole night carrying a most enjoyable conversation with the Father. How much more does each one of us need to abandon everything and sit, especially at night, with His Lord, and to engage in a personal conversation with Him, and so experience the new life and fellowship with Him?

B- It could be a choice based on wisdom since he knew the Lord was busy all day serving the people. Therefore Nicodemus waited until night time in order to meet with the Lord and have a friendly conversation during His time of repose.

C- It could be that he seized the first chance to meet personally with the Lord after he had seen some amazing miracles. When everyone would be asleep, he wanted to spend a spiritual evening with the Lord Jesus Christ. Besides he might have been worried that he would not get such a chance in the future. He was an opportunist! He seems to have followed David’s example as he seized night time as an opportunity for meditation (Ps 36:6; 119:148).

D-There is a possibility that what motivated him to go at night was his fear that this would be reported to the chief priests. It would increase their anger against the Lord Jesus Christ. It might also drive them, as well as the other rulers and Pharisees, to hurt Nicodemus himself. It could be that he lacked the light of faith for even though he was attracted to the Lord as a person, yet he had not yet become well acquainted with Him. Moreover, He had not become aware of the reality of His being the Light of the world. Nicodemus was a Jewish ruler [1], a teacher of Israel [10] and he needed a new birth in order to enjoy the new implications of a Messianic and heavenly kingdom. He came at night with a faith that was weak and he found the door of the Lord’s heart opened. The Lord did not hurt his feelings with any reproach. All things considered, his faith was like a mustard seed that grew and became a great tree by the time the Lord was crucified. Therefore he courageously went to ask for the body of the Lord.

* Nicodemus met with the Lord yet in a manner and that was not appropriate or distinguished. He still suffered from a certain Jewish weakness. That is why he came to the Lord at night as he feared visiting Him in the day time. In spite of that the merciful God did not reject or reproach him. Neither did He deprive him of His teachings. On the contrary, the Lord talked with him very tenderly, and revealed to him sublime teachings. These were surely vague or unknown to Nicodemus but the Lord clarified them to him. He deserved to be excused when compared with others who behave in the same way but with evil intentions. Such people have no excuse whatsoever, whereas Nicodemus could be condemned to a lesser degree<sup>1</sup>.

* Although Nicodemus was different, yet he regarded the Lord in a human manner. He spoke about Him as a prophet and pronounced Him to be great due to His miracles, so he says: “Rabbi, we know that You are a teacher come from God...” [2]. So why did you come secretly at night to the One who speaks the things of God and who has come from Him? Why did you not discuss things with Him openly? The Lord Jesus Christ did not ask Nicodemus any such questions and did not even rebuke Him, for the prophet says: “A bruised reed He will not break, and a smoking flax He will not quench” (Is. 42:3, Matt. 12:19,20). The Lord Himself once said: “I did not come to judge the world but to save the world” (Jn. 12:47)<sup>2</sup>.

Note the ever-increasing humility of the Lord Jesus Christ. He abstained from saying: ‘I do not need help from others for I have the power to do all things as I am the Son of God Himself and I possess the power of My Father.’ That would have been hard on His hearers...

Consequently the Lord seemed to put constraints upon Himself in many instances. However, He did not do the same thing concerning His actions. So when He made a miracle He did it with authority, and therefore says: “I am willing; be cleansed” (Matt.8:3); Talitha, cumi” (Mk 5:41); “Stretch out your hand” (Mk3:5); “Your sins are forgiven” (Matt.9:2); “Peace be still!” (Mk 4:39); “Arise, take up your bed, and go to your house” (Matt 9:6); “Come out of the man, unclean spirit!” (Mk 5:8), “And if anyone says to you: ‘Why are you doing this?’ say, ‘the Lord has need of it.’”(Mk 11:3); “...today you will be with Me in Paradise” (Mk 23:43)... “You have heard that it was said to those of old, “You shall not murder...but I say to you that whoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment (Matt 5:21,22). “Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men” (Matt 1:17). In every situation we notice His great authority so that as He works no one can find any fault or mistake in Him...however, through His speeches they could, in their own insanity, accuse Him of insanity.

That is why, in the case of Nicodemus, the Lord did speak openly. Rather, He led him with ambiguous words that indicate that He possesses an intrinsic authority to do miracles. This was because He was born of the Father as perfect and fully sufficient with not a single shortfall<sup>3</sup>.

* Nicodemus was one of those who (believed in His name yet He did not commit Himself to them [2:23-24]. Nicodemus came to the Lord, but he came at night. He came in the darkness even though he came to the Light<sup>4</sup>.

*Although Nicodemus came to the Lord, yet he came at night and he continued to think and speak through the darkness of his soul. Therefore he could not understand what he heard from the Light that shines to every person living in the world<sup>5</sup>.

* Nicodemus was accustomed to being a teacher and this is probably the problem underlying the fact that he came to the real Lord at night. Now that he had to learn made him feel embarrassed. Personally, my greatest joy is to listen to a teacher rather than having people listen to me as a teacher. For I remember the Lord's words to those whom He had chosen at first: "But you, do not be called Rabbi: for One is your Teacher, the Christ..." (read Mattt.23:8)<sup>6</sup>.

St. Augustine

In any case, Nicodemus did not come at night to be baptized. Neither did he come to learn and be the Lord's disciple or student. According to Jewish tradition, one cannot enter the Jewish faith or be circumcised or baptized at night. That would be unlawful. He just came to be informed of the Lord's views and to be acquainted with His path but not to sit at His feet and be a learner.

'Rabbi': It was not easy for a Pharisee who is considered a scholar in the Holy Book and a leader of the people to submit to someone and speak humbly saying: "Rabbi, we know that You are a teacher come from God" [2]. Nicodemus discussed neither politics nor matters concerning the country although he was a leader of the Jews. He was only concerned about the salvation of his soul.

Nicodemus admitted that the Lord had neither been taught by a Jewish scholar nor had attended a religious school; but that His teachings had been inspired by the divine and heavenly Power. He realized that the Lord carried the power of truth and not the power of the sword, and that He acted with an ultimate wisdom that transcends human wisdom. He acknowledges that the miracles the Lord did could were brought about by divine Power.

The astonishing thing is that he uses the plural 'we know.' It could be that he came with another person or more of his students, or that he came to speak on behalf of some Pharisees who had no other preoccupation except 'Jesus.' Among themselves they had admitted what Nicodemus confesses in this passage. However, none of them dared to speak openly or to meet with the Lord secretly.

Jesus answered and said to him: "Most assuredly, I say to you, unless one is born (again), he cannot see the kingdom of God" [3]

Nicodemus considered the act of doing miracles to be a proof that the Lord Jesus Christ came from God since all Rabbi associated piety with working miracle. He could not cross these limited concepts in order to comprehend the reality of the person of Jesus. Therefore he saw Him as a virtuous teacher and a man of God who enjoyed having the Divine One living with and in him always, just like Isaac to whom God said: "...do not fear, for I am with you..." (Gen.26:24); and like God said to Joshua, the son of Nun, "...as I was with Moses, so I will be with you..." (Joshua 1:5). Many other fathers and prophets had lived with the same experienced; but Nicodemus in spite of his piety had a certain set of mind that prevented him from stepping outside the limitations of the Pharisees. This is what he had learned, and this was how he lived within the Jewish environment.

The conversation between the Lord Jesus Christ and Nicodemus emphasizes the following points:

A- The desperate need for a new birth that would grant a vision of a new inner world, i.e. 'the kingdom of God.' This is correctly called a new or second birth. This expression has been used by various translators writing in Coptic Syrian, and Latin; as well as many fathers of the First Church such as St. Justin, St. Clement of Alexandria, Tertullian, St. Augustine and St. Jerome. Nicodemus understood that the words of the Lord were an invitation to a 'new birth', and this baffled and crippled. How could a fully grown adult enter into his mother's womb and be born again?

B- The new birth comes from above, meaning that it is heavenly [3]. It is an act that is done exclusively by the holy and heavenly Spirit of God. By it He grants heavenly potentials that surpass human thought.

C- The new birth is achieved through baptism by water and the Spirit [5].

D- It is a birth that possesses surpassing power and so it is likened to the wind, so that no one knows its mystery [8].

In Jewish writings, the repetition of the word 'truth' was considered synonymous with an oath that was deeply holy. The Lord Jesus Christ used it whenever He wished to indicate that a matter is extremely significant and serious.

The Lord Jesus Christ gently reprimands Nicodemus and reveals to him that it is not enough for a person to believe that Jesus Christ is a divine teacher; neither is it enough to admire His miracles and consider them real and unique. Indeed, what is needed is a birth from 'above' that is a heavenly birth that would allow him to see heavenly matters. A fetus in its mother's womb can neither see the world nor have any experience in it unless it is born and comes out of its mother's body. In the same way, a person can neither see the kingdom of God nor experience the blessings of heaven unless he is born again from above. Only then will it be possible for him to see the Light of the new world and live within it.

By using the verb to 'see' the Lord stresses that it is appropriate for a real believer, who enjoys the new heavenly birth, not to boast about that birth unless he sees the kingdom of God within him and lives accordingly. This means that he needs to achieve a heavenly state of mind, follow principles consistent with the heavenly law, and to have new goals, new hope, and new potentials.

With the new birth, a believer starts a totally new life that is not established on correcting or reforming a person's being; but rather on demolishing the old and constructing a new building. It involves the elimination of the old person and the resurrection of the new person who is made in the image of his Creator.

The first time we were born sin corrupted our nature and formed our depths according to its ways so that we became corporal and dominated by the law of carnal desires and ruled by the enemy of goodness. Therefore a new birth became an unavoidable and vital necessity. That explains the Lord's words: "Most assuredly, I say to you...."

What is the kingdom of God and that we should always see other than the kingdom of the heavenly Messiah? He lives and establishes His kingdom within us; and we see, live, and share features with Him. Therefore we become holy as He is holy. This is the kingdom of God that dwells in us and within our reach and as the Lord Himself proclaims: "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matt 4:17); and also "...the kingdom of God has come upon you" (Matt 12:28). He assures us by saying: "...the kingdom of heaven is within you" (Lk17:21). Concerning our status in that kingdom, the Lord "...has made us kings and priests to His God and Father..." (Rev 1:6, 9; 5:10). This kingdom marks us with the features of our Lord Jesus Christ as we enjoy fellowship with Him "...for the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit" (Rom. 14:17).

This kingdom is the promise and warranty for an eternal kingdom. It will transport us to heaven and make us eager to share the amazing glory when the Lord will come. Moreover, it lifts our thoughts and focuses our inner vision towards the final day when the Lord will come and we will enjoy the heavenly crowns.

* It is possible to rephrase the Lord's words as follows: 'If you are not born again and if you do not receive fellowship with the Spirit within the baptismal font of renewal then you cannot possess the right thoughts concerning Me. This is because your concept about my body is not spiritual (Titus 3:5) ...the word 'again' (or from above) is interpreted by some to mean 'from heaven' while others find it to convey the meaning of 'from the beginning.' The Lord explains that a person not born in this way can possibly see the kingdom of heaven. Here the Lord is pointing to Himself (the Messiah) and proclaims that we need other eyes besides our normal eyes in order to see the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>7</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Nicodemus answered: "How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother's womb and be born?" [4].

The inquiry of Nicodemus reveals the weakness of his knowledge. While the Lord speaks spiritually, the heart of Nicodemus relates to material matters. He had to get rid of all ties with materialism from his heart and mind; otherwise it would be impossible for him to comprehend the heavenly birth that is from above. Only then would he comprehend through the Spirit of God the new spiritual potentials.

Nicodemus was shocked by the Lord's words about the new birth. Like all other Jews, he took pride in his lineage from Abraham his father. They all felt they were God's chosen people and that they were blessed by the prophets and the divine promises. Moreover, God had made a covenant with them and they had the unique temple with all the rites associated with it. So Nicodemus is not only an Israelite but a Pharisee as well. What better birth could the Lord wish to give him? The Jews expected that when the Messiah would come, the nations would accept the faith and be born again, but as for them this did not apply. For they felt there could be no other birth more honorable for them than their current status. They boasted of their lineage and birth and it was impossible for them to hear of another birth.

In spite of all that, Nicodemus did not turn his back on the Lord. He hoped he could learn of something new that was lacking in his knowledge. He revealed that he, who was a teacher and leader, was humble and ready to receive any truthful information or divine revelation that he lacked. Yet this seemed an impossibility according to his own concepts. An amazing person! In spite of his long experience for many years, his position as a revered leader, and the environment created by the Pharisees around him, he bowed down to receive a new teaching. This is a formidable example for every true leader: not to boast of all his learning but to remain a learner until his last breath. St. Ambrose, the Bishop, says in this context, that God is the only One who does not need to learn.

* Nicodemus came to the Lord Jesus Christ as though he were coming to an ordinary person. He then heard of sublime matters that could not come from any person. Indeed, and no one else had ever heard of them. In moments, Nicodemus tried to rise quickly to such heights but his understanding was darkened. He became unsteady and failed in his faith constantly as he leaned on his own potentials. As a result, he insisted on confirming the impossibility of the Lord's words. It is as though he challenged the Lord to clarify His teaching by saying to Him: "Can he enter a second time into his mother's womb and be born?"... Nicodemus had heard about spiritual birth but had not experienced it spiritually. Indeed, he had given these words an utterly low and physical significance. Indeed, he depended on physical evidence to interpret such great teaching.

By doing so, Nicodemus created petty and unpleasant obstacles. In this context, St. Paul comments: "But the natural man does not receive the things of the Spirit of God..." (1 Cor.2:14). In spite of all that, Nicodemus observed respect and courtesy and did not scorn what the Lord said to him. Yet he kept silent as he believed this was an impossibility. He doubted in two matters: the kind of birth this could be, and the kingdom. The Jews had never heard mention of the kingdom at any time, neither had they heard of any such birth. Yet he stood there thinking about the first matter which involves a birth from above and which greatly astonished him<sup>8</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* This man knew about the birth from Adam and Eve, but he did not know about the birth that is from God and the Church. He only knew of the parents who give a birth subjected to death, but he was ignorant of those who give a birth with a promise to life. He knew of parents who give birth to have heirs for themselves, but he was ignorant of immortal parents who granted a birth to those they could constantly revive. There are two births: one that is enacted on earth, and the other is enacted in heaven: one proceeds from the flesh, and the other from the Spirit; one that is susceptible to death, and the other is eternal; one proceeds from a male and female, and the other from God and the Church. As for Nicodemus, he could comprehend one birth only<sup>9</sup>.

* Just as there can be no repetition of the birth from the womb, so there can be none other from Baptism<sup>10</sup>.

St. Augustine

“Jesus answered: “Most assuredly, I say to you, unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God” [5].

The Lord repeats again what He had said earlier in order to proclaim that this truth cannot be overlooked or taken lightly. Indeed, the word of God requires a response that is more than a mere yes or no: it requires a ‘Yes, Amen’ response. The Lord insists on the need for a new birth in spite of the inability of Nicodemus to comprehend it. For there is no other way to see and enter the kingdom of God except by going through a second birth.

Why is water used? To indicate the act of washing the spirit internally (Titus3:5; 1 Cor.6:11; Ezekiel 36:25). This cleansing is achieved by the Holy Spirit for He alone can wash, purify, and renew the inner depths. Just as the Lord turned the water into wine and granted joy to the wedding and to all the guests there, so the Lord offers us the water in order to purify our depths through the Spirit- and not for just cleaning our outward body. This is the water that the Lord promised as He spoke to the Samaritan woman and said that anyone who drinks of it shall never be thirsty. It is not like the water found in Jacob’s well and out of which he and his children and cattle drank. Indeed, the Lord offers living water.

Water is essential in the new birth since baptism is carried out through immersion. This is a sign of accepting death and burial with the Lord Jesus Christ in order to enjoy the new and resurrected life. Accordingly St. Paul says: “Or do you not know that as many of us as were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into His death? Therefore we were buried with Him through baptism into death, that just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.” (Rom.6:4). Consequently, the birth through water and the Spirit involves a death to physical life and the burial of the actions of the old man while accepting fellowship with the Lord in His resurrected life. It is the acceptance of a new life created by the Holy Spirit Who is the Spirit of the resurrection. It is a process that involves the creation of a new inner man and that leads us to die to all corruption in order to bear a new nature born in the image and likeness of the Creator.

* Now even the new comers who believe in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ and carry His sign can neither receive absolution nor the gift of spiritual grace, unless they become baptized in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit<sup>11</sup>.

St. Cyprian, the Martyr

* If you were to ask: ‘What is the meaning of the Lord’s words to Nicodemus? I would answer: ‘The Lord wished to draw him away from thinking in terms of a birth through the flesh.’ It is as though the Lord is telling him: ‘Nicodemus, I am speaking about another birth so why are you drawing My words to an earthly level? Why do you submit that act as being necessarily governed by nature? This birth is ultimately higher than the pains of labor imposed by natural law. Withdraw your soul from all that is general and common, for I enter into a world that holds another kind of birth and I desire people to be born again through another manner. I have come to bring a new method of being created. I have created man from the earth and water. However, what was formed turned out to be useless for the vessel has deviated from its purpose. Therefore I will not repeat forming it of dust and water, but rather will shape it by water and the Spirit.

If someone asked: ‘How does God create man from water?’ I will ask: ‘And how has He created man from earth? And how can you split mud in different parts? From where have the bones, nerves, veins and arteries been formed? From where have the skin, blood, liver, and bile been made? Out of where have His great works been accomplished...and the variety of colors...all these elements are neither part of the earth nor of the mud.

Furthermore, when the earth receives the seeds, how do they take root, whereas if they were placed in our bodies they would rot?

How does the earth feed the seeds, which in turn give fruit? Then how does our body get nourished by these seeds? The earth receives the water and turns it into wine; whereas our bodies receive wine and turn it into water. I am unable to verify mentally that these varieties are the product of the earth since the earth amazes our bodies with all its products. It is only my faith and belief in God that lead me to accept that these are the product of the earth.

Now, if all these varieties that are tangible as they take shape each day require belief and faith, then spiritual matters will occupy an adequate priority and demand belief and faith. And just as the immobile earth responds to the will of God and all these numerous wonders were formed out of it; similarly, extreme and multiple wonders, far beyond our comprehension, occur when the Holy Spirit is present in the water ...

If someone were to ask: ‘Why is water needed in this birth?’ My answer would be: ‘This birth acts and achieves a Divine significance: a grave, burial, faith, life, and resurrection. These all take shape within the act of baptism. For as our head is immersed in the water, it is as though we immerse them in the grave where we bury entirely the old man and drown him down below. Then, as we lift our heads the new man comes out as well.

the water and the Holy Spirit: it is the result of having received the hope in eternal life through the font of the new birth and of being renewed through the Holy Spirit (Titus 3:5). In another passage, St. Peter the apostle says: "...you shall be baptized by the Holy Spirit" (Acts 11:16). Therefore, who is the one who is baptized by the Holy Spirit other than he who is born again with water and the Spirit? That explains the Lord's word's concerning the Holy Spirit: "Most assuredly, I say to you, unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God"<sup>13</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* The Book of the Acts of the Apostles speaks about the proclamation of the Holy Spirit Who lives in a baptized person. The water prepares the way for those who come and are sincere in their request. Baptism is called 'the washing of regeneration' (Titus 3:5) that is achieved through the renewing of the Holy Spirit<sup>14</sup>.

* The corruption of sin is removed through the mystery of Baptism. That is why even babies are baptized. for "...unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God" (Jn. 3:5)<sup>15</sup>.

Origen

* Baptism washes all our faults away. It makes us become the holy temple of God and restores to us fellowship with the divine nature through the Holy Spirit<sup>16</sup>.

St. Clement of Alexandria

*Through the holy baptism man is liberated from the power of Satan and becomes a spotless child in the likeness of Christ in the flesh. This is due to the work of the Holy Spirit that sanctifies and resurrects the baptized person as a spotless being. Therefore Satan can not have any power over him/her since the Spirit of the Lord is within<sup>17</sup>.

Fr Sawiris, Bishop of Ashmonin

*When a person receives the Lord in baptism, he actually puts on or wears the Lord Jesus Christ besides being born of God (Gal.3:27). We do not understand this in a literary sense and as though it were the expression of love. Rather, we consider this reflects the truth since the incarnation has made our union with the Lord Jesus Christ and our fellowship in His divinity an actual fact and reality<sup>18</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

St. Jerome<sup>19</sup> associates poisonous snakes and scorpions with thirst when there is no water. He refers to this in his letter to Oceanus, a Roman noble and fervent believer. St. Jerome writes in this message about the blessings granted by the water and baptism and says:

* In the beginning and during the creation, the Spirit of God hovered over the face of the waters like a ship commander (Gen.1:2). He brought out of it a small world- a symbol of the Christian child who is immersed in the baptismal waters.

* The living creatures that Ezekial the prophet saw in his vision had the heavens stretched out over their heads, 'the color of awesome crystal' (Ez.1:27), and he heard 'the noise of many waters.'

*In the Garden of Eden there was a river with four sources that watered the Paradise (Gen. 2:1).

*In the vision of Ezekial of the new house of the Lord, he saw the waters flow out of the threshold towards the East. Water heals and grants life to dead souls (Ez.47:1-9).

*When the world committed sin it was impossible to purify it by any means other than through a flood. Then when the unclean bird flew out, the dove of the Holy Spirit returned to Noah. After that, it came to the Lord Jesus Christ at the Jordan River. It held in its beak the branch proclaiming peace to the whole world.

*Pharaoh and his army drowned in the Red Sea as they refused to allow the people of God to leave Egypt. Consequently, the water has become a symbol of our baptism. The fate of Pharaoh is described in the Psalms: 'You divided the sea by Your strength; You broke the heads of the sea serpents in the waters, You broke the heads of Leviathan in pieces' (Ps.74:13; LXX 14).

* Moreover, the wood turned the bitter waters of Marah into sweet waters and so it could water seventy palm trees. In the same manner, the Cross has turned the waters of the Law into a source of life to the seventy apostles of the Lord (Ex.15:23-27; Lk.10:1).

*Abraham and Isaac dug wells while the Philistines attempted to prevent them (Gen.26:15, 18).

*Both Beersheba, the city of the oath (Gen.21:31); and Gihon, the city where Solomon was crowned as king, carried names that belonged to sources of water (1 Kgs 1:38; 2Chron.32:30).

* Abraham's servant found Rebekah near a well (Gen.24:15, 16).

* When Rachel went to draw water from the well, Jacob met and kissed her there (Gen.29:11).

*As the daughters of the priest of Midian were on their way to the well they were stopped by the shepherds. However, Moses helped and saved them (Ex.2:16, 17).

*The forerunner of the Lord- John the Baptist- at Salim (or Peace) prepared the people to receive the Lord by using a source of water (Jn.3:23).

*The Lord Himself did not begin to preach except after He had purified the Jordan through His baptism and immersion in it (Matt.3:13, 14).

*The Lord told Nicodemus privately that: "unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God" (Jn.3:5).

*Just as the Lord's ministry began with water, it ended with it as His side was struck with a sword and water and blood flowed out. These are two symbols for baptism and martyrdom (Jn 19:34).

*After His resurrection, when the Lord sent His disciples to the nations, He commanded them to baptize the people in the sacrament of the Holy Trinity (Matt. 28:19).

* When the Jews repented for their sins, St. Peter sent them to be baptized (Acts 2:38).

*Paul the persecutor of the Church, the roaring wolf coming from Benjamin (Gen.49:27) bowed his head before Ananias- one of the Lord's fold- and his sight was restored only when he accepted the medicine of baptism (Acts 9:17, 18).

*Through reading the Book of Isaiah the Prophet, the eunuch of Candace became ready to be receive the baptism of the Lord (Acts 8:27,38).

*The voice of the Lord is over the waters...the Lord is over many waters...’ (Ps.29:3, 10). ‘Your teeth are like a flock of shorn sheep which have come up from the washing, everyone of which bears twins and none is barren among them’ (Sg of Sol. 4:2).

*Micah refers to the grace granted by baptism as he says: “He will again have compassion on us, and will subdue our iniquities. You will cast all our sins into the depths of the sea” (Micah 7:19).

“That which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit” [6].

This verse underlines the mystery or sacrament of baptism. Through baptism, we have been granted adoption. Hence, we have become sons of God and rightful heirs to His kingdom (Rom.8:15). Through this sacrament we are torn away from the wild olive tree and grafted into the new one (Rom.11:24) by the power of the Holy Spirit. Being baptized we put on the new ‘robe’ (Lk.15:22) and the ‘wedding garment’ (Matt.22:11-23) without which no one can enjoy the kingdom. The prophecy of Ezekial is fulfilled in this manner as he says: ‘I will give you a new heart and put a new spirit within you, I will take the heart of stone out of your flesh and give you a heart of flesh. I will put My Spirit within you....’ (Ez.36:26).

When Nicodemus expressed his desire to comprehend what appeared impossible to him, the Lord revealed to him the meaning of a new birth: it did not involve a physical birth achieved by re-entering into the mother’s womb. Rather, it meant a spiritual birth achieved by the power of God’s Holy Spirit. Through His Spirit sanctification of the spirit is fulfilled (1Peter1:2); and inner washing of the soul by the Spirit is completed (Titus 3:5).

We are flesh not only because of this physical component but also in the sense that our bodies have become corrupted (Gen.3:5). Since our souls become one with the body, the soul consequently becomes enslaved to the dictates of the lustful body. It finds pleasure in immorality to the extent that man seems to have become wholly flesh. Now how can union be achieved between that which is wholly flesh and God Who is a Spirit? This is what demanded a new birth so that the entire human being might carry the feature of the Spirit. Consequently, the flesh would find its pleasure and joy in the Spirit rather than in the lusts of the flesh.

This is the natural cure for the human being who has been corrupted by the lusts of the body. It is a cure that the Son of God offers for He is the great Benefactor and Lawgiver. He is the Mediator of the New Testament and the Physician of our souls...He alone knows the real therapy.

He is the divine Vinedresser who knows that every tree brings fruit according to its seed. Therefore a person born of the Spirit will carry a spiritual and holy kingdom appropriate for God.

* Water is used to give birth to the new born. It plays the same role that a womb plays for a fetus. In the same manner, water is vital for a believer for in the water the believer gets formed and takes shape. At the beginning of the Creation, God said: “Let the waters abound with an abundance of living creatures...” (Gen1:20). However, since the Lord entered the River Jordan, the waters produce reasoning souls that bear the Spirit rather than mere ‘living creatures.’ The baptized person is ‘as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber’ (Ps.19:5). We are now speaking about the believers as they are clothed by Him in greater glory (than those born of the flesh). When a person is formed in the womb some time is needed. This is not the case when it comes to water for everything happens in one moment. In the first case, our life is susceptible to death and originates in the corruption of other flesh so that birth occurs slowly. This is not so in spiritual matters. Why?

Because in the water things are wholly shaped from the beginning.

* When Nicodemus heard the Lord's words, he was disturbed. Notice how the Lord gradually opened before him the hidden matters of this mystery. Things that seemed vague a few moments earlier became clearer. He said: "That which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit" [6]. He led Nicodemus away from everything that is tangible and did not allow him to examine the revealed mystery erroneously through his physical sight. It is as though the Lord is telling him: 'We are not speaking about the flesh, but about the spirit, O Nicodemus; (and with these words He led him towards heavenly matters for a while); so do not ask for things related to the flesh for the Spirit will never be revealed to its eyes. Moreover, do not imagine that the spirit can produce a physical offspring. Someone may ask: Then how was the body of the Lord Jesus Christ produced? It was not the work of the spirit alone for the body was involved as well, and St. Paul confirms that in his words: "...of a woman, born under the law..." (Gal.4:4). It is true that the spirit formed Him but this was not out of a void (otherwise why was a womb needed then?). However, He was shaped from a chaste body...

"...that which is born of the Spirit is spirit" implies that 'the one born out of the Spiritual is spiritual'; since the birth that the Lord is speaking about in this context is relevant according to honor and grace and not according to the essence of the being<sup>20</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* That which is powerful will definitely dominate that which is weak. Therefore the power of the spirit will devour the weakness of the flesh. In such a case, that person is no more a mere physical vessel for he/she has become spiritual due to the fellowship with the Spirit.

That is how martyrs represent a testimony of despite to death. They do so not depending on the weakness of the flesh but strengthened by spiritual preparedness. This is what devours the weakness of the flesh; and so making room for the power of the Spirit to shine.

In turn the Spirit, by absorbing the weakness of the flesh, reigns over it as a rightful inheritance. Through these two measures the living person is formed: being alive due to fellowship with the Spirit, yet being a human being due to the physical element of the flesh<sup>21</sup>.

St. Irenaeus

"Do not marvel that I said to you, 'You must be born again' [7].

The wind blows where it wishes, and you hear the sound of it, but cannot tell where it comes from or where it goes. So is everyone who is born of the Spirit" [8].

Man has no authority over the wind which blows and which we feel, yet we neither know its exact source nor where it will end. This is similar to birth by the Spirit which possesses power and influence. It is a free gift granted by God: He directs the Spirit Who in turn fulfills His word (Ps.148:8). Clearly we have no authority over the Spirit.

The action of the Spirit in Baptism is like that of a strong wind whose force is evident in its effect and the traces it leaves as a result. The Spirit works secretly and mysteriously yet its influence is clear in the life of the believer who experiences His presence each day.....GA..????

*When the Lord spoke to His disciples about the temple, He said: “Arise and let us depart from here....” He also told the Jews: “See! Your house is left to you desolate“(Matt.23:38). If heaven and earth will pass away (Lk.21:33), then, clearly, all earthly things will definitely pass away as well<sup>22</sup>.

St. Jerome

* By saying: “Do not marvel...”, the Lord reveals the troubled state of Nicodemus. He leads him to something easier to understand. Indeed, the Lord moves away from all that relates to the flesh when He says: “...that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.” As Nicodemus could not comprehend that which is born of the Spirit though He is a spirit, the Lord presents to him another example. He does not speak of things that possess physical density nor are they totally free from physical aspects (otherwise, on hearing of them, he would not have accepted His words). Rather, the Lord spoke of something that was in between things which possess a body and those which have none: the movement of the wind, and He says: “The wind blows where it wishes, and you hear the sound of it, but cannot tell where it comes from or where it goes. So is everyone who is born of the Spirit” [8]. By saying that the wind blows where it wishes, the Lord is not implying that the wind had the power of making a choice. He is only indicating that it is impossible to resist its natural power. With that same power...it spreads all over and no one can oppose or deter its path in any way. Indeed, it blows with great power and no one can stand before its violence, and “you hear the sound of it” [8]. That is, you hear its murmuring and its noise but cannot tell where it comes from or where it goes. So is everyone who is born of the Spirit” [8]. This is the ultimate conclusion of every matter. The Lord is asking why, if you cannot explain the movement of the wind and its course and this is something you comprehend through your sense of touch and hearing, then why are you so troubled by the work of the divine Spirit? Your inability to comprehend that is similar to your inability to understand the wind even though you hear its sound?!<sup>23</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

Nicodemus answered and said to Him: “How can these things be?” [9].

The teacher of the Jews is agitated and asks: “How can these things be?” With his materialistic capacity he was unable to comprehend spiritual matters as they are inconceivable to the ordinary man. Nicodemus was unable to understand divine matters by depending on human wisdom. The Lord clarified sufficiently that this new birth is a spiritual and divine one and that it submits entirely to the Holy Spirit of God. It neither obeys the laws of nature or of sheer human logic. The new birth is solely authorized and directed by the Almighty God.

Jesus answered and said to him: “Are you the teacher of Israel, and do not know these things?” [10].

It is as though the Lord is reprimanding him and saying: ‘How have you taken the responsibility to lead the blind to the truth while you yourself are ignorant? You call upon the Jews who accept Judaism to be baptized with water as a symbol of the new birth and you yourself have not enjoyed it or even recognized it?’ Has Nicodemus not read about the work of the Holy Spirit in the lives of men like what happened when Saul was anointed to be king? “Then the Spirit of the Lord will come upon you, and you will prophecy with them and be turned into another man...And so it was, when he had turned his back from Samuel, that God gave him another heart; and all these signs came to pass that day” (1 Sam.10:6,9). This is also seen in the divine promise to the prophets: “...I will put a new spirit within them, and take away the stony heart out of their flesh, and give them a heart of flesh” (Eze.11:19), and “I will put My Spirit in you, and you shall live...” (Ezek. 37:14). “Shall I bring the time of birth and not deliver?” says the Lord (Is.66:9); “And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit on all flesh...” (Joel 2:28).

* What do you think, my brothers? Do you believe that the Lord wishes to reprimand the teacher of the Jews to ridicule him? The Lord knew exactly what He was doing for He desired that this man would be born of the Spirit, and no one can receive this blessing unless he becomes humble. Humility in itself qualifies us to be born of the Spirit for “the Lord is near to those who have a broken heart...” (Ps.34:18). Being a teacher made Nicodemus extremely self confident and this is obvious from the manner he felt his importance as a teacher of the Jews. The Lord diminished his pride in order to offer him the new birth. He reprimanded him as though he were an ignorant man. By this the Lord was not seeking to underline that He is the Master for where is the point of comparison between God and man, or between the truth and falsehood?<sup>24</sup>

*The Lord speaks to him and reproves him...notice that He does not accuse him of anything evil but of weakness and naïveté.

Someone might ask: What is the relationship between (spiritual) birth and Judaism?

This birth had been proclaimed in the past through symbols, and this occurs in the source where Elisha made the metal rod to float; at the Red Sea where the Jews crossed over; in the pool where the angel of the Lord came and stirred the waters; and in the purification of Namaan the Syrian from leprosy in the River Jordan.

Moreover, the words of the prophet refer to the manner of this birth. For example: ‘A posterity shall serve Him, it will be recounted of the Lord to the next generation, they will come and declare His righteousness to a people who will be born, that He has done this’ (Ps.22:30, 31). ‘...so that your youth is renewed like the eagle’s (Ps.103:5).

Isaac was also a symbol for that birth.

Tell me, Nicodemus how was Isaac born? Was he born according to natural Law? Impossible. The manner of his birth was something in between the birth we are speaking about and a natural birth.

It was a natural birth for it was the fruit of two couples living together; and it was another manner of birth as he was not born through the blood (since the mother was barren and the father was aged and old) and yet he was born but according to the Will of God<sup>25</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“Most assuredly, I say to you, We speak of what We know and testify what We have seen, and you do not receive Our witness” [11].

---

Here the Lord uses the plural probably to indicate that He is speaking in the name of the Holy Trinity Who yearns for the new birth of mankind. He desires every believer to enjoy fellowship with the Trinity. Because it is hard for a normal person to comprehend the new spiritual birth, the Lord Jesus Christ presents His testimony and that of the Father. He explains their heavenly concept of that astonishing birth granted from above through the work and action of the Holy Spirit within the waters of baptism.

“If I have told you of earthly things and you do not believe, how will you believe if I tell you heavenly things?” [12]

The Lord speaks of ‘earthly things’ when He mentions ‘the wind that blows where it wishes and we hear the sound of it but cannot tell where it comes from and where it goes’ [8]. He is also referring to the ‘destruction of the temple of His Body’ (2:19). The ‘heavenly things’ are spiritual birth and the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ and His ascension into the heavens.

Baptism is a spiritual birth that takes place on earth so that believers can begin their journey to heaven. They are enabled to do so through their union with the Lord Jesus Christ Who has ascended into heaven. How can someone who is unable to accept the spiritual birth be able to ascend with the heart to heaven?

This is the how a person begins to soar with the heart and mind and all his/her inner depths towards the heavens. The inability to accept spiritual birth makes them part of those physically oriented ones who have not yet accepted to begin this heavenly journey. For how can they ascend with the Lord to His heavens unless they receive His Body and Blood, acknowledge the mystery of the Holy Trinity and His work within the believer, and enjoy fellowship with the heavenly ones?

* Some consider that the expression ‘earthly things’ refers to the wind to imply that ‘if I have given you an example of earthly things and yet you have not believed even that, then how can you learn of heavenly matters?’

Do not be astonished that He called Baptism an earthly matter for it is accomplished on earth or could stand to comparison with His awesome birth. For although this birth is heavenly, yet compared to the real birth that comes from the same Father, it is still considered an earthly one. The Lord does not say: ‘You do not understand’ but rather ‘You do not believe.’ This happens when a person is inclined to misinterpret certain matters that are logically conceivable and is truly unwilling to accept them. In this case it is possible to accuse him of lack of understanding. However, when that person refuses to accept matters that cannot be comprehended with the mind but by faith only, then the accusation against him would be that he lacks belief rather than understanding<sup>26</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“No one has ascended into heaven but He who came down from heaven, that is the Son of Man who is in heaven.” [13]

The Lord may be referring to a mistaken understanding that some Jews have concerning Moses. They believe that Moses ascended to heaven to receive the commandments and then descended to Israel. The Lord corrects that by confirming that no one has ascended to heaven except the Son of Man who descended from heaven and remained in His Divinity filling the heavens. He alone can reveal the heavenly mysteries, carry believers into heaven, and offer them the will of God.

Nicodemus spoke with the Lord as he perceived Him to be a prophet from God. It would have been fitting for him to perceive that the Lord is greater than a prophet. By His incarnation He descended from heaven, and by His Divinity He reigns in heaven. He is Lord come from heaven (1 Cor.15:47).

* If you asked: ‘What is the link between these words and what was said?’ My answer would be: ‘They are closely linked because when Nicodemus told the Lord: “Rabbi, we know that You are a teacher come from God...”’; the Lord wanted to dismiss that same statement and said something that would communicate the following: ‘Do not think that I have come to fit the role of a teacher like many other prophets who are here on earth. Rather I have come from heaven while I live there as well.’

Have you grasped how the Lord Jesus Christ is not in heaven only but that He is present everywhere and fills all His creatures?

St. John Chrysostom

*He descended for our sake, therefore let us ascend for His sake. He alone has descended and ascended, for He says: “No one has ascended into heaven but He who came down from heaven...” Do not those whom He has made children of God ascend to heaven? They definitely do ascend, and this is the promise offered to us: “...for they are equal to the angels...” Then how is it that no one ascends except He who descended? Because only One has descended and He is the One who has ascended. Then what about the others?... This is the hope of the others: that He has descended so that through and in Him they may become one; these are the ones who will ultimately ascend through Him... it is this that indicates the unity of the Church. Woe to them who hate unity and make themselves leaders of human factions<sup>27</sup>.

* It is time we traveled. However, this journey does not require us to rub our feet with ointment (to help us walk), or to have an animal (to ride upon), or even a ship.

May you be able to run with heart-felt feelings so that you may travel in the companionship of love and ascend with love.

Why do you search for the path? Adhere to the Lord who through His descent has made Himself to be the ‘Way.’

Do you want to ascend? Then adhere to Him who has ascended. Alone, you will be unable to ascend...since no one can ascend except He who has descended, that is the Son of Man, our Lord Jesus Christ. So, do you want to ascend too?

Become a member in the Body of the sole One who ascends. Only those who are members of His Body can ascend and so His words are fulfilled when He says: “No one has ascended into heaven but He who came down from heaven...”

‘For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh (Eph. 5:31). The Lord had not left His Father with the intention of appearing equal to Him, but in order to make Himself ‘of no reputation, taking the form of a servant...’(Phil.2:7).

Moreover, He also left His mother and the union that led to His birth according to the flesh. Ultimately, He adhered to His wife who is the Church.

Here, in this passage, the Lord is in that situation where He testifies and reveals that the marriage bond cannot be released (Matt.19:4) ...for ‘they are no longer two but one flesh’ and similarly “No one has ascended into heaven but He who came down from heaven....”

So that you may know that the bride and the bridegroom are one in relation to the Body of the Lord Jesus Christ, and not in relation to His Divinity...So that you may know that this complete whole is one Jesus Christ, therefore Isaiah spoke these words: “He has covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decks himself with adornments...” (Is.61:10, LXX)<sup>28</sup>.

St. Augustine

2- The New Birth and the Offering on the Cross

“An as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up...” [14].

Here the Lord states the purpose for which He has descended from the heavens: so that He might be lifted up on the Cross and grant mankind redemption.

The last miracle that Moses performed before his death was the lifting up of the bronze serpent in the desert and healing the nation from the bites of the serpents (Ex.21:6-9). In the same manner, it is through the Cross that our Lord redeems us from the curse of the Law which we have broken and which consequently became as the fiery and deadly snake bites. The Lord’s offering on the Cross is the balm in Gilead which heals from deadly diseases (Jer.8:22, 46:11).

The bronze snake is a symbol of the Lord Jesus Christ. It looks like the fiery and deadly serpent. However, it has a healing power over poison and does not carry its sting. In the same manner, our Lord carried the likeness of the corrupt sinful body yet there was no sin in Him. Since He carried sin for our sakes, He could break the sting of sin on our behalf.

When the serpent became cursed, the Lord became cursed on our behalf in order to liberate us from the circle of the curse and carry us into the light of His glorious Throne. Moses the prophet raised the bronze serpent, and he testified for the Lord Jesus Christ who became subject to the Law.

Origen the Scholar has a wonderful commentary about the Cross for he conceives two realities: the first is a phenomenon as the Lord Jesus Christ loves mankind and obeys God so much that He willingly goes to His crucifixion. The other is a less obvious fact as the one who got really crucified and paralyzed is Satan. The Lord actually nailed the sentence against us for ‘having disarmed principalities and powers, He made a public spectacle of them, triumphing over them in it’ (Col 2:14, 15). On one hand, the raised serpent represents the Lord Jesus Christ bearing our sins; and on the other hand, it represents the old serpent that the Lord has nailed by His Cross and degraded from his authority over believers.

* This is the original symbol of the serpent that Moses raised on the Cross so that all those that the serpent had harmed would be healed. Similarly, by looking to the bronze serpent, the believer is healed through faith (Num. 21:19; Jn 3:14, 15). So does the bronze serpent heal when it is crucified while the incarnated Son of God does not save?!

Note how wood often carried the promise of life: at the time of Noah, life was preserved in the wooden ark; and in the days of Moses, the wooden staff of Moses was used to strike the Sea and so enabled the people of God to cross over. So does the staff of Moses have power while the Cross of the Lord lack it?! In the days of Moses, the water became sweet by means of a piece of wood;

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* You might wonder: what was the purpose of the Lord Jesus Christ in not stating clearly that He will be crucified and just hinted to His hearers by mentioning an old symbol (the serpent)? My answer is as follows: First in order to let us know that the sayings of the Old Testament agree with the New Testament, the first is not in contradiction to the second; Secondly: so that we may know that the Lord did not come unwilling into the world. Besides, so that we may know that He was unharmed by the actual sufferings He went through; and that these sufferings constitute for many a source of salvation. Indeed, no one should say: How can those who believe in the Crucified be saved if He Himself was caught by death? That is why the Lord reminds us of the old story. Moreover, if the Jews have escaped death by looking at a bronze serpent then how much more will believers in the Crucified enjoy greater benefits with good reason? The crucifixion was not achieved due to the weakness of the Crucified or due the overruling power of the Jews but because “God loved the world” [16]. Therefore His living tabernacle (His Body) hurried towards the Cross<sup>30</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

*What are the serpents that sting? These are sins issuing from the corruption and death of the flesh.

What does the serpent that was lifted up stand for? It is the Lord who died on the Cross: Just as death came through the serpent, its figure became the symbol for it.

The sting of the serpent is deadly, but the Lord's death is life- giving. Indeed, when the Lord looks at the serpent it loses its power. How is that so? When He looks at death, it loses its power. But whose death is it? The death of life...by the death of the Lord Jesus Christ (Life), death dies.

The death of Life has terminated death since the Fullness of life has devoured death.

Death has been become extinct in the Body of the Lord.

Therefore we sing together with the vanquishers about the resurrection and say: “O Death, where is your sting? O Hades, where is your victory?”(1 Cor.15:54)...

There's a vast difference between a symbol and the Reality: the symbol lends a temporary existence, whereas the Reality that is represented by the symbol provides eternal life<sup>31</sup>.

*In order to present a symbol for His Cross, the merciful God ordered Moses to lift up the image of a serpent on a post in the desert. It was necessary to have a symbol of the crucified Lord who took the form of a corrupt body (Jn.3:14). The Psalmist intentionally looks at the Cross and says: “My eyes fail from seeking Your salvation and Your righteous word (Ps 119:123), for God made the Lord Jesus Christ 'who knew no sin to be sin for us, that we might become the righteousness of God in Him' (Rom.8:3; 2Cor.5:21).

In order to express the righteousness of God, the Psalmist says that his eyes fail to look jealously and with fervor as he knows human weakness. However, he depends on the Lord Jesus Christ for divine grace and help.

St. Augustine

poison there.

St. Ambrose

*The Savior was not the serpent, but He was a symbol of it.

Origen

*The Law indicates that the One who appeared on the Cross had the likeness of the serpent. Yet He was not the serpent but as St. Paul explains He had ‘the likeness of sinful flesh’ (Rom.8:3). Therefore the real serpent is sin, and anyone who commits sin takes on the nature of the serpent. In this manner man has become released from sin by Him who took the form of sin<sup>32</sup>.

St. Gregory, Bishop of Nicea

* The serpent represented the Lord Jesus Christ because, when the Jews treated Him as though He were a serpent, they were affected by the serpent’s poison- that is by Satan. At the same time, those who had been stung by the serpent were healed when it was lifted up.

St. Epiphanius, Bishop of Salamis

“...that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life” [15]

*Do you comprehend the purpose of the Cross and the salvation that proceeds from it? Do you comprehend the relevance of the symbol to the Truth? This is how the Jews were saved from death, and how believers are saved from eternal death through the Lord Jesus Christ. In the case of the Jews, there was a serpent lifted up and which healed the stings of the serpent. Now, the crucified Lord heals the wounds inflicted by the monster of the mind. In the first case, the beholder of the serpent was saved through his sense of sight. But in the second case, the beholder lays all sin on the Crucified. There the lifted one was a bronze object in the form of a serpent, but now the Crucified is the Body of the Lord Jesus Christ.

St. John Chrysostom

“For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life” [16]

In this chapter, the focus is on the glory of the Cross. On it the Son of Man is lifted up in order to attract and deliver all mankind. This is repeated four times (8:28; 12:32-34). Divine love is the dynamic element constantly working to offer the world the joy of salvation.

In his article on repentance, St. Ambrose draws our attention to significance of faith which enables a person to enjoy eternal life. Therefore how can we stop praying for unbelievers so that they may receive the divine gift of faith and so attain eternal life<sup>33</sup>?

* It is as though the Lord is saying: ‘Do not be amazed that I should be lifted up on the Cross so that you might be saved for this is God’s decision. He has loved you so much that He has sacrificed His Son for His slaves. Clearly none of you would do that for a friend or for any righteous person.’ This is what St. Paul clarifies when he says: “For scarcely for a righteous man will one die; yet perhaps for a good man someone will even dare to die. But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that we were still sinful, Christ died for us” (Rom.5:7, 8).

If you asked: For what reason did God love the world? My answer would be: He loved it out of His own goodness solely and for no other reason.

St. John Chrysostom

The expressions ‘...God so ...’ and ‘...loved the world...’ underline the great extent of His love. The distinction between the two is great and infinite for He is the eternal who is without beginning and the Almighty without end; whereas those of the world are dust and ashes and are charged with heaps of sin and ingratitude. They rebel against Him continuously yet they are the ones He has loved! The words that follow bear a similar meaning, for He says: “...He gave His only begotten Son...” He did not sacrifice a servant or an angel or archangel. No one shows concern for his child as much as the Lord shows towards His ungrateful slaves.

“For God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved [17].

On the Cross the Loved offered salvation openly and before the whole world: “The Lord has made bare His holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earths shall see the salvation of our God” (Is.52:10).

Earlier on the Lord had stated a negative aspect that those who believe will not die. Now He follows with the positive statement that they will be granted ‘everlasting life.’ Here too there is the negative ‘...not...to condemn’ and the positive ‘...be saved...’ The Lord’s words “...that the world through Him might be saved” were not only new to the ears of the Jewish leaders and people, but they were a stumbling block as well. This was because the teachers had interpreted the prophecies in the Old Testament concerning the awaited Messiah in the sense that He would rebuild the tabernacle of David, restore the kingdom to the people of Israel with all its glory and greatness, and condemn and wipe out the other nations. No matter how it was presented, the idea that He would redeem and save the world could never be acceptable or conceivable to the Jewish mentality.

* Before the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ we had countless guide posts to show us the good path: there were the laws of nature, the prophets, the written Law and teachings, numerous promises and revelations of the fathers, the punishments and corrective measures as well as numerous other commandments. As a result there was accountability. However, because of His love, He is forgiving to a great extent rather than judging; and He does so for the sake of those who are hastening towards destruction<sup>34</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord does not condemn, so do you condemn?

He says: “...whoever believes in Me should not abide in darkness” (Jn 12:46). That means that if a person is in the darkness, he does not remain there. Rather, he corrects his faults and imperfections, and obeys My commands, for I have said: ??????????????

come to condemn but that the world might be saved by Me [17]. I desire to pardon and forgive quickly “for I desire mercy and not sacrifice” (Hosea 6:6) ...and “For I did not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.” Sacrifice is the order of the law while mercy comes in the gospel: “For the law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came through Jesus Christ” (read Jn 1:17)<sup>35</sup>

3- Enlightenment and Faith

“He who believes in Him is not condemned; but he who does not believe is condemned already, because he has not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God” [18].

Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ is not a mere theoretical belief. It is a practical union and fellowship with Him. A person who disappears in Him and remains steadfast will definitely be released from the circle of condemnation for “there is no condemnation to those that are in Christ Jesus, who do not walk according to the flesh, but according to the Spirit” (Rom. 8:1). And once more, the Lord confirms: “Most assuredly, I say to you, he who hears My word and believes in Him who sent Me has everlasting life, and shall not come into judgment, but has passed from death into life” (Jn. 5:24).

* You might say: ‘Since the Lord did not come with the purpose of condemning the world, then how is it that He has already passed judgment on those who do not believe and while the day of judgment has not come yet?’ The answer is: ‘The Lord could be declaring what will happen in the future. It is like the case of the murderer who is not judged according to the nature of the judge but according to his crime. Similarly, an unbeliever is condemned by the nature of his denial and blasphemy. Adam died the day he ate of the tree, for the pronouncement on that issue has already been pronounced: “...but of the tree of good and evil you shall not eat, for in the day you eat of it you shall surely die” (Gen. 2:17). Yet Adam continued to live so how did he die? We answer: ‘He died due to the case ruling over him and by the nature of his rebellious act: anyone who exposes himself to punishment becomes subject to it and even if no action is taken to punish him swiftly yet his punishment has already have been pronounced.

St. John Chrysostom

“And this is the condemnation, that the light has come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil” [19].

The reference here is to thieves and highway robbers who usually do evil in the darkness of the night. God has granted the sun to give light to men and so that they might work by day and rest by night. As for those who choose to sleep during the daytime in order to do evil at night, then they deserve to be punished as ones who have broken the law of God.

The gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ is light: He has come and shone into the world in order to grant mankind the joy of working for the kingdom of God. At the same time He has set the just pronouncement on those who walk in darkness and are haters of the true light. In other words, the incarnation and dwelling of the true Word among us has separated the lovers of the light from those who love darkness and the Spirit of judgment has begun to work. Therefore He says: “...the ruler of this world is judged..." (Jn. 15:11); "Now is the judgment of this world; now the ruler of this world will be cast out (Jn, 12:31).

"...because their deeds were evil" since they insist on walking in darkness and adhering to Satan while they reject "the Light" and Savior of the world.

* It is as though the Lord is saying: 'If I had come to the world to punish and demand reasons for their wrong doing, people rightly would have used this as an excuse to explain why they have moved away and sought to escape. However, I have come to help them out of the darkness. Therefore they are condemned since they did not abandon the darkness and come to the Light. They can no longer present any other excuse.

St. John Chrysostom

"For everyone practicing evil hates the light and does not come to the light, lest his deeds be exposed" [20].

The wicked love darkness when it is more convenient to do their evil acts. They hate the light as it exposes them. The Bible is frightful for the wicked world which considers It an enemy that rebukes and condemns. A person who practices bad habits cannot stand the light and immerses himself into the darkness rather than facing it and praying for the light: "For it is shameful even to speak of those things which are done by them in secret. But all things that are exposed are made manifest by the light, for whatsoever makes manifest is light. Therefore He says: "Awake, you who sleep, arise from the dead. And Christ will give you light" (Eph 5:12-14).

There is a difference between those who comprehend the Logos (the Word of God) for some conceive Him as a lamp while others see Him as light itself...the ignorant virgins had unlit lamps (Matt. 25:2) "For everyone practicing evil hates the light and does not come to the light, lest his deeds be exposed" (Jn 3:20). The Lord also rebukes those who do not benefit constantly of the light which is with them for an hour or a little while (Jn 5:35) and as they use that lamp. The Lord says: "He was the burning and shining lamp, and you were willing for a while to rejoice in his light (Jn 5:35).

* Hurry, my brothers, so that the darkness might not overtake you. Awake to your need of salvation. Awake while there is time...Awake while the day is here and it is shining. The Lord is the Day and He is ready to forgive sins but only to those who admit them. He is ready to punish those who defend themselves and those who boast of their righteousness and believe they are worthy while they are nothing<sup>36</sup>.

St. Augustine

* For the Lord came to perfect the law and not to criticize It (Matt 5:17). He revealed to us the true offering, the 'Passover' from Egypt. It marks the beginning of the months and occurs in the month when the crossing over took place. It also marks the beginning of a new birth as a new way of life starts for those who abandon darkness behind them and come to the light (Jn 3:20-21). They therefore speak in a style that conforms with the holy mystery and through the power of the water granted to those who hope in the Lord. This is what is known as 'the washing of renewal' (Jn 3:5). Therefore what does the second birth convey other than the beginning of another birth?<sup>37</sup>

“But he who does the truth comes to the light, that his deeds may be clearly seen, that they have been done in God” [21].

The words ‘...he who does the truth....’ occurs to counter he who does evil and whose ‘deeds are wicked.’ The singular is used for there is one life in the Lord Jesus Christ and adhering to Him. In contrast the plural is used to refer to evil acts and deeds as they occur in an uninterrupted chain of dark actions. The amazing observation is that when we perform truthful acts, meaning that when we adhere to the Lord, we come to the light- that is to the person of the Lord- and it seems as though the more we adhere to Him the more the fervor of our heart increases. As a result we yearn to really enter and unite intensely with the Lord. Consequently, we, as believers, becomes increasingly attracted day after day in the hope of attaining ‘the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ’ (Eph. 4:13).

When we practice the truth, we receive the light so that our deeds occur in the presence of the Lord and by His help and grace. This is the conclusion of our Lord’s conversation with Nicodemus. Since we have become adopted to be His sons, it is appropriate that we, the believers, enjoy the possibilities God provides through Him and in Him.

The light of truth that fills the believer with joy is in itself hateful to the wicked. He cannot tolerate the light and considers it an enemy that resents and opposes him.

The Lord’s words “...they have been done by God” express His affirmation that the righteousness of the believer is based on the work of God within him, “...for it is God who works in you both to will and to do for His good pleasure.” (Phil. 2:13).

* Being considered a person is the result of God’s work. However, being considered a sinner is the result of man’s own work or deeds.

Therefore erase what you have done so that God might redeem what He has done.

It is appropriate for you to hate what you have done to yourself, and to love the work of God in you.

When you are displeased with your own actions, you would have begun to do God’s good work since you have found fault with your wicked actions.

The confession of wicked deeds is the beginning of doing that which is good.

You do what is true and you come to the light. How do you do what is true? You do not spoil, release, or flatter yourself. Moreover, you do not say: ‘I am righteous’ while you are not. That is how you start to do what is true.

You come to the light to declare that your actions are done only through God and His help. Otherwise, it will be impossible for you to recognize your sin, the very thing you hate, and to despise it. You can do this only when God shines within you and reveals the truth to you.

As for a person who loves wickedness even after he has received advice, he clearly hates the light that guides him and evades it. This is because the actions he loves to take do not appear to be wicked to him. Whereas a person who loves to do what is true condemns his own evil actions and does not provides justification or forgives himself until God forgives him.

He who desires God’s forgiveness needs to recognize his own faults, come to the light, and give thanks for revealing what he needs to hate in himself. He prays God “...to hide (His) face from (his) sins...” Yet how can he dare to say this unless he adds: “For I acknowledge my transgressions and my sin is ever before me...” (Ps.51:3, 9).

May your sins remain before you if you do not want to put them before the Lord.

However, if you put them behind you, God will push them and put them before your eyes. This occurs at a time when the fruit of repentance is no longer found within<sup>38</sup>.

St. Augustine

* The Lord spoke these words to describe those who have chosen to remain in their wickedness for ever. He came for that purpose and in order to grant forgiveness for previous sins. Besides, He came to safeguard us from future trespasses since there are those who are careless and perverted. These are so far removed from virtue that they wish to remain in their wickedness until their very last breath. Indeed, they are unable to distance themselves from evil at any moment of their lives.

St. John Chrysostom

4- The Stance of John the Baptist on the Baptism of the Lord Jesus Christ

‘After these things Jesus and His disciples came into the land of Judea, and there He remained with them and baptized’ [22].

The Lord left Jerusalem ‘in the land of Judea’ where He had met and spoken with Nicodemus, and visited other areas of Judea. The Bible often makes the distinction between Jerusalem and Judea (Acts 1:8, 10:30; 1Kgs3:34; 2Kgs 1:1, 10)

The Lord Jesus Christ did not baptize but His disciples did so through His authority and command (Jn 4:2). That is why they considered it as though He was baptizing.

*The Lord used to go up to Jerusalem during the feasts as He wanted people to benefit from His teachings and miracles. When the celebrations were over, He would go to Jordan as many would travel and go there. He always went to places where there would be crowds in order to offer the many the blessings inherent in Him. Indeed, He did not do so in order to reveal Himself or to seek Honor. Therefore St. John the Evangelist clarifies this and says: ‘(though Jesus Himself did not baptize, but His disciples)’ (Jn.4:2).

St. John Chrysostom

‘Now John also was baptizing in Aenon near Salem, because there was much water there. And they came and were baptized’ [23].

The Lord Jesus Christ began to baptize through His disciples before John the Baptist is put in prison in order to draw the disciples of the Baptist towards Himself. In this way they would not get scattered after his martyrdom. Besides, this would insure that the cycle of work would not end with the Baptist’s death. In fact St. John the Baptist continued to collaborate harmoniously, preaching and seriously preparing for the Kingdom of God until his very last breath.

Aenon: is about eight miles south of Scythopolis, and lies between Salem and Jordan.

It is clear that the Baptist always baptized by immersion as the Evangelist says: “...because there was much water there. And they came and were baptized’ [23].

* ‘...Jesus Himself did not baptize, but His disciples’...why? Note the Baptist’s words:

“...He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire...” (Matt 3:11; Lk 3:16). Until that moment, the Holy Spirit had not been granted and therefore it was valid that He did not baptize. However, His disciples did baptize in order to attract many to the faithful teachings... Then why did the Baptist not stop baptizing if that would have added awe to the stature of the disciples? In order to avoid arousing any competition among his disciples and which would have been worse than any hostility... besides, while the Baptist was baptizing he did not cease to underline to them the greatness and awesome nature of the Lord’s acts...

Was the baptism performed by the disciples better than the one done by the Baptist? No, it was not better in any way. Both were done without the gift of the Holy Spirit. So they were similar and shared the same objective which was to lead those who got baptized to the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>39</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘For John had not yet been thrown into prison’ [24].

‘The there arose a dispute between some of John’s disciples and the Jews about purification’ [25].

*The disciples of the Baptist were always jealous of the Lord Jesus Christ Himself and of His disciples who were baptizing. They began to argue with those who had been baptized and so they appeared to believe that their baptism were better than the one done by the Lord’s disciples. They caught some who had been baptized and tried to convince them of that but they failed. Note how the Evangelist implies that they began, at first, to attack (the Lord) ...he does not say that a Jew asked them but that they aroused the doubt, and that the questioning was raised by the Baptist’s disciples and directed to the Jews<sup>40</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

*The Baptist was baptizing and so was the Lord...the disciples of the Baptist were moving and running towards the Lord...the Baptist delivered those who went to him to the Lord so that He would baptize them; whereas those who went to the Lord were not sent to the Baptist.

The disciples of the Baptist were disturbed, and according to custom, they began to discuss these matters with the Jews.

Let us remember that the Jews admitted that the Lord Jesus Christ was greater, and that the people would necessarily turn to His baptism. The Baptist’s disciples understood that as well; yet they defended John’s baptism and came to him personally to solve the matter.

Remember, dear ones, we have been granted the grace to learn how to apply humility. When the people were wrong in their discussion of this matter, it was a chance to reveal if the Baptist was seeking honor for himself...

He wisely knew before whom to be humble: before the One he knew had come after him by birth; yet he willingly admitted His primacy and acknowledged Him. The Baptist understood that his own salvation is in the Lord Jesus Christ. Long before that incident, John had said: “And of His fullness we have all received...” In this statement, the Baptist confesses that the Lord is God; for how can we all receive of His fullness if He were not God?...

He is the Source and they are the partakers of Him. Those who drink from a source get thirsty later on. The Source never thirsts and does not turn to Himself. However, mankind need the Source and run to Him to quench their thirsty stomach and their dry lips. And the Source flows in order to revive: this is the work of the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>41</sup>.

St. Augustine

‘And they came to John and said to him: “Rabbi, He who was with you beyond the Jordan, to whom you have testified- behold, He is baptizing, and all are coming to Him!”[25].

The disciples of the Baptist revealed their respect for him they addressed him as ‘Rabbi’; and yet, on account of their love and jealousy for him, they showed disrespect to the Lord. They did not even mention the name of the Lord but spoke lightly and referred to Him as ‘He who was with you.’ They believed that what the Lord was doing was an act of ingratitude towards the Baptist who had baptized and witnessed for Him. They did not realize that the Lord had no need for the testimony of John or for men’s praise. Indeed, the Father Himself witnessed for Him and the Holy Spirit appeared and rested on Him. They believed that baptism by the Lord’s disciples was degrading for the baptism done by John and as though there was rivalry among the two parties.

* ‘He who was with you beyond the Jordan, to whom you have testified’ conveys the meaning of ‘that one who has the rank of a disciple, and who is no more than us...that person has separated himself and is baptizing.’ John’s disciples believed that this would make the Baptist envious. To underline that they stressed that their popularity was on the decline by saying: “and all are coming to Him!”[25]. Their behavior revealed them to be no better than the Jews who had argued with Him. They spoke these words because they were torn in their inclinations and they had not dismissed the sense of competition which filled them<sup>42</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘John answered and said: “A man can receive nothing unless it has been given to him from heaven” [27].

The Baptist was neither disturbed nor embarrassed; but proclaimed joyfully and with a glad spirit that what the Lord was doing is authorized by heaven. He found this a good opportunity to confirm and clarify for a second time his witness for the Lord.

Listen to what John the Baptist tells his disciples. Rather than reprove them harshly and risking that they would forsake him and commit some other bad behavior, he told them that ‘A man can receive nothing unless it has been given to him from heaven’...for a while he wished to strike them with fear and terror and to reveal to them that they were actually fighting God when they fought the Lord Jesus Christ. In this context, the Baptist established this reality indirectly and it is the same truth that Gamaliel confirmed: “...but if it is of God, you cannot overthrow it –lest you even be found to fight against God” (Acts 5:39). Therefore the saying that ‘A man can receive nothing unless it has been given to him from heaven’ is a pronouncement that they are fighters against God and so attempting the impossible. Notice also that when they said: ‘to whom you have testified’ [26] the Baptist opposed them as they seemed to degrade the power of the Lord and silenced them by his words ‘A man can receive nothing unless it has been given to him from heaven’ [27]. If you hold on to my testimony and consider it to be true, then acknowledge this and do not prefer me over Him. You have to prefer Him over me otherwise why have I testified? ‘I pray you yourselves to bear to my witnesses [28]<sup>43</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

St. Augustine believes that John the Baptist is speaking here about himself as being a person who has been granted heavenly insight but that he is not the Messiah. It is as though he is saying: [‘Why do you deceive yourselves? Look at how you put this problem to me and at what you are saying?... Because I have received something from heaven in order to fulfill certain task, do you want me to empty myself of that by saying things that oppose the truth?... I am the news reporter and He is Judge]<sup>44</sup>.

“You yourselves bear me witness, that I said, ‘I am not the Christ’ but ‘I have been sent before Him’ [28].

It is as though John is saying here: “I am the servant carrying the words of Him who has sent me.” The expression ‘I have been sent before Him’ in the Greek language implies continuity in the action and giving fruit as a result of it.

* ‘Do adhere to my testimony... If you consider me trustworthy, then one of the things I told you is that: “I have been sent before Him” [28] ...for He is not diminished by my witness for Him. On the contrary, I am elevated by it. After a while it will become evident that this Voice is a divine one, and therefore the testimony does not proceed from me but it comes from God.’ The words of the Baptist convey the following meaning: ‘I am a servant and I speak the words of Him who has sent me. I do so to serve His Father who has sent me and not in order to flatter the Lord Jesus Christ for any personal interest. Moreover, I do not testify through a gift inherent in me but speak as I have been commissioned to do. Therefore do not consider that I am great, but rather that He is great... for He is Lord above all things<sup>45</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“He who has the bride is the bridegroom, but the friend of the bridegroom, who stands and hears him, rejoices greatly because of the bridegroom’s voice. Therefore this joy of mine is fulfilled” [29].

In Jewish culture, the friend of the bridegroom is called showshabiyn; and in the Greek culture paranymphos. Usually there was a friend for the bridegroom and one for the bride and most often the brother would be the bridegroom’s friend.

Sometimes, however, there would not be a specific person who is the friend of either the bride or the bridegroom. In contrast, there had to be a friend of the bridegroom when the wedding was that of a king or nobleman or other very highly ranked person. The Jews believed that this custom has been instituted by God as He Himself was the showshabiyn at Adam’s wedding. Bereshith Rabba, however, writes that Adam had two friends at his wedding: Michael and Gabriel.

The friend of the bridegroom played a vital and unique role: he would be relieved of his religious obligations in order to help the newly wed couple throughout the first seven days. Before the wedding, he had to protect the bride, attend to her, and report to the bridegroom as well as act as a liaison or link between them. He would carry letters they wished to exchange as the engaged female was not allowed to leave the home of her parents.

After the wedding, the friend would help to strengthen the personality of the bride. He would live close by to ensure that no harm would touch her and that neither party would deceive the other. Moreover, it was his duty to examine her purity and once he was assured, he would rejoice. This is probably what St. John means when he says: “Therefore this joy of mine is fulfilled” [29]. The friend also brings the presents offered to the couple and ultimately shares in the joyful wedding celebrations that last for seven days.

After this celebration that extends for a week, the friend of the bridegroom becomes more like a defender for him (2 Cor 11:2). Therefore he solves any marital problems that may arise and restores harmony.

The bridegroom’s friend keeps the wedding contract with him. If he finds that the bride is unfaithful, he has the authority to tear up the contract and so the wedding would be considered as annulled. However, if the bridegroom abandons and divorces her, the friend fills in the role of her legal brother (the husband’s brother)<sup>46</sup>.

St. John the Baptist proclaims his joy because the divine Bride has come. He joins the men of God in the Old Testament who expressed that joy towards the Bride. St. Gregory, Bishop of Nicea, expresses that thought in his interpretation of The Song of Solomon as he says: ‘Those who serve the virgin bride and accompany her are the patriarchs, the prophets, and teachers of the law. They offer to the Bride the wedding presents (such as the remission of sins, the resolution to stop wicked acts, the purification from sin, a change in nature in the sense that the corrupt nature will become pure, the enjoyment of Paradise, and infinite joy).

When the Bride receives all these presents from the nobility and from all those who carry these gifts through their prophetic teachings, she proclaims her eagerness and hurries to enjoy the privilege and the beauty of the One she has desired for so long.

The servants and the companions of the Bride listen to her and encourage Her to be more desirous. Then the Bridegroom arrives and leads a crowd of singers that includes His friends and well wishers. These represent the spirits of the pure prophets or those who serve and rescue mankind.

When they hear the voice of the Bridegroom, they rejoice (Jn3:29) as the pure union is fulfilled and the soul that adheres to the Lord becomes one spirit with Him. This is also proclaimed by the St. Paul, the apostle (1 Cor.6:17)<sup>47</sup>.

*Those who expect that the Lord will come again stand eagerly and attentively at the gates of heaven and wait for the time when the King of glory enters into His grace. This will exceed all imagination and according to Psalm 19:5 ‘which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber.’

In spite of our sins and our worship of idols and God’s consequent removal; we have been granted the new birth and have become as a first born after being washed of our inner corruption. Therefore all the wedding celebrations have been fulfilled and the Word of God has been united to the Church, and as St. John says: “He who has the bride is the bridegroom,” (Jn.3:29).

And the Church has received the Bride in the wedding bridal room. And the angels have expected the return of the King as He leads the Church as His Bride. Through His leadership, He has made Her nature ready to receive grace. He has therefore said that our lives have to be cleaned of all evil and deceit so that we too are ready to receive the Lord when He comes again.

When we watch the doors of our homes, we prepare ourselves for the arrival of the Bridegroom and for the time when He will call and knock at the door for: “Blessed are those servants whom the master, when he comes, will find watching” (Lk 12:37). For he is blessed who obeys the One who is knocking.

The soul is eager for this blessing of welcoming her Bridegroom who stands at the door.

She watches the door of her home alertly and says: “It is the voice of my beloved! He knocks... (Sg of Sol.5:3). How would the bridegroom deny her the privilege when she has reached up to Him who is ultimately most holy?<sup>48</sup>

St. Gregory of Nicea

* It is as though the Baptist is saying: ‘I would have suffered greatly if this had not happened. It would have given me so much pain and grief if the bride had not come to her bridegroom. However, I am no longer sad since my hopes have been fulfilled and everything we have longed for has taken place: for the bride has recognized her bridegroom and you are witnesses of that. Therefore I am glad and rejoice now that this prayer has been answered.

St. John Chrysostom

* Listen to what is even much stronger and to a clearer testimony. Notice the matter we are concerned with: for it an adulterous act if someone loves a person and allows him/her to take the place of the Lord Jesus Christ...for “He who has the bride is the bridegroom”...so be pure, and love the Bridegroom...

Presently, I see many adulterers who wish to possess the bride, who has been bought for such a great price. She was loved when she was disfigured so that she might become beautiful. She has been bought and received redemption and now she is adorned by that One who has saved her.

As for these adulterers, they struggle with words in order to love someone other than the bridegroom...

Let us therefore listen to the friends of the bridegroom rather than to the adulterers who oppose him...

Let us listen to that one who is jealous and fervent, yet it is not on his own account<sup>49</sup>.

* He says ‘I rejoice not on account of my voice but on account of the voice of the bridegroom. I fill in the position of the hearer, while He is the Speaker. As a person, I need to be enlightened, whereas He is the Light. I am like the ear, while He is the Word. That is why the bridegroom’s friend stands and listens to him.

Why does he stand? So that he might not fail.

What would prevent him from failing? His humility.

Remember that he is standing on firm ground: “I am not worthy to loosen His sandal straps.” You do well to be humble and so you are prepared not to fall. Rather, you are prepared to stand and to hear Him, and to rejoice greatly upon hearing the voice of the bridegroom<sup>50</sup>.

* Peter is an eye in this Body; and although that other person is a finger yet he is a member in that same Body to which Peter belongs. Even if the finger has a lesser power than the eye, yet it is not amputated from the Body.

Body.

Therefore do not be deceived, my brothers, and let no one impress you. Love the peace that the Lord grants as He, who is God, has been crucified for your sakes. St. Paul says: "So then neither he who plants is anything, nor he who waters, but God who gives the increase" (1Cor 3:7)...

May all the members love one another, and may all live subject to the Head.

In my sadness I have been obliged to speak to you for a long period. However, I have not said enough and so find myself unable to stop<sup>51</sup>.

* What brings him joy? He rejoices to hear the voice of his Bridegroom.

This has been fulfilled for me and I have received this blessing. I do not assume a role that is not mine otherwise I would lose my actual status...

People need to understand that they should not rejoice because of their own wisdom, but rather, they should rejoice on account of the wisdom that God has granted them.

No one should ask for more (than what he has) so that he does not lose what he has found; for many people who have claimed wisdom have turned out to be foolish and dull. The apostle rebukes such people and tells them: "...because what may be known of God is manifest in them, for God has shown it to them" (Romans 1:19)...

People should not claim for themselves what they have not obtained as a result of their own effort. They need to explain it as the gift that they have received freely from God; otherwise He will withdraw such blessings from the ungrateful. The Baptist did not want that to happen to him for he wanted to be thankful. He confessed he had been blessed, and proclaimed that he rejoiced on hearing the voice of the Bridegroom by saying: "Therefore this joy of mine is fulfilled" [29]<sup>52</sup>.

St. Augustine

"Therefore this joy of mine is fulfilled" [29] indicates that 'the task I had to do has been achieved and there is nothing more I can do in the future.' The Baptist tells them what would take place in the future to prevent arousing intense physical emotions in the present as well as in the future. Therefore he affirms that events are proceeding in agreement with what he had said and done earlier on<sup>53</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

"He must increase, but I must decrease" [30].

St. John the Baptist understands that the Lord increases and he decreases and this becomes obvious in the manner each has died. The first became a martyr silently when he died in prison; and only very few learned about it. The Lord, however, died in public and on the Cross: He lifted up His Head towards heaven, and spread out His arms to embrace lovingly all mankind. The first died and was buried after he was beheaded; whereas the Lord Jesus Christ died, was buried, and arose in order to resurrect the dead with Him.

The words of St. John the Baptist have relevance to the life of every true believer who is growing in his relationship with the Lord. In each moment of his life, the believer dismisses all that is materialistic and indeed gets to feel that he/she discards that which is human. This is done not with the object of living without a human will or without human feelings, but in order to proclaim the will of God in one's life. As a result, one's emotions are sanctified and he acts according to the Lord. In this manner the believer experiences sweetness in his failings as he makes way for the Lord to increase and be glorified in him.

The Lord's successful ministry marks the starting point for the proclamation of His glorious righteousness, peace, and truth among mankind.

The Baptist rejoices that the number of people coming to him for baptism has diminished. By going to the Lord Jesus Christ, they fulfill the goal of his own service and baptism.

*“He must increase, but I must decrease” [30]...What does this mean: He should be glorified, and I should be humbled?

How might the Lord Jesus Christ increase? How does God increase? God neither increases nor decreases. If He were to increase then He is not perfect; and if He were to decrease then He is not God...

Could that be a result of His willingness to become man when He became incarnate? He was a child, and although He is the wisdom of God, He lay in a manger as a newly born. Moreover, He sucked milk from his mother in spite of the fact that He is her Creator. Then the Lord Jesus Christ grew up physically and maybe that is why the Baptist said: “He must increase, but I must decrease.” But why is that? Physically, the Baptist and the Lord were of the same age with just six months' difference between them. Besides, they had grown together...so what is the meaning of “He must increase, but I must decrease”?

That is a great mystery!

Before the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ, men used to glorify themselves.

He came as a person to reduce man's glory and to increase the glory of God. He came without sin and found all men had fallen into sin. In the form of a man He came to tear sin away and as God grants freely so man has to confess. It is this confession that degrades man, yet it is the tenderness of God that is sublime.

Therefore since the Lord has come to forgive the sins of man, then man has to admit his immorality and may God reveal His tenderness.

“He must increase, but I must decrease” or in other words ‘He will grant me good things and I will receive; He will be glorified and I will confess.’ May every person become aware of his own condition and confess to God. Let us listen to what the apostle has to say to the proud and mighty person who praises himself: “And what do you have that you have not received? Now if you did indeed receive it, why do you glory as if you had not received it?” (1Cor 4:7)<sup>54</sup>.

*May God who is always perfect grow and increase in you for the more you comprehend Him the more He will appear to increase in you. As for Himself, He does not increase since He is the everlasting Perfection...This is also true of the inner depths of a person for he truly grows in the Lord God who appears increasingly in Him. However, the person himself seems to diminish when he falls away from his own arrogance and establishes the glory of God<sup>55</sup>.

St. Augustine

*This means that we have stopped and ceased our wrong doings; whereas the works of the Lord will increase. What you are afraid of will happen not only now but later on and to a greater extent. This specifically increases the brilliance of my situation for I have come for this task. Therefore I rejoice that His objectives are advancing rapidly and that this is the result of my actions.

Can you not see that He has gently and wisely soothed their sufferings, calmed their bodies, revealed to them that they had spoken of impossible matters, and that evil had to be controlled? <sup>56</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

“He who comes from above is above all; he who is of the earth is earthly and speaks of the earth. He who comes from the heaven is above all” [31]

The Bridegroom descending from heaven (Jn 3:13) is above all: He is greater than Moses, the prophets, and is even greater than John the Baptist himself.

The Baptist speaks about himself as ‘...he who is of the earth...’ because he was born in the same way as all other human beings. Consequently, he is unable to speak of matters proclaimed by the heavenly Messiah. He just prepares the way for Him. There is no point of comparison between the prophets (and the Baptist is one of them) and the Lord Jesus Christ. When they witness for the Truth, they are still human vessels on earth through whom God speaks. However, when the Lord Jesus Christ speaks, His words come from heaven for He is heavenly.

* He wishes to indicate that the Lord does not need anyone for He is self sufficient and greater than all...so the Baptist says: “...he who is of the earth is earthly and speaks of the earth” to point to himself...do you see how he has nothing else to say of himself other than that he is of lesser stature and came from the earth and was born of it? As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He had come to them from heaven. With all these words, the Baptist is able to satisfy their jealousy.

* It is as though he is saying: ‘If I were to compare my concerns with His, they would appear few, mean, and poor just as all other things which have an earthly nature’<sup>57</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* When the Baptist speaks about the human aspect of himself (that is in John the Baptist) he is indicating an earthly being who is enlightened by God.

If he had not been enlightened, he would have remained earthly and speaking with earthly wisdom...

May the grace of God come and lighten up his darkness according to the words: “For You will light my lamp; the Lord my God will enlighten my darkness” (Ps18:28).

May God take the thoughts of man and transform them to be his light. Then man will immediately join the apostle and say: “...not I, but the grace of God which was with me” (1Cor15:10); and “...it is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me” (Gal 2:20)...

This is the condition of the Baptist since he is of the earth and speaks from the earth. However, the heavenly words you hear from him are inspired by the One who enlightens him and not from the person (the Baptist) who receives them<sup>58</sup>.

St. Augustine

“And what He has seen and heard, that He testifies; and no one receives His testimony” [32].

The words spoken by the prophets are simply the testimony of what God has delivered to them through different means. As for the words of the Lord Jesus Christ, they are proclamations of what He has seen and heard for He is never separated from the Father and He is the Truth Itself.

* “He who comes from above is above all... And what He has seen and heard, that He testifies; and no one receives His testimony” [31-32]...He has the Father since He is the Son of God: He has the Father and hears Him...He is the Word of God<sup>59</sup>.

St. Augustine

“He who has received His testimony has certified that God is true” [33].

*When he was in prison, the Baptist sent his disciples to the Lord so that they would get attached to Him...now that the Lord starts to speak the words of God there will be believers and non- believers, those who will believe in God and those who will not...note the words ‘...has certified...’ mean ‘has proclaimed.’ In order to disturb them deeply, he tells them ‘that God is true’ for he wishes to clarify that no one can reject the belief in the Lord Jesus Christ without rejecting God at the same time, and by doing so commits a sin<sup>60</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“For He whom God has sent speaks the words of God, for God does not give the Spirit by measure” [34].

Human beings receive the Spirit of God in the measure of their own potential and weakness. As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He receives the Spirit without measure since the Spirit is One with Him and resides in Him.

* St. John the Baptist says the following about the Lord: “For He whom God has sent speaks the words of God” because the Lord says nothing other than the words of His Father and says only the words of God. Therefore anyone who opposes the Son is also opposing His Father who has sent Him. Do you see how he disturbed them deeply by his words?

He then says: “... for God does not give the Spirit by measure” In other words we have all received the work of the Spirit with measure and proportion but the Lord possesses the Spirit entirely and completely and without measure.

* St. John the Baptist says about the Son: “for God does not give the Spirit by measure” (Jn3:34) to those who deserve. Therefore there is no measure for the Son as it is impossible to measure Him. He exceeds all measure as He is God. How could you measure the One Who cannot be measured or describe Him as lacking?

St. Cyril the Great

* St. John Chrysostom writes the following: ‘He is speaking about capacity when he mentions the Spirit.’ We all receive the capacity of the Spirit by measure. As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He possesses full capacity and that cannot be measured as it is His in its entirety. Therefore since His capacity is without measure then how much greater is His essence? He refers to the capacity, the Spirit or more adequately the Spirit of God according to the words of the Baptist. By stating that the capacity has no measure he indicates that the nature of the Spirit is not a created one. When he says that we receive the Spirit with measure, he is referring to the different nature of the uncreated capacity that resides in the Essence and that is also not created...now, if the capacity of the Spirit is without measure, then how much more immeasurable is the Essence<sup>61</sup>.

---

Fr Gregory Palamas

St. John the Baptist draws a distinction between his mission and the Lord's mission. The mission of John the Baptist is a mission of God ordained to a human apostle who speaks and testifies within the capacity and grace he receives. As for the mission of the Lord, it is the mission of the Son of God and His Word Who is one with Him. He alone sees the Father as He is and can witness for Him. The Spirit of the Son of God is the Spirit of the Holy Father and therefore, unlike the prophets, apostles, or believers in general, He does not receive the Spirit by measure.

* “for God does not give the Spirit by measure” [34]. Listen to the words of the apostle: “But to each one of us grace was given according to the measure of Christ's gifts” (Eph4:7). With reference to human beings, the Spirit is given by measure, but with reference to the Only Son it is given without measure. How does He give to human beings with measure? “...for to one is given the word of wisdom through the Spirit, to another the word of knowledge through the same Spirit, to another faith by the same Spirit, to another gifts of healing ....to another the working of miracles, to another prophecy...” (1 Cor 12:8...etc)...as for the Lord Jesus Christ, Who is the Giver, He receives without measure<sup>62</sup>.

St. Augustine

“The Father loves the Son, and has given all things into His hands.” [35]

John the Baptist clarifies that the Lord Jesus Christ is far greater than any teacher, prophet, or apostle. Some prophets have received certain talents, others have received certain revelations or visions, others have received dreams, some have received the talent of teaching, while others got the gift of giving comfort, etc...As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He is the only One who possesses everything and holds all in His hands.

* “The Father loves the Son...” [35], yet He loves as a father loves and not as a lord who loves his slave. Indeed, He loves Him as His only begotten Son rather than an adopted son...That is why when He willingly gave up His Son for our sakes, we should not imagine that the One sent to us is less than the Father. For when the Father sends the Son it is similar to someone sending his other self (as He is One with Him, and is equal to Him)<sup>63</sup>.

St. Augustine

“He who believes in the Son has everlasting life; and he who does not believe the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abides on him.” [36]

* Jesus says: “I am the door...” (Jn 14:6; 10:9); “No one comes to the Father except through Me...”; “...no one knows the Son except the Father. Nor does anyone know the Father except the Son, and he to whom the Son wills to reveal Him” (Matt 11:27). Therefore if you deny the One revealed to you, you will remain ignorant.

In the Gospel of St. John there is the following statement: ‘...he who does not believe the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abides on him’ (Jn 3:36) because the Father gets angry when His only Son is disrespected. A king would be grieved if just one of his soldiers is humiliated, so how would it be if this happens to his only son? Who would be able to appease the anger of the Father on account of His only Son?!<sup>64</sup>

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* Someone may ask: ‘So is any person assured of eternal life if he just believes in the Son? The answer is : He certainly is not assured in any way for the Lord Himself said: “Not everyone who says to Me, ‘Lord, Lord’ shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of My Father in heaven” (Matt 7:21). For if a person firmly believes in the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit and yet does not lead a pure life, he will gain nothing from his faith and will not have a single advantage that would help him attain salvation. Therefore do not think that faith is sufficient for our salvation. To ensure our salvation, we need to lead a straight and correct life and follow a chaste path besides faith.

St. John Chrysostom

* When someone believes, the wrath of God passes away and life reigns. Therefore in believing in the Lord Jesus Christ you are possessing life since a person who believes in Him will not be condemned (Jn3:15). However, many insist that this statement has a condition attached to it which is that the believer needs to keep the Lord’s commandments. They claim that these are the words of the Lord Himself who has said: “I have come as a light into the world, that whoever believes in Me should not abide in darkness. And if anyone hears My words and does not believe, I do not judge him (Jn 12:47)<sup>65</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* The Baptist does not say: ‘The wrath of God will descend on him’ but rather ‘the wrath of God abides on him.’ All those who have been born vulnerable to death and subject to the wrath of God. And what is the wrath of God other than the wrath first caused by Adam...from this genealogy the Son has come, without sin, and was covered with the flesh that is subject to death. If He has shared with us the wrath of God when He bore our sins, then why are we reluctant and slow to share with Him the grace of God? Therefore he who does not believe, the wrath of God abides on him. Why is God angry? According to the apostle, we ‘...were by nature children of wrath, just as others’ (Eph 2:3). All are children of wrath, since they are the outcome of the curse of death.

Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, for he became vulnerable to death for your sakes.

He lived while you were dead.

He died so that you may live.

He has brought the grace of God, and torn away His wrath.

God has conquered death so that death would not conquer man<sup>66</sup>.

*My depths groan, my body and whole being have swerved towards corporal things,
Greed had governed my depths
But Your grace has rescued me.
You have granted me a birth from the Water and the Spirit!
You have become a heavenly Father for me, and Your Church an immortal Mother. I have no longer an excuse or a justification,
May Your fiery Spirit carry me to the new world!

*You were born in the flesh for my sake,
In order to grant me a heavenly birth by Your Holy Spirit!
You have cleaned me thoroughly in the baptismal water,
And You have granted me victory over the old dragon.
You watered me with the Living Water, so how can I thirst after that?
You have thrown me into the grave with You,
And have resurrected me to enjoy Your resurrected life!
You have granted me a new life, a new spirit, and a new heart.

*You have drawn my whole being to Your heavenly heights,
So I find nothing on earth which attracts my heart and thoughts!
I find that you have ascended alone into the heavens, O Resident of heaven!
Accept me as a member of Your Body, for the earth cannot contain me any longer!
You have descended to earth and hidden me in You,
And you have ascended to heaven so that I may live with You where You reside!

* The snake killed me with its poison and deceit,
She killed my soul as listened to it.
There You are as the bronze snake raised on the Cross.
I perceive You with the eyes of my heart as You have destroyed the debt I owe!
By Your Cross You have raised me, and drawn me into the Father's embrace!
I rise with You in defiance of the powers of darkness,
Your death has killed my death, and destroyed all its power!
Your Cross has crucified the world to me, and crucified me to the world!
The world has no place in me, and I have no place in it!

*Your Cross proclaims the glory of Your sublime love!
Your Cross has opened my heart to embrace all mankind as much as possible!
Your Cross has removed my fear of judgment,
And has filled my heart with yearning for the day of Your coming!

*O Sun of Righteousness, You have shone on me from the Cross,
And You have removed all darkness within me.
I run to You O light of my heart!

The Light of Truth has shone within me,
So I realized that you are He brings fills my life with righteousness!

*With John the Baptist-Your forerunner and angel-I rejoice and offer praise to you:

I must decrease and You must increase,
May I always realize my weaknesses and faults
And may Your grace constantly grow!
I decrease as I discover more and more my ignorance,
And You increase as you reign fully in my depths,
And as You are more fully revealed within me,
Take complete dominion of all aspects of my life...

CHAPTER FOUR

MEETING WITH THE SAMARITAN WOMAN

THE AMAZING WINNER OF SOULS

The Jews took pride in their land for it was ‘the promised land’ that God had granted to Abraham, the father of believers, as an inheritance for him and his children. At the time of the Lord Jesus Christ this land had become divided into three parts: Judea in the South where the city of God, Jerusalem, stands and where there is the Temple that is considered the holiest place in the world; Galilee or the Galilee of the Gentiles in the North and many in this area had accepted the Jewish faith; and Samaria in the central part of the land. There was a deep and reciprocal hatred between the Samaritans and the Jews. In this chapter, we find the Lord visiting these three parts of the land.

The Lord came to Judea after He had spent the feast in Jerusalem (Jn3:22); and now He was leaving after having spent there four months of harvesting [35]. So He had stayed there for a total time of approximately six months.

On His way to Galilee, the Lord passed through Samaria. At the well, He met a Samaritan woman who had been married five times and now lived with a man who was not hers. In spite of the enmity that existed between the Jews and the Samaritans, the Lord engaged her in a conversation and so drew her to her salvation. Moreover, He turned her into a witness who would preach salvation. He appealed to her so much that she enjoyed the knowledge He offered. She realized that He is the Messiah who informs us of everything. After spending a few minutes with Him, she left her water pot and ran to draw the whole city; and many believed in the Lord Jesus Christ. Indeed, when someone meets with the amazing Winner of souls he/she gets to share His features and also becomes a winner of souls.

Throughout this meeting, the Lord encourages us to worship in a new manner. He offers the woman and the people of her city living Water whose source springs from within them. He proclaims that He has come instead of Jacob’s well, and He offers Water that whoever drinks of it shall never thirst again since it grants eternal life [14]. He also proclaims that the hour has come when worship will reach a sublime height that is greater than any offered on Mount Gerizim or in the temple. For people will worship the Father in Spirit and in truth [23]. Besides, He has a new food, which is to do the will of the One who has sent Him [24]. He says that the fields are white and ready for the new harvest [35]. The four Evangelists have focused on four important personalities in this conversation: the Lord, the Samaritan woman, the disciples, and the people of the city, besides the narrator. The conclusion of the meeting is that: “Now we believe...and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world” [42].

The Evangelist follows the report of this meeting by narrating another one between the Lord and the king’s servant. That person prays the Lord to hurry to his house in order to heal his son and save him from death. The nobleman hears the living words: “Go your way, your son lives.” He believes and his son is healed. In the first meeting, the Samaritan woman and many people of the city of Sychar rejoiced at receiving the new resurrected life; in spite of the fact that they were mostly Gentiles, or half of them, and were the fruit of intermarriages among the Chaldeans and the Jews. In the second meeting, the king’s servant and his household rejoiced at receiving the living faith through the physical healing of the son; and in that case the family was probably of the Gentiles as well.

1-THE LORD'S DEPARTURE FROM JUDEA

'Therefore when the Lord knew that the Pharisees had heard that Jesus made and baptized more disciples than John [1] (though Jesus Himself did not baptize, but His disciples)' [2]

Although so many had been baptized by John the Baptist, yet the Lord had His own power of attraction. Therefore huge numbers came to be baptized not by the servant (John) but by his Master (the Lord Jesus Christ). The Pharisees had imagined that matters would calm down once they got rid of the Baptist by putting him in prison. However, they find that the Lord has attracted large crowds and they are filled with jealousy.

The Lord was involved in preaching and in attracting people to believe in Him. He would then hand them over to His disciples who would baptize them. It could be that the Lord did not baptize Himself in order to prevent those baptized from boasting over others and claiming the honor of having been baptized by the Lord Himself. Other apostles, like St. Paul, left the act of baptism to others so that they could dedicate themselves to preaching (1Cor1:17). This does not indicate that they took baptism lightly, but that it was an easier task to do than that of preaching the Word and winning souls. Having said that, we need to be aware that every baptism performed in the name of the Holy Trinity is not an act done by the priest but it is the act of the Lord Jesus Christ Himself: the Lord sends His Holy Spirit to grant the baptized person the Spirit of an adopted son. The power of baptism does not depend on the righteousness of the minister performing the mystery of baptism, because the Lord alone is the One who grants the hidden mystery.

*Actually, it is the Lord who performs the baptism since He is the One who cleanses. He does not baptize in the sense that He is not the one who touches the bodies of those coming for baptism. The disciples performed the service of the body, while He supported them with His glory...and the Lord continues to baptize to this day, and will continue to do so as long as there is baptism. May ministers come to perform the service on earth below without fear for they have a Master in heaven. Someone may say: 'The Lord truly baptizes by the Spirit and not by the flesh...remove the water and there would not be a baptismal font; remove the Word and there would not be baptism (Eph 5:25-27)<sup>1</sup>.

St. Augustine

'He left Judea and departed again to Galilee' [3].

Galilee was under the rule of Herod who had imprisoned John the Baptist. He imagined that he could hide the light in a secure pit. He did not understand that light is more powerful than darkness, and that even though he could kill the Baptist yet the Baptist's mission would not be crushed. By the coming of the Lord, the true Light himself had come.

---

When the rage of the Pharisees and their desire to kill Him was aroused, the Lord left Judea and went towards the Galilee of the Gentiles because the time of His death had not yet come (Jn 7:30). Besides, probably His disciples were not ready to bear hard trials yet. Therefore He took them with Him to Galilee. At the same time, the Lord wishes to teach us that when we are persecuted we should leave and go to another city. He went to Galilee because many people there were ready to believe in Him. They needed to meet Him and enjoy His words and acts.

If you wonder: 'Why did the Lord go to Galilee?' My answer is: 'He did not leave out of fear, but rather to dismiss their jealousy. He could have controlled them if they had come to Him, but He did not want to be doing that constantly as that would have been a denial of the plan for His incarnation. If He had been caught many times and then had disappeared, many would have been suspicious of His case (as a human being). That is why He planned most of His acts to resemble to those of mankind as closely as possible. He wants us all to believe that He is God and to believe and also that He is God in the flesh. That explains why after His resurrection He told His disciples: "...Handle Me and see, for a spirit does not have flesh and bones as you see I have," (Lk24:39). Moreover, it is for this reason that He rebuked Peter when he told Him: "Far be it from You, Lord, this shall not happen to You!" (Matt 16:22). That is how much this matter was a great concern to the Lord. Indeed, this is not a simple matter in the teachings of the Church for it represents a principal point in the salvation offered to us. Through His incarnation all matters were achieved successfully: for it is through the incarnation that the ties of death have been abolished and our lives have been granted thousands of blessings. Specifically, He wishes us to believe in the plan (of His incarnation) as the endless source and spring of blessings to us. However, while He was concerned to underline His incarnation, He did not allow His divinity to be hidden'<sup>2</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

The Lord gives an example to those who will believe in Him. A servant of the Lord would not be wrong if he withdraws from a situation where his opponents or persecutors are enraged or seeking to harm or kill him...for our good Lord behaved in that manner in order to teach us and not because He was afraid<sup>3</sup>.

St. Augustine

2-THE LORD'S STAY IN SAMARIA

'But He needed to go through Samaria' [4]

He needed to go through Samaria because it lies in the North of Judea between the Great Sea, the Galilee and the Jordan. Therefore it is impossible to cross from Jerusalem (Judea) to Galilee without going through Samaria. This journey involved three days of travel.

The Samaritans were of Jewish origin whether from the perspective of blood ties or of religion. When Assyria captured Israel, the poor were left in the land, so those of Jewish origin intermixed with other nationalities, and especially with those of Assyrian origin. This was planned by some Assyrian kings such as Shalmaneser (2 Kgs 17). There was also intermixing between the Jewish religion and strange and idolatry elements. The Samaritans read only the Five Books by Moses. They built a temple on Mount Gerizim to oppose the temple of Solomon in Jerusalem, and considered Shechem and not Zion to be the house of God or the house of God. Moreover, they celebrated the big Jewish feasts: the Passover, the Pentecost, the Tabernacles, and the Day of Atonement. Until now, they offer a lamb or more on Mount Gerizim on the feast of the Passover.

Samaria was a fundamental part of the land of Palestine. Edraz Heim reports that this part stretched for about forty-seven miles from the North to the South, and forty miles from the East to the West. Its boundaries were marked by those of Judea in the South, by Jordan in the East, by the Valley of Charden to the West and the Valley of Jezreel (the Galilee) to the North. The tribes of Menasseh and Ephraim had captured that land; and it was one of the most beautiful and fertile areas in the region. It included the capital city of Samaria (the capital of Israel) and a few other cities.

The Lord Jesus came to plant the seed of living faith in the earth of Samaria. Its people accepted the Word as a result of their faith and not because they had seen miracles. They believed the Samaritan woman whose story the Evangelist recounts to us. It is a unique story, for the Lord meets this woman who is a Gentile in many ways, and carries on a conversation with her. He leads her away from the shameful particulars of her life and grants her the mission of evangelism. As a result, she attracts a whole city, in a very short period of time, and leads its entire people to the Savior of the world.

The Lord underlines His interest in Samaria and its people. He praises the strangely deformed Samaritan leper. In contrast to nine Jews who had been healed, he was the only one to return and thank the Lord for purifying him (Lk 17:15-18). The Lord also presented the parable of the good Samaritan whose heart was moved with practical love and so showed concern for the wounded Jew on the roadside more than the Jewish priest or the Levite (Lk 10:33-36). Just before His resurrection, the Lord charged His disciples with the responsibility to minister in Samaria: "...and you shall be witnesses for Me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth" (Acts 1:8).

The Lord opened the door to Samaria and to all the Gentiles. Therefore when 'a great persecution arose against the church which was in Jerusalem; and they were all scattered throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, ...' (Acts 8:1). This indicates that there were in Samaria some believers in the early apostolic period. St. Luke reports the ministry of Philip the apostle in the city of Samaria and says: 'And the multitudes with one accord heeded the things spoken by Philip, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did...And there was great joy in that city' (Acts 8:5-8).

The apostles who were in Jerusalem also sent Peter and John to the believers in Samaria in order to pray for them that they might receive the Holy Spirit. 'Then they laid hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit' (Acts 8:14-17).

*The Lord did not go to Galilee without a certain intention. Rather, He went to achieve specific important matters among the Samaritans...and according to His wisdom...He made it seem as though things had happened by coincidence during His journey. The apostles did the same thing too; for when the Jews persecuted them, they immediately left and went to the Gentiles. Similarly, when the Jews rejected the Lord, He went and met with the Samaritans and the woman from Phoenicia. It all happened so that the Jews would have no excuse and would be unable to say: 'He has abandoned us and has gone to the uncircumcised.' However, the disciples were able to find a reason for that and said: "It was necessary that the word of God should be spoken to you first; but since you reject it, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, behold, we turn to the Gentiles” (Acts 13:46). When they drove Him out, they opened the door to the Gentiles. He did not go immediately to the Gentiles, but He went as He was passing by<sup>4</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘So He came to a city of Samaria which is called Sychar, near the plot of ground that Jacob gave to his son Joseph’ [5].

Sychar: this is probably Shechem situated on the Mount of Gerizim and which is often mentioned in the Old Testament. Hoping to get united and become one nation with the children of Jacob, the inhabitants of this area had become circumcised. However, Simeon and Levi had killed them after all the males were circumcised to take revenge as Shechem had raped their sister Dinah (Gen 34:24...). In Shechem, Abimelek had reigned, and it is there that Jeroboam had set up his throne. Some believe that it was a ‘military’ area situated about half a mile North of Jacob’s well, about ten miles from Shiloh, forty miles from Jerusalem, and Fifty three miles from Jericho. St. Jerome believes that the Lord went to Shechem and not Sychar. In his days, it was called Neapolis<sup>5</sup>. Currently, the name of the city is Naplouse.

It was called Sychar which means ‘drunken’ as the inhabitants liked drinking. Isaiah the prophet accuses the people of Ephraim of this crime (Is 38:1,3.7-8) as this city was situated within their borders.

This is the information reported about this city:

1-It is the first city where Abraham stopped when he journeyed from Haran to Canaan.

2-There God appeared to Abraham for the first time and promised to give him the land as an inheritance to his descendants

3-There Abraham built the first altar for God and called it by His name (Gen 12:7).

Jacob bought this field from the children of Hamor, Shechem’s father, for one hundred pieces of silver or money (Gen 33:19). Then he built an altar and called it El Elohe Israel. Jacob specifically left this field as an inheritance for Joseph and his children (Gen 48:31-32; Joshua 24:32).

* You might wonder: ‘Why does the Evangelist present so many details about the place?’ So that you do not get astonished at the words of the Samaritan woman; for it was here that the anger of Levi and Simeon was kindled on account of Dinah. They engaged in a violent slaughter...The Samaritans did not read all the Old Testament and accepted only the Books written by Moses and a small number of Books written by the prophets. Nevertheless, they were eager to inject and impose themselves into the honorable Jewish ancestry. In this way, they could boast and claim Abraham to be their father especially since they were of Chaldean origin too. They also called Jacob their father since he was Abraham’s descent. As for the Jews, they despised the Samaritans as much as they despised the rest of the Gentiles. That is why they reproached the Lord and told Him: “Do we not say rightly that You are a Samaritan and have a demon?” (Jn 8:48)<sup>6</sup>.

‘Now Jacob’s well was there. Jesus therefore, being wearied, from His journey, sat thus by the well. It was about the sixth hour.’ [6]

The Old Testament makes no mention of this well. But according to tradition handed down to the Samaritans, this well had been dug or used by Jacob and therefore got named as Jacob’s well. Later on it became open for public use.

The Greek word houtoos is used to indicate that the act of sitting did not take place on a throne or a couch but on the ground, and on the stones scattered near the well.

About the sixth hour- that is around noon time, the Lord felt tired because He had walked in the heat of the day. Just like a normal human being, He was subject to physical weakness and got tired. He humbly traveled on foot, and He did not own a boat or an animal that He could ride. Because He had a fragile body, He could not tolerate walking in the heat; whereas his disciples did not have any problem. They went into the city and bought food. It is not strange to know that the Lord got tired and thirsty at noon time. The disciples had left Him- this brings to mind the scene of the Lord on Mount Calvary or Golgotha where He hung on the Cross at noontime. He was carrying our burdens and revealed His thirst for every human soul. There, too, His disciples forsook Him and ran away, and left Him to pass through the wine press alone.

*The Lord came to that place by avoiding the life of comfort. He took the wearisome path and struggled as He did not use any donkey on this journey. Indeed, He walked so much that He got tired during His journey. On every occasion, the Lord teaches us this lesson: to struggle in our effort to get our necessities without searching for luxuries. That is why He says: “Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay His head” (Matt 8:20). Besides, He spent most of His time in the mountains and desert at night as well as during the day for that same reason. David speaks about that when he says: ‘He shall drink of the brook by the wayside; therefore he shall lift up the head’ (Ps 110:7). This foretells the hard way of life that the Lord would lead<sup>7</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

*If you wish to find the Lord, abandon the broken basins, for the Lord usually sits by a well rather than by a pool.

The Samaritan woman found Him there. She is the one who wanted to believe. Because she needed to draw water, she had to go in the early morning. But she did not go until the sixth hour when she found the Lord tired from His journey.

He is tired because of you for He has been looking for you for so long. Your lack of faith has worn Him out. Yet, in spite of that, when you come He will not say one word of reproach.

He asks you to give Him to drink while He is the Giver of all things. Yet He is nourished (and drinks) by Your redemption and not from an overflowing stream. He drinks from your good deeds, and He drinks the cup of the suffering through which He will redeem your sins. Consequently, we quench the thirst of this world when we drink of His holy Blood.

It is in this manner that Abraham enjoyed God after he had dug a well (Gen 21:30). Isaac met his wife as he walked by a well (Gen. 24:64) and she walked towards him as a symbol of the Church...Rebekah found the one looking for her at the well; and the harlots washed themselves in the water of the pool from the blood (1 Kgs 22:38)<sup>8</sup>.

St. Ambrose

*The power of the Lord Jesus Christ created you and His weakness (or fatigue) renews

---

your being. The power of the Lord brought you into being out of nothing and His weakness reversed the sentence on that which was expedient to destroy so that it would not be annihilated. He has created us by His power and He has restored us by His weakness<sup>9</sup>.

*In the form of a weak person, He feeds and satisfies the weak in the same manner that a hen does with her chicken. Indeed, He likens Himself to a hen when He speaks of Jerusalem and says: “O Jerusalem...how often I wanted to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, but you were not willing” (Matt 23:37). Dear fellow men, you are aware how weak the mother hen becomes with her chicks. None other among the birds know how to do that when they become mothers...for her wings droop, her feathers shed, her voice breaks, and all her members become weak and thin. You can tell that she is a mother even if her chicks are not around her.

In the same manner, the Lord Jesus Christ is weak and fatigued from His journey. His body represents the journey that He had taken for our sakes. How could it be otherwise as He journeyed everywhere, while He is never absent and (omnipresent) in every place?...

The Lord is physically weak so that you would not become weak. Indeed, you become strong through His weakness for the ‘weakness of God is stronger than men’<sup>10</sup>.

*The woman was created from the rib and so seemed to be strong, while Adam seemed weak as he was created from dust. This is the Lord and His Church: His weakness is our strength<sup>11</sup>.

*Why is the sixth hour so meaningful? It is because in the Bible every period is viewed as an hour. So the first period covers from Adam to Noah, the second from Noah to Abraham, the third from Abraham to David, the fourth from David to the exile in Babylon, the fifth from the exile in Babylon to the baptism of John, and from that time the sixth period begins<sup>12</sup>.

St. Augustine

* ‘Jesus...sat thus’, what does the Evangelist mean by ‘thus’? That is He did not sit on a throne, or a pillow; but that He simply sat on the ground<sup>13</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

3-THE CONVERSATION WITH THE SAMARITAN WOMAN

‘A woman from Samaria came to draw water. Jesus said to her: “Give Me a drink” [7].

That the woman came at noon after the men and women had drawn water and had returned to their homes reveals the way her people regarded her. She could not bring herself to face any of them. So she came alone and in the heat of the day to draw water. Our Lord is the God of those who are banished and forsaken. He fashions and transforms them into children of His kingdom and preachers of the truth.

It is clear that this Samaritan woman was poor since she did not have a servant to draw water from the well for her. She was a fighter who went herself to the well to draw water.

This meeting reminds us of Rebecca, Rachel, and the daughter of Jethro. Through meetings at the well, they were blessed in their marriages to Isaac, Jacob, and Moses. In the same way, the Samaritan woman found the Bridegroom of her soul at Jacob's well. We too find our Messiah and Bridegroom in the baptismal font.

The Lord began His conversation with her by a humble request: to have a drink of water. The One who had become poor for our sake has now become a beggar, for our sake too. He asks for a glass of water not out of His personal need but in order to reveal her own need for Him. Then she would drink and be satisfied from the springs of His rich blessings and grace.

*The One who asked for a drink was thirsty and sought to offer faith and salvation to the woman herself<sup>15</sup>.

St. Augustine

*Here we learn about the Lord's struggle during His journey and His disregard for food which He considered of little importance. His disciples learned to behave in the same manner for they were to take no provisions when they traveled. Another evangelist reveals the same principal when he reports the Lord's words to His disciples about the 'leaven of the Pharisees' (Matt 6:16). They thought He was saying these words because they had no bread. Another instance is when the disciples are reported to be in the fields cutting and eating the corn ears (Matt 12:1). The Gospel also tells that when the Lord came to the fig tree He was hungry (Matt 21:18). All this is mentioned just to teach us not to worry or be anxious about matters belonging to the stomach and its needs<sup>16</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

'For His disciples had gone away into the city to buy food' [8].

*In this situation, not only is the Lord's fatigue revealed but also His lack of pride. This is evident not only as He is tired and sits on the side of the road; but also as He is left alone and the disciples abandon Him while - if He had wanted- He could have kept a few to serve Him and sent only a some away into the city. But He did not want that as He intended to teach His disciples to get accustomed to trampling their pride.

Is there any wonder that they were moderate in their needs since they were fishermen and tent makers? It is true that these were their occupations; yet in a moment they had been raised to the highest heaven and they were invested with greater honor than all earthly kings. They had been found worthy to have fellowship with the Lord of the world, and to follow the One to whom all look and tremble. However, you know well that specifically those who come from low origins become puffed up when they are easily granted a privilege. They are stupid for they do not know how to contain the honor they have suddenly received. Therefore to preserve their actual humility, the Lord constantly taught them to be moderate and not to expect that anyone would welcome them (with honor)<sup>17</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

While the disciples were in the city buying food, the Lord seized the opportunity to speak with the Samaritan woman and to draw her, and the people of the city to their salvation. To do the will of the Father is His true food (bread) which consists of the redemption of souls.

Our Messiah who is concerned with speaking with the crowds is also concerned with meeting one individual, a poor woman who is of a strange origin and a Samaritan who bears enmity towards the Jews.

*They went to buy food as they acted differently from us. When we wake up, we devote our attention to food before all other concerns. Therefore we call on the cooks, food experts, or servers and recommend carefully that they upgrade and prepare our food. After that we go about our daily occupations and these have priority over our spiritual concerns. But we should really do the opposite of that: first we ought to give priority and handle our spiritual duties as they should be of greater importance. Next, we would be ready to handle our daily tasks.

St. John Chrysostom

‘Then the woman of Samaria said to Him: “How is it that You, being a Jew, ask a drink from me, a Samaritan woman?” For Jews have no dealings with Samaritans’ [9].

The Samaritan woman recognizes that the Lord is a Jew either from His clothes which are different from the Samaritans’ or from His accent. What preoccupies her is not to answer His request or reject it, but the tone of His voice. He did not sound like a Jew with hostile feelings. The Samaritans too were known to be hostile to the Jews (Ezra 4:1). She knows how much the Jews hate and resent the Samaritans. The Jews believed that Samaritans have no right to the resurrection from the dead, they are cursed, and are denied to be one with God’s people. It was not right for a Jew to eat of a Samaritan’s food or that would defile him/her and the same applied for those who would eat pigs. However, the Lord Jesus Christ disregards this enmity since His primary concern is to attract the soul and therefore enjoy His salvation.

The Samaritan woman is astonished at the Lord’s attitude for it was unthinkable for a Jew to ask anything whatsoever from a Samaritan; and there was no exception- no matter the degree of need or hardship. She was also astonished that He would expect her to respond to His request due to the fact that Samaritans were hostile to the Jews.

No transactions took place between the Jews and the Samaritans therefore they had no dealings in the domains of worship or commerce. It was forbidden to borrow vessels from a Samaritan or to share the same meal together.

* What signs led her to suspect that He is a Jew? Probably from His clothes as well as from the accent of His speech.

Notice how courteous the Samaritan woman is. She does not say that Samaritans do not deal with the Jews; but she wonders ‘For the Jews have no dealings with Samaritans’<sup>18</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

She got to know the Lord gradually through His conversation and His gradual revelations:

- At the beginning of His conversation, she thought Him to be a Jew who would not deal with Samaritans [9]
- She called Him ‘Sir’ [11]
- She conceived Him to be greater than Jacob the father of all the tribes [12]
- She believed that He is the Giver of the living water [15]
- She believed that He is a prophet [19]
- She expected Him to be the awaited Messiah [25], therefore He said to her: I who speak to you am He” [26]

---

‘Jesus answered and said to her: “If you knew the gift of God, and who it is that says to you, ‘Give Me a drink’, you would have asked Him, and He would have given you living water” [10]

The Lord Jesus Christ draws that woman to the path of salvation. He does so by attracting her thoughts away from the preoccupation with the hostility existing between the two parties and leading her to the depths of her soul. Consequently, she thirsts for the living water, and realizes her need for the Savior. In this way, he does not attack the manner of worship in Samaria which is a divided and distorted concept of faith and worship. It is not a time for conflict; but a time for a calm meeting with the soul and the enjoyment of God’s free blessings. For the time has come for God to visit the whole world by sending the redeeming Messiah. The Lord yearns that we know Him, call Him, and attain Him and ultimately satisfy our thirst from Him forever!

What she needs is true knowledge: “If you knew the gift of God”, “...and who it is that says to you....” She needs to know the gift of God to her, and to realize who is the One speaking to her for He is the greatest Gift! He is the treasure of God’s sublime love, the One who quenches the thirsty soul. This is not a loan and a debt we need to repay; but it is a free gift that the Father is glad to offer to mankind.

She does not comprehend the Gift of God or that He has sent His only Son to offer Himself on behalf of the world (Jn 3:16). She also does not know about the gift of the Holy Spirit that flows into the soul as a river satisfying it and overflowing to others. Neither does she know that the Spirit offers other unlimited spiritual talents sanctified for the redemption of the world. These are free divine gifts that God offers to initiate His love towards us even while we were still enemies. These gifts will continue to be a source granting us divine knowledge even in eternal life: ‘And he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding from the throne of God and of the Lamb...’ (Rev 22:1).

*The gift of God is the Holy Spirit. However, until this moment, the Lord is speaking to the woman cautiously and entering (winning) her heart gradually<sup>19</sup>.

St. Augustine

‘Living water’ is a common expression to indicate the sources of water that flow continuously. This is the opposite of ‘dead water’ that refers to stagnant water found in ponds, marches, and water tanks where it is exposed to pollution. Living water refers to the Holy Spirit that waters the soul and transforms its bareness into a fruitful paradise. At the same time the Spirit washes the soul from her corruption.

*The Lord here reveals that the woman deserves to hear the Word rather than someone to be rejected. Having revealed Himself to her, she instantly listens to Him for she learns who He is. This is something that cannot be said about the Jews; for when they learned they no longer asked Him or even wished to benefit in any way from Him. Moreover, they insulted and expelled Him<sup>20</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

*This is the water that David thirsted for, just as the deer ‘pants for the water brooks’ (Ps 42:1) rather than thirsting for the poison of snakes. This is because the water granted by the grace of the Holy Spirit is living water. It purifies the inner parts of the mind and washes away every sin of the soul while removing the resistance of hidden sins<sup>21</sup>.

St. Ambrose

“...you would have asked...”: true knowledge would motivate us to pray and ask. On His part, God is ready to respond by granting our request. However, He waits until we reveal our desire to receive, and to ask so that we can receive.

“The woman said to Him, “Sir, You have nothing to draw with, and the well is deep. Where then do You get that living water?”[11]

Maundiell notes that the depth of the well is approximately 35 yards<sup>22</sup>. To draw water one would need a bucket and a long rope. Neither the Lord nor His disciples had any of these. It seemed to the woman that the Lord’s words were illogical. That is because He spoke of spiritual matters, whereas she was thinking in materialistic terms. In spite of that, she felt obliged to respect and honor Him due to the tone of His words. As a result she started to address him as ‘Sir.’

The Samaritan woman took pride in the well that had been dug by a human hand; yet she was not aware that she stood before the divine and living Source. In the past, God had reproached His people saying: “For My people have committed two evils: they have forsaken Me, the fountain of living waters, and hewn for themselves cisterns- broken cisterns that can hold no water.” (Jer. 2:13).

* Note how the woman answers the Lord elaborately and says: “Sir, You have nothing to draw with, and the well is deep. Where then do You get that living water?” Clearly, she must have had a reason for addressing Him in this manner and for greatly honoring Him. The proof is that she did not laugh, but was surprisingly confused. Do not be astonished that she could not understand immediately what she should have grasped concerning the Lord, for even Nicodemus did not understand the words of the Lord.

Contemplate the words of Nicodemus: “How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter into his mother’s womb and be born?” In contrast, this woman is more respectful than Nicodemus. She could have said something antagonistic such as: ‘If You possessed living water, You would not have asked water from me. You would first give it to Yourself. Now, you are just boasting.’ Actually she said: “Sir, You have nothing to draw with, and the well is deep. Where then do You get that living water?” So she did not say a single objectionable word but rather answered very humbly from the beginning of the conversation.

St. John Chrysostom

“Are You greater than our father Jacob, who gave us the well, and drank from it himself, as well as his sons and his livestock?” [12]

The Samaritans considered themselves to be Jacob’s children since they were one of the ten tribes who had been separated in the days of Jeroboam. However, as we know, they carried foreign blood as they mixed with different Gentile nations.

*It is as though the Samaritan woman is saying to the Lord: ‘Our father Jacob has given us this well and he has not used any other. He and all his descendants drank out of it. They would not have done so if they had a better one. Therefore You cannot provide a better well or better water, and You cannot possess a better well than this one. So from where do You possess the water that You promise to give us unless You proclaim that you are greater than Jacob our father?’

It is right for the Samaritan woman to take pride in the well of her father Jacob. However, she does not know how to pass through it to the God of Jacob who is the Giver of the living water. It was necessary for her to soar with her father Jacob to have a vision of Jacob's ladder that ascended from his head into the heavens. She would then have rejoiced because of the Cross that opens the gates of heaven to the whole world! It is also good that she discusses the subject of worship to God: will it be on the Mount at Jerusalem or at Gerizim? Together with the saints of the Old Testament, she needed to cross over to that which is beyond the mountains in order to enjoy worshipping God in spirit and in truth. She appears to be really great when she senses that He is the Messiah that generations have been awaiting and Who would tell them all things. Therefore she becomes qualified to hear Him proclaim to her: "I who speak to you am He." She has reached the summit of divine proclamation from the Savior Himself and so has surpassed many others.

"Jesus answered and said to her: 'Whoever drinks of this water will thirst again'"

*He did not answer: 'Yes, I am greater than Jacob', but rather achieved His purpose through His conversation with her...He wished to clarify matters to her, and explain the degree of difference and lack of correspondence between the two persons<sup>23</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

*The water in the dark depths of the well represents worldly pleasures. Mankind draws out of this using the utensils of lust...consider lust as the bucket, and worldly pleasures as the water drawn from the depth of the well. When a person gets to taste worldly pleasures which take the form of food, clothes, grandeur, and weapons, how can he possibly not thirst again?<sup>24</sup>

St. Ambrose

"...but whoever drinks of the water that I shall give him will never thirst. But the water that I shall give him will become in him a fountain of water springing up into eternal life" [14]

The Lord does not reproach her for thinking that Jacob was greater than Him, or that the water of the well is better than living water. On the contrary, He begins, most gently, to inform her about the living water. He compares it with the water in Jacob's well; and He underlines that there can be no comparison between water that satisfies the body for a while and water that satisfies and supports the soul forever, leaving it to want nothing else.

The water that the Lord offers has distinct benefits:

- It is a divine gift: 'I shall give him...' and so it grants divine joy: 'Therefore with joy you will draw water from the wells of salvation' (Is. 12:3).
- It grants eternal life that cancels all other needs for he 'will never thirst', and 'He who comes to Me shall never hunger, and he who believes in Me shall never thirst' (Jn. 6:35).
- It is inner water for the soul that 'will become in him a fountain.' Therefore the Giver of the living water woos the soul and says: 'A garden enclosed is my sister, my spouse, a spring shut up, a fountain sealed' (Sg. of Sol. 4: 12).
- The depths are transformed into a source that overflows onto others: "He who believes in Me, as the Scripture has said, out of his heart will flow rivers of living water' (Jn 7:38).

The Lord calls the Spirit 'fire' to indicate the grace that energizes and purifies; for the Spirit is able to obliterate sins and purge the soul. Besides, when He speaks of the Spirit as 'water', He proclaims that the Spirit has the power to clean and remove dirt; and indicates the great refreshment He promotes in the minds of those who accept Him.

The prophets yearned for this living water when they heard the invitation extended to all: "Ho! Everyone who thirsts, come to the waters..." (Is. 55:1). And also: "They shall neither hunger nor thirst, neither heat nor sun shall strike them, for He who has mercy on them will lead them, even by the springs of water He will guide them..." (Is. 49:10). Also according to the saying in the Book of the Revelation: "They shall neither hunger anymore nor thirst anymore; the sun shall not strike them, nor any heat; for the Lamb who is in the midst of the throne will shepherd them and lead them to living fountains of waters" (Rev. 7: 16-17).

* This is a reference to the redeeming water of baptism which has been truly offered once and will not be repeated again<sup>25</sup>.

St. Cyprian

* The Holy Bible refers to the Holy Spirit sometimes as 'fire' and at other times as 'water.' This is to indicate that these words describe the work of the Holy Spirit rather than His essence; for He is intangible and cannot be seen as a combination or a composition of different elements. John (the Baptist) declares that: "...He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire..." (Lk 2:16). As for the other John (the Evangelist), he reports the words of the Lord Jesus Christ as follows: "He who believes in Me, as the Scripture has said, out of his heart will flow rivers of living water' (Jn 7:38). He says this about the Holy Spirit who would be received by believers. In His conversation with the Samaritan woman, the Lord calls the Spirit 'water' for "whoever drinks of the water that I shall give him will never thirst"<sup>26</sup>.

The woman had heard this expression before: 'the living water' but had not understood its meaning. Therefore the Lord explains the meaning in the best way by saying: "...but whoever drinks of the water that I shall give him will never thirst..." since this water is far more sublime than any water. It is like someone who possesses a well in his own house and therefore would not suffer of thirst at any time. Similarly the person who possesses this water will not thirst at any moment of life with Him.

St. John Chrysostom

*The Lord clarifies that this well is the gift of the Holy Spirit, a spring that flows from a living Source. The Holy Spirit is a Source of eternal life as well...

This living water is great, for it is the gift of the Holy Spirit...may it flow within me, may this that gives eternal life flow in and over me.

May the Source flow on us and not far away from us; for wisdom says: "Drink water from your own cisterns, and running water from your own well. Should your fountains be dispersed abroad, streams of water in the streets?" (read Prov. 5:16-17). How can I protect my pots from suffering the cracks caused by sin, and avoid the leaking of the waters of eternal life?

Teach us, O Lord, teach us as You have taught Your apostles saying: "Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust destroy and where thieves break in and steal" (Matt, 6: 19-20)<sup>27</sup>.

*When the promise is fulfilled to a blessed person because he hungers and thirsts for righteousness (Matt 5:6); he drinks of the water that the Lord gives to him and he possesses a source of water within him that flows into everlasting life<sup>28</sup>.

*It is worthy to note that the promise of water was not given to the Samaritan woman when she asked for it. It seems that the Lord wished to offer it in no other way but from the Source, so He tells her: "Go, call your husband, and come here" [16]<sup>29</sup>

Origen

Origen devoted his energy and skills to study, interpret, and enjoy the Holy Bible from a very early age. He made a distinction between the waters of the Holy Bible and those which the Lord of glory offers. The Bible provides a wealth of divine mysteries that flow into the soul so we may enjoy fellowship with the Holy Trinity. However, the Lord Jesus Christ retains some mysteries which He offers secretly to the soul that is united to Him. He is the heavenly Bridegroom who overflows onto His bride with His mysteries within the wedding circle.

*Indeed, the Holy Bible does not contain some aspects of the divine mysteries. These aspects most probably have to do with His Lordship and divinity; and are not communicated through a human voice or tongue. This is implied by the following words: 'And there are also many other things that Jesus did, which if they were written one by one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that would be written' (Jn 21:25).

St. John was forbidden to write when he started to record what the seven thunders said (Rev 10:4). St. Paul also tells us that he heard words that were impossible to utter (2Cor. 12:4). No one has been allowed to pronounce these words or messages...

I think that all the holy Books, even when fully comprehended, are just a preface to the principles and a brief introduction to all knowledge ...the waters offered by the Lord Jesus Christ are those that surpass all that which is written (1Cor. 4:6).

At the present time, it is not allowed to examine the matters that are beyond what is written (1Cor 4:6)... 'Don't try to understand things that are too hard for you, or investigate matters that are beyond your power to know' (read Sirach 3:21)...

Moreover, matters that have not entered the heart of man are greater than Jacob's well. These matters are revealed from the Source of water that flows into eternal life for those who do not possess any longer a human heart, but rather are able to proclaim: "...we have the mind of Christ" (1Cor 2:16); for "...we know the things that have been freely given to us by God. These things we also speak, not in words which man's wisdom teaches but which the Holy Spirit teaches" (1Cor. 2:12-13)...

In this light, the holy Books are just introductions and can be called Jacob's well. Once they are comprehended, a person should speedily ascend out of them and go to the Lord Jesus Christ. Then he would enjoy the wealth of the Source that flows into eternal life.

Not everyone draws water from Jacob's well in the same manner Jacob, his children, and his livestock drank out of it (Jn. 4:12). That explains why the Samaritan woman come to it and drank but was thirsty. Probably Jacob and his children drank in a certain way and with full knowledge, whereas his livestock drank in a different manner and in the simplicity of such animals. The Samaritan woman drank too but in a different manner other than Jacob or his sons and livestock. Similarly, some are wise and drink out of the holy Books in the same manner as Jacob and his children. Others are more simple and innocent and are known as Christ's 'sheep'

(Jn. 10:26).and they drink in the same manner as Jacob's livestock. While there are others who misunderstand the holy Books and use inappropriate means to interpret them in the light of texts they have understood out of them. These drink in the same manner as the Samaritan woman before she came to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>30</sup>.

Origen

*There is living water that says within me: "Come to the Father"<sup>31</sup>.

St. Ignatius of Antioch

*Since our nature has deteriorated and become as hard as stone due to the worship of idols, and has become frozen in the cold of atheism and unable to progress; therefore the Sun of Righteousness arose (Mal. 4:2).In this bitter cold, the coming of the spring appeared, and the warm southern winds erased all traces of the cold; while the shining rays of the Sun brought warmth to the whole world. Consequently, the human race that had turned into stone on account of the cold, became embraced by the warmth through the Holy Spirit who is the rays of the word of God. It is in this manner that the Holy Spirit once more becomes like the water that grants eternal life (Jn, 4:14)... 'Who turned the rock into a pool of water, the flint into a fountain of waters (Ps 114:8)<sup>32</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nicea

'The woman said to Him: "Sir, give me this water, that I may not thirst, nor come here to draw" [15]

*When the Lord tells the woman: "...the water that I shall give him will become in him a fountain of water springing up into eternal life", the woman responds immediately: "Sir, give me this water." Do you see how the woman ascends gradually to higher knowledge? At first she thinks the Lord is a Jewish person who has deviated from his tradition...When she hears Him speak of 'living water' [14], she thinks that He is referring to tangible water and believes that this water could dismiss thirst. So far she has no concept of the nature of this water. Besides, she is confused as she thought it had more potential than the water she was familiar with. That is why she says "...give me this water; that I may not thirst again, nor come here to draw."

Have you noticed how the woman prefers the Lord over the leader of the fathers? Having indicated her opinion of Jacob and the degree of his greatness, she has come to know the One who is better than him.

*At this point she gets to possess a clearer insight. However, she has not yet comprehended the whole picture; for she says: "...give me this water; that I may not thirst again, nor come here to draw" [15]. Here she reveals that she prefers Him over Jacob...for it is as though her inner self is saying: 'I will no longer need this well since I will receive water from You....'After she had revealed her respect for Jacob, she has now met the One better than Him... her former thoughts, in this manner, did not impede her...and there was no rebellious argument<sup>33</sup>.

*Indeed, it now becomes clearly apparent that the Lord's words are sincere: "...you would have asked Him, and He would have given you living water" [10]. For when she says "...give me this water..." [15], she receives the living water. From now on she will never have a sense of loss when she gets thirsty; just as she will not need to come to Jacob's well to draw water.

She can now meditate on the Truth while she is away from Jacob's water. She will do so in a manner that transcends mankind and is angelic since angels do not need to drink out of Jacob's well.

Every angel possesses an internal source of water flowing into eternal life. This source is provided by the Word and proclaimed by it and by Wisdom herself.

There is no hope for a person who is not preoccupied with struggling to come to Jacob's well and draw water out due to his thirst. Such a person cannot receive the water granted by the Word and which differs from Jacob's well. That explains why many people are extremely handicapped since they are unable to train themselves for long periods in drawing water out of Jacob's well<sup>34</sup>.

Origen

'Jesus said to her: "Go, call your husband, and come here" [16]

In His conversation with the Samaritan woman, the Lord Jesus Christ moves on from the topic of the water to that of the woman's marital life. Now that she has learned that she was in need of a new kind of water that could refresh and grant her eternal life, she feels the need for a bridegroom for her soul. To do that, she needs to re-evaluate her marital life.

Without hurting her feelings, the Lord reveals his insight into her heart and His knowledge of her all her family secrets. His intention is to encourage her to recognize her sins and her need to repent.

'The woman answered and said, "I have no husband." Jesus said to her, "You have well said, 'I have no husband'..." [17]

What a skilful divine healer! He uncovers the infirmity in the woman, and with His divine blade, begins to attack the body with skill, power and love. This leads her to confess what no other woman would pronounce: 'I have no husband.' Her confession is not the result of hurtful reproaching or of facing her with her shameful self. It is the result of His love. This arouses her conscience, and reveals to her the reality of the Lord. Consequently, she becomes trustful and admits the truth about her personal life as she gets to realize that He can heal her wounds and restore her spiritual health.

* We have mentioned earlier that the law controls the soul; that everyone one submits himself to it; and that in the case of marriage the husband represents the law. To support this, we will quote from the apostle who writes to the Romans and says: "Or do you not know, brethren (for I speak to those who know the law), that the law has dominion over a man as long as he lives? For the woman who has a husband is bound by the law to her husband as long as he lives..." (Romans 7:1-2). So the husband impersonates the law as long as he lives. However, once he dies, she no longer is obligated to fulfill the duties a wife has towards her husband. The apostle, in this context says: "But if the husband dies, she is released from the law of her husband..." Now that the law is dead in its literal sense, the soul is no longer considered adulterous if it gives itself to another man: in other words, the soul can now associate itself with the law according to the spirit. It is possible to say that the wife has died also since she leaves her dead husband- once a man dies and leaves his wife. We understand this statement through logical deduction as follows: “Therefore, my brethren, you also have become dead to the law through the body of Christ, that you may be married to another, even to Him who was raised from the dead, that we should bear fruit to God” (Romans 7:4).

Therefore if the husband represents the law, and the Samaritan woman has a husband, then she has subjugated herself to some strange law based on a misunderstanding of the correct law. It is a fabricated law that is embraced by those who wish to live by it. In such a situation the divine Word requires the fabricating soul to uncover its shame by confessing the law that controls it. As the woman faces and despises herself because she does not belong legally to any husband, she looks for another bridegroom. The Lord wishes her to belong to another one: to the Word who has been raised from the dead, who will not be conquered or destroyed, but will endure for ever (Is. 40:8; 1Peter 1:25); and who controls and dominates all His enemies (Ps 8:7; Eph.1:22). This is because ‘...Christ having been raised from the dead, dies no more. Death has no longer dominion over Him. For the death that He died, He died to sin once for all, but the life that He lives He lives to God’ (Romans 6:9-10). He sits at the right hand of God (Heb 10:12), and all His enemies are subjugated under His feet (Ps110:1). That is why the Lord tells her: “Go, call your husband....” By replying: “I have no husband” [17], she convicts herself on account of her wrongful association with a man who is not her husband in such a manner<sup>35</sup>.

Origen

“...for you have had five husbands, and the one whom you now have is not your husband; in that you spoke truly” [18]

In an amazingly gentle way, the Lord does not hurt her feelings on account of the fact that she had married five times previously and now lives with a man who is not her husband. Besides, He changes the conversation from being an argument about disagreements between the Jews and the Samaritans to a discussion about the new worship that would embrace the whole world. This would offer joy to the believer wherever he may be living.

St. Jerome comments that in order to meet the Savior of the world our Lord Jesus Christ, it is appropriate to abandon the five men- who stand for the Books written by Moses; as well as the sixth man- who stands for inventors or heretics<sup>36</sup>.

St. Augustine makes the following comment about this woman who has married five men and is living with a man who is not her husband: The five husbands represent the five senses since she has surrendered her soul to her physical senses. These could not satisfy her as they do not lead her soul to eternal life. They just satisfy temporary and short lived feelings. The one with whom she is living now, and who is not her husband, represents the mind (that is not sanctified) and that does not lead her to the Word and the Truth. Rather, it leads her to sin, and offers her incorrect knowledge. She needs the Bridegroom of her soul who will lead her to wisdom, truth, and fulfillment.

*How great is this woman’s wisdom, and how humbly does she accept the Lord’s reproach...it is noteworthy to mention two points about this reproach: the Lord mentions the number of her previous husbands, and reproaches her about the one with whom she now lives although she tried to conceal this matter. So how does she react? She shows no sign of annoyance, she does not leave and run away, nor does she consider His words humiliating. On the contrary, she expresses her admiration and her respect for Him increased as she says: “Sir, I perceive that You are a prophet.” Notice her composure for she does not rush hastily, but she reveals respect and admiration as she says: “I perceive...”- that is ‘I see...’ “...that You are a prophet”<sup>37</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

*I think that every soul that embraces the Christian religion does so through the reading of the Holy Books. She begins by taking in matters that can be comprehended through the senses and are known as physical matters. These have five husbands- one for every sense. However, after the soul keeps company with matters that are comprehended by the senses, it desires later on to transcend above them and rush towards matters comprehended by the spirit. At this point, the soul collides with corrupt teachings based on symbolic spiritual meanings. Consequently, she draws near to another husband, other than the five to whom she sends divorce documents. It is as though she has decided to live with that sixth one....’ We too live with that sixth husband until the Lord Jesus Christ arrives and enables us to discover the character of such a husband. When the Word of the Lord arrives and enters into a conversation with us, we reject that husband and say: “I have no husband”; and then the Lord will respond saying: “You have well said, ‘I have no husband’ [17]<sup>38</sup>

Origen

*When the Samaritan woman mentioned in the Gospel admits that the man living with her is the sixth one, the Lord reproaches her as he was not her husband. As far as I am concerned, I feel free to announce once more that the second marriage is ‘digamy’ and is not encouraged by the Church, and even the third marriage ‘trigamy’ is rejected. A woman may marry for a fourth time...or for more times as long as it is a legal marriage...yet although a second marriage is not forbidden, it is not recommended... for “All things are lawful for me, but not all things are helpful” (1 Cor 6:12)<sup>39</sup>.

St. Jerome

“The woman said to Him, “Sir, I perceive that You are a prophet” [19]

As the Lord reveals Himself gradually to her, the woman discovers that He knows all her hidden secrets. According to her understanding, this means that He is a prophet and so she trusts in His ability to answer truthfully the question that puzzles so many: ‘Will true worship take place in Jerusalem as the Jews claim, or will it be on Mount Gerizim according to the Samaritans and which had been blessed?’ Some believe it is the same mountain upon which Abraham and later Jacob had built the altar (Genesis 12:6-7; 33:18-20).

The Samaritans had handed the altar over that was built by Sanballat (332BC) to Antiochus Epiphanus and asked him to dedicate it to Jupiter Olympius. They had also denied they had any relationship with the Jews in order to escape the bitter sufferings that Antiochus poured imposed upon them.

That is how the conversation took a turn and became about the subject of worship: ‘will it be in Jerusalem or on Mount Gerizim?’

*What an amazing situation, and what great philosophy this woman appears to possess! Note how she accepts the Lord’s reproach in a most pure manner when He uncovers her hidden act. She has no problem with that and she neither leaves nor runs away. Indeed, her amazement increases as she says to Him: “I perceive that You are a prophet.”

*Reflect on the fair judgment of this woman who bases her decision on the actual facts, whether these have to do with our father Jacob or with the Lord Jesus Christ. The Jews did not react in this manner, for when they saw Him drive out devils they said ‘He has a devil’; and they did not conclude that He is greater than Jacob, the father of all tribes<sup>40</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

*The husband is on His way, but he has not come completely...she has begun to invite the husband and to dismiss her illicit lover<sup>41</sup>.

St. Augustine

Our fathers worshipped on this mountain, and you Jews say that in Jerusalem is the place where one ought to worship: [20]

According to the Samaritans, Mount Gerizim is sacred and people should worship God there. It is the mountain with the well right on top of its slope. It is said that Abraham built an altar here, and also where he met Melchizedek who blessed him. On this mountain, Moses the prophet was commanded to bless the people when they crossed the Jordan. This is where Simeon, Levi, Judah, Isaachar, Joseph and Benjamin had stood; while Reuben, Gad, Asher, Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali stood on Mount Ebal when the curse on idol worship was pronounced to all the men of Israel (Deut 27:11-13). From a different perspective, the Jews considered Zion to be the place where God resides and that it was chosen by the father of all people. Therefore they built the Temple there and the Levite priests and people worshipped in this place.

*When she believed the Lord to be a prophet, she did not make a worldly request; or ask for physical health, possessions, or wealth. She was concerned with religious matters [20]<sup>42</sup>.

* Do you note how the woman becomes more insistent in her search for understanding? She is the same person as the one who was concerned about her thirst. She did not want this to trouble her anymore; and now she asks Him about religious matters.

St. John Chrysostom

* If God were flesh, it would be correct to worship Him on a mountain which is a material substance. It would also be correct to worship him in a temple<sup>43</sup>.

* What an amazing matter! He lives on high and He is close to the humble. He sees the humble, but ‘the proud He knows from afar’ (Ps 138:6)...

Therefore do you ask for a mountain? Come down so that you may draw close to Him.

Should you ascend? Yes, ascend, but do not ask for a mountain. It is said: “Whose heart is set on pilgrimage as they pass through the valley of Baca (84:6). The valley represents humility. May you apply all that within your heart.

Even when you wish to seek for an elevated place, a holy place, have an altar within you for ‘the temple of God is holy, which temple you are’ (1Cor 3:17).

Do you wish to pray in a temple? If you begin by being the temple of God, then the mountain is within you; for He listens to those who pray in His temple<sup>44</sup>.

The hour has come when the Son of Man has descended in order to lift mankind away from the letter to the spirit. What should preoccupy believers is not the place but their status as children of the heavenly Father.

* The sincere and dedicated person is able to overcome even such an obstacle of location since he worships the Lord in a deeper meditative and divine manner. Just as the angels do not worship God in Jerusalem (even the Jews agree about that), so it is for those who are equal to the angels; for they worship Him in a better manner than those who worship in Jerusalem (Lk 20:36). They intend on worshipping the Father in a better manner and not in Jerusalem<sup>45</sup>.

Origen

* He does not show preference to any place, but focuses on one’s intentions<sup>46</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* This saying was true about the Jews. However, it did not apply to all of them. It did not apply to the Jews who had rejected the faith; but it applied to those who had acted like the apostles and the prophets. It applied to all of those saints who had sold their possessions, and had placed the money at the feet of the disciples; for “God has not cast away His people whom He foreknew” (Romans 11:2)<sup>47</sup>.

* It is as though she is saying: ‘The Jews struggle on account of the temple, and we on account of this mountain, but when the (Messiah) will come, He will despise the mountain and discard the temple. He will teach us everything so we will learn how to worship in the spirit and in truth.’ She has recognized the One who is able to teach her; but she has not realized as yet that He is teaching her at this very moment. Now she has become qualified to enjoy discovering Him<sup>48</sup>.

St. Augustine

“You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know, for salvation comes of the Jews...” [22]

By saying: “...what you do not know...” the Lord indicates the Prophetic Books which the Samaritans had rejected. These Books prepare the way of knowledge and establish the person of the redeeming Messiah. The words: “...we worship what we know...” refer to the divine Books as a safe path to true knowledge and worship. The Lord Jesus Christ includes Himself among the crowd of worshippers since He has humbly become the Son of Man.

The only Son of Man is not ashamed to proclaim His obedience, genuflection, and worship to the Father; while there are many human beings who arrogantly belittle worship and consider it a waste of time.

“...for salvation comes of the Jews...”: eternal salvation came from the Jews (Rom. 9:5) and it was first offered to them. The divine teachings were delivered to them (Rom. 3:2); as well as the ministry to God (Rom 9:4). The Messiah was born of them and they were the ones who began to preach the Gospel to the Gentiles.

* “...for salvation comes of the Jews...”: The Lord’s words are intended to convey the following: ‘The blessings granted to this world proceeds from the Jews (since the knowledge about God and the rejection of idols proceeded from them. In the case of your people- the Samaritans, you have received the teachings about worship from the Jews although you do not fulfill them correctly)...Accordingly, St. Paul indicates His coming in these words: “...of whom are the fathers and from whom, according to the flesh, Christ came who is over all, the eternally blessed God” (Rom. 9:5). Note how He praises the Old Testament and clarifies that It is the basis of all blessings<sup>49</sup>.

* The Lord does not explain to the Samaritan woman why the fathers worshipped on this mountain, or why the Jews worship in Jerusalem. By being silent about this, He dismisses and cancels any further importance to both places. The Lord awakens her soul as He leads her to understand that neither the Samaritans nor the Jews could offer any act as great as the one foretold and that will be offered to us. Then He points to a distinctive point between them and concludes that in this respect the Jews are more honorable. Yet He does not show a preference for either place; in spite of the clarification the Lord gives concerning the Jews. It is as though He is saying: ‘No one should argue any more about worship in a certain place, yet the Jews have instinctively obtained that honor more than You Samaritans’; for He says: “You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know ....”

If you wonder: How is it that the Samaritans did not know who they worshipped? My answer is: ‘They worshipped God because they believed that He could be confined to a specific place and be on their side. Their messenger told the king of Assyria: “.....” (2 Kgs 26??). They believed that there is a god with limited powers and they accordingly worshipped and sought to gain his favor. As a result, they continued to worship idols besides worshipping the God of the whole world. The Lord said: “You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know ...” because most of the Jews- even though some differed- did not follow this kind of thinking since they knew that God is the God of the whole world<sup>50</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Since this woman addresses the Lord as she would address a Jewish person and believes Him to be a prophet, the Lord answers her as a Jewish person who is spiritually acquainted with the mysteries of the Law: “You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know ....” He uses the plural pronoun ‘we’ as He includes Himself with other human beings. But how can He do so except by reference to His body; and in order to reveal that He is responding as an incarnated person; then He adds the words: “...salvation is of the Jews<sup>51</sup>.”

St. Ambrose

“But the hour is coming, and now is, when the true worshippers will worship the Father in spirit and in truth; for the Father is seeking such to worship Him.”
[23]

Instead of being preoccupied with the place of worship it is essential to be concerned with the condition of inner thought, with God’s altar within the soul, and the manner of offering worship to God who is a spirit. Indeed, God the Father seeks those who worship Him with their hearts. Those are rare to find and Jeremiah reports this concerning them: “For who is this who pledged his heart to approach Me?” says the Lord (Jer.30:21). The path to worship in the spirit is narrow for in following that path a person seeks the glory of God and not of men.

Worshipping in the spirit transforms the heart into the real Zion for which the Lord yearns and which the Psalmist speaks about saying: ‘For the Lord has chosen Zion; He has desired it for His habitation: “This is My resting place forever; here I will dwell, for I have desired it”’ (Ps 132:13-14).

* All the Jews and Samaritans were greatly concerned about their bodies and they purified themselves in so many different ways. For this reason the Lord explains that purity is not achieved by the purification of the hands but through the purification of the mind which is that intangible part of our being. With our minds we worship God who is ethereal. In the same manner, offerings cannot take the form of slaughtered bulls or sheep, but by the sanctification of one’s being to God. Exhaust your soul and in this way offer a living sacrifice<sup>52</sup>

* As the Lord states the truth, He discards the Samaritans and the Jews; for although the Jews are better than the Samaritans, yet they are lesser than those coming into the faith-this indicates how much the symbol is lesser than the reality. He is speaking about the Church who knows how to worship in a manner that is correct and appropriate to God<sup>53</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* It is important for a person to observe that true worshippers worship the Father in spirit and in truth. They should do so not only in the future but as of the present time as well<sup>54</sup>.

* The Father asks of those He prepares to become true worshippers. They need to be purified and to be taught the right teachings through the Word. Moreover, He seeks them through His Son who has come to look for the lost (Lk 19:10; Ezek. 34:16)

Origen

“God is Spirit, and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and in truth” [24]

* By saying ‘in truth’ the Lord writes off the Jews and the Samaritans. The reason for this is that those Jews, even though they were better than the Samaritans, yet they were far behind those who would be called to worship ‘in spirit and in truth’....It is true that God had sought those people in the past...yet He had done so out of His tenderness and compassion and in order to gather them into the fold of the faithful.

You might ask: ‘Who are those who worship in truth?’ My answer is: ‘They are those who do not associate their worship with a specific location for they are attracted and led by the spirit. St. Paul accordingly says: ‘...whom I serve with my spirit in the gospel of His Son...’ (Rom. 1:9); and in another passage he says: ‘I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that you present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your reasonable service’ (Rom. 12:1).

The Lord’s words to the Samaritan woman: “God is Spirit ...” has no other meaning except that He does not have a body. Consequently, worship dedicated to the Incorporeal should be free from a body too. We should offer worship with that which is incorporeal within us. In other words, worship should proceed from our spirit and with the purity of our mind. This is why the Lord says: “...those who worship Him must worship in spirit and in truth”<sup>55</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* I cannot be so bold as to confine the infinite power of God or bind it to a narrow section of the earth since heaven and earth are incapable of containing the One who is the Infinite. Every believer will be judged according to the extent of his faith and not according to his habitation in one place or the other. True worshippers worship the Father, neither in Jerusalem nor in Gerizim<sup>56</sup>.

St. Jerome

* Being the son of David, the Lord Jesus Christ submits to time, to the plan of God, and to relative humility. However, from the aspect of His divinity, he is not subject to time or place, for ‘who will declare His generation?’ (Is. 53:8).

“...God is Spirit...” for He who is Spirit has been born of the Spirit, being incorporeal and descendent of the Incomprehensible and Mysterious One.

The Son Himself speaks to the Father saying: “The Lord has said to Me ‘You are My Son, today I have begotten You.’” This ‘day’ is not a temporal one but an eternal one. The ‘today’ used here refers to an age before the world began and not to a temporal time: ‘I have begotten You from the womb before the morning star’<sup>57,58</sup>.

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* It should not amaze us that the Father and the Son are considered ‘Spirit.’ We will elaborate on that when we deal with the topic ‘One in the Name’...

Let them read that the Father is called the ‘Spirit’ and according to the Lord who says in the Bible: “...For God is Spirit...” [24]. The Lord Jesus Christ is called ‘the Spirit’ according to Jeremiah who says: “.....”<sup>59</sup>

* The words “God is Spirit...” do not change the facts that the Holy Spirit has a name of His own and that He is the great gift that is offered to us. As the Samaritan woman has placed boundaries for God confining Him in the mountain or in the temple, she is told that God embraces all things and is All- inclusive in Himself. Besides, He is intangible and incomprehensible; and therefore should be worshipped through intangible channels. Therefore the Lord teaches that God who is a Spirit must be worshipped in spirit. He reveals the limitless freedom, knowledge, and space opened up when we worship in spirit God the Spirit<sup>60</sup>.

St. Hilary, Bishop of Poitiers

“The woman said to Him: “I know that Messiah is coming” (who is called Christ). “When He comes, He will tell us all things” [25]

Finally the conversation turns to the subject of the Messiah. When the woman no longer opposes the Lord’s words; but rather senses the power within her, she poses the question that has preoccupied all the Jews and Samaritans: When will the Messiah come? All were awaiting that event, for in spite of the enmity that existed between them, yet they shared in this expectation. It could be that many teachers at that time were discussing this matter concerning the fulfillment of the divine promise and specifically the coming of the Messiah and His reign.

Even though she was corrupt on account of her sin, she still yearned to know the truth and humbly looked forward to the advent of the Savior. This yearning prepared her to the meeting with the Lord, getting to know Him, and witnessing for Him.

* Someone may ask: ‘How did the Samaritans get to expect the advent of the Messiah while they accepted Moses only?’ We respond as follows: ‘They get that out of the Books written by Moses, for he says: “The Lord your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from your midst, from your brethren. Him you shall hear.’ (Deut 18:15).

* She was just a poor woman who had no prior knowledge of the Holy Books, therefore the Lord does not discuss what is written in them. He leads her to faith by taking her through the path of the water<sup>61</sup>.

* For the Jews who were constantly asking the question: ‘How long do You keep us in doubt? If You are the Christ, tell us plainly’ (Jn10:24), the Lord did not give them a satisfying answer. However, He clearly informs the woman, saying: “I...am He” because, unlike the Jews, she was not biased and possessed a fair mind and conscience. They did not ask in order to learn and were constantly mocking Him...in contrast, she listened and believed and called others, as well, to the faith. On the whole, she is remarkable in her timing, control, and faith<sup>62</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Jesus said to her: “I who speak to you am He” [26]

The Lord has not used such direct expressions as: “I who speak to you am He” when He spoke to the Jews or even with His own disciples.

*The harvest was ready for the prophets had laid the seeds to grow. Now they had become fully grown and waiting for the apostles to harvest them...The name ‘Messiah’ was not new to the Samaritan woman and she truly was awaiting His coming. She actually believed that He would come. From where did she possess such faith unless Moses had sowed it?<sup>63</sup>

* Indeed, the Lord did not give the Jews a clear answer while they constantly said to Him: “How long do You keep us in doubt? If You are the Christ, tell us plainly” (Jn. 10:24); whereas He clearly informs the Samaritan woman: “I ... am He.”

St. John Chrysostom

12- THE SUCCESSFUL TESTIMONY OF THE SAMARITAN WOMAN

‘And At this point His disciples came, and they marveled that He talked with a woman; yet no one said: “What do You seek?” or “Why are You talking with her?” [27]

It did not occur to the disciples that their Teacher, whose great kingdom they awaited, would speak to a poor Samaritan woman. She did not belong to the lost flock of Israel, and in their minds she could not possibly have a role in His kingdom. So why was He talking to her?

Besides, it was not usual for men to speak with women in the streets, even if they were their wives. There were numerous laws laid by the Jewish leaders concerning this matter.

* The Lord Jesus Christ allowed Himself to talk with a poor Samaritan woman. However, the disciples were so astonished that they did not question Him as to why He talked with her. As disciples they were politely observant and aware of their ranking as His disciples; and in this light they paid Him respect, felt embarrassed, and honored Him as they would behave towards an amazing friend.

* What caused the disciples to be astonished? It is due to His great humility and lack of any conceit that He engaged in a conversation with a woman who was not only poor, but a Samaritan as well<sup>64</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘The woman then left her waterpot, went her way into the city, and said to the men...’ [28]

When the Samaritan woman received the divine truth she abandoned her waterpot and forgot the reason that had brought her to the well. So she returned without getting water. However she returned to offer the water of truth to the people of the city. She left her waterpot because she did not want it to impede her from running to the city and giving testimony to the truth. She informed everyone in the streets that she had found the treasure she has been looking for, and that she has found the Source of her inner joy.

Earlier on the Lord had asked her to call her husband [16], and here she is calling all the men of the city and succeeded in her task.

She does not inform them that He discussed with her serious religious matters concerning worship and the manner it should be conducted. Instead, she informs them of how He has touched her heart truly because He knows her secrets, how He attracted her to Him by His powerful words, and consequently how this led her to recognize His person and that He is the Messiah.

* She could have abandoned her waterpot which was in a deep well. She took pride in its depth, in other words she took pride in the teachings. However, she has come to despise the thoughts she had accepted previously. Now she accepts a better pot than the earlier waterpot for it contains water ‘springing up into everlasting life’ [14]<sup>65</sup>.

* Here is a woman who proclaims the Messiah to the Samaritans. At the end of the Gospels there is also another woman who is the first one to see Him and who informs the disciples about the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ {Jn 20:18}<sup>66</sup>.

* This is all what this Samaritan woman had done: she had a relationship with five husbands, then she got involved with a sixth man who was not her legal husband, and finally she renounced that last man, abandoned her waterpot, and rested reverently on a Saturday.

Besides, she brought great benefits to those who lived with her in the same city. Based on her old beliefs, they shared incorrect teachings with her. This was the fault that led them to leave the city and come to the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>67</sup>.

Origen

* Having received the Lord Jesus Christ into her heart, what else could she do but abandon her waterpot and run to preach the Gospel? She banished lust and hurried to proclaim the truth. May those who wish to preach the Gospel learn to abandon their waterpot at the well<sup>68</sup>.

St. Augustine

* She had come to drink water but once she got to know the true Source she immediately despised the material source. In this simple incident she teaches us to surpass the tangible matters of life when we hear about spiritual matters...she abandoned her waterpot without receiving an order from anyone; and she hurried, being carried on wings of joy and delight, to do what the evangelists have done. She called a whole city, and not just one or two as Andrew and Philip had done. And she brought them to the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>69</sup>.

* The Samaritan woman believed immediately and so she appears to be wiser than Nicodemus. Moreover, she is more courageous and steadfast than him since he did not go and call others to hear the words of the Lord. Nicodemus had listened to thousands of many more words from the Lord, yet he did not speak publicly or frankly to anyone. This woman did what the apostles had not done; for she preached to everyone and invited them to come to the Lord. In this manner, she led an entire city to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ<sup>70</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“Come see a Man who told me all things that I ever did. Could this be the Christ?”[29]

The words of the woman reveal her inner joy: she has met the Messiah, the Savior of the world and so she came to enjoy the One who satisfies her depths. The six men did not give her any joy. However, her meeting with her Savior created in her the spirit of joy and inspired her to work in order to bring others to salvation.

The invitation was not for them to come and see something strange; or that they might engage into a conversation with Him. Rather, they were invited to enjoy the Discerner of hearts, the Messiah and Savior of the world. This is one of the most important features that the Jews expected to find in the Messiah: that He knows what is in men’s hearts.

Towards the end of the First Century and at the beginning of the Second Century Barchochab proclaimed that he is the Messiah. As he deceived many, they brought to him people that he did not know- some were criminals and some were innocent- and they asked him to signal out the first from the latter. When he was unable to do so, they killed him.

The Samaritan woman was wise in her manner of preaching. She did not dictate to them her own belief in Him, but wisely asked them to come, see, and verify for themselves concerning the person of the Lord: “Could this be the Christ?”[29]

* Notice once more the great wisdom of the woman as she neither proclaims the truth clearly nor does she remain silent or seek to attract them through her own convincing words. Rather, she invites them to listen to Him so that they might come to share the same opinion she had. That is why, in fact, they accepted her words<sup>71</sup>.

* She is not embarrassed to say that He had told her everything that she had done...for material matters did not matter any longer. Besides, she is determined to disregard worldly glory or shame. Indeed, she had become devoted to one thing only and that was this holy torch ignited within her and which filled her being<sup>72</sup>.

* “Could this be the Christ?”[29] She did not want to draw them based on her own determination and conviction. Rather, she wanted them to draw their own conclusion after hearing Him. This is what made her words more acceptable to them...she did not say ‘Come and believe’ but said “Come see...” and this expression sounded more gentle and appealing to them<sup>73</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* There is no person who is happier than a Christian person for such a person has the promise of the kingdom of God. No one struggles with more power than a Christian as he/she daily encounters dangers. No one is more powerful since a Christian is capable of conquering Satan...can anyone be found who is more sinful than the Samaritan woman? Yet she is not the only one who believed...and after her six men, she finds the one Lord. She not only gets acquainted with the Lord at the well- that same One whom the Jews failed to recognize in the temple- but she brings salvation to many. She does so while the disciples were busy buying food that would satisfy the Lord who was hungry and tired<sup>74</sup>.

St. Jerome

* The words spoken to the Samaritan woman affect her so much that she abandons her waterpot and neglects her purpose for coming to the well. She returns to her city to draw all the people there to the Lord. Just contemplate her caution and understanding: she had come to drink and when she finds the true Source, she despises the tangible one. She therefore becomes our teacher since she undertakes, as much as she can, to do the work which the Lord's apostle have done. They too had abandoned their nets when they responded to the Lord's call. On her own, she decides to leave her waterpot and undertakes the task of a preacher. She does not call just one or two persons but she invites a whole city; and it is difficult to report the exact figure or the huge numbers who came to the Lord Jesus Christ through her.

Notice the woman's understanding as she leads the people of the city to the Lord. She does not tell them: 'Come, see the Christ'; but rather uses the same strategy the Lord used to appeal to her: "Come see a Man who told me all things that I ever did."

The woman said: "Come see a Man who told me all things that I ever did." She is not embarrassed to say this, even though she could have said something else, such as: 'Come and see someone who is prophesying.' However, when the divine fire touches any of us, no earthly consideration- such as honor or shame- occupies our minds.

Notice the woman's wisdom as she does not confirm that He is the Messiah for a clear reason. At the same time, she is not silent since she desires to draw them to Him. She seeks to do so by drawing them to hear Him; rather than by convincing them of her own belief.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Jews rejected the Lord Jesus Christ when He came, whereas the devils recognized Him.

David, the Lord's grandfather, is not ignorant about Him when he says: "I will prepare a lamp for My Anointed...(Ps. 132:17). This light is the brilliance of Sonship according to some interpreters (2 Peter 1:19); or according to others, the body which the Lord took from the holy Virgin Mary ...

Moreover, the prophet is not ignorant about the subject of the Lord Jesus Christ as he says: 'He has proclaimed His Anointed among mankind' (.....4:13-Septuagint Translation).

None of the prophets are ignorant about Him: Moses, Isaiah, Jeremiah, as well as all the other prophets perceived Him. Even the devils recognized Him so that He rebuked them...

The chief priest did not recognize Him, whereas the devils acknowledged Him.

The chief priest did not perceive Him, whereas the Samaritan woman proclaimed Him, saying: "Come see a Man who told me all things that I ever did. Could this be the Christ?"[4:29]<sup>75</sup>.

The time had come when the lepers would preach the great salvation to the people of Samaritan origin (2Kgs. 7:3). Now here is a Samaritan woman, who in spite of her painful past, becomes the first one to preach the good news to Samaria. Consequently, she wins the whole city to the credit of the Lord Jesus Christ.

St. John Chrysostom

‘In the meantime His disciples urged Him, saying “Rabbi, eat”[31]

While the Samaritan women hurried to preach with all her strength, the disciples were busy offering food to the Lord, for He was hungry and tired.

‘But He said to them, “I have food to eat of which you do not know” [31]

Origen comments: ‘The body requires food that is different from that of the spirit. And just as the bodies themselves have different needs regarding the kind and quantity of food, so too do the spirits and souls have different requirements.

The Lord Jesus Christ seizes every chance to lift the minds and hearts of the disciples to matters beyond time and to the heavens themselves. He reveals to them the extent of His joy that arises from the redemption of souls. This represents His delicious food. He finds his satisfaction and comfort in toiling for every soul and in fulfilling His Father’s plan. He will not rest and will persevere in the task until He leaves this world.

* Indeed, the same nourishing words and meditative thoughts and the actions relevant and accompanying them are not suitable for all souls.

Truly, there are vegetables and there is food for the strong (Rom. 14:2; Heb. 5:2) which may not promote progress to the needy souls if they are offered at the same time.

In this context, St. Peter says: ‘...as newborn babes, desire the pure milk of the world, that you may grow thereby’ (1Peter 2:2). The same thing applies to some who are like children as in the case of the Corinthians and to whom St. Paul says: ‘I fed you with milk and not solid food...’ (1 Cor.3:2).

May those who are weak eat vegetables since they do not believe (Rom.14:2). This is what St. Paul is teaching when he says: “For one believes he may eat all things, but he who is weak eats only vegetables” (Rom.14:2).

Truly, there is a time when ‘better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a fatted calf with hatred’ (read Prov.15:17). ‘But solid food belongs to those who are of full age, that is, who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil’ (Heb. 5:14). However, there is also food that is hateful as we learn in the Book of Kings when the men told Elisha: “O man of God, there is death in the pot” (2Kgs.4:40)...

It is appropriate to lift our thoughts from the level of unreasoning creatures and mankind to that of the angels who are refreshed by food. They are not completely self-sufficient and as the Psalmist says: ‘Men ate angels’ food...’ (Ps. 78:25).

Now we need to go back to the statement before us concerning the food of the Lord Jesus Christ and with which the disciples were not familiar until that moment. The Lord truly says: “I have food to eat of which you do not know” [4:31] because the disciples are not aware of what the Lord was doing: He was obeying the will of He who has sent Him and fulfilling His perfect work [34]. He performs the will of God which is one and the same as His own will<sup>76</sup>.

Origen

St. Augustine comments that the food of the Lord is found in the accomplishment of the

---

Father's will and in drinking of the woman's faith in Him. In this manner, the Lord feeds her of His body which is the Church- in other words- she becomes a member in His body. Origen considers that every reasoning creature, and not just man alone, will enjoy perfection through the Lord Jesus Christ since they all are God's creation<sup>77</sup>.

* When each one of us becomes perfect through the Lord Jesus Christ, and since he is the work of God, then he/she can say: ' I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. Finally, there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness...' (2 Tim. 4:7-8)<sup>78</sup>.

Origen

* The Lord was sitting and felt hungry and thirsty; then he got nourished and filled by the faith of the Samaritan woman.

St. Jerome

* Would it have been amazing if this woman had not understood the Lord's words about the water? Notice how the disciples could not understand His words about the food<sup>79</sup>.

St. Augustine

Therefore the disciples said to one another, "Has anyone brought Him anything to eat?"[33]

The disciples do not understand that the divine Word had supported Elijah in the wilderness near the Brook of Cherith, where He sent him daily food through a raven (1 Kgs.17:4-6). Moreover, angels had come to serve the Lord Jesus Christ when He was in the desert (Matt.4:11).

Jesus said to them, "I have food to eat of which you do not know," [34]

St. Ambrose notes that the Lord's words here refer to the effect of the Lord in men's lives. This leads them to do God's will and achieve His work. Consequently, the work which men do because they are members in the body of the Lord Jesus Christ is considered work done by the Lord Himself<sup>80</sup>.

What we eat, drink, read, our manner of service, and our worship are all devoted to the service of souls and their salvation. This is the will of our heavenly Father, and this is the delicious food for our souls.

Souls have been ruined due to ignorance. However, God has granted us the keys to the Kingdom- and that is His holy Bible- and the knowledge of His Word.

*The banquet which Solomon speaks about is not achieved simply through regular food. Indeed, this has to mean that it can be achieved through good works. For how can the soul enjoy a banquet more wisely than through good works; or what can preoccupy the minds of the righteous more easily than knowing how to achieve good works? What other food can bring more joy than that of doing God's will? The Lord informs us that He alone richly possesses that food, and as He says in the Bible: "My food is to do the will of Him who sent Me" [34]. It is with this food that people rejoice as they get equipped with the amazing knowledge, and which teaches them to climb up to the heavenly pleasures. Then they are able to comprehend the extent of such joy, the purity it implies and which the mind can understand. Therefore may we eat the bread of wisdom and get filled and satiated with the Word of God. For the life of man, which has been created in the image of God, is not fulfilled by bread alone "but by every word that

* “Let my beloved come to his garden and eat its pleasant fruits’ (Sg. Of Sol. 4:16). This is a bold expression coming from a soul filled with fervor. It arises magnificently and surpasses all expression.

Who is the one that the bride invites to her banquet which consists of her own fruit?

For whom does she prepare her banquet which she has filled out of her own sources?

Who is the one that the bride invites to eat from what she has provided? He is the One who “...of Him and through Him and to Him are all things...” (Rom. 11:36). He gives everyone his food in due season...; He opens His hand and satisfies the desire of every living thing (Ps. 145:15,16); He is ‘the bread which came down from heaven...’ (Jn. 6:41). He is the One who gives life to the world and makes the waters flow from His own source of life.

He is the One for Whom the bride prepares her table and she is the garden in which living trees grow.

The trees are symbols for us and our loyal spirits represent the food that is presented to Him. For the Lord says to His disciples: “I have food to eat of which you do not know,” (Jn 4:32,34). His food is to achieve the will of God for He “desires all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth.” (1 Tim 2:4)

This salvation is the food that is prepared for Him. Our free will gives the fruit to God, that is our souls so that He may pluck its small branch. At the beginning, the bride enjoyed the sweet apple and said, “his fruit was sweet to my taste.” (Sg. Of Sol. 2:3) then she herself became the beautiful sweet fruit that is offered to the shepherd so that He may enjoy it.<sup>83</sup> Saint Gregory of Nyssa

“Do not say, ‘There are still four months and then comes the harvest’?

Behold, I say to you,

Lift up your eyes and look at the fields, for they are already white for harvest.” [35]

The Lord Jesus Christ hid the spiritual secret meaning behind His talk about the harvest. For, He means the harvest of the kingdom of heaven that shall be achieved after four periods of time. In the first period man was in the Garden of Eden where he did not offer the suitable fruit. Then there was the period of the natural law (the father patriarchs) followed by the era of Moses’ Law, and finally, the fourth period is that of grace. The harvest of each era is for the kingdom of heaven. The harvest is complete with the coming of Christ on the clouds. This is the end of the fourth era.

The Lord Jesus Christ desires the harvest that will not be achieved without serious work with joy and perseverance. Work is definitely necessary and urgent in order that the harvest may be enjoyable.

He sees the coming harvest when many Samaritans come to Him through the service of the Samaritan woman. They will believe in Him and will be qualified for wearing the white + “Lift up your eyes.” This expression occurs in many places in the Holy Bible for the divine Word urges us to raise our thoughts and vision upwards. It is written in Isaiah, “Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who has created these things” (Is 40:26).

+ When the Savior began to speak about the blessings, He ‘lifted up His eyes’ toward His disciples and said, “Blessed” are these and those (see Luke 6:20). That is because below there is no real disciple of Jesus nor is there anyone reposing in Abraham’s bosom. The rich man who suffered ‘lifted up his eyes’ to see Abraham and Lazarus in his bosom (Lk 16:23).<sup>84</sup>

+ No one lifts up his eyes if he continues in doing the works of the flesh.<sup>85</sup>

+ The Word who is present with the disciples urges His listeners to lift up their eyes to the fields of the Holy Bible and to the fields of the aim of everything existing so that they may see the brilliant light of the truth and His splendor everywhere. For according to Solomon, “they are all plain to him that understandeth, and right to them that find knowledge.” (Prov. 8:9)<sup>86</sup>
Origen

Saint Jerome wrote to Abigaus, the priest of Baetica in Spain, to console him because of his physical blindness and to revive in him the spirit of joy because of the inner perception that he enjoyed.

+ Saint Jerome wrote, “it befits you that you do not grieve. You are deprived of those two physical eyes that the ants, insects and reptiles have. You should rather be happy that you have the eyes mentioned in the Song of Solomon: ‘Thou hast ravished my heart, my sister, my spouse; thou hast ravished my heart with one of thine eyes’ (Sg. Of Sol. 4:9). This is the eye that sees God, and that Moses mentions when he says, ‘I will now turn aside, and see this great sight’ (Ex 3:3). Jeremiah wrote, ‘for death is come up into our windows’ (Jer 9:21 LXX). Furthermore, Christ told His disciples to lift up their eyes and behold His word ‘for they are already white for harvest’ [35].”<sup>87</sup> Saint Jerome

“And he who reaps receives wages, and gathers fruit for eternal life, that both he who sows and he who reaps may rejoice together.” [36]

Now the LORD Christ approaches as the sower who sows the word in the heart of the Samaritan woman and in very few hours He takes the role of the reaper. He is full of joy because of the fruit that has saved all the residents of that town, for they say, “this is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world.” [42]

+ Christ means the spiritual reaper because the fruit of the material harvest does not extend to eternal life; it has only temporary life. On the other hand, the fruit of the spiritual harvest reaches a life without senility or death. Do you see how His words are sensitive and have spiritual meaning? Saint John Chrysostom

+ Take into consideration that if Moses and the prophets had sown, since they wrote those things “for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the ages have come” (1 Cor 10:11), they announced Christ’s journey. Behold also if those who reaped were the apostles who accepted Christ and saw His glory that conforms to the mental seeds of the prophets concerning Him, the fruit they reaped was “the fellowship of the mystery which from the beginning of the ages has been hidden” and “was manifest in these last times” (Eph 3:9; 1 Pet 1:20). “Which in other ages was not made known to the sons of men, as it has now been revealed by the Spirit to His holy apostles and prophets.” (Eph 3:5)

Now, the entire design concerning the announcement of the mystery that was hidden in secrecy for eternal times is revealed in the books of the prophets and in the coming of our LORD Jesus Christ. This happened at the time when the true light caused the fields to be white for harvest, for He radiated as being the Seed.

In accordance to this interpretation, the fields in which the seeds were sown are the writings of the Law and the prophets that did not become white for those who did not accept the coming of the Word. But they became white for those who believed in the Son of God and obeyed Him when He said, “lift up your eyes and look at the fields, for they are already white for harvest.” [35]<sup>88</sup>

+ As true disciples of Jesus, let us lift up our eyes and look at the fields that Moses and the prophets sowed so that we may see their whiteness and how they were made ready for the harvest of their fruits that will be gathered for eternal life. Let us look in hope of also obtaining a reward from the LORD of the fields and giver of the seeds.<sup>89</sup>

+ Any man, whoever he may be, who reads “many will come from east and west, and sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven” (Matt 8:11) will agree that the sower and the reaper will rejoice together where all moaning, sadness and pain will “flee away” (Is 35:10).

If anyone hesitates in accepting the fact that until now the sower rejoices with all those who reap, let him remember what happened in the Transfiguration of Jesus as a kind of harvest. Jesus appeared in glory not only to the reapers, Peter, James and John, who went up with Him on the mountain, but also to the sowers Moses and Elijah who had sown before and were so enlightened by the Father and enlightened those who saw Him. Thus now Moses and Elijah are seen together with the holy apostles.<sup>90</sup> Origen

“For in this the saying is true,
One sows
And another reaps.” [37]

Now the LORD Christ sends His disciples to the harvest in the fields where the patriarchs and prophets of the Old Testament labored for such a long time.

+ We can say that one belongs to the Law and the other to the Gospel, but they rejoice together [36] as they have one aim. This was given to them by the One God in Jesus Christ the One who is stored for them in the One Holy Spirit.<sup>91</sup> Origen

+ The prophets are those who sowed and did not reap. Those who reap are the apostles. However, those who only sowed were not deprived of the joy of the reward for their labor. They rejoiced and were happy even though they did not reap.<sup>92</sup> Saint John Chrysostom others have labored, and you have entered into their labors.” [38]

+ Why did Christ say these words to His disciples? So that when He sends them to preach, they may not be troubled as though they were sent to do a very difficult work, for the work of the prophets was more full of hardship. The disciples came to do easier tasks than others, for just as the fruit is gathered in the harvest easily, likewise is the effort of the disciples now. In this way Christ encouraged His disciples very much because this work, if it is thought to be difficult, since they will travel the world to preach repentance, it is indeed, Christ explains to them, an easy work. The work that was very difficult was the work done by those who sowed the seeds to let a distant soul enter into the knowledge of God.<sup>93</sup>

+ Now, harvesting is different from planting. You have been reserved for a work that is less difficult and more pleasing. You will not sow because this needs greater effort and pain.

In harvesting we obtain a great crop but the effort and pain are not as great. Indeed, harvesting is easier... The toilsome work that requires much labor is sowing the seeds and introducing into the knowledge of God the soul that has not obtained the membership in the church....The desire of the prophets was to bring all humanity to Me. This was the design of the Law. For this reason they sowed in order that they may produce fruit. In all this it is evident that He sent them also and the relation between the new and the old is great. He revealed all this in this parable.<sup>94</sup> Saint John Chrysostom evangelist stresses this point in the next section.

+ The Word always shows the work of the ancient people more clearly to the true disciples in order that they may practice the same effort and face the same trouble faced by the sowers.<sup>95</sup> Origen

Earlier, in His previous dialogue with Nicodemus, the religious leader, the LORD concentrates on the new birth through baptism. Here, the LORD draws attention to His person in order that the gentiles may accept Him and enjoy His work of salvation.

+ If we contemplate what is said about Samaria, the Samaritan woman, and Jacob's well, it is not difficult for us to see that those who were surrounded by false teachings left the town of their ideas so that they may enjoy the true teaching. When they left that town they believed truly in the teaching of redemption because one woman had accepted the preaching of salvation at Jacob's well. She had left her water-pot mentioned previously so that she may call the others to benefit in the same way.<sup>96</sup> Origen

“So when the Samaritans had come to Him, they urged Him to stay with them,
and He stayed there two days.” [40]

In Origen's opinion, Jesus stayed with them but not in their city, for they had gone out of their city and had come to Him Scripture does not say that He performed miracles among them. For they were simple people in need of, and ready for listening to the Word. They were attached to the LORD Christ for the truth. They did not want miracles to ascertain Him as did many leaders of Judea.

In the gospel according to Saint Luke, the Samaritans refused to receive Christ in their village (Lk 9:53). However, here, we find the Samaritans urging Him to stay with them. Thus, in every nation we find those who accept the truth and those who cannot tolerate it.

Although the LORD Christ was on His way from Judea to Galilee, and He only passed through Samaria, yet, finding an opportunity for service, and acceptance of the word, He did not refuse the wish of the Samaritans but stayed with them two days.

+ Jesus stays with those who ask Him, especially those who leave their city and come to Him following the example of Abraham when he obeyed God who said to him, “Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred and from thy father's house” (Genesis 12:1).<sup>97</sup>

+ Jesus stays two days with those who request Him because they cannot yet reach His third day. They are unable to comprehend any miraculous deed. They are unlike those who ate with Jesus on the third day of the wedding in Cana of Galilee (Jn 2:1).<sup>98</sup> Origen

“And many more believed because of His own word.” [41]

Their meeting with the LORD granted them growth in faith and an increase in the number of believers.

+ The Jews obtained more knowledge than the Samaritans; they always recognized the prophets and ate with them. However, they now appear lagging behind the Samaritans who believe in Christ on the strength of a woman's testimony and without seeing even one miracle. The Samaritans went out quickly and urged Christ to stay with them. As for the Jews, they saw Christ's miracles with their own eyes, yet they did not ask Him to stay with them, and they even drove Him away and used every means to chase Him away from their cities, though He had come originally for their sake.<sup>99</sup>

+ These Samaritans will judge the Jews and their judgment will be their faith in Christ and acceptance of Him. For, those Jews opposed Christ continuously in spite of His works and miracles. But the Samaritans, without miracles, declared their belief in Him. Saint John Chrysostom

“And they said to the woman,
‘Now we believe, not because of what you said, for we ourselves have heard Him and we know that this is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world.’” [42]

Seeing the LORD Christ and hearing Him consolidated their belief that they got through the woman. Therefore, many were attracted to that faith. They also recognized Jesus as the Savior, not only of the Jews or with them the Samaritans, but also He is indeed the Savior of the world. He is He about whom Isaiah the prophet says, “I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth” (Is 49:6).

Their faith is the certainty that ‘indeed [He] is the Christ, the Savior of the world.’ It is as the queen of Sheba said to the king Solomon, “It was a true report that I heard in mine own land of thy acts and of thy wisdom. Howbeit I believed not the words, until I came, and mine eyes had seen it; and, behold, the half was not told me” (1 Kings 10:6-7).

These are the seeds that the LORD Christ sowed in Samaria in two days. We read that after four or five years Philip preached in Samaria where he found good seeds in the field (Acts 8:5-6,8). He also found evil people like Simon the sorcerer (Acts 8:9-10).

+ The students surpassed their teachers and by their belief in Him and acceptance of Him they obtained the right to judge the Jews. They realized at once that He will attract the world to Himself and that He came to give us perfect salvation. His care is not limited to the Jews alone. He is the true Savior who grants the true eternal salvation, not a temporary one.<sup>100</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ They did not describe Christ as savior as a simple characteristic, but they said, “we know that this is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world.” He grants the true redemption, not only the temporary deliverance. This they said out of pure faith. The evidence is in that their belief was not because of miracles they saw. Secondly, though they heard the woman say doubtfully, ‘Could this be the Christ?’ they did not say we think He is the Christ, but they said, “we know that this is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world.” They did not acknowledge Christ as one of many. They affirmed that He is indeed the Savior and though they did not see Him saving but only heard His words, they made that statement. If they had seen His miracles they would have made many great declarations. Moreover, as they said that Christ is the Savior of the world, they made it clear that He is the Savior of the false or lost world. Saint John Chrysostom

+ They denied that their belief was based on the woman's words because when they heard the Savior Himself they discovered that hearing Him was better, for they also knew that "He is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world" [42].

In fact it is better to be an eyewitness of the Word and listen to Him without using the physical members or allowing the interference of teachers. He teaches and presents images to the mind to reveal the truth more clearly. It is better for a person to hear Him than to listen to a report about Him through the servants who saw Him, for the person who does not hear Him personally or see Him is not covered by His power.<sup>101</sup>

+ It is not an amazing thing, in reality, that it is said about some that they behave in accordance to their faith, not according to their discernment, and about others that their conduct follows their discernment (insight) that is greater than conduct in faith (without the experience of insight).<sup>102</sup> Origen

6-- He Goes to Galilee

"Now after the two days He departed from there and went to Galilee." [43]

+ He spent two days in Samaria and the Samaritans believed in Him. He spent many days in Galilee but the Galileans did not believe in Him. The Samaritans did not expect a miracle; they believed His word. When they heard Him talk many Samaritans believed. On the other hand, when He performed a miracle in Galilee, no one in that place believed except the household of the nobleman whose son was healed [53].<sup>103</sup> Saint Augustine

"For Jesus Himself testified that a prophet has no honor in his own country." [44]

Some commentators observe that the evangelist, here, means that Jesus went to Galilee, not to Nazareth, though the LORD usually mentioned this proverb with reference to His country "Nazareth" (Matt 13:57; Mark 6:4; Luke 4:24).

The LORD Christ did not go to His country, but to Galilee. He did not desire temporary honor; He rather did not wish to intrude on people who rejected Him. Even when He appeared to His disciples during the storm, He, according to the evangelist, entered the boat only when the disciples "willingly received Him." The LORD longs to cross over to us, to enter our city and guide the ship of our life, but not by force, but only when we request Him to do so. Moreover, to those who want Him and honor Him, He says, "I honor those who honor Me; those who despise Me are disparaged." (Prov.) He went to Galilee after He had given every possible chance for His people and country. For He says, "I have spread out My hands all the day unto a rebellious people" (Is 65:2; Romans 10:21).

+ Why did He add that proverb? That is because He did not go to Capernaum, but to Galilee, then to Cana. And so that you may not ask why did He not stay with His people but stayed with the Samaritans, the evangelist mentions the reason which is that His people had no interest in Him. He did not go there so that they may not have greater judgment. For, I think that here He speaks of Capernaum as His “country.” Besides, to show that He was not honored there, He says, “And you, Capernaum, who are exalted to heaven, will be brought down to Hades” (Matt 11:23). He called it His country because it was there that He achieved the provision of the Word (the divine Incarnation) and He lived in particular there.<sup>104</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

“So when He came to Galilee, the Galileans received Him, having seen all the things He did in Jerusalem at the feast;
for they also had gone to the feast.” [45]

The Galileans received Him as being the Promised Messiah because they had seen the signs and miracles He did in Jerusalem at the Passover (John 2:23).

+ Look! The Samaritans and the Galileans believed in Christ to shame the Jews and to embarrass them. The Samaritans were better than the Galileans because the Samaritans received Him when they heard the words of the woman, but the Galileans received Him when they saw His miracles. The evangelist mentions the man who heard about the miracle (changing water into wine at Cana of Galilee) to exalt the praise of the Samaritans. For, the men of Cana received Christ because of the miracle performed in Jerusalem; but in the case of the Samaritans, they received Him only because of His doctrine.<sup>105</sup> Saint John Chrysostom “So Jesus came again to Cana of Galilee where He had made the water wine.

And there was a certain nobleman whose son was sick at Capernaum.”[46]

Cana was on the way from Nazareth to Capernaum and the Sea of Tiberias.

The learned Origen thinks that Jesus’ two visits to Cana of Galilee denote His first and last coming. At His first visit He changed water into wine; during the second visit He gave life to the nobleman’s son who was at the point of death. Origen writes, “The Word also visits the spirit twice. During the first visit He grants the spirit wine from water for the joy of those who celebrate the feast together. During the second visit He removes all sickness from the spirit for a long time and takes away all threats of death.”<sup>106</sup>

+ During the first trip after our baptism He makes us abide joyfully with Him. He grants us to drink the wine of His power. That water that they drew at first Jesus changed into wine. For, indeed, the holy Bible was water before Jesus came; but after His First Coming the Bible became wine for us. In His Second Coming, God gives Him the judgment and He liberates us from the fever of the time of judgment. He heals the nobleman’s son from fever. He heals him completely; this son may be considered the son of Abraham, or the son of a ruler called a

+ He came to Galilee because of the envy of the Jews. But why did He come to Cana? He came the first time as one invited to a wedding. But why does He come now? I think, so that by His visit He may consolidate the faith that He planted with His miracle, and so that He may attract them to Himself even more when He comes having invited Himself, leaving His city and favoring them.<sup>108</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

7-- A Nobleman's Son Is Healed

“When he heard that Jesus had come out of Judea into Galilee he went to Him and implored Him to come down and heal his son, for he was at the point of death.” [47]

The LORD Christ did nothing but only spoke and His words granted life to a person who was at the point of death [47].

The nobleman, Basilibos, was the guard of the royal palace. Many scholars conjecture that the king that Basilibos served was Herod Antipas, the tetrarch of Galilee whom the people called “king.” Saint Jerome believes the man’s name was Palantinus, but others think his name was Chuza (Luke 8:3) the husband of Joanna who followed the LORD Christ with the women who provided for Him from their possessions. Still other writers say that the man was Manaen (Acts 13:1).

The account here is accurate, for it is said, he “implored Him to come down.” The reason is that the LORD was in Cana of Galilee that is on a very high hill while Capernaum is on the shore of the Sea of Galilee at the sea level. This shows that the writer knows very well the nature of that region.

The king’s steward (the nobleman) came from Capernaum to Cana, a distance of about 16 miles.

Saint John Chrysostom says that that person was either a member of the royal family, or was highly honored because of his office. He was, therefore, called a nobleman. Some commentators consider him the person mentioned in Matt 8:5, but the Saint disagrees because the difference between those two men is not only in the degree of honor, but also in faith. The man mentioned in the Gospel according to Saint Mathew had greater faith, for even when Jesus desired to go to him, he begged Him not to leave. On the other hand, this nobleman entreated the LORD to go to his house although the LORD did not ask that. The first man said, “I am not worthy that You should come under my roof.” The second man urged the LORD to go, for he said, “Sir, come down before my child dies!” In the first case, the LORD had come down from the mountain and had entered Capernaum. But here He came from Samaria and did not enter Capernaum but went to Cana where this man met Him. The first man’s servant was paralyzed, but this man’s son was feverish.<sup>109</sup>

“Then Jesus said to him,

Unless you people see signs and wonders, you will by no means believe.” [48]

The LORD did not say to him that he had no faith, but that he was weak in his faith. He was unable to believe that the LORD could heal the child without going in person from Cana to Capernaum. This is the weak faith that is built on miracles. It is a faith that is often only mental and is therefore subject to weakness and doubt. This is contrary to the faith through God’s revelation to the spirit and the consequent exultation at the mysteries of the divine word.

Saint John Chrysostom asks why did the LORD Christ say this although it is clear that that man was a believer and as soon as he heard the LORD Christ’s word, he believed [50]? Saint John Chrysostom then answers his own question. He says, “The LORD’s motive was either to bear witness to the Samaritans who believed without seeing wonders, or to influence Capernaum that is thought to be His country and where that person came from. Besides, consider the saying of another man, “LORD, I believe; help my unbelief!” (Mark 9:24) and you will understand that though this nobleman believed, his belief was not complete or sound. This becomes evident when he inquires about the hour when his child got better [52] to know whether his son was healed normally or as a result of Christ’s order.” <sup>110</sup>

“The nobleman said to Him,
“Sir, come down before my child dies!”[49]

In spite of his faith that caused him to travel all that distance and leave his son on his deathbed to meet the LORD Christ, yet in weakness he did not realize that he talked to the conqueror of death and giver of resurrection. In bitterness he urged the LORD Christ to go to his house before his son dies. Terror filled the heart of this father who was about to lose his son. The LORD showed reluctance, not because He did not share the feelings of this father who was alarmed, but rather to edify the spirit of this man and many other spirits. The LORD desires to direct the attention of this father and of those around him toward the mystery of life and resurrection, to Himself as the Savior of the world. The miracle is given as an additional blessing to one who seeks the kingdom of God and His righteousness.

Saint Augustine has often spoken about our weak relationship with God and our deviation when we are attentive only to the worldly pleasures and blessings granted by God who does all good things instead of being preoccupied with God Himself and having Him inside us.

In this same spirit, Saint Paul asks us not to have a relationship with the saints based on the benefit of their help especially in solving material, moral or social problems. Our relationship with them should be, in the first degree, a relationship of love as a foundation for taking them as our guides in the LORD Jesus. Saint Paul writes, “Remember those who lead you, who have spoken the word of God to you, whose faith follow, considering the outcome of their conduct.”

+ Contemplate the words of the nobleman and how they reveal his weakness. He should have imagined in our LORD greatness for the sake of his son. For, in saying to Christ, “Sir, come down before my child dies”, he brought Christ down to the level of one who cannot raise the child after his death and also one who did not know the boy’s condition. For this reason Christ blamed him touching his conscience and showing him that His miracles are performed for the benefit of the spirit. Here He heals the father’s sick reasoning and urges us to be interested not in His wonders, but in His doctrine. For the signs are not for the believers, but for the

+ He had a weak faith in this because he assumed that Christ could not heal except when He is personally present. If he had believed perfectly he would have known that there is no place where God is not present...He who has created all things with His will can heal with a mere command.<sup>112</sup> Pope Gregory (the Great)

“Jesus said to him,
‘Go your way; your son lives.’
So the man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him; and he went his way.” [50]

The LORD Christ’s interest in directing the nobleman to the living, mighty faith does not mean that Christ ignored the effort this man made in his trip to come to Jesus. For, our Christ does not forget the labor of love or the cup of cold water given in His name. Indeed, He is all love and does not ignore the feelings of a father who watches his son on his deathbed. The agony of this father’s heart and, lastly, this man’s perseverance are recognized. Christ desires us to pray and not lose heart. He praised the widow whom the unjust judge answered because of her persistent pleading.

In saying, “Go your way; your son lives” He revealed His absolute authority. He is King of kings and LORD of lords. He “has life in Himself” He has authority; He rebukes affliction and it leaves, death and it goes away. The nobleman knows the authority and power of royal orders that allow no reluctance or negligence. He accepted the word of Jesus as a royal command and went away full of trust, without argument or dialogue, to enjoy this precious treasure that is the divine active order!

The officer believed, but his faith was on condition that he made sure that his son was healed. Therefore, it is later said that “he himself believed, and his whole household” [53]

“And as he was now going down, his servants met him and told him, saying,
‘Your son lives’ [51]
Then he inquired of them the hour when he got better.
And they said to him ‘Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.’” [52]

With this question the nobleman revealed his weak faith. However, it has been said about the LORD, “A bruised reed He will not break, and smoking flax He will not quench” (Matt 12:20). He is the shepherd who takes care of His sheep to support them and take them into the enclosure of faith.

“So the father knew that it was at the same hour in which Jesus said to him, ‘Your son lives.’

And he believed, and his whole household.” [53]

This again is the second sign Jesus did when He had come out of Judea into Galilee.” [54]

The evangelist had previously mentioned the miracle of changing water into wine when he said that Jesus came to Cana of Galilee [46]. Here, he refers to it by saying, “This again is the second sign Jesus did...” as though he wishes to link the two signs. The first sign the LORD Christ did at the beginning of His service is that He made the world an eternal wedding where everybody enjoys the wine of God’s love and the heavenly continuous joy. The second sign when the nobleman’s son was at the point of death – and most probably he was a Gentile – Christ granted him health. Here Christ declared that He desired the security of His people or of His bride. The LORD Christ was glorified in the first miracle in front of the Jewish master of the wedding; now He is glorified before the entire multitude that came to the house of the Gentile nobleman.

Saint John Chrysostom observes that the evangelist mentions this to reveal the eminence of the Samaritans who believed in the LORD Christ without seeing the first or second miracle, but received Him through His doctrine.

+ This saying implies also praise for the Samaritans. It shows that the Jews, after the second sign did not reach the loftiness of the Samaritans who did not see even one sign.

+ The evangelist did not write the words ‘the second’ without aim. He wanted to increase our astonishment at the Samaritans by indicating that even when the second sign was accomplished, those who saw it did not reach the elevation of those who did not see it.<sup>113</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

The Spring of Your Love Waters the Depth of My Spirit

+ Your wonderful love defies all rules
No difficulty or obstacle stands in its way.
For the sake of a poor, disreputable Samaritan woman
You went to Samaria on foot and fasting!
You whom the heavenly beings long to carry.
Your tender body was exhausted
But Your spirit was thirsty for the woman’s salvation.

+ The Samaritan woman was ashamed to go in the morning fearing she would meet anyone.

She had no servant or maid to fetch water for her.
She found You alone at noon seeking her
Bringing to her the spring of living water
Whoever drinks of it will never thirst..

+ Your modesty, love and gentleness made her forget the hostility between the Samaritans and the Jews.

Seeing You kindled her heart to worship God.

She trusted You and talked at length about worship!
She recognized You and gradually knew You
For she searched for You faithfully and You declared Yourself to her!

+ O how wonderful, she never saw a miracle or sign,
But Your words attracted her wholly to enjoy redemption.
She confessed her personal secrets, because she found her spirit's bridegroom.
The five men she once had and the man she still has did not satisfy her.
She realized that the five Books of Moses
And the teachings she had
Will not quench her thirst.
You alone are the bridegroom of her spirit.

+ She possessed You within herself
So her heart expanded with love for all mankind.
She left her waterpot and without permission ran to her city.
With her heart on fire she was not ashamed to announce with great wisdom
"A man told me all things that I ever did.
Could this be the Christ?"
The whole city went out toward the wonderful bridegroom.

+ She was not ordered to preach.
She was not trained in witnessing
But she did what no apostle or disciple did!
With her love she attracted the whole city
And when they met You they refused to learn from any other but You.
They announced firmly what Your disciples did not
We know that this is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world.

+ You are truly the Savior of the world.
You grant healing and life.
O You who have raised the nobleman's son as from death!
Raise my poor spirit
To enjoy You who are the source of life and joy.

Chapter 5

Healing of the Bethesda Sick Man

The Divine Physician

In this chapter we find the meeting between the Lord Jesus Christ, the Heavenly Physician, and the man of Bethesda who had suffered from paralysis for 38 years. Christ is a Unique Physician who seeks the sick person without his asking but does not heal him forcibly. He rather asks him, "Do you want to be made well?" Christ met the man at Bethesda that had five porches which indicate the five Books of Moses, or the Law. The Law reveals sin and affirms to us sickness and our need for a Heavenly Physician who can heal.

The Physician discloses the good characteristics in the sick man. He is modest: for when the Lord asked him "Do you want to be made well?", he was not angry but in wonderful docility, he answered "Sir, I have no man to put me into the pool when the water is stirred up; but while I am coming, another steps down before me." (5:7) When a person suffers from an infirmity for a long time, he is usually afflicted by strange difficulties that grow with time. However, in this case we see an extremely calm man. Besides, when the Lord said to him "Rise, take up your bed and walk" (5:8) this man believed and immediately got up, walked, and carried his bed. He had lain by the pool since before the Nativity of Jesus Christ the Lord. He probably had not heard of Christ because he was almost deprived of seeing his relatives and friends after all that time of illness. Yet, he did not argue with the Lord. He did not ask how he could rise, how he could at once walk and carry his bed.

The human arm was incapable of healing this paralytic cast by the pool for 38 years. Jesus Christ the Lord intervened asking him, "Do you want to be made well?" Christ gave him a new life at Bethesda which means "The house of mercy."

This miracle is not mentioned in the other three Gospels because St. John was interested in the miracles that occurred in Jerusalem while the other Evangelists were more concerned with those that took place in Galilee.

1. The Bethesda Paralytic Is Healed

"After this there was a feast of the Jews and Jesus went up to Jerusalem" [1]

Several Fathers of the Church and contemporary scholars see that the circumstances mentioned in this chapter show that this was the Passover. The interest of the other three Evangelists in the service of the Lord Jesus Christ in Judea is very brief. They do not refer to the Passover feasts which occurred after the Lord's baptism and until His crucifixion. Whereas St. John refers to all those feasts: the first in 2:13, the second here 5:1, the third 6:4 and the fourth 13:1. However, he does not say here explicitly that it was the Passover; he says "a feast of the Jews."

When the feast took place, the Lord Jesus Christ went up to Jerusalem although He lived in Galilee. The Law decrees that men should go up to Jerusalem for the feast. Therefore, Christ did not want to exempt Himself since He accepted to be the Son of Man who is under the Law. In doing that He offers to us Himself as a model concerned in community worship, even though many practice it as a formality lacking in spirit.

If wisdom cries in public places (Proverbs 1:21), here Wisdom goes up to Jerusalem where many Jews from many parts of the world come and also where strangers come, so that He may announce to them the Truth, especially that they came for worship and are ready to accept and understand the truth.

As the word "feast" is mentioned without the definite article (the), some scholars say that it was not the Passover, but rather the Pentecost which commemorates receiving the Law. Both St. Cyril the Great and St. John Chrysostom are of this opinion. The reason some think this was the Feast of Pentecost is that the Lord Jesus Christ talked about the meaning of Sabbath and blamed them for not believing Moses, for if they did they would have believed Him because the Law testifies of Him (45-47)

St. John Chrysostom comments on the fact that the Lord Jesus Christ went up to Jerusalem saying: [In most cases He went up to the city, on the one hand to appear among them during the feast, and on the other hand, to attract to Him those who were without malice, because the simple people gathered during those days more than any other time.]<sup>1</sup>

It seems that the Lord Jesus Christ went up to Jerusalem alone. His disciples were not with Him, so that He may enter without being seen. This is clear because the paralytic did not know Him for as soon as He healed the man, Christ withdrew from the multitude. [13]

Now there is in Jerusalem by the Sheep Gate a pool
Which is called in Hebrew, Bethesda
Having five porches [2]

He speaks of the pool and the five porches as existing at the time he was writing this Gospel. Some people opine that the pool and its porches were not destroyed along with the temple and the destruction of Jerusalem. Some others deduce in many versions of the narration that the pool did not exist. The pool has been discovered recently and it is beside the church of St. Hannah. The excavations have shown that the pool is surrounded by a rectangle in which are four porches and a fifth channel dividing the pool in half.

---

Bethesda is not Bethsaida as it is written in some versions. The Hebrew word for it is Bethchasaday which means "the house of mercy." It may have taken its name from God's mercies that were revealed in the healing of those who stepped down into it.

"The Sheep Gate": this gate was probably called so because the priests used to wash down the sacrificial lambs there then take them into the temple.

The pool indicates the baptismal font where the believers enjoy a new birth and a healing from sin.

The five porches indicate the law recorded in the five Books of Moses. The sick enter through them to the pool so that those who enter realize that they are in need of a Heavenly Physician.

The angel coming down from heaven indicates the Word of God Incarnated, the Heavenly Physician.

The healing of one person indicates the One Church that enjoys healing from sin.

The stirring up of the water indicates the suffering of Christ when the crowd rose against Him. Moreover, the stirring up of the water means that the water in the pool became a flowing living water, similar to the water of baptism in which the Spirit works and the baptized is born spiritually as the Lord Jesus Christ declares to Nicodemus [John 3]. Again it indicates the gift of the Lord Jesus Christ, as the Lord says to the Samaritan woman that whoever drinks of that water will never thirst.

- ❖ That water was the Jewish nation. The five porches were the law because Moses wrote five Books. Therefore the water was enclosed with five porches, just as the Jews were controlled by the law. The agitation of the water is the suffering of the Lord among the people. The person who stepped down into the water and was healed is one person because this is the oneness.

Those who refuse Christ's suffering are proud. They do not step down, so they are not healed. They say "far be it from me that I believe that God was incarnate, born of a woman, and that He was crucified, and scourged, that He died, was wounded, and was buried. Far be it from me that I believe that this is of God; this does not befit God." Let the heart speak, and not the stiffneck: For the proud, the Lord's meekness seems unsuitable to Him. Therefore, enjoying health is far from them. If you want to be healed you must step down.<sup>2</sup>

- ❖ Be alert, beloved, because the Law was given for this aim: to reveal sickness, not to heal it. Thus, this sick flock could have been sick at home in great secrecy if the five porches did not exist. By entering through the five porches they became known to human eyes, but the porches did not heal them.
- ❖ So the Law is useful in revealing sins, because a person becomes much more guilty when he transgresses the Law. In that case, his pride is restrained, and he seeks the help of Him

Who is merciful. Listen to the apostle: "the law entered that the offense might abound. But where sin abounded, grace abounded much more." (Romans 5:20) And in another place, "where there is no law there is no transgression." (Romans 4:15) A person may be called a sinner before the Law is known, but it is impossible to call him a transgressor. However, if he sins after he receives the Law, he will be not only a sinner, but also a transgressor. And if transgression is added to sin "sin abounds." When sin abounds, human pride learns at last to submit and to confess to God saying, "I am weak." Saint Augustine<sup>3</sup>

- ❖ The time of offering baptism was near. Baptism conveys great strength and is the greatest of the blessings. It appears like an image through the pool and the accompanying circumstances... for God wants to take us closer to the faith by baptism. Therefore baptism does not only wash dirt but also heals sickness. St. John Chrysostom.<sup>4</sup>

"In these lay a great multitude of sick people, Blind, lame, paralyzed,
Waiting for the moving of the water." [3]

He mentions, among the sick, only three groups: the blind, the lame and the paralyzed. Those are the disabled who cannot step down into the water. For this reason a great number of those people gathered in the five porches round the pool.

"For an angel went down at a certain time into the pool and stirred up the water, then whoever stepped in first, after the stirring of the water, was made well of whatever disease he had." [4]

Some writers believe that the angel did not go down into the pool every day, but rather during certain seasons, especially the three great feasts. This, God allowed so that the people may be sure that, though they were deprived of prophets and miracles, God did not forget them but cared for them.

Some observe that this event began after Eliashib, the high priest, built a wall in the direction of Jerusalem and sanctified it with prayer. Consequently God gave evidence of His acceptance of that by the miraculous works at the pool. Others believe that those miracles began with the birth of the Lord Jesus Christ. Still others say they began with His baptism. Dr. Lightfoot states that the historian Josephus reports that in the seventh year of Herod, that is thirty years before the Lord Jesus Christ, there was a great earthquake. Seeing that the descent of angels is sometimes accompanied by an earthquake, this may have been the first year when the angel began to go down into the pool. And some writers believe that that stopped with the death of the Lord Jesus Christ.

St. John writes "went down" in the past tense. This makes it clear that that occurrence had stopped at the time the Gospel according to St. John was being written. Whereas he speaks of the pool as still existing at his time.

The fact that there is not explicit mention of the miracles at the pool either in Josephus, Philo or any other Jewish writer, indicates that those happenings did not occur for a long time, or that they did not occur at the time of those writers.

Bathing a person, especially at a public place, by quickly casting him into the water, would generally cause that person harm. However, in this case, the person is sick, and yet no matter what his disease was, he was made well if he was the first to step down into the water.

- ❖ For an angel went down at a certain time into the pool and stirred up the water [4]. And he granted with him power of healing so that the Jews learn that the God of angels can, moreover, heal the sickness of the spirit.

And just as the nature of the water, here, did not heal of itself (because if it did it would have healed at all times) but healed through the work of the angel, similarly, our purification is not by means of the water simply, but through the grace of the Spirit that is accepted and absolves us from all our sins. St. John Chrysostom<sup>5</sup>.

- ❖ One person only was healed. This shows unity: whoever came after that was not cured, because no one outside that unity is made well. St. Augustine<sup>6</sup>.

"Now a certain man was there who had an infirmity thirty-eight years." [5]

This sick man spent more than half his life beside the pool suffering from paralysis and unable to live in a habitual daily way. Good health is a talent that we must use as long as we have it and we must offer our thanks to God for it.

Someone may ask, why did not Christ heal all the sick in Bethesda with just a word from His mouth? He is the Physician of the souls and bodies but what preoccupies Him most is the Eternal healing where the bodies along with the souls are glorified. This sick man was usually among many sick people at the pool; they knew him and many of their relatives and friends also knew him; and may be the whole city knew him. Therefore, his healing opened the eyes of all to see the person of the Messiah, so that all may enjoy the faith and be glorified eternally.

The healing of this sick man was, and still is, at the bottom of the healing of many broken, desperate souls. If the Lord had made all the sick people there well with one word, this would have seemed a show of divine miraculous work. However, the heart of the Lord Jesus Christ was preoccupied with the faith of all and their spiritual healing first.

- ❖ He entered a place where a huge number of the sick flock lay: the blind, lame and paralyzed. And as He is the Physician of the souls and bodies and He came to make the souls of all believers well, He chose from that flock one person to heal him to indicate oneness... in spite of the fact that He could have raised all.<sup>7</sup>

- ❖ This pool and that water seem to denote the Jewish population (Revelation 17:15) That water, that is to say the Jewish people, was shut into the five Books of Moses, or the five porches. These Books bring in the sick but do not make them well. The Law judges the sinners but does not make them well. That is why the letter without grace makes men sinners and those sinners, if they confess, they are saved.

This is what the apostle says: "For if there had been a law given which could have given life, truly righteousness would have been by the law." (Galatians 3:21) He completes, "But the Scripture has confined all under sin, that the promise by faith in Jesus Christ might be given to those who believe." (Galatians 3:22) What promise is greater than this? Do not those words explain the five porches and the sick flock?<sup>8</sup>

- ❖ In the number 40 there is an implication of perfection of righteousness: a life of struggle, trouble, self control, fasts and tribulation. This is the practice of righteousness: that you endure and reject this world, and not only abstain from food for the body. This is what we seldom do. As for refraining from loving this world, this is what we must always practice. Thus the law saves those who forbear this world because they cannot love the eternal unless they stop loving the temporal... The concern is man's love; consider it the soul's hand, if it holds something it cannot hold another thing and so that it may be able to hold what it is given, it must leave what it actually holds.

The perfection of righteousness (according to the law) is shown in the number 40. What completes the number 40? That man controls his love of this world. He must control his love of temporal matter which may destroy him... For this reason the Lord fasted forty days, and so did Moses and Elijah. He Who gave His two servants the power to fast for forty days, could He not fast 80 days or a hundred? Then why did He not fast more than He granted His servants to do, except that in that number 40 is the mystery of fasting and renunciation of this world?... What does the apostle say: "the world has been crucified to me, and I to the world." (Galatians 6:14) The number 40 is complete.

Why is there perfection of righteousness in the number 40?

It is said in the Psalms "I will sing a new song to You, O God;

On a harp of ten strings I will sing praises to You." (Psalm 144:9) The harp indicates the ten commandments which are the law which the Lord came, not to destroy but to fulfill. And it is clear that the law itself throughout the world has four directions, east, west, south and north as the Scripture says... Therefore, the number 40 is renunciation of the world; it is the implementation of the law. Now love is the fulfillment of the law (Romans 13:10; Galatians 5:14) However the commandment of love is double "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart... and the second is like it, You shall love your neighbor as yourself" Whoever fails to achieve these two commandments has the weakness of the number 38. St. Augustine<sup>9</sup>.

- ❖ Number 40 attracts our attention as a sacred number of perfection. What I suggest is well known to you, beloved, because the Holy Bible testifies often to this truth. IN that fasting this number of days is, as you know, good. Moses fasted forty days, and so did Elijah and many others. Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ Himself completed this number infast. Moses represents the law; Elijah represents the prophets, and the Lord the Gospel. For this reason all three appeared on the mountain: The Lord manifested Himself to His disciples in the glory of His shining face and clothes. He appeared in the middle between Moses and Elijah as testimony of the law, the prophets and the Gospel<sup>10</sup>.

- ❖ The patience of the paralytic is amazing because he remained thirty-eight years waiting every year to be freed from his sickness. He stood fast and did not leave the place. Contemplate this man who remained paralytic for thirty-eight years seeing, every year, other people healed of their diseases and looking at himself tied down by his paralysis, and yet not despairing. St. John Chrysostom
- ❖ What does the angel announce by this symbol, except that he declares the descent of the Holy Spirit who in our days passes and sanctifies the water when He is called upon through the prayers of the priest? This angel was the ambassador of the Holy Spirit since it is through the grace of the Spirit that the medicine acts in the weaknesses of the soul and mind. Thus, like God the Father and Christ, the Spirit also has the same servants. He fills all; all things; all acts in all in the same way as the acting God the Father and the Son. St. Ambrose<sup>11</sup>.

Bede observes that 38 is 40 minus 2. If 40 indicates the perfection of virtues and it is 10x4, that is to say the perfection of the law (10) and the four Gospels (4), then the absence of 2 which are concerned with the love of God and of the neighbor reveals a man in fact being sick for a long time. Such people can correct their depravity through the gift of the Holy Spirit when the Spirit shakes their lethargy so they hurry and carry the burden of brotherly love so that they may see their Creator.

When Jesus saw him lying there,
And knew that he already had been in that condition a long time,
He said to him, "Do you want to be made well?"

When the Lord Jesus Christ went up to Jerusalem, He did not visit the castles of the rich. He visited the hospitals to offer His love and mercy to the sick. For He came to the world for the sake of the needy and the sick. The Lord may have concentrated on this particular sick man because he had been at that place sick and deprived for a longer time than the others. The Lord rejoices in serving those who have no hope or support.

"Do you want to be made well?!" with that question Christ wanted to arouse in the man faith, hope, and the strong desire to be made well. The Lord Jesus Christ addresses the same question to every soul that may be longing for healing through the heavenly Physician of souls.

- ❖ The Lord Jesus Christ did not say to the paralytic, "Do you want Me to make you well?" That is because the man did not yet see the great figure of Christ. So Christ's question was "Do you want to be made well?"
- ❖ He asked him this question, not because He wanted to know (that the man wanted to be cured). The Lord did not need that; He rather wanted to point out the man's perseverance and that it was for this reason that He left the others and came to this man.

---

The perseverance of the paralytic is amazing. He hoped for every year of the thirty-eight years, to be healed of his disease. He continued lying down and did not withdraw from the pool...

We should be ashamed, beloved, we should be ashamed and sigh over our extreme languor.

He kept waiting for thirty-eight years without getting what he hoped; yet in spite of that he did not retreat. He did not fail because of negligence on his part. He failed, rather, because of the jostling, the violence and the trouble of the others. All that did not cause him to be apathetic. Whereas, we, if we persevered in prayer for ten days for a certain request and did not obtain it, our zeal declines. St. John Chrysostom<sup>12</sup>.

"The sick man answered Him,
'Sir, I have no man to put me into the pool when the water is stirred up;
but while I am coming, another steps down before me.'" [7]

In what he says about the paralyzed (Matthew 9:2) who was healed by the Lord Jesus Christ, St. John Chrysostom stresses the meekness of this paralytic. Usually, when a person lies in his bed for all those years, he is furious and suffers from psychological and nervous trouble. Nevertheless, when this man heard the question of the Lord Jesus Christ, he did not angrily say, "Don't you see me watching for the angel to come down to stir the water? How can you ask me if I wanted to be made well?" Instead, he answered the Lord Jesus Christ with amazing docility.

The sick man complained that he had no friends to help him. Even those who were healed went away in good health and met their relatives and friends. Not one of them was concerned about this poor man. He also complained that he was unable to compete with the others so that he may be the first to throw himself into the pool, for many stepped down into the water before him.

In the past when interest was in human beings instead of in the Messiah as the Physician and the Medicine for cure, it was said "is there no balm in Gilead; is there no physician there? Why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?" (Jeremiah 8:22) This is the complaint of the paralytic: he does not find anybody who would heal him or give him medicine. And yet, here is the Balm Himself, the Physician Himself standing in front of him granting him Himself the Mystery of Recovery.

The paralytic was looking for a man to throw him into the pool when the angel comes down, so that he may obtain recuperation. And here is the Father Himself asking a Man able to act with justice and the pursuit of truth to descend to the world and forgive the world's sins. The Father, then found no such Man but His Word Incarnate. The Lord says, "Run ye to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem, and see now, and know, and seek in the broad places thereof, if ye can find a man, if there be any that executeth judgment, that seeketh the truth; and I will pardon it." (Jeremiah 5:1) He also says, "And he saw that there was no man, and wondered that there was no intercessor" (Isaiah 59:16)

- ❖ Listen to the words of this paralytic and consider his great sorrow. Who is more deserving of pity than he who says these words? Have you seen a heart broken because of a long illness? Have you known how provoked by oppression he is? Yet, he did not blaspheme as most people do in their adversity. He did not curse his day, nor did he think the question was difficult to answer. He did not say to Christ, "Have you come to make fun of me, since you ask me if I want to be made well?" But he said in great humility, "Sir, I have no man to put me into the pool." In spite of the fact that he did not know who was asking him that question, nor did he feel that that Person intended to heal him, he just described his whole condition meekly and did not demand anything more. He seemed like a patient merely describing his illness to his physician.
- ❖ Now, no angel stirs the water; the Lord of the angels does everything. The sick cannot say, "I have no man"; he cannot say "while I am coming, another steps down before me" [7] For though it is necessary that He comes to the whole world, Grace is not consumed; the Powers do not cease, but remain as great as ever. Just as a ray of the sun gives light every day and yet is not used up and its light does not decrease, so is even more the power of the Spirit that does not in any way diminish through the grace given to many. St. John Chrysostom<sup>13</sup>.
- ❖ But who makes the sick well? He who descends into the pool. And when does the sick step down into the pool? When the angel gives the sign by stirring the water. So was that pool sanctified when the angel came down and stirred up the water. The people saw the water stirring and so they realized that the angel was present. And if anyone then stepped into the pool, he was healed. Why was not this sick man healed? Let us consider his own words. He says "I have no man to put me into the pool when the water is stirred up; but while I am coming, another steps down before me." [7] Couldn't you step down after someone stepped down before you? It is evident here that one person only was healed when the water stirred. He who stepped down first was the only one healed. St. Augustine<sup>14</sup>.

Jesus said to him,
"Rise, take up your bed and walk." [8]

The Lord offered him recuperation in a manner that did not occur to his mind. It was not by putting him into the pool when the water was stirred up, but by a word proceeding from His divine mouth. He commanded with power and the sick man was healed.

The Lord was accustomed to leave a sign after a miracle so that His people may remember His works of love. Thus, when he fed the crowds, He ordered His disciples to take up the fragments. Also when He changed water into wine, He told the servants to take it to the reclining guests. Again, when He healed the lepers, He ordered them to go and show themselves to the priests to testify to their healing. Here, in this miracle, He asks the sick man to take up the bed which carried him during his sickness.

He asked him to take up the bed to be sure that his cure was complete and that he did not obtain physical strength gradually, but immediately through God's word and command. This is the cry of the Savior on the cross as He looks upon the whole church across the ages since Adam to the end: to rise, move and enter into the Father's bosom, the heavenly home. Christ asks the church to take up the bed, that is to share the cross with Him not as a burden carried on the back, but as a throne carrying the church and as glory pouring on it. Isaiah the prophet saw this outstanding image as being the joyful story of salvation and he sang: "Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee." (Isaiah 60:1) The believing human race does not any more lie under the broken power of sin but rather enjoys the strength of the spirit to carry with the crucified bridegroom His cross the secret of power for salvation and to experience the glory of the Savior.

The story of the healing of this paralytic was linked with baptism since the early church. It was mentioned in some old baptism liturgies and was pictured in some Roman vaults to illustrate the power of baptism. The paralytic is shown as unable to walk; then he gets up carrying his bed on his back in an energetic, full of life way. A glorious picture about the work of baptism that raises the believer from an incurable illness to testify to the new life that he has become in Jesus Christ who rose from the dead.

- ❖ "Jesus" means "Savior", but in Greek, it means "the healer" for He is the physician of the spirits and bodies. He is the healer of the spirits: He opened the eyes of the born blind, and He guided the minds to the light. He cures the visibly paralyzed and leads the sinners to the path of repentance. He says to the paralytic: "Sin no more" and also "Take up your bed and walk" for the body was paralyzed because of the spirit's sin. Christ served the soul first so that the healing extends to the body.

Therefore, if one of you suffers in his self because of his sins, he will find Christ is his physician, and if one of you has little faith, he must say "help my unbelief" (Mark 9:24)

And if one of you feels physical pain, he must not be an unbeliever, he must rather come closer to Jesus who cures such an illness; and he must know that Jesus is the Christ. St. Cyril of Jerusalem<sup>15</sup>.

- ❖ "Bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." (Galatians 6:2) Now the law of Christ is love and love will not be fulfilled unless we bear the burdens of others. He says, "with all lowliness and gentleness, with longsuffering, bearing with one another in love, endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace." (Ephesians 4:2-3)

When you were weak your neighbor carried you. Now that you are well, you must endure your neighbor. In this way you complete, O man, what was lacking in you. So "take up your bed" and when you take it up do not stand still, but rather "walk." Through your love for your neighbor and through carrying your neighbor you complete your walk. To what place do you walk in the path of the Lord God who commands us to love Him with all our heart, with all our soul and with all our mind? You must carry your neighbor, then as you walk you will go to Him with whom you wish to dwell. Therefore, "take up your bed and walk." Saint Augustine<sup>16</sup>.

"And immediately the man was made well, took up his bed and walked.
And that day was the Sabbath." [9]

Why did the Lord order that man to take up his bed on the Sabbath, when the Law forbids such work, especially carrying heavy matter (Exodus 20:8, Jeremiah 17:21, Nehemiah 13:15)?

- A. This man may have been poor and if he left his bed he would have lost it. Besides he could not remain guarding his bed until the morning.
  - B. The Lord has shown that the Jews misunderstood the meaning of Sabbath. They observed it literally missing the right spiritual meaning that it is for the glory of God and the benefit of man.
  - C. Christ was emphasizing to those who were present that He is Lord of the Sabbath. All days are His without any preference between Saturday and any other day. He does the work of the Father continuously.
  - D. By carrying this bed in the middle of the religious capital and among the people coming to celebrate the feast, this man will attract the attention of the multitude. They will investigate the matter and become acquainted with the love of Christ for His people and His care for their spiritual and physical security more than for the literal observance of the law.
  - E. Christ is here testing the extent of obedience and belief of the sick man whom He has healed.
  - F. So that this may be a practical living picture of the church in the Christian era. For the prophets looked at the church in the new epoch and sang: "The Lord raises those who are bowed down" (Psalm 146:8) "O Lord, save thy people... and with them the blind and the lame" (Jeremiah 31:7-8). Therefore all the days of the church are Sabbath (rest) continuously and a joyful continual feast.
- ❖ Observe the faith of this paralytic: when he heard Christ's saying, "Rise, take up your bed and walk", he did not laugh; he got up and became well. He did not disobey but rather took up his bed and walked. Saint John Chrysostom.

2. Resistance of the Jews

The Jews therefore said to him who was cured:
"It is the Sabbath.
It is not lawful for you to carry your bed." [10]

The leaders of the Jews argued with him and accused him of breaking the Sabbath. He defiled the Sabbath and as he did that openly and deliberately in the middle of the town, he deserved to be stoned to death. They did not realize that it was their envy and hatred of the Lord

Christ that defiled their Sabbath and feasts. The Lord Christ went to the paralytic to grant him a new life and new possibilities. But the authorities call the man to find a pretext for his death. As the Psalmist says, "The wicked watches the righteous, and seeks to slay him" (Psalm 37:32)

He answered them, "He who made me well said to me, 'Take up your bed and walk'" [11]

The answer of the sick man is a testimony for the Lord Christ. The man says, "He who made me well said to me take up your bed and walk." The man does not place the responsibility on the Lord Christ; nor does he wish to change the accusation of breaking the Sabbath. He only stresses the fact that It is impossible for Him who has the power to heal in this sovereign manner to make a mistake or do evil. The man means to say, "I obeyed Him because I trust in His holiness and righteousness."

He who has authority over chronic illnesses in such a supernatural way, cannot be considered breaking the law. He who has such love and mercy must necessarily observe the law which is accomplished through practical love.

The vitality that the man gained was immeasurably more precious than the literal observance of the Sabbath. He, therefore, left the interpretation of observing the Sabbath to Him Who gave him that new life in which he enjoyed tranquillity.

- ❖ Because it was the Sabbath, the Jews were angry, in ignorance, since they were sick with coarse literalness they were, in their clinging stupidity, more shackled than the paralytic. Their minds were paralyzed, their behavior weak, they were truly those to whom was said, "Strengthen ye the weak hands and confirm the feeble knees." (Isaiah 35:3) But they were furiously angry claiming that even He who granted the law must necessarily honor it. St. Cyril, the Great<sup>17</sup>.
- ❖ The paralytic did not disobey Christ. Consequently he was immediately healed, and he took up his bed and walked. After that, what he did was even much more important. When he accepted what Christ told him at the beginning, that was not surprising, for he had no one to help him. However, when the Jews surrounded him, madly blaming him and besieged him saying, "it is not lawful for you to carry your bed", he did not listen to their madness, but in clear frank words proclaimed his benefactor in the midst of their synagogue. Listen to what he said to them: "He who made me well said to me, 'take up your bed and walk'" He was almost saying to them: you are mad to order me not to consider Him a teacher, He Who relieved me of my long sickness, and you ask me not to obey all his commands.

Nevertheless, if the paralytic wished to offend them, it would have been possible for him to answer in a different way. As, for example, say: if what I am doing is wrong, it is not my fault but the mistake of him who ordered me to do so. Yet, he did not say that, nor did he beg their pardon. On the contrary, in a glorious voice he acknowledged the charity granted to him and announced in clear strong words, "He who made me well said to me, take up your bed and walk." St. John Chrysostom.

"Then they asked him, Who is the Man who said to you, 'Take up your bed and walk?'" [12]

Whit that question they tried to insult the Lord Christ not only by supposing Him a mere man, but by asking scornfully "Who is the Man...?" meaning there is no comparison between that man who cured you and God who instituted the law.

- ❖ Reflect on how full of scheming were their words. They did not ask the paralytic who healed him. They said nothing about that; instead they mentioned the act which they considered a sin and said, "Who is the Man who said to you, 'take up your bed and walk'" St. John Chrysostom.

"But the one who was healed did not know who it was,
for Jesus had withdrawn,
a multitude being in that place." [13]

He may have heard the name of Jesus, but as he lay by the pool for 38 years he had not seen the Lord and had not known much about Him. He was not even able to recognize Him if he saw Him.

Saint Augustine considers that God rested on the seventh day is an allusion to the completion of the work of redemption on the cross on the sixth day (Friday) and His rest in the tomb on the seventh day <sup>18</sup>.

- ❖ It is difficult to see Christ in the multitude, therefore, solitude is necessary for our minds. In solitary meditation it is possible to see God. A multitude is full of noise. Vision requires secrecy. Do not search for Christ in a crowd; He is not like one among a crowd; He is above all the crowd. It is true that the Lord saw him in the multitude; however He knew him in the temple. The man came to the Lord; he saw Him in the temple; he saw Him in the consecrated sacred place. Saint Augustine<sup>19</sup>.
- ❖ The Lord announces openly that the secret of the Sabbath as a sign to keep one day was given to the Jews temporarily. But the completion of the secret was realized in Christ Himself. Saint Augustine<sup>20</sup>.
- ❖ If you say: what was Christ's aim in hiding Himself? I shall answer: Christ hid Himself so that the testimony may not be dubious. AS the paralytic who now enjoyed good health has become a witness for the charity he has received, he is fit to be believed. On the other hand, the Lord did not want to inflame the anger of the Jews even more. For by merely looking at that person those who envied him were ablaze. Therefore, the Lord withdrew and left the work He did speak for itself to them. The Lord did not talk about Himself. He let them talk to the man who was cured and to those who were interested. Saint John Chrysostom.

"Afterward Jesus found him in the temple, and said to him:

---

See, you have been made well. Sin no more, lest a worse thing come upon you." [14]

When that man felt how merciful God was to him, he went to the temple probably to thank God for healing him. It was as though he was singing

"I will offer to You the sacrifice of thanksgiving,
And will call upon the name of the Lord.
I will pay my vows to the Lord
Now in the presence of all His people.
In the courts of the Lord's house,
In the midst of you O Jerusalm." (Psalm 116:17-19)

This probably happened the same day he was cured.

The Lord Christ met the man in the temple. It may be that as they accused Him of espising the Sabbath, He came to the temple to stress His sanctification of the Sabbath and His preoccupation with collective prayer on that day. He came in particular to grant spiritual insight, notwithstanding His knowledge tht His numerous enemies wanted to kill Him. Nevertheless, since there was an urgnet need to meet a person to build him, Christ did not refrain from going for this man's sake. He has healed the sick man's body, and now He will declare His interest in healing the man's soul from sin.

The Lord Christ made it clear for the man that He knew the secrets of the past: "Sin no more", thus explaining that the man's past sin was the cause of his long illness. The Lord warns against sin that leads to the hospital, the Bethesda pool, to spend 38 years; or rather to hell to be shut off eternally in deprivation from the heavenly glory and in suffering with the enemy of good, Satan.

Sometimes, we have some sickenss because of our sins. This is a divine punishment so that we return to God. As the Psalmist says:

"Fools, because of their transgression,
And because of their iniquities, were afflicted.
Their soul abhorred all manner of food
And they drew near to the gates of death.
Then they cried out to the Lord in their trouble,
And He saved them out of their distresses." (Psalm 107:17-19)

Notice that the Lord does not refer to the sins at the time He cures the sick, except in the incurable cases, when the illness lasts for a long time as in this case and as in the situation mentioned in Mark 2:5. It may be that because those who lived a long time in sickness thought that having no dealings with people, they are righteous without sin. Therefore He asks them to penetrate deeper in their souls to discover the weakness of their nature and return to God. Such people are in need of greater watchfulness than the others who realize they are sinners.

This may be what Christ said to that man in the temple. As he was eprived of visiting the temple for 38 years during his illness, he may be sitracted by the building, by meeting people and by what takes place around him. Therefore, Christ wanted to turn the man's eyes to his own depth to beware of sin in his new life. Indeed, I do not think any language can express the feelings of that man when he saw the temple after all those years. May this longing be combined with the meeting with God who dwells in the depth of the soul!

- ❖ When we are baptized we are told "See, you have been made well. Sin no more, lest a worse thing come upon you." <sup>21</sup> ST. Jerome.
- ❖ It is a simple matter that you obtain something; but it is more important that you are able to keep what you obtain. Faith itself and the honored birth are full of beneficial life not by being obtained but by being preserved. Perseverance to the end, and not the temporary practice of that, keeps the human bien for God directly. Solomon, Saul and many others as they did not continue to the end in the path of the Lord, they were not able to maintain the grace conferred upon them. When Christ's disciple withdraws from the Way, the blessing of Christ also abandons him<sup>22</sup>. St. Cyrian.
- ❖ Someone asks, "What then, is sin the cause of every illness?" No. Not all diseases but some. Some are brought about by a kind of carelessness and negligence such as excessive eating (gluttony), addiction and sloth which cause pain. Jesus wanted to secure this man's future... keeping him in good health with the benefit He offered to him and with fear of future illnesses<sup>23</sup>.
- ❖ Not only by giving the sick man's body power, but rather in another manner He gave him a strong proof of His divinity. When He says to him "Sin no more." He shows him that He knows all his past trespasses. In this way he can obtain his faith in the future<sup>24</sup>. St. John Chrysostom.

"The man departed and told the Jews that it was Jesus who made him well." [15]

He did not say that the Lord Christ was responsible because it was He who told him 'take up your bed.' He rather testified for Him that it was He "Who made him well." He wished to glorify Jesus and, at the same time, to testify for the benefit of his hearers, maybe they think seriously about His miraculous deed.

"For this reason the Jews persecuted Jesus, and sought to kill him, because He had done these things on the Sabbath." [16]

Instead of reconsidering their opinion concerning Jesus the savior of souls and healer of bodies from incurable diseases, their jealousy and envy led them to the desire of practising their father's work: persecution and murder. They found no satisfaction except in bloodshed. Their zeal in sanctifying the Sabbath was to cover up their feelings full of hatred.

3. Christ's Discourse about the Sabbath

"But Jesus answered them:
'My Father has been working until now, and I have been working.'" [17]

The Lord Christ began a dialogue with the authorities who accused Him of breaking the Sabbath. This discourse was probably in the presence of the sanhedrim on the same day, or two or three days after the sick man was made well.

By saying, "My Father has been working until now" [17] He makes it clear for them that the Father created the world in six days and rested on the seventh day, which is the Sabbath. He stopped His work of creation because He had completed everything. However His rest does not mean ignoring His creation. In His Sabbath He continues caring for His creation, shepherding it and managing its affairs. The Sabbath for God is work in which there is rest and joy inasmuch as He declares His love for His greatly beloved creation. If God practised the Sabbath literally like the Jewish authorities, the universe would have stopped and been destroyed because it cannot remain without divine help. Thus, the Son sanctifies the Sabbath with the continuous work of love as He cares for His beloved. HE works continuously so that all may be made well and grow in knowledge and glory. This is the meaning of the Sabbath according to the divine standard.

On the Sabbath day the male child is circumcised if he is, on that day, eight days old. On the Sabbath the priests offer sacrifices, and on the Sabbath day the shepherds give water to their sheep. All these acts do not break the Sabbath because they carry the fragrance of love. The Son of Man is the Lord of the Sabbath because He is "Love" itself.

"And I have been working": As He is the Son of God, He practices His Father's way Who works perpetually for the sake of His people. To stop from work of love is to break the Sabbath and corrupt it. On the other hand, to do an act of love is to sanctify the Sabbath. He has not been working like His Father as though each has His own future work. He, rather, has been working with His Father; for "All things were made through Him." Therefore, if he is accused of breaking the Sabbath, this accusation is directed towards God the Father Himself who is never separate from the Son.

The Lord Christ compares Himself to the Father: just as the Father works on the Sabbath day as on other days, so Christ can do the same. This comparison has its danger for the Jewish leaders because it conveys the meaning of equality between Jesus and the Father in the divine plan and work. Who is He who treats the subjects of the Father and the Sabbath as associated with Him?

Saint Augustine observes that the Jews were wrong in understanding the Sabbath in a corporeal way. They thought that God created the world in six days; that He got tired and wanted to be relieved from exertion on the seventh day and He, therefore sanctified that day for rest. This misinterpretation caused trouble to them. However, the spiritual meaning of the Sabbath is that when the six days, or human historical periods, pass, the day of the Lord comes being the seventh day. His rest means our rest also. As for the six days, they are:

- The first day: from Adam to Noah.

- The second day: from the Flood to Abraham.
- The third day: from Abraham to David.
- The fourth day: from David to the Babylonian captivity.
- The fifth day: from the Babylonian captivity to the coming of the Lord Christ.
- The sixth day: the present era from the coming of Christ to His last coming. On that day we take the image of God, since on that day man was created (Gen 1:27) and on that day our creation is renewed (through crucifixion on Friday).

This is how Saint Augustine sees that God works during the six days and that the sixth day is the day on which man was created and renewed to get ready for enjoying rest on the seventh day which is the day of His last coming<sup>25</sup>.

- ❖ So that we may know in a better way the equality of the Father and the Son, behold that when the Father speaks the Son works. Likewise the Father works and the Son speaks. The Father works, as it is written "My Father has been working until now, and I have been working." You notice that it was said to the Son "speak a word, and my servant will be healed." (Matt 8:8) and the Son says to the Father, "Father, I desire that they also whom You gave Me may be with Me where I am" (John 17:24) so the Father does what the Son says. Saint Ambrose<sup>26</sup>.
- ❖ Surely, as the Church teaches us in accordance to the Savior's words: "My Father has been working until now, and I have been working." God works (creates) our spirits everyday with which we increase and work; and He will not stop being the Creator<sup>27</sup>.
- ❖ He gives continuously; He always grants gifts. It is not enough that He grants me a blessing once. It befits Him that He gives me grace at all times. I ask so that I may obtain and when I obtain I ask again. I crave for God's generosity and if He is not late in giving, I do not lack interest in accepting His gift. As much as I drink I thirst. Saint Jerome<sup>28</sup>.
- ❖ If someone asks you, how has the Father been working, He who has ended His work on the seventh day? If only he learns the manner with which He works. What are His works? He cares for the concerns of everything He did and He directs them. When you see the sun rising and the moon turning in its orb; when you see the lakes, springs and rivers, rain and the natural seasons for plants, the nature of our body and the body of undiscerning animals and all other matter with which this universe exists you will learn that God has not stopped working. For, "He makes His sun rise on the evil and on the good, and sends rain on the just and on the unjust." (Matt. 5:45) He also "clothes the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is thrown into the oven" (Matt 6:30) and when He speaks about the birds He says, "your heavenly Father feeds them." Saint John Chrysostom<sup>29</sup>.
- ❖ He said that to them because they kept the Sabbath in a corporeal sense imagining God as though He slept after He tired of creating the world until that day. He sanctified that day He began to rest as from weariness.

Now, concerning our old fathers, the mystery of the Sabbath has been established, that which we, Christians, observe spiritually by refraining from low work, that is to say from any sin, because the Lord says: "whoever commits sin is a slave of sin." We obtain repose in our hearts and this is the spiritual rest.

AS for the saying that God rested, that is because He did not create a new creation after He ended His work which He made.

In addition the Holy Bible calls it rest in order that we may be urged to do good works after which we rest. It is written in the Book of Genesis "God created everything, it was very good. And He rested on the seventh day" so that you may realize, O man, that it was said of God Himself that He rested after good work, and you may expect rest for yourself after you practise good work.

Since God, after creating man in His own image and likeness and in that He completed all His work which was very good, then He rested on the seventh day, it follows that you should not expect rest for yourself unless you return to that likeness when you were created<sup>30</sup>.

- ❖ Do not think that My Father rested on the Sabbath means that He did not work. He is working even now and likewise I am working. And just as the Father is without fatigue, so is the Son without fatigue<sup>31</sup>.
- ❖ The Universal faith (of the Universal Church) is that the works of the Father and the works of the Son are not separate... AS the Father and the Son are not separate, so are the works of the Father and the works of the son not separate... What the Father does the Son and the Holy Spirit also do. For, everything was made by the word, "For He spoke, and it was done."<sup>32</sup> Saint Augustine.

Some may ask: for example, that the Lord Christ walked on the water, while the Father did not walk on the water; how then do we say that the works of the Father and of the Son are not separate? Saint Augustine answers saying: "See how the Universal Faith presents an explanation for this question: The Son walked on the sea; He put His physical feet on the waves, the body walked and the Divinity directed it, but when the body walked and the Divinity directed it, was the the Father absent? If He was absent, how does the Son say, 'but the Father who dwells in Me does the works'? If the Father who dwells in the Son, He Himself does the works, then walking on the water is the work of the Father by the Son. Consequently, this walking is the work of the Father and the Son without separation. I see both working in it. The Father will not leave the Son, nor will the Son leave the Father. Thus all that the Father works, He does not work without the Son because what the Father does He does not do without the Son."<sup>33</sup>

- ❖ Someone says: how does the eternal give birth to an eternal? As temporary flame produces temporary light, the generating flame is contemporaneous with the light that it generates. The generating flame will not precede the light in time, but from the moment the flame begins, at that same moment the light is born. Show me flame without light, and I will show you God the Father without the Son. Therefore, 'the Son can do nothing of Himself, but what He sees the Father do.' This implies that 'He sees' and 'is born' concerning the Son are both the same thing. His seeing and existence are not different; nor are His strength and His Being different. All things that the Son has are from the Father, everything He has power over, or He is the same, everything is from the Father<sup>34</sup>.

- ❖ What the Father does, the Son also does. The Father made the world and the Son made the world, and also the Holy Spirit made the world. If they were three gods, there would have been three worlds. Since they are one God, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, there is one world that the Father created through the Son in the Holy Spirit. It follows that the Son makes what the Father makes and does not work in a different way. He makes together these matters and makes them in the same way<sup>35</sup>.
- ❖ If you see no separation in the light, why do you want separation in the work? Behold God, look at the word that is inseparable from the word that He speaks. The speaker does not speak in syllables. His word shines in the splendor of wisdom. What was said about wisdom? "She is the radiance of eternal light" (Wis 9:15). Look at the sun in the sky. It spreads its splendor on all the earth and over all the seas, and yet the light is material and simple. If you can truly separate the splendor from the sun, you can separate the Word from the Father<sup>36</sup>. Saint Augustine.

"Therefore the Jews sought all the more to kill Him, because He not only broke the Sabbath, but also said that God was His Father, making Himself equal with God." [18]

His justification of the sanctity of the Sabbath through Divine work, and not through refraining from work, bore the testimony that He was equal with God whom He called His Father. Therefore, they hated him more, because there is nothing that incites them more than His assertion of His divine authority. Therefore they sought all the more to kill Him, because in their opinion He blasphemed. The punishment for both accusations is death (Exodus 31:14. Lev 24:16)

Some think that what alarmed the Jewish leaders was that He called the Father His personal self Father: This is what is understood by the use of the Greek word. He, then, considers Himself equal with God.

- ❖ It is written: "My Father is greater than I." (John 14:28) It is also written "He... did not consider it robbery to be equal with God" (Philippians 2:6). It is written "He... also said that God was His Father, making Himself equal with God." (John 5:18) and it is written: "I and My Father are one." (John 10:30) Is it possible that He is less and equal in the same nature? No, one refers to the Divinity, the other to His body<sup>37</sup>. Saint Ambrose.

"Then Jesus answered and said to them,
Most assuredly, I say to you, the Son can do nothing of Himself,
But what He sees the Father do;
For whatever He does, the Son also does in like manner." [19]

In His speech He always asserts two truths: the oneness (unity) of God, and that He is one with the Father, equal with Him.

When the Jews wanted to kill Him not only because He broke the Sabbath, but also because He said that God was His Father, making Himself equal with God [18] His answer was not 'Why do you want to kill me..., I am not equal with my Father.' If the Lord Christ was less than the Father in divinity, He would have been obligated to make that clear. However, He explained that there is not contradiction between Him and the Father, because what the Father does, He does through the Son who is the power and wisdom of God. "All things were made through Him, and without Him nothing was made that was made." (John 1:3) He says what the Father sees the Son does; what does He mean by that? Does He see what the Father does and He repeats the same act? Impossible! However, as they both do the same work, so He is one with the Father in will. Therefore, He does the divine work which is according to His Father's pleasure and at the same time His own pleasure. The Son cannot do anything of Himself because of the unity that cannot be split from the Father. Also, the Father does not do anything without the Son because of the eternal unity, because the Son is the power of God, the wisdom of God, the word of God.

The created being can do something of himself; he can misconceive the matter that God cannot do because He is holy without sin. But the Son cannot do except what He sees the Father do. It is as though He says to them, if you accuse Me of breaking the Sabbath, I do not do anything except what I see the Father do; would you consider the Father breaking the Sabbath?!

In His discourse He concentrated on that He gives life to whom He will [21], that His words grant everlasting life [24], that His voice will raise the dead [25-26] and that the hour is coming when He will give life to those in the graves [28-29]

- ❖ The Father shows Him what He will do so that what is done will be through the Son<sup>38</sup>.
- ❖ Then, what we explain, our beloved, the question that we ask is how does the Word see?

How is the Father seen by means of the Word?

And what is it that the Word sees?

I do not have the audacity or carelessness to promise you that I explain that to myself or to you. I reckon your measure and know my limit...

It was meant by that, that we do not understand that the Father does some works which the Son sees, and that the Son does other works after He sees what the Father does. Rather, both the Father and the Son do the same works.

So, if the Son does the same work as the Father, and if the Father does the work through the Son, it follows that the Father does not do something, and the Son does another thing; rather the works of the Father and the Son are the very same.

I shall give you an example which is not difficult for you to understand: when we write letters we write them first with our hearts then with our hands... the heart and the hand write the letters. Do you think that the heart writes letters and the hands write different letters? The same letters are executed by the heart mentally and the hand materially.

Notice how these things are done but not in the same manner. Therefore, it was not enough for the Lord to say, "whatever the Father does" but it was necessary to add "in like manner"...

If He does these things in like manner, then let them wake up; let the Jews be destroyed, and the Christians believe, let the heretic be convinced, because the Son is equal with the Father<sup>39</sup>. Saint Augustine.

- ❖ If you ask: then, what is the meaning of Christ saying, "the Son can do nothing of Himself"? I shall answer: this means that He cannot do anything opposed or strange to His Father. This statement proves His equality with His Father and His agreement with Him very much.

Christ's saying: "the Son can do nothing of Himself, but what He sees the Father do" is like saying "it is inaccessible to me and impossible that I do a contrary thing." And His saying "for whatever He does, the Son also does" clarifies His complete likeness to His Father.

- ❖ What is the meaning of "the Son can do nothing of Himself"? He can do nothing of Himself opposed to the Father, not something different, not something strange. This shows the more, complete equality and agreement.

Why did He not say "He can do nothing opposite" instead of "He can do nothing"? So that He may prove there is no change, but accurate equality. This statement does not charge Him with weakness, but rather is witness to His great power... as the statement "it is impossible for God to make a mistake" does not charge Him with weakness, but testifies to His inexpressible power.

Thus the meaning here is that He can do nothing, that is to say, it is impossible that He does anything opposite to the Father<sup>40</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.

- ❖ Neither the Son nor the Spirit has anything of Himself, because the Trinity does not speak about anything out of His Self... Let no one think that there is any difference in the work, in time or direction, between the Father and the Son; let him rather believe in the unity of the same action<sup>41</sup>.

---

- ❖ The freedom (of the Holy Trinity) is hidden, not in the existence of differences, but in the unity of the will<sup>42</sup>.
- ❖ The Son was entitled to, and affirmed His equality with the Father, a true equality, regarding all difference in the Trinity as unlikely<sup>43</sup>. Saint Ambrose.
- ❖ Christ made everything... not in the sense that the Father lacked the power to create His works, but that He rather wanted the Son to judge His works, so God gave Him the record of the created things. So the Son says, honoring His Father, "the Son can do nothing but what He sees the Father do, for whatever He does, the Son also does" (John 5:19) He also says "My Father has been working until now, and I have been working." So, there is no contradiction in the work, for the Lord says in the Gospels, "And all Mine are Yours, and Yours are Mine" (John 17:10)

We learn this with certainty in the two Testaments, the Old and the New. For He who said, "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness" (Gen 1:26) certainly spoke to an hypostasis with Him. This is shown in the words of the Psalmist: "he said and they were. He commanded and they were created." (Ps. 148:5) So it is as though the Father commanded and spoke, and the Son made everything as the Father commanded<sup>44</sup>. Saint Cyril of Jerusalem.

[Saint Augustine warns us against material interpretation]

- ❖ He did not say, "the Son can do nothing of Himself, but what He hears the Father command." He said, "the Son can do nothing of Himself, but what He sees the Father do." Look, do you understand that in this way: the Father does something; the Son listens to see what He also does, and that He does another thing similar to what the Father does.

What the Father makes, through whom does He make that? Unless it is through the Son. If not through the Word, you blaspheme against the Gospel" All things were made through Him." (John 1:3)

Therefore, what the Father makes, He makes through the Word. So, if He makes through the Word, He makes through the Son. Who, then, is that other who listens to make something He sees the Father make?<sup>45</sup>

- ❖ The Father does not make things, and the Son makes other things. Everything that the Father makes, He makes through the Son. The Son raised Lazarus from the dead; did not the Father raise him? The Son gave sight to the blind, did not the Father grant him sight? The Father and the Son act in the Holy Spirit. This is the Trinity. The work of the Trinity is one; the greatness one, the eternity one, the works one. The Father did not create some people, the Son others, and the Holy Spirit some others. The Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit creates one same man... Saint Augustine.
- ❖ Whoever attributes weakness to the Son, attributes it to the Father also. The shepherd carries the whole flock and not only this or that section of it... The Holy Bible promises abundance of grace, but we acknowledge its scarcity<sup>46</sup>. Saint Jerome.

- ❖ Why is it written: "the Son does the same things" not "similar to those things" except that you may judge that the Son is one in the same works of the Father, not an imitation of what the Father works?

What is the meaning of "what He sees"?

Is the Son in need of physical eyes? No. For if the followers of Arius affirm that concerning the Son, the Father, then is in need of physical works so that the Son may see them to make them.

Then, what is meant by "the Son can do nothing of Himself"?... Is there anything impossible for the power and wisdom of God? Let these people understand that these are two attributes for the Son of God whose power is undoubtedly not a gift He obtains from another. But, as He is the life and does not rely on another to grant Him life, for He gives life to the others because He is the life; likewise He is the Word (1 Cor 1:24) not as an ignorant being asking for wisdom, but as making the others wise from His store. Similarly, He is the power, not as one who obtains it and in his weakness needs more power, but He rather grants power to the powerful<sup>47</sup>. Saint Ambrose.

"For the Father loves the Son, and shows Him all things that He Himself does;
and He will show Him greater works than these,
that you may marvel." [20]

The two verbs "loves" and "shows" occur in the Greek language in the present continuous and signify love and sight as working continuously without interruption. This is love of the complete unity in the same substance. Therefore, "Aghabi" was not used, but rather "Filin" and seeing the continuous work which denotes the partnership in the same divine work.

The works which are greater than healing the paralytic is raising the dead. [21] And His resurrection and judgement of the world. [22]

- ❖ This shows that all exists through one will, one authority and one strength... Since Christ does nothing of Himself, if Christ does everything like the Father... because He did not say that "everything that He sees the Father doing He does" but "He sees the Father do."<sup>48</sup> Saint John Chrysostom.
- ❖ It is much greater that a dead person is given life, than that a sick person is cured. These are great deeds.

However, when does the Father show these deeds to the Son?

Does not the Son know them?

The Speaker Himself, does He not know how to raise the dead?

Did He need to learn how to raise the dead back to life, He through Whom all things were made? He who brought us to life when we were nonexistent, did He need to learn how we may be raised from the dead?

What, then, do His words mean?...

He says to us once what befits His glory, and another time what befits His meekness. He Himself the Most High deigned to come down so that He may lift us up high we who are low.

What then does He say: "and He will show Him greater work than these, that you may marvel." [20] What He shows to us is not for His sake. For as the Father shows Him is for our sake. He, therefore, says "that you may marvel."

Why does He not say: "the Father will show you" but says the Father will show the Son? That is because we also are members of the Son and what the members learn He learns in some way in His members.

How does He learn in us? As He suffers also in us.

Where do we prove that He suffers in us? From the voice coming from the sky: "Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me?" (Acts 9:4)<sup>49</sup> Saint Augustine.

"For as the Father raises the dead and gives life to them even so the Son gives life to whom He will" [21]

The Father raised the dead as He raised the Sarephath Zidon widow's son, at the time of the prophet Elijah (1 Kings 17:22) and the son of the Shunammite (2 Kings 4:32-35) at the time of Elisha the prophet. The Son raises whom He will as what happened to Jairus' daughter (Mark 5:35-42), the Nain widow's son (Luke 7:11-15) and Lazarus in Bethany (John 11:14-44). He gives life as He will, not by asking for strength from outside as in the case of the prophets, and also His disciples. He has absolute authority over life! He has the keys of Hades and of Death (Rev 1:18). He has the key of David, He who opens and no one shuts, and shuts and no one opens (Rev 3:7). He kills and makes alive (1 Samuel 2:6).

- ❖ The expression reveals an unchanging strength... equality in authority... "for whatever He (the Father) does, the Son also does", shows that He continues in doing everything that the Father does, whether you say raising the dead, forming bodies, forgiving sins or any other thing. He does in like manner as related to Who gave birth to Him<sup>50</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.
- ❖ This, absolutely, does not mean that the Son gives life to some, and the Father raises others. It means that the Father and the Son raise the same persons, because the Father makes all things through the Son<sup>51</sup>. Saint Augustine.

---

- ❖ In this way the equality of the Son with the Father is simply affirmed through the unity in raising the dead. The Son gives life just like the Father. So that you may realize, here, His eternal life and authority<sup>52</sup>. Saint Ambrose.

"For the Father judges no one, but has committed all judgement to the Son." [22]

This asserts that the judging Father does not act without the Son; nor does the judging Son act without the Father. They have one authority and they work together.

The Father judges no one, not because He has no authority, but because this is His pleasure that the Son who sacrificed Himself judges humanity. The Father created us through the Son, redeemed us through His death, and judges us through Him. Christ became the head of the Church through His work of salvation. He became above all (Eph. 1:11). He is the head of every man (1 Cor. 11:3); therefore, He completes that by the pleasure of His believers in participating in His glory. He was the One who began the battle against the kingdom of darkness, and He announces its total destruction in the Last Judgement. If the Son, in His humility became the Son of Man and suffered death on the cross, He also appears as Son of Man to embarrass and humiliate those who rejected Him and pierced Him with the spear of disbelief in Him.

As the Jews asked for His judgement and murder legally, He declared that He is the One who judges and will judge all humanity the Day of Judgement.

- ❖ We need, dearly beloved, great effort in every respect because we shall give account of, and will be asked precisely about, our words and deeds.

Our interest should not be in what happens now, but in what will happen then when we stand before the solemn trial. "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that each one may receive the things done in the body, according to what he has done, whether good or bad." (2 Cor. 5:10)

Let us mentally enact this judgement all the time, so that we may be able to persevere at all times in virtue... For He who forgives our trespasses now will judge us, He who dies for us will appear to judge all the human race as the apostle says, "To those who eagerly wait for Him He will appear a second time, apart from sin, for salvation." (Heb 9:28). Therefore, He says here "For the Father judges no one, but has committed all judgement to the Son, that all should honor the Son just as they honor the Father." [22-23]...

To understand "has committed" and "is born" listen to what was said elsewhere: "For as the Father has life in Himself, so He has granted the Son to have life in Himself" [26] What then? Did He give birth to Him first and granted life to Him later?

Was He born without life? Even the devils will not imagine this because this is extreme

Thus, just as granting life means giving birth to Him who is life, granting judgement is giving birth to Him who is judge.

And lest when you hear that the Father is His source, you conjecture that there is a difference in essence or a lack in honor, He said He will come and judge you, proving by that His equality with the Father. For, He who has the authority to punish and judge whom He will, has the same authority as the Father<sup>53</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.

❖ "For the Father judges no one, but has committed all judgement to the Son." [22]... When the Son judges, does the Father remain without work and does not judge?... This was said because in the Last Judgement, the Son only will appear to the human beings; the Father will disappear and announce the Son.

How will the Son be declared? In the form of His ascension because the form of Divinity is hidden with the Father, but the form of the Son is declared to the human beings.

How did they see Him go? In the body which they touched and held, and the wounds they ascertained when they touched. He appeared to them in this body for forty days, declaring His self in truth, not in illusion, in falseness, in a shadow or spirit, but in Himself. He did not deceive them: "Handle Me and see, for a spirit does not have flesh and bones as you see I have." (Luke 24:39). This body became truly fit to inhabit heaven, not submitting to death, not changing with time<sup>54</sup>. Saint Augustine.

"that all should honor the Son just as they honor the Father
He who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent Him." [23]

If the Son is honored just as the Father is honored, the Son has the same honor. All creatures, the heavenly and earthly, worship Him and devote themselves to Him, which is appropriate to God only, for He with the Father is the One God.

❖ Is the Son inferior because He said He was sent? I hear of sending, not of separation...

Between two human beings, the sender is greater than he who is sent. However, human affairs deceive men; on the other hand, the divine purify. Do not look at human affairs in which the sender appears to be greater than he who is sent... But in spite of that there are many cases when the greater is chosen to be sent by the one less than him.

The sun sends its rays but is not separated from the rays.

The lamp spreads light and is not separated from that light. I see transmission without separation...

---

A person who sends another person remains behind him, while the person who is sent precedes. Does the sender go with whom he sends? As for the Father who sent the Son, He is not separate from the Son... The Father who sends is not separate from the Son who is sent, because the Sender and the Sent is one<sup>55</sup>. Saint Augustine.

- ❖ Do you not see how the honor of the Son is connected to the honor of the Father. Someone may say: What?! We see the same thing in the case of the apostles: Christ says "He who receives you receives Me." (Matt 10:40). In here He says this because He cares for His servants who are His. On the other hand, when He speaks about Himself and the Father, He says that because the essence is one, and the glory is one with the Father. He, therefore, did not say about the apostles, 'so that they honor them'; but here, He says, in truth, "He who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father" [23]. When there are two kings, he who insults one of them, insults the other also, especially if one of the two kings is the son of the other. Likewise, he who hurts his soldiers is considered having hurt the king but in a different manner<sup>56</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.

"Most assuredly, I say to you, he who hears My words and believes in Him who sent Me has everlasting life, and shall not come into judgement, but has passed from death into life." [24]

His instructions, that is to say, the gospel of His salvation, are the seeds of eternal life which conquer death forever. When planted in the heart they raise the believer above eternal death and judgment on the Lord's Great Day. The believer will not enter the city of death where the spirits that deprived themselves from the source of life are imprisoned. The soul of the believer will cross to the empire of life where the believer will receive a new citizenship instead of the town of death. He will enjoy a heavenly residence to live there eternally in heavenly glory and speak a heavenly language.

Though eternal life has no relation to time, yet the deposit for this grant is offered in the present life, so that we may grow in it and enjoy its perfection in the future life.

- ❖ He did not say 'he who hears My word and believes in Me' (instead of believes in Him who sent Me) because in spite of the myriad miracles He performed over a long time, they still doubted Him. When He spoke later in this manner saying, "if anyone keeps My word he shall never see death" (John 8:51), they said to Him "Abraham is dead, and the prophets; and You say, 'If anyone keeps My word he shall never taste death.'" (John 8:52) Therefore, so that they may not get very angry, here, behold what He says? "he who hears My word, and believes in Him who sent Me has everlasting life" [24] This statement has a great effect on the acceptance of what He says, when they learn that when they believe whom they hear they believe the Father also. When they accept this easily they can accept the remainder of His discourse easily. His conversation in a humble way contributed to and introduced them to heavenly concerns. For, after He says, "has everlasting life" He adds: "And shall not come into judgement, but has passed from death into life." [24]<sup>57</sup>

- ❖ In these two respects He caused His sayings to be easily accepted. First, because it is in the Father that we believe; then he who believes enjoys many blessings. Not coming into judgement means no punishment, because here He does not speak about death, but about eternal death and also about life without death<sup>58</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.
- ❖ As human beings love to live on this earth, they are promised life; and as they fear death very much, they are promised eternal life.

What do you love? That you live. You will obtain that.

What do you fear? That you die. You will have everlasting life...

Let us love eternal life, in that we understand how we need to strive very much for eternal life<sup>59</sup>. Saint Augustine.

- ❖ The authority of the Son does not increase, but our knowledge of that authority increases. What we learn does not add anything to His being, but rather adds to our benefit so that through our knowledge of the Son we obtain eternal life. Thus, our knowledge of the Son of God is not glory to Him, it is rather our benefit that is meant<sup>60</sup>. Saint Ambrose.
- ❖ In spite of its union with God, the soul does not enjoy full and absolute happiness; but the more it enjoys His beauty, its longing for Him increases.

The words of the Bridegroom are spirit and life (John 5:24) and whoever clings to the spirit becomes a spirit. Whoever clings to life passes from death into life, as the Lord said.

In this way, the virgin spirit yearns always to come nearer to the spring of spiritual life. The spring is the mouth of the Bridegroom from which issue the words of everlasting life. He fills the mouth that approaches Him like David the prophet who attracted a spirit through his mouth (Ps. 119:131).

As it is necessary for a person who drinks from the spring to put his mouth on the mouth of the spring, and as the Lord Himself is the spring as He says: "If anyone thirsts, let him come to Me and drink." (John 7:37), therefore, the thirsty souls wish to put their mouths on the mouth from which life springs and say: "Let Him kiss me with the kisses of His mouth" (Song 1:2)

He who grants life to all, and wants to save all, wishes that everyone enjoys a share of these kisses, because the kisses purify the souls from all uncleanness<sup>61</sup>. Saint Gregory of Nyssa.

"Most assuredly, I say to you, the hour is coming, and now is, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God;
and those who hear will live." [25]

Some people differentiate between the "word" of the Lord Christ [24] and His "voice" [25]. His word is the gospel of His salvation where the believer finds, through the cross, the new life instead of death and enjoys freedom instead of slavery, for the Lord says, "My word is spirit and life." As for His voice, it is in His word where the Bride delights in the voice of her Bridegroom and her heart is filled with the ecstasy of love. She feels His divine tenderness and accepts nothing instead: "My sheep hear My voice" (John 10:27)

The Holy Bible indicates three kinds of death: natural death, or that of the body, spiritual death, and eternal death. The first occurs when the spirit separates from the body; the second is when the spirit is separated from God, and the third happens when the spirit and the body together separate from God in the world to come. Accordingly, there are three kinds of life: natural life in this world where the body and the spirit work in unity together, spiritual life when the spirit enjoys union with God who guides her through the Holy Spirit, and everlasting life when the body shares with the spirit heavenly glory in the bosom of the Father.

With the coming of the Lord Christ the hour has come so that the spirit rises from its death or its separation from God the source of its life, and enjoys the new life here. This new life prepares the believer for the second coming of the Lord Christ when the dead will arise so that he bodies share with the spirits a glorious everlasting life. This is realized through the command of the Lord Christ when the dead hear His voice.

In His first coming, He speaks to the spirit and raises it from death. In His last coming, He orders and the dead rise. Would we hear always His voice that is directed personally to us "Lazarus, come forth!" In all our worship, or rather with every breath of life we must incline our ears to Him to hear His sweet life-giving voice.

- ❖ Resurrection is realized now and the people pass from death into life, from death without faith into life through faith, from death through falsehood into life through truth, from death because of evil into life in righteousness. Therefore, there is resurrection of the dead<sup>62</sup>.
- ❖ Those who believe and obey live. Before they believe and obey they lay dead. They walked and were dead. What do they profit by walking while dead? And yet, if one of them dies the death of the body, they run to prepare the grave; they shroud, carry and bury him; the dead bury the dead. It has been said about them: "let the dead bury their own dead." (Matt 8:22)

Such dead were raised by the Word of God so that they may live in faith. Those who were dead in disbelief were raised by the Word. Concerning this hour, the Lord says: "the hour is coming, and now is." With His word, He raises those: who were dead in disbelief. About them, the apostle says, "Awake, you who sleep, arise from the dead, and Christ will give you light." (Eph 5:14). This is the resurrection of the hearts. This is the resurrection of the inner man, the resurrection of the spirit.

However, this is not the only resurrection, because there is still the resurrection of the body also. Whoever arises again in the spirit arises also in the body to be blessed in the body.

But, whoever does not arise first in the spirit will arise in the body for his damnation... When we look up to the Lord that He sealed on us with this resurrection of the spirits towards which we all must hurry and strive to live in and persevere to the end, there remains that He seals on us with the resurrection of the bodies also which will be at the end of the world. Let us now listen to how He sealed on us with that also.

He said, "Most assuredly, I say to you, the hour is coming, and now is, when the dead will hear" that is to say those who do not believe, "the voice of the Son of God" that is to say the gospel, "and those who hear" those who obey, "will live" [25] that is to say will be justified and will not again have no faith. When I say He said that as much as He sees us in need of learning about the resurrection of the body also, and we are left in that condition, He compels His saying: "For as the Father has life in Himself, so He has granted the son to have life in Himself." This denotes the resurrection of the spirits, granting life to the spirits. He then adds: "and has given Him authority to execute judgment also, because He is the Son of Man." [27]<sup>63</sup>

- ❖ From which source will they live? From life. From which life? From Christ... He says: "I am the way, the truth, and the life." (John 14:6)

Do you want to walk? I am the way.

Do you wish not to be deceived? "I am the truth."

Do you want not to die? "I am the life."

This is what your Savior says to you... The people who died will arise; they will pass into life. When they hear the voice of the son of God, they will live. They will live in Him when they persevere in the faith in Him because the Son has life. He has life, so that those who believe in Him will live<sup>64</sup>. Saint Augustine.

- ❖ Did you learn here the sovereignty of Christ and His absolute inexpressible authority? Just as He will be in resurrection, He says, "Now." Therefore, when we hear His voice ordering us to arise, we rise as the apostle says: "when God commands, the dead rise" (see 1 Thes 4:16)<sup>65</sup> Saint John Chrysostom.

"For as the Father has life in Himself, so He has granted the Son to have life in Himself." [26]

- ❖ "granted" because of His unity with Him. He granted not so that it may be taken from Him, but so that He may be glorified in the Son. He was granted not so that the Father may guard it, but so that it may be the possession of the Son<sup>66</sup>.
- ❖ Do not think that it is a free gift for blessing, for it is the mystery of His birth. For there is no difference in life between the Father and the Son. How can you think that only the Fathe has immortality and not also the Son?<sup>67</sup> Saint Ambrose.

- ❖ Look, you say and confess that the Father grants life to the Son so that He may have life in Himself. As the Father has life in Himself, the Father has no need, and the Son also has no need. Just as the Father is life, so the Son is life. Both unite in one life and not two lives. Why is it said that thhe Father grants life to the Son? Not as though the Son was without life and obtained life. For if that was the case He would not have life in Himself<sup>68</sup>.
- ❖ What then "He has granted the Son to have life in Himself"? I say, briefly, He gave birth to the Son... As if He says "the Father who is life in Himself gave birth to the Son who is life in Himself." The word "granted" dedit may be understood as meaning "gave birth" genuit<sup>69</sup>.
- ❖ What is the meaning of "has life in Himself"? That He does not need life from another, He rather overflows with life and from Him the others - those who believe in Him obtain life... He was granted to have life in Himself: who was granted? His Word. Therefore, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God."<sup>70</sup> Saint Augustine.
- ❖ Do you not see that this declares the perfect likeness except in one point, that the one is Father and the other Son? The word "granted" is simply to point out this distinction; all the rest is perfectly equal and alike. It is clear tht the Son does everything with authority and power like the Father and that He does not derive power from another source, since He has life in Himself just as the Father has life in Himself<sup>71</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.

"And has given Him authority to execute judgment also, because He is the Son of Man."

Saint Ambrose sees that the Lord Christ accepted to obtain the authority to execute judgement "because He is the Son of Man." As the Son of God, He is the judge because He is one with the Father<sup>72</sup>.

Saint Augustine says, Christ is "the Son of God in Himself" [25] It was necessary (in His love) to become the Son of Man when He took us in Himself, or took our nature.

When He raises the dead, we see Him as the Son of God who gives life and resurrection. When He executes judgment His work of salvation without which we are not justified becomes clear to us. We see Him carrying our nature, becoming the Son of Man who died and rose and granted us His justification. The wicked also see Him the Son of Man whom they crucified, despised, and stabbed.

In saying "and has given Him to execute judgment also, because He is the Son of Man" He turns our attention to the prophecy of Daniel the prophet about Him: "I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they bourht him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed." (Daniel 7:13-14)

- ❖ The judge, here, will be the Son of Man. This form will execute judgement, and He stood trial.

Listen and understand what the prophet says in fact: "and they shall look on Him whom they have pierced." (Zech 12:10; John 19:37). They will look on the very same form they pierced with a spear, sitting as Jesus who stood before judgment. He will condemn the real criminals, He who was falsely considered a criminal. He will come Himself in the same form.

This you will see also in the gospel when He went to heaven in front of His disciples, they stood and looked and the angelic voice said: "Men of Galilee, why do you stand... This same Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will so come in like manner as you saw Him go into heaven." (Acts 1:11)

Behold now on what basis was that to happen and in truth those who must be judged see the Judge. For those who are judged are the righteous and the wicked together. But "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." (Matt. 5:8). What remains is that in the Judgement the form of the bond-servant is declared to the good and the evil, and the form of God is kept for the good only<sup>73</sup>.

- ❖ What will the righteous obtain?... I have said that there, we shall be in good health, safe, alive without tribulation, hunger, or thirst, without wrong, or losing our sight. This is what I have said, but I did not say what a greater thing we shall have: we shall see God. This is so great that if compared with all the other benefits, they are considered nothing.

Will the wicked also see God about whom Isaiah said, "the wicked will be rejected and will not see the glory of God" (Is 56:10)? For this reason, He will declare Himself to all, to the good and the evil but will keep Himself for those who love Him... After the resurrection of the body, when the wicked are repelled and will not see the glory of God, He "when He is revealed, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is." (1 John 3:2) This is everlasting life<sup>74</sup>.

- ❖ Why then does the Father not come Himself? That is because He is invisible on Judgment Day. "They shall look on Him whom they have pierced": The form that appeared before the judge, will be the Judge. That form that was judged will judge. He was falsely judged, but will judge with justice. He will come in the form of a bond-servant and will reveal Himself in that form, for how will the form of God be seen by the righteous and the unjust? If Judgment was for the righteous only the form of God will appear to them. But since Judgment is for the righteous and the unjust, and since the unjust are not allowed to see God, so "blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." (Matt 5:8)<sup>75</sup>
- ❖ There, there will be separation (between the righteous and the evil) but not like now.

Now we are separated not in place, but in characteristics, desires, faith, hope and love. Now we live together, we live with the evil, though the life of all is not one. In secret we are distinguished, we are separate like wheat on the threshing floor, not like wheat in the barn. In the field, wheat is separate and mixed, separate because it is different from straw, and mixed because it has not been sifted yet. After that, complete separation will happen... Those who have done good will live with the angels; those who have done evil will suffer with Satan and his soldiers...

After Judgment the form of the bond-servant will cross over... He will lead the body because He is the head and He will deliver the kingdom to God (1 Cor 15:24). Then the form of God will appear openly, that form that the wicked could not see, but only saw the form of the bond-servant.

He will reveal Himself as He promised those who love Him. For He says, "He who has My commandments and keeps them,, it is he who loves Me. And he who loves Me will be loved by My Father, and I will love him and manifest Myself to him." (John 14:21)<sup>76</sup>. Saint Augustine.

"Do not marvel at this;
for the hour is coming in which all who are in the graves will hear His voice." [28]

When the Lord Christ rose from the dead, no voice was heard, because He rose by His own power and authority. However, at our resurrection on the Last Day, the voice of Christ will be heard, for He has the authority to raise the dead. Likewise, the sound of the angels' trumpets will be heard to announce the coming of the Omnipotent.

❖ All who hear will live; because all who obey will live...

We thus see the resurrection of the mind; would we do not abandon our faith in the resurrection of the body...

Indeed, all groups who are engaged in spreading any religious creed among the people allow the belief in the resurrection of the minds. Else, they will be told: if the self does not arise, why are you talking to me?... But there are many who deny the resurrection of the body and affirm that the resurrection has actually taken place through faith. Such are those whom the apostle resists saying, "Hymenaeus and Philetus are of this sort, who have strayed concerning the truth, saying that the resurrection is already past; and they overthrow the faith of some." (2 Tim 2:17:18). They say the resurrection took place actually in a manner that we do not expect another resurrection. They blame those who hope for the resurrection of the body as though the promised resurrection was realized through the act of faith, that is to say through the mind<sup>77</sup>. Saint Augustine.

"And come forth - those who have done good, to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil, to the resurrection of condemnation. [29]
I can of Myself do nothing.

5. John the Baptist Bears Witness to Christ

"If I bear witness of Myself, My witness is not true." [31]

If He bore witness of Himself without the witness of the Father through the prophets, and without performing divine, miraculous works, they would have had an excuse to consider His witness false. He rejected His witness of Himself because they considered that, a kind of asking for honor from men. He does not want to bear witness according to their criteria which are false. In this way He did not give them a chance either to object to His witness or to doubt in His intention and think that He asks for temporary honor.

- ❖ When He said "My witness is not true" [31] He was rebuking them for their view about and objection to Him. And when He said "Even if I bear witness of Myself, My witness is true" (John 8:14) He declared the essence of the same thing, which is that as He is God, they must trust Him even when He talks about Himself<sup>78</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.

He presents Himself once as a human being, and another time in the glory of God... Once He says His witness is not true (John 5:31) and another time He says His witness is true (John 8:14)<sup>79</sup> Saint Ambrose.

- ❖ He knew well that His witness of Himself was true, but for the sake of the weak and without understanding, the sun looks at the lamps. Because of the weakness of their insight they did not bear to see the radiance of the shining sun<sup>80</sup>.
- ❖ Did not the martyrs testify of Christ? Did they not testify of the truth? But if we look more carefully at that, we shall see that when the martyrs testified, He testified of Himself because He dwells in the martyrs and they witness of the truth. Let us listen to one of the martyrs, to the apostle Paul: "Do you accept the proof of Christ speaking in me?" (2 Cor 13:3 Valgate). Therefore, when John testifies, Christ who dwells in John testifies of Himself. Let Peter witness; let Paul or the other apostles witness, let Stephen witness, He who dwells in them all He witnesses of Himself<sup>81</sup>. Saint Augustine.
- ❖ If the Lord Himself who will come later to judge everything, did not want them to believe His witness of Himself and preferred to be justified by the witness of God the Father, how much more it is necessary for us His slaves not only to be justified by God's judgment and witness, but also to be glorified through His witness that we must keep<sup>82</sup>. Saint Cyprian.

"There is another who bears witness of Me, and I know that the witness which He witnesses of Me is true." [32]

The verb "witnesses" here is in the present continuous because the witness of the Father of the Son is an eternal witness, a witness of love for Him who is one with Him of the same essence.

They believe in the Holy Bible which carries the witness of the Father through the many prophecies, and it is true testimony.

- ❖ As though He says: 'you may be saying to Me, we do not believe You, because it is said to the people whoever is quick to bear witness of himself is not qualified to be believed.'

So Christ's saying "If I bear witness of Myself, My witness is not true" should not be read simply, but should be read by adding the suspicion of those Jews that Christ's statement is not true.

He mentioned in His conversation three witnesses: the first is the works that He did, the second His Father's witness, and the third is John the Baptist's announcement of Him. He mentioned the last witness first, that is the testimony of Jhn the Baptist. For He says, "there is another who bears witness of Me, and I know that the witness which He witnesses of Me is true." [32] Saint John Chrysostom.

"You have sent to John, and he has borne witness to the truth." [33]

Although the Lord Christ does not accept testimony from any man, yet, for their sake, He presents John the Baptist's witness of Him or "to the truth." As they respected him as the lamp that shines an hour - at that time John was in prison - the Lord Christ honors him because he is the lamp that announces Christ's coming in the midst of the darkness of this world.

On the one hand, the enemies themselves asked him and wanted to know his opinion; on the other hand, Saint John was known for disregard for temporary honor; and he did not ask glory for himself. He is faithful in his mission. Herod was not able to dissuade him from the truth. Besides, when John testified of the Lord Christ, he had not seen Him.

- ❖ He first said, "You have sent to John" and they would not send to him unless they considered him qualified to be believed. Saint John Chrysostom.
- ❖ Look how it was necessary to say "For You O lord will light my lamp." At last, as he was enlightened, he gave his testimony... He is the lamp that was enlightened; enlightened so that it may give light. What is lit can also be extinguished. In order that he may not be extinguished, would he does not expose himself to the wind of pride<sup>83</sup>. Saint Augustine.

"Yet I do not receive testimony from man, but I say these things that you may be saved." [34]

The Lord says He does not need the testimony of John because His works are enough proof and greater than the testimony of John.

You believe that John is a prophet; that he does not tell lies, but tells the truth. He testified that I am the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world (John 1:29); if you believe in Me you will be saved from your sins.

- ❖ John's testimony was not the testimony of a man, because he said "I did not know Him, but He who sent me to baptize with water said to me, 'Upon whom you see the Spirit descending, and remaining on Him, this is He who baptizes with the Holy Spirit.'" (John 1:33) From this point, it is clear that the testimony of John the Baptist was the testimony of God, because from God he knew it, and He said to him what He said. Saint John Chrysostom.
- ❖ "I have more understanding than all my teachers, for Your testimonies are my meditation."...

Who is He who has more understanding than all His teachers?

I ask: Who is He who dares and sets Himself above all the prophets; Who did not only, through words, teach with great authority those with whom He lived, but has also taught the consecutive generations through the writings of the prophets?...

What is said here cannot be about the person of Solomon...

I know Him clearly He who understands more than all teachers, for when He was a boy, twelve years old, Jesus stayed in Jerusalem and His parents found Him after three days (Luke 2:42-46). The Son said: "as My Father taught Me, I speak these things."

It is very difficult for us to understand this about the person of the Word unless we realize that the Son is born of the Father..." He took the form of a bond-servant" (Phil 2:7) As He took that form, those older than Him in age thought that He should learn like a boy. However, He who was taught by the Father has more understanding than all His teachers, because He studied God's testimonies concerning Him and He understands them more than they do when He said these words: "You have sent to John, and he has borne witness to the truth. Yet I do not receive testimony from man (John 5:33-34). Saint Augustine.

"He was the burning and shining lamp, and you were willing for a time to rejoice in his light." [35]

He means by the word "burning" that he was burning with zeal in his heart for the repentance and salvation of the people. "For a time" means a short time between his appearance to serve and his imprisonment.

"You rejoice" agalliatheenai means they persevere in joy, or are overjoyed for the news of the appearance of the Messiah who was expected to save them from the Romans. However, when He announced His spiritual kingdom, they rejected Him and rejected the lamp that announced Him.

When Herod was John's friend, the religious leadership spoke of John with all respect, or at least they did not resist him. But when he was put in prison, by Herod, he was undoubtedly honored by the people, but the leadership did not care for him. At the same time, the leaders were unable to attack him openly, because the multitude counted him as a prophet. Now, as the people realize that John is a prophet, and that he bears witness to Christ, they must accept Christ.

Saint Jerome sees the saints, like Saint John the Baptist, as lamps that shine and that their light denotes their joy and happiness for salvation. As he says, "In all the eastern churches, even where there are no relics of saints, when the Gospel is read, candles are lit even when at dawn the sky is red. This is not to dispel darkness, but as a testimony of our joy. Therefore, the vigils who are mentioned in the Gospel light their lamps always. The disciples are told to always gird up their loins and light their lamps. We read about John the Baptist "He was the burning and shining lamp." So, this sensible light indicates the light we read about in the Psalm: "Your word is a lamp to my feet, O Lord, and a light to my path." (Ps 119:105)<sup>84</sup>

- ❖ This lamp was prepared because of their confusion. Because of that it was said in the Psalms, a long time ago "I will prepare a lamp for My Anointed." (Ps 132:17) What is the lamp compared to the sun?<sup>85</sup> Saint Augustine.
- ❖ "For a time in his light:: This shows clearly their deflection and turning away quickly from John. Saint John Chrysostom.

6. The Testimony of Christ's Miracles and Works:

"But I have a greater witness than John's; for the works which the Father has given Me to finish - the very works that I do - bear witness of Me, that the Father has sent Me." [36]

The Lord Christ talks often about His works bearing witness of His person and mission (John 10:25,32,37,38; 14:10,11). Here by "works" He does not only mean His numerous miracles and wonders and their diversity, but also His works of exceeding love, His conduction when He performs the miracles and His wonderful love for the human race. We often hear that "He was moved with compassion and healed them." Besides, there are His discourses and the unique events in His life, such as the voice of the Father heard at His baptism and transfiguration, and His victory over Satan during the temptation. He points out here the healing of the paralytic as a practical testimony so that they may accept Him and His teachings and be saved.

The word "given" here does not mean that the Son obtains what He did not have. It means executing the divine work of the Father and completing it. For example, salvation is the work of the Holy Trinity: the Father sends His Son to the world to offer Himself as a sacrifice, and the Holy Spirit prepares the womb of Saint Mary to achieve the divine incarnation. There is not separation, confusion, or overlapping in the work of the Father, the Son and the Spirit; it is one divine work. The Lord declared on the cross that He finished the work (John 19:30). As the apostle Paul says, "For it was fitting for Him, for whom are all things and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons to glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings." (Heb 2:10)

- ❖ The aim He cared for first was that they believe that He came from God. This is much less than that they believe He is God equal with the Father. Saint John Chrysostom.

7. The Father Testifies of Him:

"And the Father Himself, who sent Me, has testified of Me. You have neither heard His voice at any time, nor seen His form." [37]

The Father Himself has testified of Him through the prophets as mentioned in the Old Testament and ended with the testimony of Saint John the Baptist. The Father also testified of Him with His voice coming from heaven on the day of His baptism (Matt 3:17) and when He was transfigured before three of His disciples.

- ❖ If you ask where did He testify of Him? I would answer: in the Jordan, saying, "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." (Matt 3:17)

I make clear that God has no voice or form; He is above all forms and melodies that have this quality. Saint John Chrysostom.

"You have neither heard His voice at any time, or seen His form." [37]

Saint Augustine discusses this verse saying: "Do not submit to the thought that you see God, a physical face; else with such thinking you adapt your physical eyes to seeing Him and you look for a face... Observe who is He to whom we sincerely say: 'My heart said to You, 'You face, Lord, I will seek' '... Search for Him with your hearts. The Holy Bible speaks about the face of God, His arms, hands, feet, chari, footstep... but do not think that what is meant here are human members. If you want to be God's temple you must break this false idol."<sup>86</sup>

- ❖ He is not like us perceiving one side and not the other. This is blasphemy not fit for the essence of God who knows the things before they are. He is holy, omnipotent, above all in goodness, greatness and wisdom.

We cannot give information concerning His beginning, form or appearance, for the Bible says, "You have neither heard His voice at any time, nor seen His form." As Moses said: "Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves; for ye saw no manner of similitude on the day that the Lord spake unto you."

Since it is absolutely impossible to see His form, how can you think of approaching His essence?! Saint Cyril of Jerusalem.

8. The Holy Bible Testifies of Him:

"But you do not have His word abiding in you, because whom He sent, Him you do not believe." [38]

Even though you believe in the Holy Bible and the prophecies in it, your hearts are not faithful to the word. You speak the word with your tongues, but your hearts reject it. For though the prophecies about My coming are realized, you do not accept Me. You possess the Books but reject your salvation. This is the opposite of David the prophet who says: "Your word I have hidden in my heart, that I might not sin against You." (Ps 119:11)

"You search the Scriptures, for in them you think you have eternal life; these are they which testify of Me." [39]

As though He says to them: 'It is not enough for you to pride yourselves upon possessing the Scriptures, and that you read them. It is necessary that you search them diligently so that you may enjoy your redemption and eternal life, because all the Scriptures revolve round My coming to you.' Saint John Chrysostom observes that this statement refers to those who search for precious minerals in the depth of the earth; they dig mines and search with great interest for the precious minerals until they find them.

The Lord Christ mentioned these prophecies in His conversation with His two disciples on the road to Emmaus the day of His resurrection: "And beginning at Moses and all the Prophets, He expounded to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself." (Luke 24:27)

The apostle Saint Peter directs us to this living testimony. He says: "And so we have the prophetic word confirmed, which you do well to heed as a light that shines in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts; knowing this first, that no prophecy of Scripture is of any private interpretation, for prophecy never came by the will of man, but holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." (2 Peter 1: 19-21). He also says: "Of this salvation the prophets have inquired and searched carefully, who prophesied of the grace that would come to you, searching what, or what manner of time, the Spirit of Christ who was in them was indicating when He testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ and the glories that would follow." (1 Pet 1:10-11)

- ❖ Christ sent the Jews to the Scriptures not for ordinary reading, but to search carefully and intelligently; for He did not say 'read the Scriptures' but said "search the Scriptures." Therefore, He commands them to penetrate deeply in them because the words said concerning Him necessitate great attention so that they may be able to find the benefit in their depth. Saint John Chrysostom.
- ❖ We say truly that the literal understanding of the passover: the visible flesh is eaten, but what is hidden in the bones is left (Exodus 12:9). If anyone desires the marrow hidden in the text, let him search for it with Him who reveals the hidden mysteries to those who deserve them. Nevertheless, we must not give the impression that we shall leave the text without accurate examination. We shall not neglect God's commandment that urges us to search the Scriptures (John 5:39)<sup>87</sup>. Saint Gregory of Nyssa.

"But you are not willing to come to Me that you may have life." [40]

They search the Holy Scriptures without faithfulness; they present studies and interpretations while ignoring the essence of the Scriptures: the person of the Messiah. For they do not want to meet Him and believe in Him so that they may have life.

"I do not receive honor from men." [41]

He did not ask them for that because He asks in need of honor from them. For the salvation of man does not add anything to God; nor does the damnation of man harm God. Rather, the pleasure of God, the lover of mankind, is in man's stature and eternal glory.

"But I know you, that you do not have the love of God in you." [42]

They resisted the Lord Christ under the pretence of jealousy for God, His glory and His Law and that they defend the divine right because Jesus broke the Law and blasphemed when He made Himself equal with the Father. Now He discloses their depths that they have no true love for God, nor zeal for His name, honor or Law. For, if they had that love, they would have known, in truth, who Jesus is; they would have understood His person and work. No other person could have dared to declare what the Lord declared: that the love of God is not in their hearts.

❖ One might say to Christ: Why do You say that? He answers: "I say that to rebuke them because they did not reject me for the love of God. God testifies of Me with His work and prophets. As somehow they had thought before that time that I was against God so they rejected Me. Now, since I showed them these miracles they should have come quickly to me if they loved God, but they do not love Him." Saint John Chrysostom.

"I have come in My Father's name, and you do not receive Me; if another comes in his own name, him you will receive." [43]

Saint Ambrose observes that along with the distinction between the Persons, there is unity in the divine name. Therefore, baptism occurs in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit, and not "in the names" (Matt 28:19). The Son came in the name of the Father (5:43). As the Holy Spirit is called the Paraclete (the Intercessor or Advocate), likewise the Son is called also (1 John 2:1). And, as the Lord Christ speaks about Himself saying, "I am the truth" (John 14:6), the Holy Spirit also is called "the truth" (1 John 5:6)<sup>88</sup> Again the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit are called "the light" (1 John 1:5; John 1:8-9; Isaiah 9:2; Ps 4:6)<sup>89</sup> Similarly, the

The rabbis were very proud that whoever introduced himself as teacher, one person or more who had religious authority, testified of him. For this reason Saul of Tarsus had pride in the testimony of his teacher Gamaliel. Our Lord Jesus came and the Father testified of Him; He spoke in His name, and asked for His glory; but the antichrists will come in their own names (Matt 24:5)

- ❖ He clarified the necessity of the teaching concerning the unity of the divine name and that there is no difference, for Christ came in the unity of the name, but the Antichrist will come in his own name... He taught clearly in these words (Matt 28:19; John 14:26; Acts 4:12; John 5:43) that there is no difference in the divine name, in the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit<sup>91</sup>. Saint Ambrose.
- ❖ The Jews did not accept the Lord Jesus Christ who is the Son of God, who is God; but they will receive the impostor who will call himself God<sup>92</sup>. Father John of Damascus.
- ❖ Who is he about whom He said will come in his own name? He mentions this in a mysterious way that he who will come is the Antichrist. Saint John Chrysostom.
- ❖ It was said about the Antichrist and about all those who deny the Lord, these words: "I have come in My Father's name, and you do not receive Me; if another comes in his own name, him you will receive." [43] Let us hear John also: "you have heard that the Antichrist is coming, even now many antichrists have come" (1 John 2:18) What is in the Antichrist? We are terrified of him, except that his name is honored, and the name of the Lord is despised? What does he say except: "I justify myself"? We answer: "I have come to Christ not with my legs but with my heart. When I heard the Gospel there I believed. There I was baptized because when I believed in Christ I believed in God."<sup>93</sup> Saint Augustine.

"How can you believe, who receive honor from one another, and do not seek the honor that comes from the only God?" [44]

The Lord Christ made it clear that their problem is in themselves. Their corruption blinded their eyes and they did not know the truth and receive Him. The main obstacle in the salvation of the Scribes and Pharisees is their pride. They prefer to lose their salvation and damn their spirits than that their reputation is violated among the people. They care for what the people say about them, not for what God testifies of them.

- ❖ He sowed them that they did not ask for God's right, but pretended to. They were on the side of their sickness and withdrew from the glory of God because they desired human honor more than honor from God. Saint John Chrysostom.
- ❖ It is necessary that you care to avoid the nets of love of vain glory. Jesus says: "How can you believe, who receive honor from one another?" [44] What evil is that you sacrificed we cannot believe! Would we rather say: "You are my glory" (Jer 9:24) and also "He who glories, let him glory in the Lord." (1 Cor 1:31), "For if I still pleased men, I would not be a bondservant of Christ." (Gal 1:10) "But God forbid that I should boast except in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ by whom the world has been crucified to me and I to the world."<sup>94</sup> Saint Jerome.

"Do not think that I shall accuse you to the Father, there is one who accuses you -
Moses, in whom you trust." [45]

They accused Him of breaking the Sabbath and He proved to them that with His work He sanctified the Sabbath because He works according to the Father's pleasure. Now that the falseness of their accusation has been revealed, He does not in turn accuse them of breaking all the Law because He does not need to do that, nor did He come for this purpose. He was not incarnate to judge the people, but to save them. He leaves Moses himself in whom they trust, he himself will accuse and judge them.

"For if you believed Moses, you would believe Me; for he wrote about Me." [46]

The five Books of Moses are full of symbols and prophecies testifying of the Person the Lord Christ: His birth, service, crucifixion and resurrection as the Savior of the world. So, whoever believes Moses, believes the Lord Christ Himself because in Him were the prophecies realized.

"But if you do not believe his writings, how will you believe My words?" [47]

If they do not open their hearts for the prophecies and understand the inner Law, but only hold to the letter in a dry manner, how will they be able to rejoice in the Person of the Lord Christ who is the sinew and center of the Scripture? They have the field but they do not search for the treasure hidden in it. Saint Paul says that a veil still lies on their heart when Moses is read (2 Cor 3:15) and they do not understand the aim of the divine word.

The discourse of the Lord Christ ends in complete silence on the part of the resistant group because they had no answer. It seems that all they did was that they acquitted Him silently. But their hearts were more hardened waiting for an opportunity to trap Him.

I Have No Man!

- ❖ My spirit groans with the Bethesda sick man
I entered with him as through the five porches
I entered through the five books of Moses
I fell under the Law that exposed my weakness
I discovered I was sick, in need of a heavenly Physician!

<sup>94</sup> 1 Letter 22:27

- ❖ My life passed like 38 years, during which I lacked true love!
 I have no man to put me into the water of divine love to get cured!
 Who may grant me true love for my God and brethren?
 Who will support me to perfect the law of love that I may be healed?

- ❖ You often passed, O Physician of the souls!
 As though You left everybody to search for me
 Because I am the first among sinners!
 With love You continuously repeated:
 Do you want to be made well?
 Because of my stupidity I did not hear your voice!
 I loved the noise of the world and was preoccupied with it.
 I do not have two ears to hear the voice of heavenly love!
 Your sweet voice, but because of my hard of hearing I did not listen to it!

- ❖ Your wonderful Holy Spirit attracted my heart to You.
 I heard Your sweet voice,
 And rejoiced in your face that is fairer than the sons of men!
 I have confessed to You my need for who will heal me.

 In obedience to Your command I took up my bed and walked home!
 I took up the bed of my illness,
 I see it and remember my weakness and death,
 I remember Your authority, You who grant forgiveness and life.
 I walk, and walk until I enter my house.
 I shall not rest until I reach the bosom of Your Father, my eternal dwelling!

- ❖ You have turned for me my whole life into a continuous Sabbath,
 My time changed into a feast and surpassing rest.
 You took me across to the pledge of eternity
 So that I rejoice in sharing in the divine nature.

Chapter Six

Christ, the Bread of Life Or
The Heavenly Bread

In the first stage, John the Evangelist presents to us Christ as renovator; in the second stage He is the resuscitator. Now the evangelist presents to us the person of the Lord Christ as the Heavenly Bread that feeds the spirit and satisfies it so that it may remain alive and grow. He is the Incarnate Word; with His word He raises us to the new life and with His body, the Heavenly Bread, He enlivens us abide in Him.

In this chapter we see the Lord Christ feeding the multitude with two fish and five barley loaves offered by a lad.

First: Jesus lifted up His eyes and saw the hungry multitude. He did not wait for someone to ask for food or someone to feed the crowd; He looked out for the people's needs.

Secondly: As He gives food to the people, He accepts the offering of a small boy. Just as He gives, He takes; this is a sign of mutual love between God and humanity. He raised the morale of the boy who saw his small offering satisfying the hunger of the crowd and filling twelve baskets with leftover fragments.

Thirdly: God honors every person and asks for an offering from a small boy, a young man, or a child, no matter how small the offering may be! This is a sign of man's feeling of his vital role and his participation in the service of humanity.

Fourthly: The two fish symbolize the two Testaments, the Old and the New. The five loaves are symbolic of the five Books of Moses. What a difference between receiving the word from the Lord Christ's hand and reading it through human interpretation. The word of God satisfies and is abundant when Christ gives it to us through His church (His disciples).

Fifthly: He made the people sit down on the grass which symbolizes the body so that we do not let the body, but rather the mature spirit, be the guide. The body submits and works according to the guidance of the spirit and for the spirit, not for physical desires.

Sixthly: The multitude returned the next day to look for Him, not to rejoice in the Maker of miracles, but because they ate and were filled [26]. Therefore, the Lord Christ offered them a new and different food: His Flesh and Blood sacrificed as food that grants eternal life and resurrection.

He who walked on the water to carry us in Him so that we take His royal path offers us Himself as bread that comes down from heaven and gives life to the world [33]. The Lord spoke clearly saying that He is the divine bread that invigorates us toward eternal life. Many of His followers stumbled and left Him. But He said to the twelve, "Do you also want to go away?" [67] He insisted to offer His Flesh and Blood, not as symbols of something else; else those who left Him would not have gone away.

The Jews were not able to accept the divine word, nor did they enjoy His body and drink His blood; they, therefore, left Him and went away.

1 - Feeding the Multitude:

John the evangelist was accustomed to mention the miracles not mentioned by the other three evangelists, except for this miracle about which all the evangelists spoke. Everywhere in Matthew the Lord Christ is presented as king (The Gospel according to St. Matthew); as the servant of humanity (the Gospel according to St. Mark), as the friend of human beings (the Gospel according to St. Luke) or as the Son of God who grants sonship to humanity (the Gospel according to St. John). The Gospel wants to satisfy the needs of the people in every respect.

Moreover, the evangelist was careful to mention this miracle so that He may report the long discourse, related to it, about Christ's offer of Himself as the bread coming down from heaven so that we may be filled with Him who is the divine Word. He also offers His Body and Blood, a sacrifice for us for remission of sins and eternal life.

"After these things Jesus went over the Sea of Galilee, which is the Sea of Tiberias." [1]

The evangelist establishes the place, time and all surrounding circumstances of this miracle as a testimony for the truth of the story because of its importance in the life of the Church over the ages.

Jesus went over the Sea of Galilee, which is the lake of Tiberias and is called in a different place, Gennesaret. Here, it is called the Sea of Tiberias with reference to a town on the west of the lake which was recently expanded and adorned by Herod and which he called Tiberias after the name and in honor of emperor Tiberius. Herod may have made it his capital. The Lord did not cross the sea, but made His journey over the sea, that is to say, on its shores.

Saint Cyril the Great observes that the Lord Christ departed from Jerusalem and went over to the opposite shore of the lake of Tiberias to avoid the hatred of the unbelievers in Him. He did that willingly and not against His will. He teaches us to run away from the attacks of evil, not out of fear of death, but out of love for those who give us trouble.

- ❖ We do not strive for our own good, but for the good of others also. The work of love is not in resisting those who want our harm, nor in accepting what we endure, for this will arouse their bitter anger because of their failure in controlling what they hate. Love does not seek its own as Paul says (1 Cor. 13:5). This was obvious in Christ. Saint Cyril the Great.

- ❖ My beloved, would we did not compete with the violent, but rather learn that when they do so they do not harm our virtue with their wicked counsels, but rather their violent work is repressed. When an arrow falls on a firm, strong resisting body, it returns with great force against whoever shot it and the violence of those who shot it does not find whom they opposed. Likewise, when we struggle against the disdainful, they intensify their cruelty, but if we bow and bend easily to earth, we stop their madness. Therefore, when the Lord knew that the Scribes and Pharisees heard that He baptized more disciples than John, He went to Galilee to put out their envy and, with His withdrawal, calm their anger which grew with the reports that reached them. When He went for the second time to Galilee, He did not go to the same place as before; He did not go to Cana, but went "over the sea"<sup>1</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.
- ❖ As for Saint Cyril the Great, he thinks that the crossing to the other shore carries the symbol of the preaching of the Gospel of the Lord Christ crossing from the Jews over to the gentiles and it is impossible for the Jews to cross over because of their disbelief.
- ❖ The crossing of the sea which separates the two sides denotes the difficulty for the Jews to cross over, or rather the impossibility of their walking along the path that leads to it. For God declares that He "will hedge up thy way with thorns... that she shall not find her paths." (Hosea 2:6). What the thorns indicate here, the sea indicates there because it separates the reviled from those who relentlessly abused Him; and it separates the Holy from the defiled. Saint Cyril the Great.

"Then a great multitude followed Him, because they saw His signs which He performed on those who were diseased." [2]

Saint John does not mention these healing miracles because Matthew the evangelist refers to them in details (Matt. 12:10,22; 14:34-36). The multitude gathered around Him and wished to know Him because of the numerous signs He did. However, for the Lord Christ, the multitude meant no honor to Him, but showed the right of work to present the word of truth and to serve them so that they may rejoice in their communion with Him.

Saint John Chrysostom comments on this verse pointing out that what is said here does not reveal people who have great wisdom, for they were attracted more by the miracles than by the teaching although the signs are for the unbelievers and not for those who believe.

"And Jesus went up on the mountain, and there He sat with His disciples." [3]

The pulpit from which He spoke to the multitude was the mountain where He sat with His disciples. This mountain is the wilderness of Sidon in Philip's province that is in Galilee.

- ❖ He went up on the mountain to teach us always to rest from time to time far from the noise and confusion of public life because solitude is appropriate to study wisdom. Christ often went up above on the mountain and spent the night there praying, to teach us that whoever wishes to approach God must free himself of worry and look for a calm time without confusion<sup>2</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.

- ❖ Let us follow Him as He is persecuted and escapes from trouble caused by those who oppose Him, so that we also may "go up on the mountain and sit with Him." So that we may rise to a glorious blessing, more sublime than everything, and reign with Him. He Himself said, "you are those who have continued with Me in My trials... that in the regeneration when the Son of Man sits on the throne of His glory, you ... will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." (Luke 22:28; Matt 19:28). Saint Cyril the Great.

"Now the Passover, a feast of the Jews, was near." [4]

John the evangelist links this miracle with the Passover by saying, "Now the Passover, a feast of the Jews, was near." [4] The true Passover is the offering of Christ's body as a sacrifice on the cross, and this is the very same Eucharist that we enjoy on the altar. This miracle was an introduction for the acceptance of the world of believers of the Flesh and Blood of the Lord sacrificed to give spiritual satisfaction and everlasting life that will not be conquered by time or death.

This happened before the third Passover that the Lord celebrated during His service. It was about ten or twelve days before the feast. The Jews were accustomed to spend a whole month before the Passover in the big preparations for it. They paved the roads, repaired the bridges if necessary, and they spoke about the Passover and how it was instituted.

The multitude in this region may have realized that the Passover was near and all men must go to Jerusalem. Consequently, Jesus Christ will certainly go to Jerusalem and they will have no chance to meet Him among the vast crowds coming from many nations. They, therefore, wanted to take the opportunity to gather around Him and, as much as possible, not to leave Him. They did not postpone their meeting with Him until after the feast, but were wise to take every opportunity to rejoice in Him.

- ❖ If you say: What was the aim of Christ to go, now, up on the mountain and sit there with His disciples? I would answer: because of the miracle that He intended to perform... and so that He may teach us to rest away from what worries us. The quiet and the wilderness agree with wisdom. Christ went up alone on the mountain many times and remained all night praying. Saint John Chrysostom.

"Then Jesus lifted up His eyes, and seeing a great multitude coming toward Him,
He said to Philip, 'Where shall we buy bread, that these may eat?'"[5]

Jesus lifted up His eyes and saw a great crowd of people from the popular poor class whose spirits are reflected in their eyes, precious spirits like those of the rich without discrimination. The Lord cares for their spiritual and physical needs and, therefore, asks Philip, "Where shall we buy bread, that these may eat?" For it was Judas who had the money box, and

Philip was responsible for the management of daily food for the disciples.

- ❖ This shows that He never sat inactive with His disciples. He spoke to them, made them listen to Him and directed them toward Him. This shows in particular, His compassionate care, His meekness and His condescension in His conduct with them. They sat with Him and may be looked at each other while He lifted up His eyes and saw the multitude coming toward Him<sup>3</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.
- ❖ Christ lifted up His eyes to announce that those who loved Him are worthy of the divine look, as it was said to Israel in the blessing: "The Lord lift up His countenance upon you, and give you peace." (Numbers 6:26). Saint Cyril the Great.
- ❖ Jesus gave some barley bread lest they faint on the way, and He granted the sacrament of His body to the others (Matt 26:26) so that they may strive for the kingdom<sup>4</sup>. Saint Ambrose.

Saint John Chrysostom compares what God did with Moses the prophet and what the Lord Christ did with Philip. In the old time God asked Moses what he held in his hand and Moses informed Him he had a rod that has no power, but God caused it to be His rod with which He performed miracles. Here, the Lord Christ asks Philip about his and the disciples' potentials to feed the multitude. Philip had almost nothing: five barley loaves and two fish that a boy had, but the Lord used them to feed thousands and a load of fragments remained.

Because of His love for man, God wishes always to exchange a dialogue with him and ask him about his possibilities, so that God may, on His part, offer His divine capability that will act through our inability and weak possibilities.

2- Christ Walks on the Water

The disappearance of the Lord Christ when the multitudes wanted to make Him king, and His appearance, to the disciples alone, walking on the sea bears an important Biblical indication. The Lord Christ offers His Body, heavenly bread, not so that He may reign on earth, but that He may carry the members of His body (the Church) to the heavenly Canaan. He wanted to correct the wrong interpretations of the Messiah's kingdom. On the other hand, if Moses parted the sea so that the people may go across, the Lord Christ came walking on water to carry His people above the world currents.

The Holy Bible says about God, "He treads upon the waves of the sea." (Job 9:8) The Judaic tradition of the Rabbins says that the Messiah will come from the sea. So the Lord wanted to affirm to them that He is the expected Messiah about whom the Bible prophesied and who is mentioned in the Tradition.

"Therefore when Jesus perceived that they were about to come and take Him by force to make Him king,
He departed again to the mountain by Himself alone." [15]

The multitude wanted to take Him by force to make Him a king on earth according to their wish. However, He disappeared from among them and departed to the mountain alone. They did not understand the nature of Christ's kingdom and they wanted to honor him in accordance to their thinking, not to divine thought. The multitude wanted to liberate themselves from Caesar and Roman occupation. But the Lord Christ did not want His disciples to be preoccupied with political business or bear enmity to any person.

By departing alone to the mountain He asserts to us the importance of our withdrawal from the world, from time to time, to meet God in secret talk and to enjoy holy silence. Our service of others, no matter how important it is, should not waste for us our personal secret worship.

+ When they filled their stomachs, and food for them was what they mostly cared for, they decided to make Christ a king. However, He escaped... teaching us to despise worldly ranks, showing that He does not need earthly positions because the gifts coming to Him from heaven were radiant and great. Those gifts were the angels, the star, His Father proclaiming and the Holy Spirit testifying, and Prophets warning concerning Him a long time in the past. As for earthly gifts, these are all trivial. He came to teach us to look down upon things here and love future blessings. Saint John Chrysostom.

+ He departed from those who wanted to give Him worthy honor. He refused a kingdom that was regarded as the greatest earthly reward, though for Him it was not, in fact, a thing He wished since He has dominion with the Father over all things.

It befits us to avoid the love of glory that is akin to arrogance and is not far from it.

We must also avoid the glow of honor in this present life because it is harmful. Let us search for holy humility. Let us give preference to one another, as the blessed Paul also gives advice saying, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus, who, being in the form of God, did not consider it robbery to be equal with God, but made Himself of no reputation, taking the form of a bond servant, and coming in the likeness of men. And being found in appearance as a man, He humbled Himself and became obedient to the point of death, even the death of the cross. Therefore God also has highly exalted Him and given Him the name which is above every name" (Philippians 2:5-9)

If we care for heavenly concerns and live for affairs that are above more than for earthly matter, let us reject exaltation on earth if it is offered to us, since it is the origin of all vain glory. Saint Cyril the Great.

Saint Cyril the Great observes that His going to the mountain by Himself alone when they wanted to make Him king, indicates His rejection on earth, but He ascends to heaven, the holy mountain (Ps. 24:3-4), so that when He returns from heaven in His second coming He reigns completely over us.

+ When the Lord sat on the mountain with His disciples, He saw the multitude coming toward Him, so He went down from the mountain and gave them food at the foot of the mountain. For how could he depart again to the mountain, if He had not descended from the mountain before?

This bears this meaning: the Lord descended from on high to give food to the multitude and then ascend...

He came not to reign immediately, for He reigns in the sense for which we pray “Thy kingdom come.” He reigns always with the Father as He is the Son of God, the Word through whom all things were made. However, the prophets inform us concerning His kingdom in which He is the Christ who became man and caused the believers to be Christians...

His kingdom expands and is declared when the glory of His saints is declared after judgement is accomplished through Him. That is the judgment about which He spoke earlier that the Son of Man will achieve. That kingdom about which the apostle says “when He delivers the kingdom to God” (1 Cor. 15:24). Besides, He Himself refers to it saying “Come you blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.” (Matt 25:34).

However, the disciples and the multitude that believed in Him thought that He came to reign at once. They, therefore, wanted to take Him by force to make Him king. They wanted to act before the time that He Himself concealed so that He may announce it at the right time.<sup>5</sup> Saint Augustine

+ What is meant by “escaped (departed)”? His sublimity cannot be comprehended. If we do not understand something we say about it, “it escaped me.” Therefore, He departed again to the mountain by Himself alone, this firstborn from the dead rose to the heavens to make intercession for us (Col. 1:18; Rom 8:34).<sup>6</sup> Saint Augustine.

“Now when evening came, His disciples went down to the sea.” [16]

It may be through the direction of the Lord Christ that the disciples took a boat to go toward Capernaum so that they may not be preoccupied with the useless dialogue about making Jesus king. He wanted to withdraw them from this test, but they face another test, which is the raging sea because of a great wind.

His walking on the sea came after He fed the multitude (Mark 6:34-51; Matt 14:13-33). Here, Christ after giving His life-giving word and His resurrection, He offers Himself at the time of famine as at the time of tempests announcing His divine presence “It is I” who grants help, who satisfies needs, “do not be afraid.”

+ This boat denotes the Church, while He is in the highest... He truly said, “it was dark” because the Light had not come to them. It was already dark, and Jesus had not come to them. When the end of the world approaches and dangers increase, horror intensifies, evil multiplies and denial of faith spreads, then in general, the light is extinguished. In brief the light that John the evangelist reveals wholly and clearly to be love as he says, “he who hates his brother is in darkness.” The darkness of enmity increases between brothers; it increases daily and Jesus has not yet come.<sup>7</sup> Saint Augustine.

“They got into the boat, and went over the sea toward Capernaum.
And it was already dark,
And Jesus had not come to them.” [17]

+ If you ask, why did He leave them and did not appear to them? I shall answer: to make them have a greater effect. Saint John Chrysostom.

“Then the sea arose because a great wind was blowing.” [18]

+ The great waves toss those who are not with Jesus, those who are separated from Him or who seem absent from Him because they have departed from His holy law. Because of sin they were separated from Him who can save. If it is a burdensome matter for us to be in spiritual darkness. if we are troubled because we are overwhelmed by the sea of bitter voluptuousness, let us come to Jesus for He will save us from the dangers and from death in sin. Saint Cyril the Great.

“So when they had rowed about three or four miles, they saw Jesus walking on the sea and drawing near the boat; and they were afraid.” [19]

25 or 30 stadia equal about 3.5 miles. The sea was about 6 miles in width. According to Josephus the historian<sup>8</sup> the lake was about 40 stadia, that is about 5 miles wide. As for its length, it was about 140 stadia or 18 miles. But Pliny says it was 6 miles wide and 16 miles long<sup>9</sup>.

Saint Augustine observes that the number 25 refers to the law understood literally, whereas the number 30 denotes the law understood through the Gospel. He did not determine whether they reached 25 or 30 stadia. The number 5 indicates the law or the five Books of Moses to which it was referred in the five porches leading to the pool, and the five barley loaves which the lad carried. If someone tried to understand it according to the law (5x5) the result is 25. However, if he tries to understand it through the evangelistic perfection which is the number 6, the result would be 30. The evangelistic perfection is symbolized by the number 6 when creation was completed. When we understand the law according to the Gospel we see Jesus walking on the sea, drawing very close to us.

+ For those, the law is complete and, therefore, Jesus comes. How does He come? Walking on the waves, controlling under His feet all the whirlpools of the world that submerge us, pressing down all heights. This is what happens: as time passes and generations succeed, tribulations increase; disasters and sorrow augment. All these rise to swallow us, but Jesus crosses over treading underfoot the waves<sup>10</sup>.

+ He walked over the heights of the world, down, to be glorified by the humble<sup>11</sup>. Saint Augustine.

+ It seems to me that this miracle is other than the miracle mentioned in the Gospel according to Saint Matthew (Matt 14: 22-23).

If you ask: why were they afraid?! I shall answer: The reasons why they were afraid were many: concerning the time, it was dark; concerning the sea, a great wind was blowing; concerning the place, they were not near the land<sup>12</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.

“But He said to them,
‘It is I. Do not be afraid.’” [20]

He says: “It is I”; that is to say “I who dwells (among the people)” or “I AM THAT I AM” (Ex 3:14)

He came walking on the water, not to show His power over the sea and nature, but to declare the submission of the laws of nature for those who believe in Him, particularly in the middle of their suffering. He is the Lord who rides the clouds to save His people. He allows that His children have tribulations, but He does not leave them in the middle of their trial. He rather announces His presence to grant them rest and peace.

When they saw the Lord Christ walking on the water, they were afraid and terrified, because they thought He was a ghost. So fear of an illusion is stronger than fear of the trial itself.

+ Contemplate how that Christ did not appear to those who were in the boat right when it sailed, nor when the dangers began, but when they were many miles away from the shore. So it is that the grace of Him who saves does not befall us right when danger begins around us, but when fear reaches its highest and the danger itself seems very violent and we find ourselves in the middle of the waves of affliction. It is then that Christ appears unexpectedly and expels our fear. He saves us from all danger, and with His inexpressible power, He dispels the fears with joy, calm and peace. Saint Cyril the Great

“Then they willingly received Him into the boat, and immediately the boat was at the land where they were going.” [21]

The more anguish comes near us, the LORD Christ comes nearer to save us. He draws near us but does not enter the boat of our life by force. He enters when we willingly receive Him.

---

Saint John Chrysostom thinks that Christ did not reveal Himself walking on the water because they were not ready for that because of their weakness. As for the disciples, they saw Him for a short time, then He disappeared because He did not enter the boat<sup>13</sup>.

At any rate, the LORD Christ appeared to the disciples when they were in the center of trouble. As for the multitude who were on land, they did not enjoy seeing Him so. Trouble is a fertile means for the spirit in order that it enjoys seeing its Savior drawing near it walking on the water of the world, trampling over the rough waves challenging the winds.

We do not hear, here, that the LORD Christ rebuked the waves of the sea, or the winds, to be still. However, as soon as they received Him into the boat, they found the boat safe on the shore. It seems the boat came ashore in an unusual way, miraculously. Acceptance of the LORD Christ in the spirit is enough to grant it inner peace in a supernatural manner.

+Christ is our deliverance from all danger. He achieves all deeds more than is expected by those who receive Him.

His disciples alone, and by themselves, as a model for the successive Church teachers across the ages, swim in the waves of the present life, as a model of the sea. They face many hard trials and, in preaching, endure dangers not to be overlooked, at the hands of those that oppose the faith and fight the spread of the Gospel. However, they will be free of fear and of all danger: They will rest from their labor and sorrow when Christ appears to them in His divine power after His death also when He has treaded underfoot the whole world.

This is what walking on the sea indicates, as long as the sea, in general in the holy books is considered a symbol of the world...Thus, when Christ will come in the glory of His Father, as it is written (Matt 16:27) then the boat of the saintly apostles, that is to say the Church, and those who sail in it, that is those who in faith and love rise above worldly business, will without delay or trouble, win the land where they were going, for their aim is to reach the heavenly kingdom, their calm harbor. Saint Cyril the Great

+ O Christians, why are you afraid?

Christ speaks: "It is I; do not be afraid."

Why do you worry about those affairs? Why are you afraid?

He has already told you that those events will surely happen..."It is I; do not be afraid. Then they willingly received Him into the boat." [20-21]

When they recognized Him, they were happy and free of their fears, "and immediately the boat was at the land where they were going" [21]. An end at land was found: from the water region to the solid region, from trouble to steadfastness, from the road to the destination<sup>14</sup>. Saint Augustine

3—The People seek Him in Capernaum

“On the following day, when the people who were standing on the other side of the sea saw that there was no other boat there, except that one which His disciples had entered, and that Jesus had not entered the boat with His disciples, but His disciples had gone away alone—[22]

Saint Cyril the Great says that the miracle of the LORD Christ walking on the water happened at night in darkness. The multitude who watched His movements discovered what happened without being informed by Him. “Whoever wants to follow Christ’s footsteps, and as much as is possible to humankind to be formed according to His model, must necessarily refuse to live the life of pride. He must not deviate seeking praise when he practices virtue. He must not boast when he enters an unusual life of great asceticism. He must rather yearn for God’s eyes only to see him, He who sees all that is hidden and reveals openly and clearly what is done in secret.”

“However, other boats came from Tiberias, near the place where they ate bread after the LORD had given thanks” [23]
“when the people therefore saw that Jesus was not there, nor His disciples, they also got into boats and came to Capernaum, seeking Jesus.[24]
And when they found Him on the other side of the sea, they said to Him, ‘Rabbi, when did You come here?’ [25]

What does the other side of the sea mean? It is the north shore where Capernaum is in the land of Geennesaret.

It seems that they found Him in the synagogue [59] for it was the LORD’s custom to attend religious meetings (Luke 4:16). It befits us to seek Him in His people’s meeting place because He is in their midst. When they found that He had departed when they wanted to make Him king, they began to treat Him as a rabbi and not as a king.

+ What did the multitude anticipate, except that He came there walking on the sea? It was not possible that He took another boat, for the evangelist says that there was one boat only, that which the disciples entered. Therefore, when they came to Him after great astonishment, they did not ask Him how He crossed the sea or how He arrived there. They did not want to understand such a great miracle. What did they say then? ‘Rabbi, when did You come here?’ [25]<sup>16</sup>

+ The Jews crossed the Red Sea directed by Moses, but in circumstances totally different from these. Moses did all that through prayer as a servant. As for Christ, He acted with absolute authority. There, when the winds from the south blew, the water divided to make them cross on dry land (Ex 14:21). But here, the miracle is greater because the sea kept its appropriate nature and its LORD walked on its surface. Thus testifying to what the Book says, “and treads upon the waves of the sea”(Job 9:8).<sup>17</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

4—I Am the Living Bread

“Jesus answered them and said,

Most assuredly, I say to you, you seek Me, not because you saw the signs,

But because you ate of the loaves and were filled.” [26] Many people do not seek God except to ask Him to stretch His hands and give them their temporary needs. Few people long for a meeting with God for Himself. Many ask of God the cheap bread, and not the precious love: the bread coming down from heaven (Ex 16:14; Neh 9:15; Ps 78: 24; Ps 105:40).

He stresses that He grants bread equal to the Father’s gift, not to Moses’ level [32]. He is God the gift, the bread that comes down from heaven. He feeds man, because He is divine wisdom (Prov. 9:1-5).

He grants bread, and is greater than Moses.

He is the bread that comes down from heaven.

He is the bread that gives satisfaction as He is the wisdom of God.

The Eucharist that grants eternal life.

+ The lenient, gentle style is not always beneficial, for there are times when the teacher must employ a strong language... When the multitude came and found Jesus and flattered Him saying ‘Rabbi, when did You come here?’ [25] He, to show that He does not want glory from men, but rather demands one thing which is their salvation, answered them severely to correct their attitude, not only by using this manner of speech, but also by exposing and revealing their thoughts...<sup>18</sup>

+ He rebuked them with His words, but He did that kindly and with compassion. For He did not say to them: ‘You gormandizers, slaves of your stomachs, I did for you so many miracles but you did not follow Me, nor were you amazed at my works.’ He rather spoke to them gently and amiably saying ‘You seek Me, not because you saw the signs, but because you ate of the loaves and were filled.’<sup>19</sup> Saint John Chrysostom.

“Do not labor for the food which perishes, but for the food which endures to everlasting life, which the Son of Man will give you, because God the Father has set His seal on Him.” [27]

The Father has set His seal on Him so that He may execute the work of conciliation and accept, in lieu of the believers, the Holy Spirit to descend on Him. The seal is set on Him, so that we all may be sealed in Him and that we may be counted God’s anointed.

+ As though He says to them: I have fed your bodies so that you may ask for the other food that endures and feeds your spirits. But you hurried to take earthly food and, therefore, I will not guide you toward earthly food, but rather toward that food which does not give temporary life, but everlasting life: food to nourish your spirits, not your bodies.

+ There is nothing neither worse nor more shameful than voracity. It demeans the intellect and renders the spirit corporeal. It causes blindness so that one does not see well<sup>21</sup>.

+ “God the Father has set His seal on Him” [27] meaning: “He sent Him for this purpose, to give you food.” The word announces other interpretations also, for he says in a different place, “He who has received His testimony has certified that God is true” (John 3:33)... It seems to me that this statement hints here at “the Father has set His seal” not that He “admitted” or “declared His testimony.” Christ indeed, admitted about Himself, but as He argues with the Jews He presents His Father’s testimony for Him<sup>22</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.

+ Who can give the people food that keeps them to everlasting life? This is an entirely strange thing for human nature. This befits He who is God above all. As though He says ‘I am not incapable of giving you food that can endure and be fruitful toward eternal life and eternal joy. For, in spite of that I seem to be one of you, a man that has a body, yet I have been anointed and God the Father has sent His seal on Me to be like Him. Saint Cyril the Great.

+ What is the seal but a particular sign? To set a seal means to set a mark on the thing in order that no confusion may happen between it and another thing.

So, ‘the Father has sent His seal on Him’... that is to say has granted Him a certain thing that in consequence, He may not be compared to other human beings. For this reason, it is said concerning Him: ‘God, Your God has anointed You with the oil of gladness more than Your companions.’ (Ps. 45:7) What, then does ‘has His seal’ mean other than that He is excepted from the others?

This is the importance of ‘more than Your companions.’ He says: ‘Do not despise Me because I am the Son of Man. Rather ask of Me not food that perishes but the food which endures to everlasting life. For I am the Son of Man in a way by which I am not one of you. I am the Son of Man in a way by which the Father has set His seal on Me... He gave me something peculiar to Me so that no confusion may occur between Me and human beings, rather human beings are saved through Me.’<sup>23</sup> Saint Augustine.

“Then they said to Him,
‘What shall we do, that we may work the works of God?’” [28]

When He asked them to labor not for the food that perishes, but for the food which endures to everlasting life, they asked Him how they may accomplish divine works, or the works according to God’s pleasure. What is required of them more than to obey the Law? Is the Law incomplete and is there what is better than the Law?

Saint Augustine says that the Lord Christ instructed them not to ask for food which perishes, but for food which endures to everlasting life. Therefore, the multitude asked Him, ‘What shall we do, that we may work the works of God?’ [28] meaning ‘How can we practice this instruction?’ The answer came: to believe in Him whom He sent.

Belief makes their works acceptable to God. The LORD did not want to differentiate between the works and faith, but rather He declared that belief is itself work. This is faith working through love (Gal 5:6).

+ Their question was not of good intent. We can suppose it did not originate in their wish for learning, but was rather the result of excessive pride, as though they refrained from more knowledge than that they already had. As though they say, ‘suffices us, good Lord, to know the writings of Moses. We know more than we need about the things that the skillful in the works of God should seek. What new thing will You give us in addition to those determined at that time? And what strange thing will You teach us that has not been revealed to us through divine words?’

The questioning here was by way of stupidity, not motivated by an active will. Saint Cyril the Great.

+ They did not say that because they wanted to learn and work (as is shown in what followed that), but so that He may give them food once more<sup>24</sup>. Saint John Chrysostom.

“Jesus answered and said to them,
This is the work of God,
That you believe in Him whom He sent.” [29]

The answer was that they lacked one thing that was the essence of the Law: that they believe in Him, the Messiah that the Law mentions as the Savior of the world which sin corrupted.

The word ‘believe’ here has the meaning of practical, living faith: the believer clings to Him and follows Him in the path of the Cross.

+ It was necessary that He shows them that they were still very far from worship acceptable to God and that they knew nothing about the truly good things. For, as they adhered to the letter of the Law, their minds were filled with symbols and abstract forms...

The work that the pure spirit practices is faith going toward Christ.

What is much more sublime than this is man's zeal to be wise in knowing Christ more than to adhere to the symbolic shadows. Saint Cyril the Great.

"Therefore they said to Him,
'What sign will You perform then, that we may see it and believe You? What work will You do?'" [30]

The Jews demanded of the Lord a sign so that they may believe in Him. Did they consider feeding the multitude among whom were about 5000 men, with five barely loaves and two fish, a trivial sign?

They demanded of Him a miracle comparable to that that happened at the time of Moses when their fathers ate the manna in the desert; they ate bread coming down from heaven. They saw the miracle of feeding the multitude with five loaves and two fish and they did not believe. It was not possible that they see greater than this, but their minds were unable to comprehend the truth.

"Our fathers ate the manna in the desert; as it is written,
'He gave them bread from heaven to eat.'" [31] "Then Jesus said to them,
'Most assuredly, I say to you,
Moses did not give you the bread from heaven,
But my Father gives you the true bread from heaven.'" [32]

So that they may understand the truth, Christ revealed to them the depth of God's deed with their fathers when He supported them in the desert for 40 years with manna coming down from heaven:

- a) It was not Moses, but God who gave them the manna.
- b) The manna was not the true bread, but was a symbol for it.
- c) Now God gives them the true bread not to compare at all with the manna.
- d) He is the true bread from heaven, for whose sake their fathers were given the manna as a symbol for Him.

+ With extreme stupidity they crown Moses with this work (the manna from heaven) and, therefore, they ask of Christ a sign equivalent to that sign, without showing any admiration, at all, of the sign He showed them during an entire day. Even though it was great, they say giving food must extend for them a long time. Consequently, we see Him rebuking them strongly so that they may admit and accept the fact that the power of the Savior and His teaching which they are about to receive, are the more glorious.

+ Now also the Savior tells them they do not understand and they are extremely ignorant concerning the writings of Moses. For, they should have known quite clearly that Moses was serving God's works for the people and also, the works of the Israelites toward God. Moses himself did not perform the miracles, but was rather a servant and a worker in service of these deeds...Let us, then, learn with more discernment and prudence to respect our fathers the saints...However, when the speech is about our Savior, we must say: "For who in the heavens can be compared to the LORD? Who among the sons of the mighty can be likened to the LORD?" (Ps.89:6) Saint Cyril the Great

+ He could have answered them: "I now perform greater miracles than Moses did since I do not need a stick or prayer, but I do everything by Myself. If you remember the manna, behold, for I give you bread." However, the time was not appropriate for such talk because the only thing He earnestly wanted was to give them spiritual food. Contemplate His infinite wisdom and the manner of His answer.<sup>25</sup>

+ Christ's words to Jews: "Moses did not give you the bread from heaven", since the manna is not from heaven, so how may it be said that it is from heaven? It is an expression similar to "birds of the air" and "the LORD thundered from heaven."

His words: "the true bread from heaven" as Christ is the true bread, not that the miracle of the manna was false, but because it was an image and not the truth itself.

+ Why did He not say: "It was not Moses who gave you, but I" but instead He put God in place of Moses, and Himself in place of the manna? He did so because of the extreme weakness of His hearers...Christ guided them gradually. Saint John Chrysostom

+ Jesus promised them a greater thing than Moses gave them. True, through Moses was the promise of a kingdom, of a land that flows with milk and honey, the promise of temporary peace, of many children, good physical health and all the other temporary blessings which imply a spiritual symbol....It was the promise of filling the stomach on earth with food which perishes. As for the other, Jesus, He promises not food which perishes, but food which endures to everlasting life.<sup>26</sup> Saint Augustine

"For the bread of God is He who comes down from heaven and gives life to the world."
[33]

+ With extreme stupidity you suppose that the manna is the bread from heaven, although the manna fed the Jews only in the desert while the world extends to other innumerable nations. However, when the time of truth came close to our doors, "My Father gives you the true bread from heaven" for whom the gift of the manna was a shadow in old times. He says, "Let no one think that that manna was truly the bread from heaven, but rather was in the interest of that bread that can feed all the earth and give the world perfect life."

The true manna is Christ Himself understood as regarding God the Father gave Him in the sign of the manna to those who were in ancient times.

“And given them of the bread of heaven. Men ate angels’ food” (Ps 78:24) ...It is obvious to all that there is no bread and food for the intellectual powers in heaven other than the only Son of God the Father. He, therefore, is the true manna and the bread from heaven whom God the Father gives to all the rational creations.

Christ promises to give us the food that is from heaven, that is to say, comfort through the Spirit, meaning the spiritual manna. With that manna we have strength to endure all hardship and resolution. When we obtain that, we do not fall, because of our weakness, in those matters to which we must not descend.

It was more appropriate for them to realize that Moses was only doing the service of mediation and that the gift was not made by a human hand, but was the work of divine grace. The spiritual is thus in a dense frame and is expressed to us as the bread from heaven that gives life to all the world, not only a food for one only race. Saint Cyril the Great

+ He did not say it was for the Jews only, but for the entire world. This is not a simple food, but is rather the life: another life that is different. He called Him “life” because all were dead in sins.<sup>27</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

“Then they said to Him,
‘LORD, give us this bread always.’”[34]

The Jews expected with the coming of the Messiah, to enjoy, along with authority, dominion, freedom and all kinds of temporary pleasures. Rabbi Mayemon said that when the Messiah comes He will raise the dead who will assemble in the Paradise of Eden. They will eat, drink and become full at all times. Their houses will be built with precious stones. Their beds will be soft silk. The rivers will overflow with wine and oil flavored with spices. The manna will descend on them having various tastes and every Israelite will find on his plate what pleases him. If he wants fat food, he will find it. A young man will taste it and find it is bread; to an old man it will be honey, and to a child it will be oil. Such will be Christ’s coming times. He will grant Israel peace and will sit in the Paradise of Eden...<sup>28</sup>

+ While our Savior Christ in many words—if we may say so—tries to attract them away from corporeal concept, and with His perfectly wise teachings to make them soar in spiritual meditation, they do not go far from physical benefit. When they hear about the bread that gives life to the world, they imagine for themselves earthly bread because as it is written their “god is their belly” (Phil 3:19). And as they are conquered by the evils of the belly they deserve to hear the saying: their “glory is in their shame.” Saint Cyril the Great

“And Jesus said to them:
‘I am the bread of life.

<sup>28</sup> Cf. Adam Clarke Commentary.

He who comes to Me shall never hunger,
And he who believes in Me shall never thirst.” [35]

The LORD Christ, in His other discourses, used to present testimonies that He was declaring the truth. Sometimes, He announces that the Father testifies of Him. At other times He quotes the prophecies of prophets, or He gives His signs, works and miracles. However, here, as Saint John Chrysostom comments<sup>29</sup>, Christ does not mention witnesses as He declares about Himself that He is the bread from heaven, for they saw and felt how He fed them with a few loaves. The saint says that Christ declares His divinity, for whoever comes to Him will be filled and will never hunger.

+ He said to them “I am the bread of life” [35] to rebuke them, because when they thought that the food was ordinary, they rushed to Him, but not when they learned that it was of a spiritual kind.<sup>30</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ Now I have come to fulfill My promise in its time. “I am the bread of life”, not corporeal bread, for it does not just satisfy the feeling of hunger and free the body from destruction caused by hunger, but it forms the whole living being once more toward everlasting life. The human being thus created lives forever conquering death. These words refer to the life and blessing we obtain through His holy body. Through His holy body the special characteristic of the only Son, that is life, is transferred to us.

+ When we are called to the kingdom of heaven through Christ—because this is, I think, what the entrance into the Promised Land refers to—the symbolic manna does not concern us any more. For, we are not nourished by Moses’ writings, but rather we have the bread of life, that is Christ. He feeds us to everlasting life by means of the provisions of the Holy Spirit, and partaking of His special body that pours in us communion with God and blots out death that overcame us since the ancient curse.

+ I agree with you that the manna was given by means of Moses. However, those who ate at that time got hungry. I admit with you that water came out from a rock for you, but those who drank got thirsty. And that gift, about which we spoke, gave them merely temporary delight. But, “He who comes to Me shall never hunger, and he who believes in Me shall never thirst.” What, then, does Christ promise? He does not promise a perishable thing, but rather promises that mystery—he Eulogia—in partaking of His Body and Blood. The whole human being then regains incorruption and does not need anything that drives away death, I mean food and drink. Christ’s holy body gives life to them who have the Body in them and preserves them totally in incorruption because His body blends with their bodies. For we realize no other body but His has life in essence. His Body has no equivalent body.

+ When we approach that divine, heavenly blessing and ascend to the holy communion with Christ, by that only do we vanquish Satan’s deception and as we become partakers of the divine nature (2 Pet 1:4) we rise to life and incorruption. Saint Cyril the Great

+ You demand bread from heaven. This bread is before you and you do not want to eat.
“But I said to you that you have seen Me and yet do not believe.”[36]<sup>31</sup> Saint Augustine

“But I said to you that you have seen Me and yet do not believe.” [36]

+ They saw the LORD, God in essence, when He fed the great innumerable crowd. They had come to Him with five barley loaves and two small fish that He broke and distributed to them. They saw but did not believe because of the blindness that covered their understanding like fog because of the divine wrath... As they adhere to innumerable stumbling blocks and are bound by cords of their iniquities from which there is no escape (Prov 5:22) they did not accept Him when He came to them He who is able to untie their fetters and liberate them. For this reason, these people were hard-hearted. Saint Cyril the Great

“All that the Father gives Me will come to Me, and the one who comes to Me I will by no means cast out.” [37]

Saint John Chrysostom directs our attention here to the role of God and the role of man. Man cannot believe by Himself, but by God attracting him to Himself and by God’s free active grace in man. But the human being does not enjoy this faith by force, but rather comes to the LORD, in all freedom, and He keeps and sanctifies him and does not cast him out.

+ He denotes, here, the gentile people who are about to believe in Him whole-heartedly. I shall not cast out the person who comes to Me: that is to say, I shall not throw him like a useless vessel...as a despised person and he will not remain without a share of My care. I shall gather him into My barn and he will dwell in the heavenly places. He will see himself having all hope surpassing man’s understanding. Saint Cyril the Great

+ What He declares, here, is nothing but this: “Belief in Me is not an ordinary thing. It does not come by means of human evidence or proofs. It rather needs a proclamation from above and a spirit whose disposition is good. God attracts that spirit so that it may accept the proclamation.”<sup>32</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

“For I have come down from heaven, not to do My own will,
but the will of Him who sent Me.” [38]

He came down from heaven, not to do what human beings wish, but to act in accordance to His divine unlimited wisdom, according to His goodness and mercy. The Jewish tendency is to despise the tax collectors and sinners and shut the door of heaven in the face of gentiles; but God’s mercies embrace them. The Word, the Son, came to declare these divine mercies.

+ “I have come down from heaven” that is to say, I became man in accordance to the good pleasure of God the Father. I have refused to do deeds incongruous with God’s will so that I may fulfill for them—those who believe in Me—everlasting life and resurrection from the dead by destroying the power of death. He endured the contempt of the Jews, their insults, offense, mockery, scourge, spitting and what is worse, false witness, and lastly death.

You will understand why Christ our Savior did not desire the suffering on the cross, and yet wanted it for our sake and for the good pleasure of God the Father. For, when He was about to go to suffer, He addressed God (the Father) saying, in the form of a prayer “O My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from Me; nevertheless, not as I will, but as You will.” (Matt 26:39). As He is God the Word, the immortal, incorruptible and life itself in essence, He could not be afraid in front of death. And I believe this is obvious to all, for as He should be alarmed before death when He is on its verge, He is shown truly as a man...The union of humanity with the Word brought back the assurance appropriate to God and was recalled to an honorable aim. I mean to say that human nature did not do what seemed to be good for its own will, but rather followed the divine aim, being immediately prepared to run toward whatever its Creator’s law demands of it to do.

Do you now see how Christ did not want death because of the body and the mortification of suffering, and yet He wanted death so that He may accomplish the purpose of the good pleasure of the Father for the sake of the whole world, that is life and redemption for all! Saint Cyril the Great

“This is the will of the Father who sent Me, that of all He has given Me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up at the last day.” [39]

God desires all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth. But He does not force them to be saved as though they were pieces of rock. He treats them like rational beings having complete freedom.

+ What do you say? Is Your will different from His will? In order that no one may think that, we read what follows. What He said was this: “I came not to do anything but what the Father wills. For, I have no will of My own that is different from that of the Father. Everything that is for the Father is for Me; and everything that is for Me is for the Father. Everything that is for the Father and for the Son is shared. So, He says truly, “not to do My own will”...because as I said at a different place, He concealed higher concerns for a while. He desired to prove that if He said, “this is My own will” they would have despised Him. Therefore, He says, “As I cooperate with that will” desiring to avert them the more. As though He says, “What do you think? Do you vex Me with your disbelief? No, for you anger My Father” and “This is the will of who sent Me that of all He has given Me I should lose nothing”[39]. Here, He appears He does not need their service, since He did not come for personal benefit, but for their salvation, not to obtain honor from them...What came before and after that is that He strives with all zeal to show that He came for the sake of their salvation. And He says that He brings glory to the Father, so that they may not distrust Him.<sup>33</sup> Saint John Chrysostom may have everlasting life;

and I will raise him up at the last day.” [40]

+ Our redemption and deliverance from death, and our restoration to life is the work of the entire Holy Trinity...Through all the Holy Trinity come all good things to us, so that God the Father is all in all through the Son in the Holy Spirit. Saint Cyril the Great

+ Who believes in Him eats the living bread.<sup>34</sup> Saint Augustine

+ Why does He always stress resurrection? So that the people may not judge God's care through the present circumstances alone, like those who despair because they do not enjoy munificence here. They should rather wait for the future affairs. Also they must not think anything of God because they are not punished for their sins. They should rather look out for the coming life. Now, those people do not gain anything (from their iniquity), but we must win profit through suffering by a continuous remembrance of the resurrection...There is resurrection and it is near and not far or at some distance from us. “For, yet a little while He who is coming will come and will not tarry.” (Heb.10:37)<sup>35</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

“The Jews then complained about Him, because He said, ‘I am the bread which came down from heaven.’”[41]

The Jews complained about Him because in His talk He asserted to them that He is infinitely greater than Moses, that He alone can give them everlasting life, and that He came down from heaven. They heard about angels coming down from heaven, but they never heard that a man was of heavenly essence.

+ He Himself is “the bread which came down from heaven”, the bread that quickens the deficient and does not diminish. Bread that can be eaten (and tasted) and cannot be wasted. This bread is denoted by the manna. For it has been said, He gave “them of the bread of heaven. Men ate angels’ food” (Ps 78:24-25).

Who is the angels’ food but Christ?

However, so that man may eat angels’ food, the LORD of angels became man. If He had not become man, He would not have had a body; and if He had no body, we would not eat the altar bread.

Let us hurry to the inheritance, looking out for our acceptance of a great pledge from Him.

Paul said about some people in his epistle to the Philippians. Now it is clear that those Jews were of this kind. This is obvious in what happened before and in what they said when they came to Christ. When He gave them bread and filled their stomachs, they said He is a prophet and wanted to make Him a king. However, when He preached to them about the spiritual bread and everlasting life, when He led them away from the palpable and spoke about the resurrection and raised their minds to what is above, it befitted them to admire that, but instead they complained and went away.<sup>36</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

“And they said, ‘Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How is it then that He says, ‘I have come down from heaven?’” [42]

+ It was more appropriate for them to realize that Christ who is expected to come would not be without a physical body, but would rather come in a human form as was prophesied about Him. He is in the appearance shared by all. For this reason, the voice of the prophet tells us that the holy virgin “shall conceive, and bear a son” (Isaiah 7:14) ...and “the LORD has sworn in truth to David” (Ps 132:11). He will not turn from what He promised that “I will set upon your throne the fruit of your body” as it was written. It was prophesied also that “there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse” (Isaiah 11:1)...However, as the Jews comprehend the physical measure of Christ our Savior, and as they know His mother and His father (though Joseph was not really His father) they were not ashamed to complain because Christ said that “He came down from heaven.” Saint Cyril the Great

+ The Jews said about Christ “Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph?” It is clear that they still did not know His miraculous, wonderful birth. They, therefore, called Him the son of Joseph. They did not say this because He was the son of Joseph, but they said this because they could not hear about His wonderful birth. Saint John Chrysostom

+ Those Jews were far from the bread that is from heaven, and they did not know how to hunger for it...

Their heartstrings were weak; they had open ears but were deaf; they saw but stood blind. This bread in truth requires hunger in the inner man. For this reason He says at a different place, “Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they shall be filled.” (Matt 5:6). The apostle Paul says that Christ is for us righteousness (1 Cor 1:30). Therefore, he who hungers for this bread, hungers for righteousness, that righteousness who came down from heaven, righteousness that God grants, not that which man does for himself...

What is the righteousness of God for man? It is that man becomes righteous in God.

However, once more, what was the righteousness of those Jews? That was the righteousness they made with their strength and upon which they relied. By this they declared they observed the law by their uprightness, although no one perfects the law without the help of grace, that is to say, the help of the bread that came down from heaven.<sup>37</sup> Saint Augustine

“Jesus therefore answered and said to them,
‘Do not murmur among yourselves.’” [43]

In spite of the prophecies which affirm that the Messiah will come of David’s descendants, and that He is born of a virgin, the Jews criticize Christ looking on Him with contempt as the son of Mary and Joseph who are perfectly known to them. On the other hand, He gently draws their attention to His heavenly Father who alone can reveal to them the Son Incarnate who grants the resurrection.

+ The Jews looked at Jesus and did not know that His Father is in heaven. They did not confess that He in essence is the Son of the God of all. They only perceived His earthly mother, and Joseph. As He answers them gently, He quickly works by turning them to His divine honor for their benefit. It is as if He knows their secret murmur and what goes on in their minds. Through this same matter He moves them to realize that they fell away from the truth and formed an extremely base idea about Him. It befit them to offer divine honor to Him who knows their hearts perfectly and tests the movement of thought. He does not lack knowledge of the thoughts that go on in their minds...He reveals to them that His knowledge is of the work of exalted grace...

For their good He asserts to them the promise that He will raise from the dead those who believe in Him. Thus, He proves even to the most ignorant people, that He is God truly and in essence because the ability to raise from the dead is that of God alone and does not pertain to any creature. Saint Cyril the Great

“No one can come to Me unless the Father who sent Me draws him,
and I will raise him up at the last day.”[44]

How does the Father draw him? Saint Augustine answers that what draws a person is what he enjoys.

If you offer grass, the flock will be drawn to it, and if you offer fruit a child will be drawn. Thus the Father draws a human being by offering him the Savior as being his desire. The human being that realizes in himself that he is a lost sinner, and yearns to fly from hell and reach heaven, finds in Christ’s blood what attracts him.

As though He says to them “Why do you murmur among yourselves? You cannot believe unless the Father draws you.” He draws the spirits not with partiality, but he who asks enjoys faith; yet He draws no one against his will.

Saint Augustine says “It is possible that a person comes to church against his will. He can approach the altar against his will and partake of the Sacrament by force, but he cannot believe unless he wants to. Faith is not something that is achieved through the body. Listen to the apostle ‘with the heart one believes unto righteousness.’ What follows is this...’and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation’ (Rom 10:10). This confession is issued from the bottom of the heart. Sometimes you hear a person confessing, and you do not know whether he believes or not.

Therefore, since a man believes in Christ with the heart, and what he does he does not do unwillingly, nor is he drawn against his will, so how may we answer the question ‘No one can come to Me unless the Father who sent Me draws him’ [44]?

Someone may say ‘If he is drawn, he goes against his will. And if he goes unwillingly, he believes...For we do not go to Christ with our feet, but with faith, not with physical emotion, but against our will...’

Do not think that you are drawn against your will, for the mind also is drawn with love.

It is necessary for us also that we do not fear, lest we are reproached in accordance to this evangelical word of the holy Bible by those who are oppressive with words while they are far from active work and from spiritual concerns, lest we are told ‘how can I believe willingly if I am not drawn?’ I say, it is not enough that you are drawn willingly, for you can be drawn even joyfully. “Delight yourself also in the LORD, and He shall give you the desires of your heart.” (Ps 37:4). There is delight for the heart that finds sweetness in that bread from heaven. In addition to this, if what the poetic line says is true ‘Every man is drawn by his desire’, it follows that not through necessity, but through delight, not as an obligation but as a joy, a man is drawn. How much more we must say that a human being is drawn to Christ when he delights in the truth, when he rejoices in the blessing, in righteousness and in everlasting life, all of which is Christ?”<sup>38</sup>

“It is written in the prophets,
‘And they shall all be taught by God.’
Therefore everyone who has heard and learned from the Father comes to Me.” [45]

This occurs in Jeremiah 31:34 and Isaiah 54:13. How does God teach us? By declaring His practical love for us through His Son’s cross. Before, they were in terror of God as the judge, but after His declaration of His love for them through the cross, He taught them and drew them to Him so that they may enjoy the everlasting life.

Saint Cyril the Great comments on the statement of the LORD Christ that all will be taught by God, saying “As God is the Father, and this is how He is comprehended and how it is preached about Him, He, through this, sows the knowledge of His Son Himself in His hearers. It is thus said of the Son also, that He is of Him truly in essence and so proclaims the Father. Consequently, He says ‘I have manifested Your name to the men’ (John 17:6) ...The Father plants in us the perception of His Son proper, not with a voice that comes from above the clouds, or encircles the earth like thunder, but by divine enlightenment shining in us that we may understand the revelation of the holy Bible.

+ Do you not see the honor of faith and that it is not of a human being, nor by a human being that they are taught this, but by God Himself?<sup>39</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ It is written in the prophets “And they shall all be taught by God” [45] Why, O Jews, do I say this? The Father does not teach you, so how can you know Me? For, God shall teach all men of that kingdom. They will not be taught by human beings. And if they are taught through people, what they understand is an inner gift for them that shines in them and is announced in them.

What is the role of men who preach the news from without? What I do until now is from without. I pour the sound of words into your ears. What is the value of what I say or speak about unless it is revealed for you from within?

Outside, there is the man who plants the tree; inside, there is the Creator of the tree. He who plants and he who waters work without. This is what we do. However, “neither he who plants is anything, nor he who waters, but God who gives the increase” (1 Cor 3:7). That means that all those are taught by God. Who are all those? “Everyone who has heard and learned from the Father comes to Me” [45]. Look how the Father attracts. He gives joy through His teaching. He does not use compulsion. How does He attract? “They shall all be taught by God” [45]. This is the Father’s attraction.<sup>40</sup>

+ We know how God teaches those who are God’s meek ones. For those who hear from the Father and learn, come to Him who justifies the ungodly (John 6:45; Rom 4:5) in order that they may keep God’s justification not only in their memory, but also in carrying out righteousness. Thus, he who glories, glories not in himself but let him glory in the LORD (1 Cor 1:31) and overflow with gratitude. Saint Augustine

“Not that anyone has seen the Father, except He who is from God;
He has seen the Father.” [46]

He does not teach them by letting them see Him face to face, or through a direct vocal conversation, but rather, His Holy Spirit works in them. No one has seen God at any time. The only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, He has declared Him (John 1:18).

Saint Cyril the Great observes that here, the LORD Christ means, in an implicit way, Moses the great among the prophets. Some Jews thought that when Moses entered into the thick darkness, he saw with his physical eyes, God who cannot be seen. Here, the LORD Christ affirms that He alone sees the Father because He is born of Him. “However, how and by what means He sees the Father or the Father sees Him, our tongue is incapable of mentioning that thought, but we must understand it in a divine manner.”

+ Someone may object saying, what then, is it not written that ‘the angels of these little ones always see the face of My Father who is in heaven’ (see Matt 18:10)? Yes, but the angels see God not as He is, but according to their endurance. So, Jesus Christ says, “Not that anyone has seen the Father, except He who is from God, He has seen the Father.” The angels see God according to their power of enduring and the archangels see Him as much as they can endure, the thrones and authorities see more than the former., but do not see as God is worthy.<sup>41</sup>

The Son with the Holy Spirit alone can see the Father as He really is because He “searches all things, yes, the deep things of God” (1 Cor 2:10). Thus the only begotten Son with the Holy Spirit comprehend the Father in His perfection, for it is said, “Nor does anyone know the Father except the Son, and the one to whom the Son wills to reveal Him” (Matt 11:27).

As He sees all according to the power of enduring, He, therefore, sees the Father in His perfection and reveals God the Father through the Spirit, since the Son with the Spirit are “One” with the Father in divinity.

The begotten knows the begetter, and the begetter knows the begotten.

If the angels are ignorant in ‘knowing God in His perfection’, let no one be ashamed of confessing his ignorance. Truly, I speak now as anyone speaks at any occasion. But how do I speak, I do not know. So, how can I inform you concerning Him who grants the gift of speaking!

And as I cannot acquaint you with the distinctive qualities of the spirit, how can I describe the Giver of the spirit?!

+ We believe in One God: the Immeasurable, Inexpressible Father whom “no one has seen” but “the only begotten Son...has declared Him” (John 1:18). For, “He who is from God, He has seen the Father” (1 Tim 6:16) He whom the angels always see (Matt 18:10) according to the degree of each. As for the brilliance of the Father’s face “in perfection”, this will remain in sanctity for the Son with the Holy Spirit.<sup>43</sup> Saint Cyril of Jerusalem

+ He Himself has clarified this and declared to us the meaning He intends as He says, “Therefore everyone who has heard and learned from the Father comes to Me.” He immediately adds what enables us to understand: “Not that anyone has seen the Father, except He who is from God; He has seen the Father” [46].

What does He say? I see the Father; you do not see Him; in spite of that you do not come to me, except the Father draws you. And does being drawn by the Father mean other than that you learn from the Father? What do you learn from the Father except what you hear about Him? What do you hear about Him, except you hear the Word of the Father, that is to say you hear Me? In this case when I say “everyone who has heard and learned from the Father” you must say to yourselves: but we have never seen the Father, how can we hear Him? Hear from Me. For, “Not that anyone has seen the Father, except He who is from God; He has seen the Father.” I know the Father. I am from the Father. Hear from Me as the Word that is from Him, not the <sup>41</sup> In his article about ‘Divine Care’ translated by Aida Hanna, chapter 3 Saint John Chrysostom discusses the limitations of the wisdom of the heavenly beings in knowing God as He is or His judgments perfectly. He says, “Truly, God even in relation to these ranks is not comprehended and they cannot approach Him. He, therefore, condescends in the manner related in Revelation. “Most assuredly, I say to you, he who believes in Me has everlasting life.” [47]

The LORD Christ declares in this that he who believes in Him:

- 1- The Father draws him through His Son’s attracting works of redemption.
- 2- Hears His teachings.
- 3- Accepts the salvation offered to him.
- 4- Is nourished by the Heavenly Bread.
- 5- Is preserved in the Faith.
- 6- Does not perish but is raised in the Last Day.
- 7- Enjoys everlasting life.

+ Considering He is the everlasting life after He gives Himself to those who believe in Him, that is to say “that Christ may dwell in our hearts through faith” (Eph 3:17). Saint Cyril the Great

+ Would that what follows urges us: “Most assuredly, I say to you, he who believes in Me has everlasting life.” He wishes to declare Himself who He is. He says, he who believes in Me possesses Me. For, Christ Himself is the real God and everlasting life. He, therefore, says, he who believes in Me dwells in Me, and he who dwells in Me, I am for him. And what does “I am for him” mean? That he has everlasting life.<sup>45</sup> Saint Augustine

“I am the bread of life.” [48]

“Your fathers ate the manna in the wilderness, and are dead.” [49]

That manna did not keep their bodies from death, nor did it grant them everlasting life. This is as they understand it because they believed their fathers died in the wilderness and they did not have everlasting life. Their eating of the manna did not preserve them from the wrath of God that descended on them because of their continual rebellion and complaint in the wilderness (1 Cor 10:3-5).

+ He institutes something to attract them; that is that they suppose they are capable of higher affairs than their fathers (meaning the amazing people who lived at the time of Moses). Therefore, after He says that those who ate the manna are dead, He continues “If anyone eats of this bread, he will live forever” [51].<sup>46</sup> Saint John Chrysostom bodies, glorifies them and grants them communion with the spirits forever.

+ The Son only and truly is the bread of life. Those who have communion in Him once and are combined with Him in some manner through their communion with Him are shown to be above the bonds of death itself. We have said several times that the manna is rather a symbol or shadow of Christ. It represented the bread of life. We are supported by the Psalmist in this who shouts in the spirit “[He] had rained down manna on them to eat, and given them of the bread of heaven. Men ate angels’ food” (Ps 78:24-25)...Here the words are addressed to us because is it not foolish and extremely lacking knowledge to assume that the holy angels who are in heaven may, in spite of their incorporeal nature, be able to share with us a material dense food? Saint Cyril the Great

+ To this present day we accept the visible food, for the mystery is one thing and the action of the mystery is another thing.

How many are those who partake of the communion on the altar and die? They truly die through that communion. For this reason, the apostle says, “eats and drinks judgment to himself” (1 Cor 11:29). For, was not what he took in his mouth of the LORD poison for Judas, and yet he took it and when he partook of it, the enemy entered him, not because what he took was an evil thing, but rather because he was evil; he partook of what is good in an evil manner.

Therefore, behold, brethren that you partake of the heavenly bread in a spiritual sense. Present purity to the altar.

For though your sins are daily, at least let them not be deadly.

Before you approach the altar, take into consideration to say well, “Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.” You forgive and, consequently, you are forgiven.

Approach in peace, it is bread, not poison.

However, behold, if you say you forgive but do not forgive you lie; you lie to who is not deceived. You can lie to God, but you cannot deceive Him.<sup>47</sup> Saint Augustine

“I am the living bread which came down from heaven.

If anyone eats of this bread, he will live forever;

And the bread that I shall give is My flesh, which I shall give for the life of the world.”

[51]

I die for the sake of everybody, so that I may give life to all, Myself. I have made My flesh a sacrifice for all because death will die in My death and with Me the fallen human nature will rise. For this reason I have become like you, O man. I became an offspring of Abraham in order that “in all things He had to be made like His brethren” (Heb 2:17).

+ The body of Christ gives life to all that partake in Him because He expels death. He comes and enters the dead to eliminate corruption, for (the body of the Word) is entirely full of the Word that removes corruption. Saint Cyril the Great

+ Let not your mouth, but rather your heart be ready...When we accept Him we think in Him. We accept only a little and rejoice in the heart. What nourish us is not what we see, but rather what we believe in. Therefore, we do not require what touches our exterior senses. We do not say 'Let those who see with their eyes and touch with their hands the LORD Himself after His resurrection, believe. If what is said is true that we did not touch Him, why then do we believe?'<sup>48</sup> Saint Augustine

Saint John Chrysostom points out the fruits of the Eucharist:

+ Those who partake of the Eucharist (the Body and Blood of the LORD) are granted a calm spirit, forgiveness of sins, communion of the soul, attaining the heavenly kingdom, liberty with Him rather than judgment and condemnation.<sup>49</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

Saint Irenaeus describes the Eucharist as the Bread of Eternity. Likewise, Saint Ignatius of Antioch calls the Eucharist, the Eternal Remedy.<sup>50</sup>

+ In the last days He summed up everything in Himself. Our LORD came to us not in His own capability, but rather in accordance to what we can see. Truly, He could have come to us in His inexpressible glory. However, we were not able to endure the greatness of His glory. Therefore, the Perfect Bread of the Father offered Himself to us in the form of milk because we are small children. Thus He came as a man so that we may eat, I say, from His very Body, and with this milk secretion we get accustomed to eat and drink the Word of God and so carry in us the Bread of Eternity, that is the Spirit of the Father.<sup>51</sup> Saint Irenaeus

“The Jews therefore quarreled among themselves, saying,
‘How can this Man give us His flesh to eat?’” [52]

Saint John Chrysostom comments on this statement saying that it was not appropriate for the Jews to argue in this manner after witnessing the miracle of the five loaves. In his comment, he also writes:

+ We need to understand the sacraments, what they are, why they are granted and what benefits we get through them.

We become one body and “members of His body, of His flesh and of His bones” (Eph 5:30). If only the partakers of Communion follow what I say! So that we may become one not through love only, but in the very fact, we unite with that Body. This is realized with the food that He offered to us without charge, yearning to reveal His love for us. For this reason, He mixed Himself with us and blended flesh with our flesh in order that we may become one, like a body united with the head...

Christ guides us toward a true friendship, so that He may reveal His love for us. He grants those who desire Him, not only that they see Him, but also that they touch, eat, stick their teeth into His body, that they accept and be filled with their love for Him.

Would God we return from that table like lions breathing flames that terrify Satan, thinking of our Head and of His love that He revealed to us.

In most cases the fathers introduce their children to others to feed them. As for Him, He says, ‘As for Me, I do not do this. I feed you with My body, wishing that you all be born again and have good hope in the future.’ For He who gives you Himself here, how much more He will give you later.

I desired to become your brother. For your sake I associated Myself with you in flesh and blood. I again give you the flesh and blood to be related to you.

This blood renews the image of our King in us. It radiates inexpressible beauty and hinders the sublimity of our spirits from being taken from us; but rather waters and invigorates it perpetually.

Blood that is extracted from our food does not become blood immediately, but becomes something else. As for this Blood, it is not so; it rather at once quenches the thirst of our spirits and acts in them with great power.

This secret Blood, if we take in truth, repels the evil spirits and keeps them far from us, while summoning angels and the LORD of angels to us. For, as soon as the evil spirits see the Blood of the LORD, they run away, while the angels come...He shed this Blood and caused heaven to be easily attained.<sup>52</sup>

+ The LORD of all, Himself, requires us to be so as the prophet Isaiah says, “For My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways My ways, says the LORD. For as heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts.” (Is 55:8-9) However, He who excels us immeasurably in greatness of wisdom and power, how can He not do something wonderful that surpasses our understanding?

If you, O Jew, insist saying ‘how?’ I also say to you

How did you go out of Egypt?

How did Moses’ rod change into a serpent?

If you always use the word ‘how’ you will not believe in the whole Bible and you will reject the sayings of the saints.

+ Those who believe now can also learn; because this is what Isaiah the prophet says, “If you will not believe, you will not understand” (Is 7:9 LXX). Therefore, it was right that first, faith becomes firmly rooted in them, then will follow the understanding of things they do not know. Saint Cyril the Great

+ The believers recognize the Body of Christ is they do not neglect being the body of Christ. They become the body of Christ when they desire to live in the spirit of Christ.<sup>54</sup> Saint Augustine

“Then Jesus said to them,
‘Most assuredly, I say to you,
unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man

you have no life in you.” [53]

+ If with a touch of His holy body only (in the raising of Jairus’s daughter, Luke 8:54 and the raising of the widow’s only son, Luke 7:12-14) He gives life to a decaying body, how may we not benefit with the greater wealth of blessing (the Eucharist) of which we partake! When we taste it we obtain Him who grants life. For it will surely be transformed for our personal good which is eternal life...

We, who by nature are prone to physical corruption, abandon our natural weakness by mingling with Life and change into the quality of life. So, this does not just require a re-creation of the spirit through the Holy Spirit toward everlasting life; but rather this earthly coarse body needs to be sanctified and called unto incorruption through the denser and nearer participation. Saint Cyril the Great

Saint Cyril the Great is astonished that the Jews who believe that by eating the paschal lamb and sprinkling its blood on the doors, they escape from death and are considered holy, still do not believe that by partaking of the Body and Blood of the Lamb of God they obtain everlasting life.

+ When both His Body and Blood gave us vigorous health, and in short, the big question concerning perfection (that is to say with Christ the head and the Church the body) arose, would God those who eat continue eating and those who drink continue drinking. I wish that the hungry and thirsty eat Life and drink Life...For, it will be so; the Body and Blood of Christ will be Life for the human being. If what we take in the sacrament is a visible thing; yet in truth we eat and drink that spiritually.<sup>55</sup> Saint Augustine

+ It is not permitted for anyone to partake of the food called “Eucharist” unless (a) he believes that what we preach is true (b) he washes with the water of the forgiveness of sins and the new birth, and (c) he lives as Christ taught us. Body and Blood of Jesus who became flesh and blood.<sup>56</sup> Saint Justin the Martyr

+ There is no doubt whatsoever concerning the truth of the Body and Blood. + We offer Him what is His rightly the partaking and union of the body and spirit. For, when the bread, which is a product of the earth, accepts God's call, it is transformed from ordinary bread into the Eucharist containing two realities, the earthly and the heavenly. Likewise, when we accept the Eucharist, our bodies become incorruptible because we hope for the everlasting resurrection.<sup>58</sup>

+ He saved us with His blood...and as we are His members we also are animated by means of His creation...

He knows the chalice (it is part of the creation) that it is His Blood with which He moistens our blood. And He knows the bread (which is also part of the creation) that He elevates as His Body and from which He grants growth to our bodies...Therefore, the mixed chalice and broken bread...become the Eucharist, the Blood of Christ and His Body giving growth and support to our body. How can the heretics assert that the body is unable to accept the gift of God which is everlasting life, which animates (the body) with the Body and Blood of the LORD and become a member in Him? The blessed Paul declares that we are "members of His body, of His flesh and of His bones" (Eph. 5:30).

He does not say this about the spiritual, unseen man, for the spirit has neither bones nor flesh; but he indicates this provision by which the LORD became a real man having flesh, nerves and bones. The chalice that is His Blood and grows in the Bread that is His Body animates this Body

Thus, also He enlivens our bodies, and when buried and decomposed in the earth, they will rise at the right time and the Logos will grant them resurrection for the glory of God the Father. He is who freely grants the dead immortality, and the decaying incorruption; for God's strength is made perfect in weakness (2 Cor. 12:9)<sup>59</sup> Saint Irenaeus

+ There is a chalice with which the inner rooms in our spirit are purified. This chalice is not in accordance with the old provision, nor is it filled with public honor. This is rather a new chalice that comes down from heaven to the earth (John 6:50-51) filled with wine pressed out of an amazing cluster hung in the shape of a body on the wooden cross, like a bunch of grapes hanging on a vine. This is the cluster from which is the wine which cheers man's heart (Judges 9:13). It removes sadness, pours in us and carries the smell of wonder which is that of faith, true piety and purity.<sup>60</sup> Saint Ambrose

+ He did not say ‘He came to pass in flesh’, but ‘He became flesh’ to clarify the unity. And, we do not say that God the Word, who is of the Father, changed into the nature of flesh, or that the incarnation changed into the Word....But in an inexpressible manner that surpasses human understanding, the Word united with His particular body and He joined it all to Himself...He expelled corruption from our nature and also removed death which ruled since old times because of sin. Therefore, whoever eats the holy Body that is Christ’s has eternal life, because this Body has the Word that is for Life by nature. He, therefore, says, “and I will raise him up at the last day.” Instead of saying, “My Body will raise him up”, that is to say, will raise whoever eats My flesh, He puts the pronoun “I” in the statement “I will raise him up.” Not as though He were different from His own peculiar flesh, for after the unity, the separation into two is forever impossible. He, therefore, says, “I, God, became in him, through My distinctive flesh. That is, I will raise up at the last day the person who eats My flesh. For, it was truly impossible that He who is life by nature would not conquer corruption with certainty, and would not prevail over death.” Saint Cyril the Great

Saint Cyril the Great observes that the LORD Christ granted us His Body that gives life, like yeast thrown in us so that the dough is leavened. And as the leaven is in the dough, so is the dough in the leaven. Similarly, Christ abides in us and we in Him. Once more, He offers us His Body and Blood like seeds in our depth “Thus, our LORD Jesus Christ hides life in us through His distinctive Body and plants it like a seed of immortality and removes all corruption in us.”

+ Lest they think that the promise of eternal life through this food and drink is in a manner that they do not die now physically, He condescends to confront this thinking. He says, “Whoever eats My flesh and drinks My blood has eternal life”, and immediately completes, “and I will raise him up at the last day” [54]. Thus, it is in spirit that he has eternal life in the tranquility that the spirits of the saints receive. As for the body, eternal life will not be taken from it; on the contrary, it will obtain it in the resurrection of the dead at the last day.<sup>61</sup> Saint Augustine

“For My flesh is food indeed, and My blood is drink indeed.” [55]

+ What does He say? He wishes to say that it is true food that saves the spirit For, He affirms to them...that it does not befit them to consider His words a puzzle or a parable. They rather must know in particular that there is a need for eating the Body.<sup>62</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ The manna food satisfied the need of the body for a very short time. It eliminated the pain of hunger, but after that it had no power and did not grant those who ate it eternal life. So, this was not the true food and the bread that comes down from heaven. As for the holy Body that is Christ’s that nourish to immortality and to eternal life, this is indeed the true food.

They drank water from the rock also...but what did those who drank benefit by that, for they died. That was not the true drink, but rather the true drink is in fact the precious Blood of Christ that removes corruption from its root and gets rid of death that dwells in the human body.

Saint Cyril the Great

“He who eats My flesh and drinks My blood abides in Me, and I in him.” [56]

+ Christ nourishes His Church with these sacraments, for they strengthen the essence of the spirit.

Therefore, the Church seeing this great blessing encourages her children and friends to come together to the Sacrament. The Church says, “eat, O friends, drink, yea, drink abundantly, O beloved.” (Song of Solomon 5:1). What we eat and what we drink are revealed elsewhere in the statement, “Oh, taste and see that the LORD is good; blessed is the man who trusts in Him.” (Ps 34:8).

In this Sacrament, Christ who is the Body of Christ is not a corporeal, but a spiritual food...This food as recorded by the prophet strengthens our hearts, and this drink makes glad the heart of man (Ps 104:15).<sup>63</sup> Saint Ambrose

+ What an awe-inspiring condescension! The Creator gives Himself to His creatures for their gladness.

Life gives Himself as food and drink to the mortal. He urges us, “Come; eat My flesh and drink the Wine I have mixed for you. I have prepared Myself as food and mixed Myself for those who desire Me. Of My own will I became flesh; I shared your flesh. I am the wheat grain that gives life. I am the bread of life. Drink the Wine that I have mixed for you, because I am the drink of immortality. I am the true vine (John 15:1). Drink of the Wine that I have mingled (Prov. 9:5).<sup>64</sup>

+ The smallest bit of the blessing (the Eucharist) mingles with our whole body and fills us with its powerful effect. Thus, Christ came to be in us and we also abide in Him. Saint Cyril the Great

+ These days the teachers nourish you; Christ nourishes you everyday. His table is always ready in front of you. Why, O listeners, do you see the table and do not come to the feast?

Believers know well what the LORD says. As for you, catechumen, who are called to listen, you are deaf because your physical ears are open wanting to hear the words that are said, but your hearts’ ears are closed since you do not understand what is said.

Easter is near; submit your name for baptism...so that you may understand the meaning of ,”He who eats My flesh and drinks My blood abides in Me, and I in him.”[56]<sup>65</sup>

+ How necessary is it for us to understand Him?

Do these words (“He who eats My flesh and drinks My blood abides in Me, and I in him”) include even those about whom the apostle says, they “eat and drink judgment to themselves” (1 Cor 11:29) when they eat this Flesh and drink this Blood? Did Judas who sold his LORD and betrayed Him (although Luke the evangelist declares very clearly that Judas ate and drank with the other disciples the first sacrament of the Body and Blood, receiving them from the LORD’s hands) abide in Christ and Christ in him?

Do many of those who partake of that Body and drink that Blood hypocritically, or those who after partaking of the Body and Blood retrogress, abide in Christ and Christ in them?<sup>66</sup> Saint Augustine

“As the living Father sent Me, and I live because of the Father, so he who feeds on Me will live because of Me.” [57]

The statement, “I live because of the Father” as expressed in Greek carries the meaning that the cause of His life is the Father. Thus, the Son does not live alone, but the life of the Father is the life of the Son without separation.

+ When the Son says that He was sent, He refers to His incarnation...Who takes Me in himself by partaking of My body will live and will be completely engrafted in Me. I am He who can grant him life, because I am of an origin that grants life, that is God the Father. Saint Cyril the Great

+ Some people ask, how can the Son be equal to the Father, as He says that He lives because of the Father?

Would that those who oppose us in this point, tell us first what the life of the Son is. Is it a life granted by the Father to someone who is in need of life? Moreover, how can the Son be in need of having life, as He Himself is life, for He says, “I am the way, the truth, and the life”?

Indeed, His life is eternal and His power is eternal. Was there a time when life did not have itself?

Contemplate what was read today about the LORD Jesus that He “died for us, that whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with Him.” (1 Thes 5:10). He whose death is life, cannot His Divinity be life, and we regard His Divinity as eternal life?

However, is His life truly in the power of the Father? Why?

He has revealed that even His physical life was not in the power of another. He states, “I lay down My life that I may take it again. No one takes it from Me, but I lay it down of Myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This command I have received from My Father.”

Therefore, how can His Divine life be looked upon as though it depended on the power of another, if His physical life is not subject to any power but His own power? Yet, there is another power for the sake of the unity of power. That is as He gave us to understand that He lay down His life through His own power and His completely free will. Likewise, He also teaches us that He lay it down in obedience to His Father’s command. Here is the unity of His will and the will of His Father.<sup>67</sup> Saint Ambrose

“This is the bread which came down from heaven not as your fathers ate the manna, and are dead.
He who eats this bread will live forever.” [58]

+ The prophet Malachi, one of the twelve, had already proclaimed, “I have no pleasure in

you, says the LORD of hosts, neither will I accept an offering at your hand. For from the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same my name shall be great among the Gentiles; and in every place incense shall be offered unto my name, and a pure offering: for my name shall be great among the heathen” (Mal 1:10-11). These words indicate clearly that the ancient people (the Jews) will stop giving offerings to God. However, in every place a pure offering will be offered and the name of the LORD will be glorified among the Gentiles. But, what other name will be glorified among the nations like that of our LORD, by whom the Father is glorified and man also? And because this is the name of His Son who was incarnate by Him, therefore He calls Him “His name.”<sup>68</sup> Saint Irenaeus

+ It is appropriate for the Eternal to give that which is eternal, rather than give temporary pleasure with food that can hardly last for a few moments...It is suitable for Him who came down at that time to place those who partake of Him above death and evanescence. Saint Cyril the Great

+ So, we live because of Him, because we partake of Him, that is we partake eternal life that is not ours of ourselves.

On the one hand, He lives because of the Father who sent Him when He humbled Himself and became obedient to the point of the death of the cross (Phil 2:8)....

He says, “I live because of the Father” meaning that He is of the Father, not that the Father is of Him. This is said without effect on Their equality. As for saying, “he who feeds on Me will live because of Me”, this does not mean that His equality with the Father is similar to our equality with Him. He rather clarifies the grace of the intercessor: “This is the bread which came down from heaven” [58].

We live because we eat Him, for we cannot have eternal life of ourselves. He says, “not as your fathers ate the manna, and are dead. He who eats this bread will live forever” [58]. Those fathers are dead, means they did not live forever (by means of the manna). As for those who partake of Christ, they certainly die temporarily, but will live forever because Christ is eternal life.<sup>69</sup> Saint Augustine

“These things He said in the synagogue, as He taught in Capernaum.” [59]

They saw Him teaching everybody openly in the synagogue, as He Himself says through Isaiah also, “I have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth” (Is 45:19) for He said those things openly. Saint Cyril the Great

Saint John Chrysostom observes that the LORD Christ delivered His speech at the synagogue for two reasons. The first was to get hold of the largest number possible of His enemies. The second reason was that He wanted to stress the point that He does not oppose the Father. Therefore, if they serve God in the temple, He does not avoid the temple, but rather considers it the house of His Father in which He teaches.

5—The Complaint of Some

<sup>68</sup> Adv. Haer. 4:17:5, 6.

“Therefore many of His disciples, when they heard this, said,
‘This is a hard saying;
who can understand it?’” [60]

It is clear that besides the twelve disciples, there were many who accompanied Him. Some of them found His talk, concerning His celestial being and His offering of His Body and Blood for everlasting life, difficult and they went away.

+ The spiritual person cheers himself with our Savior’s words and shouts in truth, “How sweet are Your words to my taste, sweeter than honey to my mouth” (Ps 119:103). As for the worldly, he, in ignorance, considers the spiritual mystery, foolishness...It is appropriate for him who rushes toward true faith in Christ, to travel across a royal path. Saint Cyril the Great

+ The LORD gives us His Body to eat. If we understand this as corporeal, this is death. But He says about His Body that it has everlasting life. Therefore, we need to understand the Body not in a corporeal sense.<sup>70</sup> Saint Augustine

“When Jesus knew in Himself that His disciples complained about this,
He said to them, ‘Does this offend you?’” [61]

By saying this to His disciples He made it clear to them that He is divine and knows their hearts. And, as He cannot be deceived by appearance, He also does not deceive others. In this He made it evident for them that He is God and His teaching is the truth.

“When Jesus knew in Himself that His disciples complained about this” [61]. He knew their inner thoughts by His divine power, for nothing is hidden from Him. His knowledge was not through divine revelation as in the case of some prophets. He is the divine Word who discerns the thoughts of the heart (Heb 4: 12-13). Therefore, we must sanctify not only our spoken words and apparent behavior, but also our thoughts with His Holy Spirit.

“What then if you should see the Son of Man ascend where He was before?” [62]

Here, He hints at His ascension into heaven because the delight with the Body and Blood of the LORD grants us an exaltation of the heart, mind and all our inner self so that we may enjoy the participation with the divine Christ.

+ Christ used this meaning when He spoke with Nathaniel. For He said to him, “Because I said to you, ‘I saw you under the fig tree’, do you believe? You will see greater things than these.” (John 1:50). Also in His discussion with Nicodemus, He said, “No one has ascended to heaven but He who came down from heaven, that is, the Son of Man who is in heaven.” (John 3:13) Saint John Chrysostom

+ They did not recognize the beauty of the Sacrament, nor that excellent provision concerning it. Moreover, they discussed it among themselves, how can a human body plant in us everlasting life; how can a thing of our same nature grant immortality? When Christ knew their thoughts, because all things are naked and open to His eyes (Heb 4:13), He again cured their illness and guided them with His hand in various ways so that they may understand those things they still ignored.... If you suppose that My body cannot grant you life, how can it ascend to heaven like a bird? For, if it cannot give life because it is not in its nature to give life, how can it fly into the air and ascend to heaven? For this is also impossible. However, He who has made this earthly body, heavenly, He will make it grant life also even if its nature disintegrates according to its particular being. Saint Cyril the Great

+ He said to them that He will ascend to heaven surely in His whole being “if you should see the Son of Man ascend where He was before” [62]. Then, you will surely at least see that will not be in that way you think He will distribute His Body. Then, they will certainly realize that His grace is not consumed through eating.<sup>71</sup> Saint Augustine the flesh profits nothing.

The words that I speak to you are spirit, and they are life.” [63]

+ When you look closely at the mystery of the Incarnation, you know who He is who came in that body. You then will surely feel, without considering the Divine Spirit Himself also that this Body can grant life though that flesh in itself profits nothing at all. For, if the flesh unites with the Word that gives life, the flesh will grant life entirely rising to the supernatural power without obliging the insubordinate to change to that particular nature. Saint Cyril the Great

+ “It is the Spirit who gives life, the flesh profits nothing.” This is what He says, ‘There is a necessity that you continue listening spiritually to the things concerning Me. Whoever listens physically, profits nothing, nor does he gain any goodness.’ It is a carnal matter that you despise Him who came down from heaven, and you think He is the son of Joseph.

“How can this Man give us His flesh to eat?” [52] All this attitude is corporeal. However, there is a need to understand these words with the soul, spiritually...

“The words that I speak to you are spirit, and they are life.” [63] This means that they are divine, spiritual words. They have nothing that is corporeal or that follows the rules of nature. They, rather, are free of such needs and are above the laws that came down to govern this world. They also have a different meaning.

Now as in this statement, He says ‘spirit’ instead of ‘My Spirit.’ Therefore, when He speaks about flesh, He does not mean things of the body, but listening bodily. He, at the same time, points out to those who always ask for the physical, when they should ask for the spiritual, that if they accept His words bodily, they will profit nothing.

What then, is His body not flesh? It certainly is. How then does He say, ‘the flesh profits nothing’? He does not speak about His flesh, God forbid! He speaks rather about those who accept His words in a physical way. What does physical understanding mean? Looking at what is before our eyes merely without imagining what is beyond. This is physical understanding. However, it befits us not to judge by sight, but to behold all the sacraments with the inner eyes.

Saint Augustine wonders, how does the LORD Christ say 'the flesh profits nothing' [63], whereas the Word became flesh, and He Himself gives us His flesh? Saint Augustine answers, that the statement here is like the saying, "knowledge puffs up, but love builds up" (1 Cor 8:1). Thus, knowledge without love puffs up; yet this does not deny the importance of knowledge. Likewise, the flesh without the Spirit profits nothing. Consequently, he who accepts the Body of Christ in a bodily manner is similar to the person who eats sheer material food and his partaking of it has no profit for him. "Add the Spirit to the flesh, like adding love to knowledge. If through the flesh Christ profits us much, does the flesh profit nothing? It is by the flesh that the Spirit works for our salvation. The flesh is a vessel filled with the contents, not as what it is (alone). Did He not send His disciples, and did their bodies profit nothing? If the bodies of the apostles profited us, is it possible that Christ's flesh profits nothing?...Therefore, 'It is the Spirit who gives life, the flesh profits nothing' is in accordance to the understanding of the flesh, not as 'I give My flesh to eat.'"<sup>73</sup>

+ It is the Spirit that gives life to us the members...This is said so that we may love union and fear schism. Nothing a Christian should fear like his separation from Christ's body and, in consequence of not being a member of Christ, he does not live by Christ's Spirit. The apostle says, "if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, he is not His." (Rom 8:9)<sup>74</sup> Saint Augustine

"'But there are some of you who do not believe.'

For Jesus knew from the beginning who were who did not believe,
And who would betray Him." [64]

The statement here concerns Judas who betrayed Him and also concerns those who left Him. He declares that what will happen is not strange to Him because from the beginning He knew everything. He also shows that what happens is of His own complete free will. All souls are exposed before the LORD Christ. He knows the honest and faithful in their belief, and also the pretenders who behave hypocritically.

+ He does not say, 'there are some of you who do not understand.' He tells us the reason why they do not understand, 'there are some of you who do not believe' [64] and, therefore, they do not understand. For, the prophet says, "if you will not believe, you will not understand" (Is 7:9 LXX). We are united by faith and live by understanding. Let us approach Him first by faith so that we may live by understanding. For who approach do not resist, and anyone who resists does not believe. How can the resisting live? He is the opponent to the ray of light by which he understands. He does not close his eyes, but shuts his mind. Therefore, "there are some of you who do not believe." Let them believe and open up and be enlightened.<sup>75</sup>

+ Judas was present there...The LORD did not mention his name. He described him, but did not mention his name. Yet, He did not stop talking about him, in order that all may fear, though one only will perish.<sup>76</sup> Saint Augustine

“And He said, ‘Therefore I have said to you that no one can come to Me unless it has been granted to him by My Father.’” [65]

This does not mean that God distinguishes between one group and another. It means that he who asks will receive. He who asks for the truth, the Father will deliver to him the truth and secure him in the Truth, and so he will not fall.

+ In the case of those who did not believe in God in the wilderness, they were, therefore, restrained from entering the Promised Land. Similarly, those who do not honor Christ because of their disbelief will not be granted entrance into the Kingdom of Heaven. Saint Cyril the Great

+ It is an amazing thing that when preached concerning the crucified Christ, one listener scorns and the second listener esteems. Would that he who despises ascribes to himself this accusation (disbelief). As for the person who reveres, let him not claim for himself (his belief). When he hears the LORD Himself saying, “no one can come to Me unless it has been granted to him by My Father” [65] he must rejoice that he received. Let him with a humble heart, not with arrogance, offer thanksgiving to Him who granted that, lest what he obtained through humility he loses through pride.

+ We believe and so are granted; for when we believe we are given that great gift. Therefore, rejoice that you believe, and if you have not grown yet, that is because “what do you have that you did not receive?” (1 Cor 4:7)<sup>77</sup>

+ To teach us that belief itself is a gift and that it is not by rights, He says, “Therefore I have said to you that no one can come to Me unless it has been granted to him by My Father.” [65] When the LORD says this, we remember the words of the Gospel as the LORD says, “No one can come to Me unless the Father draws him” [44]. He does not say “guides” him, but He says “draws” him.

This force (in pulling) happens to the heart, not to the body. Why, then, are you astonished? Believe and you will come. Love and you will be pulled.

Do not suppose here a type of cruel or difficult force. It is a gentle, delightful force and the pleasure itself draws them.

What draws the flock when fresh grass appears and they are hungry? Nevertheless, I do not imagine a physical attraction. It is rather a quick relation to desire (to eat).

In this manner you also come to Christ.

Do not understand this as a long journey. Rather, wherever you believe you come. For, we come to Him who is everywhere. We come to Him by love, not by sail, since in this journey the waves of temptation are various and violent.

Believe in the Crucified. Your faith will enable you to climb up to the cross.

You will not drown. The cross will carry you. In this way, in the midst of the disturbances of the world he sailed, he who said, “But God forbid that I should boast except in the cross of our LORD Jesus Christ.”<sup>78</sup> Saint Augustine

“From that time many of His disciples went back and walked with Him no more.” [66]

+ It is well that the evangelist does not say they “left”, but that they “went back” to the affairs they had left behind. He declares that they deprived themselves of any growth in virtue. By departing they lost the faith they had before. However, this did not happen to the twelve disciples.<sup>79</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

Saint Cyril the Great observes that just as those who have weak sight go away from the sun and are pleased to sit in dark places, those who are mentally ill go away from Christ the sun of righteousness who reveals the great divine mystery. This is also what the people of Israel did when Joshua returned after spying into the Promised Land. They rebelled against him and went back. They lost Joshua’s company in crossing over to the Promised Land.

+ That which is precious in the eyes of God is not at all the number of His worshippers. It is, rather, the exaltation of their true faith that is important, not their small number. For this reason, the Holy Book says that many are called, but a few come. Saint Cyril the Great

+ This may have been written for our comfort. For, sometimes when a person announces the truth, he is not understood. He is opposed and his audience leaves him. This person is then sorry that he said the truth and he thinks, “It was appropriate for me not to speak in that manner. I should not have said that.”

Behold, for this is what happened to the LORD. He spoke and lost many. Those who remained with Him were a few, but He was not troubled. He knew from the beginning who will believe and who will not. If this happens to us we are bitterly alarmed. Let us find rest in the LORD and let us speak with dignity.<sup>80</sup> Saint Augustine

6—To Whom Shall We Go?

“Then Jesus said to the twelve,
‘Do you also want to go away?’” [67]

The words of the LORD Christ addressed to the twelve are stern because He desires believers who trust Him and abide in the truth with all their free will without any coercion or difficulty. He chose them from the world, gave them the exalted sacraments, and offered them His capabilities. They were in touch with His divine life, and it remained that they decide, themselves, without hesitation, because they were about to walk the path of the cross.

He said nothing to those who went back because He does not oblige anybody to believe. However, He used that situation to strengthen His disciples’ faith.

+ If I said, ‘Why did He not praise them?’ I would answer, ‘In that, He combined two aims. The first was to preserve the suitable rank of the teacher; for, if He had praised them, they would have thought that they had given Him a present. The second aim was to make it clear to them that He did not need them to follow Him.” Saint John Chrysostom

+ He did not rebuke those who left Him. Nor did He threaten them in a cruel manner. On the contrary, He turned to His disciples and said, ‘Do you also want to go away?’ Thus, He acknowledged the legal rights by which a man exercises his freedom and freely chooses his death or his salvation.<sup>81</sup> Cyprian the Martyr

“But Simon Peter answered Him,
‘LORD, to whom shall we go?
You have the words of eternal life.’” [68]

Saint Peter was distinguished by his extreme zeal and by being always ready. He, therefore, answered at once, not only for himself but also for all the disciples. He realized that they could not enjoy everlasting life without Messiah the Savior. Eternal death, hell and eternal suffering cannot overtake anyone who clings to the Savior. The world, the flesh, or Satan do not grant eternal life.

Some people did not accept the words of the LORD Christ and they went back. But some approached Christ even more and realized, with the apostle Peter, the power of Christ’s words that grant eternal life. His words have the fragrance of life for life, and the stench of death to death.

Saint Peter spoke in the name of all souls clinging to the LORD Christ. He spoke like Ruth who said to her mother-in-law, “Entreat me not to leave you, or to return from following after you; for where you go, I will go; and where you lodge, I will lodge” (Ruth 1:16). Peter spoke also like Nehemiah who courageously refused to leave his place of work, to hide in the temple and shut its doors, lest they kill him. Nehemiah said, “should such a man as I flee?” (Neh 6:11)

“LORD, to whom shall we go?” [68]. If we went to the Patriarchs, they would send us back to You. For, Abraham saw Your day and rejoiced. And if we went to Moses, he would give us the Law that guides us to You. If we went to the high priests, or the Scribes and Pharisees and sat at their feet, what would they offer except their hypocrisy and hatred of the truth? Who declares the truth to us but You? Who grants us eternal life but You?

+ We need to sit beside the One and only teacher, Christ. We must adhere to Him continuously and never separate. He is our LORD who knows well how to guide our footsteps toward life without end....For, it befits us, thus, to rise to the heavenly divine dwellings and proceed toward the Church of the first born to feast with goods beyond human comprehension.

+ As though they say, ‘We shall stay with You. We shall cling to Your commandments forever and accept Your words without stumbling.’ Saint Cyril the Great

Saint Cyril the Great observes that the events that took place during the journey of the Israelites in the wilderness, symbolize the truth that we now live. In the Book of Numbers, it is said that the real guide of the people of Israel was God. He appeared as a cloud that when taken up from the tabernacle, the people traveled, and ‘where the cloud abode, there the children of Israel pitched their tents.’ (Nu 9:15-18). In this same manner we must attach ourselves to the LORD. We must not move unless He commands us. “We cannot leave the LORD. We must rather strive to remain with Him spiritually. This is truly more appropriate for the saints.”

“Also we have come to believe and know that You are the Christ, the Son of the living God.” [69]

With spiritual wisdom, the apostle Peter gives priority to faith over knowledge without ignoring the role of knowledge. They believed in the Son of the living God and knew His mysteries by adhering to Him and participating with Him.

+ The Word announced these teachings through His bride’s windows. She is the dove who responded to His beauty because she was enlightened by the ray of understanding and got to know the rock that is Christ. She says, “let me see Your countenance, let me hear Your voice; for sweet is Your voice and Your countenance is comely.” (Song 2:14)...Simon saw that which the bride wanted to see. Those who heard the sweet voice of Christ got acquainted with the grace of the Gospel and cried, “LORD, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life.” (John 6:68)<sup>82</sup> Saint Gregory of Nyssa

+ They say they believe and know, so they link the two together. For, a person must believe and also understand. We accept the divine concerns by faith; but this does not mean that we avoid altogether examining those concerns. We rather try to attain a moderate knowledge as Paul says, “now we see in a mirror, dimly” (1 Cor 13:12). It is good that they did not say that they knew first, then they believed. They put faith first followed by knowledge and not the opposite. For, it is written, “if you will not believe, you will not understand” (Is 7:9 LXX). Saint Cyril the Great

+ Not that we knew and believed, but “we have come to believe and know” [69]. We believe so that we may know, because if we wanted to know first and then to believe, we would neither know nor believe...

What have we come to believe and know? “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God” [69], meaning You are life eternal itself that You grant only by Your Body and Blood that are You.<sup>83</sup> Saint Augustine

“Jesus answered them,
‘Did I not choose you, the twelve, and one of you is a devil?’” [70]

The LORD Christ corrected Saint Peter by declaring that He was the one who chose them as His disciples and He knew that among them is a person who will be used by Satan who is a murderer from the beginning and does not know love, but only knows hatred and betrayal.

+ I ask Him why He chose Judas the traitor? Why did He give him the moneybox, though He knew that Judas was a thief? Shall I tell you why? God judges the present, not according to the future.

He does not use His foreknowledge to condemn a person, though He knows that later that person will do something that will not please God.

Nevertheless, in His inexpressible goodness and mercy, He chooses a person who, He knows, will be good for sometime, but will veer to evil. He gives that person a chance to change and repent. This is the meaning of the apostle's words, "not knowing that the goodness of God leads you to repentance. But in accordance with your hardness and your unrepentant heart you are storing up for yourself wrath in the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God, who will render to each one according to his deeds" (Rom 2:4-6).

Adam did not sin because God knew beforehand that he would do so. God, being God, knew beforehand that which Adam will do with his complete free will.<sup>84</sup> Saint Jerome

+ He shows that those who withdraw from Christ will perish in their sin., As for the Church that believes in Him and abides in His teachings, she will never withdraw from Him. And those who remain in the house of God are the Church.<sup>85</sup> Cyprian the Martyr

+ His rebuke rouses their consciousness and causes each of them to be steadfast in regard to himself. For, He does not frankly say who will betray Him; He rather throws the yoke of offense on only one without clear definition. He, thus, makes them all face the challenge. He asks them to be more careful and vigilant, for each of them is terrified lest he should lose his life.

+ He called the man who does the will of the devil, 'a devil.' This is so, because just as "he who is joined to the LORD is one spirit with Him" (1 Cor 6:17), so is the opposite also. Saint Cyril the Great

+ Consider His wisdom. He did not declare the traitor (He did not mention his name). Yet, He did not leave him hidden. Thus, on the hand, the man will not be ashamed and become despised. But, on the other hand, lest he should think his behavior is not known, and offends without fear, the LORD rebuked him clearly gradually.<sup>86</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

"He spoke of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon, for it was he who would betray Him, being one of the twelve." [71]

The LORD Christ indicated much the traitor without hinting at his name so that He may give Judas a chance to repent and examine himself if he wished.

Some would ask, "if Judas had changed his mind, how would it have been possible to fulfil the prophecies? How would our salvation have been achieved?" Certainly, God would have accepted Judas and the design of redemption would have been realized in a different way. The prophecies would have been fulfilled in a different person because the prophecies did not indicate the name of the betrayer.

+ He was a denier of Him who offered him great benefit and honor. He took money and lost righteousness. As he was dead, he betrayed Life. He followed Him as a disciple, but persecuted Him like an enemy. All this iniquity is of Judas, but the LORD used Judas's wickedness for good. Christ endured being in the place of betrayal so that He may save us. Behold, for the iniquity of Judas was transformed into goodness. How many martyrs Satan persecuted! If Satan had stopped persecuting them we, now, would not have celebrated the crowning of the martyrs...Thus, the evil done by the wicked harms him, but does not violate God's goodness.<sup>87</sup>

+ Let us, beloved, profit much by this aim that we partake of the Body and Blood of Christ, not in mere mystery, as many wicked people do, but in the Communion of the Spirit. We then abide in the Lord's body as members and we live by His Spirit. Let us not be offended by many people who now partake of the Sacrament in a worldly manner, for they will have eternal punishment. They come to You and do not return empty.
You satisfy the hungry and quench the thirst of the thirsty.

+ Like a lad I give You five loaves and two fish.
I give You the five books of Moses and the Gospels that You granted me.
I clear my perception to find in Your Book food to fill the crowds!
Yes, grant me that I sit down with Your people on the grass.
Grant our spirits inflamed by Your Spirit to guide and control our bodies.

+ We sit down and through Your Church enjoy Your spiritual food.
We are filled exceedingly and the baskets of the world are full of the abundance of Your grace.
You give our spirits drink and our bodies food.
You never leave us in want!
Our spirits are grateful for You are the source of all blessings!

The LORD Christ Speaks about Pentecost

The Spring of Living Water!

The LORD Christ was late going to Jerusalem because the Jews wanted to kill Him. His relatives asked Him to perform miracles to show His followers, but He rebuked them. Then at the appropriate time He went up to Jerusalem. At the feast He announced the coming of the Holy Spirit who grants thirst quenching and joy.

The Jews habitually left their houses during the Feast of Tabernacles and dwelled in temporary tents for a week so that they may remember they were strangers and mere guests in this world.

During the first seven days of the feast they brought water from the pool of Siloam. The water was brought in a golden vessel and the high priest poured it in front of the people to declare that whoever is thirsty may approach and drink. This indicated the rock from which water flowed for the people in the wilderness. On the eighth day they did not bring water from the pool. This was to show that the people would drink from the springs of Canaan, not from the water of the wilderness. On that day, the LORD Christ who is the Supreme High Priest and Bishop of our souls, stood up to offer Himself as the spring that flows living water into the depths of the souls of believers. He asked the believers to drink joyfully from the wells of salvation (Is 12:3; Zech 14:8; Joel 2:28-32).

- 1 – Jesus Does not Appear Openly in Judea

“After these things Jesus walked in Galilee; for He did not want to walk in Judea, because the Jews sought to kill Him.” [1]

The healing of the paralytic on the Sabbath aroused the anger of the religious leaders (John 5:16) and they sought to kill Jesus either by stirring up the people against Him or by indictment. For this reason, the LORD Christ preferred not to appear publicly in Jerusalem, and instead, to walk in Galilee. This was not out of fear of death, for He came to die for mankind. It was rather in wisdom until His time would fully come.

The Evangelist used the word “walked” which in Arabic is “frequented” to give us an idea about the life of the LORD Christ during His service. He chose no place where to stay to serve. Before He came to Galilee He used to go often to Judea and walk from town to town. That was the first part of His service that the other three evangelists did not refer to. He traveled to Galilee on foot, not riding a horse or even a donkey. He and those who accompanied Him walked from place to place and wherever He stayed He performed blessings.

The LORD Christ gives us a practical lesson in withdrawing from danger, not out of fear, but in order to serve, as He advised His disciples (Matt 10:23). However, if we are called to witness to His name and have no chance to leave that place, we should count ourselves unworthy to sacrifice ourselves for His name's sake.

+ Saint Cyril the Great comments on this verse saying that the phrase "After these things" means "after all He said and did" Jesus began to walk gladly more in Galilee and did not want to walk in Judea. For, His presence among the Galileans (Gentiles) appeared to be much better than life with Israel. This is as Jeremiah says, "I have forsaken mine house, I have left mine heritage; I have given the dearly beloved of my soul into the hand of her enemies (Jer 12:7 LXX). This is seen in the rites of the burnt offering, as the lamb is killed, not in front, but on the left side of the altar (Leviticus 1:10-11). The altar looked toward the east, so the lamb was toward Galilee, the church of the nations. Thus, "His eyes observe the nations" (Ps. 66:7).

But though He was welcome in Galilee, still the Cross followed Him wherever He was, whether in Judea, Galilee, or the capital Jerusalem. In Judea they sought to kill Him [1]. In Galilee, in spite of all His miracles, many of His disciples went back and walked with Him no more. And in Jerusalem the chief concern of the religious leaders was to get rid of Him by any means. They did not care to keep the law, but they sought to kill Him (John 7:19). The Sanhedrim sent officers to take Him (John 7:32). They spread the spirit of terror so much that no one spoke openly of Him for fear of the Jews (John 7:13). They, moreover, took up stones to throw at Him (John 8:59).

Truly, He did not attack those who rose against Him. However, He did not, one bit, abandon His message and work of redemption even though that cost Him the shame of the Cross.

John, chapters 7 and 8 give us a living image of the extent of hatred, envy and malice in the hearts of the Jewish religious leaders at that time against the person of Jesus Christ. In their opinion, He distorted the image of the Promised Messiah. They wanted the Messiah to be in compliance with their human desire, but not conforming to God's magnificent plan.

+ The people of Israel practiced extreme hatred against Him. He, therefore, was in better condition among His enemies. He made His dwelling with those who showed more tenderness than He found with His kin who should have loved Him.

We do not consider Christ's withdrawal a type of cowardice. We do not accuse Him of weakness, for He is omnipotent. We rather accept this as a divine provision because it befitted Him to endure the Cross for all at the appointed time and not before Saint Cyril the Great

+ There is no worse evil than envy and spite for through them death entered the world (Wis 2:24). When he saw man being honored, Satan could not bear that and he, therefore, did all he could to kill man. Because of envy Abel was slain and David came close to being killed. Many other righteous people also we killed and the Jews became the murderers of Christ. Saint John Chrysostom

+ He offered an example of our weakness. He did not lose His power, but He rather presented comfort for our weakness.<sup>1</sup> Saint Augustine

2 – The Dialogue about His Going up to Jerusalem

"Now the Jews' Feast of Tabernacles was at hand." [2]

The Feast of Tabernacles: This feast is celebrated on the 15th of Tisri (also called Tishreen, or Letham) which coincides with the last half of September and first of October. It is the seventh month of the religious year and the first month of the civil year. The feast took its name after the tents that were erected near the temple and at public places, in town squares, on house roofs, and in the gardens where the Jews lived. The booths remained for eight days in remembrance of the forty years the Jewish fathers lived in the wilderness. This feast is one of the three major feasts during which the Jewish men were obliged to go up to Jerusalem in accordance to the law.

The most important characteristics of this feast are great joy, dwelling in booths, and the unique rites distinguished by two complementary aspects that are light, and the pouring of water. The Jews used to go up to Jerusalem one day before the feast. Some Jews went up before the tenth day of the month to celebrate the Day of Atonement and stayed there until the Feast of Tabernacles.

Concerning the pouring of water, the Talmud records that beginning with the first day and for seven days, two great processions went out at dawn. One group collected olive branches, palm leaves, and leaves of other trees such as the willow and the myrtle. They tied the branches and leaves together with threads of gold or silver, or with ribbons. They carried them all day, took them to the assembly, and held them during prayers. On the following days, they carried them to the temple and walked round the altar singing, "Hosanna, we ask You deliver us!" Trumpets sound on every side. Saint John was probably referring to this feast when he spoke about the souls of the martyrs under the altar in Paradise (Rev. 6:9). They are given palm branches and they sing, "Salvation belongs to our God."

Nevertheless, the most joyful rites of the feast according to the Jews were to go with the second procession to the pool of Siloam. The high priest leading the procession carried a golden vessel that he filled with water from the pool and took back to the temple.

Groups of singers (choirs) accompanied both processions that returned singing praise adapted from Isaiah 12. "Behold, God is my salvation. I will trust, and not be afraid. For the LORD Jehovah is my strength and my song, and has become my salvation. Therefore with joy shall we draw water out of the wells of salvation." (Is. 12:2-3). The Coptic Church adapted the song, "The LORD is my strength, my praise, and has become my salvation" to be the doxology of the Pascha. This is considering the fact that the LORD Christ was taken out of Jerusalem to be offered as a Passover sacrifice for the salvation of the world. As the apostle Paul says, "Therefore Jesus also, that He might sanctify the people with His own blood, suffered outside the gate. Therefore let us go forth to Him, outside the camp, bearing His reproach." (Heb 13:12-13). Moses and Elijah spoke about this exodus with Jesus Christ during His Transfiguration on Mount Tabor (Luke 9:30-36). Thus, the Cross was associated with the Feast of Tabernacles as all the people leave their houses and live in temporary booths in preparation for entering the Divine Bosom eternally.

The two processions arrived at the temple at the same time. The morning burnt sacrifice was offered. Those carrying the branches made a beautiful booth over the altar. With three blasts of the trumpets the priests received the high priest who carried the golden vessel. The priest went up the steps to the altar and with him another priest carrying another golden vessel filled with wine. They poured the drink offering of water and wine in two golden perforated bowls that were suspended over the altar. The drink offering would then trickle down the altar. The people used to joyfully drink the water of the pool of Siloam during the days of the feast as a remembrance of the water that flowed from the rock at the hands of Moses the prophet. That was the water that their fathers drank. They then remembered the words of Isaiah, “Ho, everyone that thirsts, come to the waters, and he that has no money; come, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price.” “Therefore with joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation.” (Is. 55:1; 12:3).

The Sadducees believed the drink offering should be limited to wine only. In about the year 95 BC the high priest was Alexander Panias, a Sadducee. He poured the water on the floor far from the altar, so the Pharisees rose against him and wanted to kill him. A battle then began between the Sadducees and the Pharisees and ended in the victory of the Pharisees after the murder of more than six thousand men.

In any case, as the water and wine were sprinkled on the altar, the temple music was heard along with the chanting of the Hallelujah Psalms (Ps 113-118). As they sang “Oh, give thanks to the LORD, for He is good!” “Save now, I pray, O LORD” “Oh, give thanks to the LORD” (Ps 118:1, 25, 29) the worshippers waved the branches around the altar.

The association of this feast with water becomes clearer when we know that on the second day of the feast (called the Smaller Celebration) there were merry evening festivals and the following days were called “The Joy of Water Streams.” The Talmud distinctly says, “Why was it called ‘Water Streams’? That is because the Holy Spirit overflows, as it was said, ‘With joy waters gush out of the fountains of salvation’”

On the seventh day they circled the altar seven times. This procession was called the “Hosanna rabba.”

During this feast many sacrifices were offered. On the first day they offered the usual burnt offerings and 13 bullocks, two rams, and 14 lambs. They also offered flour and wine. Besides, they offered goats as a sin offering. On the following days they offered the same but eliminated one bullock each day, so that on the seventh day they offered seven bullocks only. On the eighth day that was considered the climax of joy, they offered one bullock, one ram, and seven lambs as burnt offerings. They also offered one goat as a sin offering. Moreover they offered the usual flour and wine offerings. On that day they also brought to the temple the first fruits of their last harvest or that became ripe recently.

Moses instructed that the feast must be celebrated for eight days. However, the Jews added a ninth day which they called “Joy of the Law.” On that day they read the five Books of Moses.

The institution of this feast occurs in Leviticus 23:34. The feast was not observed for a long time, then it was reconstituted (Neh 8:14).

“His brothers therefore said to Him,
‘Depart from here and go into Judea, that Your disciples also may see the works that You are doing.’ [3]

The Holy Bible usually calls relatives in the same family ‘brothers.’ Therefore, the words “His brothers” probably mean the LORD Christ’s relatives, no matter what family relations might be. Those relatives, out of their love of appearance and honor, asked Him to go up to Jerusalem. They had two aims. The first was that His disciples who accompanied Him for two years in service, may see His glory in Jerusalem during the feast celebrations. The second aim was that He might establish His kingdom in the capital city. It may also be that these relatives who did not yet believe in Him –as the Evangelist himself points out- asked Him to depart not out of loyalty for Him, but with bad intention. On the one hand, they wanted to give Him advice as to one who is unable to control even His own life and is in need of guidance. And, on the other hand, they were not thoughtful about His safety, for they knew how dangerous His appearance in Jerusalem was among the leaders who were filled with envy toward Him.

Some writers believe that they asked Him to go to Judea in order that the Pharisees and leaders may examine the miracles and wonders He performed and may so discover the deceptive tricks in them. This would then vindicate the disbelief of His relatives.

“For no one does anything in secret while he himself seeks to be known openly.
If You do these things,
Show Yourself to the world.” [4]

They thought that our LORD Jesus shared their feelings and thoughts and that His miracles were not motivated by His love for others but were rather performed as a public demonstration. They, therefore, gave Him this advice so that He may take this opportunity to achieve His aim. He must not waste time in making miracles in Galilee, in towns and villages where ignorant people cannot support Him. He should better perform His miracles in the capital city so that He may win popularity among the important personalities in the community. Moreover, His fame will spread throughout the nation because, during the feast, men come to Jerusalem from everywhere. It is as though they say to Him, ‘If You are proceeding to be the Messiah, go into the Capital and reveal Yourself. For, You cannot become Israel’s Messiah while You stay in villages and small towns far from the assembly centers of the people and leaders.’

“For even His brothers did not believe in Him.” [5]

They did not believe He was the promised, expected Messiah. They probably thought He was an esteemed leader or a prophet. For, if He was the Messiah, the savior of Israel, He should reveal Himself to the whole world.

His relatives did not believe in Him. However, they asked for a public demonstration of His miraculous deeds so that the observers may admire them. They did not speak wisely for the sake of their salvation and the redemption of their brethren. It is written in Jeremiah, “For even thy brethren, and the house of thy father, even they have dealt treacherously with thee; yea, they have called a multitude after thee: believe them not, though they speak fair words unto thee.” (Jer 12:6 LXX).

+ Their words seem to come out of love, but they came out of malice. They accused Him of cowardice and of love of vainglory. The expression, “For no one does anything in secret” is addressed to cowardly people and to those who doubt that their deeds are real. Moreover, when they add “while he himself seeks to be known openly” they accuse Him of asking for vainglory.<sup>2</sup>
Saint John Chrysostom

+ As they did not believe in Him, their words were motivated by envy.<sup>3</sup>

+ Why did they not believe in Him? The answer is that they asked for human glory. His brothers pretended they gave Him advice for the sake of His glory. They spoke with the wisdom of the flesh to the Word who became flesh and dwelt among us.<sup>4</sup> Saint Augustine

“Then Jesus said to them,
‘My time has not yet come,
but your time is always ready.’” [6]

The LORD Christ answers in defense of His hiding all that time in Galilee by saying that He does not wish to anticipate the events, for His time has not yet come. He did not want to go to Jerusalem and arouse the leaders there until the time of His passion came according to His divine plan. He also made it clear to them that He would not go to demonstrate His miraculous deeds, or to win popularity and reveal Himself to the world, but rather He would go to achieve the purpose of redemption. They can go to Jerusalem as visitors, but He, this time will go to be examined and offered as the Passover sacrifice, for He is the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world.

The time of His Passion had not yet come because this work of redemption was achieved in accordance to the divine plan. As for His relatives, they faced no danger since they were friends of the world. They could go anytime that they liked. Also the time for Him to go up to the feast had not yet come because He had a special arrangement for going up. As for them, they could go to the feast at any time. Here, He exposes the intentions of His brothers indirectly without hurting their feelings. As their intentions were bad and evil, the evil world did not hate them since their deeds were harmonious with the thought of the world. On the other hand, He will conclude no truce with the world that cannot bear Him.

+ Your time is always ready. Where you are there is no danger. But, My time, when the time of the Cross comes, I must die. As this was the meaning, He made that clear when He said, “the world cannot hate you.”<sup>5</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ Whoever enjoys association with the LORD Christ must behave appropriately and prudently. He must know that every work has its particular time or the fullness of time. But those who behave recklessly and without constraint live as they like and any suits them without obligation. The time had not yet come for preaching without limit or for open and public announcement because the Jewish mind was not yet ready to understand. They could not accept My words without rebellion and anger. There was no opportunity yet for My call to be made known to the world. On the other hand, their time was present and always ready. They achieved their design and nothing hindered them or forced them to take suitable measures to be shown what they should do or not do, as was the case with Christ. Saint Cyril the Great

+ Behold how Christ answers them very gently. He did not say to them ‘Who are you to give Me advice and teach Me?’ He rather said, “My time has not yet come.” Saint John Chrysostom

+ They offered Him counsel to strive for glory. Their advice was worldly and with earthly provision. They wanted Him to be known and even become famous rather than to hide in obscurity.

---

The LORD answered those who offered Him advice concerning glory, thus, “My time has not yet come.” That is to say, the time of My glory has not yet come.

Oh, how subtle this answer is!

They counsel for glory; He wants the glory preceded by humility. He desired to prepare the path for the same glory through humility. Those disciples certainly asked for honor to sit one on His right hand and the other on His left. They thought only of the aim, but did not see the necessary road to reach that aim.

The LORD drew their attention to the path through which they reach their homeland in the suitable provision. The homeland is high above; the road below on this earth is the life of Christ, that is Christ’s death.

That earth is Christ’s dwelling; the road is Christ’s suffering. He who refuses the road, how may he ask for the homeland? In short, He gave the following answer to those who also want glory “Are you able to drink the cup that I am about to drink?” (Matt 20:22). Behold the way you must take to reach the heights you wish for. The cup that He alludes to is truly that of His humility and suffering.<sup>6</sup>

+ Let us be upright in heart for the time of our glory has not yet come. Let us say to those who love this world the same as the LORD said to His brothers, “your time is always ready” [6]. Let us dare to say this, for we are the body of our LORD Jesus Christ, His members and we joyfully know our Head. Let us then say this without hesitation since He condescended and said it for our sake.

When those who love this world insult us, let us say to them, “your time is always ready, but our time has not yet come.” For, the apostle says to us, “For you died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God.”

When our time comes, he says, “When Christ who is our life appears, then you also will appear with Him in glory.” (Col 3:3-4) Saint Augustine

“The world cannot hate you, but it hates Me because I testify of it that its works are evil.” [7]

The Jewish leaders cannot hate you because you carry their same thoughts. You desire a temporary messiah who will appoint himself an earthly king. You are the sons and servants of the world. Nothing but worldly matter preoccupies you, and the world certainly loves those who belong to it. As for Me, the world hates Me because I censure corruption and sin.

The LORD Christ did not want to go up to the feast with His relatives, lest they use propaganda on the pretext that it is necessary to declare Christ. Whereas it has been said about the LORD Christ that He shall not cry nor cause His voice to be heard (Is 42:2).

+ The mind that evil pleasures enslave is really furious when urged to acquire the necessary self-possession. Saint Cyril the Great

+ “The world cannot hate you” [7] Does this mean anything other than that the world

---

cannot hate those who love it, who bear false witness? For they call evil things, good, and good things, evil. “But it hates Me because I testify of it that its works are evil. You go up to this feast.” [7-8] What does this mean? Since you ask for human glory; since you desire exaggeration in physical joy and do not contemplate eternal joy, on that feast day you aspire to human glory. But My time, that is to say, My time of glory, has not yet come. That shall be My feast. It will not precede, nor come after, these days, but will remain eternally. It will be rejoicing and unending joy, forever without end, calm without clouds.<sup>7</sup>

“I am not going up to this feast.” [8]

That is because He does not desire temporary glory. He rather teaches them a profitable lesson to correct and urge the people to the eternal feast. He wishes to turn their love for the world to love of God<sup>8</sup> Saint Augustine

“You go up to this feast. I am not yet going up to this feast, for My time has not yet fully come.” [8]

Saint Cyril the Great observes that His brothers or relatives here represent the Jewish people as a whole as they are all the LORD Christ’s brothers, His own. He asked them to go up to celebrate the symbol, for they still loved the shadow. But His pleasure is not in the symbol or shadow, but in the truth when the appropriate time comes and the fullness of time comes so that He may offer Himself a true feast.

+ The LORD clearly says here that He will not observe the feast with the Jews. He will not go up with them and share their joy in the shadows. For, what is said about the few extends in meaning to all the Israelites, as all the multitude of the Jews are symbolically His brothers. He, therefore, refrains from attending the feast with them. According to a saintly prophet<sup>9</sup> saying, “I hate, I despise your feast days, and I will not smell in your solemn assemblies. Though ye offer me burnt offerings and your meat offerings, I will not accept them: neither will I regard the peace offerings of your fat beasts. Take thou away from me the noise of thy songs; for I will not hear the melody of thy viols.” (Amos 5:21-23) The Savior Himself also says, “God is Spirit, and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and truth.” (John 4:24) Saint Cyril of Alexandria

Saint John Chrysostom says that Christ said He would not go up to the feast at that moment. That is to say He would not go up with them.<sup>9</sup> He did not want to go up with them at that time to be crucified, for the hour of crucifixion had not yet come.

“When He had said these things to them, He remained in Galilee.” [9] peacefully and safely. He reveals to them His true love for them and His rejection of the inhabitants of Judea. He has actually made the Church of nations worthy of divine love. He has disclosed the beauty of the Church of nations that He loved and went up to as to a bride in her room. Saint Cyril of Alexandria

“But when His brothers had gone up, then He also went up to the feast, not openly, but as it were in secret.” [10]

He had refused to go with His relatives because they had demanded that not for spiritual profit, but to obtain honor because of the miracles.

Saint Augustine has dealt with the opinion of some concerning the LORD Christ when He said to His brothers that He will not go up to the feast and left them go to Jerusalem, then He later decided to go. Saint Augustine explains that the LORD does not say He will not go up to the feast, but He says, “yet” meaning today. As they celebrated the feast several days, He remained in Galilee that day, then went up to Jerusalem after that. His reason was that His brothers did not ask Him to go with them, in their company, but wanted Him to go alone before them. However, according to the saint, Christ appeared as a weak man running away from the resistant as He fled from Herod into Egypt. He, thus, let them go up to Jerusalem and the next day He followed. Saint Augustine observes that the LORD Christ went up at about the middle of the feast, which is after many days.<sup>10</sup>

The word “yet” that the LORD Christ uses shows that He refused to go up with them at that moment, but that His refusal to go up to the feast was not final. It is clear that in His words to them, The LORD Christ separates their point of view and His in going up to the feast. They will go to participate in the formal festivities and to meet their relatives and friends. They also considered the feast an excellent opportunity for the LORD to go up and expose His deeds to the people. However, He goes up to the feast to offer Himself the Paschal sacrifice for the world. He, therefore, desires to go up alone to isolate their thinking from His.

Moreover, their going up as a group will be openly accompanied with Praise, Psalms and palm leaves. But His will be as it were in secret to achieve a secret message that the world could not understand.

Finally, they went up to Jerusalem at once. On the other hand, He went from Galilee and came to the region of Judea by the other side of the Jordan (Matt 19:1; Mark 10:1). At the end of His journey He went to Bethany, a village near Jerusalem, to visit Lazarus and his sisters (Luke 10:38-39). He then entered Jerusalem about mid feast. So, His itinerary was completely different from that of His relatives.

“Then the Jews sought Him at the feast, and said,
‘Where is He?’” [11]

Some writers believe that this refers to the Jewish crowds or people. For, they yearned to see the Person who performed unique wonders. He was the subject of their conversation, even though they were divided into two groups concerning their perception of Him. However, the general opinion shared by the early church fathers and the contemporary scholars is that the word “Jews” here as in most verses in this Gospel, means, according to the Evangelist, the Jewish leadership including the chief priests, scribes, and Pharisees. They were those who wished to get rid of Him, like King Saul who wished to kill David the first day of the month (1 Samuel 20:27)

Even those who admired the person and deeds of the LORD Christ, they did not know His reality. They thought He was only a righteous man. But they did not understand that He was the Son of God. Even today some people who do not believe in Him look up to Him as a unique, righteous leader. Yet they cannot become acquainted with Him.

They sought Him not because they believed in Him and looked for spiritual blessing, but to assail Him with insults. Saint Cyril of Alexandria points out that “they did not disdain to ask ‘where is that man’ or ‘where is He’ for this is an expression about a man who is rejected.”

+ The Jews ask, ‘where is He?’ because of their intense hatred and hostility for Him they did not want to mention His name. Saint John Chrysostom

“And there was much complaining among the people concerning Him.
Some said, ‘He is good.’
Others said, ‘No, on the contrary, He deceives the people.’” [12]

The Greek word is translated here as “complaining” but in Latin it means “murmur.” Saint Augustine says that complaining and dispute occurred concerning Him. For, in this world we live as in winter. Some see in some kinds of fruit trees that they are dead. They do not realize that the trees live until summer that is the time of judgment. “Our summer is the appearance of Christ. ‘Our God shall come, and shall not keep silent’ (Ps 50:3). ‘A fire goes before Him, and burns up His enemies round about.’ (Ps 97:3) That fire burns the dry trees to which it is said, ‘I was hungry and you gave Me no food.’ While, on the other side, on His right hand, are seen abundant fruit and many leaves that will remain green forever.”<sup>13</sup>

+ In my opinion, the first group (those who said He is good) was the majority. The second point of view was that of the rulers and priests, for this calumny against Him fits their envy and wickedness.<sup>14</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ Let them say about you if you are growing in Christ ‘he deceives the people.’ This was said about Christ Himself and is said about the whole body of Christ. Think that the body of Christ is still in this world. Think that the body of Christ is still under examination. How the chaff blasphemes about Him. The wheat and chaff will be threshed together; chaff will be burnt up and the wheat will remain. Therefore, this saying about Christ is for consolation when it is said about any Christian.<sup>15</sup> Saint Augustine

+ They waded into the most ridiculous fantasy; they deviate much from truth and yet they do not refrain from calling Him a ‘deceiver’ He who shows the straight path of righteousness. Saint Cyril the Great

“However, no one spoke openly of Him for fear of the Jews.” [13]

No one dared to speak about Him for fear of the Jewish leaders. The mere mention of His name was considered a crime that might lead to be deprived of the right to worship.

+ Who were those who did not speak of Him for fear of the Jews? Certainly those who said ‘He is good’, not those who said that He ‘deceived the people.’ For, those who said He deceived the people were heard and their voices were loud like the sound of the leaves of dead trees. They raised their voice louder and louder.

Those who said He was good whispered, as they felt more and more oppressed.

Now, the Church grows because He graciously gave the Church to spread over the entire world. Now, only those who say He deceives the people whisper. Those who say He is good speak in a louder voice.<sup>16</sup> Saint Augustine

+ How incredible it is that the people fear the Jews and tremble but are not instructed by the Law and do not learn to live appropriately. For, fear is an evidence of the highest degree of slavery.

So, they were forced to transgress without examining the aim of Him who granted the Law (And, as they did not dare to praise the good) they judged wickedly, not willingly but by force according to the choice of the others. They despicably condemned Him who was worthy of praise and admiration.

The leaders were able to conduct them against the divine commandments and were thus responsible for the loss of all the people.

The prophet testifies saying about them that they were the cause of the eternal perdition of the people “the pastors are become brutish, and have not sought the LORD. Therefore all their flocks did not understand and shall be scattered.” (Jeremiah 10:21 LXX). Saint Cyril the Great

3 – His Speech at the Feast

“Now about the middle of the feast
Jesus went up into the temple and taught.” [14]

He went to Jerusalem about the middle of the feast and as usual He went up into the temple and began to preach openly. Saint John does not record Christ’s sermon. This may be because another Evangelist registered it.

He went the fourth or fifth day of the feast in order that He may leave the people in the first three days to their preoccupation with the tents they erected and the branches they carried all day. They did not comprehend as desired the spiritual meaning of these things because their minds were not ready, or may be because they had no time to be attentive to the LORD's words and deeds.

Why did He teach? He came to present the truth, in hope that men may yearn for true knowledge and enjoy it. By teaching He filled the vacuum caused by the preoccupation of the religious leaders with their own righteousness and honor and with politics instead of with interest in spiritual knowledge.

It is as though the LORD Christ occupied the status of teachers and revealed their inability to achieve their mission. He accomplished the promise "For thus says the LORD God; behold, I, even I, will both search my sheep, and seek them out....I will feed my flock, and I will cause them to lie down, says the LORD God. I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen that which was sick; but I will destroy the fat and the strong; I will feed them with judgment." (Ezekiel 34:11, 15-16). "And I will set up one shepherd over them, and he shall feed them, even my servant David; he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd." (Ezekiel 34:23).

+ I suppose everybody truly wondered but that not all found the way to faith.<sup>17</sup> Saint Augustine

How is it that He says, "My doctrine" and yet at the same time He says, "is not Mine"? It is the doctrine of the Father who sent Him. The evangelist had previously declared that Jesus is the Word of the Father. Therefore, Christ Himself is the doctrine of the Father; He is the Word of the Father and what Christ teaches is Himself so that the believers may acquire Him. He is His doctrine and at the same time He is of the Father. He is the divine unchangeable doctrine. This is not teaching that is pronounced with words and letters, but is the only One with the Father. He carries us to the Father for conciliation and conformity with His love.

+ It is appropriate for us more reasonably to avow that we hear the will of the divine nature in particular in the holy places. Saint Cyril the Great

The evangelist did not present to us all the LORD's teachings and sermons during this period. However, he presents three kinds of dialogue and conversation. A dialogue with the Jewish leaders [verses 14-24] another with the people of Jerusalem [25-30] and a third with the officers whom the chief priests and Pharisees sent [32-36].

"And the Jews marveled, saying,
'How does this Man know letters, having never studied?' [15]

The Jews marveled when they heard His teaching because He spoke with authority. He quoted from the books of the Old Testament. He explained, argued and said proverbs. His teachings are profound and convincing. They attract the simple people and satisfy the learned. They convince even those who oppose Him. It is written in the Gospel according to Saint Mark, "He entered the synagogue and taught. And they were astonished at His teaching, for He taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes." (Mark 1:21-22; see also Mark 6:2, Matt 13:54, Luke 4:22). He did not enter a school for the rich; He did not sit at the feet of a rabbi; He did not travel to some country as the philosophers did; nor did He enter a public school in His own country. Moses learned the wisdom of the Egyptians, but Jesus did not learn even the wisdom of the Jews. They did not realize that He did not need to receive knowledge from men, for He Himself is the Divine Truth and His will is one with the Father.

+ Have you seen how the evangelist shows that their marveling at Him here was full of evil. For, the evangelist does not say that they marveled at His teaching or that they accepted His words. Saint John points out that their astonishment was of a different kind. They were puzzled and said, “how does this Man know letters, having never studied?” They should have known and ascertained that their perplexity proved that His teaching was not of human beings. However, they refused to reveal this meaning and wanted to stop only at their amazement at Him.<sup>18</sup> Saint John Chrysostom Saint Cyril the Great observes that the frivolous people asked, “where is that Man” and so they confessed their ignorance. But those who said, “how does He know letters, having never studied”, considered themselves well learned and they judged Him. Owing to their knowledge they should have searched for the secret of His knowledge of the Books, though He did not study. They may have also compared Him and Moses and considered Him uneducated while Moses “was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians” (Acts 7:22).

+ Only Christ alone is good, perfectly good in all things. He is, among all, the only Person who has wisdom and understanding. And He has excellence not through learning but as a special characteristic.

All that is good is in God in essence. In Him it does not emanate from outside. Thus, wisdom is in Him also; He Himself is wisdom and in particular He is the source of wisdom. He grants partial wisdom to those who partake in Him, the heavenly rational beings and also the beings on earth. Saint Cyril the Great

“Jesus answered them and said,
‘My doctrine is not Mine, but His who sent Me.’” [16]

As they marveled at His knowledge, He declared to them that His doctrine does not originate from a school on earth, or from the rabbis and lawyers. His doctrine comes from the heavenly Father, since He is the Christ who saves the world. He says, “My doctrine is not Mine, but His who sent Me.” [16]

When Christ performed a deed of divine love, He confidently referred that deed of love to the Father as in John 3:16, lest some may think that the Father represents divine wrath and the Son is divine mercy. Later, certain groups, like the followers of Marcion went to the point that they believed that the God of the New Testament came to save the world from the cruel God of the Jews. For this reason, the LORD Christ explains that His divine plan is to accomplish the doctrine of the Father and His provision for the sake of the redemption of the world and that this is the good pleasure of the Father and of the Son.

When the Jews marveled that He knew the letters though He did not study, He made it clear to them that He did not need human teaching or wisdom, for He is the wisdom of the Father. The words He says are in harmony with the will of the Father. His doctrine is divine, not human.

+ Once more He answers their secret thoughts by referring His teaching to the Father. In that He desired to silence them.<sup>19</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ He, suitably, reveals Himself as equal to God the Father who never studied but knows all things, essentially without learning. He excels all understanding and is above all wisdom existing in creatures. Therefore, it was possible for Him through other events also to show to His listeners and affirm to them that all that is in the Father is in Him also because of their unity in essence. Saint Cyril the Great

+ Does not His teaching that is free of rhetoric show that He teaches not as a human being, but as God? He did not study but He directs His teaching.<sup>20</sup> Saint Ambrose

+ Direct your thoughts towards Christ's doctrine, so that you may reach God's wisdom, and when you reach Him remember this "the Word was God" (John 1:1). Then you will discern the saying "My doctrine" is true. Contemplate the Word, who is He? (the Word of the Father) and you will truly understand "My doctrine is not Mine"<sup>21</sup>

+ In short, it seems to me, dear beloved, that the LORD Jesus Christ said, "My doctrine is not Mine" meaning 'I am not of Myself.' We say and believe that the Son is equal to the Father, that there is no difference between them in nature and essence, and that there is no temporal separation between the begetter and the begotten. We fervently maintain that. But still one of them is the Father and the other is the Son. The Father cannot be Father without having the Son, and the Son likewise may not be Son without having the Father. Yet, the Son is God from the Father, and the Father is God but not from the Son. The LORD Jesus Christ is called Light of Light; both together are one Light, not two lights.<sup>22</sup> Saint Augustine

"If anyone wills to do His will, he shall know concerning the doctrine, whether it is from God or whether I speak on My own authority." [17]

The LORD Christ gave them a proof that the origin of His doctrine is neither from an earthly school nor from a rabbi, but is of the Father. His divine doctrine is perfectly harmonious with His deeds. He came to the world submitting obediently to the Father so that He may remove from us pride and insubordination. He opened for us the path of perfect obedience when we united with Him so that we ask not that that is for us, but that is of God and we find our pleasure in this.

He is the way that leads us to enjoy the divine embrace through our participation with Him in obedience and humility. He, thus, opens the door for us so that we may receive the divine doctrine, not with argument, mere reasoning, and arid scrutiny, but with practical acceptance of the will of God in us and by conformity with His divine design for us. This will not be accomplished unless we practically unite with our Christ so that He may grant us perfect obedience, give us His righteousness and reveal to us His mysteries.

This is the work of the Holy Spirit in us. Thus, the source of our learning is the Holy Trinity. The Spirit illuminates the depth of our soul and the Son, the true light, enters and takes us to the Father's bosom so that we may live in the great mysteries and experience their guarantee in this world until the day when we meet Him.

+ You ask, 'what is the meaning of Christ's words?' The answer is that He means to say, 'Remove your doubt, anger, envy, and hatred that originate falsely in you. There is no hindrance that prevents you from knowing that My words are truly God's words.' Saint John Chrysostom

"He who speaks from himself seeks his own glory;
but He who seeks the glory of the One who sent Him is true; and no unrighteousness is in Him." [18]

The characteristic of the impostor or swindler is that he seeks his own glory and talks about himself. This is the characteristic of the antichrists and false prophets. They want to achieve their own will, not God's will. But the mark that proves that Jesus is the true Christ is that His words are from the Father and He seeks the glory of the Father, yet Their will is one and Their glory is one.

The Son became flesh, but though He is the Son of Man, His doctrine is not the outcome of human experience. It is neither a temporal study, nor the fruit of a special thought. Its source is rather the Father who sent Him. It is a truly divine doctrine; there is no falsehood or fallacy in it.

"No unrighteousness is in Him" means 'no falsehood or fallacy is in Him.'

+ "He who speaks from himself seeks his own glory" [18]. This is he who will be called Antichrist and about whom the apostle writes he "exalts himself above all that is called God or that is worshipped" (2 Thes 2:4). The LORD declares about the same person (the Antichrist) that he seeks his own glory, not the glory of the Father. The LORD says to the Jews, "I have come in My Father's name and you do not receive Me; if another comes in his own name, him you will receive" (John 5:43).

He states that they will receive the Antichrist who will seek his own glory, who will be puffed up, disloyal and certainly destructive.

But our LORD Jesus Christ reveals to us His great example of humility. He who undoubtedly is equal to the Father, seeks not His own glory but the glory of the Father. How much more this befits you O man who when you do a good deed seek your own glory and when you do evil you offend God?

Know yourself; you are a creature.

Know your Creator. You are a servant. Do not despise your God.

You are adopted but not because you are worthy.

Seek the glory of the One who will grant you this grace that you are an adopted human being.<sup>23</sup> Saint Augustine

4 – His Discourse about Breaking the Sabbath

---

“Did not Moses give you the law, yet none of you keeps the law?
Why do you seek to kill Me?” [19]

The LORD confronts the accusation of the rulers that He deceives the people [12] by accusing them that they break the law. How can He deceive the people when He accomplishes the will of the Father! They claim that they keep the law, but they break the law when they kill the innocent. Here, the LORD denounces them openly inside the temple touching their dearest claim, which is that they keep the law.

+ He did not accuse them of breaking the law as individuals, but rather that the entire Jewish nation nullifies the Law of Moses. In accusing Him of breaking the law concerning the Sabbath they reveal themselves as aggressors and conspirators plotting to kill Him. In so doing they commit the worst sin (killing the innocent). Saint Cyril the Great

+ You seek to kill Me for this reason, which is that not one of you keeps the law. If you kept the law you would have known Christ in every letter of the law and you would not have killed Him when He was present among you.

Behold their answer: “You have a demon. Who is seeking to kill You.”

What troubled the people? The truth. For, the impaired eyes cannot endure the brilliant light.<sup>24</sup> Saint Augustine

“The people answered and said,
‘You have a demon. Who is seeking to kill You?’” [20]

The rulers and those with them may have denied having a plot to kill Him, in order that they may not arouse the people. The people were, therefore, astonished. Besides, lest they appear as transgressors of the law for seeking to kill a man without trial or to kill an innocent person, when the LORD asked them, “Why do you seek to kill Me?” [19] they said, “Who is seeking to kill You?” As for the accusation “You have a demon”, this is often repeated when they find nothing to blame Him for or to oppose Him.

+ The Jews were aware of the accusations and they tried to deny them even though they did not deviate from their intrigue of murder. However, with many endeavors they keep away from themselves the appearance of transgression of the law. For, the pride of the Pharisees is only in dissembling. Saint Cyril the Great

+ He says, ‘No wonder you do not seek Me. For, you do not obey the law that you think you follow and you persist in that you received it from Moses. It is no new matter that you have no interest in My words.’<sup>25</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

“Jesus answered and said to them,
“I did one work,

and you all marvel.” [21]

The work He refers to is healing the paralytic (John 5) on the Sabbath.

+ On the basis of this one work, and though it was done for the salvation of a man lying on the ground to save his life, you condemn the Omnipotent for this reason? The commandment that according to your stupid conception He broke was infringed not for some trivial, worthless reason, but to save a man and his life. You are angry without cause. It was more appropriate that you praised Him who has such great divine power. Saint Cyril the Great

Saint John Chrysostom surmises that the work that the LORD Christ did was healing the man born blind on the Sabbath. The work He did was greater than the circumcision that Moses ordered. The commandment of circumcision came to break the Sabbath also because they circumcised on the Sabbath if that was the appointed time. Indeed, the LORD did not say directly, ‘I did a greater work than circumcision.’ He said, “Moses therefore, gave you circumcision.” [22]

“Moses therefore gave you circumcision (not that it is from Moses, but from the fathers), and you circumcise a man on the Sabbath.” [22]

The circumcision was granted to them as a good gift, not as a burden. Its practice is not an infringement of the law. The commandment of circumcision was given a long time before Moses, since the time of Abraham (Gen 17:9-10). It was then incorporated in the Law of Moses as part of it, even though there is no commandment in the Law of Moses concerning circumcision.

The teachers of the Jews gave the commandment concerning circumcision more importance than the Sabbath. The Jews kept the circumcision ritual on the eighth day even if it fell on the Sabbath. Keeping the Sabbath was then not observed for the sake of public health. If that was the case concerning the practice of circumcision literally, how much more important was it for the sake of the safety of the entire man when all the members of the paralytic lying down in his bed for 38 years are healed.

The commandment of circumcision goes back to the time of the patriarchs before Moses the prophet. It does not go back to the beginning of creation. But the LORD Christ’s deed concerned the being of a man naturally since his creation. For God desires the human being to be sound spiritually and physically since the beginning of creation.

Saint Augustine says, “As though the LORD Christ says ‘As circumcision is specifically a kind of salvation seal and men must not stop the work of salvation on the Sabbath, you, therefore, must not resent Me because I healed a man entirely on the Sabbath [23]. For a man is circumcised on the Sabbath.’”<sup>26</sup>

Saint Augustine also says that circumcision on the eighth day was performed with a knife of stone. This was a token of removal of physical lust from the body. The LORD Christ, the true Rock, came to offer to the believer on the eighth day a spiritual circumcision through His resurrection. He says listen to those who were circumcised with the true stone. The apostle admonishes them saying, “If then you were raised with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ is, sitting at the right hand of God. Set your mind on things above, not on things on the earth.” (Col 3:1-2) He speaks of the circumcised saying, ‘Christ is risen. He has removed your physical lust, the evil desires, the unnecessary things with which you were born and the worse things you have added by living an evil life. If then you were circumcised with the Rock why do you still maintain your emotions on earth?’<sup>27</sup>

---

+ Moses himself, the minister of the law, broke the law of the Sabbath to perform circumcision that extended from the patriarchs to the time of the Jews. Moses did that to prove that he kept the tradition of the patriarchs. And, as God works also on the Sabbath, He announces about Himself that He also works. This then is not a violation of the Sabbath, for He has the same thought as the Father. For this reason He says, 'My Father has been working until now, and I have been working.' ”John 5:17)

Moses was interested in honoring the tradition of the patriarchs more than in honoring the Sabbath. Why then are you falsely alarmed concerning Me and amazed as if I was eager to violate and despise the law, though I do a deed equal to that of the Father and conform always with Him in every intention? Since He works on the Sabbath, I refuse to be lazy on that day. Saint Cyril the Great

“If a man receives circumcision on the Sabbath, so that the Law of Moses should not be broken, are you angry with Me because I made a man completely well on the Sabbath?” [23]

Circumcision involves a wound, blood and pain. Yet, it is performed on the Sabbath that is a day for rest. What then is it in relation to the LORD Christ who grants healing to a man completely? If the painful work of the law is allowed on the Sabbath, is it not even more necessary that the joyful gospel that grants peace be practiced on the Sabbath?

The parents and relatives of the suckling are very anxious that the circumcised child be healed in that circumcised part. But the LORD Christ is concerned for making a man completely well.

+ Circumcision is a means of care for man and is more important than the commandment concerning the Sabbath because it was necessary that the sick person be perfectly well. Why then is the Sabbath an obstacle, or how may it be reasonable that the ordinance of the Sabbath stand in the way of healing the whole body? For it is actually allowed without blame to break the Sabbath so that a small part of the body may be well. Saint Cyril the Great

+ You see that we obtain the distinction of participation in the essence, not in the natural focus, but in that of grace. The reason is that the Father loves us. He loves the Son and consequently loves the members of His body.<sup>28</sup> Saint Jerome

“Do not judge according to appearance, but judge with righteous judgment.” [24]

---

The LORD Christ asks them to judge with righteousness, not according to appearance. For, the preoccupation with the letter, rather than with the spirit, ruins our judgment concerning matters of the law. The Sabbath as a day of rest is a day of mercy and love for the glory of God, for the edification of His people and the salvation of all as much as possible. Let their judgment concerning the healing of the paralytic on the Sabbath be in this spiritual conception, not in accordance to the letter.

+ The law that you are so zealous in observing and for which you rose so fervently cries aloud to you saying, “You shall not be afraid of the face of man; for the judgment is God’s (Deut 1:17). Thus, you who judge Me as a transgressor because of the Sabbath, and you decide it is perfectly right to be angry for this reason; do you care for the honor of the law? Mortify yourselves when you hear this message, “Do not judge according to appearance, but judge with righteous judgment.” For you exempted Moses from transgression and you rightly did not judge him in this even though he broke the Sabbath for the sake of circumcision that is from the patriarchs. Will you then, free the Son from blame; for He always agrees with the thought and will of the Father and every deed of the Father the Son also does?! How can you judge the Son only and not Moses also when they were both involved in the same act that you blame concerning the Sabbath? Saint Cyril the Great

+ It is as though Christ says, ‘I did a deed more worthy and better than circumcision.’ Saint John Chrysostom

+ Now in accordance to the Law of Moses you circumcise on the Sabbath. You do not judge Moses. However, when I made a man completely well you were angry with Me. “You judge with partiality, regard the truth!”<sup>29</sup>

+ We do not think that this was not said for our sake because we did not exist at that time. Would we do not retrogress but look forward as He rebukes His enemies, for we ourselves do things the truth condemns.

Indeed, the Jews judged according to appearance. Consequently, they did not belong to the new covenant. They do not have the kingdom of heaven in Christ. They do not unite with the assembly of the holy angels. They wanted temporal things from the LORD: the Promised Land, victory over the enemies, many children, and abundance of fruit. These are things God truly promised them; real and good things He promised earthly people. All these things were given to them in the old times.

Now we are renewed, we have the new man because He who is the New Man came. For who is he who is thus new like Him who was born of a virgin? In Him is a new birth and in us is the new man.

Who is the new man? He is a man renewed from the old.

To what is he renewed? To someone who requests heavenly things and yearns for the eternal. His zeal is for the celestial home where he does not fear an enemy or lose a friend, where he lives well emotionally and lacks nothing.

We have a totally different hope from theirs. Would we do not judge according to appearance, but judge with righteous judgment. We thus benefit by the Lord’s words; we profit by His words, and His grace helps us.<sup>30</sup> Saint Augustine

5 – Many Believe in Him

“Now some of them from Jerusalem said,
‘Is this not He whom they seek to kill?’” [25]

In the opinion of the Jews Jerusalem was the source of spirituality and the true divine knowledge. However, the people in Jerusalem were confused because of the attitude of their religious leaders. Do they really seek to kill Him as one who blasphemes and deceives the people? Why then did they not arrest Him while He taught openly?

Here we see the conduct of the people coming from outside Jerusalem as different from that of the inhabitants of Jerusalem. Those who came from outside did not know that the leaders were full of envy and hatred and opposed the LORD Christ. On the other hand, the dwellers in Jerusalem were aware of the plots of those leaders against Him.

Scholars distinguish three groups concerning the attitude of the Jews with regard to the LORD Christ (1) The rulers, priests, and Pharisees were full of hatred against the LORD Christ (2) The people of Jerusalem knew the feelings of the first group. They stood in confusion whether to submit to the leaders who at the same time did not take action to get rid of Him, or to enjoy His works of love, His signs, and His doctrine that has spiritual power of attraction because the LORD teaches with authority (3) The strangers who came to Jerusalem for the feast. They admired the LORD and knew nothing about the feelings of the first group against Him. They were astonished when they heard Him say they seek to kill Him [20]. They considered that a delusion he had or a demonic idea.

+ We believe that the remaining Jewish people did not know the conspiracy of their rulers. But those in Jerusalem, who lived most of the time with the rulers and dwelt with them in the same city and met them continuously, knew their evil plots against Christ the Savior. Saint Cyril the Great

+ Those who knew how violently they sought Him, were astonished at the power that protected Him from being arrested. And as they did not know His power as they should, they imagined that the rulers recognized Him as truly the Christ and therefore they let Him go though they eagerly sought to kill Him.<sup>31</sup> Saint Augustine

“But look! He speaks boldly, and they say nothing to Him.
Do the rulers know indeed that this is truly the Christ?” [26]

If the rulers did not know surely that this is truly the Christ what caused them to endure His bold reproof and His renewal of matters that were ordinances since old times. They found Him healing even on the Sabbath. Moreover, they were very much grieved when He frankly said, “Did not Moses give you the law, yet none of you keeps the law?” Yet they endured it all. ## Cyril the Great “However, we know where this Man is from;

but when the Christ comes, no one knows where He is from.” [27]

The majority of the people knew that Jesus was born in Bethlehem from the seed of David. However, according to Isaiah the prophet Who shall declare His generation?” (Is 53:8) That is to say His birth and appearance are a secret. The rabbis had this saying, “Three things happen suddenly: a thing we find unexpectedly, the sting of a scorpion, the appearance of the Messiah.” Therefore, the people of Jerusalem wondered whether Jesus was the Christ or not because they knew where He was from.

They did not realize that what Isaiah said was about His great eternal birth and was also about His priesthood as He is according to the order of Melchizedek whose parents no one knows. But the prophets announced many details concerning His incarnation and the Jews knew where He was to be born (Matt 2:4-5).

+ They did not comprehend the writings of the holy prophets about Him. These writings are in two divisions.

Sometimes the prophets indicate that He will come to the world in the flesh. They announce His birth in flesh of a virgin: “Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son” (Is 7:14). They even announce where He will be born: “But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall He come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting.” (Micah 5:2)

However, when they introduced, as much as possible, His incomprehensible birth of God the Father, they said, as mentioned before, “who shall declare His generation?” “For His life is taken from the earth.” Or concerning the quotation “whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting”, by His goings, he means the Only Begotten Son like glamour emanating from light. His special going forth from the Essence that gave birth to Him to His particular Self that is before all ages, all days and all moments. Saint Cyril the Great

+ They say, “no one knows where He is from” in spite of the fact that when their rulers were asked they insisted He must be born in Bethlehem.

Once more, they say He will not come out of Galilee but from Bethlehem [41, 42]. Do you not see that their statements are said in anger? They say, “we know” and “we do not know”; for they are divided over one subject.<sup>32</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ As He is a Man, the Holy Scriptures had informed us what will occur to Him. But as He is God, this was hidden from the wicked people and needed the righteous to reveal it. Moreover, they say, “but when the Christ comes, no one knows where He is from” [27]. Isaiah who introduced the idea says this: “who shall declare His generation?” In short, the LORD Himself answered both: they know where He is from, and also they do not know. For He testifies to the prophet’s information concerning His weak humanity, and also concerning His divine glory.<sup>33</sup> Saint Augustine

“Then Jesus cried out, as He taught in the temple, saying,
You both know Me, and you know where I am from;
And I have not come of Myself,
But He who sent Me is true,
Whom you do not know.” [28]

The LORD Christ answered those questions openly. He cried out in the temple. He was probably calling the priests and rulers who did not dare to come nearer and did not bear to hear His voice. He called them so that they may approach and listen. He did not teach in secret, but openly because He presented the truth without deceit as they alleged. It is as though He said to them, “he, who has ears to hear, let him hear!”

“You both know Me, and you know where I am from” as though He says, ‘this is true; I am from your nation; I am related to you; you know where I was born. However, concerning My divinity you do not know Me, nor know where I am from. You do not know who sent Me.’

“And I have not come of Myself”: He is not a mere Man who works for His own sake. The Father sent Him and He works for the salvation of all humanity. He is the Son of God who had promised to send the Messiah, the Savior of the world. He is the divine promise realized, but they reject Him and His Gospel.

It was not easy for the rulers to accept these words because they imply an accusation of ignorance on their part. They do not know God. He alone knows Him, not because God sent Him as He sent the prophets, but because Christ is “of Him” born everlasting of Him. Thus, on the one hand, He refers to their ignorance, and on the other hand, He manifests Himself as the Son born of the Father. This is, in their opinion, blasphemy that must be punished by death. However, a secret power prevents them from arresting Him until the hour does come.

+ As a Man He did not come of Himself. As the Son of God He did not take His beginning from a human being. But, as He says, “Just what I have been saying to you from the beginning.” (John 8:25) The words I say to you are not of man, but are divine.<sup>34</sup>

+ Then, what is the meaning of “He who believes in Me, believes not in Me” (John 12:44)? This means, ‘Do not believe what you perceive in the human form, nor in solely the man you see.’ For, as much as we must not believe in Him as just a man, we must believe that Jesus Christ Himself is God and Man at the same time. For these two reasons He says, “I have not come of Myself” (John 7:28). As a Man He has not come of Himself; and as the Son of God He did not take His beginning from man. He says, “Just what I have been saying to you from the beginning.” The words I say to you are not of man but are divine.<sup>35</sup> Saint Ambrose

+ The words, “you know where I am from” do not refer to a particular place, but His saying, “He who sent Me is true, whom you do not know” indicate the ignorance they reveal through their deeds. As the Apostle says, “They profess to know God, but in works they deny Him” (Titus 1:16). Their error originates not only from ignorance, but also from wickedness, their evil thought and bad judgment. In spite of their knowledge, they desired to be ignorant.

When they said, “we know where this Man is from”, they did not declare that He is from heaven. His answer, “you know where I am from” [28] means He is not from the place they assume, but from where He who sent Him.<sup>36</sup>

+ His words, “I have not come of Myself” declare that they knew the Father sent Him, but still they did not want to avow it.

He blames them on two counts: first that they spoke in secret, but He spoke openly to shame them and reveal their secret thoughts. Secondly, while they insist, “no one knows where He is from” He affirms that He Himself is the Christ.

They say, “no one knows” referring to distinctive local places. However with these same words He reveals Himself as the Christ because He has come from the Father. His words concerning the Father, “whom you do not know” aroused their anger. He rebuked them because, as He knew their pretence of ignorance, His reproof was enough to dishonor them.<sup>37</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ The Scriptures, God’s inspiration, have granted you to know Me and to know where I am from. That you know I am from Nazareth or Bethlehem, and that I am born of a woman does not excuse you to have no faith. But, because of these things that were said about Me and because of My birth in flesh, you should rather have advanced in understanding the mysteries concerning Me, rather than echoing a single word of a prophet who spoke about My incomprehensible birth from God the Father.

+ I am not like you. I shall not imitate your despicable behavior against Me. For, I have not come of Myself. I do not yield to natural impulse as you do. I have come from heaven and He who sent Me is true. He is not like the devil who sent you, Satan the liar whose spirit you received and you dared to tell lies about the prophecies. Satan stirred you up to invent words and say they are God’s words. For the devil is not true; he is a liar and the father of lies (John 8:44). Saint Cyril the Great

+ As though He says, ‘you know Me, and you know where I am from. But you do not know where I am from... You know where I, Jesus the Nazarene, am from; you know. You know His parents because His birth of a perpetual virgin was concealed from you. The virgin’s husband acknowledges this, for he can testify honestly as a jealous husband that that was the expected virginal birth.

They knew the facts concerning Jesus as a man. They knew His face, city, and family. If they inquired, they would know where He was born. In truth, He said, “you both know Me, and you know where I am from” [28], but this that you know concerns my human form.

As for His divinity, He says, “I have not come of Myself, but He who sent Me is true, whom you do not know.” [28] You could have known Him and believed Him who sent Me. “No one has seen God at any time. The only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, He has declared Him.” (John 1:18) “Nor does anyone know the Father, except the Son, and the one to whom the Son wills to reveal Him.” (Matt 11:27). Saint Augustine

+ “Whom you do not know” since you do not know Him who is of Him and in whom alone the Father is declared. For, he who has seen the Son has seen the Father (John 14:9) and he who knows the Son does not ignore Him who begot Him.

He is not like them who do not know His Father. He affirms that He knows Himself and knows Him (the Father) very well indeed. For, He is God from God the Father and has a special, wonderful, and strange knowledge of all those things as befits Him alone. For, the Son does not know the Father in the same way we know Him. The nature of creatures reaches the conception of God through understanding only and does not exceed its appropriate limits. It unwillingly submits to the divine nature combined in the inexpressible words. But, the only begotten Son of God the Father who begot Him perfectly in Himself, depicts the essence of the Father in Himself and knows Him in an inexpressible sense because things concerning God cannot be expressed. Saint Cyril the Great

“But I know Him, for I am from Him, and He sent Me.” [29]

+ Why does He say, “I know Him, for I am from Him, and He sent Me” [29]? He declares both in a glorious manner. He says, “I am from Him” because the Son is from the Father, and the Son is as Him from whom He is the Son. We, therefore, say that the LORD Jesus Christ is God from God. We do not say about the Father that He is God from God, but that He is God. We say about the LORD Jesus, light from light. We do not say about the Father that He is light from light, but that He is the light. This is why He says, “I am from Him.”

But depending on your beholding Me in the flesh “He sent Me.”

When you hear “He sent Me” do not think that there is a difference in essence, but only in the authority of Him who begot.<sup>38</sup> Saint Augustine

Saint John Chrysostom comments on the wonderful meekness of the LORD Christ through which He won many souls to belief in Him.

+ Do you not see how He always desired to prove by this: “I have not come of Myself” “He who sent Me is true” that He endeavored not to be considered an enemy of God? Notice the great benefit of His humble words, for it was later said “When the Christ comes, will He do more signs than these which this Man has done?”<sup>39</sup> Saint John Chrysostom “Therefore they sought to take Him;

but no one laid a hand on Him,
because His hour had not yet come.” [30]

+ The Lord’s rebuke silenced the Pharisees. And when they were sure that their silence concerning these things harmed their obduracy and benefited the multitude (for they were convinced He was the Christ) they thirsted again for His murder and put their reverence of the law aside. They were then counted as unworthy to remember the commandment “the innocent and righteous slay thou not” (exodus 23:7). However, the divine act restrained them, controlled their evil action and changed their plots into mere attempts. Saint Cyril the Great

+ “Therefore they sought to take Him; but no one laid a hand on Him, because His hour had not yet come” that is to say, because He did not will that.

For, what is the meaning of these words, “His hour had not yet come”? The LORD was not born subject to a particular destiny. You must not believe this concerning yourself: (that you are destined. All the more reason that you do not think that about your Creator.) If your hour obeys His good will (and is not by fate) how much more appropriate it is that His hour will not come except in accordance to His good will?

The word “the hour” does not mean the hour when He will die unwillingly, but rather means the hour when He willingly condescends to die. He waited for the hour when He dies just as He waited for the hour when He was born. The Apostle spoke about that saying, “But when the fullness of the time had come, God sent forth His Son born.. (Gal 4:4). For this reason, many ask why did not Christ come before? The answer is, because the fullness of the time had not yet come. In the first place it was necessary to announce His coming throughout many years and eras because His coming is not a trivial event. The foretelling for a long time of Him to whom we adhere eternally was requisite.

The greater the eminence of the judge the longer is the line of his forerunners who announce his coming.

In short, when the fullness of the time had come He who saved us from time came. When we are saved from time we reach eternity where there is no time. Then we shall not say, ‘when will the hour come?’ because the eternal day is not preceded by yesterday, nor is it cut short by tomorrow. But in this world the days recur one after the other; days pass and days come and no day is everlasting. During the moments we are speaking one moment drags another, each moment in turn.

Since we began speaking we have become older, for certainly I am now older than when I was in the morning. Likewise, nothing remains without change; nothing is stable in time. Therefore, we should love Him through whom time was made, for when we love Him we are free from time and abide in the everlasting where there is no change in time.

The blessings of our LORD Jesus Christ are great. For our sake He existed in time, He who made time. He existed among all things, He who through whom all things were made and He became that which He created.

He became Man He who created man so that the things He created may not perish. We consider this provision happened the hour He was born. However, at that time the hour of His suffering had not yet come. He therefore had not yet suffered.<sup>40</sup> Saint Augustine

“And many of the people believed in Him, and said,

‘When the Christ comes, will He do more signs than these which this Man has done?’”

The more the anguish of the rulers and their attempts at killing the LORD Christ and subduing the public, the more did the truth become clear. Therefore, many of the people believed in Him.

The rulers detected unbearable blasphemy in the overt speech of the LORD Christ. Yet, many of the people perceived in His acts of extreme love a sure proof that He was the Promised Messiah, for it was impossible that anyone could do signs similar to those of the LORD Christ. The LORD indeed said that He came for the rising of many, and also for the fall of many.

+ As I often repeat the worldly are convinced not by the teachings or by preaching, but by miracles.<sup>41</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ They always labored to show that He was not the Christ. But, if we consider that He is not the Christ, will the Christ be better than Him? Saint John Chrysostom

+ The LORD healed the humble and the poor. The leaders were in rage and they for this reason only did not know the Physician and even sought to kill Him. There were many people who quickly saw their sickness and without delay knew their cure. Behold how the multitudes were stirred by His miracles and so believed in Him.<sup>42</sup> Saint Augustine

“The Pharisees heard the crowd murmuring these things concerning Him, and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take Him.” [32]

Many of the people began to believe in Him and there was murmuring among the crowd. The rulers felt that any delay was not in their interest. They, therefore, sent officers (of the temple) to arrest Him.

+ The people accused them truly that they were more defeated by their envy than by an interest in the deliverance of the people. And it seems that the crowd wronged them, and became more thirsty for belief in Him.

+ It was more suitable for the chief priests to be leaders in good judgment and have control over the direction of advice that does not oppose God. But as they were far from any good course and had thrown the divine law behind their personal lives, they were swept away by the satisfaction of their stupid agitation only. That is because it is written the head has become the tail (Deut 218:44) for the leader has become a follower and by agreement with the perverse Pharisees, has given vent to his attacks against Christ also. Saint Cyril the Great

“Then Jesus said to them,
‘I shall be with you a little while longer, and then I go to Him who sent Me.’ [33]

Here He speaks to the people, not to the officers. He shows that He knows all about the secret plots of the rulers against Him, though they yet failed to practically fulfill their aim.

+ Tell Me why you are so angry as though I shall stay with you a long time in this world. I confess I am a heavy burden for you. I do not bring much joy to those who do not honor virtue. But do not lay death snares for Me before it is time. “I shall be with you a little while longer” and I shall go joyfully when the right hour for My suffering comes. I shall depart as God from among the wicked, but I shall remain with My people all the time even though it will seem I am absent in the flesh.

Why do you torture yourselves with fruitless counsel?
Sheathe your envy weapon, for you point it at no aim.

Life will not submit to death; corruption will do no harm to incorruption.

The gates of Hades will not confine Me and I shall not become a dead body in your graves. I shall rise up high to Him from whom I am.

I shall ascend again to heaven seen by the people and the angels together as a judge of your blasphemy.

Human beings will wonder at My ascension and when the angels meet Me they will say, "What are these wounds in Your hands? Then I shall answer, Those with which I was wounded in the house of My friends." (Zech 13:6). Saint Cyril the Great

+ I need to complete My provision through that My suffering may be executed.<sup>43</sup> Saint Augustine

"You will seek Me and not find Me, and where I am you cannot come." [34]

Some liken the LORD Christ's words to the pillar of a cloud and the pillar of fire that appeared to the people of Israel in the wilderness. For, Christ's words are, on the one hand, radiant and joyful, but, on the other hand, they are dark.

The joyful aspect is in that the LORD Christ walked in this world a little while, to cross over to the valley of pain then ascend to the Father. It is a world full of hardship that He traveled every day carrying the cross, but this will not last long. Our days are full of trouble; we must endure the thorns and overstep the obstacles and barriers, but we thank God, these are few! Pain will not travel with us to Paradise!

He says, "I go" and so affirms that He willingly, and not against His will, accepts death. He chose this difficult journey as the ambassador of the Father. He offered His life to be a sacrifice for the sake of the world, and then returned to the Father. The uprising of the rulers against Him and their opposition had no power without His permission. At the same time, His heart burned as a Son of Man to go to the Father.

As for the dark side, it concerns the rulers who have so much envy and hatred that they hurry to remove Him from all the earth. However, they do not realize that they seek Him and do not find Him. They obtain the consequence of their ingratitude towards Him. They drink of the cup of their sins when they cannot know and reach Him.

Some writers say that here He speaks about the event when the Romans led by Titus will invade Jerusalem. The Jews will then cry for a savior like Ahab when he sought Elijah and searched for him, but could not find him (1 Kings 18:10).

He may mean that they will, on the Day of Judgment, discover that they opposed the truth. They will seek to participate in the glory with the Messiah, but they will not find Him because the way of repentance will have been closed and everyone will receive according to his deeds. They expect to be saved and rejoice in heaven, but they will find that He whom they resisted is the heavenly judge of humanity and that they are not fit to enter heaven, for they refused the cross, the tree of life.

+ The blessed Paul writes in truth, "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation." (2 Cor 6:2) And again, "Therefore, as we have opportunity, let us do good to all" (Gal 6:10). For, when we lose the opportunity, we lose what it brought. We must not sleep when the blessings are there; we must rather be vigilant and strive wisely to obtain what is profitable, not when the search is futile.

---

+ Let then the spiritual Paul call with a loud voice those who died to sin, saying, “For you died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. When Christ who is our life appears, then you also will appear with Him in glory.” (Col 3:3-4) In his sermon about the resurrection he also writes, “Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the LORD in the air. And thus we shall always be with the LORD.” (1 Thess 4:17)

Yes. As when the thief, who was hanged with Him and was at the very point of death, believed in Him, he took hold of the grace of the saints. For, Christ said to him, “Assuredly, I say to you, today you will be with Me in Paradise.” (Luke 23:43)

Thus, those who honor Him with obedience will be with Him with no hindrance. They will rejoice because of the blessings that surpass understanding. But those who do not desist from offending Him with their stupidity although they are sons of the wedding, they will be cast out in the abyss of grief to receive bitter punishment. As it is written, they “will be cast out into outer darkness” (Matt 8:12). Saint Cyril the Great

+ Here He, beforehand, tells them about His resurrection. When He was present, they did not know Him. But later they will seek Him when they discover that the multitudes had believed in Him.

Wonderful signs will happen when the LORD rises and ascends to heaven. His disciples will achieve great deeds. He will work through them as He personally worked. For, He said to them, “without Me you can do nothing” (John 15:5).

When the lame man who sat at the gate walked after he heard Peter’s voice, the people were filled with wonder. Then Peter spoke to them saying that it was not by his own power that he made the man walk, but through Him whom they killed (Acts 3:16). Many were pricked in their hearts and asked, “what should we do?” when they perceived that they were involved in a horrible crime when they killed Him whom they should honor and worship.<sup>44</sup>

+ He did not say, ‘where I shall be’, but said, “where I am [34] because Christ has always been in that place when He was on His way back. He came in a manner through which He did not leave that place (heaven). “No one has ascended to heaven but He who came down from heaven, that is, the Son of Man who is in heaven.” (John 3:13) He did not say He was in heaven. He spoke while He was on earth and said that at that time He was in heaven.<sup>45</sup>

+ He did not say, ‘you will not be able to come’, but He said, “you cannot come” [34] because at that time they were not able for that. And, so that they may know that He did not say this to cause them to lose hope, He said to His disciples, “where I am going, you cannot come” (John 13:33). Yet, in His prayer for them He said, “Father, I desire that they also whom You gave Me may be with Me where I am” (John 17:24). He explained to Peter saying, “where I am going you cannot follow Me now, but you shall follow Me afterward” (John 13:36).<sup>46</sup> Saint Augustine

+ Even in this present life, a soldier who disrespects his king cannot see the king, but is dismissed from his position, and is punished cruelly. Therefore, if we steal, are greedy, or offend others, if we do not practice deeds of mercy, we cannot go there. We shall then suffer the experience of the foolish virgins who could not enter. They were lazy, their lamps were extinguished, that is to say, grace left them.<sup>47</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

“Then the Jews said among themselves,
‘Where does He intend to go that we shall not find Him?
Does He intend to go to the Dispersion among the Greeks and teach the Greeks?’ [35]

They thought that He spoke about leaving Judea and going to the Dispersion in the world to preach the Jews who were in many countries having Greek culture and using the Greek Septuagint. The Jews in Judea wanted to clean the Jews from Hellenic (Greek) thought. They thought He intended to go to the pagan nations to preach to them.

+ What is “the Dispersion among the Greeks”? This is what the Jews called the Gentiles because the Jews were dispersed in all places and were intermixed with the others without satiation. This shame caused them to fall later and they became scattered. After saying this, they noticed that they did not say that He will go to destroy them, but they said, He will go to “teach” them. To this degree they dropped their anger.<sup>48</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ Indeed, the LORD was going to the Gentiles (the Greeks) not in His personal presence, but on His feet. What are those two feet? Those are the two feet that Saul wanted to trample on by persecuting Christians. Then the Head cried to him, “Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me?” (Acts 9:4)<sup>49</sup>

+ This that the LORD speaks about saying that they do not know the place – if it is right to call it a place – is in the bosom of the Father. Christ never left it, and they were not qualified to comprehend where Christ was from where He will never withdraw. For where He goes He has always been.

How can the human heart understand this?

And even more how can the human tongue explain it?

They never understood that and yet they foretold our salvation by saying that the LORD will go to the Dispersion among the Gentiles. They accomplished what they read, but did not understand: “A people I have not known shall serve me. As soon as they hear of me they obey me” (Ps 18:43) Those who were in front of His eyes did not listen to Him, but His voice rang in the ears of those who heard of Him.<sup>50</sup> Saint Augustine

+ They do not say, ‘He will ascend to heaven’ even though they heard Him say clearly, “I shall be with you a little while longer, and then I go to Him who sent Me.” [33] But they imagined a city of the Greeks as if the Father sent Him among them.

They are like those who prophesy and do not know what they say. Some divine force drove them and caused them, in their doubt, to introduce Christ into a Gentile city and think that this might happen after a little while.

In saying this they offend Him with disgrace as though He had transgressed the law; as though He broke the divine commandments and disregarded all things. Saint Cyril the Great

6 – The Promise of Pentecost

“On the last day, that great day of the feast,
Jesus stood and cried out, saying, ‘If anyone thirsts, let him come to Me and drink.’” [37]

Those who attached themselves to Moses the prophet, drank water from the rock in the wilderness. The rock followed them and overflowed with water to quench their thirst. But he who believes in the LORD Christ carries the Rock inside himself and the flood springs not from the outside, but inside him, in his inner self where the kingdom of God is.

The Jews call the running water, living water, because it moves all the time and does not stop. Likewise, when the LORD Christ is in the heart, the believer enjoys many blessings and those blessings inundate those who surround him (Prov 10:11). We do not only drink of the spring inside us and rest in the divine grace given to us, but we must also let this inner well overflow to quench the thirst of many. Thus, the dry, barren earth changes into a Paradise and its water overflows the dry, barren spirits to share its new paradisiacal nature.

On the last day of the feast, the LORD Christ stood to offer a call to the people about to return to their homes. He offered His invitation openly crying out. During the first days of the feast they offer sacrifices for the seventy nations in the world. However, the last day is devoted for Israel alone. Therefore, the eighth day was considered “great” and had its special importance.

+ He does not say, ‘You must drink, you must run whether you like or not.’ He rather says, ‘Let whoever wishes and is able, run and drink, for he will overcome and drink.’<sup>51</sup> Saint Jerome

+ It is not an insignificant matter that we read that a river proceeds from the throne of God. The Evangelist John writes, “And he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding from the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the middle of its street, and on either side of the river, was the tree of life, which bore twelve fruits, each tree yielding its fruit every month. The leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.” (Rev 22:1-2) This is certainly the river proceeding from the throne of God, that is to say, the Holy Spirit that who believes in Christ drinks as Christ Himself said [37-38].<sup>52</sup> Saint Ambrose

+ In conclusion, a man must either take everything from the river or the valley, or he perishes. We, therefore, say that our LORD Jesus Christ is compared to the river; in Him we find all joy and comfort in hope; in Him we rejoice in spiritual bliss. Saint Cyril the Great

+ If we are thirsty, let us come not on foot, but by means of our emotions. Let us come, not by moving from our place, but by love. Although in accordance to my inner self I like also to move from one place to another, yet whoever changes his place physically, does so because he is motivated by his heart. If you now like something and previously you liked something else, you are now not at the same place where you were.<sup>53</sup> Saint Augustine

+ Even though the soul is united with God, yet it does not feel fully and absolutely happy. The more it enjoys His beauty, the more it yearns for Him. The words of the Bridegroom are Spirit and Life (John 5:24). All those who adhere to the Spirit become spirits. All those who adhere to Life pass from death into life as the LORD said.

Thus, the virgin spirit always aspires to grow through the spring of spiritual life. The spring is the mouth of the Bridegroom, from it emerge the words of everlasting life. He fills the mouth that approaches Him, as David the prophet said that he opened his mouth and received the Spirit (Ps 119:131). In order that he may drink, it is necessary for the person to put his mouth on the mouth of the spring. The LORD Himself is the spring as He says, "If anyone thirsts, let him come to Me and drink" (John 7:37). Therefore, the thirsty souls wish to put their mouths on the mouth that gives life and say, "Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth" (Song of Solomon 1:2).

He who grants life to all and desires all men to be saved yearns for everyone to enjoy a share of these kisses that purify from all filth.<sup>54</sup>

+ We need to meditate well on the holy words in the Song: "Come with me from Lebanon, my spouse, with me from Lebanon: look from the top of Amana, from the top of Shenir and Hermon, from the lions' dens, from the mountains of the leopards." (Song of Solomon 4:8)

What do these words mean?

The Spring of grace attracts all those who are thirsty, as the Spring says in the Gospel, "If anyone thirsts, let him come to Me and drink" (John 7:37).

In these words, Christ does not set any limit for our thirst and our movement towards Him. Nor does He limit our thirst quenching. His command extends to all times and urges us to thirst and go to Him. Those who tasted and saw, through trial, that God is great and good (Ps 34:8) have a sense of taste that impels them to approach more. Therefore, the person who walks continuously towards God does not lack this incentive to advance.<sup>55</sup>

+ If we wish to quote a greater evidence from the Holy Bible, we point out the words of the LORD Christ to those who believe in Him, that rivers of living water will flow out of anyone who believes in Him. He says, "He who believes in Me ... out of his heart will flow rivers of living water." (John 7:38) Add to this that the pure hearts are referred to as showing the work of law written in them (Rom 2:15). The Apostle explains that the Law is written in the heart. It is written not with ink but by the Spirit of the living God (2 Cor 3:3). God draws these letters in the spirit, not on tablets of stone – so says the Apostle – but on the tablet of the pure heart, the light and luminous.

It is necessary to trace the holy words that are in the pure, clear memory, over the leading force of the spirit, in distinct relief. The breath, indeed, refers to the glorification of the Bridegroom's heart only, the tablet that emits light the color of the sky.

This image guides us so that we may be aware of the heavenly things, where our treasure is (Matt 6:21). If we keep God's commandments steadfastly, sacred hopes will be created for us to invigorate our spiritual eyes.<sup>56</sup>

+ After that, the Song raises the Bride to the highest glory with the additional name that she is a well of living waters and streams from Lebanon. The Holy Bible teaches us that the nature of God is to grant life. This is expressed in a prophecy by a man of God that says, "they have forsaken me the fountain of living waters" (Jer 2:13). Then, the LORD Christ says to the Samaritan woman, "Jesus answered and said to her, 'If you knew the gift of God, and who it is who says to you, 'Give Me a drink,' you would have asked Him, and He would have given you living water.'" (John 4:10) The LORD said, "If anyone thirsts, let him come to Me and drink. He who believes in Me, as the Scripture has said, out of his heart will flow rivers of living water. But this He spoke concerning the Spirit, whom those believing in Him would receive." (John 7:37-39)

All these statements indicate that the living water is the holy nature. It is permissible, therefore, that the Song says truly of the Bride that she is a well of living waters and streams from Lebanon. This, indeed, contradicts the known fact that all wells contain stagnant water. However, the Bride alone has running water in a deep well and this water overflows continuously.

Who is able and worthy to understand the wonders granted to the Bride? It is clear that she reached her utmost wishes. For, she is compared to the eternal beauty, from which all beauty originates. Her fountain is exactly similar to her Bridegroom's fountain; her life is like his, her water is his. His word is a living word and by it lives every spirit that receives it.

This water flows out of God as the Spring of living waters says, "for I proceeded forth and came from God" (John 8:42).

The Bride keeps the flow of living water in the well of her spirit. She becomes a dwelling that treasures this living water that flows from Lebanon, that is to say, that forms the streams from Lebanon, as the text says.

We have become in communion with God by possessing this well in order that we may achieve Wisdom's commandment (Prov 5:15, 17) and drink waters out of our own well and not the well of a stranger. We enjoy that in Christ our LORD to whom is glory and majesty forever. Amen.<sup>57</sup> Saint Gregory of Nyssa

The Psalm refers to God as a river that flows with His blessing to quench the thirst of the human race (Ps 36:7-8). He will extend peace and glory to the Gentiles (Is 66:12 LXX).

"He who believes in Me, as the Scripture has said, out of his heart will flow rivers of living water." [38]

Who believes in Me and accepts Me as the Messiah about whom the Scriptures prophesied, the Holy Spirit dwells in his heart and overflows with life. He becomes a spring that has abundance of the fruits of the Spirit: love, joy, peace, freedom, and enlightenment. The Jews were used to liken the work of the Holy Spirit to the ‘former’ and the ‘latter’ rain and to the fountains, wells and rivers and so on (Ps 36:8-9; Is 44:3-4; Joel 2:23).

When He says, “If anyone thirsts”, He means, if anyone senses his want of righteousness, his need for the spiritual blessings, or his inner emptiness.

“Let him come to Me and drink.” Let him not stand before the chief priest and admire the golden vessel from which he pours a little water from the pool of Siloam. Let him not go to many contradictory pagan philosophies that attract and deceive men. Let him rather come to the LORD Christ as the Holy Bible presents to us in both Testaments.

+ The reward of faith is great and endless. The believer says that he enjoys the richest blessings of God. For, he will be filled with the gifts of the Spirit that will not only enrich his mind, but will also be able to overflow in the hearts of others like a running river that abounds with bliss granted by God to his neighbor also. Saint Cyril the Great

+ There is inner thirst, and there is inner heart, for there is inner self. This inner self is truly invisible, but the outer man is visible. However, the inner is better than the outer. The invisible is more loved, for, certainly, the inner man is more loved than the outer man.<sup>58</sup>

+ What does the fountain mean, and what is the river that flows out of the heart of the inner man? This is the inclination to be charitable and to care for one’s brother. If he imagines that his drink must satisfy him alone, there will be no living water flowing out of his heart. But, if he hastens to care for his brother, he will not be dry, but will rather overflow.<sup>59</sup> Saint Augustine

+ The heart...where, in the Holy Bible, do we find these words, that ‘out of his heart will flow rivers of living water’? Nowhere.

What, then is the meaning of “He who believes in Me, as the Scripture has said”? Here, we must stop, for the statement “out of his heart will flow rivers” may be an assertion about Christ. Many said, “this is truly the Christ.” They said, “When the Christ comes, will He do more signs than these?” He reveals the need for true knowledge, and that they must not be content with the miracles, but with the Scripture.

He previously said, “search the Scriptures” (5:39) and also, “It is written in the prophets” and “they shall all be taught by God” (6:45). He said, “Moses accuses you” (5:45) and here He says, “as the Scripture has said, out of his heart will flow rivers” hinting at the greatness of the grace and its overflow. In another place He calls it “everlasting life”, but here He calls it “rivers of living water.”

For, when the grace of the Spirit enters and dwells in the mind, it overflows more than any fountain.

It will neither stop nor waste away.

He calls it “a well” and “rivers”, so that we may understand that it gives unending help and that at the same time it is an unfailing energy. It is not one river, but numerous, countless rivers.

It is possible for a person to understand clearly what this means if he takes into consideration the wisdom of Stephen, the eloquence of Peter, and the zeal of Paul.<sup>60</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ Thus, the LORD commands the prophet to cross the river (1 Kings 17:2) so that he may drink of the New Covenant, not only of one river, but “out of his heart will flow rivers of living water” [38]. These are rivers of understanding, rivers of meditation, spiritual rivers that will dry up at times of disbelief, lest those who defile sacred things, and the non-believers drink of them. At that place, the ravens knew what the Jews did not know. The ravens brought him food, while the royal, honorable people persecuted him.<sup>61</sup> Saint Ambrose

“But this He spoke concerning the Spirit, whom those believing in Him would receive; for the Holy Spirit was not yet given, because Jesus was not yet glorified.” [39]

God does not withhold His Spirit from the human race. He created man so that the Spirit of God works and dwells in him. But man turned his back willingly and did not accept Him. The Spirit then became a guest working in the men of God and in prophets, and even sometimes, in non-believers to attract them to faith. However, when the LORD was glorified on the Cross, He paid the price for the forgiveness of our sins and our glorification in Him. He granted us the Spirit in abundance as He had promised in Joel 2:28.

The Holy Spirit is the greatest gift; He is the giver of gifts. We received a promise of His coming to the Church and His dwelling in the heart of the believer. He will distribute the talents and gifts as He wills, for the glory of God, the growth of the Church, and the redemption of the spirits.

Saint Augustine opines that the Holy Spirit descended on many before Jesus was glorified with His resurrection. Examples are Simeon the Elder, Anna the prophetess, and Saint Mary at the Incarnation. However, the descent of the Holy Spirit after the Resurrection, was general on the Church on Pentecost when all the Gentile languages were spoken. But why does not the believer obtain the gift of speaking in Gentile languages when he is baptized now and receives the Holy Spirit?

Saint Augustine answers this question saying that as the Church spread over the world, Christians spoke all the languages of the world. Every Christian, as a member of the universal Church, considers himself as one who speaks all the languages of nations, because the languages of his brethren are considered his language, for he and they are members in one body.<sup>62</sup>

Once more, Saint Augustine says that after Christ’s resurrection, Christ granted us the Holy Spirit through whom we love the Church and enjoy her love and unity. We enjoy the resurrection with Him when with our hearts we leave the world and live with Him in heaven. “We have the Holy Spirit if we love the Church. But we love the Church if we abide in her unity and love. Here, we are born and die. Would we do not love the world, but leave it with love and with love dwell in the highest with the same love that God loves us. In this life journey would we do not think of anything but that we remain here and that with good life we prepare for ourselves a place that we never leave.”<sup>63</sup>

If the Holy Spirit was not yet given, how did the prophets of the Old Testament perform miracles? Was not that the work of the Holy Spirit dwelling in them? Again, how did the Lord's disciples practice miracles before the Holy Spirit descended on them? Saint John Chrysostom answers this question saying, “They cast out demons not with the Spirit, but some of them did that through the power given them.”

“He sent them”: the Evangelist does not say, ‘He gave them the Holy Spirit’, but says, “He gave them power” (Matt 10:1) to cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, and cast out demons in the same manner as the prophets. In the case of the prophets they all confess that this is the gift of the Holy Spirit. But this gift was limited and would depart and was incomplete on earth. The Holy Spirit was preserved for particular individuals. “But the future overflows.”<sup>64</sup>

+ The Cross is called “glory.” It was necessary to offer the Sacrifice for us first to remove the hostility that is in our body, in order that we may become friends of God and then accept the Gift.<sup>65</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

+ The Holy Spirit is the river that flows – according to the Hebrews – from Christ to the earth. We have accepted that, as Isaiah prophesied (Is 66:12). This great river that will always overflow and never stop is not only a river, but is also one of the abundant currents that overflow greatness as David says, “There is a river whose streams shall make glad the city of God” (Ps 46:4). Thus the irrigation of that city, the heavenly Jerusalem, is not by an earthly river, but by this Holy Spirit who proceeds from God, the source of life. That stream that proceeds from the One who satisfies us seems to overflow abundantly among the heavenly thrones, potentates, and powers, and among the angels and archangels, running in the complete share of the seven spiritual virtues.<sup>66</sup> Saint Ambrose

+ God the Father began to give the Spirit again. Christ was the first to accept the Spirit as the First One in the renewed nature. For, John testified saying, “I saw the Spirit descending from heaven ...and He remained upon Him.” (John 1:32)

Christ did not accept the Spirit for Himself, but rather for us in Him. For, all good things overflow also in us through Him.

For, when our grandfather, Adam, digressed through deceit, he fell into rebellion and sin, and he did not keep the blessing of the Spirit. Thus, in Adam, the human nature lost all the good that God gave it. It was necessary, therefore, that God, the Unchangeable, should become a Man in order that the goodness He obtains as Man He keeps in our nature forever. Our guide in the interpretation of these mysteries is the godly Psalmist himself. He says to the Son, “You love righteousness and hate wickedness. Therefore God, Your God, has anointed You with the oil of gladness more than Your companions.” (Ps 45:7).

+ There is a rich, special glamour in the holy prophets. They get it from the source of enlightenment, that is the Holy Spirit who can guide them to understand forthcoming things and know terrible news. But we are confident that those who believe in Christ do not only obtain enlightenment through the Holy Spirit, but the Spirit Himself dwells and makes His home in them. Let us comprehend that He means the residence of the Holy Spirit in human beings is perfect. Saint Cyril the Great “Therefore many from the crowd, when they heard this saying, said, ‘Truly this is the Prophet.’” [40]

Some said that He is the great Prophet about whom Moses the prophet spoke (Deut 18:15). However, unfortunately, they could not understand that the Prophet meant the Messiah, the Savior of the world. Others said He was the Christ.

“Others said,
‘This is the Christ.’
But some said,
‘Will the Christ come out of Galilee?’” [41]

The Old Testament prophesied that the Christ would come of the tribe of Judah from the line of David. Therefore, some doubted, as they did not know that He was born in Bethlehem, but thought that He was born in Galilee.

Saint Cyril the Great says that the crowds, like the Pharisees, lacked accuracy in this matter. They thought that the Prophet that God promised to Moses He will raise up from among his brethren, like Moses (Deut 18:18) was a different person from the Christ. Because of their lack of accuracy, the Pharisees thought that three persons would appear. For, they say to Saint John the Baptist, “Why then do you baptize if you are not the Christ, nor Elijah, nor the Prophet?” (John 1:25)

“Has not the Scripture said that the Christ comes from the seed of David and from the town of Bethlehem, where David was?” [42]

The Jews knew that the LORD Christ would come from the seed of David (Ps 132:11) and would be born in Bethlehem (Micah 5:2). But, as Saint Cyril the Great says, the Jews fell into error and needed right thinking because it was rumored that Jesus was brought up in Nazareth (Luke 4:16).

“So there was a division among the people because of Him.” [43]

+ Because of their division they did not know the Christ. They did not understand the accuracy of the Scripture. For, if they believed that Jesus was the Prophet mentioned in the Law, they would not have fallen into this unbecoming discussion. Saint Cyril the Great

“Now some of them wanted to take Him, but no one laid hands on Him.” [44]

The result is that there was a division among the crowd. There were four groups. One group believed He was the Prophet, but not the Christ. Another group believed He was the Christ. A third group could see in Him signs of the Christ, but they stumbled because they thought He was from Galilee. The fourth group followed the rulers and wanted to take Him, but could not.

+ No one laid hands on Him, not because they honored Him, but because only His power stopped them. Saint Cyril the Great

“Then the officers came to the chief priests and Pharisees, who said to them,
‘Why have you not brought Him?’” [45]

Although this was the last great day of the feast, yet they could not be happy because they deprived themselves of the LORD Christ, the source of joy.

The chief priest performed the feast ritual. Yet he, the priests, and Pharisees were not preoccupied with helping the people to enjoy God’s love and understand the mystery of the feast, but they instead distracted the people with appearances while the rulers conspired. In their opinion, church politics were more important than the spiritual work. They sat in the special meeting room waiting for the arrival of the officers of the temple with Jesus in fetters.

As they sent the officers of the temple to arrest Him, they were terrified when they saw the officers coming back without Him. They were astonished when the officers returned without Him and they may have thought that He, as usual in such cases, had hidden until the hour would come.

“The officers answered,
‘No man ever spoke like this Man.’” [46]

They did not expect that the officers of the temple themselves would be attracted to Him and testify boldly before the multitude that “No man ever spoke like this Man.” The officers may have followed the LORD since He came about the middle of the feast. They listened attentively to Him to find a reason for arresting Him. But, the more they listened, the more they were convinced that He was righteous and full of heavenly wisdom.

The rulers told them that He was a false prophet and deceiver. But when they heard Him, they adhered to Him and realized that He taught the truth, all the truth, and nothing but the truth.

+ We may assume that the words of the officers were full of reason. They reasoned as follows. We are satisfied with the teaching of the Scripture. We boast that we are learned in the divine Law, and we admire wisdom as goodness not from this earth. Why, then, do we wickedly expel Him who has wisdom and, in great misconception, disgrace Him whom we should not accuse, but to whom we owe special love? Yes. We submit to the Law, and yet we are eager to kill an innocent and righteous man (Ex 23:7) without cause.

Concerning the statement, “No man ever spoke like this Man” I believe that one can say about this something to this effect. They probably meant to say, ‘it is unreasonable to blame us because we have not brought to you now whom you want. For, how can a person resist, even against his will, a Man whose words are those of a god.

He does not speak like a human being, His words are not those of a human being; they are those that rightly belong to one who has God’s nature.

Let anyone say if any holy prophet can call himself a river or dare to say, “If anyone thirsts, let him come to Me and drink.” When did the great Moses say to us, “He who believes in Me out of his heart will flow rivers of living waters”? How can we take Him against His will, He who is above us immeasurably, as God is above men?

This is how the officers gave a clear proof that the LORD is God in essence. This is how they attacked on every side those who resisted God. Saint Cyril the Great

+ Here are the chief priests and the Pharisees who thought that they had more wisdom than others. They came to the Christ and saw His wonders; they read the Scripture, but nothing profited them. They were blind.

But their officers heard with the multitude one speech of the LORD Christ and that speech trapped them. They went to Him to arrest Him, but they returned bound and amazed at Him.

We admire their understanding, for they did not need signs, but only His doctrine to lure them.

They did not say that no human being ever did such wonders like Him. They said, “No man ever spoke like this Man.” We, therefore, must not marvel at their understanding, we must rather be surprised at their boldness because they said that to the Pharisees who had sent them.

Their words are not the words of those who merely admire Him, but they also blame their masters because they oppose without listening. Although they did not hear a sermon, but only a brief talk, they were convinced. When a person hears a long sermon his mind decides impartially and does not need a long discussion.<sup>67</sup> Saint John Chrysostom

“Then the Pharisees answered them,
‘Are you also deceived?’” [47]

No wonder that since its beginnings and until now, some think that Christianity deceives. Whoever accepts it is deceived.

+ See how this answer is full of some kind of despair. They have no hope for the people. What has hindered your love for us, though you grew out of the same lack of belief as we did! Saint Cyril the Great

“Have any of the rulers or the Pharisees believed in Him?” [48]

For them, the criterion for truth is that a large number of the rulers accept Him. For, though many among the populace believe in Him, the rulers still think that if only a few of them believe in Him, this proves that He is a deceiver and has no truth in Him.<sup>68</sup>

7 – The Testimony of the Officers of the Altar for Him

“But this crowd that does not know the law is accursed.” [49]

The Pharisees despised the people. They did not regard the people's belief in the LORD Christ as important, but they thought the people did not understand the law and were, therefore, accursed.

The religious leaders at that time, even though they were in conflict among themselves, they still agreed in considering the people uneducated and so scorned and despised them. Instead of blaming themselves for neglecting to care and teach the people, they said the people were accursed. They blamed the people for their ignorance, instead of blaming themselves for failing in their task as teachers.

+ The Pharisees fell as usual in the sin of bragging. They accused of ignorance those who admired Jesus for His wonders and for doing divine deeds. They crowned themselves alone with service in accordance to the law and with knowledge of the Scriptures. They admired themselves much and they became thoughtless. In their extreme contempt they easily described the people as ignorant. Saint Cyril the Great

+ O Pharisees, you bear the blame, for the multitudes believed in the LORD Christ, but you denied Him. They acted as those who know the law. How, then, may they be accursed? Truly, you are accursed because you did not observe the law. Saint John Chrysostom

“Nicodemus

(he who came to Jesus by night, being one of them) said to them {50]

‘Does our law judge a man before it hears him and knows what he is doing?’” [51]

Nicodemus was a Pharisee and one of the rulers of the Jews. God, thus, was not without witness even among the corrupt Sanhedrim. God's witness in Nebuchadnezzar's palace was the prophet Daniel; in Artaxerxes's palace Nehemiah was God's witness, and God found Hushai among Absalom's wicked advisers and used him to change their evil counsel into foolishness.

Nicodemus objected to the false steps they took against Jesus. He said that they acted against the law.

+ Nicodemus exposed them as ignorant of the Law. They neither knew nor observed the law. For, the law does not decree the murder of a man before his judges hear him. Yet, these hurry to kill Him before they hear Him. Therefore, they disobey the Law. Saint John Chrysostom

+ He was somewhat alarmed because he considered himself accursed along with the others. For, a man's conscience hastens not to be silent when faced with things he opposes. He diverted the very insult to them, not frankly, but by discussion, and his words of objection took their force from the Law but not in a direct, open manner. Saint Cyril the Great

“They answered and said to him,

‘Are you also from Galilee?

Search and look, for no prophet has arisen out of Galilee.’” [52]

Although Nicodemus did not leave his membership in the Sanhedrim to follow the LORD Christ as His disciple, he testified for Him in the middle of the assembly in the darkest moments.

They based their discussion on several mistakes besides their envy and malevolence. They thought that Jesus was from Galilee, although He was born in Bethlehem of the house of David. They thought that most of His disciples were Galileans, yet He had many disciples from Judea. Moreover, they claimed that no prophet had arisen out of Galilee, but Elijah the prophet was from Gilead.

+ The Pharisees falsely say about Christ our Savior, “no prophet has arisen out of Galilee.” They should have rather inquired how He who came of Jewish parents (John 6:42) could be a Galilean. They should have taken into consideration that He was brought up in Nazareth. They should not, for this reason, stray from faith. Saint Cyril the Great

+ When the Pharisees say to Nicodemus, “search and look” they imply that he should go and learn. That is to say, Nicodemus did not know all that was written in the Scriptures.

“And everyone went to his own house.” [53]

The meeting ended and everyone went to his house without reaching a final decision.

Let Living Water Pour Forth in Me

+ Allow me, dear LORD to record this unique feast.
Thousands and thousands of people were busy erecting their tents
The tents were everywhere in the streets, squares, and fields.
The crowds went out in two processions rejoicing.
One group took tree branches and palm leaves to wave them
And the other group went to Siloam with the chief priest to bring water.
Everybody was eager to participate with great joy in the rituals of the Feast of Tabernacles.

+ Behold, I see two secret, serious processions.
One secret procession was of the confused rulers.
They did not feel happy with the feast as long as You lived to serve humanity!
They did their best to get rid of You at any cost!
And they considered every lie was in keeping the law so that they might kill You!

+ But Your secret procession is truly wonderful!
You refused to go up with Your relatives to Jerusalem for the Feast.
You went as it were in secret to celebrate a true Feast!
Instead of the booths, You desired to build Your city in the hearts of those who believe in You.

Instead of the olive branches and palm leaves You gave them Your peace and victory.
Instead of the leaders' talks full of hypocrisy, You announced that You are the Truth.
Instead of pouring water from a golden vessel,
You revealed rivers of living water gushing inside us.

+ Yes. Let living water pour forth in me.
So that instead of celebrating a symbolic feast of tabernacles, I celebrate an eternal, continuous feast.

Instead of the water of Siloam, I drink the Holy Spirit.
I drink and overflow on my brethren.
Your Spirit turns our wilderness into a divine paradise!
Your Holy Spirit grants us Your true peace!
Your Holy Spirit grants us constant victory!
Your Holy Spirit makes of us a holy city for God.

+ Yours is the glory, who goes up to Jerusalem.
You change all bitterness into an everlasting joy.
You open my heart's door for Your Father and Your Holy Spirit.
The heavenly find in it their pleasure.

The Gospel according to St. John- Chapter 8

The Lord Jesus Christ is the Light of the World

The One Who has Opened the Door of Hope

The scribes and the Pharisees brought to the Lord Jesus Christ a woman who had been caught in the act of adultery. They asked whether He would condemn her and have her stoned according to the law of Moses. They probably expected Him to support the sentence of stoning. Consequently, they would ask Him to throw the first stone at her. They believed that this would cause the crowds to be disgusted and therefore turn away from following Him. Those who had been attracted to Him on account of His gentleness and tenderness, even with sinners, would turn away from Him. Should the Lord refuse to condemn her, He would be seen as someone breaking the law and therefore deserve to be condemned to death Himself.

The Lord did not oppose the sentence stated in the law. However, He inquired as to the person who is qualified to implement the sentence, and He said:

“He who is without sin among you, let him throw a stone at her first,” [7].

The oldest one among them was the first to leave the place, and then the others followed him out. In the meantime, the Lord kept writing on the ground and in a language that revealed to each one his own hidden sins. The adulterous woman was the only one left standing before the Judge of the whole world. He had not come to condemn, but He had come to save. Therefore the Lord asked her not to return to sin again. He alone had the right to condemn her. However, He opens the door of hope to sinners so that they might repent. He offers Himself as the Liberator of the soul, for He is the Divine Truth [23].

Whereas the Lord is gentle and tender towards sinners, He is stern with the religious leaders. They obeyed and practised the work of Satan their father who is both a murderer and the father of all liars. The Lord wanted to liberate them from being the children of Satan. This would enable them to enjoy the truth rather than lies. They would then practise love rather than indulge in the lust to kill. They claimed to be Abraham’s free children; yet they did not walk in his steps. Rather, they fulfilled the plots of Satan. The Lord Jesus Christ told them how Abraham rejoiced when he saw the day of the Lord, and when he saw that day he was glad [56].

The way the Lord dealt with the adulterous woman reveals the nature of the Lord and His deep love towards sinners. He shines upon them with the rays of love in order to disperse the darkness within them.

1- The Woman Caught in Adultery

‘But Jesus went to the Mount of Olives’ [1]

In the previous chapter we have watched how the Lord was being troubled especially by the religious leaders. Now when the evening had come, the Lord left the city and went to Mount Olives. Usually, He would go to rest in the home of a friend, or He would stay in any of the tents that were set up for the Feast of the Tabernacles. Some observers believe that on that evening the Lord could not find anyone in Jerusalem that could receive Him, so He went to Mount Olives. Others believe He went there to spend the night in prayer.

* The Lord Jesus Christ spent the whole of the last day of the Feast- which was the eighth day of celebrations- teaching in the temple in Jerusalem. He had criticized the teachings of the Pharisees. In the evening, they left for the day and had returned to their homes; whereas the Lord went up to Mount Olives. During the day the Lord taught in the temple; and at night He would go to Mount Olives. Here the Lord intends to teach us not to own homes bought by our business and to be content with the bare necessities for our comfort; bearing in mind that we will eventually leave these buildings behind and depart to the eternal world. Consequently all our struggle to possess these buildings would have been wasteful and useless.

St. John Chrysostom

‘But early in the morning, He came again to the temple, and all the people came to Him.
And He sat down and taught them’ [2].

The Lord Jesus Christ came early to the temple in order to teach the people. They had come to the One who had taught them the day before, and He had come early to find them. Even though He had probably spent the whole night in prayer on Mount Olives, yet as one who loves His work, He had come early to the temple. His desire is that everyone would enjoy the knowledge He had to offer. Moreover, He loves those who come and seek Him early. Accordingly His words are: “I love them who love Me, and those who seek Me diligently will find Me (Prov.8:17).

The Lord wished to meet with the people within the temple. He had not come to make them abandon their ancient traditions. Rather, He had come to grant them a new understanding and a new concept regarding the law, the temple, and the manner of worship. He sat down to teach them as one who possesses authority. He desired them all to sit with Him, to keep still and enjoy Him as they listened to the truth.

It was customary for the great teachers to sit down while they taught since such meetings could go on for a long time. Note what St. John says: “...and all the people came to Him....” The verb ‘came’ implies continuity in the stream of those coming; while the expression ‘...all the people...’ indicates the crowds. Therefore the reference is that there was constant and increasing movement since the early morning (Lk 21:38).

‘Then the scribes and the Pharisees brought to Him a woman caught in adultery. And when they had set her in their midst... [3]

Some scholars believe that because adultery had become so widespread, some parts of the law concerning that subject were not carried out. For example, the adulterous woman was no longer brought to a priest or made to drink the bitter water (Num 5:14). Moreover, many of the men were guilty of adultery too.

The scribes and Pharisees saw how the crowds were gathered around the Lord and were listening to His teachings since the early morning. Therefore, on the one hand, they sought to spoil this gathering by bringing the adulterous woman. In this way they would distract the attention of the crowds away from the Lord's teaching. On the other hand, they wanted to set a trap for the Lord: if He forgave her, He would have broken the law. If He condemned her, the crowds would be repulsed by His cruelty.

‘They said to Him: “Teacher, this woman was caught in adultery, in the very act “[4].

They address the Lord as ‘teacher’ although on the previous day they had called him a ‘deceiver’ (7:47).

The scribes and the Pharisees had failed in the essence of their mission which is to offer to every soul the knowledge of God's will and consequently enjoy His divine love. They became so preoccupied with the literal application of the law that they neglected man's salvation and the joyously deep fellowship with God. Therefore it was not hard for them to find a woman caught in adultery and to bring her to the Lord. Each one of them carried a heart made of stone that hungered and flourished by the spilling of blood. They sought to stone both her and the Lord Jesus as well.

They did not realize that the Lord, who is the Word of God, would criticize the law and perfect it. Indeed, He raises it from being deadly letters to constructive words that would sanctify the innermost depths.

Those who were preoccupied with the literal interpretation of the law believed that they would definitely conquer and rejoice as the woman would be stoned to death and banished from life. They believed that she did not deserve to live in a house or even exist on earth. They had decided that she deserved to be thrown in a pit and hit by a shower of stones. They were unaware that they had come to the Almighty Forgiver of sin. He alone would draw her away from the house of Satan and from adultery. He would not only forgive her, but He would also lead her to find the Holy One. She would consequently discover the Bridegroom of her soul and her heavenly nuptial home where she will dwell.

The story of the adulterous woman opens the door of divine love and mercy to every soul. This leads each soul to discover the law of the Lord and its attractive inner aspect. Consequently the soul would hear the divine Voice saying: “ ...for God did not send His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved’ (Jn. 3:17; 12:47). Then nothing could have the power to condemn the soul to eternal death. Rather, the soul would have found the One who is willing to buy her with His precious Blood, and grant her heavenly righteousness. The Lord will intercede for her before God and carry her into the Divine embrace. In this manner the whole chain of events is transformed: from being a soul brought before judges ready to condemn her, she is brought into an eternal and heavenly wedding.

In his letter to Eustochum about the virgins, St. Jerome requests them to leave their father's house- that is Satan's home- in order to adhere to the heavenly groom. You might ask: ‘I have left my childhood home, I have forgotten my father, and I am born anew in the Lord Jesus. What is my reward? The following words provide the answer: ‘...the King will desire greatly your beauty’ (Ps 45). This is the great mystery, and on that account a man leaves his father and mother and adheres to his bride, and the two become (not one body as the passage says) but one spirit (Eph.5:31-32). Your Bridegroom is neither haughty nor does He belittle you...He leads you into His ways while holding you with His royal hand<sup>1</sup>.

‘Now Moses in the law, commanded us that such should be stoned.
But what do You say?’ [5]

Moses is not the one who issued the sentence concerning stoning an adulterer. Rather, it is found in the commandments and the law that he received from God; and it states that such a deed is to be punished by stoning (Lev. 20:20; Deut 22:22). It was a means of executing the sentence of death in his time.

As the Pharisees thirsted to spill blood, they were driven to invent false and dangerous accusations against the Lord Jesus Christ. They therefore brought this woman and presented her case even though it was incomplete legally. Their accusation was illegal since they had neither brought along the other party involved in the criminal act nor the witnesses that were required by the law. In spite of that, the Lord did not reject her case. On the contrary, He drew everyone’s attention to the real meaning of the commandment and the intrinsic intention of the law.

* They insisted that the Lord answer their sly questions, and believed He would not be able to get away from their two-edged question. On the one hand, if He would forgive the adulteress they would accuse Him of disregarding the law and the commandments and of approving adultery. On the other hand, if He orders them to stone her He would be discredited of the tenderness and gentleness which attracted the crowds to Him. Nevertheless, the Lord never ceases to be the all compassionate, merciful, and gentle One. He does not circumvent the law and upholds and defends it. He rescues the woman from being killed yet He does not contradict or abolish the law.

St. John Chrysostom

‘This they said, testing Him, that they might have something of which to accuse Him.
But Jesus stooped down and wrote on the ground with His finger, as though He did not hear.’ [6]

They came to the Lord as they would come to a judge demanding Him to apply the law. Should He decline He would be condemned as a traitor and blasphemer and deserving the death penalty by stoning. They did not realize that He is the heavenly Comforter and Defender who seeks to save sinners and absolves their sins even though He is the Divine Judge.

He ‘wrote on the ground with His finger’: He is the One who wrote the Ten Commandments with His finger on the stone which He delivered to Moses. Now, the Lord writes with His finger on the ground to reveal that they had broken the law. They are unable to execute the penalty of stoning for they are sinners and deserve to die. Today the Lord Jesus Christ writes on the ground of our hearts to transform its corrupt sand into a sanctified heaven. He writes with His Holy Spirit (with His finger) to perfect and fulfill the law. In this manner we will discover our sins and failings rather than be preoccupied with the sins of others; and we will be concerned with our own salvation as well as that of others. Indeed, the Lord records with His finger the work of love filling our depths!

Had the Lord condemned her to death, they would have reported Him to Pontius Pilate. He was the one who had stripped away from the religious leaders their authority and kept it solely in the hands of the Roman governor. Besides, the Roman law did not include a death penalty for adultery. Had He vindicated her, He would have been accused of lenience and legal incompetence in matters concerning chastity and purity.

They were not asking for His advice with a sincere desire to learn the truth and to obey Him. Rather, they were testing Him...therefore they did not deserve to receive a candid answer from Him. Consequently, He simply revealed to them what lay in their hearts, thoughts and intentions. Although He did not expose each one's wickedness publicly and hid their shame, He embarrassed them as He indicated His intimate knowledge of each one's failings.

* If you were to ask me: 'What did the Lord write on the ground?' My answer would be: 'Probably something that led the scribes and Pharisees to feel embarrassed and ashamed. Something that would lead them to repent.'

* Their words and opinions could possibly arouse the crowds against the Lord. Eventually, they were able to bring accusations against Him that led to His condemnation. All these acts were directed against whom? Insolence faced uprightness; falsehood opposed truth; the corrupt heart challenged the righteous heart; and ignorance defied wisdom! When have people such as these prepared a net and not fallen headlong into it themselves? Notice how the Lord righteously answers them while maintaining His gentleness. He did not fall into the trap they had set up; whereas they were caught up in it. They were surprised to find that He had drawn them to fall into their very own trap<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

'So when they continued asking Him, He raised Himself up and said to them: "He who is without sin among you, let him throw a stone at her first" [7]

The manner of stoning was done according to the teachings of the Jewish leaders as follows: the hands of the accused were tied behind the back and the person would be half naked. He/she would stand on a platform that would be ten to twelve feet high and two witnesses would then push the accused forcefully causing the condemned to fall down. If the person did not die at that point, one of the witnesses would hit him/her with a huge stone in the chest. Most often this would be fatal. However, this was not the manner followed in all the cases of stoning.

As they press for the Lord's opinion, He remained silent and as though He did not hear them. Finally, He delivered the woman to them and asked them to judge her if they could.

'And again He stooped down and wrote on the ground" [8]

In some interpretations, the explanation is that the Lord was writing down the sins of the accusers. He was writing on sand rather than on marble or copper. In this manner, the writing would remain for a few moments and then disappear. However, the Lord writes our names in the palm of His hands so that they remain inscribed there eternally. As for our sins, He writes them in the earth and on the ground where they would get buried and eventually disappear. He wrote in the earth so that the earth judges the earth. As for the Lord, He came to save and not to condemn.

* The Lord seems to be saying: 'I have revealed your sins to you, O scribes and Pharisees: they are similar to those of this adulteress...or even worse...and they are as bad as your own conscience can witness against you. Therefore do not insist on condemning this woman as sternly and harshly as you do. Rather, think of your own sins and examine their gravity; for you are sinners and criminals who deserve to be punished in the same manner. If you condemn her, then condemn yourselves first. Besides, if you decide to stone her, then authorize your own stoning as well...in this manner, the Lord Jesus Christ saved the adulterous woman.

He did not oppose the law in this instance for He is the ever Almighty, wise, and merciful One.

St. John Chrysostom

* The same persons who did not abide by the law are the ones who sought to implement it. They were therefore guilty of neglecting it rather than submitting and obeying the law.

Condemning as adulterers yet claiming chastity!

O Jews, Pharisees, teachers of the law and its guardians, you have now heard...yet you have not acknowledged that the Lord Jesus Christ is the Giver of the Law!

What does the Lord intend when he writes with His finger on the ground?

The law has been written by the finger of God. However, it has been written on stone due to the wickedness of peoples' (stony) hearts. Now, the Lord writes on the ground for He demands fruit. You have heard the law...may it be obeyed, and may the adulterers be merciful...

Does the punishment of this woman through those who deserve condemnation convey that the law has been obeyed?

May every person search himself and delve into his own depths. May he sit on the judgment seat that is in his own mind. Let each one place himself behind the bars of his own conscience and force himself to confess: for no one but the spirit within him knows what lies in his depths; and he will discover that he is a sinner.

Yes indeed, either you leave this woman to go her way, or you will receive with her the punishment stated in the law.

If the Lord had pronounced that she did not deserve to be stoned, He would have appeared to be unjust. Conversely, if He had condemned her He would not have appeared to be merciful. As the gentle and just One, hear Him say: "He who is without sin among you, let him throw a stone at her first" [7]

This is the Voice of justice. Let the guilty be punished, but not through sinners. Let the law be imposed but not through those who break it<sup>3</sup>

St. Augustine

"Then those who heard it, being convicted by their conscience went out one by one, beginning with the oldest even to the last.

And Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst" [9]

If they had left, then how was the woman standing in the midst? Those who had left were her accusers. As for the crowds who had come to hear the Lord, they had remained and the woman stood in their midst. It is as though the Lord had not written the sins of all the people. He had written the sins of her accusers only...for he who judges his brother will be judged! And he will be sentenced with the same sentence he has pronounced on others. Those who have been conquered by sin are usually filled with violent sentiments towards sinners. In contrast, the righteous treat sinners gently as they tend to convict themselves rather than others.

The Pharisees paraded to be jealously opposed to sin. At the same time it was evident that they were not free from its bondage. The Lord exposed them (Matt 23:27, 28) as being inwardly unclean and corrupt.

The way they dealt with the adulterous woman not only enabled the Lord to avoid the trap they had set up for Him, but it also led to their fall into that same trap. Indeed, they were brought to shame before the crowds. They were unable to implement the law and none found himself qualified to throw the first stone at the woman. May we never throw stones at our brothers while we ourselves deserve to be stoned.

They were terrified by what the Lord had written on the ground. And so was

---

Nebuchadnezzar when he saw a hand writing on the wall before him (Daniel 5:25). Blessed are those who find their peace in the writings of the Lord Jesus Christ; and woe to those who get terrified and tremble as they read His words.

The Lord Jesus Christ turned the eyes of the people away from the woman's deed and away from the issue of judging her; and led them to focus on their own inner conscience. They were enabled to see their own corruption, repent, and return to love God. Although they discovered their failings, they did not admit them; and instead of accepting the advice of the Physician of souls, they took flight as from a battlefield (2 Samuel 19:3). They feared exposure and embarrassment so they fled. Yet instead of running to the Lord their Savior, they ran away from Him lest His light would expose them.

When the woman's accusers withdrew, she could have run away too. However, she found her salvation with the Lord. The manner with which He dealt with her did not mean that He embraced sin. He proclaimed that He had come to save the world rather than bring condemnation. Therefore sinners and tax gatherers did not fear to come to Him who knows the hidden secrets of all mankind.

The situation quickly changed! Here was a desperate woman awaiting the sentence of stoning to be issued in a few moments; and bloodthirsty leaders eager to condemn her and rejoice in spilling her blood. What terrified her most was the look on their faces rather than the stones they held in their hands. Everyone had abandoned her but she found herself standing before the ultimate Lover of sinners. She felt the amazing Divine work that sanctified her life and won her over into the kingdom of heaven! Instead of fear, she experienced the emotions of some one at a wedding...she saw the heavens rejoicing and awaiting her eternal wedding!

By leaving, the woman's accusers revealed their admission to being guilty of the same crime as hers. Indeed, they left because they feared that the Lord might begin to mention their sins one by one...

'...beginning with the oldest...': the oldest among the accusers left first, either because they had committed many sins throughout the years of their lives, or because they were more intelligent and so were affected by the power of the Lord's words.

St. John Chrysostom

When Jesus looked up He found all the accusers had left while the woman stood alone before Him.

So He said to her: "Woman, where are those accusers of yours?

Has no one condemned you?" [10]

'She said: "No one, Lord."

And Jesus said to her: "Neither do I condemn you; go and sin no more." [11]

Some scholars find that the woman had been treated in a cruel and violent manner by those who had caught her. Therefore the Lord considered that she had been punished sufficiently.

In saying to the woman: "Neither do I condemn you" the Lord seems to imply the following: 'I alone have the power to condemn you, O woman. For I alone am the judge. However, since I have come to save the world and not to condemn, therefore I do not condemn you.'

By telling her to "go" He is really telling her 'go and feel secure, for your adultery has been removed from you as I have released you of your sins...therefore go....'

The Lord's words: "and sin no more..." can be interpreted as follows: 'I charge you not to go back and sin again, otherwise I will condemn you. From now on do not go back 'as a dog returns to his own vomit' (Prov. 26:11; 2Peter 2:22). Do not sin anymore to avoid condemnation.'

St. John Chrysostom

* The most holy One who had the power to change the nature of the five loaves and multiply them; who made the dumb nature of the donkey to speak; who taught the adulteress to be chaste (John 8); who transformed the nature of the burning fire into a cool medium for those thrown into the furnace; and who for Daniel's sake changed the fierce nature of the lions into a gentle one...can also transform the soul that has become a barren desert due to sin. He alone can lead the soul to enjoy His goodness, mercy, and peace by His Holy Spirit and divine promises.

St. Macarius the Great

* We have heard the Voice of Justice [7]. Let us also hear the Voice of Mercy...of the Holy One who has driven away her enemies as He spoke justice, and who has turned His eyes mercifully as He told her: "Neither do I condemn you; go and sin no more." [11]

May those who love the gentleness of the Lord be warned and fear His truth! For He is good and upright (Ps 25:8). You love Him because He is good...fear Him because He is upright...

The Lord is gentle, patient, and tender. Yet He is also just and upright.

He gives you the chance to improve and correct yourself. Yet you like to delay His judgment more than to correct your ways!

Were you evil yesterday? May you become good today!

Do you continue in the pursuit of evil today? Attempt to change that tomorrow...but how do you know that tomorrow will come?... God has promised to be forgiving to those who correct themselves. Yet He has not promised to extend my life (to tomorrow)!<sup>4</sup>

St. Augustine

St. Augustine warns us against despair as well as against false hope. Those who despair because God is not forgiving kill themselves through their despair. However, those who become careless and are slow to repent, as they trust that the mercy of God will save them tomorrow, are also condemning themselves because of their false hope<sup>5</sup>.

2- The Messiah: the Light of the World

"Then Jesus spoke to them again saying:

"I am the light of the world.

He who follows Me shall not walk in darkness, but have the light of Life." [12]

When the accusers withdrew and the woman left, the Lord continued teaching the crowds. The accusers had wanted to stir and confuse the crowds. However, the Lord intended to focus on His teachings by these words: "I am the light of the world..." [12]. Without Him everyone would remain in darkness, despair, and death. The Pharisees realized that by saying these words the Lord was indicating that He is the awaited Messiah, since the prophets had used the symbol of light when they spoke of Him (Is 60:1; 49:7; 9:9). In the writings of Bamidbar Rabba, he says: "The Israelites said to God: "O Lord of the world, You have commanded us to light lamps for You. You are the light of the world, and the light lives through You!"<sup>6</sup>

"He who follows Me shall not walk in darkness..." In other words: 'he shall be delivered from ignorance, betrayal, and sin.’

Some scholars find that these words refer to a Jewish custom of adding a ninth day to the Feast of the tabernacles. On that day, they would bring out all the holy books from the storage boxes and place them in a place lit with candles in order to call to mind the words in Proverbs 6:23 ‘For the commandment is a lamp, and the law is light; reproofs of instruction are the way of life.’

Many scholars find that one of the most important memories related to the first Tabernacle is the time when chief priest poured water as we mentioned in the previous chapter. The procedure was followed according to the tradition of ‘the light’, and it was done in memory of the pillar of light that went before the people in the wilderness. It led them through the darkness of the night (Ex13:21), and it continued to do so until they crossed over into Canaan in fulfillment of the Divine promise.

During that feast, it was customary to use a huge candlestick with branches. Four of its lamps were filled with oil and they had to use a ladder to go up to light it. The Talmud mentions that it was 50 feet high. This light was exceedingly bright, the Mishnah states: “There was no area in Jerusalem where the light was not reflected.” This brilliant light was a very rare sight in the old cities.

Some scholars believe that the candlestick lights were snuffed out after the Feast. The Lord Jesus Christ stood where the lights had been snuffed and He dazzled those coming to the Feast. The darkness had replaced the light, so He proclaimed the need for the Divine light: the Messiah, God’s slave, who is the light who has come for all peoples.

Isaiah states:” I, the Lord, have called you in righteousness, and will hold your hand, I will keep you and give you as a covenant to the people, as a light to the Gentiles, to open blind eyes, to bring prisoners from the prison, those who sit in darkness from the prison house (Is 42:6-7) --- that you should be my salvation to the ends of the earth (Is 49:6)

“I will also give you as a light to the Gentiles, and I will make my justice rest as a light of the peoples---” (Is 51:4).

The saintly interpreters provide an explanation to the words: “The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear?” (Ps 27:1). They state that the law is a light. The Lord has proclaimed that He is the divine word, the light of the world, which gives light to every person in the world.

When they claimed that the temple is “the light”, the Lord asked them to destroy the temple and He would rebuild it in three days (Jn 2:20). By saying so, He proclaims, the temple of His Body. This is because He is the resurrection of the temple that embraces all the new creation. The Church/Temple is enlightened by the light of His resurrection.

When St. John the Evangelist speaks of the heavenly Temple, he says:”---for the Lord God the Almighty and the lamb are its temple-----for the glory of God illuminated the city and the lamb is its light (Rev. 21:23, 24).

The Lord Jesus Christ speaks of man’s life as a journey in the middle of a dark world. A person needs the sun of righteousness to shine upon him/her and to accompany him so that he might not stumble. It is appropriate for a believer to follow and be led by that light in all the concerns of his life. He is the true light in which we find our peace. As we look up to Him and make friends with Him; as we have faith and walk in Him, He will become our light. He will enlighten us not only by being a lamp shedding light to our eyes and feet, but to all our body. He will lead us in this world and will lift us up through the Holy Spirit to the heavens. There, we will enjoy the promise of eternity.

The Lord clearly indicates that He is one of the prophets. However, He is the Lord of the world. He is not the light of Galilee, of Palestine, or Israel; but He is ‘the light of the world.’

St. John Chrysostom.

If we are priests of the Lord and of God, then I cannot find anyone else whom I ought to follow more than God the Lord. Indeed, He affirms in His Holy Gospel that:” I am the light of the world. He who follows Me shall not walk in darkness, but have the light life”[12]<sup>7</sup>.

Caprianus the Martyr

* I believe that the Lord’s words: ‘I am the light of the world’ [12] are clear to those who have the eyes that share this light. As for those who only possess physical eyes, they would be surprised to hear His words: ‘I am the light of the world’<sup>8</sup>.

* There is a Light who is the Creator of the sun’s light. Let us love that light. Let us yearn to reach out and thirst for Him. Consequently, He will lead and take us to Him. In this manner we will live in Him and we will not die...

The One who shines over you so that you might see Him is the same (source) who flows over you and quenches your thirst....

Even when the Lord Jesus Christ did not reveal himself to everyone as He was hidden by the cloud of this body, yet He is who He is: The One who controls everything through the power of His wisdom...

Your God is fully present in everyplace, and He will never abandon you, if you do not abandon Him<sup>9</sup>.

St. Augustine

* Let us follow Him now so that we may be rewarded later on. Let us follow Him in faith, so that we may receive grace later on by our eyes. The apostle accordingly says: “Therefore, we are always confident, knowing that while we are at home in the body we are absent from the Lord. For we walk by faith, not by sight” (2 Cor. 5:6-7). When do we walk by sight? When possess the light of life. When we attain that insight, and when the darkness passes away.

On that day when we will rise again, it is said: “in the morning I will direct (my voice) to you and I will look up” (Ps 5:3). What does ‘in the morning’ imply? When the night of this world passes away; when the fears of temptation are over; and when that lion roaming in the night and seeking to devour someone has been conquered.

“In the morning, I will direct (my voice) to you, and I will look up.” Now, my brothers, what do you think: what is our duty in this present life other than what the psalmist says? In another place, he says: “All night I make my bed swim---with my tears” (Ps 6:6)

The Psalmist states that he cries every night and yearns fervently for the light. Therefore the Lord responds to his desire and he says in Psalm 38:10: “...all my desire is before you and my sighing is not hidden from you” (Ps 38:9).

Do you yearn to go? It is impossible for you not to see: for if you ask to go, you proclaim that to all mankind...

Do you yearn for God? Who can see that other than God? Of whom do you ask for God...except from Him? For He can be sought of Himself, as He is the One who has promised to give us Himself.

May the soul lay out her desire and open her wide embrace. Then let her pray and attain what eye has not seen and what ear has not heard and therefore what has “never entered into the heart of man” (1 Cor.2:9)

We can desire and yearn for Him and we can follow after Him. However, we are unable to deserve attaining Him and express Him in words<sup>10</sup>.

St. Augustine

‘The Pharisees, therefore said to Him

“You bear witness of yourself; your witness is not true” [13]

When the Pharisees who had accused the adulteress had left, some of them remained. These wanted to contradict the words of the Lord. They knew “the light” is the title of the Messiah whom the people of the Old Testament expected to come, and as it is written in Daniel 2:22

The Pharisees therefore contradicted themselves. For we find in the Old Testament some prophets who bore witness to themselves and who confirmed that they had received divine revelations or prophecies from the heavens. Indeed, some Pharisees had questioned St. John the Baptist and asked: “What do you say about yourself?” If they had listened faithfully to the Lord’s teaching and miracles, they would have discovered that He is the Lord and the Messiah: He did not need any external witness.

‘Jesus answered and said to them:

“Even if I bear witness of myself,

my witness is true, for I know where I came from and where I am going; but you do not know where

I came from and where I am going”[14]

Because the Lord knows that He is the Son of God, He neither attacked nor needed their false witness. He just revealed his identity, His relationship with the Father and the mission He had to fulfill through his incarnation. All this was sufficient testimony for Him.

The Lord confirmed three facts:

First: His conviction concerning the reality of his own identity: Here there is no doubt or any need to argue. He knows who He is before descending from heaven; revealing Himself to the world: He came from the Father and is returning to Him (Jn 16:28). He came from glory and is returning to it (Jn 17:5)

Secondly: They were not qualified to judge Him or His teaching, for they were ignorant and wanted to remain in the darkness of their ignorance. They condemned Him according to their physical whims. Indeed they were not qualified to judge matters that are divine and spiritual. Although the Lord qualified to judge and condemn -being the fair Judge- yet He postponed judgment until His second coming.

Thirdly: His testimony for Himself is confirmed by the testimony of the Father for Him [18].

* The Lord Jesus Christ has the prophets witnessing for Him. These had been sent before Him. They acted as the ushers or heralds who run before the Judge. John the Baptist also witnessed for Him. Nevertheless, the greatest testimony is the one He bears to Himself... He is the true light who enlightens everyone who comes into the world<sup>11</sup>.

* “---for I know where I came from and where I am going...” The One speaking to you in person possesses all things, yet He still came. However, by coming He has not left the other possessions (the heavens). Besides, He will not abandon us when He returns over there.

Why are you amazed? He is God and what has occurred cannot be done by man. It cannot happen even with the sun; for it is ready to set, the sun leaves the East. In this manner, it has to return there when it rises... As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He comes and yet He is still the (in the heavens); and when He returns, He is still here (on earth). Listen to the words of the Evangelist: “No one has seen God at anytime. The only begotten Son who is in the bosom of the Father, He has declared Him.” The Evangelist does not say ‘who was in the bosom of the Father’ as this would have implied that by His coming He had left the Father’s embrace...

The Lord was speaking here on earth, and at the same time He proclaimed that He was present there, in the heavens, too.

When the time drew near for Him to leave this place, He said: “...lo I am with you always, even to the end of the age” (Matt 28:20)<sup>12</sup>.

St. Augustine

* Whoever denies that the Son proceeds from the Father, does not know the Father from whom the Son proceeds. Moreover, that person does not know the Son because he does not know the Father<sup>13</sup>.

St. Ambrose

“You judge according to the flesh, I judge no one.”[15]

When the Word became flesh, the Pharisees condemned Him according to the flesh. They thought He was merely a man. They did not realize the reality of His being the Word, the wisdom, and the power of the Almighty God. His work testified to His being the promised Messiah. They deceived their own selves as they attempted to measure divinity with human terms and spirituality with physical ones.

They studied the law and the divine promises with physical eyes. Therefore the Holy Book became a literal study, upholding temporary salvation, false honor, and the deadly literal word. Consequently they stumbled when they had to recognize the Messiah and the Father who had sent Him.

* To live according to the flesh implies that a person is living in a wicked manner. Similarly, a person who condemns according to the flesh, does so incorrectly<sup>14</sup>.

* “I judge no one” [15]: For if I wanted to condemn, then you would have been condemned...but the time of judgment has not come yet. Here the Lord implies that He will not be alone but the Father will also be with Him to condemn them<sup>15</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* We say that there will be one Judge for the living and the dead. Yet the Lord says about himself: “I judge no one.” This matter can be solved in two ways: We either understand it to mean ‘I do not judge anyone now’ which agrees with the Lord’s words, ‘I have not come to judge the world but to save it.’ The Lord does not deny that He judges but states that He delays judgment. Or, because He says: “...you judge according to the flesh”[15], and He adds that “I judge no one” in order to indicate that does not do like them, who judge according to the flesh<sup>16</sup>.

St. Augustine

“And yet, if I do judge, my judgment is true, for I am not alone,
but I am with the Father who sent Me”[16].

* The Lord indicates clearly that He is not alone in condemning them. Indeed, the Father too is with Him and demands that they would be judged<sup>17</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* It is as though the Lord is saying: ‘My judgment is righteous, because I am the Son of God.’ How do you prove you are the Son of God? “... for I am not alone, but I am with the Father who sent Me.” There is one Essence, one Divinity, an eternal fellowship, complete equality without any conflict...yet the Father is the Father, the Son is the Son...and the Son is a different icon from the Father. This is what we truly believe. Stating that He is different in nature is false. I am not the Son in a manner which hinders Me from being with the Father; neither can He be the Father in a manner which hinders Him from being with me. I have taken on the form of a slave, yet I have not lost the image of God<sup>18</sup>.

St. Augustine

* May we choose the Lord to be our Judge, my dear brothers. For God is our witness against men’s tongues and their suspicious. He is the one who will not refuse to bear witness and who will be all the more glorious when He is Judge. That is because the Witness himself will be the Judge as well<sup>19</sup>.

St. Augustine

“It is also written in you law that the testimony of two men is true” [17].

Although it is possible that two or more could agree to bear witness falsely (1 Kings 21:10); yet it would be accepted as a true testimony as long as it is not contradicted (Dent 17:6 , Num. 35:30)

“I am one who bears witness of Myself, and the Father who sent Me bears witness of Me”[18].

Just as the Father and Son participated together in the creation, so do they work together for man’s salvation. The Son does not work alone but He works with the Father who also bears witness of Him.

St. John Chrysostom believes that the Pharisees knew that He is the Messiah, yet on account of their jealousy they addressed Him as though they had not recognized Him. They had come to test Him and therefore He considered that they did not deserve an answer from Him. Consequently, He did not quote any Old Testament prophecies or symbols pointing to His person. He just stated that He bears witness to Himself, indeed his miracles, teachings, and the Cross, whose moment was getting closer, all were witnesses for Him. He did not need another witness; for the Father bore witness of Him as He is one with the Son<sup>20</sup>.

Do you not agree that the Lord said so to indicate that He is of the same Essence and has no need for any other witness, and that He is not lesser than the Father? At least take note of His independence (distinct feature)<sup>21</sup>!

If the Messiah is a lesser being than the Father, the Lord would not have said these words! Now, and so that you do not imagine that the Father has been added to witness in order to meet the requirement of two (witnesses), note that His authority is different from that of the Father’s. A person comes to witness when he is self confident and not when he himself needs a witness. This is true for others too. If that person is involved in wrong doing then he needs the testimony of another witness as he cannot be trusted. However, this is a different case completely, since when the Lord witnesses for himself and when there is someone else to witness of Him, then this confirms that He is trustworthy. In every way, He will proclaim His independence (without separation).

He puts himself first: “I am One who bears witness of Myself” [18]. It is evident that the Lord reveals his equality in honor. Besides, they will not benefit at all by saying that they know the Father while they have not recognized the (Messiah).

The problem is that they do not wish to recognize Him. Therefore the Lord tells them that it will be impossible for them to know the Father without knowing the Son first. Indeed, He is the One who attracts them to know the Father. By leaving them, even if they would have sought to know the Father, the Lord says: “you cannot know the Father without Me.” For he who blasphemes against the Son, does not do so against Him alone, but also against the One from whom He comes<sup>22</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“Then they said to him:

where is your Father?

Jesus answered: you know neither Me nor the Father.

If you had known Me, you would have known my Father also.”[19]

The Lord Jesus Christ accused them of not knowing God. It is true that God had been known in Judaism (Ps 67:1). They actually had partial knowledge of God as they recognized Him to be the Creator of the world, yet their eyes were darkened and they could not see the glory of the light shining upon the face of the Lord Jesus Christ. The reason for their ignorance of God lay in their ignorance of the person of the Lord Jesus Christ who reveals the knowledge of the Father.

* The expression: “...you both know me and you know where I am from” (Jn7:28) is a reference to His person as a human being. As for the saying: “you know neither Me nor my Father” this is a reference to His divinity... Clearly, when the people of Jerusalem said “...we know where this man is from” (Jn 7:27) they were referring to the fact of his birth in Bethlehem (Matt 2:1). They knew His mother was Mary and that His brothers (actually his cousins) were James, Joses, Simon, and Judas (Matt 13:55). That explains why the Lord answered to the testimony of those who said: “we know where this man is from” by saying: “you both know me and you know where I am from.” However, when the Lord speaks to the Pharisees, He says: “Even if I bear witness of Myself, My witness is true, for I know where I came from and where I am going.” As He speaks of His divine nature, He is speaking about Himself as the basis and first born over all creation (Col. 1:15)<sup>23</sup>

Origen

Some heretics believe that when the Lord said to the Pharisees “...nor my Father” He meant that His Father is someone other than the Creator whom they knew through their reading of the Old Testament. However, the ignorance of the Pharisees, evident in this passage, arises from their wickedness. The wicked do not know God even though they could believe in Him as the Creator; and even though they could speak of Him as God. Indeed they neither remained steadfast, nor walked according to His pleasure.

* If someone is able to present a full account of matters concerning God; and if he has learned from his fathers that God alone is to be worshipped; yet still does not walk righteously, then the Bible speaks of such person as one who does not carry the knowledge of God.

A person truly knows about matters concerning the Creator and priestly service to him,

then the children of Eli the priest possessed such knowledge, for they lived in the temple, the place of worship- yet in spite of that, they committed sins; we are told in the first book of Samuel: „the sons of Eli were corrupt; they did not know the Lord” (1 Sam 2:12)...

The same is applicable in the case of the wicked rulers of Israel and Judea, and not only to the sons of Eli. In the same manner the Pharisees did not know the Father, for they did not live according to the will of the Creator!<sup>24</sup>

Origen

* When the Lord spoke about God his Father, they questioned Him, saying: “Where is your Father?” They were able to know the Lord’s Father in the flesh. Therefore they condemned His words, as they put them in a carnal context. However, the One speaking to them was the One who had appeared in the flesh; whereas the hidden One is the Word: the tangible human being and the intangible God... they despised Him as they did not know Him. And they did not recognize Him since they did not see Him. They did not see Him because they were blind; and they were blind due to their lack of faith!<sup>25</sup>

‘We see You alone; and we do not see your Father with you. Therefore how do you say that you are not alone and that you are with your Father? Otherwise, show us that the Father is with you.’

St. Augustine

“These words Jesus spoke in the treasury, as He taught in the temple, no one laid hands on Him,
for His hour had not yet come” [20]

The treasury: St. John the Evangelist reports that the treasury was the place where Jesus went to deliver his teachings. Probably he is referring to an area where people brought their contributions to the temple, so St. John is not referring to the place where the precious treasures of the temple were stored. The area where Jesus went was part of the Women’s court. Thirteen boxes in the form of a horn were placed there for the offerings. On each box, there was an inscription indicating how the contributions would be used. In that manner, the giver would place his/her contribution according to the service he desires to be fulfilled. The place is called ‘the women’s court, but it does not really indicate that it is reserved for women only, or that men are forbidden to enter., rather it indicates that the women are allowed to enter there, and not into other areas. The Gentiles are allowed to enter into ‘the court of Gentiles’, while it does not prohibit the Jews from entering there.

The people liked the ‘women’s court’ as the four candlesticks in it were lit during the Feast of the Tabernacles which we mentioned earlier. This area was also called Gazith and it was located opposite the area where the Sanhedrin was held. That explains why during his trial, the Lord said: “I spoke openly to the world. I always taught in the synagogues and in the temple, where the Jews always meet, and in secret I have said nothing” (John 18:20).

Before the whole nation, as well as before the Sanhedrin, the Lord proclaimed that they did not know the Father because they did not recognize the Lord [19]. In spite of that, they were unable to arrest Him.

Their uncontrolled tongues blasphemed against Him, yet their hands were bound because His hour had not yet come. The Lord had bound them, through his divine power, and they were restrained until it was time for his crucifixion.

The Evangelist writes about the Lord: “... for his hour had not yet come.” By this St.

John indicates that the time had not yet come and which God had set for the Lord Jesus Christ to be crucified. In that sense his crucifixion did not occur through the power of the rulers. Indeed it occurred by God's divine plan. Indeed, they had tried to kill Him before and had failed; and they were powerless after that. Indeed, had He wanted, He could have prevented his crucifixion.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord's presence in the place where the people brought their contributions to help the needy; and in the treasury of the temple where the common good is achieved, indicates that the Lord brings goodness more than anyone and anything. He offers these words concerning eternal life (Jn 6:68); besides his teachings about God (the Father), and about Himself as he says: "I am the light of the world..." [12].

His presence in the treasury is more valuable than any currency, and this is why the Lord says: "... If you know me, you would have known my Father also." Note also all the rest of his teachings on this subject.

All the gold that others offered seems like a grain of sand when compared to the words of the Lord Jesus Christ; and the silver would be like dirt in comparison (Ezekial 7:19). Indeed, every word that the Lord pronounces is altogether wisdom...<sup>26</sup>

* The Lord did not say all He knew when He was teaching in the treasury. He said only what the people there could comprehend. Actually, we do not believe that the whole world could contain the totality of God's word (Jn 21:25)<sup>27</sup>.

* Although the Lord taught many things in the treasury and in the temple, yet no one arrested Him. This is because His words were more powerful than those who wanted to catch him. As long as He was speaking, none of those who planned against Him could arrest him. However, when they caught Him, He was silent. It is for this reason that He kept silent when Pilate interrogated him; and also when He was beaten (Jn 19:9). This was the time when He wanted to suffer on behalf of the world. Had he spoken, he would not have been crucified due to weakness (2 Cor.13:4). Indeed, there is no weakness in the Speaker who is the Word<sup>28</sup>.

Origen

3- The Doom of Unbelievers:

'Then Jesus said to them again:

"I am going away and you will seek Me, and will die in you sin.

Where I go you cannot come." [21]

The Lord Jesus Christ issues a warning to unbelievers. Their denial will propel them to eternal suffering. He also offers words of encouragement and grace to the meek and simple souls. The warnings he directs to unbelievers are terrifying since there would be no time to repent. Accordingly He says: "They are like children sitting in the market place and calling to one another saying: We played the flute for you and you did not dance; we mourned to you and you did not weep." (Lk 7:32). Very often the Lord opens the gate of hope in this manner and through kind and gentle words. Yet He also uses stern warnings to protect his children from stumbling; or to encourage them to rise up and move away from what they have stumbled into.

"I am going away": They prayed Him to leave them, for they neither wanted Him nor did they want to hear His words. Here, the Lord is telling them that He was going to leave, that in leaving them they would die in their sin rather than have life. When they would be in trouble they would seek the help of the Messiah whom they have rejected and crucified. However, He will not be found according to their whims. They had rejected him and gone after false messiahs who offer the wrath of God rather than eternal life.

They seek Him yet their materialistic and literal minds confine them within the limits of the earth. Therefore they seek but do not find Him; for he has ascended into the heavens. They seek him while they are imprisoned in the grave of temporal glory and material business. Consequently, they do not find him. He is the light of the world and because they die in their sins they are unable to see the One who forgives sins and redeems souls from corruption. In this manner, the heavenly Physician exposes the disease to the sick ones as he wants them to accept to meet with Him and enjoy being healed.

.”your sin...” occurs in the Greek version in the singular (not in the plural) as the focus is on the sin of blasphemy and rejection of the Lord Jesus Christ. Notice that St. John the Evangelist directs our eyes to focus on the Lord Jesus Christ who is the Savior of the world. More than any other evangelist, he repeats the verb ‘to die’ and the noun ‘to sin’ so many times: “to die” occurs thirty eight times in the Gospel of St. John, in contrast to five times in Matthew, nine times in Mark, and ten times in Luke. Indeed, it has not occurred so densely in any other New Testament Book except in Romans where it occurs twenty three times only. The words ‘to sin’ occurs seventeen times in the Gospel of St. John; while it only occurs seven times in Matthew, six times in Mark, and eleven times in Luke. However, St. John does not aim to direct our focus on sin and its consequent fruit of death. For although sin is deadly, his focus is on the Conqueror of sin. Through the power of His Cross, we live in the spirit of victory and triumph. Moreover, we are enabled to lead a new life rather than suffer spiritual death.

The Lord had said these words on the previous day too (Jn 7:34).

* “ I am going away and you will seek Me, and will die in your sin”: We wonder if the Lord was saying these words to all those present and listening to Him or just to those present whom He knew did not believe. These would consequently be unable to follow Him and would die in their sin. They would be unable because they were unwilling and had become handicapped. They deserved what the Word pronounced: “to die in your sin”<sup>29</sup>.

Someone may comment: Since He directs these words to people who insist on not believing, then why does the Lord tell them “you will seek Me”? Truly, there are many ways of seeking the Lord who is the Word, the Truth, and all Wisdom. Nevertheless...to ‘seek’ is sometimes used to refer to those planning against him, as this verse reveals: “Then they sought to take Him; but no one laid a hand on Him, because His hour had not yet come (Jn 7:30). Also this verse: ‘I know that you are Abraham’s descendants, but you seek to kill Me, because My word has no place in you’ (Jn 8:37). In John 8:40, we read the words: “But now you seek to kill me, a man who has told you the truth which I heard from God.” (8:40). Therefore the words “... you will seek Me” is directed to those who seek in the wrong way. It does not oppose the promise. “...for he who seeks finds...” (Matt 7:8). There are always distinctions among those who seek the Lord Jesus Christ. Not everyone asks for salvation in the correct manner or with the purpose of being blessed by Him<sup>30</sup>.

“...You will die in your sin.” [21] If this is interpreted in the usual clear manner, it conveys that sinners will die in their sins; whereas the righteous will die in their righteousness. However, when “will die” is interpreted to refer to the death of the enemy of the Lord Jesus

Christ (1 Cor.15:26) the reference is to those who will die as a result of having committed a sin leading to death (1 Jn 5:16). It is clear that these words have been directed to those who had not yet died. You may wonder: what will happen to those who are still alive and have not yet believed? Yet they will die some day? One of them may claim that though they have not believed as yet, they have not committed a sin leading to death. Besides, there are those who have not received the Word and so have not committed a deadly sin. They are alive and suffering of the disease in the souls; and this disease does not lead to death (Jn 11:4)...<sup>31</sup>.

* May we be cautious not to catch the disease of death. Our sickness may be healed through (repentance). It is different from the disease that is impossible to heal (the insistence not to repent)<sup>32</sup>.

* Let us compare the verse in Ezekial 18:20 "The soul who sins shall die." with the Lord's words "you will die in you sin." Indeed, sin is the death of the soul. We do not believe that this applies to all sin; it applies only to the sin that St. John describes as 'sin leading to death' (1 Jn 5:16).

* Let us further underline the distinction between a sin that leads to the death of the soul and another sin that indicates a sickness of the soul. And there probably is a third kind of sin that is the one which leads to the loss of the soul. The following words refer to this last kind: "For what is a man profited if he gains the whole world, and loses his own soul?" (Matt 16:26; Lk 9:25). Also refer to the verse: "If anyone's work is burned, he will suffer loss" (1Cor 3:15)<sup>33</sup>.

Origen

Sin is a dangerous disease that infects that whole person- his soul and body - and consequently death reigns over that person. However, by the coming of the incarnate Word of God, who is the Physician of both the soul and body, He made a distinction between two kinds of sins or two kinds of diseases. There is a disease that does not cause death (Jn 11:4). Indeed, it works for the glory of God as it refers to (the soul) that accepts God's word. Therefore she abandons the grave of corruption, enjoys removing all sinful ties, and witnesses to the One who is risen and grants resurrection. The other kind of disease is that which causes death. The Lord speaks about this last kind as He addresses some of his hearers who will seek Him and die in their sin. The Lord is referring to those who are determined to reject Him until they die. These commit a sin that leads to death (1Jn 5:16)

* The Lord says: "I am going away and you will seek Me [21], not because you yearn for Me but due to your hatred. After the Lord moved out of their human sight, they all searched for Him. Those who hated Him as well as those who loved Him looked for Him The first sought Him with the spirit of persecution, while the others sought Him with the desire to receive and hold Him<sup>34</sup>.

* It is right to follow the path the disciples took when you pray to live the life of the Lord; and it is wrong to want to live according to Him in the manner of the Jews for these sought Him with a perverted heart: what did the Lord add? "... and you will seek Me- not because you have good intentions- "therefore you will die in your sin." This happens to those who seek the Lord in a wrong manner and consequently die in their sin: the sin of hating the Lord Jesus Christ who is the only One where salvation is found. Clearly, whereas there are those who have hope in God and who do not repay evil for evil; there are also those who repay goodness by wickedness.

* “... where I go you cannot come”: the Lord said the same words to his disciples on another occasion. However, He did not tell them: “...you will die in you sin...” as He did not deprive them of hope. Earlier, the Lord had informed them that it would be some time before they would go to the place where He was going. This is because at the time the Lord was speaking to his disciples, it was impossible for them to follow Him; they would join Him later on. As for His other hearers, and based on His fore knowledge, the Lord knew that they would not join Him and therefore He said: “... you will die in your sin”<sup>35</sup>.

St. Augustine

* The Lord intended to touch their souls, and embarrass and terrify them by His words. Note the fear that filled them as a result. Although they wished to kill Him and so get rid of Him, yet they asked where He planned to go. They imagined that His words would have dangerous consequences. The Lord also had another aim and that was to underline that His (death) will not happen as a result of their power. Therefore He spoke openly to them about it and predicted His resurrection<sup>36</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘So the Jews said:

“Will He kill himself because He says,

‘Where I go you cannot come’?’[22]

When the Lord said these words on another occasion, they thought that He was going to the Greek cities to preach among the Jews who were dispersed there. However, this time they realized that He was speaking about His death! This reveals how they thought of Him not only as a human being like any of them but that He was even more wicked as He was going to commit suicide out of despair.

* “...where I go you cannot come”[22], because when someone dies in sin, he/she cannot go to the place where the Lord Jesus Christ reigns. Indeed, no dead person can follow the Lord for “...the dead do not praise the Lord/ nor any who go down in silence. But we will bless the Lord (Ps115:17-LXX 26)”<sup>37</sup>.

* The Lord’s power to die by His own free will, and to abandon the flesh behind Him is revealed in His words: “I am going away”<sup>38</sup>.

* The Judaic writings state the Lord Jesus Christ would be born in Bethlehem and that He would come from the tribe of Judah. This is according to the correct interpretation of the prophetic words. Moreover, concerning His death, tradition reports that He would withdrew from life in the manner we have indicated earlier. It is evident that the Jews were aware that it would be impossible to follow someone who would be leaving in this manner. It would be impossible for anyone even if he understood these matters, to follow and go where the Lord was going. That is why they did not intend it literally when they said: “...will He kill himself, because He says: “where I go you cannot come”? [22]...”<sup>39</sup>.

* Anyway, we believe that they said these words as they knew what tradition reported concerning the death of the Lord. Therefore, rather than glorify the One who would depart from life through the Cross, they craftily said: “will He kill Himself?”<sup>40</sup>

* They might have hesitated, yet they seemed to allude to His glory which would be revealed at the time of His death. It is as though they were saying: “Does His spirit depart when He leaves the body behind and by His own will?” Is that why the Lord said: “where I go You cannot come?”<sup>41</sup> * Contemplate also the words of St. Paul who says something similar to that in these words: “.Christ has given himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice to God (Eph 5:2)”<sup>42</sup>.

Origen

* The Scribes and Pharisees behaved just like other people who typically think, understand and judge matters according to the flesh. When they heard the Lord’s words, they said: “will He kill Himself?”... What a way to utter these violent words that reveal exceeding ignorance...By saying “where I go..”, the Lord did not mean going to death , but going to that which is after death.<sup>43</sup>

St. Augustine.

‘And He said to them,
“You are from beneath;
I am from above.
You are of this world;
I am not of this world” [23].

According to human wisdom, no one can determine his fate if he decides to end his life by his own hands. That is why they thought the Lord was speaking about his death by committing suicide. They probably wished to spread this rumor to spoil His image before the people. Suicide is a crime that the law condemns, since it involves the spilling of man’s blood: “I will demand a reckoning ...I will require the life of man” (Gen 9:5). The picture of Ahithophel, who committed suicide, remains to be a severe example of a corrupt life (2 Sam.17:23). It is true that Samson chose to kill himself in return for the death of thousands of idol worshippers who died with him. Besides, there are those who admire the ones who died in the stronghold of Massada who chose to kill themselves and their families rather than be captured by the Romans. Nevertheless, suicide in the mind of the public is a sin of despair; and the fire of hell is the sentence brought against those who commit it. The historian Josephus mentions this when he says that it is necessary to bury the bodies of the enemies promptly; but those who have committed suicide are left without burial until sunset and as a form of punishment. He mentions that in some nations the custom was to cut off the right hand of the person who had committed suicide since it had the audacity to separate the body from the soul. Consequently, the hand was separated from the body.

This was the prevalent thought of the Jews during the time of Christ They considered suicide a sin. This was in total opposition to many Greek scholars who considered suicide an act of bravery that is praise worthy. These scholars believed that through suicide a person ends his temporary life and transports himself to enjoy a long and honorable life.

The Lord Jesus Christ exposes the reason for their ignorance concerning Him. The reason why they could not understand from where He had come and where He was going: It arises from the difference between His nature and theirs. It is as though He is telling them: “You are able to practice the act of killing, even that of killing yourselves, because you come from below and because there is nothing godly within you. You are from below: earthly, physical, and satanic.

They are from the earth and earthly; He is from heaven: the infinite Creator. Therefore they need to comprehend His divinity and believe in Him. For “... if you do not believe that I am He, you will die in your sins” (24).

* In this passage, the Lord is referring to earthly thoughts and physical aspirations as He says: “... I am not of this world.” It is not a denial that he became incarnate, but it does indicate that He is far removed from their craftiness.

St. John Chrysostom

Origen comments that those who are from below ultimately belong to this world. However not everyone who is of this world comes out of it. Indeed, a person can be a citizen of heaven (Phil 3:20). Besides, even though a person proceeds from below and is of the world, yet it is possible for him/her to be transformed. They could become from above and so no longer belong to this world.

* Such a person resolves not to belong to this world any more; for he was from below and of this world and chose to be transformed and be born from above... therefore the Lord tells his disciples: “Yet because you are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates you...” (John 15:19). Indeed the Savior came to call and save those who are lost (Lk 19:10). Besides, He came to transfer those who are from below and those who have been registered as citizens, whose names have been moved from among those from below to those who belong above. He is the same Lord who has descended to all the levels below the earth and for the sake of those who were waiting there (Eph. 4:9-10). He is also the same One who has ascended above all the heavens and has prepared the way for those who seek Him. These have become His true disciples walking in the path that leads to matters above the heavens- in other words, intangible matters<sup>44</sup>.

* Pay attention, if you want to learn who is from below according to the Holy Bible, and who is from above; then know that ‘the treasure of every person is found in his/her heart’ (Matt. 6:21). He who stores his treasure on earth comes from below as a result of such action. Whereas when someone stores his treasure in heaven (Matt. 6:20), then he is born from above and bears the image of the heavenly Man (John 3:3, 1 Cor. 15:49). By ascending into the heavens, such a person fully attains his heavenly destination<sup>45</sup>.

* It is possible to state that a person from below practices the deeds of the flesh, whereas the one from above bears the fruit of the Spirit (Gal. 5:22). Again it is possible to state that a person from below loves this world whereas a person who loves God comes from above according to St. John’s words (1 John 2:15). A person who does not love the world, nor the things in the world, is not of the world. Rather that person says “But God forbid that I should glory except in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world has been crucified to me and I to the world (Gal. 6:14-16)<sup>46</sup>”.

Origen

* What does the Lord say to those who carry earthly features? He says to them “You are from beneath” (Jn 8:23)... Therefore you bear the taste of the earth since you like the earth just as the snakes do.

You eat the earth, ...what does this mean?

You get nourished by earthly matters and find pleasure in them. You open your mouth to speak of worldly things, and your hearts do not seek heavenly matters.

“You are from beneath; I am from above. You are of this world; I am not of this world,” [23].

But how could He be from below while He is the One who has created the world? All those who are from below have come after the world had been created; indeed the world preceded them. Consequently, man comes from the world.

Since the Lord Jesus Christ has existed before the world, and there was nothing at all that existed before Him, for “In the beginning was the word, ...and all things were made through him” (John 1:1,3). Therefore He comes from Him who is above... from the Father himself. There is no one above God and He created the Word equal to him and in everlasting fellowship with Him ; the only Son since time infinite, who has laid the basis of time<sup>47</sup>.

* Dear brothers, the Lord had explained to us what He intends us to understand concerning His accusers: “You are from beneath.” He is actually saying, “You are of this world” for they were sinners, wicked, unbelievers, and had the aroma of earthly things...

But what did the Lord Himself tell the apostles? “...I chose you out of the world” (John 15:19). Therefore those who were from beneath were transformed into persons who were not from beneath. They began to belong to the Lord Jesus Christ who created the world. As for those (the Jews) who continued to be from beneath, they were told that “...(they) will die in (their) sin” (24)<sup>48</sup>.

* He who has created the world has come to you and saved you from this world. If the world dazzles you, then you wish to be impure forever. But if the world ceases to dazzle you, then you are truly pure.

However, if the world still appeals to you due to certain defects, then let the One who has the power to purify you live in you. As a result, you will become pure as well<sup>49</sup>.

St. Augustine

“Therefore I said to you that you will die in your sins, for if you do not believe that I am He, you will die in your sins” [24].

* The Lord came for this reason: to take away the sins of the world; for it is impossible for mankind to get rid of them except through washing them away. Therefore it is necessary for the person who believes not to depart from this world while bearing the old man. As long as a person does not, through faith, kill the old man, bury, and die in him (the old man), then he will go to that place and be punished for his earlier sins<sup>50</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Since a person who does not believe that Jesus Christ is the Messiah dies in his sins, then clearly a person who believes in him does not die in his sins. However a person, who dies in sin, even though he claims to believe, is still an unbeliever because he is merely concerned with the truth; and his claim to faith is void of deeds. Such faith is, therefore, a dead one; and is similar to that kind which is mentioned in the epistles. In the epistle of James, such faith is condemned (James 2:17)<sup>51</sup>.

* Therefore, who is that person who believes, or who is convinced to have a nature that agrees with the Word and unites with Him? Such a person does not commit the sin which is described as one leading to death (1 Jn 5:16). That person does not sin – according to these verses – and does not resist in any manner the upright word but lives according to the words: “whoever believes that Jesus is the Christ is born of God...”<sup>52</sup>.

* He who believes that the Word was with God since the beginning (Jn 1:1) would never do any unreasonable act as he meditates upon God’s word.

And whoever believes that the Lord is our peace (Eph 2:14) does not wish to engage in any conflict, such as those who delight in war or seek to arouse trouble.

Moreover, since the Lord Jesus Christ is the wisdom of God as well as His power (1 Cor 1:24); then a person who believes in Him, and that He is the source of power, will not be weak in doing good works....

For we believe that He is the source of stability and power based on the verse, “And now, Lord, what do I wait for? My hope is in you” (Ps 39:7). Therefore, when we surrender to anxiety, we reveal that we do not believe in Him who grants stability. And if we become weak, then we do not really believe that He is the power<sup>53</sup>.

Origen

The Jews are miserable because they die in their sins and not because they commit sin. This is what every Christian needs to avoid, and it is why we accept baptism. It is also why those who are in danger due to sickness or some other problems seek help; and why a mother carries, with pure hands, her child to church. She does not want him to go out into the world without baptism. Otherwise, he would die in the sin with which he/she was born<sup>54</sup>.

* If you believe that I am He, you will not die in your sins. The Lord brings hope to those who are fearful. There is hope for those who are asleep; for they will wake up and their hearts will enjoy constant renewal. Indeed, after the Lord’s crucifixion, many believed. The Bible testifies that many were members of Christ, but had not yet joined His Holy Body. Indeed, some of those who had crucified and hung Him up on the Cross, later became members in the Lord. They had mocked Him as He hung up there, and the one who had struck His side with the sword, as well as those who had offered Him vinegar to drink.... Of all these, the Lord said: “Father, forgive them, for they do not know what they do”<sup>55</sup>.

St. Augustine

Referring to the Lord’s words, “... if you do not believe that I am He, you will die in your sins,” St. Augustine comments that the Lord Jesus Christ intended to remind them of the words God had spoken to Moses, “I am who I AM” (Ex 3). This was God’s answer when Moses asked him about his name. By this, God indicates that He is the beginning; He is the past, the present, and the future<sup>56</sup>.

Then they said to him:

“Who are you?”

And Jesus said to them,

“Just what I have been saying to you from the beginning...” [25]

The Lord’s answer to them could be restated as follows: “I am the beginning”, or ‘Arche.’ Just as I have spoken to you in the Old Testament, I have not changed. From the beginning, it has been written that from the seed of the woman, the head of the snake shall be bruised (Gen. 3:15). This is the essence of the faith of the fathers (Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob). The Lord Jesus Christ is the Intercessor achieving the promise and the subject of the prophecies. From the beginning of His service, He declared to the Jews that He is the Son of God, the Bread of Life. Why did they continue to ask this question which He had answered repeatedly. The Lord informed them that He is the Savior of the world. Yet they asked, ‘Who are you that you threaten in this manner? What authority do you have over us?’

* It is as though the Lord was telling them: “You are totally unqualified to hear My words or even learn who I am. For everything you say is with the purpose of testing Me, and you have not considered anything of My teachings. I could use all these matters as testimonies against you.” This is the implication of this verse<sup>57</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Those who had heard the Lord teaching with great authority were obliged to ask who it was who uttered these words. The Savior then proclaimed, “ ... if you do not believe that I am He, you will die in your sins.” [24]. Thus He reveals that He is greater than any human being. Indeed, He bears the divine nature<sup>58</sup>.

Origen

“I have many things to say and to judge concerning you,
but He who sent Me is true;
and I speak to the world these things which I heard of Him.” [26]

The Lord declares that He can expose their reality since He discerns all hidden things. He knows about their pride, their wickedness, and their hatred of the light. He knows about their jealousy towards what is true, their blasphemy, and their lack of faith and their evil intentions regarding Him. What the prophets have said about you is true. Nevertheless, now is not a time of judgment but rather it is time for salvation.

The Lord teaches us here that we should not say all the things we know, especially concerning the wickedness in others. Conversely, He asks us to seek people to repent, and to return to the truth and so enjoy fellowship with God.

* It is as though the Lord is saying, ‘Since the Father has sent Me to save the world, which is a good purpose, therefore, I do not judge anyone now. Indeed, I speak these words that lead to your salvation, and not those intended to condemn you.’

St. John Chrysostom

‘They did not understand that He spoke to them of the Father.’ [27]

Because the devil had blinded them, and so they thought that the Lord was speaking about His physical father who lived in Galilee, and not about the Father who is His Father.

Then Jesus said to them,
“ When you lift up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am He,
and that I do nothing of Myself;
but as My Father taught Me, I speak these things.” [28]

Crucifying Him marks the peak of their wickedness. It is only then that they will realize that they have crucified the Lord of Glory. This reality will be revealed to them as a result of the signs that will occur during and after His crucifixion, as well as at His resurrection after that.

The burned offering was called ‘a raising.’ In many of the litanies of offering and sacrifices, the meat was lifted up and moved before the Lord. In the same manner, the Lord was lifted up on the Cross. During the Divine Liturgy, the instance when the priest chooses the lamb is called ‘the lifting of the lamb.’ The priest places the lamb (the Bread) in a cloth and lifts it up to his forehead as he prays, “Glory and honor; honor and glory to the Holy Trinity.” Sometimes, in the Holy Bible, ‘lift’ is used to indicate ‘to glorify.’ St. Peter the apostle uses it in this sense in his sermon on the day of Pentecost, “Therefore, being exalted to the right hand of God” (Acts 2:23). St. Paul also uses this word in the same sense, “Therefore, God also has highly exalted him...” (Phil 2:9). In the Old Testament, Joseph says, “Now within three days, Pharaoh will lift up your head to restore you to your place” (Gen 40:13).

The word ‘lift’ is also used to imply humiliation or death; as when Joseph said, “Within three days, Pharaoh will lift off your head from you and hang you on a tree” (Gen 40:19).

Here, when the Lord says, “...When you lift up the Son of Man”, we find both meanings. From their perspective, they will lift Him up on the Cross in shame and embarrassment. However, from the perspective of the Father, He will raise and glorify Him; for through the Cross all the power of Satan is publicly exposed and denounced (Col. 2:15).

* The Lord did not say, “You will know who I am,” but rather, “You will know that I am He.” In other words they would know that that the Lord Jesus Christ is the Son of God. ‘He bears all things and I am not against that One ...for you will know my power and the oneness of thought with the Father.’ Actually, the Lord says, “...I do nothing of myself, but as my Father taught me, I speak these things” [28]. With these words, the Lord proclaims that in essence He is like the Father himself; He does not utter anything except that which is in the mind of the Father<sup>59</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* What does all this mean? It seems that all He has said is that they would know who He is after He undergoes all the sufferings. Undoubtedly, the Lord knew that He would reveal Himself to some of them such as those saints He had chosen and whom he foreknew before the foundation of the world. These would believe after the fact of His sufferings. ...He appears to say, “I will not be concerned with your enlightenment and will postpone that until my sufferings are over.” This does not mean that all who had heard Him would believe only after His passion because the Bible reports, a few verses later on, that “As He spoke these words, many believed in Him” [30]. However the Son of Man had not been lifted up as yet.

The ‘lifting up’ that the Lord is talking about here refers to His sufferings and not to His glorification. It refers to the Cross and not to heaven, yet He was also glorified there when He was hung on Cross<sup>60</sup>.

* These words were intended to comfort those who might despair on account of a sense of guilt. This is reinforced by hearing the Lord as He forgave those who put Him to death.

* “...I do nothing of myself...” [28]. What does this mean? That I am not alone for the Son is God and He proceeds from the Father. However, the Father is God but does not proceed from the Son. The Son is God proceeding from God; the Father is God but does not proceed from a God. The Son is light from light and the Father is light but not from light. The Son is an entity yet there is an entity from whom He proceeds. The Father is an entity but there is not an entity from whom He proceeds<sup>61</sup>.

* How did the Father talk with the Son? Did He talk to Him? According to the Lord's words “...as my Father taught me, I speak these things...” [28].

When the Father taught the Son, did He use words such as those you use when you talk to your son?

How could the Father use words when He is talking to the Word?

How many innumerable words would have to be used when talking with the One Word?

Does the Son bring His ear close to the Father's mouth?

All these are physical considerations ...discard them from your hearts, for God speaks to our hearts without a voice as we have indicated earlier. Therefore how much more does He speak to His Son?

The Father speaks to His Son in an intangible manner since He gave birth to the Son in a non-physical manner as well.

God did not teach His Son as though He was conceived without knowledge. Therefore 'taught' here conveys that He was born with full knowledge ...the Son has received knowledge from the Father from whom He has also received His being. This does not mean that He was born first and then received knowledge. Rather it conveys that as the Father at birth brought Him into being, so at birth too He gave Him knowledge. It is a natural simple fact since His being is not something different from His knowledge; both are One and the same<sup>62</sup>.

St. Augustine

“And He who sent me is with me.

The Father has not left me alone,

for I always do things that please Him” [29].

They seemed to possess the authority to kill Him. Yet this did not mean that the Father had abandoned Him. He is always with Him and they are never apart. What the Son does is pleasing to the Father; and so the Son was going to obey the Father and sacrifice Himself in order to save the world.

* So that they would not think that the Lord's words “He who sent me” indicates a deficiency in Him, He adds: “He...is with me.” While the words 'sent me' refer to God's plan, the words 'is with me' refer to His divinity. The Lord also clarifies that His actions on the Sabbath are pleasing to His Father as He says: “...for I always do those things that please Him.” Indeed the Lord Jesus Christ struggled intensely to reveal that He never acted contrary to the will of His Father.

St. John Chrysostom

“...He who sent Me is with Me” [29] ...this equality in being is ‘permanent’, and has no beginning or follow up ...indeed there is no beginning and no end. This is because the divine birth has no beginning in time since time itself has been created by the Only Son<sup>63</sup>.

<sup>62</sup> St. Augustine: On the Gospel of St. John, tractate 40:5

<sup>63</sup> St. Augustine: On the Gospel of St. John, tractate 40:6

St. Augustine

‘As He spoke these words, many believed in Him [30].

Whereas the Scribes and Pharisees stumbled due to His words and teachings, many of the people believed in Him. Just as the sun which dries up the mud is the same sun which melts wax, so were the Lord’s words: the words which carried the aroma of life to the living, were the same which carried death to those who were dead.

The Greek word for ‘believed’ implies they believed the truth. However, it does not convey the firm and living faith; for in their hearts and minds they expected to see the Messiah in the terms of their material and political world: a Messiah who would liberate them from the Roman occupation and reinstate in the world the honor of their nation.

* Many of the Jews believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, yet it was not with full faith. They believed the simple notions of the faith; but they chose what was convenient and comforting to them.

St. John Chrysostom.

4. Spiritual Freedom

“Then Jesus said to those Jews who believed Him,

“If you abide in my word, you are my disciples indeed” [31].

As the Lord’s teachings began to affect the hearts of those who believed, the Lord turned his attention from the proud Pharisees to the simple believers. They were beginners and He wanted to speak to them about inner liberty. He wanted to carry them, from mere belief that had no spiritual depth, to steadfastness in Him, as well as constant growth and fellowship with Him. They were weak in their faith, but as a Shepherd He carried them in the palms of His hands; tenderly and gently. He opened the door of true discipleship to them which provides constancy and steadfastness in His word. It is not sufficient to join His school, for they have to be steadfast. Consequently, they would enjoy constant and unceasing growth. Many have appeared to be disciples and carried His name, but they have not persevered in His word. True discipleship to him involves constancy in Him and enjoying fellowship with Him. As long as we live, we need to belong to His school, and be serious about knowing and enjoying Him in a practical manner. Truly, we have accepted the divine Truth, yet we need to walk in His way. We need to love and hold on to Him and preserve Him within us.

* The Lord speaks these words in order to achieve the result that takes place after that: “As He spoke these words, many believed in Him” [30]. He spoke in the treasury where the poor came to obtain what they could and what was distributed to them. Therefore, many believed; but there were many who did not know Him. Among those who believed, there were those who remained steadfast in His teachings and these became His true disciples. For this reason, not many knew Him, since they did not become liberated when He delivered the Truth [33]. Indeed, only a few wake up and attain freedom.

Who are those who knew him, or those who lift Him up? According to the Lord’s words: ‘When you lift up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am He’ [refer to verse 28]. Now, no one is given milk to drink while He prepares himself to eat solid food (1 Cor. 3:2; Rom. 5:12). Such a person therefore says: “For I determined not to know anything among you except Jesus Christ and Him crucified” (1 Cor. 2:2)<sup>64</sup>.

* In order to become a disciple, it is not enough to just come. You also need to continue (be steadfast). That is why the Lord did not say: 'If you have heard My words' or 'if you come to My word,' or 'if you praise My word.' Notice he says, " If you abide (continue) in My word, you are My disciples indeed. And you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" [31-31]. What do we say, my brothers? That we abide (persevere) in the Word of God.... Is that a hard thing to do or what?

If it is hard, then let us look forward at the great reward.

If it is not hard, then you would have been rewarded for nothing.

Let us abide (continue) in Him who abides in us.

If we do not abide in Him, we will fall. As for the Lord, if He does not abide in us, He will not have lost a resting place. Indeed, He excels as He rests in the Father who is One with Him and never abandons Him.

God forbid that man abides within his own self, for he loses himself by such an action. Therefore, we abide in Him out of our need, whereas the Lord abides in us out of His mercy towards us<sup>65</sup>.

* What does "If we abide" convey? If you build on the rock..."(Matt 7:24)

How great this is, my brothers!...

What is the reward? "You shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

'Bear and listen to Me, for you are aware that My voice is soft.

Help Me by listening quietly.'

What a glorious reward! "You shall know the truth."

Now, someone might say, "What do I benefit by knowing the truth?" "The truth shall make you free."

If the truth does not appeal to you, then let liberty have its appeal

In Latin, the word "liberate" carries two meanings. We are used to hearing this word applied to someone who is free, to indicate that he has escaped from some danger or surmounted some obstacle. However, the appropriate meaning for liberation is 'to be safe', 'to be healed' and to 'be perfect.' In this sense, to be liberated means to be free<sup>66</sup>.

St. Augustine

Knowledge of the truth does not imply mere theoretical knowledge. Rather, it signifies having experienced and united with the truth.

* Notice that the Holy Bible does not state in other passages that those who unite with any object/someone and become one, get to know that other object with whom they have become associated and preoccupied. Before such a unity and fellowship existed, they did not know anything about that object/person until they learned some information from the descriptions offered to them.

For example, Adam said to Eve," This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh." (Gen 2:23) Till then, Adam had not known his wife, but when he got attached to her, we are told: "Now Adam knew Eve his wife." (Gen 4:1)

Those who find it hard to accept our use of the expression 'Adam knew Eve his wife' as an example of the manner in which we know God, let them consider the following: First, this is a great mystery (Eph 5:23). Then compare how the apostle uses the same words he used about the male and female to speak about the relationship between man and God. "Or do you not know that he who is joined to a harlot in one body with her? For 'the two,' he says, 'shall become one flesh.’ But he who is joined with the Lord is one spirit with Him.” (1Cor 6:16). Consequently, he who adheres to a harlot knows a harlot, and he who adheres to a wife knows the wife. This applies even more truly to a person who adheres to God, and consequently gets to know God in a sacred manner.

Since this is so, then the Pharisees neither knew the Father nor the Son<sup>67</sup>.

Origen

* ‘If you abide (continue) in the faith which has just begun in you now, you who believe, what will be your destination?’

Look at the nature of the beginning and where it will lead you. You love the foundation and are concerned with the peak. Pray while you are at this simple, yet sublime height. For faith needs humility; yet, knowledge, immortality, and eternity demand sublimity and not earthly qualities. They demand heights, fulfillment, eternal stability and complete liberation from hostile attacks or fears of failure. These are great things which have their beginnings in faith but are often belittled.

When a building is constructed, those who have no experience often give little attention to the foundations. A great pit is dug and stones are thrown everywhere and in any way. There is no decoration or beauty. In spite of that, all that enchants us about the tree arises from the roots. Look at the roots and you will not be enchanted; look at the tree and you will be astonished by its beauty. Foolish person! What you admire grows out of what does not enchant you.

Similarly, the faith of believers appears to be a trivial matter and you have no scale by which to measure it.

Let us therefore listen to what faith has to offer. Let us consider its greatness as the Lord says in another passage, “...if you have faith as a mustard seed” (Matt. 17:20). What could be less significant than that? Yet what greater energy spreads from it? What would be smaller than that? Yet what could spread more powerfully from that seed? The Lord says “If you abide in My word,” that is if you believe. So where will that lead you? “...You are My disciples indeed” [31]. What benefit does this bring to them? “...You shall know the truth”<sup>68</sup> [32].

St. Augustine

* “If you abide in My word”; these are words uttered by Him who reveals what is in their hearts. He knows that they have believed, but will not continue in their faith after that. So here the Lord is giving them a great promise that they will become His disciples. Some had already abandoned Him. So here He is referring to these as He says “If you abide...” For the others had heard and believed, yet they had abandoned Him and did not remain steadfast; “...many of His disciples went back and walked with Him no more” (John 6:66)<sup>69</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“And you shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free” [32].

The Lord is speaking, here, about knowledge that arises from practice and experience. These are powerful means that promote true discipleship to Him and result in inner freedom. As long as sin is found in man, then it has not yet been destroyed and he/she is unable to live in the spirit of an adopted child. In the baptismal waters, we have been granted that Spirit and can call the Father “our Father” (Rom. 8:15). Slavery to sin is the most dangerous form of slavery, and getting liberated from it is the greatest form of freedom.

A person who knows the truth and abides in it- in other words, who knows the Lord Jesus Christ and embraces Him- becomes liberated from the slavery of sin. He gets to have the thoughts of the Lord which are in harmony with the will of God. Consequently, such a person lives in perfect freedom according to the will of the Creator.

He is the Liberator who says “The spirit of the Lord God is upon Me, because the Lord has annointed Me to preach good tidings to the poor. He has sent me to heal the broken hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives...” (Is. 61:1). On the Cross, the Lord has liberated us from our sins and their slavery. And with His resurrection, He has granted us His divine righteousness. Indeed, we are no longer slaves to sin. His holy word has liberated us from slavery to the literal word. Therefore we may live with the free spirit as children of God. As a result, we are able to experience the heavenly life as those who enter into the heavenly Jerusalem who is our free mother.

Had they not attained such knowledge while the Lord spoke to them? If they did not have knowledge, then how did they believe? They believed in order to know and not because they already knew. We believe so that we might know and not vice versa; for what we will get to know “Eye has not seen, nor ear heard, nor have entered into the heart of man...” (Is 64:4; 1 Cor 2:9). For what is faith other than believing what you have not seen as yet?<sup>70</sup>

* “And you shall know the truth”: the truth is unchangeable. The truth is bread that nourishes our minds and never fails. He changes those who eat Him while He does not undergo change within those who have been filled with Him. The truth is the Word of God...the only Son. This truth became incarnate for our sakes; He was to be born of the holy Virgin Mary and so fulfill the prophecy:” Truth shall spring out of the earth” (Ps 85:11). Therefore the truth, who was speaking to the Jews, was concealed in the flesh. However, He was not concealed in order to be denied but in order to delay His revelation. This was delayed so that he may suffer in the flesh: and He suffered in the flesh in order to liberate it from sin. Consequently, He appeared wholly weak physically; and His Divine glory was wholly concealed<sup>71</sup>.

St. Augustine

* “And you shall know the truth”: in other words, you shall know Me for I am the truth. All the Judaic teachings are symbols, but you will know the truth in Me, and this shall liberate you from your sins. The Lord did not say: ‘I will liberate you from slavery’ for He left it to them to reach this conclusion<sup>72</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

They answered Him,
“We are Abraham’s descendants, and have never been I bondage to anyone, considered his invitation to enjoy freedom an insult to them. For they were the children of Abraham who was free and who called God 'his Friend' (Is. 41:8). The Jews used to boast that they were descendants of that great father. Rabbi Akiba, who died in the year 135 A.D. approximately, says: [Even the poorest people in Israel are considered free people, even those who have lost all their belongings, for they are the children of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. The whole nation holds dearly to this special honor of being related to these great fathers and this had nothing to do with their economic status]. This is how the Jews felt at the time of the Lord Jesus Christ.

They believed that their physical lineage from Abraham liberated them. However, we read of the foolish rich man in hell, pleading to Abraham his father and saying: 'Father Abraham, have mercy on me and send Lazarus that he may dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue, for I am tormented in this flame.' (Lk. 16:24).

How did they dare say "we have never been in bondage to anyone" [33]? Were they not slaves to the Egyptians and liberated by Moses? Had they not been enslaved several times by neighboring nations in the era of the Judges? Were they not in bondage in Babel for seventy years? And finally, were they not paying taxes to the Roman Caesar?

People who are materialistic do not pay attention to inner bondage. Their whole concern is focused on physical lusts.

* This is what the Jews boasted about: 'We are Abraham's descendants'; 'we are Israelites.' Yet they never indicated or referred to their righteous deeds. That is why St. John shouted out, telling them: "... and do not think to say to yourselves, we have Abraham as our Father" (Matt 3:9). Why did the Lord not embarrass them since they had often been in bondage under the Egyptians, Babylonians and many other nations? Because He did not seek to honor Himself, but sought their salvation and benefit. Therefore He was mounting His pressure with that goal in mind... He was not seeking to reveal that they were slaves to people; but that they were slaves to sin. This is dangerous slavery and no one can liberate them from that except God alone<sup>73</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Every person - Jew, Greek, rich, or poor- having authority or public office- emperor or beggar- "whoever commits sin is a slave of sin" [34]. If people recognized their bondage, they would know how to attain freedom.

A person who is born free is transformed from a free person to a slave if he is captured by barbarians. If another person hears about that, feels compassion, and decides to use his money as a ransom, he goes to the barbarians and redeems the captive. In such a manner that man's liberty is restored as he is released from the injustice...

We ask the redeemed person: 'Have you erred?' He answers: 'I have.' Therefore do not boast about yourself that you have been redeemed. And you, who have redeemed him, do not boast. Indeed you should both turn to the true Redeemer, the Lord, who partially considers those who commit sins as slaves; while they are really considered dead ones.

What men should fear is the bondage that sin actually inflicts upon them. Why? Is it because they appear to be alive? Have these words been wrongly quoted: "... let the dead bury their own dead?" (Matt 8:22). Therefore all those under the bondage of sin are dead and enslaved to death: they are dead in their service and servants (slaves) in their death<sup>74</sup>.

* Who is He who liberates from death and slavery other than He who is free and "adrift

among the dead” (Ps 88:5)? Who is the One “adrift among the dead” other than the One who has no sin yet living among sinners? The Lord Jesus Christ Himself, our Savior, declares that:” The ruler of this world is coming and he has nothing in Me” (Jn 14:30). The (ruler of this world) catches those who are deceived and lured by him, and all those whom he urges to commit sin and he is the one who “has nothing in Me.”

Come, O Lord, come, O Savior. May the captive get to know you, may the one who has been captured escape to you, Be a Savior to him.!

When I was lost, the One who came in the flesh found me while Satan found nothing in Him. The ruler of this world found my body; but what kind of body did he find?

He found a dead body that he could catch, crucify and kill!

O Deceiver, you have erred! The Lord cannot be deceived ... you found that He had a body that is susceptible to death, yet it was not a sinful body though in the form of one: “God...by sending His own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, on account of sin: He condemned sin in the flesh” (Rom 8:3). He was in the flesh, yet not in sinful flesh but “in the likeness of sinful flesh.” With what purpose? :“...that the righteous requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us who do not walk according to the flesh but according to the spirit” (Rom 8:4).

No one who claims to be free continues to be a slave. May our spirits not remain in bondage, for He forgives our sins (debts) day by day<sup>75</sup>.

* Speaking about freedom in this life: where is the truth in their claim that they “have never been in bondage to anyone”? Was Joseph not sold (Gen 37:28)? Have the holy prophets not been captured and held in exile (2 Kings 24; Ex 1:1)? Another instance again, did not this nation, who used to make milk in Egypt, have to serve under vigorous rulers with hard bondage- not engaged in the gold or silver business- but in making bricks, and all manner of service in the field (Ex 1:14)? O you ungrateful nation, if you had never been enslaved then why was the Lord constantly reminding you that He has saved you from bondage (Ex 13:3; Deut 5:6)?...How did you pay the taxes to the Romans, and through that have set up a trap by which to catch the truth when you asked “Is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar, or not?” You did so in order to accuse Him promptly of insulting the freedom of Abraham’s descendants should He have condoned such payment. At the same time, should he have expressed opposition, you would have complained before the kings of the earth that He opposes the payment of taxes to them<sup>76</sup>.

St. Augustine

Jesus answered them,

“Most assuredly, I say to you, whoever commits sin is a slave of sin...” [34]

This awesome opening “Most assuredly I say to you” introduces a fearful proclamation. The Lord uses this very often when He launches on a matter of extreme seriousness. In this respect, He is different from the prophets who used the words: “This is what the Lord says.” They did so because they were God’s faithful servants; whereas the Lord Jesus Christ speaks for Himself and in his own right as the Son of God and says “I say to you.”

“Whoever commits sin is a slave of sin”: there is no righteous man who has never sinned. Yet not everyone who commits a mistake is a slave of sin. By saying, ‘whoever commits sin’; the Lord refers to those who intend to commit sin and prefer it over the righteousness of God. These prefer the path of wickedness over the path of holiness (Jer. 44:16-17). By such behavior, they make a treaty with sin and accept it as their law: they allow sin to dictate their physical lusts and love of the world.

A person realizes his/her bondage to sin as he practices it. At first, one may believe that he is in control and has the right to obey or reject a certain sin. However, once sin has access, it holds the steering wheel directing the soul. Then a person gradually loses control over his will. It is as though sin is a drug which is hard to get rid of. Consequently, the person is manipulated according to the sin's whims. This leads him to do things he never imagined he would ever do. According to the Desert Fathers, when sin occupies a place in man's heart or mind and reigns over him, it exposes him to other sins. These may dominate him too, while leading him into a chain of sins which he cannot conquer on his own.

*“Jesus answered them, “Most assuredly, I say to you, whoever commits sin is a slave of sin.”

He is a slave of sin: what a fate for man, and for sin!

Who would not tremble before these words? May our Lord and God grant us-you and I-to speak properly about such freedom. May we seek it, and avoid such bondage.

What a miserable bondage! When mankind suffers from wicked masters who demand us basically that we change our Master.

What does a slave of sin do? To whom does he bring his needs? To whom does he pray for salvation?...

Where does he escape from sin while he carries (his master) where ever he goes. The wicked conscience cannot escape from itself and there is no where to which he can go.

Indeed, a person cannot withdraw from himself because sin abides within him, he commits sin in order to attain some physical pleasure... The pleasure passes away while sin remains. What makes him rejoice transpires while the thorn remains after it. What a wicked bondage!

Let us all escape and go to the Lord. Let us voice our rebellion against sin to God who is our Savior. Let us pray that we get sold so that He may redeem us with His blood; for He says:” you have sold yourselves for nothing, and you shall be redeemed without money” (Is 52:3). Without money on your side due to Me. This is what the Lord says because He has paid the price, not with money but with his own Blood. Otherwise we would have continued to be needy slaves<sup>77</sup>.

St. Augustine

“And a slave does not abide in the house forever, but a son abides forever” [35].

The Lord is probably referring here to the exile of Ishmael and how he lost his inheritance (Gen. 21:10-14). A slave has no right to the inheritance of the family who has raised him; whereas the legal son has that right. The legal son has also the right to grant freedom to any slave of the family, and to deal with his inheritance in whatever manner he wishes.

The freedom of which the Jews boasted was a hallucination and an imaginary one, for they possessed neither inner nor outward freedom. This is the result of inner sin: it tricks its slaves into hallucinations of freedom. They get to believe that by living wickedly they are living a free and unrestrained existence. They imagine that they are demolishing what they believe to be bonds of goodness and faith. True freedom is found in the Lord Jesus Christ. In Him, the believer sees the law of true love even if the price is self sacrifice for others. True freedom has divine potentials for the believer as he enjoys fellowship with the Divine Nature. No imaginations or materialistic transient factors can captivate him. On the contrary, the believer finds pleasure in harmonizing his will with that of God, his heavenly Father.

* If you wonder, why does the Lord mention ‘the house’ when he speaks and reminds

---

them of their sins? Our answer would be: To demonstrate that just as the master holds authority in his own house, so does He have power and is Master of the creation. By saying “...does not abide”, the Lord refers to the lack of power to grant privileges since the slave is not master of the house. However, the son is lord of the house and that is why He says “... a son abides forever”: as a metaphor borrowed from the context of human life. So that they would not say: ‘who are you’, the Lord said: “Everything belongs to Me; I am the Son who lives in my Father’s house.” By using the word ‘house’ the Lord reveals His power. In another passage, the Lord calls the kingdom His ‘Father’s house’: “In my Father’s house are many mansions...” (Jn 14:2). Because in this passage His teachings focus specifically on freedom and bondage, the Lord uses metaphors in order to inform them that they have no power by which they could enjoy freedom (nor to receive forgiveness.)<sup>78</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

* Many sinners come into the church. That is why the Lord did not say: ‘the slave is not in the house’ but rather said “...a slave does not abide in the house forever.” Our hope, dear brothers, is that we become free through Him who is free. By liberating us, He will transform us into slaves. We were slaves to lust, but when we are liberated, He transforms us into slaves of love.

This is also echoed in the words of the apostle: “for you, brethren, have been called to liberty; only do not use liberty as an opportunity for the flesh, but through love serve one another.” (Gal 5:13).

Therefore, a Christian person does not say: ‘I am free, I have been called to freedom. I was a slave and have been liberated and through my redemption I have become free to do whatever pleases me. No one can oppose my will since I am free...’

Do not damage your freedom by committing sin, rather, use it by not falling into sin. You become truly free only when you have a sanctified will.

You are free even though you are still a slave, liberated from sin, and serving righteousness. The apostle accordingly says: “for when you were slaves of sin, you were free in regard of righteousness” (Rom 6:20,22)<sup>79</sup>.

St. Augustine

“Therefore if the son makes you free, you shall be free indeed” [36].

St. John Chrysostom comments that in these verses the Son reveals his equality with the Father regarding authority; for only God justifies and condemns (Rom. 8:33,34). The Son has no sin and grants freedom from sin; and this is an authority that belongs to God only. The Lord, moreover, indicates that the liberty they think they possess is not a genuine one. However, the liberty that the Son grants is the real one: “...you shall be free indeed”<sup>80</sup>.

* The Lord came in the flesh, that is in the likeness of the sinful flesh (Rom 8:3). But he did not come in the flesh of a sinner, for there was no sin whatsoever in Him. On that account, He became the offering for sin; for there was no sin in Him<sup>81</sup>.

* Truly He grants us liberty from sin as He is fully entitled to do so. Accordingly, He says in the Psalms: “I am like a man who has no strength, adrift among the dead” (Ps 88:4,n5). Therefore He was the only free one who had no sin. When He says: “...the ruler of this world is coming...” the Lord is referring to Satan who will appear in the persons of the Jews who would persecute Him and “He has nothing in Me” (Jn 14:30,31). This is why no trace of sin will be found in the Lord as well as in any of those who are killed and are righteous martyrs. ‘Satan will have nothing in Me...I am not paying the price of death due to my sins; but I die to fulfill My Father’s will. In so doing I will tolerate death; even though I could have avoided suffering had I wished not to suffer.’ In another context, the Lord explains: “...I have power to lay it (my life) down, and I have power to take it again” (Jn 10:18). Here we definitely have the words of Him who is free among the dead<sup>82</sup>.

* Just as a doctor detests the disease of the patient and uses all the medical means to remove it and heal the suffering one; so does God work, through grace, in man in order to remove sin and liberate us.

* The apostle accordingly declares what we are about to acknowledge: “For I delight in the law of God according to the inward man” (Rom 7:22). That is the moment when we become free as we rejoice in the word of God, because freedom brings joy. As long as you practice goodness out of fear, then the Lord will not be the reason for your joy. May your joy arise from Him so that you may become free. Do not fear punishment, but rather love righteousness. Do you still dislike righteousness? Then fear judgment in order to be granted the love of righteousness<sup>83</sup>.

St. Augustine

“I know that you are Abraham’s descendants, but you seek to kill Me,
because My word has no place in you” [37]

It is good for the Jews to boast that they are descendants of Abraham, but why have they not followed in the spirit of their father in his faith and obedience to God? Why did they not confirm their lineage through their deeds rather than seeking to kill the Lord Jesus Christ? Since killing the innocent is considered a great crime, then how would you judge the act of killing the King of Kings? Abraham, in complete obedience and faith, offered his dear son as a burnt offering to God. Here we find them in total rebellion as they seek the death of the dear Son of God!

They boast of their lineage from Abraham who was given the promise to be the father of numerous nations. Although the time for the fulfillment of the promise had come; and that the Lord had come from Abraham’s lineage to gather all Abraham’s spiritual children; yet here we find the Jews seeking to kill Him. The mystery behind their rebellion against the truth; and their lack of pleasure in the blessings which their father Abraham enjoyed, is declared here in the Lord’s words: “...because My word has no place in you.” They did not leave a place in their hearts for the words of the Lord who is himself the truth. Due to the envy and hate that filled their hearts, there was no possibility for truth to enter.

When a person shuts the doors of his heart with physical lust and love of the world, then there is no place for truth to enter and fill him. Truth does not force His way in when He is not welcomed. When He is welcomed, he enters as though into His house, takes charge of the steering wheel in order to direct all the motions of the heart, thought, feelings, and senses. Consequently, such a person is transformed through divine grace into a spiritual being led by the Spirit of God.

If you boast on account of your lineage from Abraham, then you need to promote yourselves and live in the same manner as he did. The Lord did not say “you have no place for my words” but He said “My word has no place in you” as He was indicating the sublimity of his teachings. In spite of all that, this was not the reason why they wanted to kill him. They wanted to kill him because they did not honor or listen to him with the intention of learning<sup>84</sup>.

---

St. John Chrysostom

Origen offers a distinction between ‘descendants’ and ‘children’ from a literal point of view. Descendants or seeds are put into a woman and she may or may not give birth to a child. This implies that all children are either descendants or seeds, but not all are children. Therefore all those who live in the manner of Abraham are his descendants and children. Whereas those who are his children according to the flesh, but do not walk in his ways, are only descendants and not his true children. Based on that, Origen says that if there is a person who is neither Abraham’s child nor his descendant, then he is not to be blamed, like them, if he is a sinner. This is because he has not had the chance to be born of the seed of a righteous man and grow to be like his father. As for those who are Abraham’s descendants, they should have been counted as his children and they should have walked in their father’s footsteps. Though they are descendants yet they are not true children of Abraham since they do not live according to the ways of their father<sup>85</sup>.

Origen also states: [Abraham became Abraham although he is not an offspring of Abraham (he did not conceive himself) but an offspring from those who came before him. Similarly, it is possible for a person, who sows good seeds in himself, to become another Abraham in spite of not being of his offspring in any way. Yet he possesses the capacity to sow seeds like Abraham<sup>86</sup>].

The people of Israel lived in the same manner as the Amorites, Hittites, and idol worshippers. Therefore the Bible describes them saying: ‘your father was an Amorite and you mother a Hittite’ (Ezk 16:3). Although they were an offspring of Abraham and descended from Sarah; yet they were considered neither Abraham’s nor Sarah’s children.

* This clearly teaches us that we need to interpret the whole story of Abraham symbolically. Besides we need to adopt his ways in a spiritual manner from the very start: “get out of your country, from your kindred, and from your father’s house, to a land that I will show you.”(Gen 12:1). These words are said to everyone who wishes to be God’s child...and the Lord God who appeared to Abraham will appear to us and promise to grant us the land around the high Terebinth tree as an inheritance to our spiritual descendants (Gen 12:6).

Moreover, he who understands the commandment: “must do the works of Abraham”, must build an altar for God who will appear to us where the high Terebinth tree is. From there Abraham had to travel to the mountain, that mountain lies west of Bethel which means “the house of God.” It is for this reason that he set up his tent in Bethel that lies on the west; and Ai lies on the east- ‘Ai’ meaning feasts...

If you are the children of Isaac, then live in the ways of Isaac. The same applies to Jacob as well as to all the holy fathers. Conversely, every person who commits sin is considered to be a child of Satan according to the flesh; since “... he who sins is of the devil” (1 Jn 3:8)...

That is why we say that every person will return to his fathers upon departing from this life. At the time of departure, it will be imperative to say, not only to Abraham but to all mankind: “Now as for you, you shall go to your fathers...” (Gen 16:15). However, ‘...in peace’ is not said to everyone as it applies only to the saints who have retained their righteousness to a good old age. It is said to those who have progressed and enjoyed a long spiritual journey; for ‘understanding comes with old age in mankind’ and ‘the silver- head is a crown of glory’(Prov. 16:31), and an ornament for the truly righteous elders<sup>87</sup>.

Origen

* “I know that you are Abraham’s descendants , but you seek to kill me, because My word has no place in you.”.. I know that you are Abraham’s descendants according to your physical origins but not according to a believing heart. If you had received My words, they would have arrested you, and then you would have been caught like fish that is caught in the net of faith. Then what is the meaning of .”..has no place in you”? It has no place in your hearts that are unwilling to receive them. This is how the word of God works; and this is how it should be with believers: it is like what a fishing rod is to fish. It picks the fish when the fish takes it. No harm touches those who are caught for they are caught to be redeemed and not to be destroyed... as for those others, they have inherited the form of the flesh yet they have become separated from Abraham because they rejected to walk in his faith as his true children<sup>88</sup>.

St. Augustine

5- Adopted Children of God or Adopted Children of Satan

“I speak what I have seen with My Father, and you do what you have seen with your father”[38].

As the Jews boasted to be children of Abraham and his descendants according to the flesh; the Lord Jesus Christ presented himself to them as the Son of God in nature. He wished them to bond with Him so that they might enjoy adoption as children of God through grace; rather than what has happened to them as adopted children of Satan.

They wished to kill Him although He is the Son of God according to nature. Through their deeds and plots they confirmed their acceptance to be adopted children of Satan.

The words of the Lord Jesus Christ are the eternal truth which He sees in the bosom of His father, for He is the Word of God.

There are two families that will never unite: God with his children and Satan with his children. No one can belong to the two families at the same time. By accepting one you necessarily resist the other even though the resistance may not be apparent.

The Lord offers what He hears from the Father as well as what He sees. Because He resides in the Father, He sees Him. What the prophets utter are things they have heard from God or have received through visions. As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He is the Divine Word and the Truth Himself.

* Through my words I proclaim the Father in truth. That is how you need to go about your work too. For I have the same essence as the Father, and the same truth as well<sup>89</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Listen to the voice of the Father to his Son:” I conceived you before Lucifer ever was” (Ps 15:3 Vulgate). He has been born who gives light to all, ever before Lucifer existed...Why is Lucifer mentioned. Because when he was enlightened, he shed light. And why did he become darkened? Because he did not abide in the truth (Jn 8:44).

the truth which He sees with the Father, He is actually seeing Himself speaking of what He sees with the Father: For He is the Word, and the Word was with God (Jn 1:1). The evil which these people were doing, and which the Lord condemned and resented, where had they seen it? They saw it with their father ... here, the Lord is speaking of another father which they had. This was a father who had neither conceived nor created them to become mankind. Yet they were his children on account of their wickedness and not on account of their humanity. They were his children because they followed and imitated him and not because they had been created by him<sup>90</sup>.

St. Augustine

They answered and said to Him:

“Abraham is our father.”

Jesus said to them:

“If you were Abraham’s children, you would do the works of Abraham” [39]

The son bears the nature of the father and naturally imitates him. Therefore it would have been appropriate for them to bear Abraham’s faith, obedience, and righteousness if they were truly his children. They would not have sought to kill the One who speaks the truth- this is something Abraham would never have done. In this manner they deprived themselves of belonging to his spiritual lineage.

* The Lord here deals with their intention to kill. He mentions Abraham as He desires to draw them away from their preoccupation with being descendants of Abraham; and to tear away their haughtiness. He desires to motivate them to be more concerned with the hope of salvation. They can find salvation neither in Abraham nor in their natural bond with him; but rather in possessing his (righteous) will. This was the whole reason for their inability to come to the Lord: they thought that being Abraham’s descendants was enough to secure their salvation<sup>91</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* They answered and said to him: “Abraham is our father”[39]. It is as though they were saying: “what are you saying against Abraham? Or “If you dare, find fault with Abraham.” It is not that the Lord is unable to dare and to find fault in Abraham; but rather that Abraham was not the person that the Lord would want to find fault with, for he would praise him. However, these scribes and Pharisees desired to defy Him so that He would speak wickedly of Abraham. This would give them the chance to fulfill their intention<sup>92</sup>.

St. Augustine

“But now you seek to kill Me, a man who has told you the truth which I heard from God.

Abraham did not do this”[40].

* Those seeking to kill him, seek to kill a human being. Yet even though they have killed him; the God (the Divinity) cannot be killed. They wanted to kill Him and yet could not. So they conspired against Him as they would against a human being. They could not comprehend that the One they were conspiring against is God. No one would want to continue conspiring against Him once he is convinced that the One he is targeting is God<sup>93</sup>.

* They would probably kill the body of the Word, but it is clear that they could go no further after that. Therefore we should not fear those who kill the body but are unable to do further harm. We should not fear those who kill the body, but cannot kill the soul which is consecrated to the Word<sup>94</sup>.

* May these words be applicable to all those who have come after the Lord, as well as to those who went before Him: “It is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me...” (Gal 2:20). We also need to focus on the Lord’s words: “I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. God is not the God of the dead, but of the living” (Matt 22:32). This probably indicates that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are alive because they too have been buried but are risen with the Lord Jesus Christ (1 Cor 2:12; Rom 6:4). However, this did not happen, by any means, at the time when Christ was physically buried, or at the time He arose in the body. Yet, this is only our own observation and comment on the words: “Abraham did not do this” [41]<sup>95</sup>.

Origen

* ‘Abraham was not a murderer. I say this for I am the God of Abraham and when I say this I am saying the truth...I know that you are Abraham’s descendants.’ The Lord did not deny their lineage but He condemned their deeds<sup>96</sup>.

* We come from other nations, yet if we emulate Him, we will become Abraham’s children. Listen to the apostle’s words: “Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made.” He does not say ‘And to his seeds’ as though speaking of many; but as of One: “...and to your Seed, who is Christ...and if you are Christ’s, then you are Abraham’s seed, and heirs according to the promise” (Gal 3:16,29). We have become Abraham’s descendants; and God has made us heirs with him. He has stripped the inheritance away from the earlier heirs, and He has adopted those who have come after them. The Lord has cut off the natural branches that have become dry on the olive tree. This tree had its origins in the patriarch, and the humble and wild olive tree has been grafted into it (Rom 11:17)<sup>97</sup>.

St. Augustine

*St. Augustine comments on the Lord’s words and says: St. John the Baptist attacked the haughtiness of the Jews who had come to him. They boasted that they were descendants of Abraham, yet they did not follow his example. He clearly states that “God is able to raise children to Abraham out of these stones” (Matt 3:7-9). [If you do not bear fruit, which indicates repentance, then do not boast of such lineage. God can condemn you without denying there are children of Abraham: they are those who imitate him in his faith and are therefore his children. “God is able to raise up children to Abraham out of these stones”- we are such children. Through our fathers we had become stones as we had taken stones to be our god and had worshipped them. From these stones, God has created a family for Abraham<sup>98</sup>].

“You do the deeds of your father.”

Then they said to Him, “We were not born of fornication, we have one Father- God” [41].

The Lord revealed a truth hidden from them: by their actual deeds they had become adopted children of Satan who is a murderer. Ever since the beginning, he did not abide in the truth [44].

The Jews may have intended, by these words, to indicate that they were not descendants of Ishmael who was the son of the servant; whereas they came from the lineage of Isaac the son of Sarah, the free woman. Besides, they claimed they did not descend from Moab or Edom who were born out of a sinful relationship between Noah and his two daughters.

* The matter does not end with the reference to the branch and the stone; but with the indication that mankind has sinned even more through their choice of Satan to be their father, while he is the destroyer of souls. That is why the Lord reprimanded them saying: “You do the deeds of your father”, pointing to Satan who has become the father of mankind through deceit and not by nature. Just as Paul became the father of the Corinthians through his good teachings, so has Satan become called the father of those who willingly consent to obey him (Ps 50:18)<sup>99</sup> ..

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* When we sin, we acknowledge that we have not yet stripped away our birth from Satan; even though we have believed in the Lord Jesus Christ. That explains why the Lord told the Jews who had believed: “You do the deeds of your father.” The word ‘father’ here refers to Satan; and the Lord uses it again in this sense when He says: “You are of your father the devil” [44].

* These words indicate clearly that a person is not a child of Satan as a fruit of creation. Moreover, we cannot consider that any person is God’s child as he has been created by Him.

It is also clear that a person who was previously known as a child of Satan can become a child of God. This is clear in St. Matthew’s Gospel as he reports the Lord’s words: “You have heard that it was said, ‘You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.’ But I say to you Love your enemies, bless those who curse you, do good to those who hate you and persecute you; that you maybe sons of your Father in heaven” (Matt 5:43-45)<sup>100</sup>.

* Since all who abide in Him do not commit sin, then those who commit sin do not abide in the Son. And since all those who commit sin do not see Him, then he who sees Him does not sin<sup>101</sup>.

* The person who is born of God does not sin. It is true that it is not written that the person born of Satan does not act righteously; but rather that a person who acts wickedly comes from Satan<sup>102</sup>.

* Some claim that there are some creatures who come from God, and that they are in no way born of God. These creatures are definitely of a lower rank in the world in contrast to those considered to be born of God<sup>103</sup>.

* He who is born of God does not commit sin for the Seed of God abides in him. Through the power of this Seed within him, the feature of inability to sin appears in him. At the end of St. John’s Epistle we read these words: “We know that whoever is born of God does not sin; but he who has been born of God keeps himself, and the wicked one does not touch him” (1Jn 5:18).

* Those who are Abraham’s children do the deeds of Abraham. The first thing he did was to leave his land, his family, and his father’s house; and he departed to the land which God would show him. This is why the Lord reprimanded the Jews and faced them with the fact that they were not Abraham’s children: they had not left their father’s house and they were still loyal to the evil father and doing the deeds of that father<sup>104</sup>.

* When the Lord said that God is His Father (Jn 5:18), He did not indicate a man as His father. Therefore the Jews responded: “We were not born of fornication” as they opposed Him. They also added: “We have one Father- God” [41]. It is as though they were telling Him: ‘We are the ones who have one father-God- whereas you do not since you claim that you were born of a Virgin, and therefore were born of adultery/fornication.

You boast that you were born of a Virgin by claiming that God alone is Your Father. We are the ones who know God as our Father yet we do not deny that we have a human father too',<sup>105</sup>.

Origen

* The Jews realized that the Lord was not talking about their physical lineage from Abraham. They knew He was referring to their deeds, and they were aware of the significance of His words. Wickedness entails deviation from God and it consequently leads to spiritual fornication. They therefore stopped talking about their lineage since they had failed to follow Abraham's example. That is why they said: "We were not born of fornication, we have one Father- God" [41].

* 'You claim that God is your Father, therefore consider Me as your brother at least.' At the same time, the Lord repeats words He has often said to offer a motive to those who have an alert heart: "I proceeded forth and came from God, nor have I come of Myself, but He sent Me"...The Lord Jesus Christ came from God and is equal to Him, the only Son, and the Word of the Father. He came to us for the Word became incarnate in order to dwell among us. His coming indicated His human form as well as His divinity. He enables us to progress through that Divinity which is in the flesh. Had He not become incarnate in order to enable us to progress, we would never have received Him who is the eternal One<sup>106</sup>.

* The Lord says: 'Why do you not understand My words? Because you are unable to hear them'...Why are they unable to listen other than because they refuse to walk uprightly by believing in Him? Why was that? Because "You are of your father, the devil." Until when will you continue to speak about a father? Until when will you continue to change fathers- your father is Abraham at one time, then it is God at another. Listen to the Son and He will tell you whose children you are: "You are of your father the devil"<sup>107</sup>.

* Why are you his children? Due to your lusts and not because you were born of the devil.

What are his lusts? "He was a murderer from the beginning." This statement clarifies the rest of the Lord's words: "...the desires of your father you want to do....You want to kill Me because I am the One who informs you of the truth." The devil has evil intentions towards man and seeks to kill him. Because of his wicked plans, he took the form of a snake and enticed the woman, and through her he injected his poison into mankind. Both Adam and Eve died because they listened to the devil (Gen 3:1). Had they not listened to him, they would both have listened to God; for it was imperative for man to obey the Creator and not the Deceiver...

Satan is called the 'murderer' not in the sense of someone armed with a sword and cloaked in an armor. Rather, in the sense of someone who approached man and sowed his wicked suggestions and killed him.

Therefore do not imagine that you are not a murderer too when you invite your brother to wickedness, By coaxing him to behave wickedly, you are actually killing him. So that you may know what you are doing, listen to the words of the Psalmist: '...the sons of men....whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword' (Ps 57:4).

Indeed, you fulfill the desires of your father for you are unable to walk according to the Spirit; and therefore are driven wildly towards the flesh.

“He was a murderer from the beginning”: at least ever since the beginning of human life.

Ever since then the possibility of killing people holds true. Only since man was created did it become possible to kill man; since before that time man had not been created as yet....

How did he get to be a murderer? Because ‘he does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him.’[44].

So he knew the truth but he stumbled because he did not abide in it. And why did he not abide in the truth? Because the truth is not in him in the same manner that it is found in the Lord Jesus Christ. For in the Lord the truth abides in a manner that makes Him the Truth itself. Had Satan abided in the truth, he would have abided in the Lord Jesus Christ. But he did not because there is no truth in him<sup>108</sup>.

St. Augustine

Jesus said to them,

“If God were your Father, you would love Me, for I proceeded forth and came from God;
nor have I come of Myself, but He sent Me” [42].

They believed they were God’s children, and had not committed the crime of fornication. Although they did not worship idols, yet, by rejecting the Lord Jesus Christ and resisting Him, they testified to the opposite of that. They attempted to defend their status as God’s children, yet they had to admit that the Jewish nation, as a mother, had lost her union with God. On account of sin, they had become divorced: Thus says the Lord: “Where is the certificate of your mother’s divorce whom I have put away...For your iniquities you have sold yourselves, and for your transgressions your mother has been put away” (Is 50:1). What had been told to their fathers at the time of Isaiah is being told them again here on account of their bondage to sin.

The meaning of the Lord’s words: “...for I proceeded forth and came from God...” could be interpreted in two ways due to the place of the joining word used in the Greek text: this joining word could convey ‘estrangement’ or ‘accompaniment’ in respect of the other being; or proceeding from inside while remaining with the Essence. In the correct Greek writings, however, the meaning is: the Word came without essentially being separated from the Father who is the Essence. Therefore the coming of the Lord into our world did not isolate Him from that same and one divine Essence.

* From every aspect, it is evident that the Lord Jesus Christ does not oppose God. Moreover the reason for their unbelief is not a result of the Lord’s teaching but a result of their estrangement from God. The Lord told them He had not committed any sin and that He came from God. Moreover, He told them that He was sent into the world by God and that He spoke the truth...after all that, they still did not believe in Him. Clearly, they did not believe because they were corporeal<sup>109</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord Jesus Christ proceeded from God, and after He left He still continued to abide in Him<sup>110</sup>.

* It is clear that His accusers thought that the Father had a physical home; and that the Son came to this life just by moving from one tangible place to another. They did not understand that the change was from one condition into another in the sense that we accept<sup>111</sup>.

Origen

* The One who proceeds from the Father and comes from God cannot be charged except with what is worthy of God<sup>112</sup>.

St. Ambrose

“Why do you not understand My speech?

Because you are not able to listen to My word”[43].

A person who is unable to hear the word of the Lord, may eventually enjoy this ability at some other time. Sometimes the inability to hear is because that person’s hearing has not yet been healed by the Word who says to the deaf: “Be opened” (Mk7:37)<sup>113</sup>.

Their hearts needed to hear the words of the Lord in order to tear away their haughtiness and hypocrisy, and to destroy the corruption within their souls. They needed to hear His words in order to sanctify their will. However, they insisted on not departing from evil. Therefore the words of the Lord were mysterious and meaningless to them. To their ears, it all sounded so impractical.

* Lying indicates an opponent to the One saying: “I am the truth” (Jn 14:6). Lies oppose the Lord Jesus Christ. Such an opponent has the devil as his father who is a devil and a liar himself<sup>115</sup>.

Origen

“You are of your father the devil, and the desires of your father you want to do.

He was a murderer from the beginning

And does not stand in the truth,

Because there is no truth in him.

When he speaks a lie, he speaks from his own resources

For he is a liar and the father of it” [44].

Had they not insisted on resisting Him in their conversation with Him, the Lord would not have told them “You are of your father the devil.” He had no desire to hurt anyone’s feelings. However, their insistence on lying, on being rebellious, and on killing the truth made Him face them openly with their real status as children of Satan. He hoped His words would bring them to face their own reality and therefore motivate them to retreat from their wickedness.

The words “...you want” in Greek convey continuous insistence in executing what they wanted. This is a feature of the enemy of goodness. The devil insists on his wickedness and obstinately persists in fighting the truth to the end. He pours this feature into all those who accept him as their father. In contrast, we find that the children of God possess the spirit of meekness and obedience.

These Jews were not the children of righteousness since they hated the dear Son and sought to kill Him. They are by definition the children of Satan. The world is divided into two teams: one represents the kingdom of God; and the other belongs to the kingdom of Satan.

Satan works within the sons of disobedience (Eph 2:2). These are also known as descendants (seeds) of the serpent (Gen 3:15); and the sons of the wicked one (Matt 13:38). They share with Satan his wicked features, bear his image, obey his laws, and emulate him.

This is a very serious accusation and hard for any person to accept. How much harder would it be when it is directed to a people who believed they were the only nation who worshipped God, and who had great pride as they were labeled as ‘God’s people’? That is why the Lord presented a practical proof that His words were true: “...the desires of your father you want to do.” It is as though He was telling them: ‘you give Satan great joy as you respond to his temptations and achieve his goals through you.’ The most important features of Satan are: murderer as he opposes God who is ‘love’, and liar as he resists the truth. Here they were doing just these two things: they were seeking to kill the Son of God as well as rejecting and resisting the truth. Consequently, they became murderers and liars; the children of the father of liars.

He is a murder from the beginning for he deceived Eve through the serpent; and deceived Adam through Eve. He destroyed their lives and killed them spiritually and physically. Then death entered into the world and instilled in Cain a murderous spirit. Consequently, he killed his brother Abel. This is consistent with the thought of the Jews themselves for Sohar Kadesh speaks of the wicked who are called ‘the children of the old serpent that killed Adam and his seed.’

“Satan speaks from his own resources...”, in other words, he speaks from the lies within him. That is how he spoke through the serpent and managed to deceive Eve and removed her away from the truth. When a person utters a lie, he is really uttering what belongs to Satan and so becomes Satan’s mouthpiece.

* The Lord dismissed them from their lineage to Abraham. But then they dared to boast of a greater claim and said: “...We have one Father- God...” Therefore the Lord hit them hard by telling them that they were born of the devil and not of Abraham [44].

* People use lies not as an object worthy of them but as a foreign tool<sup>116</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* A good tree cannot produce bad fruit. Neither can a bad tree produce good fruit<sup>117</sup>.

St. Jerome

* Not everyone who utters a lie is a father of liars. If you have received an untrue message from a person and repeated that message then you are really uttering a lie. However, you are not the father of that lie since you have received it from someone else. In Satan’s case, he is a liar himself as he gives birth to untrue words and therefore they are words that he has not received from someone. Just as the Father gave birth to Truth as His Son; so has Satan given birth, after his fall, to untruthfulness as his own child....Therefore withdraw yourself from the father of lies; and hurry to the Father of Truth: embrace Him for the Truth will grant you the joy of freedom<sup>118</sup>.

St. Augustine

* Satan is the first source of sin and the father of the wicked. This is not our statement; for these are God’s words: “For the devil has sinned from the beginning...” (1Jn3:8; Jn 8:44)...However, he was not forced to sin but, as it were, he had a natural inclination to sin. Otherwise the weakness of sinfulness would have bounced back to his Creator as well. It is of his own free will that Satan became accepting of this name, and brought it upon himself through his own deeds.

He was the archangel; but he became known as Satan due to his deceptive ways.

He was God’s good servant; but then became rightly called a ‘devil’ which means ‘the opponent.’

This is not our personal teaching, but they are drawn from Ezekial the prophet. He was inspired to cry and mourn over Satan, and said: “You were the seal of perfection, full of wisdom and perfect in beauty. You were in Eden (read Ezekial 28:12-17).

After a number of verses, Ezekial goes on to say: “You were perfect in your ways from the day you were created, till iniquity was found in you.”

Ezekial rightly says “...till iniquity was found in you...”, for Satan brought it to himself and so evil did not come upon him from outside. The prophet promptly indicates the cause by saying: “Your heart was lifted up because of your beauty; you corrupted your wisdom for the sake of your splendor...by the multitude of your iniquities ...I turned you to ashes upon the earth.” These words agree with the Lord’s words in the Gospel: “I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven” (Lk 10:18).

Here you see how the Old and the New Testaments agree together!

When Satan was exiled, he attracted many to him. He sows lust into the hearts of those who listen to him as he is the source of whoring, adultery, and all kinds of evil. Because of him, our father disobeyed and suffered exile. Paradise with its amazing fruit was transformed into the earth producing thorns<sup>119</sup>.

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* The Lord’s words here refer to all those who lie. Lies on the lips of any liar are the product of what is within him- that is from the lies within him. In addition, the Lord’s words “...he is the father of it” indicate the fact that anyone whose mouth utters lies is a father of the lies which he has uttered<sup>120</sup>.

* It is not contradictory to confirm that the desires of Satan consist of murder, inflicting injustice, and greed. In fact, he sows similar desires in his children. Moreover, it is not unkind to say that his desires are unclean acts that are in stark conflict with purity. It is not hard to believe that Satan’s desires arouse in his children impure matters<sup>121</sup>.

* We know that anyone who wishes to practice Satan’s lusts cannot have God as his father; for he has become Satan’s child. He changes in accordance to the wicked desires that Satan wishes to fulfill. Indeed, that person becomes transformed into the image of the wicked father. He becomes a product of Satan: an earthly person with Satan’s brand; because the first man was a product of the earth (1Cor 15:47-49)<sup>122</sup>.

* If we do the deeds of God and desire to do His will, then we are God’s children. But if we do the deeds of Satan, and are eager to follow his lusts, then we come from Satan our father. On that account, we need to be alert to what we do as well as what we desire. Indeed, the desire to experience Satan’s lusts is enough to brand us as his children<sup>123</sup>.

* Adam and Eve died instantly on the day they ate of the forbidden tree. No one else other than Satan the murderer was responsible for their death. He deceived Eve through the serpent, and Eve gave her husband from the tree and he ate (Gen 3:1-6)<sup>124</sup>.

* He is rightly called a murderer; not because he has killed certain people, but because he has killed the whole human race: “for in Adam all die” (1 Cor 15:22)<sup>125</sup>.

*On the one hand, the murderer killed us. On the other hand, through God's grace, we have been buried with the Lord Jesus Christ and have risen with Him: "...But just as Christ was raised...even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Rom 6:4)<sup>126</sup>.

* Now the murderer rules over those who are perishing and he governs the dead. However, he cannot rule over anyone who is alive<sup>127</sup>.

* God encouraged Moses to abide in the truth and said to him: "Here is a place by Me, and you shall stand on the rock" (Ex 33:21). Therefore the Rock is the Lord Jesus Christ (1Cor 10:4). The Lord also says: "I am the truth" (Jn 14:6). Thus the words "stand on the rock" and "stand on the truth" are synonymous. A person can achieve that only after going through many trials and difficulties<sup>128</sup>.

* If there is someone who has never told a lie and who has remained steadfast in the truth, then he is not a human being: for the Lord speaks to such a one and to all those like him saying: "I said: You are gods, and all of you are children of the Most High" (Ps82:6)...the rest of the verse is not added in this context as it says: " But you shall die like men" (Ps 82:7).

* If some have not remained steadfast in the truth, then clearly Satan the murderer has not remained in the truth since the beginning...and the reason given for that is "because there is no truth in him." As for why there is no truth in him, it is the fact that he is a deceiver who accepts to lie. Indeed, he has deceived himself through himself. On that account, he is considered the most wicked of all. Others have been deceived through him, whereas he created deception out of himself<sup>129</sup>.

* Someone may say that the statement "there is no truth in him" indicates that the one who arouses wars against the Lord has no share in the fellowship with Him.

Another may say that because there is no truth whatsoever in Satan, he is deceived in every way. The reason for that is that he is a devil, wicked, and the most evil among those who commit sin.

Among the multitudes of sinners, some may discern some truth in the middle of numerous wrong issues. However, there is no particle of truth in Satan.

A third party may agree with the others and claim that there could not be a reasoning being who adheres to an incorrect opinion on every issue; or who always rejects the truth even that related to minor matters. They believe that when Satan thinks he would at least adhere to a correct opinion just as a reasoning being would do. Such ideas are based on the belief that Satan is a human being with a body, etc....<sup>130</sup>

* We need to understand this statement: "(he) does not stand in the truth...": this does not indicate a specific kind of nature or that it was impossible for him to abide in the truth<sup>131</sup>.

Origen

* Every person who is from God is considered to be our brother. As for the person who refuses to share in doing good of his own free will, then he is considered as one who sows evil. He consequently becomes 'the father of liars' (Jn 8:44); for he has prepared to fight all those who have chosen to live in a godly manner<sup>132</sup>.

* Every person needs to pay great attention so as not to be disarmed by ‘lies’; for a liar cannot be united with God.

A liar is alienated from God. The Holy Bible states that a liar proceeds from the devil who “is a liar and the father of it” (Jn 8:44).

That is why Satan has been called the father of liars; whereas the Truth is God. The Lord Himself declares: “I am the way, the truth, and the life” (Jn 14:6).

Do you not see, therefore, how we could be estranged from God on account of lying; and with whom we become united (through lies)?! Since this is so, we need to love truth with all our strength and zeal. This will enable us to fulfill our real desire to be saved. We also need to guard ourselves against all lies so that they do not separate us from the truth and life<sup>133</sup>.

Fr Dorotheous

“But because I tell the truth, you do not believe Me” [45]

When the Truth came to them, they did not listen. These verses inform us that “Justice is turned back, and righteousness stands afar off; for the truth is fallen in the street, and equity cannot enter. So truth fails...” (Is 59:14-15). The Bible also tells us that “There are those who rebel against the light; they do not know its ways nor abide in its paths” (Job 24:13).

* They seem to have based their belief on what is tangible when the Lord worked miracles. However, they did not believe on account of His deep teachings<sup>134</sup>.

Origen

* The speaker here considers himself to be a young child standing before God. He has chosen the Almighty to be his Father and Mother. God is his Father since He is His Creator; and His Mother since He watches over him, educates and feeds him, nurses and teaches him.

We have another father and mother...at the time when we had no faith, Satan was our father (Jn 8:44). We also had another mother- Babylon. However, we become acquainted with a Father who is God...and a Mother who is the heavenly Jerusalem- the Holy Church which has a part of it that is still estranged on earth...

By staying away from the father and mother- that is away from Satan and Babylon- we are received by God to be His children. He comforts us with things that do not transpire, and blesses us with eternal gifts...

The Lord Jesus Christ is our Head, and He is in Heaven. We have not yet risen above the reach of the hands of our enemies; and they are still able to roar wildly and attack us. However, our Head is indeed in heaven, and He tells us “Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me” (Acts 9:4). He has also a home within us who live below (on earth). Yet we are with Him above at the same time for “He lifts up My head above my enemies”[6:10].

St. Augustine

“Which of you convicts Me of sin?

And if I tell the truth,

Why do you not believe Me?” [46]

Due to their resistance against the truth, the Jewish leaders examined each word of the Lord Jesus Christ. They did so in order to find fault with Him and not with the desire to get to know Him. He therefore asked them: “Which of you convicts Me of sin?” In this situation, the Lords confronts sin with the Truth; and it is as though truth and righteousness are one and the same; just as sin and lies are one and the same. Truth bears fruit and one of its fruits is righteousness: in the same manner; lies are exposed by their fruit- that is by sin.

The word ‘convicts’ in Greek is a legal term that implies ‘setting up evidence against the accused.’ No one can ever face and oppose the Lord Jesus Christ or witness against Him; whereas the Holy Spirit “convicts the world of sin” (Jn 16:8). He is the One who presents the true evidence of the world’s sins, its judgment, and condemnation.

Our Lord is the only One who has no sin (1 Peter 2:22). He was tempted in every way, just as we are, yet He was without sin (Heb.4:15). Therefore He could address these words to all who knew Him. In that light, you can understand that these words are directed to all mankind, and not only to those who heard them on that day: “Which of you convicts Me of sin?” These words need to be interpreted as meaning: ‘Who, out of all mankind ....?’ Or ‘What kind of person can accuse Me of sin?’ Surely, no one can do that<sup>135</sup>.

* All things considered, the Lord Jesus Christ can say these words to all mankind as well as to Satan and all the armies subject to him. However, they cannot utter any accusation that He has sinned. This statement is in harmony with the Lord’s words: “...the ruler of this world is coming, and he has nothing in Me” (refer to Jn 14:30)<sup>136</sup>.

* We too would be able to regain our confidence, after a while and great struggling, and be able to say the same words as the Lord’s. Even as we depart of this world, we would be able to face Satan and his fallen angels who seek the chance to attack us and say: “Which of you convicts Me of sin?”<sup>137</sup>

Origin the Scholar

“He who is of God hears God’s words; therefore you do not hear,
because you are not of God” [47]

Here the Lord brings another accusation against them: they are not of God for they do not hear Him. Samuel heard the word of God whereas Eli could not hear His voice. The Jewish leaders had become like Eli and could not hear God’s voice. Neither were they able to respond to Him for they were not of God.

* Paul, by natural lineage, was a child of wrath (Eph.2:3) before accepting the power to change and become God’s child (Jn 1:12). Who is better than him who underwent such a change? If the only way to become a child of God who is in heaven is to love our enemies and pray for those who persecute us (Matt 5:44-45), then evidently no one listens to God’s words just because he has been naturally created by Him. Indeed, a person listens to God because he accepts to become God’s child. Moreover, he accepts that power and uses it adequately to love his enemies and pray for his persecutors. In this manner, he testifies to being a child of the heavenly Father: proceeding from Him, listening and understanding His words as well as digesting the knowledge they convey. Such features belong to God’s children who, on the one hand, have renounced their birth of (Satan) and are no longer slaves (Rom 8:15); and on the other hand have accepted their birth from God through the Spirit of adoption (Rom 15:8).

* Often, when we do not hear the words of God- that is when we do not understand them, we need to realize that this is a way that God uses to reprimand us for not being His children: When a person does not hear God’s words it signifies that person’s decision not to be God’s child and therefore not proceeding from Him. This may happen even though that a person might have accepted the power to become God's child; yet has not changed (Jn 1:12). Such a person can become the child of the heavenly Father only by loving his enemies and praying for his persecutors (Matt 5:44-45; Lk 6:28)<sup>138</sup>.

Origen

* Here too, the Jewish leaders reveal that they are not God's children by the way they think. This is due to their being corrupt and not due to their nature as human beings. In a sense they are of God yet at the same time they are not. They are of God according to nature; yet they are not of God due to their corruption<sup>139</sup>.

* In the same manner, they are Abraham's children, yet they are not ...they are his children based on their physical origin. However, they are not his children due to the sins of their parents who came after him and were persuaded by Satan. The same analogy can be applied to our Lord and God: they came from God but were not from Him. How did they come from God? Because God created man from whom they came...He is the great Engineer of nature. He is the Creator of the body as well as the spirit. How can they not be of Him? Because they have followed Satan's ways and chosen to be corrupt themselves. Therefore they have become Satan's children and no longer come of God<sup>140</sup>.

St. Augustine

6- The Lord is Accused of Blasphemy

‘ Then the Jews answered and said to Him, “Do we not say rightly that you are a Samaritan and have a demon?”’[48]

When the Lord revealed their wickedness and refuted their claim to being Abraham's children, they attacked Him. They accused Him of blasphemy against God as well as against the nation. They accused Him of being a Samaritan- that is of being an enemy of the Jews, and of being an enemy of God since he had a demon.

No title other than ‘Samaritan’ could convey the enmity between a person and the Jewish nation. They had previously called the Lord a ‘Galilean’ to convey that He was a mean person. Calling Him a Samaritan, however, conveyed that he deserved to be brought to justice as an enemy of the Jewish nation. They considered the Lord to be a traitor to the country and to the nation. This is the same accusation the Samaritans charged against the Jews for they said that the Jews were not descendants of Abraham and they sought to damage their image and destroy their claim to being ‘God's people.’ For many long centuries the Jews had called Christians ‘Samaritans’ to convey their hostility towards them. The second accusation: “You have a demon...” reflects their belief that there existed an alliance between the Lord and Satan based on two factors: His teachings marked Him as a ‘Samaritan who had broken away from their ranks- an inventor and a rebel opposing their laws. Besides, His miracles made them accuse Him of having a demon.

In amazing insistence, they affirmed that they were people of learning and knowledge. They claimed that they were convinced, based on their knowledge, that he had a demon. How? God had spoken to Abraham and the prophets; and these had listened to His words and interacted with Him. They walked His walk and yet they had died. Therefore could the words of Lord Jesus Christ be greater than God's words? That was their logic and that was the fruit of their knowledge.

On this occasion the Jews revealed their ignorance. They could not distinguish between the Lord's words "see death" and "taste death." The Lord Jesus Christ tasted death, through the grace of God, for everyone (Heb. 2:9). The words 'see death' convey constant failure and subjugation under the power of death while fearing it. A person would be seized with trembling just thinking of death.

* It seems that there were some people who secretly commented among themselves about the Savior. They called Him a 'Samaritan' to indicate that He was like the Samaritans who interpreted incorrectly the Jewish tradition. The Jews did not deal with the Samaritans (Jn.4:9) as they disagreed with them concerning many teachings<sup>141</sup>.

* It is relevant to wonder how they could dare call the Savior a 'Samaritan' while He taught many things concerning the resurrection and judgment. Indeed, this is so different from the beliefs of the Samaritans who denied the concept of life after death and rejected the permanence or immortality of the spirit. They could have intended to insult Him by describing Him as a Samaritan because He was preaching the same teachings as the Samaritans... or because He seemed to comment upon the resurrection and eternal life just because He wanted to win the approval of the Jews and so preached what is generally accepted by them<sup>142</sup>.

* They said that the Lord was possessed by a demon due to His teachings that transcended the limits of man's comprehension. For example, He claimed that God was His Father (Jn 5:18); that He descended from heaven (Jn 6:32-35); and other numerous matters that are reported throughout the other gospels.

* They might have said that He 'has a demon' because some of them believed that He was Beelzebub, the ruler of the demons, and therefore could cast out demons (Lk 11:15)<sup>143</sup>.

Origen

'Jesus answered,

"I do not have a demon;

but I honor My Father,

and you dishonor Me [49]

Origen comments that the Lord Jesus Christ did not respond to the accusation that He was a Samaritan. However, He answered the accusation that He had a demon. Origen explains that the reason for this is that the Lord Himself had given the example of the good Samaritan (Lk10:30-34) which revealed the tenderness the Samaritan demonstrated toward the wounded one who had fallen by the roadside.

If Paul could 'become all things to all men so that (he) might by all means save some' (1Cor 9:22); then our Lord would do much more. He is the One who seeks to save all mankind. It did not embarrass Him to be a Samaritan to save Samaritans. Note that the meaning of 'Samaritan' is 'guardian'; and the Lord is the Guardian of all souls<sup>144</sup>! Truly, He is the guardian of those who have recognized that 'Unless the Lord guards the city, the watchman stays awake in vain' (Ps 127 :1). [The following verses describe the Lord as the guardian of all human souls: 'He who keeps Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep' (Ps 121:4); and the Lord is the keeper of the young and the poor (Ps113:7)<sup>145</sup>]. Origen adds: [At any rate, the Hebrews used to call the guards by the word 'Somer.' Their traditions also report that the Samaritans first received that name when the Assyrian king sent them to be guards in the land of Israel after the exile<sup>146</sup>].

* The Lord rejected one accusation, and disregarded the other. He answered: "I do not have a demon..."; but He did not say "I am not a Samaritan." Moreover, He did return the curse by a similar one, or the blasphemy by another one. It was appropriate for Him to renounce one accusation and leave the other, and He did so with a certain goal in mind, my friends: because a 'Samaritan' indicated 'a guard' or 'keeper' and He knew He is a guard Himself: 'He who keeps Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep'; and 'Unless the Lord guards the city, the watchman stays awake in vain' (Ps127 :1). Therefore the Lord is our keeper and He is the One who has created us ...that is why He answered that He has no demon, and yet did not say that He was not a Samaritan<sup>147</sup>.

St. Augustine

* Listen to the Lord's response after He was insulted: "I do not have a demon; but I honor My Father...." The Lord did not wish to say 'I am not a Samaritan' but rather said "I do not have a demon." He was faced by two accusations: He renounced one and appeared to accept the other by being silent. If He had denied being a Samaritan, He would have denied, at the same time, His being a guardian. He kept silent regarding a matter He knew to be true; but He rejected patiently what they unjustly said about Him. Notice how the Lord did not get angry when He was insulted. Besides, His response did not carry wicked words. If His accusers did not have demons themselves, they would not have been able to say such shameful things against God<sup>148</sup>.

Pope Gregory the Great

St. Augustine reveals to us the role of Satan in people's lives. He says the following:

* A prevalent concept in the Bible is that sinners act unreasonably in so many ways only because they have accepted the influence of a bad spirit or the unclean will of a devil.

* Moreover, '...there is not a just man on earth who does good and does not sin' (Eccles 7:20). Therefore there is no one who is constantly free of devils and who never falls as a prey to their influence<sup>149</sup>.

* Is that not a proof that we are subject to Satan: when we shout out, driven by anger and displeasure, or in a state of frenzy, or act like a neighing animal gone wild? As a result of that, we even abuse our wives and treat them lustfully as untamed horses (Jer 5:8). Moreover, do we not disregard the Lord's words urging us to get liberated from lust?

Consider how we become miserable, depressed, and frustrated due to anger and absence of the sublimity worthy of reasonable beings. We forget that not a single sparrow falls into a trap without the permission of God. He rules over all the concerns of mankind and His rulings are just. Is there any explanation for our sufferings other than that Satan has overpowered and corrupted the controlling element within us?

Besides, how do you explain our fear of things that are not fearful? What about our exaggerated expressions of joy over unworthy things? All these can be explained only as being devilish responses that fill a person who has been unable to say truthfully: "I do not have a demon...<sup>150</sup>.

* The holy books of the Bible reveal that even those who have been transformed into better beings were unable to say constantly and from the beginning that they ‘do not have a demon.’ Such a statement is true of the Lord Jesus Christ alone and it applies to Him from the very beginning. That is why He alone has honored the Father in a worthy and correct manner<sup>151</sup>.

Origen

* “...But I honor My Father, and you dishonor Me...” [49]. These words are intended to convey the following: ‘I do not honor Myself so that you do not think that I am arrogant. I honor the only One; and if you knew Me you would have honored Me just as I honor the Father. I act worthily, while you do not’<sup>152</sup>.

St. Augustine

* A perfect Father conceived a perfect Son; and delivered all things into His hands. Therefore the Son declares: “All things have been delivered to Me by My Father...” (Matt 11:27). The Father is glorified through the Son who states: “...I honor My Father”; and also “...Just as I have kept My Father’s commandments and abide in His love...” (Jn15:10)<sup>153</sup>.

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* “...I glorify My Father...”: The Lord has no father other than God who is in heaven.<sup>154</sup>.

* We too fulfill these words when we comprehend and accept the cleansing of the new birth (Titus 3:5). By being washed by the Holy Spirit, we become children of God; and so we do not call anyone on earth our ‘Father’ (Matt 23:9). Indeed, it is in this manner that we become the children of God who is in heaven; and brothers to the One who said: “...I am ascending to My Father and your Father, and to My God and your God...” (Jn 20:17).

When the Lord says accurately and with full legal correctness “...I do not have a demon...”, it becomes evident for all who follow His example that they become empowered and can do all things through Christ who grants strength (Phil 4:13). Each of His children can say as well: ‘I do not have a demon but I honor My Father.’ Nevertheless, who can say ‘I do not have a demon’ but still lives in the graves and among the dead?<sup>155</sup>

Or who can say: “I honor My Father...” [49] and who considers himself a disciple of the Lord Jesus Christ while he honors things other than God, His Word, and the commandments in His Word? How can a person make such a claim while he honors someone else instead of offering honor to Him who is worthy of honor? (Rom 13:17)<sup>156</sup>.

The words “...you dishonor Me...” are relevant to all those who dishonor Him, and not only to those who heard Him on that day. They are relevant throughout all time as they indicate those who dishonor Him by behaving in contradiction to the upright Word of God. These dishonor the Lord, who is Justice, through their unjust deeds. They dishonor the power of God, who is the Lord Jesus Christ our Savior (1Cor 1:24)...by their weak and hideous deeds<sup>157</sup>.

* The words “...you dishonor Me...” point relevantly to anyone who despises wisdom; for Christ is Wisdom as well (1Cor 1:24)<sup>158</sup>.

* Anyone who does wicked deeds dishonors the Lord Jesus Christ, for by his deeds that person dishonors the Light<sup>159</sup>.

* God, who gave us His Son, seeks the glory of the Lord in all those who receive Him. He finds glory and honor in all those who guard themselves and seize the opportunity to practice the virtue that is sowed in them. However, God does not find glory in those who behave without virtue. Indeed, honor cannot be found in persons who have two masters and who not honor the Son. He says to these: “Because of you, My Name is constantly dishonored among nations”<sup>160</sup>.

Origen

“...And I do not seek My own glory; there is One who seeks and judges...”(50)

“...I do not seek My own glory...”, therefore I turn away from judging you. However, I take it upon Myself to urge you to persevere and advise you to honor God. In this manner you will not only avoid judgment but will earn eternal life as well<sup>161</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord says: “For the Father judges no one, but has committed all judgment to the Son....” How does He say that, while in this verse He says: “...I do not seek My own glory, there is One who seeks and judges...”? The answer is found in the holy Word, for the Bible tells us that there is judgment and condemnation ‘...he who does not believe is condemned...’ (Jn 3:18); and “...for the hour is coming in which all those who are in the graves will hear His Voice and come forth...those who have done good, to the resurrection of life; and those who have done evil, to the resurrection of condemnation...” (Jn 5:28-29). Therefore you know how He judges to condemn and to punish. If we always equate judgment with condemnation, then we will hear the words ‘Vindicate me, O God, and plead my cause.’ In the first part, the Psalmist is aware of the painful judgment (‘Vindicate me, O God’); ...then he makes the distinction in the second part (‘and plead my cause against an ungodly nation’) (Ps 43:1). In the same manner, the Lord says: “I do not seek My own glory, there is One who seeks and judges.” How is there ‘One who seeks and judges’? There is the Father who distinguishes between My glory and your glory. You are glorified in the spirit of this world; whereas I am glorified in a different manner...What distinction does the Lord make here? The glory of the Father’s Son lies in the glory of devoted men. This is clear in the following words: ‘...Your God has anointed You with the oil of gladness more than Your companions...,’ (Ps 45:7). This means that though the Lord became incarnate yet He cannot be compared with us. We, as human beings, are sinners; whereas He is without sin. We, as human beings, have inherited sin and death from Adam; whereas He received a body that was dead from the holy Virgin Mary but He had no sin<sup>162</sup>.

St. Augustine

Some may wonder again: How does the Lord say: “there is One who seeks and judges...”, but then states: “For the Father judges no one, but has committed all judgment to the Son...” (Jn 5:22)? Origen explains this as follows: [‘Meditate on these words as an answer to such objections: “I can of Myself do nothing. As I hear, I judge and My judgment is righteous, because I do not seek My own will but the will of the Father who sent Me...”’ (Jn 5:30). Now, since our Savior judges according to what He hears from the Father; and does not seek His own will, but rather seeks to do the will of the Father who sent Him...then judgment proceeds from the Speaker (the Father) to the Listener (the Son) and not vice versa<sup>163</sup>].

7- The Messiah, the Giver of Life

“Most assuredly, I say to you,
if anyone keeps My word,
he shall never see death” [51].

Moses received the promise of long life and prosperity for himself as well as for all those who keep the divine commandments. Here the Lord Jesus Christ offers eternal life and victory over death to those who keep His word: death cannot dominate the soul of a true believer.

In order to enjoy eternal glory, it is worthwhile for us to accept the divine Word, and apply and abide/ be steadfast in it. That is the meaning of ‘keeping the Word.’ He who lives according to the Word enjoys a new understanding of death. He/she realizes that it is a passing over into another life. Therefore true death has a new significance as it indicates the soul’s deprivation of God’s presence- while God is the source of the soul’s existence and life. This kind of death has no power over a believer.

* The Lord speaks, in this passage, not only about faith but also about sanctified living. Earlier in His teachings, the Lord said “...may have everlasting life” (Jn 6:40). Here He says: “shall never see death...” [51]. At the same time, the Lord is giving the Jews a hint that they would not be able to take any action against Him: If all those who keep His word will not die, then how much more truly does this apply to the Lord Himself <sup>164</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* In the same manner that there are different kinds of life, so there are different kinds of death. There is a wicked and violent death which is antagonistic to the One who says: “ I am the life ...”(Jn 11:25). This kind of death is described in 1 Cor 15:26 which says that: ‘...the last enemy which is destroyed is death.’

We need to think of this death in the light of St. Paul’s words: “...just as through one man sin entered the world, and death through sin, and thus death spread to all men, because all sinned- (‘For until the law sin was in the world, but sin is not imputed when there is no law. Nevertheless, death reigns from Adam to Moses, even over those who had not sinned according to the likeness of the transgression of Adam’”: Rom. 5:12-14). A few lines farther on, St. Paul adds: “for if by one man’s offense many died, much more the grace of God and the gift by the grace of One Man, Jesus Christ, abounded to many...” (Rom 5:17)...and therefore he who keeps the words of the only Son, the firstborn over all creation (Col 1:15), will not see death; for it is the nature of the Word to destroy the power of death<sup>165</sup>.

* At the same time, everyone should protect his inner life that is inseparable from him. This life is the very same light that shines upon those who live in darkness. In this manner the darkness will never defeat them (1 Jn 1:4-5)<sup>166</sup>.

* Truly, no one will see death as long as he keeps the words of the Lord Jesus Christ. However, we will see death as soon as we stop observing them<sup>167</sup>.

* You say “ I have a demon...”[48]; whereas I invite you to life. Keep My words so that you do not die. They had heard Him say: “...if anyone keeps My word, he shall never see death” [51]. Indeed, the Lord knew of another death and He had come to save us all from it- the second death, the eternal hellish death, the death of condemnation with Satan and his angels. This is the real death, whereas the other death is merely a transition. What is the other death? It consists of abandoning the body, dismantling its heavy burden and putting it away so that it no longer drags a person downwards into hell. The Lord speaks about real death in these words: “If anyone keeps My word he shall never see death”<sup>168</sup>.

St. Augustine

‘Then the Jews said to Him:

“Now we know that You have a demon!

Abraham is dead and the prophets; and You say ‘If anyone keeps My word he shall never see death’?”[52].

* Those present and heard the Lord’s words ‘If anyone keeps My word he shall never see death’ thought that He was speaking about physical death; for Abraham and the prophets had died<sup>169</sup>.

Origen

* Abraham and the prophets had died. However, their death was not the kind of death that the Lord wished them to understand. These had died, and yet were alive. Whereas those seeking to kill Him were dead; even though they believed they were alive. On another occasion, the Sadducees had questioned the Lord about the resurrection, and He answered: “But concerning the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was spoken to you by God, saying, ‘I am the God of Abraham; the God of Isaac; and the God of Jacob’? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living” (Matt 23:31,32; Lk12:4-5). Therefore if these godly men are alive, then let us struggle to live, so that we might live with them after death<sup>170</sup>.

St. Augustine

“Are you greater than our father Abraham, who is dead?

And the prophets are dead. Who do you make Yourself out to be?”[53]

* When the resistance of the wicked increases, we should not cease from witnessing. Indeed, we should double our efforts to spread the Word. This is the example that the Lord sets before us on this occasion ...just as resistance could change a good person into a better one, so do the trespassers get worse when they are gently treated. After the Jewish leaders had heard the Lord’s teachings, they repeated their words “...you have a demon...” [52]. They adhered to eternal death without questioning if what they upheld was death itself. They were preoccupied with physical death; and they were blinded to the implications of the true Word. Besides, in order to honor Abraham and the prophets, they had placed them above the Truth Himself. It becomes evident to us that those who do not know God will honor His servants in an incorrect manner<sup>171</sup>.

Pope Gregory the Great

* It would have been adequate if they had said ‘Maybe you are greater than God?’ or ‘Maybe those who are listening to You are greater than Abraham’? However, they did not say so for they believed that the Lord Jesus Christ was of a lower rank than Abraham. Earlier on they had told the Lord “You have a demon” [52]. In contrast, the Samaritan woman did not use that language, and her words were: “Are You greater than our father Jacob?” (Jn 4:12). These Jews were insulting, whereas the Samaritan woman was curious and wanted to learn who He was.

When she felt confused, she was on her guard as she said: “Sir, I perceive that You are a prophet” (Jn 4:19).

St. John Chrysostom

* Abraham had died, yet he was alive (Matt 22:23): he did not see death, for he saw the Lord Jesus Christ and was glad and rejoiced [56]. We believe that this is the reason why our Savior responded to their words that ‘Abraham is dead’ by saying: “Your father rejoiced to see My day, and he saw it and was glad” [56]. He said this to teach them that Abraham is alive<sup>172</sup>!

* He is the God of the Living and not of the dead (Matt 22:23), the God of Isaac and Jacob, besides the God of all the other prophets- for they all kept the word of the Son of God which came to Hosea, Jeremiah, and Isaiah. The Word of God that came to each one of these is the same One who was with God from the beginning: His Son, God the Word<sup>173</sup>.

Origen

‘Jesus answered: “If I honor Myself,
My honor is nothing.
It is My Father who honors Me, of whom you say that He is your God” [54]

Through the oneness of the Essence, each Entity/Being honors the two others. That is why we read that God is honored by the Son, while God honors the Son at the same time (Jn 7:33).

“...of whom you say that He is your God” [54]: while they claim that God is their Father, here they appear as His enemies in their spirits and deeds.

Is His honor of no importance? It does not appear important to them. The Lord echoes their response when He says: “...My witness is not true...” (Matt 31:5); for He knew that this was their opinion. However, He adds: “...It is My Father who honors Me...”[54]<sup>174</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Is there any doubt here that the Son is honored by the Father, and that the Father is honored by the Son? To underline this oneness, the union of the Trinity, the Lord also says in the following verses that He is honored by the Holy Spirit: “He (the Holy Spirit) will glorify Me, for He will take of what is Mine...” (Jn 16:14). Therefore the Holy Spirit also glorifies the Son of God. Then why does the Lord say: “If I honor Myself, My honor is nothing” [54]? Is the honor of the Son of no importance? If we said so, we would be blaspheming, unless we are referring to His body only. The Son here had the body of a human being; and if the honor of the body is compared to the honor of the divine One, then it is without honor<sup>175</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* The Lord Jesus Christ was telling the Jews that He is honored by the Father whom they called God- since He honors the Son and the Son honors Him, then may the obstinacy (of Arius and other heretics) be renounced and may they acknowledge this unity and correct their delinquency<sup>176</sup>.

I shall be a liar like you,
but I do know Him and keep His word. [55]
“Your father Abraham rejoiced to see My day, and he saw it and was glad” [56]

Because the Jews boasted that they were Abraham’s descendents, the Lord underlined that Abraham, their father, yearned to see and honor Him. Besides, Abraham foresaw His coming. Since the Lord was before Abraham was, then His teachings were not new: He was there before Moses who is the recipient of the law.

When did Abraham see the Lord’s day and so rejoiced?

- A- St. Paul says that Abraham saw the day of the Lord when he received the promise that the Lord would be his descendant (Gal 3:16). The promise was that the Lord will come to bless all the tribes of the earth (Acts 3:25-26).
- B- Origen states that Abraham saw the day of the Lord after he had walked for three days. Then he lifted his eyes and saw the place for the burnt offering at a distance (Gen 22:4). He experienced the path of the resurrection on the third day and after a three day walk. Consequently, he enjoyed a new meaning for the offering: the offering of the only begotten Son.
- C- St. Ambrose believes that Abraham saw the day of the Lord when God swore to bless him and multiply his descendants as the stars of the heaven and as the sand on the seashore (Gen 22:16).

* The One who swore by Himself is the very same One whom Abraham saw<sup>177</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* We believe that Pelagius missed the fact that faith in the Lord Jesus Christ was not obscured in the days of our fathers, even though it was declared much later on. In fact, our fathers were saved through the grace of God. In the same manner, all members of the human race can be saved through God’s incomprehensible and mysterious decision. That is the reason why the apostle says: “They had the same spirit of faith....” Consequently, there can be no doubt He is the same One that our fathers believed in- it is written: ‘I believed and therefore I spoke. We also believe and therefore speak...’ (refer to 2 Cor 4:13; Ps 115:10). That is why the Intercessor Himself said: “Abraham rejoiced to see My day, and he saw it and was glad” (Jn 8:56). Similarly, Melchizedek, when he offered the mystery of the Lord’s table, he knew that that this was a forerunner and a symbol of the eternal priesthood of the Lord Jesus Christ (Gen 14:18)<sup>178</sup>.

* Abraham was not frightened, but was glad to see the day of the Lord This was because he had the love that casts out all fear (1Jn 4:18). The Lord did not say ‘he rejoiced because he saw’; but said “he rejoiced to see.” This indicates that Abraham believed under all circumstances. He rejoiced because he hoped to see and comprehend: therefore “he saw it and was glad”...if those whose physical eyes were opened rejoiced, how much more is the joy of the person who gains inner sight and sees this indescribable light? How much is the joy of those who perceive the Light of the Word abiding in the Father; the brilliance that dazzles the minds of the pious and which proceeds from the Wisdom that never fails; and God abiding in the Son? At the same time, they see Him coming in the flesh without ever abandoning the Father’s embrace. Abraham saw all that<sup>179</sup>.

St. Augustine

* “My day” refers to the day of the Crucifixion which Abraham saw in the symbol and offering of the lamb and Isaac<sup>180</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* It is enough for you to know rightly- as we have said earlier- that God has one only Son who came through a natural birth. Yet the day of His birth did not mark His beginning for He existed before time ever began. Listen to the words of Micah the prophet: “But you, Bethlehem Ephrath, though you are little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of you shall come forth to Me the One to be the ruler in Israel, whose goings forth have been from old, from everlasting” (Micah 5:2).

Therefore do not think of the One who has just come out of Bethlehem (and do not consider Him to be new); but worship Him as He is the One born of the Father before all time...

Do you wish to know that the Lord Jesus Christ is the eternal King? Listen to His words: “Your father Abraham rejoiced to see My day, and he saw it and was glad” (Jn 8:56). The Jews found this hard to accept, but the Lord explained that it was not hard as “...before Abraham was, I AM” (Jn 8: 58).

He also says: “And now, O Father, glorify Me together with Yourself, with the glory which I had with You before the world was”; and He also said: “ ...for You have loved Me before the foundation of the world” (Jn 17:24). With these words the Lord Jesus Christ revealed that He is eternal<sup>181</sup>.

St. Cyril the Great

The prophets were called ‘seers’ (1 Sam 9:9) as they saw what others could not. Abraham saw the day of the Lord and rejoiced (Jn 8: 56).

The law is spiritual (Rom 7:14), yet there is a need for a proclamation to help us understand it. This comes when God reveals His face so that we might see Him and His glory...

The heavens which were sealed to the rebellious nation were opened to Ezekial<sup>182</sup>.

St. Jerome

‘Then the Jews said to Him,

“You are not yet fifty years old,

and have You seen Abraham?” [57]

Jesus said to them, “Most assuredly, I say to you, before Abraham was, I AM” [58]

* Why did the Lord not say: ‘Before Abraham was, I was’; but rather said: “I AM”? The Lord used these words to indicate the continuity of His Being before and above all time. That is why these words were considered to be blasphemous<sup>183</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Evaluate the words and comprehend the mystery: “...before he was (created, was made) I AM.” Note that ‘created’ (was made) refers to the creation of mankind; while ‘I AM’ refers to the Divine Essence. The Lord did not say ‘Before he was, I was’ for He is the One created by no one other than ME who is from the beginning. The Lord did not say ‘Before Abraham was created, I was created’ in order to allow us to distinguish between the Creator and the created<sup>184</sup>.

* “I AM’ is expressed in the present tense for the Divine has no past or future. He is continuously ‘being.’ Therefore the Lord does not say: ‘I was before Abraham’<sup>185</sup>.

Pope Gregory the Great

‘Then they took up stones to throw at Him;
but Jesus hid Himself and went out of the temple, going through the midst of them, and so passed by.’[50]

The Lord was accused of blasphemy; therefore they considered, according to the law, that He deserved to be stoned (Lev 24:16). It was necessary to take Him outside the temple in order to do so; but He passed through them and they were unable to see Him. The Lord departed silently. In the same manner, the Lord enters the heart silently; or departs silently from those who reject His kingdom. The Lord departed from Samson silently while he was not aware (Judges 16:20).

* The Lord appeared to accept stoning; but woe to them whom the Lord has forsaken and escaped from their stony hearts<sup>186</sup>.

St. Augustine

* Why did God hide Himself? Our Savior became incarnate and lived among men to teach us through His words and His example. What does He convey through this example other than that we should humbly avoid the anger of the proud. We need to do the same whenever we have to resist opposition. In this context St. Paul tells us: “...do not avenge yourselves, but rather give place to wrath...” (Rom 12:19). No one should be angered due to resistance directed against him. Harm should not be the response to harm. It is more honorable to imitate the Lord and escape silently from humiliation, rather than get engaged in responding to it. Haughty persons resent such passive behavior as they believe in their hearts that it is shameful to be silent. They do not understand that you are demonstrating patience; and imagine that by being silent you admit the accusation brought against you. However, this manner of thinking results from our thoughts that are geared to earthly matters. When we seek honor on earth, we are not concerned with pleasing God who sees us from heaven<sup>187</sup>.

Addendum to Chapter Eight

Commentary On the Story of the Adulterous Woman

Some scholars consider that the story of the adulterous woman has no place in the Gospel of St. John. In spite of the wonderful spiritual meaning that the story conveys; and its harmony with the thoughts and deeds of the Lord Jesus Christ according to the other holy gospels; they have the following reservations:

<sup>185</sup> Hom 16. Forty Gospel Homilies, 116-117

First: Some of the early fathers did not include the story in their interpretation of the Gospel of St. John; although they referred to it in their other writings. Among those who did not mention it are Origen , St. John Chrysostom, and St. Cyprian.

Second; The story that is told in the Greek language contains some words that do not occur in the rest of this gospel, or occur very rarely.

Third: The ‘scribes’ were mentioned as well as the Pharisees. However, St. John does not do so in the rest of his gospel. Moreover, he mentions Mount Olives and that the Lord taught while He was sitting, etc....

However, other scholars find that the story is authentic as an event as well as in its place in the gospel. They base their opinion on the following:

First: The story has been included in many of the interpretations by fathers of the Western churches such as St. Jerome, St. Augustine, and St. Ambrose. They included it because the Latin version of the Vulgate mentions that the story is told in many of the Greek manuscripts.

Second: The story occurs in more than one manuscript, especially in Latin ones. Besides it occurs in the Memphitic, Ethiopian, and Armenian versions.

Third: The reservations of some Eastern fathers could be explained as a concern towards those who had been converted. They avoided the subject of the adulterous woman, and they did not interpret it while they worked on the rest of St. John’s Gospel. They feared that the converts would find in her story an unwarranted flexibility toward the sin of adultery.

Fourth: The story with all its details occurs in the book ‘Apostolic Constitutions’<sup>188</sup>. It occurs in the section dealing with the acceptance of penitents into the church; as well as with the response to those who respect the repentance of sinners.

Fifth: However, from a theological and spiritual aspect, the story occupies a most meaningful place in the St. John’s Gospel. It comes right after the Lord’s teachings on the last day of the feast. He had invited the thirsty to come and drink of the living water so that rivers of living water would flow out of their hearts (Jn 7: 37 etc...). It also comes just before His teachings about Himself as the Light of the world. In this story, the Lord Jesus Christ exposes the souls of those who have filled themselves with the water of pleasures in this world. These therefore deserve to be stoned. They have become subject to condemnation even by mankind. However, the Lord waters souls with His divine love and transforms them into His brides, making them worthy of fellowship with Him. At the same time, these souls preach repentance and are witnesses for the amazing power of the Mediator! The adulterous woman had spent her life in darkness. She wished to die and be burned rather than be stoned. Yet the divine Light shone upon her and she found the Father’s embrace waiting to receive her!

Truly, this woman has become a symbol for all miserable mankind: she became the happiest being in the world when she had met with the Savior of mankind!

Inspiration Drawn from Chapter Eight

May Your Light Shine Upon Me
And
May My Judgment be Transformed into an Eternal Wedding!

* May You shine upon my heart with the light of Your love
And may You enter with me into the violent judgment court of the Pharisees
Instead of bringing me to judgment, prepare me for the eternal wedding!
I no longer fear their stony hearts that throw stones at me
For You pour Your sublime love into my depths.
There is no lawyer to defend me:
You are my Mediator, Savior, and the Liberator of my soul!
You hold my hand and bring me into Your Kingdom, O holy One!

* The world sought to condemn me, but has condemned itself
Grant me the will not to condemn anyone, lest I fail and be condemned by You May I condemn myself, then you will save me by Your Blood, O Savior of the world!
You alone can renew my life with Your Holy Spirit
You transform adulterers into saints
O holy One who has changed the nature of the furnace into coolness for the three youths
And the nature of the hungry lions into friends of Daniel the prophet!

* You have commanded me not to go back and sin
Who can fulfill that without Your grace?
It is a divine commandment, indeed, it is a divine promise fulfilled in Me
You are the Light of the world: You are My light
As I walk in Your light, the darkness of sin cannot creep into my being.

* You are the Source of living water that overflows within me
You are the Light of the world, changing my inner depths into a shining lamp!
You are the Son of God, granting me the spirit of adoption through Your Holy Spirit
You carry me from slavery to the glorious freedom enjoyed by God's children!

* I boasted of my lineage to Abraham, the father of the fathers
But I willfully did not follow his example
I became a slave to sin, and a child of Satan the deceiver.
I became a stone with no spiritual feelings.
Now, You have transformed me into a child of Abraham
You tear away my slavery to sin and make me a servant to Righteousness
You carry me into the fold of the adopted children of God Your Father!
Now I truly rejoice at the Lord's Day with my father Abraham!
Glory be to You, O Giver of liberty to all mankind
O Source of true joy!
When will I see You face to face, and so join all my fathers and become as a bride sanctified to You

IN THE NAME OF THE FATHER, THE SON, AND THE HOLY SPIRIT
ONE GOD, AMEN

INEXPRESSIBLE HEIGHTS OF GLORY

During the writing of this book, a certain thought crossed my mind and I often hesitated to document it. I felt sad that I had not begun to enjoy the Gospel of St John earlier on in my life. Had I done so, I would have spent the rest of my days soaring in the glories that this Gospel offers. These are glories that are hard to communicate in any human language.

As I studied the Gospel of St John, I came to understand the meaning of what Origen, the scholar, meant when he wrote his meditations and sermons on this Gospel. He stated that he believed he could not complete his interpretation of St John until he had passed into heaven. Only there would he be able to complete that task! Indeed, I feel that no one can achieve a full understanding of the depths of St John's writing; and that all would be revealed only as we meet with our glorified Savior and as we partake in His heavenly glory. Only then will we comprehend the amazing implications of this Gospel, and in a way that transcends all that can be said here.

May the Holy Spirit carry every soul into God's divine embrace. May He enlighten the inner vision so that the soul may enjoy all the divine glory and understanding that our amazing Lord wishes to offer to us. Only then we will be ablaze with divine love and longingly seek to meet with our Savior.

A MAN BORN BLIND RECEIVES SIGHT

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

In the previous chapter, we have read the Lord's proclamation that He is the light of the world (8:12). The Lord tells the Jews that He has come to denounce and dissipate darkness. In this manner, He would pull away those walking in it and carry them unto the light of His glory. The children of Satan (8:44) are in need of the real liberator who would grant them inner enlightenment. They would consequently rejoice with their father Abraham because they would see the amazing day of the Lord (8:56). However, they sought to stone Him. Therefore he disappeared from among them; and appeared to the man born blind in order to grant him sight. This probably occurred a few days or months after that earlier confrontation with the Jews. They should have tried to open their hearts and minds to the One who grants sight. Then they would have realized that He grants insight and understanding as well.

This is the only chapter in all of the Old and New Testament books where there is any mention of opening the eyes of a person born blind. In the Old Testament we read that the light of sight granted to the blind is one of the deeds of the awaited Messiah: "And in that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity, and out of darkness," (Is 29:18); and "Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped," (Is 35:5). It is also said of the servant of God (the Incarnate Word): "I the Lord have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light to the Gentiles; To open the blind eyes," (Is 42:6-7). The Psalmist also worships the Lord and says "The Lord openeth the eyes of the blind," (Ps 146:8).

By mentioning the deed of granting sight to the blind and specifically to this one who was born blind, it is as though the evangelists are proclaiming the fulfillment of these prophecies. They are being fulfilled through the person of the Lord Jesus Christ, as He is the awaited Messiah. He is the Lord who opens the inner eyes of the heart as well as the physical eyes. In Him the prophecies have been fulfilled; for through Him such acts are achieved that no one else could perform, except God alone or through His name.

The healing of the blind man proclaims the person of the Lord and the reason for His coming: to open the inner sight so that believers would comprehend the mysteries of God. At the same time, the blindness of the proud and hypocritical leaders would be exposed. Sadly, they could not discover their spiritual blindness and sinfulness!

Although this unique miracle is greatly significant due to the creation of the eyes of the man born blind, yet the Evangelist does not mention the name of the man. Neither does he provide any details. Rather, he presents the arguments that were raised as a result of the miracle. We are informed of the dialogue between the Lord and His disciples; that between the Lord and the blind man; and that between the Lord and the Pharisees.

St. John does not underline the highly miraculous act of healing because he is more preoccupied with the blessings mankind enjoy as a result of the Lord's divine work in their lives and thoughts.

The Lord used clay to create the eyes of the man. This serves as a confirmation that He is the Creator and Savior. By asking the blind man to go wash in the pool of Siloam, He indicated the need for baptism as it allows us to enjoy the Light of the Holy Spirit through the new birth. The Jews responded by throwing out the enlightened man. However, he found a place in the Lord Jesus Christ: The Messiah of the rejected and of the despised.

Some of the Jewish people realized their blindness, besides many of the Gentiles. These two groups were better than the Pharisees who claimed they had sight in spite of their blindness. By such claims, they had no hope through their own stupidity. In contrast, the tax collector and the adulteress confessed their blindness. Therefore the door of hope was opened to them and they enjoyed ultimate insight and eternal life with the Lord Jesus Christ.

Through confession, it is possible to gain insight; which progressively enables a person to get acquainted with the Lord Jesus Christ:

- * A Man called Jesus (11)
- * He is a prophet (17)
- * A Man from God (33)
- * The Son of God (35)
- * He is worthy to be bowed down to and worshipped as He is the Lord (38)

This chapter is read on the 'Sunday of Baptism' as it is associated with the mystery of baptism which represents inner insight and enlightenment.

1- The Healing of the Blind Man

“Now as Jesus passed by, He saw a man who was blind from birth.”[1]

The Lord Jesus Christ passed through the crowd of Jewish leaders and disappeared as they picked up stones to throw at Him (8:59). We then see Him passing by the poor blind man who looks at the Lord. The Lord looked at him in a manner that is different from the way the other people looked at him. He looked at the man with love and compassion. This is a living picture of the Messiah whom the Jews rejected. They took pride in the temple, while the Lord went through the streets seeking the Gentiles. They were disabled to see Him for they had no knowledge of the prophecies, the Divine law, or the symbols. They were like the man born blind whose place was on the roadside and who was poor and begging in a state of misery. Accordingly, Job says “Wherefore is light given to him that is in misery and life unto the bitter in soul;” (Job 3:20).

The Evangelist does not provide the name of the place through which the Lord was passing by or where He was. However, He was passing by as the Bearer of sufferings and He saw this man begging. The man was sitting in a place where charitable people could give him something to help him survive.

The man was known in the city as the one born blind. No one around him, not even the Lord’s disciples, asked or prayed that his eyes would be opened. May be this was because no one expected that it could happen.

The Lord looked at home so that the poor blind person would find Him. Accordingly, the holy Word states in Is. 65:1: “I am sought of them that asked not for me; I am found of them that sought me not: I said, ‘Behold me, behold me’, unto a nation that was not called by my name.” He first loved us, and He loved us before we knew Him. The apostle says in this context: “when ye knew not God,” (Gal. 4:9).

* The Lord truly loves mankind and is concerned with our salvation. He wishes to bridle the mouth of the stupid and will not cease from working even though no one listens to Him. The prophet knew that and said, “that you might be justified when you speak, and be clear when you judge,” (Ps. 51:4). Consequently, in this chapter, we find the Lord leaving the temple and healing the blind. He does so after the Jews had rejected His words, accused Him of being possessed by a demon, and had tried to kill Him. He did the miracle to pacify their cruelty and violence and to underline the facts. He did a supernatural miracle that had no precedence. Listen to the healed person who states: “Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind,” [23]. May be some physician had opened the eyes of someone who had become blind, but this never happened to one born blind. Upon leaving the temple, the Lord intentionally went to work. This clearly indicates that it is He who saw the blind man and not vice versa. The Lord looked at him jealously and the disciples understood His compassion<sup>1</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* This blind man represents the human race. Such blindness found a place in the first man through sin. We all have our origins in this first man and therefore have inherited not only death but evil as well. Now if lack of faith constitutes blindness and faith is enlightenment, then who is the believer that the Lord will find at His coming? The apostle, who traces his origin to the family of prophets, states: “...were by nature the children of wrath, even as others,” (Eph. 2:3)... since evil has found roots for itself within us, then every person has been born mentally blind. For if a person could really see, he would not have needed a mentor: but since he needs someone to guide and enlighten him, then he has been blind ever since his birth.<sup>2</sup>

St. Augustine

“And his disciples asked him, saying,

The Lord left the temple (Jn. 8:59) accompanied by the disciples who did not forsake Him during His trials. They enjoyed getting acquainted with Him and they were having tremendous new experiences. They noticed how the Lord turned His eyes to the poor blind man. He did not look at him in the usual manner for His eyes were full of love. They too, therefore turned their eyes to the blind man. Yet instead of praying the Lord to heal him, they questioned Him for the reason why he had been born blind.

* We might wonder: where did this question come from? Our answer would be: when the Lord healed the paralytic man earlier, He told him “Look, you have been made well, sin no more, lest a worse thing come upon you” (John 5:14). Therefore the disciples remembered that the man had suffered paralysis due to his sins. However, this could not be applied to this blind man for he was blind since birth. So had his parents sinned? This too cannot be concluded because the child does not suffer punishment due to his parents... the disciples here wondered because of their own confusion and not because they searched for information.<sup>3</sup>

St. John Chrysostom.

There is a popular rabbinical saying (quoted allegedly by the rabbis) ‘There is no death without sin and no pain without evil.’ This saying was justified by them as they based it on the words cited in Ezekiel 18:20, and Psalm 89:32. These words were imprinted in the minds of the Jews, including the Lord’s disciples who did not ask if this blindness was due to sin or not. In their opinion, this matter did not need to be questioned or debated. So the question they asked was: ‘who was the one who had sinned and therefore brought this terrible calamity on that person.’ What confused the disciples was: ‘how could the man have sinned before birth and was consequently born like that? Could this be the result of his parents’ sin?’

Some believe that the soul of a person could sin before it is embodied in the flesh. Origen the Scholar believed that some suffer pain before they act wrongfully after birth. Others have depended on human logic to explain Divine Justice and how some are born poor while others are born rich, or why one person is born with sharp intelligence and another could lack it altogether; or why one is born physically strong while another is suffering many ailments. Besides, some have depended on affirming the potential to commit error before birth based on the story of Jacob and Esau when they were still in the womb: “...the children struggled together within her...” (Gen. 25:22).

In the writings of the rabbis they deal with what befalls the sons due to the mistakes of the parents. In the context of the need for a man to avoid gazing at a woman, one rabbi states: ‘A man who gazes at the heel of a woman will have a handicapped son born to him.’ Another rabbi says that this happens to someone who approaches his wife during her impurity. Still another says that a man who has a marital relationship while his wife still has menstruation would have children who would suffer of epilepsy. There are numerous sayings similar to these and which underline the conviction of the rabbis that the sins of the parents are punished by appearance of flaws in their children and of which the children suffer throughout their lives.

This clarifies that what the disciples said was not inspired by their imagination, for it was the result of teachings strongly imprinted in the minds of many Jews. These ideas were the result of the rabbinical writings and teachings.

---

Some believe that the disciples had heard about the Pythagorean ideas. These claimed that the soul pre-exists the creation of its body. The Pharisees might have adopted that line of thought too. This is evident in their words to the man born blind: “... you were completely born in sins,” [34].

Many nations believe in the transmigration of souls. Hinduism is still interested in defining the sin a person had committed when he lived in another body before birth. Origen the scholar borrowed a speech given by Jacob that is found in the unofficial Book to the Hebrews where he says: “I am the angel of God, one of the first ranks of the spirits. People call me Jacob, but my true name given me by God is Israel. Plato believes that the air is full of spirits; and that some of these bind themselves to bodies due to their naturally active inclinations. Other spirits detest such a union.”

Jesus answered:

“Neither this man nor his parents sinned but that the works of God should be revealed.” [3]

Rather than condemn the man born blind or his parents, the Lord directed the disciple’s attention to the supreme care of God and His hidden plan. God had allowed this blindness in order to grant that person spiritual insight. Consequently, he would testify to the Divine truth before the violent Jewish leaders and would glorify God.

The Lord Jesus Christ did not say that the man born blind or his parents had not sinned. All mankind had fallen into sin. What this blind man was suffering of was not related to any particular sin. What the disciples and all believers should do is to be preoccupied with God’s works and His plan for man. He wants us to enjoy inner sight, to get acquainted with the mysteries of God, and to receive fellowship in His eternal glory.

God’s hand works incessantly and through hard and happy times. Under all circumstances, He seeks our salvation. Believers have not been promised a life with no trials or sufferings that afflict all other beings. Conversely, they are faced with more tribulations. However, what comforts them is their understanding that God has a plan for everything. Besides, because they enjoy Divine grace they feel they are fully content. This is what God has promised us through St. Paul’s words: “My grace is sufficient for you, for My strength is made perfect in weakness.” (2 Cor. 12:9)

The believer does not complain in the midst of trials. His eyes are fixed on God his tender Father; and his heart is receptive and comprehends God’s plan for him.

* The Lord Jesus Christ is the Savior and He mercifully does what He has not granted in the womb. Surely when God had not given eyes to that blind person, it was not due to some error He (the Creator) did. Rather, the plan was to postpone it until the time would come to do a miracle..... “Neither this man nor his parents sinned...” God did not grant what He could have granted. He did not grant what He knew He would grant when the time would come for that need.

The blindness was not due to sin committed by the blind man or his parents; ‘but that the works of God should be revealed in him.’ For when we were born, we were all bound with the original sin. Yet in spite of that we were not born blind. Nevertheless, search carefully for we have been born blind. So who has not been born blind? I mean blind in the heart. Yet the Lord Jesus Christ, who has created both heart and body, heals both of them.<sup>4</sup>

St. Augustine

The Lord’s words about the blind man: “Neither this man nor his parents sinned”, do not clear his parents of sin. He did not just say, “Neither this man nor his parents sinned”, for He added “but that the works of God should be revealed in him.” Indeed this man and his parents had sinned; however the blindness was not a result of that. It is not valid to punish a person for a sin committed by someone else. This fallacy has been rejected by Ezekiel the prophet who says: “The word of the Lord came unto me again, saying, “What mean ye, that ye use this proverb concerning the land of Israel, saying, The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children’s teeth are set on edge? As I live, saith the Lord GOD, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: the soul that sinneth, it shall die,” Ezek 18:1-4. In this context, Moses the prophet also says: “The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children be put to death for the fathers: every man shall be put to death for his own sin,” (Deut 24:16).

If someone says: How did God tell Moses the prophet “for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me;” (Ex 20:5)? Our response would be:” Because this cause cannot be generalized; for it was said of people who had come out of Egypt. This was what it meant: When the Jews left Egypt; they became more experienced through many miracles and wonders. In spite of that, they became more evil than their parents and grand parents who had not seen such miracles. Therefore they were to suffer the same calamities that their predecessors had suffered if they followed the same course of action.

* The Lord says these words not as someone who wants to indicate that they have not sinned since both that person and his parents have sinned. However, his blindness is not the reason of that.... But it is intended for the proclamation of the Glory of God through him. Someone may say: ‘Why should that person suffer for the glory of God? How unjust, explain to me? Then what if God had never created that man?’ Our response is: ‘The man has benefited from his blindness for he received the healing of his inner vision.’ What benefit do the Jews enjoy as they have eyes yet their condemnation has become greater. They saw yet were incapacitated. What is the harm that befell that man as a consequence of his disability... indeed, because of it, his eyes were opened? Therefore the evils of this present life are not evil, neither are the blessings beneficial. Only sin is evil, whereas disability is not evil.<sup>5</sup>

St. John Chrysostom.

St. Jerome wrote to Castrutrus of Pannomia to comfort him due to his physical blindness and said:

* I write to ask you not to consider the physical calamity that has happened to you as the result of a sin...do we not see many idolaters, Jews, heretics and those who adopt different thoughts just wading in the mud of lust. They swim in a sea of blood and violence and are worse than savage wolves and stealthy hawks. In spite of that, they have not been inflicted with this epidemic. They are not inflicted like others and they grow in their arrogance towards God, raising their faces up to heaven. Conversely, we see the saints afflicted with sickness, pain, and need ...If you imagine that your blindness is due to sin; and that your sickness which doctors are often capable of healing are proof of God's anger, then you seem to consider that Isaac is a sinner. You think that is why he was afflicted with blindness, was deceived, and gave the blessing to the one whom he had no intention to give. We accuse Jacob of sin when his eyesight weakened so much he could neither see Manasseh nor Ephraim (Gen. 48:1). Yet, with his inner vision and prophetic spirit he could foresee the distant future, and that the Lord Jesus Christ would come from a royal line (Gen. 49:1) <sup>6</sup>

St. Jerome

It is not appropriate for believers, having comprehended the supreme mysteries of God, to condemn anyone or to consider that matters that befall others are divine punishments inflicted for some hidden sin. If we do so we belittle others even though their sins are apparent. The Jews fell into this error as they considered the righteous One who is without sin, as deserving to suffer and be crucified for some evil or blasphemy he had committed. The Psalmist says: "For they persecute him whom thou hast smitten; and they talk to the grief of those whom thou hast wounded" (Ps. 69:26). Isaiah the prophet also says: ".....we esteemed Him stricken, smitten by God and afflicted. But He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement for our peace was upon him and by His stripes we are healed" (Is. 53:4-5)

"I must work the works of Him who sent Me while it is day;
the night is coming when no one can work" [4]

These were critical moments when the Lord turned His eyes to the man born blind. They were moments dedicated not only to heal the man born blind but also to reveal the person of the Lord Jesus Christ: He is the light of the world and the giver of inner vision. In spite of that, no one could discover what lay behind this blindness. Until these moments, even the disciples could not read or understand the book of Divine care. However, the time came later on when it became possible to comprehend this Divine mystery and the supreme Divine work.

The Lord did not perform works in order to underline his power to do miracles. Rather He did so to perform the works of His Father who sent Him. However, He does not say I do the work that My Father has commanded Me to do but He just performed the same deeds of His Father. We notice here the following:

First: The Lord came into the world on a mission. He came in the form of the Son of man to fulfill His Father's will and in complete obedience to Him. The Father's will is identical to the Son's will. That is why any person who is obedient shares the feature of obedience with our Lord Jesus Christ.

Second: The Lord performs the same works as the Father. This is what He affirms in the Gospel of St. John: the unity of Divine work. This will become evident in the rest of this Gospel.

Third: In a spirit of love for humanity and in obedience and union with the Father, the Lord finds pleasure in accomplishing His work. Committed by love, the Lord says: "I must work...."

Fourth: The Lord works while it is day; and before the Jews move to kill Him as they are driven by envy and hatred. The period of His service is an opportunity to work openly even if that is done on the Sabbath. This is an invitation for us to move and work and to seize every hour of our lives; lest our work remains unfinished when the day of our lives comes to an end. The Lord has granted us the day so that we may labor (Ps. 104:22-23). Therefore it is appropriate that we do not spoil and idle away the days of our lives. Indeed, we should struggle in obedience to God our Father so that when the night comes we could rest.

Fifth: The Lord invites us to work through Him and with Him. The apostle says accordingly: "For we are fellow workers..." (1 Cor. 3:9). For in working with Him, we find peace, honor, and glory. We share with Him in service as long as we are alive and before the night sets in.

* What do these words convey? What are the ultimate conclusions based on these? So many. What the Lord says implies this: 'As long as there is light, the nation could believe in Me; and as long as this life goes on, I need to work.' The night is coming: that is, 'it is bound to come in the future when no one would be able to work.' The Lord did not say: 'I cannot work' but rather 'When no one can work.' This indicates that there will not be any more time for faith, or service, or repentance<sup>7</sup>.

* Why had St. Paul called this life 'the night' (Rom. 13:12)? But here the Lord calls it 'the day'? St. Paul is not contradicting the Lord for he is saying the same thing. Even though the words are different, yet the meaning is the same. He says: "the night is far spent. The day is at hand." St. Paul calls the present time 'the night' since he compares it to the forthcoming day. The Lord called the future 'the night' as no time will be left to perform acts of repentance, faith or obedience in the next world if we neglect any sin done in this world. As for St. Paul, he called this present life 'the night' because anyone who persists in evil and disbelief exists in darkness. Therefore he directs his speech to believers saying: 'The night is far spent, the day is at hand.' Believers need to enjoy that light, and St. Paul calls the old life as darkness: 'Therefore let us cast off the works of darkness and let us put on the armor of light'<sup>8</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

In this manner, the Lord directs His words to unbelievers. Their lives here are considered to be 'day' if they are compared with their lives in the world to come. Now, they could enjoy the light of the sun of righteousness in the inner hearts, through living faith and true repentance. As for the world to come, they will be enveloped in darkness where there is no way they could return to the Lord and offer repentance. In contrast, St. Paul directs his words to believers. He considers their previous lives as 'darkness' since they performed acts of darkness. Now, the time had come to travel into the future world where they would enjoy the eternal light of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Coming into His presence, our present life appears as the darkest night...

* Dear brothers, if we always bear in mind the condemnation we have inherited, then we will know that the whole world is blind. Now the Lord Jesus Christ, who grants enlightenment, has come. Satan causes blindness and he has caused all mankind to be born blind, as he is the one who deceived the first man. Let all run to Him who grants light. Let all run and believe and receive the clay made of spit.....let all wash their faces in the pool of Siloam ...This is Siloam: wash your face, be baptized. In this manner you will be enlightened and see while you could not see before<sup>9</sup>.

* First: Open your eyes to Him who says: 'I must work the works of Him who sent Me' (Refer to John 9:4). A follower of Arius would immediately respond: 'As you see, the Lord did not perform His works but rather the works of the Father who sent Him.' Are these works not His works? What does He say who is Siloam and the Messenger Himself, the Son Himself, the only Son, the one to whom you complain and belittle His status? What is the response of the Lord? 'All things that the Father has are mine' (John 16:15)... He did not say: 'all that the Father has, He has given Me.' Yet, had He said that He would also have revealed His equality with the Father... Hear His words in another verse: "and all Mine are yours, and yours are Mine" (John 17:10). So the doubt ends here: for what the Father and the Son have are in harmony and consist of the same thing. Therefore there is no conflict: what the Lord calls 'the work of the Father' are His works too since all that are 'Yours are Mine'... "For whatever He does, the Son also does in like manner (in the same way) (John 5:19).<sup>10</sup>

St. Augustine

Thus the Lord offers Himself as a model. Indeed, He acts on our behalf so that when we disappear within Him we are enabled to perform the same deeds through His Spirit. He did not have to struggle since He performed His Father's work with inner joy, and in spite of the constant resistance of those around Him. He will continue to act even through our union with Him. Therefore we should not cease to struggle and we should be committed to serve. We need to do so before the night of death comes upon us and the days of our lives come to an end on this earth.

"As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world." [5]

The Lord Jesus Christ works as long as it is daytime. That means that He works as long as we are able to enjoy His redeeming deeds. For when the day ends and the night of the grave prevails, it will be impossible to benefit any longer of His service. The opportunity to repent and return to Him will have passed away. During the days of our lives, He shines upon us, as He is 'The light of the world': The light of righteousness who gives light to our souls, our minds and all our inner depths.

Earlier, the Lord had proclaimed that His mission involves bringing His light to those sitting in the darkness (John 8:12). As He is the light of righteousness, He grants enlightenment and healing through the rays of His love or with the scope of His wings. As the Head of the Church, He transforms his believers into 'the light of the world.' They just have to be fervently fired by divine love to serve others.

* The Lord said these words so that we may believe that He was speaking about the incarnation; and that it was valid as long as He was a human being. He was in the world for a while, yet as He is God and therefore He is present at all times. In another context, the Lord says: "... I am with you always, even to the end of the age," (Matt. 28:20)<sup>11</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* Here the Lord reveals that even after His crucifixion, He will grant His tender care to the wicked and attract many to Him because it is still day. However, when the day is over, He will abandon them completely. He proclaims this by saying: 'As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.' He also told others. "...while you have the light, believe in the light..." (John 12:36)<sup>12</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom.

The only incarnate Son is the light of the whole heavenly creation and not only of the whole world<sup>13</sup>.

St. Cyril the Great.

* He is called "The light of the world" due to His act of giving light to the world: what lies within Him is the light.

He is called the resurrection since He tears away that which is dead and sets up the fullness of life within all those who come earnestly to Him.

On account of other acts, the Lord is also called 'The Shepherd' (John 10:11-12); 'The Teacher' (John 13:13); 'The King' (Zech 9:9; Matt. 21:5; John 12:15), 'the chosen Arrow' (Ps. 44:6; Is 49:2); 'The Slave/ Servant' (Is 49:3); 'the Mediator and Sacrifice' (1 John 2:1-2; Rom 3:25) He is also called the 'Logos' as He strips away all that which is illogical 'alolon.' He truly transforms us into wise beings acting always in a manner that glorifies God even as we eat and drink (1 Cor. 10:31) Due to such wisdom, we are enabled to fulfill completely and generally all our acts in this life to the glory of God. Through fellowship with Him, we are enabled to awaken and be enlightened. Besides, He watches over us and directs our lives. Clearly, we walk wisely and divinely as He destroys every irrational and deadly matter within us since He is the Word and the Resurrection (John 1:1; 11:25)<sup>14</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

* What is this night in which no one can work as soon as it sets in? Listen to what 'the day' stands for; then you will comprehend the implication of 'the night'...let the Lord tell us: "As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.”[5]. See how He Himself is the day. ‘Let the blind wash his eyes in the day so that he might see the day... Then the night, in a certain manner, corresponds to a person’s lack of recognizing Me. Thus when the Lord is no longer there, no one can work’<sup>15</sup>.

* It is the night of the wicked. The night of those to whom it will be said at the end of time: ‘Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels.’

Now faith works through love. Therefore if we now work- then it is now daytime for the Lord is present now.

Listen to His promise and do not imagine that He is absent; for He Himself has said: “I am with you.” Until when? May we, who are alive, never experience anxiety. As long as we have full faith that His words stand throughout all generation, this is possible.

The Lord said:” I am with you always, even to the end of the age,” (Matt 28:20). There is a time to work, and a time to collect wages. The Lord will reward everyone according to his deeds (Matt. 16:27).

Go on working as long as you are alive.... For the terrible night will come when all the wicked will faint. In the present, every unbeliever who dies enters into the night where it is impossible to do any work. In this kind of night the wealthy one keeps burning, suffering, and repenting. However, he could not get any relief. He tried to be good when he told Abraham: “Father Abraham, send Lazarus to my father’s house...that he may testify to them, lest they also come to this place of torment” (Luke 16:27-28)

What a sad person! When you were alive you had time to work. Now you are in the night where no man can work<sup>16</sup>!

St. Augustine.

“When He had said these things, He spat on the ground, and made clay with the saliva;
and he anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay. [6]

The manner of healing the man born blind is unique. It is well known that mud would damage a healthy eye. So how does the Lord make mud with His saliva and anoint the eyes of that man? And why did He not heal him in secret in order to avoid arousing the hostility of the religious leaders? Besides why did He not wait till after the Sabbath and then heal him?

First: The Lord confirms that He performs His work in accordance to his divine thought and not according to our wishes and human means.

Second: His prime concern is to grant the blind man sight to his eyes and insight to his heart. He is not concerned with the resistance of the Jewish leaders against Him.

Third: He did not wait until the Sabbath had ended because it was as a day of rest.

---

Therefore the spirit of the Lord finds rest in doing divine acts and in granting enlightenment and rest to others.

Fourth: He sets an example so that we may not postpone doing good works to the next day. Indeed, we should seize every chance to hurry in doing good deeds lest the opportunity is no more there tomorrow.

Fifth: The Lord made clay out of spit and anointed the man's eyes with His hands. In doing so He confirms that the secret of that power lies in Christ Himself and in the work of His hands. Everything that proceeds from the Lord Jesus Christ possesses power, life and enlightenment. Indeed, His arm is almighty.

* Notice that when the Lord sought to heal the blind man, He did so in a manner that could make his blindness even worse, as He applied mud<sup>17</sup>.

* The Lord took earth from the ground and that is just the same thing He did when He created Adam. It would have been true if He had said: "I am the one who took soil from the ground and formed man." But this would have been very hard on His hearers, as well as too unbearable and repulsive to them. Therefore He chose to reveal His identity through a practical event, which nothing could hinder. By taking earth and mixing it with spit, He proclaimed His hidden glory. Indeed, it was not easy for the crowds to comprehend and believe that they stood before the glorious Creator Himself<sup>18</sup>.

* If you wonder: 'Why did the Lord not use water in the mud but rather used spit?' Our response is: 'So that the spring of water would not be considered the source of healing. Besides, it is intended to indicate that the power evident in His mouth is responsible for creating the eyes of the blind man and opening them.'

St John Chrysostom

* He granted him new eyes<sup>19</sup>.

St. Paulinus

* He formed eyes from clay.

Light emanated from the soil

This is how it happened in the beginning...

He ordered that there be light, and it was born out of darkness.

Similarly, here too.

He made clay out of His spit,

And he offered perfection to that which was lacking in nature and that was the case since the beginning.

This was intended to reveal that what He held in His hands was the power to bring perfection to what was imperfect in nature...

As they refused to believe that He was there before Abraham came, He proved to them, through His deeds, that He is the Son of the One whose hands had shaped the first Adam out of the earth<sup>20</sup>.

St. Efram the Syrian

* He made clay out of the spit and anointed our eyes with it (John 9:6, 7). He made us see clearly (Mark 8:25). He opened the ears of our hearts (Mark 7:33-35) so that we could hear. Therefore we could smell His sweet fragrance (Eph 5; 2 Cor 2:15), and distinguish His name as the aroma of a spilled sweet ointment (Song of Sol 1:3; Phil 2). Now we could taste and see how great the Lord is (1 Peter 2:3; Ps 34:8). Now we can touch Him in the manner that St. John describes: ‘That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, concerning the work of life’ (1 John 1:1). Consequently, we have become enabled to kill the Lamb, eat it, and as a result come out of Egypt<sup>21</sup>.

‘And He said to him,
“Go; wash in the pool of Siloam (which is translated, Sent).
So he went and washed and came back seeing’ [7]

‘Siloam’: It is also known as Shiloh, Silo, and Shiloh. This is a natural spring that lies beneath the strong citadels on the east of Jerusalem, in between the city and the waters of Kidron. Some consider that Siloam is the same as En Rogel, which is mentioned in Joshua 15:7; 18:16; 2 Sam 17:17; 1 Kings 1:9. The waters of this spring were gathered in a great storage for the consumption of the city. A stream flowed out of it that fed the pool at Bethesda.

The pool of Siloam got its water from a spring that originated in mount Zion thus the waters of the Tabernacle “were streams that make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacle the most high”(Ps 46:4). These are living and healing waters (Ezek 47:9).

(Which is translated Sent): The name is derived from the Hebrew ‘Shalach’ and means ‘Sent.’ This was due either because they considered this spring as a blessing granted by God in order to water the city; or because its waters were channeled through canals or pipes to different regions. Some believe that the name refers to a prophecy by Jacob to Judas that the Messiah would be his descendant: “..... Until Shiloh comes; and to Him shall be the obedience of the people” (Gen 49:10). Thus it is a symbol for the Lord Jesus Christ, sent from the Father to enlighten and heal souls.

The Lord Jesus Christ is called “the Messenger” for He is the carrier of the covenant (Malachi 2:1). He repeatedly says in the Gospel of St. John that the Father had sent Him. Thus when he tells the blind man to go to the pool of Siloam or Sent, He is calling every soul in need of enlightenment to go to Him. He is the messenger who purifies man from sin, and shines with His light upon him. Consequently, he/she enjoys heavenly understanding, and darkness can no longer have a place in him.

* Just as the Lord Jesus Christ is also the spiritual rock (1Cor 10:4), so is the spiritual Siloam

St. John Chrysostom

The Lord Jesus Christ underlined the obedience of the man born blind. On the one hand, he submitted himself to the Lord, whom he had never seen, and let him put clay on his eyes without any objection or even asking how the Lord could use clay to heal eyes?

On the other hand, he obeyed, went and washed in the pool of Siloam. He probably had gone and washed there previously but had not recovered his sight. Besides, surely many others had washed in the pool yet had never heard of any blind person being healed by its waters. Consequently, the Lord proclaimed the virtues of that poor blind man which were evident in his assurance, confidence, and calm.

Note the mind set of the blind man: he was obedient in every way. He did not say: 'If the mud and spit will truly heal me, why do I need to go to Siloam? Or, if I need to go to Siloam, why is there a need for clay? Why does He anoint me with (clay)? And why does He command me to get washed?' He did not think of these matters, as he was ready to do one thing only: he was prepared to obey completely the one who commanded him and he was not inclined to do anything to oppose Him<sup>23</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

The man born blind came to enjoy the light of which he had been deprived before. It is as though he had been granted a new birth that differed from his previous birth. The pool of Siloam represents the baptismal waters that grant inner vision besides purification and redemption from sin. The waters refer to the Messianic age or the Kingdom of the house of David: "In as much as these people refuse the waters of Shiloah that flow softly...." (Is 8:6)

The blind man returned with his sight restored. He could see intangible things and he praised with all his might the One who had granted him enlightenment. Accordingly Isaiah the prophet says: "...your watchmen shall lift up their voices, with their voices they shall sing together; for they shall see eye to eye when the Lord brings back Zion" (Is 52:8).

* The Lord told the blind man to go and, wash in Siloam. If you were to ask: 'Why has the Lord not done the miracle immediately? Why did He send the man to Siloam?' Our response would be: 'To test the blind man's faith and in order to silence the arguments of the Jews.' Besides, it was necessary for all who met him to see him going there with his eyes covered with clay. Such a strange sight would attract everybody's attention, whether they knew him or not. Everybody would notice him in every detail. It would not be easy to recognize the blind man after his eyes were opened (for his features would be changed). That is why the Lord intended to have many witnesses testifying in different ways by creating a strange sight that would be definitely remarkable... in this manner people would be unable, after the miracle had been done, to deny that it was the same person.

* The man washed his eyes in this pool whose name is translated as “sent.” He was baptized in the Lord in a manner that granted him enlightenment. When the Lord anointed him with clay He made him become a believer<sup>24</sup>.

St. Augustine believes that in making the clay with spit, the reference is to the Word being incarnated<sup>25</sup>.

2. Dialogues after the Miraculous Healing

A. The dialogue between the Neighbors and the Blind man

The neighbors, who were eyewitnesses to the miracle, knew the blind man very well. Due to the miraculous healing and their great astonishment, they went through three stages of doubt, leading to three questions:

The first stage: their doubts in the person of the blind man [8], therefore he assured them he was that same blind man they had known [9].

The second stage: Who had made the miracle? And the answer was “A man called Jesus” [11]

The third stage: “Where is He?” And the answer was: “I do not know”, [12].

The blind man was completely accurate and faithful in answering all the three questions and according to what he knew at that time.

‘Therefore the neighbors and those who previously had seen that he was blind said, “Is not this he who sat and begged?” [8]

The neighbors were astonished as he had been born and had grown among them. They were accustomed to see him blind. Often, he would sit and beg in misery. Suddenly now he could see and his sight was whole for he was walking joyfully everywhere. He had not been able to work on account of his blindness and his damaged psyche. His parents had been unable to support him; therefore he sat by the roadside and begged most of the day. Even his manner of speech and words had become different. Instead of beggars’ words that would be intended to let people give him alms; his words were now full of praise and thanksgiving. All this made his miraculous healing a public event rather than a hidden matter! In spite of that, some were suspicious concerning his identity. There were conflicting views since the healing of a person born blind is something hard to accept. Indeed, according to human knowledge, healing appeared to be impossible in such a case.

* How tender is God! Wherever He went, He tenderly healed even beggars. In this manner, He silenced the Jews. He did not give special attention to famous or outstanding persons or to rulers.

Rather He attended to those who seemed unworthy to receive His attention. Indeed, He had come to save everyone<sup>26</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Some said: “This is he.”

Others said, “He is like him.”

He said: “I am he.” [9]

Probably, those who said: “This is he” were the ones who had witnessed what had happened to him for everything had been done in public. As far as the others, they did not believe and said: “He is like him.” This was also because his opened eyes made him look different than how he used to look. By saying: “I am he” he testified that he is the same one who had been begging people; but now he was enjoying God’s supreme blessing.

* He was not ashamed of his former blindness; and he did not fear the anger of the crowd. Moreover, he did not conceal his identity for he wanted to testify to the One who had been kind to him

St. John Chrysostom

Therefore they said to him:

“How were your eyes opened?” [10]

When the blind man testified that he was the one who received the blessing of healing, the neighbors asked how it happened. They wanted to know and find the Maker of the miracle. The Psalmist accordingly says: “The works of the Lord are great, studied by all who have pleasure in them,” (Ps 111:2).

He answered and said:

“A man called Jesus made clay and anointed my eyes, and said to me: ‘Go to the pool of Siloam and wash.’ So I went and washed, and I received sight” [11]

He presented the truth simply and according to his experience. He said: “A man called Jesus made clay...” He had not seen Jesus before, but had heard of Him. He heard the Lord’s voice when He commanded him to go wash in the pool of Siloam. He felt that the Lord’s hand put something over his eyes. He discovered it was clay after he had been healed; and that the Lord had made it Himself and anointed his eyes with it.

* Look how he became a preacher through grace. Look how he preaches the Gospel. Having received insight, he became a confessor. This blind man became a confessor and that agitated the hearts of the wicked. This was due to the fact that they had not received in their hearts what this man had received in his eyes<sup>27</sup>.

St. Augustine

<sup>26</sup> Homilies on St John, 57:1

<sup>27</sup> St Augustine: On the Gospel of St John, tractate 44:8

Then they said to him:
“Where is He?”
He said: “I do not know.” [12]

Their second question was “Where is He?” Was this question raised due to their doubt in the person who had made the miracle and had broken the law and incited breaking it? On one hand, the Lord had made clay and anointed the eyes of the blind man. On the other hand, He had commanded him to walk to the pool and get washed. May be some asked the question out of curiosity and to find out who was that one that could do such an act; while others could have asked out of a sincere desire to meet Him.

The blind man answered: “I do not know” as the Lord seems to have withdrawn immediately after He had commanded the man to go to the pool of Siloam. He did not wait until the man would return to thank Him. This reveals that the Lord finds joy in giving freely and without expecting a word of thanks or praise. When He reprimands on account of ingratitude it is intended to teach others who need to be grateful, to rejoice, and to give praise just as the angels do.

* Notice the Lord’s humility. He did not stay with those whom He healed as He did not seek to gather a reward. Neither did He want to boast nor draw the attention of the crowds<sup>28</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

B. The Dialogue between the Pharisees and the Man Born Blind

‘They brought him who formerly was blind to the Pharisees.’ [13]

We would have expected the neighbors to be looking for the Maker of the miracle in order to get acquainted with Him and enjoy being with Him. However, they laid hold of the blind man and brought him to the Pharisees and as though he had committed a crime. They led him as a guilty man who had agreed to break the Sabbath even though his eyes had been restored on that day.

The matter was greater than just presenting it to one or more priests. It had to do with the whole nation and so they brought him before the Sanhedrin. In the minds of the crowds, the Council was responsible for issuing the final verdict. Most of the council members were Pharisees and most did all they could to resist the Lord Jesus Christ. Some of the crowds had brought the blind man to the Council in order to reveal the truth, and expose to the Pharisees how this One, whom they resisted, had created eyes for the man born blind. Consequently the crowds would be attracted and adhere to Him rather than resist Him.

Some writers believe that the word ‘Pharisees’ refers to a secondary committee under the council of the Sanhedrin. This would be made up of high priests and Pharisees. The Council consisted of two committees, each included twenty three members. Each member had the right to judge a few cases. In the big cities, there were similar committees.

---

Now it was a Sabbath when Jesus made the clay and opened his eyes. [14]
Then the Pharisees also asked him again how he had received his sight.
He said to them: “He put clay on my eyes, and I washed, and I see.” [15]

The Pharisees posed the same question that his neighbors had asked. It was not intended to get the truth from its original source. Rather, they hoped to find a fault that could enable them to accuse the Lord of guilt. In this manner they would be enabled to damage His image before the crowds who had gathered around him.

Notice how the man born blind did not get agitated. He did not deny or say anything different from what he had said before. The Pharisees and the other people had brought him hoping he would reject the One who had healed him. Consequently, they were faced with disappointment due to his answers. They got to know fully well the miraculous act of the Lord. That afflicted man had beaten them in every way due to the Lord’s miracle.

St. John Chrysostom

The answers of the blind man to the Pharisees were identical to those he had given to his neighbors. However, he did not mention that the Lord had “made the clay.” This could be due to the fact that he had not seen Him make it. Even though he could have guessed, he did not want to present to an official council a testimony they could oppose. How could he see the Lord making clay when he was blind? He could have avoided mentioning it since making clay is considered work and he did not wish the Jews to accuse the Lord of breaking the Sabbath. For that same reason, the man did not use the expression “He told me....” Besides, the Lord would be accused of tempting people to break the law since He had told him to go to the pool of Siloam and wash. At the same time, he boldly said: “I washed” and he did not fear them!

Therefore, some of the Pharisees said:
“This man is not from God, because He does not keep the Sabbath.”
Others said:
“How can a man who is a sinner do such miracles?”
And there was a division among them. [16]

The creation of eyes for the blind man should have been sufficient to silence the Lord’s opponents. However, there arose a division among them: one party observed worship literally and were preoccupied with false glory, these considered that the Lord had broken the Sabbath and so had broken the divine commandments. Instead of enjoying the presence of the Lord, they persecuted Him as though He were a criminal: “This man is not from God.” The other party considered His deed to be a work of supreme love and an execution of the law. Healing, they believed, is a real sign of the Lord’s true mission. However, the second party represented a small minority that could not stand up to the angry majority.

At the end of every teaching or the performance of a miracle, there arose divisions among the crowds. The opponents would go to the Pharisees as they were the judges and possessed religious power. However, this time, the division was among the judges themselves. Maybe this led to the postponement of the judgment concerning the Lord Jesus Christ.

* St. John the Evangelist reports that “there was a division among them” as some loved authority and power so much that it prevented them from recognizing the Lord Jesus Christ, while others kept silent due to their cowardice and fear from many of the people.

St. John Chrysostom.

The Lord intentionally healed the paralytic at Bethesda on a Saturday. He commanded him to get up, carry his bed and walk (John 5:8). He also intended to heal the man born blind by making clay, and anointing his eyes. In the Book of Gemara<sup>29</sup> it says that whoever applies medicine for the eyes on a Saturday is considered sinful, and the Lord also ordered him to go to the pool of Siloam and wash. As Lightfoot mentions, the Lord Jesus Christ broke the Sabbath in a number of ways. Could he not have healed the man on any other day but Saturday and without all these actions? Why did He insist on healing on a Saturday? The Lord did so to underline the true meaning of the Sabbath, for it is intended for resting in the Lord; and in going about doing the Lord's deeds of love and mercy. He wanted to expose the misconception of the literal interpretation and observation of the law which imposed banning essential daily acts and services of love.

* Those who threw the Lord out continued to be blind. They encouraged opposing the Lord for working on the Sabbath, making clay from spit, and anointing the eyes of the blind man. When he healed the blind man with a word, the Jews opened the door to arouse oppositions....

The Lord had broken the Sabbath (literally) but He was not guilty.

What do we mean by saying: ‘The Lord had broken the Sabbath?’ He is the Light that came and ended the shadows. The Lord God is the One who instituted the Sabbath. The Lord Jesus Christ Himself was with the Father when He gave the Law. He established it as a forerunner to future events. “Therefore let no one judge you in food or in drink, or regarding a festival or a new moon or Sabbaths, which are a shadow of things to come.” (Col. 2:16)

Why do the shadows cheer us? Open your eyes, O Jews, for the “Sun” is here. “We know....” [24]. What do you know, O you who are blind at heart? “That this man is not from God because He does not keep the Sabbath” [16].

O miserable people, the Sabbath has been established by the Lord Jesus Christ whom you claim that He is not from God. You observe the Sabbath in a physical manner. You have not received the spit of the Lord on your eyes, and you have neither gone to Siloam nor washed your faces. Consequently, you persist in your blindness; you are blind to the goodness found in this blind man. He is no longer blind in body or in heart. “For judgment I have come into the world, that those who do not see may see, and that those who see may be made blind,” [39]<sup>30</sup>.

Clearly, He has observed the Sabbath for there was no sin in Him. This is a spiritual Sabbath: when a person is without sin.

Truly, my brothers, this is what God encourages us to do when He commands us to observe the Sabbath: “You shall do no customary (slave) work on it,” (Lev. 23:8). Now go back to the previous teachings and ask for the meaning of ‘servile work’ and listen to the Lord’s words: “whoever commits sin is a slave of sin,” (John 8:34)<sup>31</sup>.

St Augustine

They said to the blind man again:

“What do you say about Him because He opened your eyes?”

He said, “He is a prophet.” [19]

They threw the net before the blind man so that he would deny that the Lord Jesus Christ was the Messiah. He would be thrown out of the Sanhedrin or killed if he did otherwise.

After asking about the manner of healing, the Pharisees asked the blind man about the One who had healed him. They asked for his personal opinion in the Man and his actions. They put on pressure so that he might respond, even negatively and in the manner by which his parents had responded. They wanted him to report what he knew concerning his recovery and to leave the decision in the hands of the religious leaders who would judge the matter. However, he disappointed them as he honored the One who granted healing to him. According to a new law they had set, they issued a decree of exile against the man in order to teach a lesson to others.

This blind man was like the Samaritan woman (John 4:19). Both thought the Lord was a prophet before they became acquainted with the reality of His being the Messiah- “The Holiest of the holy” and the One who grants eternal righteousness. The light began to shine in his heart and inner vision just as it shone in his physical eyes. In hearing the man’s words: “He is a prophet”, the Pharisees feared the fulfillment of the writings in the Book of Daniel. It mentions that the One who will come from God within three centuries approximately, and while the nation is in darkness and without a prophet, will be the seal of all visions and prophecies: the eternal Messiah, whom all generations await: “Seventy weeks are determined for your people and for your holy city. To finish the transgression, to make end of sin, to make reconciliation for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to seal up vision and prophecy, and to anoint the Most holy,” (Daniel 9:24)

* Notice the wisdom of the poor man. He spoke more wisely than all the Pharisees. He first said: “He is a prophet” [17]. He did not fear the judgment of the Jews or the opposition of those against the Lord and who said: “This Man is not from God because He does not keep the Sabbath” [16], and he responded, “He is a Prophet”<sup>32</sup>.

St JohnChrysostom

C. The Dialogue between the Pharisees and the Parents of the Man Born Blind.

---

‘But the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind and received his sight, until they called the parents of him who had received his sight’,[18]

Here the word “Jews” is intended to indicate the religious authorities, especially the Pharisees and the members of the council of the Sanhedrin. These did not believe that the man was born blind. Therefore they called the parents to confirm that this was their son and that he had been born blind. They hoped to find some fault that would diminish the value of the miracle in the eyes of the people.

* Notice the many ways of darkness they used in order to conceal and demolish the miracle. But it is in the nature of truth to work in this manner: it uses the same instruments that evil uses to overcome it. Truth becomes stronger and shines through the same means that were used to blemish or destroy it<sup>33</sup>!

St John Chrysostom

And they asked them saying:
“Is this your son, who you say was born blind?
How then does he now see?”[19]

These leaders could not bear the light of truth. Therefore they posed a question that carried a kind of arrogance and threat to the parents. They were not satisfied with being evil, but also sought to implant fear among the people. They wanted them to share their renouncement of the Messiah and their rejection of divine truth.

* They did not say: ‘...who was at one time blind.’ Rather, they said: ‘...who you say was born blind.’ They almost seemed to be saying: ‘...whom you have made blind.’

St. John Chrysostom

His parents answered them and said:
“We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind” [20]

His parents were not embarrassed to admit that this was their son, who due to his poverty and blindness used to beg. As they were not eyewitnesses to his healing, they avoided answering the question concerning the manner he was healed. They also feared to be thrown out of the Temple.

“But by what means he now sees we do not know, or who opened his eyes we do not know.
He is of age, ask him.
He will speak for himself.” [21]

It is true that they were not eyewitnesses, yet they surely knew and were assured by their own son who must have told them himself that the Lord Jesus Christ is the One who had healed him. They used human wisdom and consequently lost the blessing of witnessing for the Lord Jesus Christ. They deprived themselves of offering thanksgiving and testifying the truth for the one who does miracles. They feared mankind so they laid a trap for themselves and their son. In this context, wisdom says: “The fear of man brings a snare but whoever trusts in the Lord shall be safe,” (Prov. 29:25).

---

His parents said these things because they feared the Jews, for the Jews had agreed already that if anyone confessed that He was Christ, he would be put out of the synagogue, [22].

Being thrown out of the temple meant being isolated from the worshippers. This was known as nidui and it is the lowest form of excommunication in Jewish practice. Anathema and Cheram were applied to Christians in the period following the Resurrection.

The punishment for confessing that the Lord Jesus Christ is the Messiah was banishment from the Council. Such a person was treated like someone who had denied the Jewish faith. Therefore a person who would witness for the Lord would know that he would be exposing himself to be isolated from worshippers. He would also be considered a rebel and a traitor to the religious leadership. By being banished, such a person was made to realize that he was unworthy of being related to God’s people; and prevented from enjoying the privileges of being one of the chosen people of Israel.

Consequently such banishment had dangerous results: deprivation from joining the people in public worship; being regarded as an outlaw, and consequently being deprived of engaging in commercial transactions. In fact, this would lead to the loss of one’s freedom, and the possibility of sequestering one’s possessions.

* Being banished from the temple is no longer a wicked matter, for people would expel but the Lord would receive the outcasts<sup>34</sup>.

Therefore his parents said: “He is of age; ask him” [23]

* They asked the parents three questions: Was this their son? Was he born blind? How did he come to see? They admitted to two questions only, while they had no answer to the third one. They did so for the sake of providing the truth. No one else could confess except the one who had been healed.

St. John Chrysostom

D- The Second Dialogue between the Pharisees and the Man Born Blind

So they again called the man who was blind, and said to him: “Give God the glory! We know that this Man is a sinner” [24].

They called the blind man a second time and they treated him with great respect and honor. They wanted to win him over, so they said: “Give God the glory.” In other words: ‘Swear by the name of God that you will tell the truth.’ Then they tried to dictate what they wanted him to say. They wanted him to say that the Lord pretended to be a prophet and that He had transgressed against the law. In this manner, the blind man would please them and they would honor him. Some writers find that this is a legal religious procedure since they intended to issue a very serious verdict. In other words, there was the threat of being expelled from the company of God's people, or the pronouncement of the death penalty. It is as though they made God a witness against him before banishing or condemning Him to death.

---

Probably, they intended to convey by their words the following: 'He is a wicked and sinful man. Therefore give more glory to God as He has used this Man as a tool to work through Him.'

They wanted to follow the example of Joshua when he condemned Achan to be stoned, for he asked him first: to 'give glory to the Lord God' (Joshua 7:16) and to hide nothing. He had asked him to confess because there was 'an accursed thing in Israel.'

Earlier, the Lord had loudly inquired: "Which of you convicts Me of sin?" (John 8:46). No one dared convict Him in His presence. However, behind His back they said: "We know that this Man is a sinner."

* They did not say anything to the blind man that would make him ashamed to deny that the Lord Jesus Christ had healed him. Conversely, they wished to mask their renouncement in the robe of piety by saying: "Give glory to God." Saying such words clearly indicates their arrogance.

In speaking to the blind man about the Lord and saying: "We know that this Man is a sinner", we ask them: 'How is it that you did not reprimand the Lord Jesus Christ when He said: "Which of you convicts Me of sin" (John 8:46)?! How have you found out that He is a sinner?

St. John Chrysostom

* What is the meaning of: "Give glory to God"? Renounce what you have been granted. Such behavior would not glorify God; for this would be blasphemy indeed<sup>35</sup>.

St. Augustine.

He answered and said:

"Whether He is a sinner or not I do not know.

One thing I know, that though I was blind, now I see" [25]

That poor man did not care to please the religious leaders. Nor did he want to be honored by them. In all simplicity, he told the truth. Thus he became a true witness to the person of the Lord Jesus Christ.

It is as though he was telling them that the personality of the One who had healed me is not a valid matter for contention or argument. I do not need such confrontation. His deed is beyond discussion. All I know is that I was blind, but now I see. This is my experience with Him. Or it is as though he is telling them that if you claim that He is a sinner, then this is a matter I know nothing about. What I know is my trust in Him. This makes me reject what you say altogether. Practical experience is greater and stronger than theoretical discussions. This is the living experience of believers. St. Paul accordingly says:” For you were once in darkness, but now you are light in the Lord.” (Eph 5:8)

---

They sought to transform the work of the Lord into contentions. Then the crowds would be engaged in them rather than enjoy a living fellowship with Him. However the man born blind chose to experience the new enlightened life rather than engage in stupid arguments.

* Was the blind man truly fearless? This could not be so, or how could he have said: “He is a prophet”; and then said: “Whether He is a sinner or not I do not know.”

He answered in this manner not because this was his way of thinking, or in order to convince himself. Rather, he wanted to vindicate the Lord from this accusation through his testimony of the facts and not through his own proclamations about Him. In this manner, the defense becomes strong as the good deed in itself acts as a witness against them. Therefore after a long discussion, the blind man said: “If this Man were not from God, He could do nothing” [refer to v.33]. They were angered and told him: “You were completely born in sins and are you teaching us?” If he had responded like that from the beginning, was there anything else they would not have said? Or was there anything else they would not have sought to do?

“Whether He is a sinner or not I do not know” It is as though he was saying: ‘I am not saying anything in praise of this Man. I do not proclaim anything about Him now. However, I definitely know Him and confirm that He would not have been able to do such acts if He were a sinner.’

In this manner, he removed all doubts from his own mind. He neither damaged his testimony, nor spoke with prejudice. Indeed, he presented a testimony backed by facts<sup>36</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Then they said to him again:
“What did He do to you?
How did He open your eyes?” [26]

They pursued interrogating him but used a different method in the hope of finding something contradictory to his earlier responses. They sought to find something they could hold against the Lord Jesus Christ. The reason why they asked the blind man how the Lord had opened his eyes was to discover if He had used some devilish method to open them. However, the young man became irritated by their unseemly manners and did not respond to them. He answered each question by asking another one and inquiring if they wished to become the Lord’s disciples. At the same time he considered himself to be one of the disciples.

“I told you already and you did not listen.
Why do you want to hear it again?”

---

Do you also want to become His disciples?” [27]

His response was delivered in a spirit of candidness and courage. It was a living testimony for the Lord Jesus Christ. Besides, his question to them was a watershed for they had to choose between two issues: becoming disciples of the Lord just as he himself had learned to do; or end the discussion with him since there was no point in further discussion anymore.

* What was his answer? Having overcome and disappointing them, he no longer spoke submissively to them. When it was necessary to question and discuss, he spoke cautiously in order to present the proof of his testimony. Now that he had overcome them and scored a great victory, he was encouraged to step over them<sup>37</sup>.

* Do you see how a beggar can speak courageously before the Scribes and Pharisees? That is how truth is strong and falsehood is weak. When ordinary men adhere to the truth they become glorified; whereas falsehood, even when used by the powerful, turns them to weaklings.

What he said implied the following: ‘You have not paid attention to my words. Therefore I will not continue to speak and answer anymore. You have no goal while you interrogate me; and you do not want to listen in order to get informed. Indeed, you only seek to damage my words<sup>38</sup>.’

* By asking the question: “Do you also want to become His disciples?” the man born blind aligned himself with the disciples of the Lord Jesus Christ. It is clear that by saying that, he had become a disciple of the Lord. Now he was speaking sarcastically and this annoyed them greatly. He realized how they felt and therefore pursued to hit them powerfully. He spoke words that were powerful and severe. This was the result of a courageous soul that soared in the heights and that despised their madness. It indicated the grandeur of the honor (of being the Lord’s disciple). He was very confident and he revealed that they were insulting the One who deserved admiration. However, he did not care that they were insulting him, and he regarded their reprimands as an honor to himself<sup>39</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom.

* What do these words imply: “Do you also want to become His disciples?” As for me, I have indeed become His disciple. Do you want to do the same too? Now I can see, and I see without any fear<sup>40</sup>.

St. Augustine

Then they reviled him and said:
“You are His disciple, but we are Moses’ disciples” [28]

When they could no longer resist the truth, they turned to the language of abuse. This is what anyone who adheres to the truth expects. The Lord says: “Blessed are you when they revile and persecute you, and say all kinds of evil against you falsely for my sake,” (Matt 5:11). They possessed hearts filled with hatred against the divine truth; murderous, their words were as sharp as the piercing of a sword (Prov 12:8; Psalm 55:21).

They belittled him by saying “You are His disciple.” Although the man had neither seen the Lord yet, nor heard his sermons, yet they considered him a disciple as he witnessed for Him. As for him, he was proud to be the Lord’s disciple.

They boasted of their relationship to Moses the prophet. He was their teacher and they did not need or seek another. Previously, they had boasted before the Lord that they were Abraham’s children. Now they were proud to be Moses’ disciples. However, they were estranged from Abraham’s children and Moses according to their deeds and thoughts. If they were truly Abraham’s children, they would have seen with him the day of the Lord and would have rejoiced (John 5:56). Moreover, if they were truly Moses’ disciples, they would have adhered to the Lord Jesus Christ whom Moses foresaw, rather than resist Him.

“We know that God spoke to Moses, as for this fellow, we do not know where He is from,” [29]

It is as though they were saying: ‘We are sure that Moses had a divine mission; but we have no proof that this person has been called to serve. Therefore how could we abandon Moses and follow an unknown person and stranger who is assuming to have a divine mission? They presented proof to justify their pride that Moses was their teacher and that God’s Word came to him. Yet, they did not understand that the Lord Jesus Christ was Himself the Word of God become incarnate. Moses was the faithful servant, who was entrusted with the house of his Master. However, the Lord Jesus Christ is the only Son and Owner of the house (Heb 3:5, 6) whom Moses served.

They sarcastically said: “...as for this fellow, we do not know where he is from” [29]. Indeed, they did not and could not know where He came from for they had to search the Old Testament chapters with a real intention to learn. They needed to pray to God to reveal Him to them. If they had searched they would have realized that they lived at a time in which the expected Messiah would come. However, they were like their fathers, who had lived at the time of Jeremiah the prophet who said: “Neither did they say ‘where is the Lord’...” (Jer 2:6)

* They did not say ‘We heard that God spoke to Moses’, but rather said “we know [29]. O, you Jews are you sure what you heard is true? You know this, yet you consider what you see is less trustworthy than what you hear? You have heard about one person but you have not seen him; while you have not listened to the other though you have seen Him<sup>41</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Is this how you follow the slave and turn your backs on God? In doing so, you are not following the slave since He himself leads to God<sup>42</sup>.

<sup>41</sup> Homilies on St John, 58:3

<sup>42</sup> St Augustine: On the Gospel of St John, tractate 44:12

The man answered and said to them:
“Why, this is a marvelous thing that you do not know where He is from, yet He has opened my eyes,” [30]

The blind man was astonished that the Jewish leaders considered the Lord to be a novice or foreigner to divine ministry. Indeed, He had done works that Moses the prophet had not; such as opening the eyes of someone who had been born blind. The whole city got to hear about this miracle as the blind man had sat and begged on the roadside. People from all parts of the land had seen him and were certain that this was the man who was blind in the past.

He was now there, standing and walking and witnessing to the supreme work of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The blind man was astonished that the Lord had created and opened his eyes through his care and supreme authority. Now, he was astonished that these blind leaders sat and occupied the seats of judgment yet they could not see the evident truth, although he had presented to them the following facts:

- * The Lord had opened his eyes and this was a reality and fact that could not be denied.
- * God does not listen to sinners (Ps 66:18). Yet these leaders claimed that this man was a sinner.
- * God listens to the pure that do His will.
- * In history of the world, we do not hear of anybody who has opened the eyes of a blind person. Even Moses did not perform such an act.
- * If the Lord Jesus Christ did proceed from God then he would have had no power. In this manner they had set up a trap; but they fell into it themselves.

“Now we know that God does not hear sinners; but if anyone is a worshipper of God and does His will, He hears him,” [31]

The word ‘sinners’ in this verse occurs in the Greek text as ‘hamartooloom’ to indicate atheists or unbelievers. Its antonym is ‘theosebees’ which means ‘worshipper of God.’ God does not listen to someone who is a lip worshipper and prays to be saved while through his behavior and in his heart he/she insists on adhering to evil and finds pleasure in doing it.

- * The Lord here does not only reveal that He is without sin; but that He has given God great pleasure as He does God’s will. The leaders considered themselves ‘worshippers of God’ and God fearing. Besides they claimed to do ‘His will.’ It is as though the blind man is saying: ‘It is not enough for people to know God, for they need to do His will’<sup>43</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

- * Our perception through faith enables us to see that this blind man was also blind at heart

---

because he too had sinned. We will mention in what respect he had sinned:

First: He thought the Lord was a prophet and he did not know that He was the Son of God. Therefore he answered as a sinner: "...we know that God does not hear sinners," [21].

If God does not answer sinners, then what hope do we have?

If God does not hear sinners, they why do we pray? Why do we confess all our sins and beat on our chests?

Besides, remember that tax collector who went up to the temple with a Pharisee (Luke 18:10). While the Pharisee stood boastfully before God and recounted all his personal merits; the tax collector stood in a corner, looked down, beat his chest while admitting his sins. This tax collector who had confessed his sins, left the temple vindicated and better off than the Pharisee.

Therefore God definitely hears sinners. Indeed, the person who uttered these words (verse 31) had not yet washed the face of his heart in the pool of Siloam.

The mystery had passed before his eyes, yet his heart had not been blessed by His grace.

When did that blind man wash the face of his heart? When he went to the Lord Himself after the Jews had banished him. When the Lord found him, He said to him "Do you believe in the Son of God?" And the man answered: "Who is He Lord that I may believe in Him?" Indeed, the man had seen the Lord with his eyes; but had not seen Him with his heart? No, he had not yet seen Him with his eyes. Wait and see how he would see Him....

And Jesus said to him: "You have both seen Him and it is He who is talking with you." Did the man doubt? No; he had washed his face now. The man had spoken with 'Siloam', which means 'sent'; and who is that One who has been 'sent' other than the Lord Jesus Christ?...He is Himself Siloam. The man born blind at heart drew close to Him, heard, believed, and worshipped Him. He washed his face and therefore saw<sup>44</sup>.

St. Augustine

* Similarly, in the Book of Exodus, the priests, who entered into the Lord God's presence, had to consecrate themselves so that God would not depart from them, (Ex 19:22). This also applied to those who came before the holy altar to serve: they had to have no sin or they would die (Ex 28:43)<sup>45</sup>.

Caprianus the Martyr

* We need to put these matters before us and apply them very carefully. We need to consider very seriously these matters as we anoint priests. It is important to choose only those who are upright and clean. Consequently they would be worthy to offer sacrifices to the Lord in holiness. Such ministers would be qualified to have the ear of the Lord who will hear their prayers. They would offer petitions for the peace of God's people<sup>46</sup>.

Since the beginning of all time, before the time of the fathers and prophets, we have not heard of anyone, not even Moses, who opened the eyes of a man born blind.

“If this Man were not from God, He could do nothing.”[33]

The blind man came to a correct conclusion. That is if this Man were not from God, He would not have been able to do anything. But He is the source of all goodness and no goodness can be achieved without Him.

They answered and said to him:
“You were completely born in sins, and are you teaching us?”
And they cast him out.’ [34]

It is as though they were telling him: ‘It is because of your former sins that you have received a just reward. Therefore you came into the world in a deformed condition and without eyes. You do not deserve to share in worshipping God with other believers. How is it that you take on the role of teacher to the leaders?’ They then issued the order to deprive him of sharing in worshipping God. Because they were unable to answer to his words, they used their authority to deprive and banish him.

They despised and humiliated him by saying: “You are not like other persons who were born with sin. Rather, they said: “You were completely born in sin.” You are completely corrupt. You have corruption in your soul as well as in your body. These are the signs of corruption that have left their mark on your deformed body and blindness. Besides, they probably thought that his extreme poverty and need to beg were indications of divine anger due to his sins.

They belittled his words and were surprised: how could this illiterate fool, who could not know even the light of the sun since he had never seen it, and who has been sitting and begging, now assume the place of a teacher and stand before the leaders of thought and knowledge?

Due to their pride, they rejected to learn; especially from someone of lesser rank and learning. However, a good person does not reject to learn on a daily basis, and until the last breath of life. Such a person can learn even from young children. To reject learning is foolishness itself and a form of ignorance.

As he touched their conscience, they could not tolerate him and so cast him out. Probably, they called the guards or soldiers to take him away, by force if needed.

When the learned leaders were unable to discuss, they proudly issued the order to cast him out. They threw him out but they could not isolate him from fellowship with the Lord Jesus Christ. They imagined that he was not worthy of being a member in the Jewish temple, and they did not comprehend that he was qualified to be a member in the body of the Lord Jesus Christ.

They did not realize that their judgment would fire back on them. According to them, the man was completely born in sin because he was born blind. Now he had been cleared of his blindness, and therefore the One who had healed him was also able to tear away and remove his sins. This is the work of God.

* These matters have been recorded that we may be guided by them.

The blind man and beggar, had not yet seen the Lord. He displayed courage and uprightness before being encouraged by the Lord. He stood up before all the murderers who had listened to the devil and were being driven wildly by him. They wanted to condemn the Lord by any means. But the man did not submit to them or proved cowardly. By his courageous confrontation, he silenced their mouths. He preferred to be cast out rather than betray the Truth.

How much more should we be courageous when we speak with those who accuse Christians, and when we need to silence their mouths rather than submit in weakness? Indeed, we are empowered as we have experienced faith for a longer period; we have seen hundreds of miracles performed through faith. We have received greater blessings than this blind man as our inner eyes have been opened. As a result, we have become acquainted with unspeakable mysteries and have been called to such great honor. We believe that we ought to show courage as we speak to those who attack Christians. We should be able to silence them rather than bow down in submissive weakness.

We can stand up for the truth only if we have courage, are grounded in the Holy Bible, and earnestly follow the Word while abandoning all carelessness<sup>47</sup>.

. St. John Chrysostom

* What does ‘completely’ convey in this verse? Blind to such an extent that even the eyes are blind.

However, He who opened the man’s eyes also delivered him ‘completely’: He who had brought light to his features, would also grant him resurrection and seat him on His right hand<sup>48</sup>.

* When they cast the man out, the Lord welcomed him. As much as he had been banished, he had become a Christian to the same degree<sup>49</sup>.

St. Augustine

E- The Dialogue between the Lord Jesus Christ and the Man Born Blind.

Jesus heard that they had cast him out and when He had found him, He said to him:
“Do you believe in the Son of God?” [35]

It is clear that the Lord was looking for the man and wanted to find him. He did find him when the Pharisees had thrown him out and deprived him of being a member of God’s people.

<sup>47</sup> Homilies on St John, 58:4

His parents probably had refused to welcome him to their home for fear they would have the same treatment and fate. The God of the banished and abandoned found him. He is the Father of orphans and the advocate of widows. He is the One concerned about all those who have no one to look after them.

The Lord's words: "Do you believe in the Son of God?" are synonymous with 'Do you believe in the Messiah?' These are two inseparable elements (John 1:34, 49; 10:36; Matt 16:16; Mark 1:1).

St. John Chrysostom believes that the Lord Jesus Christ granted the man the yearning for Him before revealing Himself<sup>50</sup>, because He saw the blind man's courage and love of the truth. That is applicable to everyone who seriously seeks for the truth and is fearless in confronting falsehood. Through love, truth would consequently attract such a person and then reveal himself.

* Those who undergo terrible persecutions and insults for the sake of the truth and for witnessing for the Lord and Messiah, receive special honor...

The Jews had cast him out of the temple and the Lord of the temple found him.
He was isolated from destructive companionship and he met with the Source of salvation.
He was humiliated by those who humiliated the Lord, so the Lord of hosts honored him.
That is how the Truth grants rewards.

Similarly, when we relinquish the possessions of the world, we will truly gather confidence in the world to come. If we face troubles on earth, we will find rest in heaven. If we are insulted for the sake of God, we will be honored in this life and the one to come<sup>51</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

He answered and said:

"Who is He, Lord, that I may believe in Him?" [36]

It is clear that the man had not seen the Lord until that time. However, he had heard His voice when the Lord ordered him to go and wash in the pool of Siloam. Now, he discovered that he stood before the One who had healed him and so he believed in Him.

We do not hear of any dialogue between the man born blind and the Lord before he was healed. This is different than when the Lord healed the infirm man of Bethesda. Some explain this by stating that the blind man had not yet seen or heard of the Lord due to his extreme poverty and need to beg. No one had stopped to talk with him, or told him about the Lord Jesus Christ and His amazing deeds. That is why the Lord did not ask him the same question he put to the paraplegic: "Do you want to be healed?" When the blind man was deprived of human friends and suffered for his inferior status and isolation, the Lord came to satisfy his needs and to fill his depths with Divine Love.

Some thinkers confirm that the unbelief of the man born blind was not an intentional choice. It was the result of a lack of opportunity to hear and meet with the Lord. This is why, after he had been healed and gone through the many debates around him, and after being banished, the Lord found him. Then He asked him: “Do you believe in the Son of God?”[35]. The man’s answer revealed his yearning to have faith: “Who is He, Lord, that I may believe in Him?” [36]

* The man born blind asked the Lord: “Who is He, Lord, that I may believe in Him?” because he had not yet recognized Him even though he had been healed by Him. Before he came to his Benefactor, he had been blind. That is why he did not respond and say immediately: ‘I believe.’ Instead his response came in the form of a question: “Who is He, Lord, that I may believe in Him?” These are words that come from a soul that is eagerly yearning for the Lord.

St. John Chrysostom

‘And Jesus said to him:

“You have both seen Him and it is He who is talking with you” [37].

A person does not need to travel far in order to meet with the Lord Jesus Christ for the Lord is standing by and is very close. St. Paul accordingly says: “Do not say in your heart ‘...who will ascend into heaven?’- that is to bring Christ down from above- or ‘who will descend into the abyss?’- that is to bring Christ up from the dead-. But what does it say? “The word is near you” (Roman 10:6-8).

The Lord had opened the eyes of the blind man so that he may look and see Him. If receiving his sight brought joy to the man, then seeing the Son of God brought him a far greater joy. This was a joy that surpassed the gift of gaining his physical eyes. Seeing the Son of God brought a greater joy to his heart and was more than all the lights of the world could bring. Here we are, presently, enjoying inner insight and therefore seeing the Lord and comprehending the mystery of His being the only Son of God. Truly, we can join the Psalmist in praise and say:” in your light we see light” (Ps 36:9)

Then he said:” Lord, I believe!” And he worshipped Him. [38]

By saying: “I believe”, the man conveyed: ‘I believe that you are the Messiah.’ To prove his true faith, he fell and worshipped Him. He had not seen Him before, and he had met with the religious leaders who had strongly resisted the Lord. Yet he had experienced personally how his eyes had been opened. Therefore he believed in the Lord’s divinity, worshipped Him, and glorified Him as his Savior. His inner vision was opened and he became acquainted with the divine mysteries. In contrast, it was impossible for the members of the Sanhedrin to comprehend or believe these mysteries.

The man born blind believed and confessed his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. There was no need for discussions since he experienced this amazing divine miracle and had gained spiritual insight. He believed in his heart and confessed with his tongue before the Lord, before the people, and even before those who resisted the Lord. In this manner, the rejected reed became a tree planted in the spiritual waters and filled with fruit.

‘He worshipped Him’, and so honored Him in a manner that was different from simply thanking another person. He bowed before Him in a manner worthy of worshipping God. In this way, he expressed his faith: by publicly and fearlessly witnessing; and by humbly worshipping God. John the Evangelist does not report anything more about this man after he had worshipped the Lord. Yet the words of the Lord indicate clearly that he had become perceptive, followed the light and lived accordingly.

The man born blind bowed down before the Lord and probably in the presence of the Pharisees. Therefore the Lord commented instantly before them about the fruit of His divine mission in this world. Some believe that this speech occurred in another meeting with the Pharisees and did not take place after the man had worshipped the Lord immediately.

The Lord Jesus Christ had come into the world as a Savior and not as a Judge. However, when the wicked non-believers reject His service they fall into condemnation. The Lord's divine mission has split humanity into two parties: one party admits its blindness and consequently believes and accepts the light; the other party believes that they can see already and consequently reject the faith. Rejection keeps them in the darkness while the work of the Messiah becomes a sentence condemning them. In this manner, the world is split into believers and non-believers: This is the clear line of thought in most of the Lord's speeches, which are recorded in this Gospel. His redeeming deeds or His preaching are the essence of life, while they bear the smell of death to the dead. A great light has shone over the Gentiles, granting them light and releasing them from slavery (Is 61:1); but Israel has been stricken with pride and due to its blindness has thrown itself into the circle of death.

* With his face washed and his conscience purified, the man finally recognized the Lord. He knew Him not only as the Son of Man, according to his earlier knowledge, but as the Son of God who had taken on our body. So he said, "Lord, I believe"...<sup>52</sup>

F- The Dialogue between the Lord and the Pharisees

And Jesus said:

"For judgment I have come into the world, that those who do not see may see,
and that those who see may be made blind." [39]

These were amazing moments that drew the attention of all those standing there. The crowds as well as the disciples and a few Pharisees were amazed as the man born blind bowed and worshipped the Lord Jesus Christ. He proclaimed his belief that the Lord is the Son of God. We believe that such a sight must have drawn the attention of the heavenly hosts as well as those who watched the faith of that person. He was true with himself and faced the resistance against the truth by the highest-ranking religious leaders. Such a sight brings joy to the Lord's heart because He desires everyone to enjoy the heavenly light; and not because He is in need of someone to witness for Him.

The Lord had previously proclaimed that He had not come into the world to condemn it, but had come to save it (John 3:17). By shining on those that are sitting in darkness, those enlightened by His light become a cause of condemnation to those who have loved the darkness more than the light (John 3:19). They condemn themselves because they stumble and fall into the ditch and because they are blind leaders of the blind (Matt 15:14)

---

The Gentiles who had been sitting in darkness for ages received the light of knowledge and true vision. However the Jews, who pretended to be the children of the light and the possessors of spiritual knowledge, abused God's longsuffering and mercy. They lost their redemption as they rejected it. They were stricken with spiritual blindness. The blind Gentile was able to become acquainted with the divine mysteries; while the Pharisees, who possessed knowledge, were ignorant of these mysteries. The man born blind had not read the Holy Books. He might have heard some Holy verses and stories about the history of salvation and simply and faithfully accepted the teachings. In contrast, these leaders had studied and researched these verses thoroughly and upheld some interpretations. However, they did not sincerely seek to know the truth. Therefore they were not qualified to comprehend the clear references to the Messiah.

The mystery behind their blindness lay in their arrogance and belief that they could see: they knew Moses and that they were his disciples; they knew the Sabbath and kept its laws; and they also knew that the man was completely born in sin.

* A serious warning! 'Those who do not see may see,' [39].

Great! This is the work of the Lord. It is a proclamation of the power of healing!

But what is it that you add in this verse, O Lord? 'Those who see may be made blind?' [39] These are the Jews. Do they see? According to their claim, they do see; yet according to the truth, they do not see.

So how may they see? They imagined that they did. So they believed and imagined that they were protecting the law against the Lord Jesus Christ...those who did not admit their ignorance, became more hardened. Truly, the verse says: 'Those who see may be made blind.' Indeed, those defenders of the law, the professors and teachers of the law and its interpreters crucified the Founder of the law.

O what blindness took hold of a part of Israel (Rom 11:25). What do these words mean: 'Those who do not see may see'? 'Until the fullness of the Gentiles has come in', (Rom 11:25). The whole world has fallen into blindness, but the Lord has come 'that those who do not see may see and that those who see may be made blind'...

What serious blindness? They killed the light, but the crucified light has enlightened the blind<sup>53</sup>!

* Now is the daytime to make the distinction between the light and the darkness!<sup>54</sup>

* You have received the law, you want to keep it, yet you are unable to do so for you have fallen due to your pride and you see your weakness. Yearn for the Messiah, confess to him and believe. The spirit has been added to the letter of the law and by this you can be saved. If you tear away the spirit from the letter ‘the letter kills.’ If it is killed, then where is hope? As for the spirit, he gives life (2 Cor 3:6)

St. Augustine

St. Augustine makes a comparison between the letter and the spirit. The stick that Elijah gave to his servant Hegazi, when the widow’s son was dead, did not revive the dead except when Elijah himself came. The same applies to benefits of the law that we have received from God. We need God Himself to be present so that we may enjoy the power of the Resurrection<sup>55</sup>.

Then some of the Pharisees who were with Him heard these words, and said to Him:

“Are we blind also?”[40]

The Pharisees realized that the Lord was speaking about spiritual blindness. They therefore asked Him if He was directing his words at them. Their question was the result of their arrogant souls that could not enjoy the blessings of the grace of God.

They were preoccupied with their honor before the people. They wanted to appear as the ones who possessed knowledge and who occupied the academic seats. They considered the accusation of blindness- which was the result of their unwillingness to learn- to be a deadly stroke. They revealed their inner blindness through their words ‘Are we blind also?’ They revealed what lay in their depths as they considered all the people to be blind. That the Lord would include them among the blind people was something that had not occurred to them. They considered that He had humiliated them and committed an unforgivable mistake. They were not accustomed to hear any criticism from any one.

* The words of the Pharisees to the Lord: “...are we blind also” echo their words in another verse: “... we are Abraham’s descendants and have never been in bondage to anyone. We were not born in fornication” (John 8:33-41). This was similar to the response here.

Chrysostom.

Jesus said to them:

“If you were blind, you would have no sin;

but now you say “We see” therefore your sin remains.” [41]

Had they admitted their ignorance, they would not have fallen into condemnation. However, their mouths testified against them since they claimed they had vision, were able to comprehend the truth, and could distinguish it from falsehood. They claimed to have vision, saw divine truth, and understood the law and the prophets. Consequently, they isolated themselves and their sin remained.

Inspired by Chapter 9

O Lord, Grant Me Inner Vision!

- * Your eyes behold me lovingly, as to someone born blind!
We have inherited a blind vision from our father Abraham;
Therefore we no longer enjoy the beauty of your brilliance!
- * There are many, even among those who surround you, who condemn me!
But because of your love, you pray for the healing of my heart and its vision.
You are the day that does not cease to work; you are the light that dissipates the darkness within me!
May you shine upon me so that I may become the child of the day.
May my eyes never experience sun set O Sun of Righteousness!
- * You are the Creator and you have formed me from the earth with mud.
You grant vision to my eyes.
Through your word, I come to you, for you are 'Siloam' the 'Sent' from the Father.
I wash in your blood, consequently my vision is enlightened.
I see the gates of heaven opened and welcoming me!
- * My soul is heavy from constant discussions with friend and stranger.
There are no more places in my heart for more words.
Your deeds are fully appeasing and witness to your divine power,
Your practical love silences rebellious tongues!
Your light shines within me, it cannot be overcome by the powers of darkness.
- * With the man born blind, I do not fear expulsion
When all reject me, you appear to me,
When I am cast out
I find you bearing the Cross outside the gates.
You are the God of the banished and the rejected.
- * May they all be engaged in lengthy talks,
But I will bow and worship before you,
And enjoy the fellowship of your brilliance and the everlasting gladness of Your heavens!

The Good Shepherd

The Lord's discourse on the good shepherd takes place after the healing of the man born blind. The Lord reveals the clear difference between the shepherd who cares for his sheep and the hired servants. In other words, He indicates the difference between the Lord Jesus Christ who yearns to deliver mankind and the Pharisees who are preoccupied with their personal honor, authority and profit.

In the previous chapter, the Lord reveals how much He wishes to grant to every soul the gift of vision thus enabling it to become acquainted with the truth. And what is the truth other than comprehending that He incarnates the Word of God, and is the good Shepherd who sacrifices Himself for the sake of His sheep? This chapter is considered as the extension of the Lord's discourse with the Pharisees. The Pharisees had displayed at the end of the previous chapter great hostility towards the Lord. They opposed Him as they considered that they were the teachers and shepherds of God's church. Hence there was no place for the One who had broken the law among them. They demanded the people not to follow Him because He had not been sent by God. The discourse in this chapter reveals those groups: The real shepherds, the hired servants, and the thieves that hide under the guise of shepherds.

The Lord Jesus Christ Satisfies All Our Needs

The Jews who believed in the Lord Jesus Christ were banished from the Sanhedrin. They no longer had any right to enter the temple, to participate in Jewish worship, or practice the rites pertaining to purification and feasts, etc.... Therefore this Gospel intends to proclaim that the Lord Jesus Christ satisfies all the needs of those cast outside the temple. In Him, they can fulfill all their needs, for He has come to replace the authority of all Jewish institutions and the privileges attached to them. He does so in a supremely divine manner.

John 1: The Jews take pride in Moses, the recipient of the law. As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He is the Word, who is with the Father and One with Him: He grants grace upon grace.

John 2: The Jews take pride in the rites of purification according to the law. As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He transforms the waters of purification into a new and unique wine.

John 5: The Jews boast of literally observing the Sabbath. As for Jesus Christ, He proclaimed that the true Sabbath is observed when He does the work of God the Father, (John 5:16-18).

John 6: The Jews boast that their fathers ate the heavenly manna in the wilderness. As for the Lord Jesus Christ, He is the real Passover, the heavenly manna who saves mankind from the waters (He walked on the water in the same manner as when He crossed the Red Sea with His people).

John 7-8: On the Feast of the Tabernacles, He offered Himself as the living water and the true light.

John 10: Instead of the Feast of Dedication, He offered Himself since the Father had consecrated Him to bring salvation to the world.

The Evangelist presents this eighth discourse by the Lord Jesus Christ as He focuses on His sacrificial care. It comes right after the healing of the man born blind who had then been banished from the Sanhedrin. The real disciple of the Lord Jesus Christ is banished from the Jewish fold or from the literal slavery to the law. Therefore he enjoys membership in the Lord's fold (because his eyes have been opened to behold the mysteries of the kingdom).

1- The Good Shepherd

In this parable the Jewish nation appears as a fold of sheep, [1]. The Lord Jesus Christ is the good Shepherd who comes through the door designed for that purpose (through the door of the prophecies) and to care for the sheep. The Holy Spirit opens the door to Him and the real fold responds to Him. He heals their eyes and they behold the Shepherd. He leads the fold away from the literal law [3], from apostasy, and from unbelief. At the same time, those who adhere to the literal interpretation of the law reject Him, [4, and 5].

In this parable, we distinguish the following:

- A. The Lord Jesus Christ, and not the law, is the door to the fold. He is the new Door [7].
- B. All the literally minded Jewish leaders who reject the Lord are thieves, [8].
- C. The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Savior who sacrifices himself, [9, and 10].
- D. The Lord is a sacrifice of love and dies on behalf of His fold, [11-15].

The good Shepherd has another fold that consists of the Gentiles. These will be embraced with the Jewish believers and the Lord will gather and form them all into one fold, which is the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ (1 Cor 12:13; Eph 4:4-6).

E. This one fold will interact with the unique sacrifice and voluntary death of the Lord Jesus Christ. Lack of faith results in failure: failure to offer anything other than confusion and wicked blasphemy.

“Most assuredly, I say to you,
he who does not enter the sheepfold by the door, but climbs up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber,” [1]

The sheep enter the sheepfold at night. Usually this is built close to the shepherd's house. The sheepfold has one door and it is watched by the guard. Therefore anyone who intends to steal has to creep in by jumping over the wall of the sheepfold.

The Lord Jesus Christ describes Himself as the shepherd who cares for his sheep. The Church in this world is like a pasture that embraces within it the sheep scattered abroad (John 11:52). Within the Church, the sheep are united as one holy fold that is guarded by the holy shepherd. Because of His care, He becomes as a fiery wall protecting them (Zech 2:5). The use of the fold as a symbol for the Church is relevant as the sheep bear the features of meekness, calmness, and submissiveness as they come into the shepherd's embrace. They also adhere to one another.

The Lord Jesus Christ presents this analogy because sheep, characteristically, are unable to defend themselves against any attack. They depend fully on the care and vigilance of their shepherd. They also depend on getting their food and drink from the shepherd who leads them. Even in countries that enjoy heavy rainfall, sheep need someone to lead them for long periods to the drinking spots. They do not search on their own. Besides, they do not begin to enter into the sheepfold, even if they are pursued by danger and threatened by savage beasts, unless the shepherd leads with one or two other sheep and enters through the door. Then the rest would follow behind him or behind these sheep.

* Dear holy brothers and sisters, we could meet any of these three personalities and we need to determine which are the ones whom we love, the ones we ought to tolerate, and those we should be cautious of. Indeed, the shepherd is to be loved, the hired slave is to be tolerated, and the thief is to be watched and not trusted.<sup>1</sup>

* Note the characteristics of the thief: first, he enters unannounced. Second, he does not enter according to the Holy Books, for this does not interest him, “He does not enter the sheepfold by the door”, [1]. Here, the reference is to those who came before and to those who will come after Him: the anti-Christ and the pretentious Messiahs, such as Theudas and Judas (Acts 5:36) and those like them.

The word ‘door’ in the Lord's words “(those) who do not enter the sheepfold by the door” refers to the Holy Books. These are the doors that bring us to God. His Word opens to us the way to be acquainted with God, protecting us and preventing wolves to enter in. As a door, the entrance is shut in the face of newsmongers and maintains us from their deceptions. Indeed, we are embraced so that we do not get deceived. Through the holy Word we get to know the shepherd, and recognize those who are not. That explains why the Lord told the Jews: “you search the Scriptures, for in them you think you have eternal life; these are they which testify of Me” (John 5:39). This indicates that Moses and all the prophets are witnesses; and the Lord adds: “All those who listen to the prophets come to Me” and “if you believed in Moses, you would believe Me.”..He clearly uses the word ‘climbs’ (goes up) rather than the word ‘enters’ since climbing is the act of a thief who intends to jump over the wall. A thief does so even though it exposes him to danger.<sup>2</sup>

* They proclaimed that they were not blind. In spite of that, they could really have possessed sight only if they had become part of the Lord's fold.

How could they claim to see the light whereas they acted as thieves who oppose the light? It is due to their falsehood, pride and excessive haughtiness. That is why the Lord speaks these words. We too are intended to receive valuable lessons from this discourse as we keep the Lord's words in our hearts and think about them. In the daily stream of life, there are many who are generally perceived as righteous good men, women, and innocent people. Those who keep the commandments, honor their parents, refrain from adultery, do not kill or steal, do not witness wrongly against anyone, and obey all the other requirements of the law. Yet these are not Christians and they arrogantly ask: "Are we blind also?"...

They work with no goal in mind, and they do not enter from the door leading to the sheepfold.

The atheists might say: 'We live uprightly.'

Yet, if they do not enter through the door, what good intentions are they displaying and how could they be so arrogant?...

No one can hope to have a good life if he lacks knowledge of life, that is if we do not know the Lord Jesus Christ and if we do not enter the sheepfold through the door!<sup>3</sup>

* There are philosophers who present excellent discourses on virtues and failings. They distinguish between them and provide their definitions. They conclude by presenting a logical and accurate chain. They fill up books and protect their wisdom by giving long talks. They boldly ask people to follow them and to join their team if they wanted to live happily. However, they do not enter through the door. Such people intend to destroy, kill and murder<sup>4</sup>.

* Can a Pharisee utter anything righteous?

The Pharisee is a thorn, so how can we harvest grapes out of a thorn (Matt 7:16; 12:33).

O Lord, that is why You have said: "Therefore whatever they tell you to observe, that observe and do, but do not do according to their works (Matt 23:3).

Do you order me to gather grapes out of thorns when you tell me: "Do they reap grapes from thorns?" The Lord answers you and says: "I do not order you to gather grapes from thorns, but to look and notice well, for often when the grapes hang above the ground they could be entangled with the thorns." My brethren, sometimes we find a vine that has been planted but is surrounded with thorns, and so its branches become entangled with them. The one who wishes to gather grapes does not gather it from the thorns but from the vine that is entangled with them.

In the same manner, the Pharisees were full of thorns. Yet because they occupied the seat of Moses they were surrounded by the vine and the grapes. These are the good words and commandments hanging from them. May you gather grapes without being pricked by the thorns? When you read “Whatever they tell you to observe, that observe and do, but do not do according to their works”, be careful for if you do what they do, then know that you will be pricked by the thorns. Therefore in order to reap grapes without getting hurt by the thorns, “... observe and do what they say, but do not do according to their works.”

Their acts were the thorns and their words were the grapes. Yet, the source of the grapes is the vine, which is the seat of Moses<sup>5</sup>!

* My conscience is not at ease on account of your praise, for how can you praise what you cannot see?

Yes, may God Almighty, who sees, praise me. Yes, May God mend whatever He finds in me that is displeasing in His sight.

I do not claim to be wholly perfect. I beat upon my chest and pray God: “Have mercy and let me not sin.” I believe that I speak in His presence and pray for your salvation. I ask nothing of you. I constantly rebuke the faults and sins of my brethren; I bear difficulties; my mind torments me; and I constantly reproach but I encourage them as well. All those who remember my words are witnesses that I rebuke those who commit sin without causing any distress<sup>6</sup>.

St. Augustine

“But he who enters by the door
Is the shepherd of My sheep.” [2]

The shepherd of the sheep is the owner of the sheep. He cares for each one of them and brings them into the sheepfold through the door because he possesses authority. He enters inside to help them all: “I will feed My flock and I will make them to lie down,” says the Lord God. “I will seek what was lost and bring back what was driven away, bind up the broken and strengthen what was sick; but I will destroy the fat and the strong and feed them in Judgment” ( Ez 34:15-16).

“To him the doorkeeper opens
And the sheep hear his voice
And he calls his own sheep by name and leads them out.” [3]

* We do not commit a big mistake when we assume that Moses is the doorkeeper for he was entrusted with keeping the teachings of God<sup>7</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* May we not be confused in understanding His words, my brethren. He does carry the symbols of both the door and the doorkeeper. For what does the door indicate? It is the way to enter in. And what does the doorkeeper represent? He is the one who opens the door. Therefore who is the One who opens it other than He Himself in order to be revealed and seen?<sup>8</sup>

<sup>8</sup> St Augustine: On the Gospel of St John, tractate 46: 4

St. Augustine.

“And when he brings out his own sheep, he goes before them
And the sheep follow him, for they know his voice.” [4]

The good Shepherd does not send his sheep into a field where there are no wolves. Indeed, He stresses that He sends them ‘in the midst of wolves’ (Matt 10:16). Therefore, He goes before them so that if the wolves attack they would be attacking Him; and He would transform them into gentle sheep. The Lord has gone before His sheep to the pasture of the Cross and of sufferings so that the sheep would not fear the road leading to Golgotha. Therefore, they will not fear death and for as long as they are in the company of the Crucified Lord.

* The shepherds would be doing the opposite of that if they were to walk at the back of their flock. However, the Lord indicates in this passage that He is the One who leads His followers to the truth.

St. John Chrysostom

“Yet they will by no means follow a stranger,
But will flee from him,
For they do not know the voice of strangers.” [5]

The sheep, who are unreasoning creatures, know their owner and adhere to him. Because they do not know the voice of strangers, they flee from them. Accordingly, the Bible says: “The Ox knows its owner” (Is 1:3)

Jesus used this illustration,
But they did not understand the things which He spoke to them. [6]

St. John Chrysostom comments that the Lord used this verse to indicate the distinction between Himself and the false Messiahs. He attempted to clarify this in every possible way.

First: His teachings from the Holy Books testify to Him. Conversely, false Messiahs attracted people away from God’s word.

Second: The sheep obey Him, as they believe in Him. They did so, not only when He walked on earth, but also after His death and ascension into the heavens. Conversely, false Messiahs are forsaken by the sheep. This is what happened to Thaeudas and Judas: their followers ‘were scattered’ (Acts 5:36).

Third: False leaders act like rebels and they cause upheavals. Conversely, when they sought to crown the Lord as king, He disappeared from among them. They then asked Him if it was right to pay taxes to Caesar. He ordered them to pay and He Himself paid taxes (Matt 22:17).

Fourth: The Lord Jesus Christ came to save the sheep, grant them life, and so ‘may have it abundantly’ [10]. In contrast, false teachers deprive the sheep from enjoying even this temporal life; for they flee to save themselves in times of danger.

The Jews did not understand the implications of the Lord’s parable. They neither understood that He is the good Shepherd, nor that the hired servants were those who seek their personal profit rather than that of the sheep. Besides, the thieves are those who seek personal honor even if that results in the death of the flock.

The Pharisees were unable to understand the Lord's words. They were the ones who claimed to be the teachers of the people. They claimed they possessed knowledge and did not need to learn anything. They held in their hands the Word of God, yet they misinterpreted it due to the hardness of their hearts and the blindness of their inner vision.

Then Jesus said to them again,
“Most assuredly, I say to you, I am the door of the sheep” [7]

The Lord is the door of the pasture, the door of the Church. He closes the door not with the intention of imprisoning the sheep, but with the intention of protecting them from wolves, thieves and so that they may not perish. He is the wisdom, the power and the righteousness. He who enters through the door enters into the Lord's embrace and enjoys all these gifts. He is the door that is closed to wolves; yet He is the door of love that is open to allow the sheep to enter and go out to meet with Him in the fellowship of brotherly love. That is why the Lord calls Himself 'the door of the sheep.' A wolf cannot pass through Him (the door) unless he becomes transformed into a real lamb.

He is the royal and divine Door that allows us to enter before the divine throne and enjoy the heavenly life.

It is astonishing that the Shepherd was treated as a thief. They came to Him carrying swords and clubs in order to capture Him (Matt 26:55). They did so because He had not entered through those thieves and hungry wolves and He had not taken their permission before ministering to the people. Instead of being His disciples and following in the way of the spirit, they expected Him to be their disciple. They expected Him to follow their spirit, which opposed divine truth and real shepherding love.

When the Lord leads us to the Father, He calls Himself 'the door.' When He watches over us, He calls Himself 'the Shepherd.' So that we might not think that His sole mission is to bring us to the Father, He calls Himself 'the Shepherd'<sup>9</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* The Lord Jesus Christ is everything: all the names are appropriate: He is everything that He proclaims<sup>10</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

* To those who need joy, He becomes a vine. To those who need to enter, He stands as a Door<sup>11</sup>.
St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* He Himself is the door. Let us come and get acquainted with Him. Let us enter and rejoice that we are truly in Him<sup>12</sup>.

* The prophets came before Him: so were they thieves and burglars? God forbid. They did not come as distinct beings from Him for they came with Him. When He came, He sent missionaries yet He occupied their hearts. Do you wish to know how they came with Him who is ever present? Surely He became incarnated in the fullness of time, but what does 'ever present' mean? 'In the beginning was the Word' (John 1:1). Those who carried the Word of God came with Him. The Lord said: "I am the way, the truth and the life" (John 14:6). Since He is the truth, then those who came with Him are truthful. However, there are many who by separating themselves from Him are thieves and burglars. In others words, they came to steal and destroy!<sup>13</sup>

* '...But the sheep did not hear them': this is a point of great importance. Before the Lord came to earth, for He humbly came in the flesh, righteous people heard Him and believed that he would come in exactly the same manner by which He came to us.

Times change yet faith does not...there are changing times, yet there is one Door to true faith. That Door is the Lord Jesus Christ, and we see both past and all present believers entering through Him....

The apostle says: "... and all drank the same spiritual drink. For they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: that Rock was Christ" (1 Cor 10:4). Notice how the faith remained unchanged, but the signs have changed. In the past, the Rock was Christ, whereas for us Christ is on God's altar... many believed in the past - Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, all the other patriarchs and prophets- all these prophesied concerning the Messiah. These are the sheep that heard the Lord. They heard only the Lord's voice and not that of anyone else<sup>14</sup>.

St. Augustine

"All who ever came before me are thieves and robbers,
But the sheep did hear them" [8]

*The Lord here is not speaking about the prophets as the heretics claim. Many who had believed in the Messiah had listened to the prophets and were convinced by them. The Lord is speaking here about Thaeudas and Judas as well as others who incited rebellion. It may seem as though the Lord was praising the fact that "The sheep did not hear them" [8]. Yet nowhere do we hear the Lord praising those who did not listen to the prophets. On the contrary, He reproaches and severely condemns them. He says, "The sheep did not hear them" as He is referring to the trouble making leaders<sup>15</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

If anyone enters by Me, he will be saved and will go in and out and find pasture.'

<sup>14</sup> St Augustine: On the Gospel of St John, tractate 45:9

He who enters the pasture through the Lord, the divine Door, not only escapes from thieves and burglars, but also enjoys real liberty. He enters and leaves with full freedom. He enters into the Father's embrace to enjoy His divine fatherhood. He leaves to go into the world in the company of the incarnate Son in order to witness to the divine love, and to attract many others to the divine pasture. He redeems and guides many, through the Spirit, to God who is their salvation. Consequently, He rejoices and is glad with them; and all become filled from the pasture of love: they enjoy the promise of glory and look forward to the day of the Lord. They will have fellowship in the glory of God for they have been saved from the teeth of the lion. They will consequently live in supreme happiness.

The sheep enter through the door and find themselves in the Lord's embrace and feel they are in their Father's house. These are neither strange nor evil sheep. These are the owners of the house who move in complete freedom. When they come in they settle down as though in their father's home. They are able to move about freely and when they come in they settle down as they would in their own homes. In fact, they would have gone out to work for a while, yet only to return and rest!

* The Lord explains that "...the sheep find safety and security. He uses the word 'pasture' to indicate his care, His provision of food and His power and authority over them. The sheep remain inside the sheepfold and no one can cast them out. This is what happened to the disciples for they entered and went out and became leaders to the whole world. We find that no one could cast them out<sup>16</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

He is not just 'a way' among many other ways; the Lord is the only way that leads us to the embrace of the Father. In this sense He is the Door and we cannot enter into heaven through any door other than through Him: He is the only Door.

* Let us elevate our thoughts above those of the Jews. They admit in their teaching that there is one God. Yet what does this mean when they deny Him and they worship idols? They also reject God as being the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. In this way, they contradict their prophets who confirm this in the Holy Books. The holy Word says: "The Lord has said to Me "you are My Son: Today I have begotten you" (Ps 2:7).

Until today, the Jews collectively set themselves against the Lord and against His anointed (Ps 2:2). They believe they can have the Father as their friend while they separate and neglect to worship the Son. They disregard the principle that no one comes to the Father except through the Son who says "I am the way..." (John 10:9; 14:6)

Therefore how can the person who rejects the door that leads to the Father and denies the door qualify to enter in the presence of God (the Father)? They contradict the words of Psalm 88 which say: 'He shall cry to Me 'You are My Father, My God and the Rock of My salvation.' Also 'I will make him My first born, the highest of the kings of the earth', (Ps 89:26, 27)

St Cyril of Jerusalem

* Truly, we believe that we enter into the sheepfold when we become engaged in training our inner thoughts; and we go out when we get engaged in work outside it. The apostle accordingly states that the Lord enters into our hearts through faith (Eph 3:17).

We enter into the Lord means that we submit ourselves to that good faith and wisdom; and with that same faith we go out with the Lord and work with others in the world. The Psalmist says: 'Man goes out to his work...' (Ps 104:23); the Lord Himself says: "Let your light so shine before men" (Matt 5:16). We believe that the Lord implies that the faithful would lead a blessed life inside the sheepfold as well as an even more blessed life outside... since no one can go out through the door- that is through the Lord Jesus Christ and go towards that eternal life which lies ahead - unless he enters the church through that same door or that same Lord Jesus Christ. This is where his flock lives in this temporary life, which is endured through faith<sup>17</sup>.

* "...and find pasture" refers to both situations: inside and outside: the faithful will find true pasture as He satisfies those who hunger and thirst for righteousness. This pasture can be found through the One who said: "Today you will be with Me in Paradise" (Luke 23:43)<sup>18</sup>.

St. Augustine

* The faithful sheep enter to find faith; and progress from faith towards vision. They move from belief to meditation and find pasture (food) to eternal nourishment.

His flock will find pasture because everyone who follows Him with a pure and innocent heart will be refreshed with eternal food.

What do the pastures of these flocks indicate other than the eternal joys of Paradise, which are constantly green?

The pastures where the chosen ones feed are found in the presence of God Himself. When we see Him, our hearts are filled with the food of life to the end.

Those who avoid and escape from the traps of temporary pleasures rejoice in these pastures of eternal perfection. There, the Heavenly hosts sing praise and there the faithful join the heavenly dwellers<sup>19</sup>.

St. Gregory the Elder

"The thief does not come except to steal and to kill and to destroy.
come that they may have life,
may have it more abundantly." [10]

I have
And that they

Deceitful shepherds are the thieves. They do not enter through the door of love but with a deceitful spirit and with wicked intentions. By their deceit, they kill and destroy souls. Whereas, the shepherd offers a better life; the thief is engaged in the killing and murdering of souls. Entering stealthily into the sheepfold causes death; whereas the coming of the good Shepherd, the incarnate Word, grants eternal life.

The Shepherd has come to His flock in this world in order to redeem, sanctify, and glorify them. He does so to restore to them the life they have lost. They will not return to the condition they were in before sin; for they will find the richness of eternal life, which is invincible by death. That is why the Lord says: “more abundantly.”

* If you asked ‘Tell me, what could be better than life?’ Our answer would be: ‘The heavenly kingdom.’ However, the Lord until that point in time had not used these words but repeatedly used the word ‘life’ since it was the clearest thing known to His hearers<sup>20</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* “I have come that they may have life”: That is the faith that works through love (Gal 5:6). “And that they may have it more abundantly”: refers to those who patiently endure to the end. They will then go out through that same door: that is through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. As true believers they will die and attain a better life when go to the place where the Shepherd abides and where they will die no more<sup>21</sup>.

* If we consider the world as a great home, then we perceive the heavens as a dome and the earth as a road or passage. The Lord wishes to save us from earthly matters and so say with the apostle: “we are citizens of heaven.” Adherence to earthly matters results in the death of the soul. This is contrary to the life for which we pray and say: “Let me live”!

St. Augustine

“I am the good Shepherd.

The good shepherd gives his life for the sheep.” [11]

The prophets of the Old Testament foresaw the Lord Jesus Christ as the good Shepherd (Is 40:11; Ez 34:23; 37:24; Zech 13:7). The disciples experienced Him as the bishop of our souls (1 Peter 2:25), as the Chief of the Shepherds (1 Peter 5:4), and as the Great Shepherd (Heb 13:20).

That explains why the title of ‘the Good Shepherd’ holds a special attractive power for Christians throughout all generations. Even to those who have not seen shepherds in their lives, yet they feel the warmth of His shepherding and care. Just as the flock of sheep cannot face life without its shepherd, so do Christians feel when they face wickedness and the evil world: they look to the divine Shepherd who protect them from evil, satisfies their needs, and leads them to the pastures of Paradise.

By saying “I Am...” the Lord is using the theological language. “I am Jehovah” for He is the only and unique divine Shepherd.

The Greek word for ‘good’ is ‘kalas’ and it differs from other Greek words that are also translated as ‘good.’ For example, ‘good’ is also used to translate these Greek words: ‘agathos’ which indicates an inner staircase; ‘dikaïos’ which indicates an upright person. However, the word ‘kolas’- according to Abbot Smith’s Lexicon- indicates a goodness that has a special form as it is combined with beauty. E.V. Rieu has translated the expression: ‘I am the good Shepherd’ into ‘I am the beautiful Shepherd.’ In any case, the expression ‘the good shepherd’ is an endearing one, for it conveys a goodness that appeals to the flock. Besides feeling the goodness of the Lord’s care, the flock also enjoys His attractive presence or their attraction to Him<sup>22</sup>.

---

The care of ‘the good Shepherd’ is unique in quality. It involves not only good care, as the Shepherd is preoccupied with His sheep. It is as though He has nothing else to do in heaven and on earth but to care for them. He not only cares for each soul and especially the one that is gone astray; but He does what is even greater for ‘He gives His life for the sheep.’

In the region of Palestine, the shepherds were endangered because of thieves and savage animals. David was faced by a lion and a bear when he was young and watching over his sheep (1 Sam 17:34-36). Amos, the prophet, tells us about the shepherd who saved two legs or a piece of ear from the lion’s mouth (Amos 3:12). At the time of the early fathers, we hear Jacob telling his uncle: “...that which was torn by the beast I did not bring to you: I bore the loss of it. You required it from my hand, whether stolen by day or stolen by night” (Gen 31:39). That reveals how the work of shepherding involves dangers. However, we never hear of a shepherd who willingly goes to his death for the sake of his flock. It is true that he would be exposed to death but it is for his personal benefit, and as the owner of the sheep rather than for the sake of his flock. In contrast, the good Shepherd willingly and happily faced death to save each lamb of his flock.

The good Shepherd sacrificed Himself in order to offer to us His precious Blood. With that Blood, we may wash our souls and get cleaned of all sins as well as drink it as the mystery of eternal life. The amazing thing is that the Shepherd grants His faithful servants the joy of serving and therefore to spend and be spent (2 Cor 12:15). They do so for the sake of the people and in just the same manner endured by the apostle St Paul.

The Analogy between the Lord Jesus Christ and the Shepherd

The Lord did not choose randomly the figure of the Shepherd as an analogy for Himself, for this carries important meanings:

First: The shepherd wears cheap clothes when he watches over his sheep even though he may own the flock and however big it is. He does so because he often sits on the ground and his sheep surround him. He also carries in his hands the wounded or unsteady ones, which might be covered with dirt. Similarly, the incarnate divine Word came to share our earth, carry us in His hands. Moreover, He acted as a substitute for us and bore our sins in order to atone for them.

Second: To watch over his flock, the shepherd walks before his sheep so that they would follow him. Similarly, our Savior opened the way to heaven by passing through the cross. He did so in order to enable us to share in His sufferings and consequently enjoy fellowship in His glory.

Third: The shepherd often holds a shepherd's cane which is shaped as a U at the top. This is intended to lift a lamb if it falls into a hole. Similarly, the Lord holds His Cross, which symbolizes every manner of divine tenderness, and which also indicates the severity and punishment necessary for our constant progress.

Fourth: A shepherd often seeks the shade at noontime and sits and plays on his flute while the sheep gather around him. One of the features of the shepherd is his joy amid the troubles and heat of temptations. Similarly, we find in our Shepherd the source of real joy.

Fifth: The shepherd is intensely concerned about one lost sheep more than the remaining ninety-nine. He does not rest until he brings it back to the fold (Matt 18:12-14; Luke 15:3-7).

* 'I am the good Shepherd': the Lord speaks here about suffering and underlines that it brings salvation to the world. He was not obliged to come; therefore He presents the model of the shepherd and the hired servant once more<sup>23</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom.

* The Lord speaks of Himself as the 'Shepherd.' He also says that He is the 'Door.' Both are mentioned in the same place: "I am the Door" and "I am the good Shepherd." At the head, He is the door and in the body [7, 11]... He is the Shepherd...the one who enters through the door is the Shepherd; whereas the one who goes through another way is a thief and burglar who misguides, scatters, and destroys. Who is the one who enters through the door? He is the one who enters through the Lord Jesus Christ. Who is that one? He is that person who emulates the Lord's sufferings...<sup>24</sup>

* Were the (apostles) shepherds? They definitely were shepherds. So how can there be one shepherd? As we have stated earlier, they were shepherds as they were members of the Shepherd. The rejoiced in that Head and under His Head, they enjoyed full harmony together. They lived with one Spirit and in unity with one Body. Therefore they all belonged as members of that one Shepherd<sup>25</sup>.

*What is the meaning, therefore, of presenting the only good Shepherd to the good shepherds, other than teaching the concept of unity in the good Shepherd? The Lord has clarified this meaning throughout His service. Here we remind you, our beloved ones, of the Gospel words: "Listen to what I present of you: I have told you "I am the good Shepherd" because all the others- the good shepherds- are My members." One Head, one Body, one Savior. This applies to everyone who embraces the shepherds, and the shepherds of the Shepherd, and the flock under their care.

This is exactly what the apostle says in 1 Cor. 12:12: "For as the body is one and has many members, but all the members of that one body, being many, are one body, so also is Christ." Therefore, this is all about the Lord Jesus Christ: for a good cause, He embraces within Himself all the good shepherds. They constitute the One who says: “I am the good Shepherd.’ I alone and all the others with Me are united together.

He who shepherds without Me, shepherds against Me: “He who does not gather with Me scatters abroad” (Matt 12:30). Let us hear how this unity has brought greater strength, for He says: “And other sheep I have which are not of this fold”, [16]<sup>26</sup>.

* We ask and implore you, in the name of His saints, to love the Church as in a marital relationship. Love the good Shepherd for the Bride is most beautiful. She never deceives anyone and does not seek to destroy anyone. Also pray for the scattered sheep: that they may come and get to know Him; that they may love Him and become one flock under one Shepherd<sup>27</sup>.

St. Augustine

* How could I not love you who have loved me so greatly? Although I am black, you have laid down your life for the sake of your sheep (John 15:13). You are their Shepherd.

No one has greater love than this; for you have sacrificed your life to grant me salvation.

Tell me, then, where is your pasture? When I find the pasture of your salvation, I will be filled with the heavenly food. Without this no one can attain eternal life. When I run to you, O Divine Source, I will drink for you have made it to overflow in order to water and refresh all who come to you.

Upon striking your side with the sword, water and blood gushed out immediately (John 19:34). Whoever drinks from it becomes a source of living water springing up into eternal life (John 4:14).

As you shepherd me, I will rest peacefully during noontime and in the light where there is no shade. There is no shade at noon for me as the sun sends its rays straight downwards. Yet you will make the light of noontime a comfort to those you feed and you will gather your children in your bed (Luke 11:7).

No one deserves to rest at noontime except the Son of light and day (1 Thes. 5:5). The person, who has separated himself from the darkness of the night until the dawn, will rest at noontime with the Son of righteousness (Matt 4:2)<sup>28</sup>.

also exposed to thieves who capture the sheep to offer them as sacrifices to the enemy of goodness; or who steal their food. Often the wolves appear in sheep's clothing (Matt 7:15)

In both verses 12 and 13, the Lord tells us about careless shepherds. He calls them 'hirelings' because they serve in return for money or reward and not out of true love for God's people. Their greed for money or for food is what drives them to shepherding. Truly, those who serve the altar eat of the altar; those who preach the Bible also live by it. However, their hearts are concerned with the salvation of souls and not with what they could gather as a reward for their ministry.

* The Lord proclaims that He is just as His Father. He, like Him, is the Shepherd and the sheep belong to Him<sup>29</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

The hireling who flees upon seeing a wolf and abandons the flock commits a mistake. The 'Mishnah' states that the shepherd is obligated to face one wolf, yet vindicates him if he is faced by two or more wolves since he cannot deal with such a situation. As a hireling he has no obligation to protect the flock, if he were attacked by two or more wolves, since his life would be exposed to danger.

* The hireling works as long as he does not see a wolf approaching, and as long as he does not see a thief or a burglar. However he escapes as soon as he catches sight of any of these...

Hirelings ascend through another path... for they ascend an account of their pride...

Those who are not in union with the (Church) have another path: they are arrogant and seek to corrupt the flock.

Now note how they ascend. They state: we are the ones who sanctify, absolve, and choose the righteous...

The wolf is the devil that lies down and waits to deceive. His followers are also deceivers. It has been truly said that they wear sheep's clothing; while they are intrinsically savage wolves (Matt 7:15).

The hireling may find a person engaged in evil conversation, or in soul destructive emotions, or in corrupt and defiling acts; and yet he says nothing to him- such as 'you are committing sin', or reprimanding him in order to save him from losing what is good for his soul. Strangely, that hireling seems to be an important influential person in the Church (who expects to receive benefits since he is a hireling). We believe that this is the meaning of "the hireling when he sees the wolf coming (he) leaves the sheep and flees. He does not even tell the wrongdoer: "You act wickedly." This does not constitute merely taking physical flight but a flight of the soul. The one we see physically standing there has, in this situation, escaped in his heart. Seeing a wrongdoer and not telling him "You are committing sin" indicates condoning and agreeing with that person's acts<sup>30</sup>.

* The hireling here does not possess a good character. However, he is useful in other ways or he would not be called a hireling. Neither would he have received a wage from his employer. Therefore who is that hireling who is blamed and yet is useful too? There are some who serve in the church and St. Paul tells us the following about them: "...for all seek their own, not the things which are of Christ Jesus" (Phil 2:21). What does 'seek their own' imply? It refers to those who do not love the Lord unconditionally; for they seek temporal benefits and profits, and lust to be honored by men.

* There are hirelings among us too. Yet only God knows about them for He examines and reveals what is in their hearts<sup>31</sup>.

* Let us be aware of the fact that even hirelings are useful. It is true that there are many within the church who seek earthly benefit. However, they also preach about the Lord Jesus Christ and through them the voice of the Lord is heard. As a result, the sheep follow the voice of the Lord who speaks through the hirelings. In this manner, the sheep do not follow the hirelings, for they actually follow the voice of the Lord who speaks through the hirelings. The Lord Himself indicated the need to listen to the hirelings in these words: 'The scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses' seat. Therefore whatever they tell you to observe, that observe and do, but do not do according to their work' (Matt 23:2-3). What does He say other than that we should listen to the voice of the Shepherd as He speaks through the hirelings?<sup>32</sup>

* Listen to the apostle as he is overwhelmed by such matters. He states that some preach the Bible out of love, while others out of some 'weakness' and not sincerely (Phil 1:16-18). However, what they preach is the truth, whereas the preachers themselves are not upright.

Why is the person who preaches the truth not upright? Because he is not seeking God and is seeking some other benefit from the Church.

Seeking God is an act of purity as God is the legitimate husband of the soul.

Praying God for other things besides Him indicates an impure intent while seeking God.

Notice, my brethren, that when a wife loves her husband on account of his wealth she is impure. Evidently, she does not love her husband but loves his gold. If she loved her husband, she would have loved him in his nakedness and poverty. If she only loved him due to his wealth, what would happen if he became suddenly poor? She would probably reject him for she did not love the man but loved his riches. Had she truly loved her husband, she would have loved him all the more when he became poor for she would love compassionately as well<sup>33</sup>.

* We need to love God who created the wealthy man, rather than love the wealthy man: God promises to give us Himself and nothing else. Find something that is more precious than Him and He will grant it to you. The earth, the heavens, and the angels are beautiful, yet the beauty of the Lord, their creator, exceeds all beauty.

Therefore, those who preach God as the loving God; and those who preach Him for His sole praise are the shepherds of the flock and not the hirelings.

The Lord Jesus Christ desires this kind of purity from the soul and He accordingly tells Peter:” Peter, do you love Me” (John 21:16). What does ‘do you love Me’ imply? Are you pure? Is your heart free of adultery? Do you seek Me and not personal gain from your church? If you are truly pure, then ‘tend My sheep’ for you can therefore be a shepherd and not a hireling<sup>34</sup>.

* The shepherd preaches the Lord Jesus Christ in truth; whereas the hireling preaches in pretense (Phil 1:18) as he seeks some other benefit. Yet both preach the Lord Jesus Christ...and Paul, who is a shepherd himself, is glad to have hirelings. Indeed, these work when they can and they are useful as long as they are able to preach... It is rare for the (apostle) to find a shepherd among many hirelings, for the shepherds are few whereas the hirelings are numerous. Yet, what does the Word say about hirelings? “Assuredly, I say to you, they have their reward” (Matt 6:2). What does the apostle say about the shepherd?

‘If anyone cleanses himself...will be a vessel of honor, sanctified and useful for the Master, prepared for every good work’ (2 Tim 2:26). ... not prepared for certain matters, but “prepared for every good work”<sup>35</sup>.

St. Augustine

“The hireling flees

Because he is a hireling and does not care about the sheep.” [13]

St. Augustine likens the hirelings to fences covered with thorns and the vines bearing grapes lean on them. These hirelings work as ministers for their own benefit. However, we need to enjoy the grapes of the vine which is supported by the thorns. Indeed, these grapes are the fruit of the vine, not of the thorns.

The apostle presents an example of these thorns which support the vine: “Some indeed preach Christ even from envy and strife and some also from good will. The former preach Christ from selfish ambition, not sincerely...only that in every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is preached; in this I rejoice, yes and will rejoice” (Phil 1:15-18)<sup>36</sup>.

*This is where the difference lies between the shepherd and the hireling: one seeks his safety regardless of the sheep; while the other seeks the well being of the sheep regardless of his own needs.

In the past, Ezekiel reprimanded the (hirelings) and said:” woe to the shepherds of Israel who feed themselves! Should not the shepherds feed the flocks?” ( Ezk 34:2 LXX). Indeed, they failed to do so and this is the worst kind of wickedness. It is the root of all other evil as the following words reveal: ‘The weak you have not strengthened, nor have you healed those who were sick, nor bound up the broken, nor brought back what was driven away, nor sought what was lost for they looked after themselves and not after the sheep’ (refer to Ezk 34:4).

St. Paul also reveals the following: ‘...for all seek their own, not the things which are of Christ Jesus’ (Phil 2:21); and “Let no one seek his own, but each one the other’s well being (1 Cor 10:21)<sup>37</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* A person becomes an hireling when he occupies the position of a shepherd yet does not seek the benefit of the souls. He aspires to attain earthly benefits and rejoices in receiving the honor of high posts. He follows the temporary tendencies and enjoys the honors offered to him: These are his rewards ... such a person cannot stand and act when the flock is endangered.

As he now receives honors and enjoys temporal benefits, such a person fears fighting dangers which could cost him the loss of what he loves... When a wicked person invades the company of humble believers, he becomes that wolf that attacks the flock as he tears their minds with temptations. Besides, such an hireling cannot endure the responsibility of protecting the flock

The soul is destroyed while such a person indulges in earthly benefits. Such an hireling has no zeal to fight temptations. He has no love that drives him. While all his concern is to get external benefits, he carelessly allows internal damage to happen to his flock<sup>38</sup>.

St. Gregory the Great

“I am the good shepherd,
I know My sheep
And am known by My own.” [14]

The Psalmist interacted with the Lord and good Shepherd in the Psalm of the Shepherd (Ps 23) where he reveals the extent of the Lord’s supreme cares for His flock.

Good shepherding reveals reciprocal love and acquaintance between the shepherd and his flock. The Shepherd knows his flock based on his closeness to them rather than on more regimental knowledge drawn from scholarly books. He relates to his sheep and they relate to Him, and so they become his subjects who are qualified to know Him.

God knew Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, therefore He called Himself “The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob.” Paul knew his great Shepherd and considered Him his Lord and God! It is through such loving shepherding that every sheep in the flock hears his shepherd who assures him and says:” I will be his God and he shall be My son” (Rev 21:7).

The Shepherd knows His own sheep for He watches them attentively and lovingly. He knows them, therefore He gladly sacrifices Himself for them. St. John accordingly, says: ‘We love Him because He first loved us’ (1 John 4:19). St. Paul also says: “But now after you have known God, or rather are known by God” (Gal 4:9).

The loving eyes of the Shepherd draw the sheep’s eyes to Him. Just as the shepherd shows his love by his practical acts and union with them, so the sheep get to know Him and find pleasure in uniting with Him. This is the new covenant: The covenant based on love between God and His subjects. Hence they comprehend the words of their shepherd who says: “I know whom I have chosen” (John 13:18). The flock respond with firm faith in the shepherd and say with the apostle: “...for I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that He is able to keep what I have committed to Him until that day” (2 Tim 1:12).

*The Lord is the good Shepherd. What kind of shepherd was Peter? Was he not a good shepherd? Did he not lay down his life for his sheep? And who was Paul? And who were the other apostles? What about the blessed bishops and martyrs?... What about St. Caprianus? Were not all these good shepherds? Yes, they were all good shepherds. However, it is not merely because their blood was spilled, but because it was spilled for their sheep. They humbly laid down their lives out of love and without any haughtiness.

What do you say, O Lord and good Shepherd? For you are the good Shepherd as well as the good sheep. What do you say? Grant us ears and help us to comprehend. The Lord says: “I am the good Shepherd.” What about Peter? Was he not a shepherd or was he evil? Indeed, he was a shepherd and a good one. Yet he is truly nothing compared to the power of the Shepherd of shepherds and His goodness. Yet, Peter was a shepherd and he was good. Besides, all the others who are like him are good shepherds<sup>39</sup>.

* The Lord Jesus Christ is the door I pass through to come to you. Through Him I have access to your hearts rather than to your homes. I enter through the Lord. He is the Lord within me and he is the One you desire to hear. Why do you seek to hear the Lord through me? Because you are His flock and you have been bought by His Blood. You know your worth - it is not paid through me; yet I am the instrument that preaches Him. It is He, He alone, who is the Buyer and He has poured His precious Blood- the precious Blood of the One who is without sin<sup>40</sup>.

St. Augustine

“As the Father knows Me, even so I know the Father;
I lay down My life for the sheep.” [15]

The Lord did not only desire to sacrifice, even die, for the sake of His sheep; but as a good Shepherd, He also confirms: “I lay down My life for the sheep.” He actually fulfilled the plan of sacrifice. He offered His life as a ransom to buy the sheep. He bought the sheep and He was killed as He loved them. The flock is not brought as an offering on behalf of the Owner as in the Old Testament. Conversely, the Owner presents Himself as an offering for the sheep.

* “I am known by My own...as the Father knows Me, even so I know the Father.” The Lord’ words ‘I will relate to My sheep and they will adhere to Me’ indicate how He will relate to His sheep and how they will respond to Him. It all begins with the manner by which the Lord and Father knows His true only begotten Son, the fruit of His essence; and how the Son knows the Father, who is the true God. He forms Him out of Himself. Similarly, if we strive to belong to Him, we will be considered part of His family and His children. Truly, we are His offspring (Acts 17:29) and we carry the name of the Son. It is all because of Him who proceeds from the Father and born of God, a true God, who became man and took our nature except for sin<sup>41</sup>.

St. Cyril the Great

* He is the Father who knows that He begat Him. He also knows that He is born of Him. In brief, let us refer to the words of the Bible: ‘No one knows the Son except the Father. Nor does anyone know the Father except the Son’ (Matt 11:27; John 10:15; 17:25)<sup>42</sup>.

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* The Lord Jesus Christ knows the Father Himself and we know Him through the Lord Jesus Christ...for He says: “No one has seen God at anytime. The only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, He has declared Him (John 1:18). This is how we get knowledge as He reveals it to us<sup>43</sup>.

* Remember that the Lord Jesus Christ is the Door and the Shepherd. He presents himself as the door in order to be revealed. He is the Shepherd too, who allows us to enter through Him. Truly, my brethren, as a Shepherd, the Lord grants his followers (members in his Body) the power to become like Him. Peter, Paul, all the other apostles, as well as all good bishops were shepherds. Yet, none called himself the “Door.” The Lord distinctly used the term to refer solely to Himself. In short, Paul did the work of a good shepherd as he preached about the Lord Jesus Christ. He could do so because he had already entered through the ‘Door.’ However, the unruly flock began to cause divisions, and to open other doors... then Paul said that he was not a door: “was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul?” (1 Cor 1:12-13)

St. Augustine

“And other sheep I have which are not of this fold, Them also must I bring
And they will hear My voice;
There will be one flock and One Shepherd.” [16]

The good Shepherd presents to us in this passage a confirmation of the unique and reciprocal knowledge that exists between the Father and the Son. It is the sign that indicates their unity in thought, will, and work (their oneness in the Divine Essence). This is a model of the knowledge that exists between Him and ourselves: we are His beloved followers who find their eternity by submitting to His will and power; and by working through and by Him! The Lord then speaks about the other sheep that are from other nations. These are the sheep that He will gather with those of the house of Israel to form one flock under One Shepherd.

The Lord confirms His positive role in acquiring the Gentiles as His people. He says: “...Them also must I bring” as indeed, He is the One who offers His Blood as the price for salvation. It is He who works, through His Spirit which is within people, to attract them to Himself. Yet, this does not occur against their will. He opens the hearts of His believers and so enables them to love all mankind. All are invited to enjoy the protection of the Lord Jesus Christ, the Savior of the world. At the same time, the Lord confirms His all-inclusive plan in order to destroy the haughtiness of the Jews. They imagined the Messiah would come to them alone, and that they were the unique flock of God. Therefore, they considered the Gentiles as dogs among the flock.

By saying ‘I must’ the Lord confirms the obligation of love. His Divine love obligates Him to offer His life gladly as a sacrifice to redeem His flock.

The Lord will bring everyone from all the nations to the true pasture- to the one holy Church. He will open the heavenly gates of the Church for all to enter in. After having been lost in the desert for so many years, the Lord will claim them all as His own since they are the flock that He has created. He is concerned about their salvation and offers His Blood as a ransom for their redemption. Thus he restores them to honor and glory.

These sheep, whatever their origin, for they will come from many Gentiles nations, will hear the voice of the One Shepherd and believe in Him. Faith is the outcome of listening. Therefore, they will be attracted to Him and be united as members in one body with one Head. The apostle says: ‘There is one body and one Spirit, just as you were called in one hope in your calling; One Lord, one faith, one baptism, One God and Father of all, who is above all, through all and in you all’ (Eph 4:4-6). In this manner, the unity of the flock is achieved, or the unity of the church, through the oneness of the Shepherd.

* It is as though the Lord is saying: Why are you astonished to see these people following Me. My sheep hear My voice; when you see other sheep following me and listening to My voice, you will be greatly amazed.

* ‘Them also must I bring’: the word ‘must’ does not mean ‘necessity.’ It is a proclamation of what will truly take place. It is as though the Lord is saying: ‘Why are you astonished that these people follow Me when My sheep hear My voice? Indeed, you will see others following Me and hearing My voice and their amazement will be greater.’

Do not be confused when the Lord says: ‘not of this fold’ for the difference is in the law only. St Paul says: “neither circumcision nor uncircumcision avails anything” (Gal 5:6)

“Them also must I bring’ [16]. The Lord reveals that both have strayed and intermingled. They were without shepherds for the good shepherd had not yet come. He therefore proclaims their unity in the future when they will become one flock. This conforms with Paul’s declaration: “.. so as to create in Himself one new man from the two” (Eph 2:15)<sup>44</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* ‘Tell me, O you whom I love, where you feed you flock? Where you make it rest at noon? For why should I be as one who veils herself by the flocks of your companions?’ (Song of Solomon 1:7)

---

Where do you go to pasture, O Good Shepherd who carries all the sheep on your shoulders? Indeed, you are truly carrying one sheep on your shoulder and that is our human nature.

Show me the green pastures
Lead me to the still waters (Ps 23:2)
Guide me to filling food
Call me by my name (John 10:16) so that I may hear your voice. I am your sheep: Grant me eternal life<sup>45</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nicea

* The Lord confronted the Pharisees in various ways. In this passage, He enables them to perceive that they are about to lose their role as shepherds of His people as He Himself will take charge of their needs. He indicates that the intermingling between the flocks of the Gentiles and those who reveal good will among the people of Israel would be His concern and that His rule would embrace all and not the Jews alone. His light will shine over the whole world. He wants the true knowledge of God to be known, from the beginning, not to Israel alone, but that it may spread to all who live under the heavens<sup>46</sup>.

St. Cyril the Alexander

* There are two boats (Luke 5:2) out of which the Lord called His disciples. These point to the two nations (the Jews and the Gentiles). When they pulled in their nets, they caught a huge amount of fish that almost caused the nets to break. The Bible states: 'They filled both boats.' The boats symbolize the Church. Although she consists of two nations yet they are united together in the Lord even though they come from distinct and different places.

We would like to mention here the two wives who had one husband, Jacob: Leah and Rachel are symbols for these two nations (Gen 29:23, 28). So are the two blind men who sat on the road side and the Lord granted them vision (Matt 20:36). If you search through the Bible carefully, you will find that the churches are really one church. They are not two and there are symbols to indicate this fact in many parts of the Bible<sup>47</sup>.

St. Augustine

*Finally, the offerings that are presented to God proclaim that the gathering Christian adhere together through inseparable love. That explains why the Lord called Himself the Bread, whose body is formed out of the union of many grains. This is a reference to His people who are united into one. Similarly, the Lord calls the pressed wine, produced from the clusters of grapes and very small grapes, integrating together as His unique Blood. In the same manner, the Lord indicates that this mixture of sheep constitutes one unified people<sup>48</sup>.

Because I lay down My life that I may take it again.” [17]

Those who believe that the Father possesses the feature of divine Justice, while the Son has divine mercy are mistaken. These imagine that the Son is filled with love for mankind and that He has offered Himself as a sacrifice of love to remove the anger of the Father. Moreover, some Gnostics in the second Century believed that the God of the New Testament (the Son) came to save the world from the God of the Old Testament because He is an angry God! Here St. John confirms that the offering of the Lord Jesus Christ arises from the Father's love to us. It is the fruit of the reciprocal love between the Father and the Son. This is because divine love is a feature of the Holy Trinity and is not solely a feature of one hypostasis to the exclusion of the other two in the Trinity.

The only begotten Son is the object of the Father's love since the beginning of all time. He became incarnate in fact and enjoyed the Father's love as the Son of Man who offered His life as a sacrifice on men's behalf. He willingly became a servant and sacrificed Himself for the sake of the world in order to win and bring men to God, His Father. This is expressed in these words about the suffering and faithful servant: 'Behold! My servant whom I uphold, My elect in whom My soul delights! I will put My Spirit upon Him; He will bring forth justice to the Gentiles' (Is 42:1).

Through the divine plan, He offered Himself as the 'way.' By entering into Him, we share with Him the feature of practical sacrificial love and trustworthiness. Hence we participate in His crucifixion and death to become a source of joy to the Father through Him. Through his sacrifice, the Lord Jesus Christ redeemed mankind and brought them to his Father. By uniting with him, we are granted the glorious power of being sacrificed and crucified with Him.

The Lord speaks about His death when He says: “I lay down My life”; and about His resurrection as He says “take it up again.” He has the power and it would have been impossible for all the forces of darkness to act in any manner without His permission. He has the power to lay down His life and to take it up again. In this simple manner, the Lord presents death and resurrection: there is no fear in facing death and no astonishment when we contemplate His resurrection.

* “....because I lay down My life”: may the Jews no longer boast for they cause trouble yet they possess no power. Let them arouse trouble as much as they want; yet if I did not want to sacrifice My life, what would be the result of such disturbance?!

The Jews should not boast that they have won; for it is the Lord who has willingly sacrificed Himself...

You know the words of the Psalm: “I lay down and slept; I awoke, for the Lord sustained me” (Ps 3:5)...

It is My pleasure to do so...

However, glory must be offered to God the Father; to encourage us to glorify our Creator, the Psalm says: 'I awake for the Lord sustained me.' Do you think that the Lord Jesus Christ was deprived in any way of His power: whether the power to die or not, or the power to rise up again? These words could be misinterpreted if they are not properly understood... read this verse in the Bible: "Destroy this temple and in three days I will raise it up." The Evangelist adds and says: 'But he was speaking of the temple of His body' (John 2:19-21)<sup>49</sup>.

* By the power of the Word, He lay down Himself and takes it up again by that same power of the Word<sup>50</sup>.

* "This command I have received from My Father" [18]: The Word did not receive the command in words, for in the Son -The only Word of the Father- rests all commands. When it is said that the Son receives from the Father what the Son in essence possesses, the implication is that He grants Him the life already indwelling in Himself (John 5:26). Thus the Son has life in Himself. He does not lack any power which the Father has not given to his begotten Son.

The Father has not added any gifts and as though the Son was imperfect at birth. The Begotten of the Father is wholly perfect and He carries all the blessings at His birth. In this manner, the Son has been granted equality with the Father and He was never begotten in a state of inequality with Him<sup>51</sup>.

St. Augustine

* What other statement could reflect such a level of perfect human features than this. We consider our Lord a beloved One because He died on our behalf? What is the consequence? Was He not beloved before that? Did the Father begin to love Him and we were the cause of the Father's love to Him? They said that He was a stranger to the Father; that He was a deceiver who had come to kill and destroy. That is why the Lord told the Jews: 'There is nothing that obliges Me to love you; yet the Father loves you. Besides, He loves me too because I lay down My life for you.' The Lord wishes to underline a further point and that is that He did not come against his own will. If that were so, how does My act result in love?<sup>52</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

"No one takes it from Me,
But I lay it down of Myself.
I have power to lay it down,
I have power to take it again.
This command I have received from My Father." [18]

He lays Himself down to take it up again, for He is the Holy God who will not see corruption (Ps 16:10). He became incarnate by His own will. He delivered Himself and so offered His Body to be a sacrifice. In this manner, He would receive it from the Father as a glorified Body. As a result, He opens to us the Door of the resurrection since He Himself is 'The Resurrection.’ Through that, He has granted us the right to enjoy the glorified body that is enabled to share with the soul her heavenly glory. The Lord stresses that His death is achieved by His full willingness. He holds the power to die and to arise. Such a sacrifice is the reason for His joy as well as for the joy of the Father. He submitted the matter into the hands of the Father in total obedience in order to fulfill His will. The Father’s will is one and the same as the Son’s will.

*The Lord desired to eat the Passover (Luke 22:15); to willingly offer His life as well as take it up (John 10:18). Thus His desire has been fulfilled.

St. Augustine

*He lay down His life in order to glorify us. However, He possessed the divine authority to lay it down and to take it up too... His goodness is evident here: He voluntarily lays His life down- now you also observe His authority to take it again<sup>53</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* As they often sought to kill Him, He told them: ‘Unless I want that to happen, you will work in vain.’ Through the first preposition, He gives proof to the second: Through His death, He gives proof to the Resurrection. This is what makes it all strange and amazing.

Both have been put into a new perspective that defies the norm. Let us reflect carefully on the Lord’s words: “I have power to lay it down.” Who does not possess the power to lay down his own life? Any person has the ability to kill himself. However, The Lord said that this was not so, yet how can it be? “I have the power to lay it down in this manner and no one can do so without My will.” Such an authority does not belong to mankind, for we do not have authority to lay it down by any means other than by killing ourselves. If we were to fall into the hands of enemies and they had the power to kill us; then they would kill us even against our will. This is not true in the case of the Lord Jesus Christ; for even though others conspired against Him, He still had the power not to lay His life down.

Indeed, He is the sole One with the power to lay down His life. He revealed that He possesses that same authority to take it up again.

Do you not observe how He used the first instance to prove the second one: How by His death, He revealed that His Resurrection cannot be questioned?<sup>54</sup>

* The Lord says: “This command I have received from My Father.” If you were to ask the Lord: ‘What is this command’; He would answer: “It is that I die on behalf of the world.”

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord informed us in advance that during His sufferings he would separate His soul from His body voluntarily: “I lay down My life that I may take it again. No one takes it from Me, but I lay it of Myself. I have power to lay it down, I have power to take it again.” [17,18]

Indeed, David the prophet – according to St. Peter’s great interpretation- perceived the Lord and said: ‘For you will not leave my soul in Hades, nor will you allow Your Holy One to see corruption’ (Ps 16:10; Acts 2:27,31). For His divinity -before His incarnation, after His incarnation, and after His sufferings- is not subject to change. He is, as always, the same at all times- with the same nature. He will remain as He is forever. When he became incarnated, the Almighty completed the plan for our benefit: He temporarily separated the soul from the body. However, this occurred without the separation of the Divine from either of them. Both (soul and body) which were once united, were reunited through Him once more. Hence he grants all humanity a new beginning; and an example of what will occur in the Resurrection of the dead. All the corrupt will be raised in incorruption and all the dead transformed into living beings<sup>55</sup>.

St. Gregory, Bishop of Nicea

“Therefore, there was a division again among the Jews because of these sayings.”
[19]

This is the third time that a division occurs among those listening to the Lord Jesus Christ (John 7:43; 9:6). It is due to the enemy of goodness who is doing everything to spoil the Lord’s work.

The Lord spoke about His practical endeavor to sacrifice all His life for His sheep and to die that they may live. Some could not bear this supreme divine love and so they imagined the Lord was driven by the devil to speak these words, or that He had a deranged mind. While the Lord desires to grant us eternal glory, some resist and abuse Him. The Pharisees led the crowds to reject His words and therefore there was a division among them.

And many of them said: “He has a demon and is mad.
Why do you listen to Him?” [20]

Some accused the Lord of being possessed by a devil and that He was mad. So why listen to Him? He was unaware of His words and was just hallucinating. Until today, this is the same accusation raised against the Lord Jesus Christ. As He speaks through all those who witness to the truth and speak of the heavens and eternity; listeners still regard such speakers as unrealistic and deceptive

The Pharisees even belittled those listening to Him since they encouraged Him to spread His teachings.

Non-believers are not satisfied with merely rejecting the divine word. They ridicule Him and urge others to resist Him. Often, they consecrate their energies to oppose those who listen to Him and say: “Why do you listen to Him?”

* They became ice cold towards the sweetness of His Love and burned with the desire to harm Him. They stood at a great distance away from Him while they were right next to Him<sup>56</sup>.

<sup>55</sup> Against Eunomius 2:13

* Every good virtue, and above all gentleness and meekness, purify us and make us to be different from wild beasts. Virtue makes us worthy to compete with the angels. That is why the Lord often speaks about this and commands us to be gentle and humble. He not only speaks about that, for He also teaches us these through His acts... these people called Him a demon and a Samaritan. They sought to kill Him and threw stones at Him... In spite of that, he did not reject them; and although they conspired against Him, He answered them with great humility<sup>57</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Others said:

“These are not the words of one who has a demon.

Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?” [21]

This group could not tolerate the subjection of the Lord to humiliation and insult of being a demon; even though they might not have believed that He is the Messiah, the Son of God. Indeed, His teachings did not embody the violence and corruption of Satan and his kingdom. Moreover, Satan would be unable to do His Miracles and deeds.

*The Lord does not deny that He is possessed by a demon. He remained silent as He had already presented through His deeds the proof of who He is. Therefore, there was no need to reprimand them especially that there were those who opposed the others. So the people were split and confronted each other. That is not the only reason why the Lord remained silent. He also tolerated their insults with great gentleness in order to teach us the degree of His gentleness and patience.

St. John Chrysostom

2- Unity with the Father

Now it was the Feast of Dedication in Jerusalem and it was winter. [22]

Here we also find a discussion between the Jews and the Lord Jesus Christ within the temple. It was the Feast of Dedication, Hanukkh, in the winter. This feast celebrated the memory of Judas the Maccabean and his deeds in 164/165 B.C. He had purified the temple from the corruption that occurred under Antiochus Epiphanies, the Syrian, three years earlier (1 Mac 4:36-59). Antiochus had forced the Jews to worship idols and forbade the circumcision of children, and observation of the Sabbath. This Feast is mentioned in greater detail in 2 Mac 1:18. The Jews regarded the return to freedom as though they had risen from the dead to enjoy life again. In memory of this, they celebrated a yearly feast on the twenty-fifth day in the month of Kisleu. This parallels approximately the beginning of the month of December. The feast extends for nine days amid great lights. This feast is celebrated not only in Jerusalem, as other feasts are, but everyone celebrates in his own area as is the case with the Feast of Purim (Esther 9:19). As the Jews were celebrating the Feast of Dedication of the temple [22], the Lord proclaimed that

<sup>57</sup> Homilies on St John, 61:1

He is the One whom God had dedicated and sent into the world [23].

And Jesus walked in the temple, in Solomon's porch. [23]

Then the Jews surrounded Him and said to Him:

"How long do you keep us in doubt?

If you are the Christ, tell us plainly." [24]

The Lord was walking in the temple, in Solomon's porch. This lies in the eastern part of the house of nations, which is the largest house in the area of the temple, it surrounds the inner buildings. This does not mean that it was Solomon who had constructed it since the temple had been destroyed and then rebuilt. However, it continued to be called Solomon's temple after the name of Solomon- the first one who had built it- due to his great fame.

The Lord walked alone as one would do who is interested in observing the actions of the Council of the Sanhedrin, They were gathered there; and where we are told: 'God stands in the congregation of the mighty; He judges among the Gods. How long will you judge unjustly and show partiality to the wicked? (Ps 82:1-2). He walked there to offer help to every needy person. He answered all questions in order to open the door to all who wished to walk with Him in the porch. On the eighth day of the Feast, the Lord was asked if He is the Messiah, and He answered:

A- The flock know the real Messiah, His divinity and His mission [25-27].

B- He saves His flock and gives them safety and peace [28-29]

C- The Lord confirms the Oneness of Essence with the Father. The Jews realized that the Lord Jesus Christ was equating Himself with the Father [30-31].

D- He defended His divinity through His works and through prophecies in the Holy Bible [32-39].

E- If the Jews considered their judges to be gods [34-39] because they represented God, then why do they stumble and find difficulty to recognize the true Son of God whom the Father has sent? [36]

He had come to His house and His Father's house. He had come to serve all the souls who sought Him. However, they banded together, as one man, with wicked intention; and asked Him why He kept them in doubt and if He is the Christ to tell them so. Some interpreters consider that the question conveyed an evil accusation.

It is as though they were saying: Why are you drawing people's hearts and encouraging a spirit of cheating and deception? Absalom did that when he rebelled against David his father, and tried to snatch away his throne. Or as though they were saying: why do you deceive the simple-hearted in order to win them as your disciples? The question appeared to be good and as though they really wanted to learn the truth.

They knew that the Messiah would be a king. But they believed, according to their minds, that He would be an earthly king. Therefore, they asked Him to give them a clear answer to that effect. This would enable them to report Him as someone who is a rebel and traitor to the Roman authorities.

The Jewish leaders did not blame themselves for their own corrupt hearts and minds. They blamed the Lord who attracted the crowds and some of the leaders; therefore causing confusion and division in the council of the Sanhedrin. They lay the blame on the Lord and accused Him of leaving them in doubt and confusion. Rather than blame themselves for not accepting the truth, not wishing to learn, they blamed Him. It is as though the Jewish leadership was seeking to pick a quarrel with Him: “How long do you keep us in doubt”? How long will you attract our souls? Be clear and proclaim your Identity! His works bore witness that He is the awaited Messiah. However, they probably needed a clear declaration in order to convict Him once He would state that He is the awaited Messiah.

Some interpreters find that the question was a true reflection of their inner conflict. On the one hand, they sensed His holiness- perceived through His deeds; and they recognized His stature. On the other hand, they feared for their positions; and their corrupt souls prevented them from accepting Him. They wanted a Messiah shaped according to their whims; one who would achieve and grant their temporal aspirations.

They desired to appear as individuals who sought knowledge. Although St. John the Baptist witnessed clearly before them; the heavens declared the Lord’s identity. The Lord also spoke to them and declared that He is the light of the world, the good Shepherd and the giver of eternal life. Moreover, all His deeds witnessed to His Person.

Some interpreters find that the word ‘us’ is used here to denote ‘our lives.’ They draw on the use the Lord made when He said: “I have power to lay (My life) down” to convey His death. Some Jews may have felt that the Lord’s teachings about loving and forgiving one another would utterly destroy their lives as a Jewish nation. Caiaphas expressed this when He said: “If we let Him alone like this, everyone will believe in Him, the Romans will come and take away our place and our nation” [11:48).

*The Lord perceived their intentions when they asked their wicked question. They had surrounded Him and asked: “How long do you keep us in doubt.” It appeared as though they asked out of zeal to learn. However, their purpose was devious and corrupt and filled with hidden ulcers... they were not asking with the intent to learn which seemed to be their goal<sup>58</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Jesus answered them:

“I told you and you do not believe.

The work that I do in My Father’s name, they bear witness of Me.” [25]

The Jews asked for a clear and frank answer- a yes or a no- This was impossible since their concept of the ‘Messiah’ was totally different from those in His divine Plan. In spite of that, the Lord Jesus Christ put His finger on the problem: They did not lack the knowledge, but they lacked the will to believe in His works that witnessed to His Person (John 14:11). So the problem lay within them and not in the need to reveal Himself to them. In order to efface their excuses, the Lord indicated that He had informed them previously by words as well as by deeds. He had proclaimed previously that He is the Son of God and the Son of Man who possesses the power of life within Himself; and that He has the Authority to judge... Does this not refer to the Messiah? They pretended that the Lord had left them in doubt; but He confirmed that they were not willing to believe. He referred to His deeds and His life- for He is the One with no sin- His deeds and His acts testify to the reality of His unique Person.

On the one hand, the Lord desires to present all true knowledge- on condition that the person seeking it is sincere- just as He did with the Samaritan woman (4:26); and with the man born blind (29:35-38). Some of His followers recognized Him from the start (1:41); while others gathered around Him when they realized that He is the awaited Messiah. The Lord had previously proclaimed to the Jews: "... before Abraham was, I am" (8:58), and consequently they wanted to stone Him. They had heard enough about His identity and so they accused Him of blasphemy since He had equated Himself to God (5:18).

* The Lord here reveals to the Jews that His deeds speak more loudly and more clearly than His voice and words.

St. John Chrysostom

"But you do not believe,
Because you are not of My sheep,
As I said to you." [26]

The Lord puts the blame on them because they had deprived themselves from belonging to his flock. Therefore, how could they recognize Him? They did not belong to His flock due to their lack of faith and not due to lack of evidence to His Person. They had no excuse. There existed a flock that believed in the Lord Jesus Christ as a result of His words and deeds. They recognized His voice which gives meaning to their lives. This flock condemned unbelievers who lacked faith and had not joined the Lord's flock. Moreover, they neither recognized Him as the awaited Messiah, nor His voice. Consequently, they followed other shepherds.

* It is as though the Lord was telling the Jews the following: 'You have not followed Me because you do not belong to my flock and not because I am not a Shepherd. The Lord said these words in order to encourage them to want to become His own sheep. He wants to wake them up and plant this desire in them<sup>59</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

*The Lord answered and stated that He is the Son of God. How did He answer? Listen:

Jesus answered them, "I told you, and you do not believe. The works that I do in My Father's name, they bear witness of Me. But you do not believe, because you are not of My sheep" [25-26]... they are sheep through faith. They are sheep by following the Shepherd. They do not belittle their Savior. They are sheep as they enter through the Door and as they go in and out to find pasture, and they are sheep as they enjoy eternal life. But what is the implication of these words: "...you are not of My sheep" [26]. The Lord perceived that they had chosen eternal destruction and would not receive eternal life through His Blood!<sup>60</sup>

---

<sup>59</sup> Homilies on St John, 61:2

“My sheep hear My voice
And I know them
And they follow Me” [27]

The Lord presented to them the marks of His flock. These are they that hear His voice and recognize that it belongs to their Shepherd. They know the sound of His love and care. Therefore they adhere to Him and get acquainted with Him in new depths. They qualify to be recognized by Him and as the apostle says: “The Lord knows those who are His” (2 Tim 2:19).

*This is the pasture- remember the words of the Lord earlier: “They will go in and out and find pasture.” We enter into the faith and go out when we die. As we enter through the door of faith, we- as believers- quit the body. By going out through the same door we can find pasture; that good pasture is called eternal life. In this pasture, no leaf is dry for all plants are green and flourishing. There is vegetation that is said to be evergreen and it is found and exists only there<sup>61</sup>.

St. Augustine

“And I give them eternal life,
And they shall never perish;
Neither shall anyone snatch them out of My hand.” [28]

In order to convince them of the misery that sets in as a result of rejecting to adhere and belong to Him, the Lord presents the positive aspect. These are the gifts of a blessed life which His flock enjoys. In other words, they enjoy a heavenly eternal life.

In contrast, life on earth is full of fatigue and pain. His flock are protected by the Holy Spirit and the enemy cannot touch them. The Psalmist accordingly says: ‘This poor man cried out and the Lord heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles. The angel of the Lord encamps around those who fear Him and delivers them’ (Ps 34:6-7). The Lord knows His flock well: He knows their needs as well as the resistance of the devil who faces them. However, they are protected in Him.

The Lord offers here the gift of eternal life to those who believe in Him. Besides, He reveals the security that they enjoy in Him; for they are kept safely in His hand. This is something they would not enjoy if they changed to the teachings of the Pharisees. By joining the Lord’s flock, believers are granted protection which they could never get through any other means. St. Paul says in this context: ‘For the gifts and the calling of God are irrevocable’ (Rom 11:29)

The flock of the Lord are a gift that the Father delivers into the hands of the Son; and they remain safely in His hands as well as they rest in the hands of the Father. In other words, they are protected by the Holy Spirit who is the Spirit of the Lord Jesus Christ as well as of the Father.

The word ‘perish’ is used here to indicate the fearsome eternal destruction. Consequently, being saved from such a destiny cannot be over evaluated. The word ‘snatch’ indicates violent action used against a person. No one can protect us from such violence except the powerful Hand that holds and shields us.

---

* ‘... shall never perish’ [28].... what can the wolf do? What can a burglar- a thief do? They can only destroy those who are singled out for destruction. The apostle says of such sheep: ‘The Lord knows those who are His’ (2 Tim 2:19); and ‘for whom He foreknew, He also predestined... whom He predestined, these He also called; whom He called these He also justified; whom He justified, these He also glorified’ (Rom 8:29-30). The wolf does not snatch any of these sheep, neither can a burglar steal them, nor can a thief kill them<sup>62</sup>.

St. Augustine

“My Father, who has given them to Me, is greater than all;
No one is able to snatch them out of My Father’s hand.” [29]

St. Ambrose explains that the Holy Spirit is the spirit of the Father as well as of the Son. He is the Hand of both Father and Son. Hence, the sheep hear the Lord’s voice and no one can snatch them from the Father, or the Son, or the Holy Spirit<sup>63</sup>.

*The Lord Jesus Christ says: “... no one is able to snatch them out of My Father’s hand”: in this manner He indicates that His hand and His Father’s are one in terms of power and in essence for they are the same.

His words “...neither shall any one snatch them out of My hand, My Father, who has given them to Me...” are intended for the Jews so that they would not accuse Him of being disobedient to God.

St. John Chrysostom

* Are the Father and Son one hand, or can we say that the Son Himself is the Father’s hand? If we understand that ‘the hand’ stands for power, then the Father and Son have one and the same power. However, if we understand it in the same way used by the prophet: ‘... to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?’ (Is 53:1); then the arm of the Father is the Son Himself. Yet, we should not understand this as though God had a human form, or that He has human physical members. Indeed, we should comprehend that all things were made through Him<sup>64</sup>.

St. Augustine

I and My Father are one.” [30]

The Lord does not say ‘I and My Father are identical’ But ‘I and My Father are one.’ This indicates a union of love and work as well as a union in the essence. Therefore it is a unique unity which no other creature can attain. Indeed, this union is the supreme model of union to which an adherer to God aspires as he seeks to unit with Him.

This discussion about unity is related to the care of the Son and Father watching over a believer: no one can snatch a believer out of the hands of the Son or the Father.

It is as though divine care is a unique entity of love between the two icons of the Father and the Son. The ultimate purpose of this care is to make believers carry this icon/ hypostasis of unity.

*The Lord Jesus Christ proclaims: “I and My Father are One.” He uses the word “One” as there is no separation of authority or of nature. Yet, he uses in another place the word “We”: He does so in order to make us realize that the Father and the Son are united in one nature without mingling in the elements/hypostasis: thus we believe that the perfect Father gave birth to the perfect Son<sup>65</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* Understanding needs to come after faith so that it is the reward of faith...<sup>66</sup>

* The Lord says and that truly: “I and My Father are One.” What does ‘One’ imply? That we are one in nature and in essence<sup>67</sup>.

St. Augustine

* “I and My Father are One” [30]. The Lord then adds: “.. the Father is in Me and I in Him” [Jn10:38], in order to clarify, on the one hand, the Divine Unity; on the other hand, the Unity in Essence. Hence, both are One. Yet, this is not like a (one) object that can be split into two. Moreover, it is not like someone who is called by two names- once ‘the Father’ and another time ‘the Son’.... for the Father is Father and cannot be the Son and the Son is the Son and cannot be the Father.... Thus they are two beings or hypostasis.

Nevertheless, they are one in nature: for the begotten is not unlike His Father: He is in His image and all that the Father has are the Son’s too (John 16:15). Therefore, the Son is not another God since He did not come from outside... Otherwise there would be many other gods. Both are one in their being, one in nature and one in divine unity. As we have explained, the rays are the light and not a source other than the sun or other than the light. They do not result from participation with the light but they are wholly and intrinsically begotten of the light, so such a child is ultimately one with the light- no one can say that there are two lights. Although the sun and the rays are two things, yet the rays of the sun that give light to everything through the rays are one<sup>68</sup>.

St. Athanasius the Apostolic

The Jews could tolerate the Lord Jesus Christ so far; but they could no longer bear to hear Him say: ‘I and My Father are One.’ you can see that the Jews understood what the Arians could not. They were angered by this saying and felt that He could not have said these words ‘I and My Father are One’ unless it implied equality between the Father and the Son<sup>69</sup>.

You have been enlightened by the light, therefore you have become numbered as children of God. If you drew away from the light you would fall into doubt and find yourselves in darkness. However, that light does not come near (to be enlightened) for He cannot withdraw from Himself<sup>70</sup>.

*Sometimes we may say: “We live in God and He lives in us”; but can we say: ‘We and the Father are one?’ We live in God because God embraces us; God lives in us because we have become altars of God... Yet, could you say: “He who has seen has seen the Father” in the same way that His only begotten Son said it (John 14:9)... ‘I and My Father are one’? St. Augustine

Then the Jews took up stones again to stone Him’ [31]

For the second time, His opponents wanted to stone the Lord Jesus Christ. According to them, He had blasphemed and so deserved to be stoned. He had claimed His oneness with God. The Jews did not comprehend His real identity and therefore could not bear His words.

The unique unity between the Father and the Son, which is at the core of the divine Shepherd’s work, is the source of our inner enlightenment, of our comfort and our inner peace. This unity was unacceptable to the Jews - indeed they considered this as blasphemy against God.

The sin of blasphemy is a killing and deadly sin in the Jewish faith. There is no need to bring the accused to judgment or to hear his defense and the person is punished immediately. The Mishnah mentions that if a person steals a holy vessel, he can be punished without judgment by those who are eager to do so. The same thing applies if a priest serves before a defiled altar. The Mishnah states that his brothers, the other priests, do not bring him before a court but he is carried out of the temple by the younger priests who then smash his brain with clubs. It is a terrific sin that deserves a horrible punishment. With that same understanding the Jews considered that there was no need to bring to Lord to be judged. Indeed, they went outside the temple building to find stones, picked them up and carried them to stone Him. They did not have any consideration for the holy place itself or that it was not right to execute stoning in its vicinity. Their anger was so strong and their pretense to be zealous for God’s glory drove them to behave in this manner.

For which of those works do you stone Me?” [32]

The Lord did His divine acts as a living testimony to His identity. These are stronger than discussing and using words. Indeed, these are an easier means to understand the truth.

What does the Lord intend to use the words ‘from My Father’? Would it not be enough to have said: ‘Many good works I have done?’ he actually intended to confirm that He and the Father work together. The same work the Son does proceeds from the Father. If the Holy Son declares that His good acts come from the Father then how much more should the weak creation declare that all goodness found in us to the grace of God that works within us?

The Lord defied them saying: “...which of you convicts Me of sin?” (John 8:46), and no one could answer back. So how could they stone someone whom they could not convict for even one sin?

The Lord says: “For which of those works”, in other words ‘which kind of acts’ that no other creature in heaven or on earth can do since they are acts pertinent to God Himself.

The Jews answered Him, saying:

“For a good work we do not stone you,

But for blasphemy and because You, being a man, make yourself God” [33]

The Jews could not deny the works done by the Lord. However, they were unable to tolerate His words as they considered that He had dared to equate Himself to God. They said to Him: “You, being a man, make yourself God”; whereas the Evangelist proclaims throughout his whole gospel that the Lord Jesus Christ became Man while He is truly God.

Jesus answered them: “Is it not written in your law; I said you are gods?” [34]

The word ‘your law’ is used here in its broad sense as it refers to the whole Old Testament. The quote of the Lord is taken from Psalm 82:6; and it is directed at the Hebrew Judges who represented the authority of God. The Psalmist goes on to say: ‘But you shall die like men and fall like one of the princes’ (Ps 82:7). Since this was said about the Judges of the Old Testament, then what could be said about the Lord Jesus Christ whom God has sanctified and consecrated to save the world?

In using the word ‘your law’, the Lord does not intend to break away from the law. Indeed, He regards it to be the Word of God which cannot be criticized or dismissed [35].

* God has not only created us from nothingness, but He has granted us unconditional life with God through the free gift of the Logos. However, mankind has rejected spiritual matters and has become corrupted through Satan’s deceitful lies. Consequently, their corruption has doomed them to die and have become corrupt in nature.

Yet, God planned to open an escape from that natural condition by granting mankind fellowship with the Logos. In this manner, their goodness is being restored.

When the Logos lives among mankind, they will not die on account of their natural state of corruption. In this context, Wisdom says: ‘When God created us, He did not intend for us to die; He made us like Himself. It was the Devil’s jealousy that brought death into the world...’ (Wisdom 2:23)<sup>72</sup>.

* The Lord Jesus Christ became Man in order to make us gods. He revealed Himself in the flesh so that we may comprehend the plan of the invisible Father. He tolerated humiliation from men, so that we may inherit everlasting life. While He Himself was untouched by harm in any manner- since He is above all sufferings and incorruptible, as He is the Logos and God Himself, He comforts men who suffer and all those for whom He underwent all this humiliation. He protects them throughout all pain they endure for His sake<sup>73</sup>.

* Indeed, the Lord became incarnated so that we may become gods. He proclaimed Himself by appearing in the flesh to enable us to comprehend the thought of the invisible God. He accepted shame to grant us the inheritance of incorruption<sup>74</sup>.

St. Athanasius the Apostolic

* “You are gods, and all of you are children of the Most High”: For this end the Word of God became incarnated. The Son of God became the Son of Man. Hence, when the man enters into the Logos and accepts to be adopted, he becomes the Son of God. There is no other way that we can attain incorruption and immortality. But how could we have acquired incorruption and immortality, unless incorruption swallow up corruption and immortality annihilate death and so enabling us to be adopted as children?<sup>75</sup>

St. Iraneus

* Listen to the words of the Psalmist: ‘I have said: You are gods; all of you are children of the Most High’ (Ps 82:6). God calls us with this intention: so that we do not become human beings. Rather, God wants to be in a better condition when we are no longer human. This is possible if we first recognize the reality that we are human beings, only then can we humbly progress to such heights. We need to be cautious and should not believe that we are worthy while we are unworthy. Otherwise, we will not only lose what we are but we will also not attain the stature we do not possess<sup>76</sup>.

St. Augustine

“If He called them gods, to whom the Word of God came
And the Scripture cannot be broken,
Do you say of Him whom the Father sanctified and sent into the world,
“You are blaspheming”; because I said: “I am the Son of God?” [36]

* What are the Lord’s words concerning such an attitude: ‘ If those who receive this honor through grace do not find it wrong to call themselves gods, then how is it that you reprimand Me who naturally am the Son of God?’<sup>77</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

* Someone may wonder: If the Father has sanctified the Lord Jesus Christ, was there a time when He was not sanctified? The Father has sanctified Him in the same manner by which He conceived Him. When He was begotten, He received the power of being sanctified for the Father conceived the Son in holiness. If the Holy One (the Son) had been sanctified before, then how could we say about God the Father “... hallowed be your Name...”?<sup>78</sup>

St. Augustine

“If I do not do the works of My Father, do not believe in Me. [37]
But if I do, though you do not believe Me, believe the works,
That you may know and believe that the Father is in Me and I in Him.” [38]

The Lord Jesus Christ invites His opponents to consider and examine His works so that when they perceive that they are done by His Father, they would believe in Him. By examining His deeds, they will know and believe. The verb occurs in the Greek language and conveys ‘you will begin to know’ or ‘you will come to know.’ Some writers interpret the word ‘you may believe’ as ‘you will continue to know these matters.’ Hence, it is not enough to know the beginning of such knowledge; but it is necessary to continue learning.

* Believe, therefore, that God’s presence is evident in (the Lord’s deeds). Do you believe in deeds and not belief in the presence (of the Doer)? Then from where do the deeds spring if they are not preceded by His presence?<sup>79</sup>

St. Ambrose

* Do you not see how the Lord testifies and gives proof that there is nothing in Him that denotes that He is less than the Father and that He is equal to Him in every way. The similarity in the deeds, and as they speak for themselves, act as a proof of His uncontested authority<sup>80</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Therefore they sought again to seize Him,
But He escaped out of their hand. [39]

Instead of speaking with Him, their only answer was to make another attempt to catch and kill Him.

‘And He went again beyond the Jordan
To the place where John was baptizing at first
And there He stayed.’ [40]

Of their own full freedom, they were able to accuse Him unjustly, to plan to catch and kill Him, and to arouse anger against Him. However, they could not overcome Him and achieve their plan because they had not been allowed by God to do so up to that moment.

* It was the habit of the Lord Jesus Christ to withdraw quickly after speaking strong words. He did so to alleviate their anger. By distancing Himself, the pan of their fury would calm down. This is what the Lord did at that time.

St. John Chrysostom

*They had failed to catch Him as they had lost their grasp on faith. The Word became flesh, yet it was not hard to save His body from physical hands. In order to grasp the Word in your mind you need to perceive the Lord Jesus Christ correctly.<sup>81</sup>

St. Augustine

3- The Lord Jesus Christ at the Place of His Baptism

Then many came to Him and said:

“John performed no sign,

But all the things John spoke about this Man were true” [41]

Due to the hostility they displayed towards the Lord Jesus Christ, He traveled to the other side of the Jordan and to the place where St. John the Baptist use to baptize those who came to him. He went there not out of fear He would be killed. He had come to the world to save the world through the Cross; but that had to be at a specific time.

That place held great memories for the Lord Jesus Christ and his disciples. This where St. John the Baptist had witnessed about the Lord, saying: “Behold! The lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world.” Probably, those who lived in the area still remembered and repeated St. John’s testimony. St. John had been martyred and passed away, yet the fruit of his testimony appear even after he had left this world: the inhabitants remembered and hade believed in the Lord Jesus Christ. St. John had not done one single miracle, yet they believed his testimony without the need for miracles.

*Since the Jews had believed St. John the Baptist who had not done even one miracle, then it would be logical to find them believing in the Lord Jesus Christ. Just watching His miracles indicates the sublime nature and greatness of the Lord Jesus Christ.

St. John Chrysostom

And many believed in Him. [42]

* Due to His many deeds they were attracted to Him. Moreover, they remembered St. John the Baptist’s words when he said: “He who is coming after me is mightier than I” (Matt 3:11). They had also heard the Voice from the heavens and had seen the Holy Spirit that had appeared as a dove.

Meditations Inspired by John, Chapter Ten

May You carry Me in the Palm of Your Hands and Wash me in Your Blood!

* In the midst of the persistent roaring world,
I see a glowing face; I hear a gentle inviting voice!
It is Your face, who is fairer than mankind!
It is Your unique voice that attracts all my feelings!
You are the good Shepherd, the beloved of my soul!

* You are the Shepherd, the Door and the Guardian.
You are the Shepherd who walks before me, in order to kill every savage wolf.
You are before me to lead me into your unique heavenly pastures.
You are before me to ascend on the Cross, in order to wash me with Your pure Blood!
You carry the staff to kill my enemies and with it You punish me tenderly and gently;
You lead me to come into Your embrace. You carry a flute to proclaim Your joy in me.
Then Your joy overwhelms me, O source of all happiness.

* You are the Door and the Guardian
How can we enter into the Father's embrace except through You?
O Door of the Divine embrace?
Is there any other door but You by which to enter?
You are the Guardian, You lead me to You. You enclose me within You.
Thus the enemy cannot enter in with me or touch me!

* How can I repay such unique and supreme care?
Grant me union with You, and then I will become a shepherd through and with You!
I will love You and so shepherd Your sheep through and with You!
My joy will be complete as many will be saved and I will find pleasure in sharing with You the spirit of true shepherding.

* Your care has made you willing to die and rise again.
By Your power you sacrificed Yourself and delight those in the graves.
Grant me the glory of sharing Your Cross with You.
Grant me the goodness as I enjoy Your Resurrection!

* On the Feast of Dedication You walked in Solomon's porch.
Now the porch of the King of Peace is within me.
May You enter and walk, so that I may walk with You and hear Your voice
May You celebrate a constant feast of renewal upon Your altar that is within me!

* May you proclaim within me that You are One and equal with the Father.
I believe, O my Lord, for I have seen and enjoyed Your deeds!

Your works witness to You
You have turned my grave into an altar
You have transformed my heart into Your heaven.
You have turned my darkness into light.
You have proclaimed Your presence within me!
What more could I desire!

Raising Lazarus from the Dead

The Giver of the Resurrected Life

St. John tells us the story of the raising of Lazarus from the dead which probably occurred on the Saturday preceding the Lord's entry into Jerusalem. Thus this event took place a short while just before the last week of the life of Jesus on earth. The miracle is not recorded in the other three Gospels; and some explain that this is because Lazarus was still alive when these were written. The belief was that such reporting could have caused him many problems. As for St. John, he wrote his Gospel after Lazarus had passed away. The Evangelist presents the miracle to reveal the person of the Lord Jesus Christ: He is the Resurrection, the Giver of Life; and the Conqueror of death. The Lord was ready to deliver Himself to death and to be buried in a grave; yet He wanted to confirm His authority to lay down as well as raise Himself only when He wanted. The miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead is the last miracle that St. John records; and he gives many details in his account of it.

The event takes place in a small village called Bethany or House of suffering or of pain. There was a family that the Lord Jesus loved very much and who lived there. This family opened their hearts as well as their home to the Lord Jesus. They wanted Him to rest there; and they knew how to talk with Him. In the midst of the bitter and dangerous pain caused by death, the two sisters sent Him a message: "Lord, behold, he whom You love is sick" [3]. The sisters did not ask for the healing of their brother. Moreover, they did not ask the Lord to leave His service and visit them in their difficult circumstances.

Lazarus died and the Lord told His disciples: "Our friend Lazarus sleeps, but I go that I may wake him up." The Lord called death as a sleep for any person who adhered to the Lord Jesus Christ -to the Resurrection- is not touched by death. Death for such a person is seen as a blessing and a time of rest.

Four days after the death of Lazarus, the Lord Jesus Christ came to the Village. Martha met Him and began to reproach Him: "Lord, if You had been here, my brother would not have died. But even now, I know that whatever You ask of God, God will give You" [22]. The Lord assured her that her brother will rise up again. She proclaimed her faith that her brother would rise again at the last day. Therefore the Lord told her: 'I am the resurrection and the life' [25].

The Lord could not bear to see the tears of the sisters and 'Jesus wept' [35]. He sympathizes with us! He is amazing in His love for mankind. He could not bear to see their tears, and He says: "Turn your eyes away from Me, for they have overcome Me" (song of Solomon 6:5). He went to the grave and asked the mourners to roll away the stone that sealed the grave; so Martha said: "Lord, by this time there is a stench, for he has been dead four days!"

St. Augustine comments that the raising of Lazarus from the dead is not a source of amazement, but rather a source of joy to us. He explains that it is not surprising that the One who has the power to create people into the world is able to raise the dead, yet what makes us rejoice is that He grants us the resurrection and blesses us with salvation<sup>1</sup>.

St. Augustine notes that the three other Gospels mention that the Lord raised three people from the dead. He finds that, these miracles carry implications that relate to our salvation: the Lord raised these bodies to indicate the resurrection of our souls.

The Lord raised the daughter of one of the rulers of the synagogue. She was lying in her home (Mark 5:41-43)...may everyone be concerned about his soul; for in sin there is death: sin is the death of the soul. Sometimes we commit sin just in our thoughts. You might find pleasure in what is evil and agree to go along. You are mistaken; for this agreement brings you death. However, it is an inner death since evil thoughts have not matured or become transformed into committed acts as yet. The Lord proclaims that He wishes to resurrect such souls to life. He raised this young girl who had not been carried out for burial yet. She lay dead at home. It is as though sin was not apparent till that time in her life.

Nevertheless, if you not only embrace a feeling of pleasure in evil thoughts but also engage in evil acts, it can be concluded that the dead one has been carried outside the door. Then you would be carried outside and actually carried to your grave. In spite of that, the Lord still raised such a dead one to life when He restored the youth alive to his widowed mother. Repent when you sin for the Lord will raise you up and restore you to the church who is your mother.

The third example of death is that of Lazarus. This is a serious case of death that is particularly marked by sin turned into a habit of committing evil. Falling into sin is one issue, whereas committing sin out of habit is another matter. A person who falls into sin, but promptly submits to reform, rises up to life quickly for he has not fallen into the net of evil habit and has not been laid into the grave so far. However, a person who has submitted to the habit of evil doing is someone who has been buried and of whom this saying is true: ‘there is stench.’ This is because that person is characterized by bad reputation. All such people have become used to commit crimes and have abandoned morality... in spite of that, the power of the Lord Jesus Christ is no less overwhelming and is able to restore life to them. We know and see people, daily, who become transformed and move away from the most evil habits. They become receptive to a kind of better life more than those who blame them... may no one despair or give in<sup>2</sup>.

* Out of all the miraculous deeds done by the Lord Jesus Christ, the raising of Lazarus from the dead occupies a rank of first importance in the preaching of His Word<sup>3</sup>.

1- Informing the Lord that Lazarus is Sick

Now a certain man was sick
Lazarus of Bethany,
The town of Mary and her sister, Martha. [1]

Lazarus: Probably the Hebrew name is ‘Eliazer’ that means ‘Jehovah helps him.’

Bethany: An Aramaic name that means ‘house of misery’ or ‘of suffering.’ It is the name of a village in the south east of Mount Olives- about two miles from Jerusalem. Today, it is known as Elazaria as a reference to the raising of Lazarus from the dead. We read about Mary and Martha in Luke 10:38 etc... that they lived in Galilee. If this is true, then they probably did not change their residence there at that time. It is clear that that home keeper was Martha, the other sister, who hosted her younger sister. St. John mentions Mary first though she is the younger one. The reason could be that Mary was the better known in the early church. She is the one who washed the feet of the Lord Jesus Christ with sweet smelling oil (12:3). Besides, she is the one who chose the ‘good part which will not be taken away from her’ (Luke 10:42).

Mary: A Hebrew name that means ‘rebellion’; Martha: The feminine word for the Aramaic word that means ‘educator/lady’

It was that Mary who anointed the Lord with fragrant oil
And wiped His feet with her hair,
Whose brother Lazarus was sick. [2]

* This Mary is not the adulterous woman mentioned in the Gospel of St. Luke (7:37-50); for the one mentioned there is one who had committed many bad deeds. The Mary mentioned here by St. John is an honorable woman steadfast in virtue. She persevered in hospitality to the Lord<sup>4</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Therefore the sisters sent to Him, saying:
“Lord, behold, he whom you love is sick.” [3]

No prayer could be simpler than this short prayer. It is full of confidence and submission of the matter into hands of the Lord Jesus Christ. They were satisfied to present the case to Him without asking for anything, without requesting the Lord to come to solve the matter and support them. Probably, they did not ask Him to go to them because of what they had heard a little bit earlier (in the previous chapter) how the Jews in Jerusalem had tried to stone Him; and how He had gone beyond the Jordan to disable them from achieving their intentions. Therefore the sisters did not wish to put Him in a dangerous, life threatening situation. At the same time, Lazarus was a friend of the Lord’s and so they were satisfied with informing Him of their brother’s sickness. They were confident that the Lord would definitely do something.

The sisters neither mentioned the kind of sickness, nor their relationship to Lazarus who was their brother. They just indicated that he is the one ‘whom You love.’ We know that the Lord loves all mankind; everyone could sense His gentleness, tenderness and love. However, the expression used by the sisters reveals that the Lord Jesus Christ devoted a special loving relationship with the sick. The sisters did not indicate in their message if the sickness was serious. They might have done so to avoid disturbing Him.

* Why did they not act as the honorable centurion- He left his sick one and went to the Lord. Why they did not go to Him instead of sending Him a message? They had great trust in the Lord and they had strong family ties. Besides, they were weak women overwhelmed with sorrow<sup>5</sup>!

St. John Chrysostom

* It is enough for you to know, for You are not like those who love and forget. If God did not love sinners, He would not have descended from the heavens to the earth<sup>6</sup>.

St. Augustine

When Jesus heard that, He said:
“This sickness is not unto death,
But for the glory of God,
That the Son of God may be glorified through it.” [4]

The Lord proclaimed that this death was not a final one in this life. It was a temporary one that was allowed so that God may be glorified through His power to raise the dead.

Some scholars consider that the word ‘glorified’ is used here to indicate an act that a person willingly does due to his love and wish to serve others even though it appears to be below his actual rank. This word is often used in this sense throughout St. John’s Gospel. Such acts do not impose obligations on others. This is especially true when the Lord speaks about the crucifixion as the glory of the Son and the Father, where the Son sacrifices Himself to grant the redemption and eternal glory of sinners. Our Savior is eternally driven by His love to work miracles. Often the subject of the raising of Lazarus from the dead is associated with the glory of the Lord’s cross for this miracle anticipate and prepared for His eventual crucifixion.

* We appropriately get astonished at the sisters of Lazarus. After they had heard that their brother’s sickness would not end in death. They found him dead. However, they were not shaken when events proved contrary to that. In spite of everything, they hurried to the Lord and did not utter a bad word<sup>7</sup>.

* Notice that the Lord states that the glory due to Him and to His Father is one and the same: ‘for the glory of God’; then Lord goes on to say: ‘that the Son of God may be glorified through Him.’

St. John Chrysostom

* Glorifying God does not add anything to the honor due to Him. Yet it adds to our honor, this is clarified by the Lord’s words: ‘not unto death.’ For even that visible death is not death in itself but rather was used to perform a miracle leading people to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Consequently, they would escape from the real death<sup>8</sup>.

St. Augustine

‘Now Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus.’ [5]

The reference here is to the Lord’s love for Martha as she is the older sister, then to Mary and Lazarus. The Lord felt comfortable with the family as a whole. Each member felt he had a personal relationship with the Lord who cared and loved them. Each member felt that he had a special place in the Lord’s embrace and love.

* If you were to ask: ‘Why did the Evangelist state clearly here that the Lord loved Lazarus?’ Our response would be: ‘So that we may not be disappointed nor abandon the Lord when good men, who are steadfast in virtue and loved by God, get sick<sup>9</sup>’

St. John Chrysostom

* One is sick and two are sorrowful: however, the One who loves them is the Rescuer of the sick. He is even more powerful as He raises the dead and comforts those who mourn<sup>10</sup>.

St. Augustine

“So when He heard that he was sick,
He stayed two more days in the place where He was.” [6]

With the Lord Jesus Christ, there is for everything an appropriate time. It depends on His divine thought and not on our own human timing. At the wedding in Cana, His mother had told Him ‘they have no wine’ (John 2:3). He answered: “My hour has not yet come” (John 2:4). In these circumstances, we would expect that the Lord would hurry and go to Bethany to support His loved ones. However, we find that He remains where He was for two days. He knows the right time for every work.

In all the previous miracles, the Lord was concerned with underling His love to all sufferers. Here, He delays as He wishes to underline a certain fact through His love for the whole family. He wanted to confirm that He is ‘the Resurrection’ for the time of His death and resurrection were about to happen. That is why the Lord did not hurry to heal Lazarus of his sickness, and He did not go immediately after his death. Indeed, He let him remain in the tomb until the fourth day and until his body decayed. In this manner, everyone who grants life and resurrection even after the body has decayed.

* Why did He stay? So that Lazarus may breathe his last breath and be buried. In that manner, no one could claim that he had not died and that he was just in a deep sleep; or that he had fainted but had not died. For this reason the Lord waited for two days when decay takes place and the sisters would state that there is ‘a stench’ [39]<sup>11</sup>.

Then after this, He said to the disciples:
“Let us go to Judea again.” [7]

By telling His disciples: ‘Let us go to Judea again’ [7], the Lord underlines His mercy even to those who are undeserving. Although Judea was not ready to receive Him, He requests to go another time to those who had rejected Him. The Lord does not cease to offer opportunities to every soul, even though it had rejected Him before, so that it might find pleasure in Him...

* Why did the Lord inform His disciples here about His destination. Note that He did not do so in any other instances. They were in great fear, therefore He notified them in advance to avoid confusing them should any surprises occur.<sup>12</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

The disciples said to Him,
“Rabbi, lately the Jews sought to stone You
And are You going there again?” [8]

Just a few weeks ago the Jews wanted to stone Him in the temple during the Feast of Dedication (John 10:31).

* They advised Him because they wanted to save the Lord from death. Yet, He had come to die in order to save them from death<sup>13</sup>.

St. Augustine

* They were concerned about His safety, but they were even more so about themselves. They were not perfect and it was on this account that Thomas was shaken with fear and said: ‘Let us also go, that we may die with Him.’ This was because Thomas was the weakest and had the least faith than the others. Nevertheless, see how the Lord encouraged them by His words: “Are there not twelve hours in the day?” [9]<sup>14</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

Jesus answered:
“Are there not twelve hours in the day?
If any walks in the day, he does not stumble,
Because he sees the light of this world.” [9]

Our path is full of stumbling blocks. He who walks in the light does not stumble. However, those who remain in darkness will stumble. He on whom the sun of righteousness shines will be enlightened; and he will soar from glory to glory. Stumbling, blocks will appear trivial to such a person. Indeed these will be the cause of his victory and crown. As for those who follow the lusts of their bodies, the thoughts of the evil world, and the pride in his heart, these will continue to stumble. Moreover, they will present endless excuses.

The Lord did not fear death for He is the light before whom the powers of darkness will not be able to stand. In the same manner, all those who stay under His wings will walk fearlessly throughout his days of estrangement. They will walk free of fear, confusion and anxiety.

The Jews, like many other nations, used to divide the day from sunrise to sunset into 12 sections or hours that extend or decrease according to the different seasons in the year.

The journey from across the sky does not begin at night when man leaves the earth. It begins in the daytime when he is struggling through life; while he is confident that, through the grace of God, he is moving towards his eternity. God granted us the hours of the day as valuable opportunities to work. These are precious when we spend them appropriately, otherwise they become worthless.

* The Lord indicates that He is the day. He has chosen 12 disciples and says: If I am the day and you are the hours, do the hours give advice to the day? The hours follow the day and not vice versa. He indicates that He is the spiritual day. May the hours listen to the Day, may they preach in the daytime for you become known and enlightened in the daytime. Through hourly preaching, the world gets to believe in the Day. He has summed it up in His brief words: “Follow Me, if you do not want to stumble”

St. Augustine

“But if one walks in the night, he stumbles
Because the light is not in him.” [10]

* The Lord spoke these words to reveal that anyone, who feels here is no evil within him, will not be touched by any fearful matter. Conversely, those who do evil will be caught in it. Therefore we should not be afraid for we are doing nothing that deserves death. Or He could be saying that those who see the light of this world are safe. And if this is truly the case, then how much safer are those who are with Me and as long as they do not isolate themselves from Me?! The Lord encouraged His disciples by these words and added that the purpose of their trip to Judea was necessary for them since they had to go to Bethany and not to Jerusalem [11, 12]<sup>15</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

These things He said, after that He said to them:
“Our friend Lazarus sleeps,
But I go that I may wake him up.” [11]

The Lord calls a believer ‘our friend.’ He did say ‘My friend’ for we have signed a covenant with God by which He has made us not only His friend, but a friend of the whole Church, since He is a member of that Church. The death of Lazarus did not mark the end of the friendship between Lazarus and the Lord and the whole Church. He remains a friend of the Lord and of the whole church throughout all ages.

*It is as though He is saying: ‘This time I am going there with a different purpose. I was there earlier in order to discuss and struggle with the Jews. However, I am going this time in order to raise our friend, Lazarus'<sup>16</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

The Lord speaks about death and calls it 'sleep.' Sleep indicates physical rest as it helps restore the energy of the body. Thus a person wakes up to start in new day fully active and energetic. This is true as well in the case of the sleep of death; for a believer, when he goes to sleep, rises up into a new life armed with new potentials in a new world.

* Truly, it is not said about saints that they are dead, but rather that they are laying down or resting.<sup>17</sup>

St. Jerome

In the eyes of his sister, Lazarus was dead. However, in the Lord's eyes, he was sleeping. He is dead in the eyes of mankind who are unable to bring him back to life; whereas the Lord can very easily raise him out of the grave and as though He is simply waking up Lazarus from his sleep. By His power, the Lord speaks with him as with someone who is asleep. Similarly the Holy Bible speaks to others as though they were asleep and who are most probably dead. In that context, the apostles says: "But I do not want you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning those who have fallen asleep, lest you sorrow as others who have no hope' (1 Thes 4:13). That is why he also speaks about them as those laying down to rest. The Lord had informed them previously about His resurrection. In that manner, all the dead are resting or laying down - whether they are righteous or wicked<sup>18</sup>.

St. Augustine

St. Augustine believes that all the dead are more like people asleep. However, some may have happy dreams, while other have nightmares. Or they are like people in a temporary storage area. However, some - like Lazarus, the poor man - enjoying being in his father Abraham's embrace; while the foolish rich man suffered great thirst and could not find anyone to grant him a drop of water ( Luke 16:19-31) Everyone will be called out to receive according to his deeds<sup>19</sup>.

* You might be disturbed when you would be called a 'widow' only because you have lost a good husband. We agree with you that in this world there are few men who are as good as your man. Few are like him: loving, noble, humble, devoted, wise and pure.

Indeed, if he were completely destroyed and altogether beyond recovery, then this would be a great catastrophe and the cause of great sadness. However, what actually happened is that your husband has sailed to a quiet harbor and has gone on a journey to God to whom he really belongs. Therefore we should not mourn and instead rejoice.

For this death is not death. Rather, it is a kind of migration and a transfer what is bad to what is better: from the earth to the heavens; from living among mankind to being with angels and archangels; even better for we will be with God who is Lord of the angels and archangels.

When your husband lived, he served the emperor and he was surrounded by the dangers of the wicked and their tricks. Now, he has moved into the other world where nothing like it exists. Therefore as much as you are sad that God has taken such a good and honorable person, you need to rejoice that he has gone to a more secure and honorable place and is relieved of all the dangers of the present life. Indeed, he is now safe and enjoying great peace.

Surely, we do not need someone to inform us that heaven is much better than the earth. Therefore, why do we mourn when someone departs from this world to go to the other world?!

If your husband were one of those who lead shameful lives that displease God, you would be justified to mourn and weep. Indeed, you would be justified to do so even while he was here and alive. However, as much as he is among the friends of God we need to rejoice while he is alive as well as when he departs and lays down to rest.

We need to do so as the blessed apostle tells us: ‘having a desire to depart and be with Christ, which is far better’ (Phil 1:23).<sup>20</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

‘Then His disciples said, “Lord, if he sleeps he will get well.” [12]

Sleep is often a good sign that a sick person is healing. That is true especially when it is a deep sleep. That is why when the Lord said that Lazarus was asleep, the disciples believed that it was no longer necessary for Him to go to Judea in order to heal him. They considered that he had begun to heal through that deep sleep. The disciples could not imagine they had to take a two or three day trip with the Lord and go to an area that had resisted Him just to wake up a friend out of his sleep.

‘However, Jesus spoke of his death, but they thought that He was speaking about taking rest in sleep.’ [13]
Then Jesus said to them plainly,
“Lazarus is dead.” [14]

*The Lord used the word ‘sleep’ to underline that He rejected boastfulness. Then He added the word ‘dead’ when they did not understand!<sup>21</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

“And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, that you may believe, nevertheless let us go to him.”[15]

When Lazarus died and everyone had lost hope he would awake again, the Lord moved in their direction to proclaim that He is the hope of those who have no hope and that He is the helper of those who have no one to help them. When mankind says: ‘Our bones are dry, our hope is lost, we ourselves are cut off’ (Ezek 37:11); then Lord God says: ‘Behold, O My people, I will open your graves and cause you to come up from your graves, then you shall know that I am the

<sup>20</sup> Letter to a Young Widow, 3

Lord, when I have opened your graves, O My people and brought you up from your graves.'

* Why does the Lord say 'for your sakes'? In order to avoid doubt or suspicious of deception, I am informing you in advance about the death of Lazarus. Do you notice how the disciples were not completely comfortable in their roles and how unaware they were of the power they had? This was due to the great fear that filled their hearts. Besides, they suffered much anxiety and difficulty within themselves. When the Lord said that Lazarus was 'asleep', He added 'I go to wake him up' as He did not wish to inform them about what He would do actually. The Lord constantly teaches us to avoid vain glory, and useless promises. However, He did that in the case of the centurion when the Lord told him; 'go and I will heal him' (Matt 8:7). This was because of the man's great faith. If someone were to say: 'how did the disciples think that Lazarus was asleep? How did they not understand that the Lord was speaking about death when He said: "I go that I may wake him up." It is foolish to understand that the Lord would travel fifteen hundred stadia in order to wake Lazarus up. Our answer is that the disciples believed the Lord was speaking in the mysterious manner which He often used when He spoke to them<sup>22</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

The Lord did not say: 'Let us go to console his sisters.' Rather, He said 'let us go to him.' This is because death cannot separate the Lord Jesus Christ and His church from a departed one. Everyone would go to Him in love and meet with him as a living member in the body of the Lord Jesus Christ. The Lord said 'let us go' and not 'I will go.' He intends to include the whole church to go with Him and meet with those who have rested in sleep.

'Then Thomas, who is called Didymus, said to his fellow disciples:
'Let us also go,
that we may die with Him" [16]

'Thomas' is the equivalent of the Greek word 'Didymus' which means 'a twin.' The disciples were annoyed because of his words. It was hard to understand his intention- was he showing courage and therefore a disregard for death? He seemed to agree that they should all go with the Lord Jesus Christ and get exposed to the death awaiting Him. It was as though he were saying, like Ruth "where you die, I will die and there will I be buried" (Ruth 1:17). He preferred to be in the Lord's company, even if that would cost him death; rather than live and not be in the company of the Lord. Or did he speak in this manner out of fear or as a kind of objection?

* The disciples dreaded facing the Jews and Thomas was the most fearful. Therefore he said 'Let us go that we may die with Him.' In fact, he was the least determined and the least steadfast in his faith compared to the other disciples.

* Some believe that he wanted to die (with the Lord Jesus Christ). Yet that was not the case as the words come from a person who was scared. However, the Lord did not reprimand him but rather supported him. Later on, Thomas became unvanquished and stronger than all the others. The amazing thing is that we see this weak person before the crucifixion took place. After the crucifixion and his belief in the Lord's resurrection, he becomes more zealous than any other person. Great is the power of the Lord Jesus Christ!

That same person who dared not go with the Lord to Bethany, is the same one who could not visibly see the Lord and yet traveled alone the whole world to witness for Him. With that mission, he lived among nations where killing was rampant, and where they sought to kill him<sup>23</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

5. The Lord's Journey to Lazarus' family.

'So when Jesus came, He found that he had already been in the tomb four days.'
[17]

Other evangelists record some of the events that occurred during this journey towards Bethany. For example, the healing of the blind man in Jericho, the meeting with Zacchaeus and his conversion. Although the Lord loved Lazarus and his sisters and was on His way to raise him from the dead, yet, He did not dismiss the needs of others. Where ever He went, He made good deeds.

St. Augustine finds that the four days that elapsed with Lazarus in the tomb refer to human stages. The first day is the day Adam and Eve fell and sinned and so death reigned on Adam and all his children. The second day refers to mankind who have broken the natural law and testimony of God. The third day refers to breaking the Law of Moses. The final fourth stage refers to the period when the Gospel is being preached and the Lord Jesus Christ has granted a new resurrected life to those who have died in sin<sup>24</sup>.

The Jews held a belief that the soul continues to roam around the body for three days after death; and that on the fourth day it departs having lost all hope of returning to the body again<sup>25</sup>. Therefore, on the fourth day all hope for the person to return to the world once is lost.

'Now Bethany was near Jerusalem, about two miles away' [18].

The Lord Jesus Christ had done countless miracles in Galilee. From among all the miracles He did in Jerusalem, St John the Evangelist chooses to recount those with special significance to the people and leaders. For example, he recounts the healing of the paralyzed man at Bethesda who had been infirm for thirty eight (38) years; the healing of the man born blind; and the raising of Lazarus on the fourth day after his death.

Bethany is about two miles away from Jerusalem and the Jewish mile is equivalent to four and half kilometers.

* The Evangelist intends to mention this to inform us that the village of Bethany is close to Jerusalem. Probably this would explain why so many people had gone there<sup>26</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

<sup>24</sup> St Augustine: On the Gospel of St John, tractate cf 49:12

<sup>25</sup> Leon Morris, p. 409

‘And many of the Jews had joined the women around Martha and Mary to comfort them concerning their brother.’ [19]

According to Jewish tradition, mourning lasted for about one month. The first three days were known as ‘days of mourning’; followed by seven days, known as ‘days of condolences.’ During the days of mourning the members of the house did nothing and would not even return someone’s greeting. However, during the days of condolence they did nothing more than their needs: they slept on bedding laid out on the floor, they did not wear shoes, and neither washed nor used oil on their bodies. They covered their heads but did not read out of their law or Mishnah or Talmud. During the rest of the thirty days, they did not shave, wear white clothes or new ones; neither did they mend any damage in the clothes they wore to the funeral<sup>27</sup>.

The word ‘Jews’ is used in this Gospel to refer to the opponents of the Lord Jesus Christ. That is why some scholars believe that these people, while opposing the Lord, felt the extent of this catastrophe and so came to Martha and Mary. They had not come for a brief visit. Indeed, they intended to stay with the family of the departed one for two or three days. This was observed especially when the departed was the head of the household.

* How could they comfort the sisters when they knew that the Lord loved them? Had not the Jews declared that anyone who confessed that this person was the Messiah would be banished from the Sanhedrin? Our answer is: they offered condolences either on account of their loss or because the sisters were respected and were more honorable than others. Or it could be that those who had come were not evil since many of them had believed in the Lord Jesus Christ.

St. John Chrysostom

‘Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went to meet Him, but Mary was sitting in the house.’ [20]

It seems that Martha was eagerly awaiting the Lord’s arrival. She needed Him to comfort her and her sister. Upon hearing that He was on the way to the house, she abandoned all decorum and traditions of mourning as well as the mourners who were visiting her; and hurried to meet the Lord. She left the house as well as the village and met Him outside. As for Mary, she remained in the house- probably her sorrow prevented her from moving quickly; or it could be that she had not heard of the Lord’s arrival.

Some scholars believe that Martha was the older one who managed the house (Luke 10:40).

* If we were to say: What was Martha’s intention when she left without her sister and went to meet the Lord? Our answer would be: She wanted to speak to Him privately and inform Him of what had taken place. However, when He revealed great hope, she went and called Mary. At that time, Mary was suffering the deepest degrees of sorrow.

Do you not see how great her love was?

This is the Mary of whom the Lord had said: “Mary has chosen that good part” (Luke

---

10:42)

Someone may say: ‘How did Martha appear more fervent than her?’ She might have appeared as such, but she was not actually. For Mary had not yet heard of His arrival. Indeed Martha was weaker; when she had listened to the Lord’s words, she spoke like a child who was learning to walk: ‘Lord, by this time there is a stench, for he has been dead four days’ [39]. In contrast, Mary immediately believed, and did not speak as Martha, although she had not heard the Lord’s words of hope<sup>28</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘Then Martha said to Jesus: “Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died.” [21]

Martha’s words are the same ones Mary said later on. This indicates that they had not yet fully comprehended the reality of the Lord Jesus Christ. They had not yet realized that He is present everywhere. They believed that His presence could have prevented death from touching their brother. Moreover, they trusted His tenderness and gentleness compassion. Yet, their faith was as a shaking reed which the Lord would support and strengthen rather than break it.

“But even now I know that whatever You ask of God, God will give You.” [22]

Martha blamed herself and corrected her words with the Lord Jesus Christ. She believed that if the Lord asked of His Father anything -her brother’s resurrection- even though her brother had died- His request would be answered. She dared not ask Him to resurrect her brother. However, she asked for that indirectly and left it up to Him to decide whether to raise Lazarus or not.

She believed that if the Lord prayed God for anything, He would get it. However, she did not realize that He was Life and that He possessed life in Himself: what He did was done through His own power for He is One with the Father.

* Do you see their heavenly wisdom (Mary and Martha)? Even though their resolve was weak, yet they did not collapse into wailing when they saw the Lord. They did not indulge in excessive sorrowful expressions of mourning, such as we would if we saw a number of our acquaintances entering our home in such a situation. The sisters considered the Lord Jesus Christ to be a Teacher and so they believed in Him. However, they did not comprehend the extent of His sublime honor and power. This is evident in Martha’s words: “I know that whatever You ask of God, God will give You.” The sisters spoke to the Lord as they would to someone who is steadfast in virtue and therefore all his prayers would be answered<sup>29</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘Jesus said to her: your brother will rise again.’[23]

The Lord’s response to Martha reveals deep humility and compassion, for He tells her: “Your brother will rise again’ [23]

---

* In this manner, the Lord dismisses her words ‘whatever you ask’ [22], for He did not say ‘I ask.’ What did He say? “Your brother will rise again.” He could have said: “Woman, you continue to look down below. I do not need help from anyone, for I do everything by my own power.” However, this would have been a serious stumbling block to her. By saying “Your brother will rise again”, the Lord spoke as one who chose to speak in a moderate tone<sup>30</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

‘Martha said to Him,

“I know that he will rise again in the resurrection the last day” [24]

The subject of the resurrection from the dead was deeply rooted in the minds of the Jews. Only the Sadducees rejected it. The holy books that were written after the exile were full of teachings about that subject (2 Kings 7:9, 14, 23, 36; 12:43; 14:46; Eccl 5:1-7, 17; 6:6, 7). Jewish writings such as those by the historian Josephus and other translations speak about that.

‘Jesus said to her,

“I am the resurrection and the life.

He who believes in Me, though he may die, he shall live.” [25]

* By these words, the Lord revealed His authority. He revealed that He did not need anyone to help Him since He Himself is the life. Had He been in need of someone else, how could He have been the resurrection and the life? In spite of that, the Lord implied this in His words rather than declaring it openly<sup>31</sup>.

* He demonstrated that He is the giver of all goodness, and that it is appropriate to ask of Him<sup>32</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“And whoever lives and believes in Me

Shall never die.

Do you believe this?”[26]

It is as though the Lord was telling her: ‘You say that your brother will arise on the Day of Judgment. Who will raise him up other than Me who grants resurrection and am the source of life? Since I have authority to raise him on the last day, would it be hard for me to raise him now? In this manner, the Lord Jesus Christ opened the door of hope before her. He supported her faith and revealed Himself to her. He is not merely a person. Rather, He is the giver of life and of the whole of existence.

Everyone who believes, even though he dies according to the flesh, will arise and fully enjoy fellowship in His glory. He will no longer die after the death of the body; but will appear in a glorified body with the soul. The believer will thus practice the resurrected life forever. The Lord does not say that the believer will not go through the gate we call death. Rather, He states that the life He grants continues through death: Death cannot delete the life that the Lord Jesus Christ has granted to us.

* Note how the Lord uplifts Martha's mind. It was not His intention to just raise Lazarus; for He wanted Martha and all those present to learn of this resurrection. That is why He spoke these words before He raise up Lazarus<sup>33</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

The Lord asked Martha “Do you believe this?” It is as though He were asking her to have the kind of faith that defies nature and death. Her answer came with steadfastness and firmness- there was no hesitation and conveyed affirmation.

She said to Him, “Yes Lord,
I believe that You are the Christ, the Son of God, who is to come into the world.”
[27]

Martha declared her confession of faith with all due sincerity: “You are the Christ, the Son of God, who is to come into the world”, [27]. This is the same confession of faith that the apostle Peter declared and for which the Lord praised him (Matt 16:16-17). Her confession of faith includes three main issues:

- Jesus is the Messiah, the One the fathers and the prophets awaited. During the 1st century, many of the Jews awaited His coming eagerly.
- He is the natural Son of God (Ps 2:7)
- He came into the world to form it into His holy church: this would include all peoples and not the Jews only.

Since He is the Messiah and Savior of the world and the natural Son of God who had descended to the world to raise it, then He is definitely the life and the Resurrection.

* The Lord certainly raised her humble opinion of Him so that she would not consider Him to be just someone in the crowd. She did not call Him Lord unknowingly, for she did so to restore the honor due to Him. She spoke these words to honor Him and this is revealed again in the words she spoke later on. She neither laughed nor joked and had no doubts at any point<sup>34</sup>.

* It seems to us that the woman did not understand the Lord's words. Even though she realized their gravity, yet she did not fully comprehend them. That is why she gave a different response to the question she had been asked<sup>35</sup>.

* She did not say: ‘Raise my brother.’ Rather, she said: “I believe that you are the Christ, the Son of God, who is to come into the world.”

St. John Chrysostom

‘And when she had said these things, she went her way and secretly called her sister, saying:

<sup>35</sup> Hom 62. PG 59:372

‘The Teacher has come,
And is calling for you.’ [28]

Martha did not wait to hear praise on account of her faith. However, she gained new concepts through this meeting with the Lord. In a short while, she had gained a new experience. She then went to call her sister so that she might share the pleasure she had received. The Lord had asked about Mary as she had not come with her sister. Martha called her secretly because she was surrounded by many mourners. Maybe some of them- men or women- were opposed to the Lord and could not tolerate Him. Martha feared her invitation might cause a disturbance that would prevent Mary from coming out quickly to meet with the Lord and enjoy His comforting presence.

We make the following observations about her secret conversation with her sister concerning the Lord’s arrival:

First: She called Him ‘Teacher’/ *Didaskalos. His consolation does not involve more emotions. Rather, He reveals love, tenderness and unique facts of faith. He is able to attract His beloved disciples and friends to divine consolation.

Second: ‘He has come’: The One whom we have been awaiting for so long, and whom we often have prayed for His coming.

Third: “He is calling for you”: for He has inquired about you by name. This is because He cares for you and seeks your peace and desires to console your heart.

‘As soon as she heard that, she arose quickly
And came to Him.’ [29]

Upon hearing the Lord’s call from her sister’s lips, ‘she arose quickly and came to Him.’ St. John Chrysostom comments on this noble behavior and credits her for behaving with true philosophy- in other words, with the wisdom that does not seek trivial, unprofitable matters; but rather, that which is truly for her good. On account of her wisdom, she was blessed. Who would imagine that a woman who had lost her brother a few days earlier, and was surrounded by many mourners, who were wailing and weeping, would hurry out at once? Upon hearing about the Lord, she does not wait for Him to come to her and console her? Rather, she ran outside the village to meet the Lord; while the woman around her imagined that she was going to the tomb to weep over her brother!

How badly is our need to divert our eyes from the bitterness that enfolds us in the midst of our tears and trials. We need not be concerned about the burdensome mourners who are unable to offer true peace. Indeed, we need to let our inner depths hurry towards the One who comes to us and fills us with His heavenly consolation. Let us truly avoid all formalities, so that we may lift our hearts with the Holy Spirit of God to our Lord Jesus Christ. He alone is the Healer of our souls and bodies. He is the One who grants life and resurrection. He is the Almighty who constantly initiates love.

How much does the soul need to depart from the midst of the valley of tears, leave all the problems which destroy her and ignore every human comment. The soul needs to do so in order to get away and move in hope towards the One who alone is able to transform her through His Holy Spirit, satisfy her, and raise her to everlasting life!

The constant preoccupation with our sorrows results in a depression that is far more bitter than actual sorrows themselves. In contrast, meeting with the Lord Jesus Christ grants us the gladness of the resurrected life and its constant rejoicing.

* Note, for example, how this woman received her reward through her genuinely wise behavior. When there were all those women sitting around her, when she was weeping and sorrowful; yet she did not wait and expect that the Lord should come to her. Neither did she ask for what seemed to be her right (for sorrowful women are handicapped by this epidemic which is that they exaggerate their condition besides they're actual misery). As for Martha, she did not behave that way and as soon as she heard, she rose quickly and ran to Him<sup>36</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

'Now Jesus had not yet come into the town,
But was in the place where Martha met Him.' [30]

With divine wisdom, the Lord Jesus Christ moved exceedingly slowly in order to give Martha the opportunity to hurry and call her sister. He also gives Mary the chance to hurry and come to Him. They would then go together with Him to the tomb where He would transform their sorrow into sublime joy. In the same manner, the Lord seems to be slow in solving our problems although He seeks our happiness. He wishes to give us the opportunity to turn to Him and express our inner most thoughts with living faith and steadfast hope. Then we may hurry to Him to discover His sublime and hidden divine plan for us.

* St. John reports that the Lord Jesus Christ 'had not yet come into the town, but was in the place where Martha met Him.' He was walking slowly so that no one would think that He was propelling Himself to do a miracle. Rather, He was waiting until they would ask Him for that.

St. John Chrysostom

'Then the Jews who were with her in the house, comforting her,
When they saw that Mary rose up quickly and went out,
Followed her, saying,
"She is going to the tomb to weep there." [31]

Martha called her sister secretly, informed her that the Lord had asked about her [28], she pulled her away from her weeping and away from the mourners, and made her hurry towards the Lord. In this manner, Mary, by her quiet movements, attracted all those who were with her in the house even though they did not know where they were going. Her love to the Savior, which she demonstrated in a practical way, attracted many to come into contact to see the One who raises the dead.

* She did not go alone, but rather attracted the Jews who were in her house. With great wisdom, Mary called her sister secretly to avoid disturbing those who were gathered in her home. She did not indicate the reason for her conversation. Surely they would have returned to their homes had they overheard. However, now that she went out crying, they followed her. Probably, this would have confirmed the death of Lazarus<sup>37</sup>.

---

St. John Chrysostom

‘Then, when Mary came where Jesus was and saw Him,
She fell at His feet, saying to Him,
“Lord, if You had been here, my brother would not have died.” [32]

The Lord did not enter the village, or the home of Lazarus and his sisters. He only met the sisters and then went with the crowd to the tomb. He Loves His work, and He had come to go to the tomb where He would fulfill His task without delay.

* This Mary was more eager than her sister, Martha. She was neither embarrassed before the crowd, nor of the suspicions which took hold of many concerning the Lord. Many among the mourners were His enemies and these said: “Could not this Man, who opened the eyes of the blind, also have kept this man from dying?” However, when the Master came, she banished all deadly thoughts, and resolved with a strong will to honor the Teacher<sup>38</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

6- Raising Lazarus from the Dead

‘Therefore, when Jesus saw her weeping
And the Jews who came with her weeping,
He groaned in the spirit and was troubled.’ [33]

This situation reveals that the Lord Jesus Christ has indeed become a person with human emotions. He empathizes with those suffering and weeps with those weeping: He is a Man of sorrows (Is 53:3). He was never seen laughing, but he was seen weeping in more than one situation

* The Lord said nothing to Mary. He did not utter the words He had said to her sister, Martha due to the big crowd who was present. It was not the time to say anything; yet He revealed His human nature humbly for He did not desire them to imagine that He was more than that.

St. John Chrysostom

* You may become troubled involuntarily, whereas the Lord Jesus Christ chose to be troubled voluntarily.

The Lord Jesus Christ became hungry. However, this is only because He wanted it to be so.

He was sad. This is a fact; yet it was as He willed it to be. He has the power to be one or the other; to be moved or to be unmoved. That is because the Word had taken on a soul and body. Therefore He carried in Him the same human nature yet this was united with the holy Word and at one with the Lord, Jesus Christ. In this manner, the Word who possesses sublime power, uses weakness at His will- therefore He was ‘troubled’<sup>39</sup>.

St. Augustine

And He said: “Where have you laid him?”

They said to Him, “Lord, come and see.” [34]

* If you were to ask: Why did the Lord ask this question? Our answer would be: He did not wish to make the first move. He wanted to know from them what had happened and to pray Him to make a miracle. This was because He wanted to clear the miracle of all false claims.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord Jesus Christ will come to your tomb. He may find Martha, the woman who offers righteous services and Mary who sincerely holds the word of God. Mary is like the holy church of God that has chosen the good path. They wept and He tenderly shared their grief.

When you will die, the Lord will find many weeping, He will say: “Where have you laid her/ him?” In other words: at what point is she/ he condemned?

What is her/ his rank among the repentant?

I wish to see the one over whom you are weeping, so that I may be moved by his tears. I will find out if he actually has died of sin; then I will treat him with forgiveness.

The people tell Him: “Come and see.”

What does ‘come’ mean? That the remission of sins may come, may life and resurrection be granted to the departed one... May Your kingdom come to this sinner as well<sup>40</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* How amazing! The One who came to raise Lazarus from the dead appears not to know where he had been buried, and He asks “Where have you laid him?” [34]. Many of the fathers correctly comment that God, who knows all things, appears as someone who does not know the place of darkness. Neither does He know evil nor evil ones. Accordingly, when Adam sinned in Paradise, God asked: ‘Where are you? (Gen 3: 9). On judgment day, God will tell the wicked: ‘I do not know you’ (Matt 7:23). In this passage too, the Lord asks “Where have you laid him?”

* I do not see you in My light and in the righteousness which I know<sup>41</sup>.

* What does “see” convey? Be patient: for the Lord perceives and is moved. That is why we ask Him to ‘look at our humility and pain and to Him forgive us our sins’ (Matt 9:13)<sup>42</sup>.

St Augustine

‘Jesus wept.’ [35]

In the Greek version, the verb ‘wept’, used in this passage, is used in a form that is different to the form used to describe the weeping of Mary when she was surrounded by mourners. Here, it does not convey the loud wailing like them. Rather, it conveys that tears ran down His face. It is just a practical testimony to His deep feelings before the crowds; conveys how He shared the pain of the sorrowful who had not yet learned how to deal with death. The crowds saw in the Lord's tears a living testimony of how much the loved Lazarus [36].

St. John Chrysostom observes that every thing the Lord did was intended, by His divine wisdom, so that the crowds would benefit as a result of the miracle. On the one hand, he did not tell Mary, who was surrounded by the crowds, what He had told Martha when He met her alone earlier. He had spoken then about raising Lazarus. The crowds heard Him - many of them were hostile towards Him- they would have left and returned to Jerusalem and would have missed the resurrection of Lazarus. On the other hand, He confirmed His humanity in these moments so that the crowds would not resent any words regarding His divinity.

He wept silently. He was troubled and then took a deep breath as someone trying to control His agitation. He asked about the spot where the tomb was.... All this aroused questions in the mind of the Jews. They wished to know what He would do without resenting Him.

* What did the Lord Jesus Christ do? He did not enter into any form of dialogue with Mary at that time. He did not tell her what He had said to her sister as it was not convenient as there was a crowd. All His acts were measured and done with great humility in order to confirm His human nature. He wept silently and delayed the miracle at that time. It was going to be a great miracle and He was about to make a serious act that would lead many to believe. He did not want to do in the absence of the crowds for then they would find it hard to believe. They would stumble and not benefit by its greatness. He acted in a manner that would not make Him lose His catch. Therefore, He provided many proofs to testify to His humility and confirm His humanity. He wept and was troubled. Normally, sorrow arouses feelings and when He groaned in the spirit- in other words, He controlled His agitation and asked: “Where have you laid him?”[34]<sup>43</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord wept for Lazarus whom He would raise from the dead. He undoubtedly set an example to be like Him and to weep over our dead ones. It is true that He did not give us a commandment to do so; besides we have been granted the faith that they would rise up again to eternal life. In the Book of Wisdom, we are told to weep over the dead as one would who has suffered from great harm. However, we are then advised to be comforted as sorrow may lead to death and a sad heart may deplete strength (Sirach 38: 16- 19)<sup>44</sup>.

St Augustine

* To reveal that He has true human feelings, the Lord mourned for the one whom He would raise from the dead<sup>45</sup>.

St. Jerome

‘Then the Jews said:

“See how He loved him!”[36]

When the Jews saw the tears of the Lord, they said: “See how He loved Him.”[36]. We too, when we see His Blood dripping from His body on the cross, we worship Him and say: “See how He loves us!”

* Do you notice how the Lord showed no sign that He would raise Lazarus? He went, not as someone who would raise Lazarus, but rather as one who would mourn over him. That is how the Jews thought that the Lord was going in order to mourn and not to raise him. This is apparent from their words: “See how He loved him” [36].

St. John Chrysostom

‘And some said,
“Could not this Man, who opened the eyes of the blind, also have kept this man from dying?” [37]

In their ignorance, they imagined that the Lord’s tears indicated disability and incapacity to act. They did not realize that these were tears of love and compassion. Besides, just healing him, they could not understand that He could still raise Lazarus from the dead even after his body had decayed.

* The Jews in this passage admit that the Lord had opened the blind man’s eyes. However, they denied His power to bring Lazarus back to life.

St. John Chrysostom

‘Then Jesus, again groaning in Himself,
Came to the tomb.
It was a cave
And a stone lay against it.’ [38]

It should not be understood that when the Lord was troubled He had lost His inner peace. Just as He had descended to take the form of man and live among us as a full and real human being, He voluntarily allowed Himself to feel agitated in order to empathize with the troubled and consequently carry them into His divine peace.

Jesus said:
“Take away the stone.”
Martha, the sister of him who was dead, said to Him:
“Lord, by this time there is stench,
For he has been dead four days” [39]

The Lord ordered them to lift the stone so that all the bystanders would see the dead body lying in the grave. They would also smell the odor and so be assured that he had decayed. Then when Lazarus would walk out of the grave, they would not imagine him to be a phantom but that it was his body indeed.

Martha’s objection probably came after they had started moving the stone and she had smelled the odor.

*Why did the Lord not call Lazarus while He was farther away from the tomb, and then bring him afterwards before their eyes? Or rather, why did the Lord not raise Lazarus while the stone still sealed the tomb? The Lord is He who can, with His words, move the body and reveal it in full life once more. Would it have been too hard for Him to roll the stone just with His word?

The One who has the power, with His words, to make him, who was bound and wrapped in grave clothes, to walk... would it have been hard for Him to make the stone move?

So why did He not do so?

In order to make them witnesses of the miracle. Consequently, they would be unable to repeat what they said concerning the miracle of the man born blind: "It is he"; "It is not he." Now their hands and their presence at the grave are truly a witness that this is the person who had died.

If they had not come, it would have appeared as a vision or that this was a person replacing the other one.

Now, they had come to the spot, raised the stone and had heard the command to untie the dead who was bound in grave clothes. The dear ones who had carried him to the tomb knew from the grave clothes who this was. The sisters did not stay behind (away from the crowds), and one of them said: "There is a stench, for he has been dead four days" [39]. We believe that all these matters were sufficient to silence those with wicked tendencies for they had become witnesses of the miracle<sup>46</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord will come and order that the stone which has fallen on the sinner's shoulders be lifted away.

He could have moved the stone with a single order; for even mute nature wishes to obey the Lord's orders.

He could have moved away the stone covering the tomb by the power of His silent work. Remember that at the peak of His sufferings many stones moved from over the tombs of the dead and suddenly they became opened.

However, He ordered the men to remove the stone from over the tomb of Lazarus so that unbelievers would believe what they saw as they watched the dead man raised up.

Besides, this miracle carries a symbol that grants us the power to alleviate the burden of sin and the heavy pressure it exerts on the culprit. We have to do our share in moving the burdens, while He resurrects and delivers from the graves those who liberate themselves of their bonds<sup>47</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* The statement: "He has been dead four days" truly refers to a condition of the soul that progressively occurs over four stages:

First state: as though a lustful provocation within the heart.

Second: acceptance

Third: transforming it into an act.

Fourth: transformation into a habit.

Some people shake off wicked matters and cast them out of their mind as though they found no pleasure in them. Others find pleasure even though they do not find them acceptable. In this case death does not set in, yet it institutes a certain beginning. Besides the sense of pleasure, there is an added sense of compliance. Condemnation of the person instantly occurs then.

---

Have complied, the sense of agreement progresses and gets transformed into apparent deed.

And deeds get transformed into habits. This leads to a kind of frustration to the extent of being described as “having a stench for he has been dead four days.” That is why the Lord came and with Him all things are feasible. In this case, however, there seemed to be a problem. He was troubled in the spirit and revealed the need for great and loud objection in order to resurrect those who had become cruel out of habit. Yet, at the Lord’s cry the bonds of necessity exploded. The forces of hell were terrified and Lazarus returned to life once more. Truly, the Lord rescues even the one who had been dead four days and saves him from wicked habits. Only to the Lord does he appear to be asleep; and he is the one the Lord desires to resurrect<sup>48</sup>.

St. Augustine

* Even if you were lying in your grave, the Lord raises you up, even though your body has decayed!<sup>49</sup>

St. Jerome

The Scholar Origen believes that when the Lord Jesus Christ issued the order to “take away the stone”, Martha delayed the execution by her words: “Lord, by this time there is a stench, for he has been dead four days” [39]. After that, they lifted it away.

These moments- between the order and the delay, convey a sort of lack of faith. The words: ‘...if you would believe you would see the glory of God’ were not fulfilled. Moments of delay are moments of lack of faith and rebellion

* We need to believe that the period of delay in executing a command constitutes a time of rebellion for the person who executes the command later on... Therefore, we need to remember the words: “Come back to the Lord quickly. Don’t think you can keep putting it off” (Sirach 5:7); and the saying: ‘Do not say to your neighbor, go and come back and tomorrow I will give it, when you have it with you’ (Pro 3:28). We have to consider that Martha was guilty and that the words ‘Then they took the stone from the place’ were added later on. These should have been written immediately after the words: ‘Jesus said, “Take away the stone.”’<sup>50</sup>

* The Lord said: “Take away the stone” [39]. Take away the burden of the law and preach grace: “for if there had been a law given which could have given life truly righteousness would have been by the law. But the Scripture has confined all under sin, that the promise by faith in Jesus Christ might be given to those who believe” (Gal 3:21-22). Hence ‘take away the stone’<sup>51</sup>.

St. Augustine

* Truly, faith is a great blessing! It works great deeds for those who adhere to truth as they enjoy many blessings.

Through faith, people can perform acts in the name of God. The Lord Jesus Christ aptly said: “ if you have faith as a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, move from here to there, and it will move” (Matt 17:20). Again, He says: “... he who believes in Me, the works that I do he will do also, and greater works than these...” (John 14:12). What does the Lord mean by “greater works than these? The reference is to the deeds done by the disciples, such as the mere shadow of Peter that raised a dead man. In this respect, it revealed more effectively the Lord’s power. It is less astonishing that while He was alive the Lord did miracles than that after His death others could- in His name- do greater works than His. This is an irresistible proof of the resurrection. For people to believe in the resurrection because they had seen in happening is one thing- even though some could claim it is a vision. It is another matter to see miracles happen by merely calling the Lord’s name - that is greater than His deeds when He lived among men. It is impossible to disbelieve in such a case, unless a person is devoid of feelings.

Hence faith is a great blessing when it is the product of sensitive feelings, great love and a fervent soul.

Indeed, faith makes us wise. It hides our human debasement and discards our excuses. It lends us philosophy (or wisdom) concerning heavenly matters. In other words, it explains the matters which human wisdom cannot discover. Faith can fully and successfully comprehend heavenly matters.

Therefore, let us adhere with faith and let us cease depending on presenting excuses for ourselves<sup>52</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead man was lying.
And Jesus lifted up His eyes and said:
“Father, I thank You that You have heard Me.” [41]

These are awesome moments, when the stone is moved away and the body is revealed as the terrible stench fills the air. At the same time, the Lord is standing there and addressing the Father, thanking Him for answering. On the one hand, the Lord is confirming His relationship with the Father. In this manner, He confirms His divinity to those present; not that He is Beelzebub, head of devils, who exorcised devils according to the claims of some leaders. On the other hands, He was setting an example to the by- standers.

* Once more and as always, we comment that the Lord did not seek own to be honored as much as He desired our salvation. He was not concerned with presenting sublime heavenly statements. Rather, He sought to say what would attract us to Him. This explains why His sublime powerful statements were scarce and indirect in contrast to His many humble, lengthy sayings and discourses.

He did not utter sublime divine statements to ensure that this would not be a stumbling block or destructive to those who would come after Him. However, the Lord did not refrain completely from uttering such statements completely so that those living in His time would not stumble too. Indeed, those who crossover from debasement to perfection could benefit from sublime individual teachings to become fully knowledgeable. As for those with weak minds, if they could not constantly hear words uttered at a lower level, they would not ever come to the Lord.

---

In fact, after the Lord had spoken sublime words such as these, the Jews wanted to stone, persecute, and kill Him for they considered Him guilty of blasphemy... when He equated Himself to God, they said: “This Man blasphemes!” (Matt 9:3). And when the Lord said: “your sins are forgiven” (10:20), they called Him a demon. When He preached that anyone who hears His words becomes stronger than death (John 8:51) and that “the Father is in Me and I in Him” (John 10:38) they abandoned Him. On another occasion, they resisted Him when He said that He had come down from heaven (John 6:33, 60)

Now, the Jews could not tolerate such sublime teachings even though the Lord labored rarely presented complicated issues. Had the Lord’s teachings been loaded with sublime teachings constantly, would they have come and listened to Him?

Consequently, He said: ‘...just as the Father has told Me, so I speak’ (John 12:50), and ‘...I have not come of Myself’ (John 7:28). Then they believed.

Clearly, they believed and as the Evangelist reports: ‘As He spoke these words, many believed in Him’ (John 8:30). Therefore if simple, humble teachings do work and attract people to have faith while sublime words scare them away, then the Lord used simple means to reach His hearers<sup>53</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* For our own good, the Lord offered thanks. He intended us not to identify the Father and the Son as one icon and as a result of their mutual involvement in one and the same act. Indeed, He intended to reveal that it was not obligatory for someone deprived of authority to repay His blessings. On the contrary, because He is the Son of God who claims He always possesses divine power. He could cry out “Lazarus, come forth”!

This is definitely an order and not a prayer<sup>54</sup>.

St. Jerome

* He prays as the Son of Man, and orders as the Son of God.<sup>55</sup>

St Ambrose

* When someone lifts his eyes towards the heavens, he should do so respectfully. He should also raise sanctified hands especially when offering prayers, without ‘wrath and doubting. ‘(1 Tim 2:8). As a person raises his eyes in meditation and thought and as the hands are lifted to achieve work, the soul is lifted up and is glorified. This is similar to Moses who lifted his hands up (Ex 17:11), and when a person prays: ‘Let... the lifting up of my hands (be) as the evening sacrifice’ (Ps 141:2). As a result, intangible enemies are overcome, while Israelite thoughts (having a vision of God) that are within us become victorious<sup>56</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

sent Me.” [42]

Here, the Lord clarifies that the relationship between the Father and Son does not require such a prayer. It is intended for those present who need to believe that the Lord has a relationship with the heavens.

* To ‘hear’ does not imply ‘obedience.’ Rather, this is an eternal union. In the same manner, the Holy Spirit is said to listen to the Father and glorifies the Son. The Spirit glorifies as He has taught us that the Son is the image of the intangible God (Col 1:15), the brightness of His glory, the upholder of His power (Heb 1:3)<sup>57</sup>.

St Ambrose

* How would the Lord be more powerful than His disciples if He worked miracles through prayer?

It is appropriate to say that they did miracles through prayer. Indeed, they often did miracles without prayer as they just used His Holy Name. Now, since His name carried that much power, and then He needed to pray, then His name would have had no effect. And what prayer did the Lord need when He created mankind?

The Lord’s equality to the Father is apparent in many instances. He said: “Let us make man in Our image.” (Gen 1:26). What could be weaker had He needed prayer?

Let us study His prayer: “Father, I thank You that You have heard Me.” Who prayed these words at any on time? Before saying anything, He said “I thank You”: the Lord underlined that He does not need to pray as He says: “that You have heard Me.” This indicates that he does not lack power, but rather that He and the Father possess one and the same power.

If you said: why do his words take the shape of a prayer? Our response would be: hear the answer from Him and not from me - as He says: “... because of the people who are standing by I said this, that they may believe that You sent Me.” The Lord gives the real reason for His prayer. He does not want people to suspect that He is opposed to God, or to say that He does not come from God<sup>58</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“Now when He had said these things, he cried with a loud voice, “Lazarus, come forth!” [43]

The Lord could have raise Lazarus, His dear friend, with a soft whisper or even silently. However, he shouted with a great voice and called His loved one: “Lazarus, come forth.” He did that so that those present become convinced that the Lord has raised him though His own personal power. He did not use another person’s name, but rather gave an order and the dead arose. Probably, the Lord shouted out loud so that those present would realize that the soul of Lazarus was not inside the tomb. Rather, the Lord was calling the soul to come out of hell and out of a seemingly very distant place. Moreover, He wanted them to realize that He is the One who tells Isaiah the prophet: “I am the Lord, there is no other. I have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth: (Is 45:18).

The Lord spoke to make us realize that He is the One who will come on the last day and speak. Then the dead will hear His voice and come to life (John 5:25).

The Lord called him by his name ‘Lazarus’ as though awakening him from a deep sleep.

God told Moses that He knew him by name. This was a sign of personal concern and interest. He did not say to him ‘get up’ but rather said ‘come forth.’ The presence of the Lord, the Giver of life, offered him life, but the order was given to him to move.

* Why did He shout out loud as though He did not wish to act in the Spirit and command silently? He wanted to reveal the implication of the words: ‘...in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet... the dead will be raised incorruptible’ (1 Cor 15:52). Raising the voice is the response to the sound of the trumpet. He shouted “Lazarus, come forth.” Why did the Lord use the name but for the purpose of removing all doubt that it is Lazarus who was raised and not any other person, on that the act of resurrection occurred accidentally and not by His order.<sup>59</sup>

* The Lord Jesus Christ did not tell Lazarus: “In the name of My Father come forth.” Neither did He say: “O Father, resurrect him.” Why did He not use such expressions though He seemed to pray and had already demonstrated His independent authority? This is again an aspect of His wisdom, His words revealed His humility and His deeds revealed His power... they could bring no charge against Him other than He did not come from God. They deceived many by this accusation.

Therefore He confirmed by His words and by many examples due to their weakness He provided evidence and many teachings to underline this point. He could have used his power in many other ways to reveal how He was in harmony with the Father and at the same time possessed intrinsic honor. However, the crowds had not attained that level of understanding yet<sup>60</sup>.

* The Lord did not say ‘Arise.’ Rather, He said: “Come forth” as He spoke to the dead one as though he were alive. So who could equal this authority?

Had He done that without possessing power, what would have made Him more significant than the disciples who said: “Why do you look so intently at us, as though by our own power or godliness we had made this man walk?” (Act 3:12)

Had the Lord not used His power and not said anything more than what the disciples had said about themselves, then the disciples would have really appeared to be wiser than Him as they rejected praise and glory. In another context, they report why they did so. “We are also men with the same nature as you...” (Acts 14:15). They said these words because they did nothing out of their own power and they wanted people to realize and admit that as well. As for the Lord, when they applied this principle to Him, was it not necessary to dismiss such doubts by using His authority in this situation?

However, the Lord did exactly the opposite of that as He said: ‘...because of the people who are standing by I said this, that they may believe, [42]... therefore they may believe that I do not need to pray (to ask)<sup>61</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Now, what is the purpose of saying “Come forth” other than to reveal that which is hidden? He who confesses is empowered to come forth.

---

<sup>59</sup> On Belief on the Resurrection: 2:27

To ‘come forth’ would have been impossible if he was not alive and he would not be alive if he had not risen again. Therefore, through confession a person comes to understand himself and glorifies God<sup>62</sup>.

* Contemplate the condition of Lazarus: he came out but he was all bound with grave clothes. He was truly alive through confession yet he had not become liberated...he was bound up as he was still tied in the cloth. What does the church do in conformity with the words spoken to her ‘what you loosen will be forgiven’? This is exactly what the Lord told His disciples to do in this context: “let him loose him and let him go”<sup>63</sup>.

St. Augustine

* Do you need a stronger evidence that the faith of others can save someone else? Lazarus had been dead and several days had gone by: his muscles had deteriorated and his body had actually decayed. How could someone who had been dead for four days have faith and personally pray to the Lord?

Nevertheless, what the dead one lacked was available in his two real sisters. When the Lord came, on sister worshipped Him; and when He asked: “where have you laid him?” She answered: “Lord, by this time there is a stench, for he has been dead four days.” The Lord answered: “If you would believe you would see the glory of God.” It is as though He were telling her: ‘have faith which can resurrect the dead body.’

The sisters had such strong faith that it retrieved the dead from the gates of hell.

If mankind could have such faith and are willing to vouch for one another, then it is possible for the dead to rise again. Would it not be of greater benefit to yourself if you had that pure faith?

Indeed, even if you were an unbeliever or had little faith, the Lord and Lover of mankind would be merciful to you when you repent.

On your part, it is appropriate to have a sincere set of mind and say: ‘I believe Lord, help my unbelief’ (Mark 9:24). You need to pray like the apostles: “Lord, increase our faith.” Hence if you have a little faith, you will receive a greater share from God<sup>64</sup>.

St. Cyril of Jerusalem

* Note that ‘ the Lord gives freedom to the prisoners’ (Ps 14:6-7) and grants peace to those of a humble spirit and who humble at His word (Is 66:2). He may be calling me as I lay in the grave of sin: “Jerome, come forth”<sup>65</sup>.

* As I am still lying in the grave of my sins, bound up with the strings of my wickedness, I await the order of the Lord according to the Gospel: “Jerome, come forth”<sup>66</sup> and stench will be removed<sup>67</sup>.

St. Ambrose

‘And he who had died came out bound hand and foot with grave clothes,
His face was wrapped with a cloth.
Jesus said to them: “Loose him and let him go.” [44]

How did Lazarus come out though he was bound hand and foot? He came out as someone limping or crawling and he needed someone to remove the grave clothes from his body.

Needless to say that raising Lazarus from the dead resulted in great commotion in all Jerusalem. Many had come there preparing for the Passover feast. This was not a natural event or a miracle that anyone had witnessed before. This was especially astonishing to those who had smelled the stench due to the decayed body.

* St. John the apostle reports that Lazarus ‘who had died came out’ so that we may see what the Lord has done and to witness to His authority. St. John reports: ‘he who had died came out bound hand and foot with grave clothes and his face was wrapped with a cloth’ so that no one would think that this was an imaginary account. The fact that he came out all tied up is just as amazing as his resurrection. The Lord’s words to ‘loose him’ are intended to reveal that this is truly Lazarus since they had to go near him and touch him. To indicate that the Lord’s intention is totally devoid of grandeur appears in His words “loose him and let him go.” He clearly does not follow or lead Lazarus and did not want to walk with him to show him off.

St. John Chrysostom

* We need to pay attention to that too: we need to present deeds worthy of the Lord. Not only do we need to pray so that the dead come to life, but we also need to search and call the one in the cave and grave to attend to matters outside the tomb.

We need to realize that there are many Lazarus types until today. After they had become the Lord’s friends, they got sick and died. They have become as the dead in the grave in the land of the dead and with the dead. However, through the Lord’s prayer, they have come to life again and they have been invited to come out of the grave by the Lord’s loud voice.

Anyone who trusts the Lord comes out bound up with the clothes of death due to his earlier sins. However, his face is still tied up so that he is unable to see, or walk, or do anything because of the bonds of death. He remains in this situation until the Lord Jesus Christ commands the able ones to release him and until He tells him to walk<sup>68</sup>.

* Such a person comes out in response to the Lord’s voice, yet he is still tied up in his sins. He is alive because he has repented and has heard the Lord’s voice yet he has not been liberated from the bounds of sin. He still cannot walk immediately with freed feet. He is not yet liberated to fulfill sublime matters, since his hands and feet are tied up with straps like those grave clothes.

Due to the death that adheres to the straps tying his hands and feet and covering his face with ignorance, such a person remains surrounded with bonds.

That is why the Lord does not only wish that person to live and still remain in the grave and be tied up away from the issues of life outside... Therefore the Lord tells those who are able to

7. The Effect of the Miracle of Raising Lazarus from the Dead

‘Then many of the Jews who had come to Mary
And had seen the things Jesus did,
Believed in Him.’[45]

Many of Mary’s Jewish friends believed in Him [45]. Most of them had come from Jerusalem which is the nearest city to the village of Bethany. The people of Jerusalem were known for their opposition against the Lord Jesus Christ. Some presented a report of these events to the Pharisees [46], who gathered a council of the Sanhedrim and planned to kill the Lord. Caiaphas, the high priest foretold that one man should die for the whole nation [49-52].

As usual, the fruit of this amazing miracle lends a fragrance of life to life and the smell of death to death. Many believed in the Lord when they saw what He did, while others went to the religious leaders and Pharisees. They went either to arouse them, or to present a testimony of what had occurred, or to invite them to the faith. The response of these leaders and Pharisees was rebellion and opposition towards the Lord Jesus Christ.

The first group of mourners found that there was no need to consult with the priests and Pharisees. They felt that opposing the divine truth should come to an end. Thus the visit to the sad home became the reason that converted them to real faith. They experienced the truth of the wise man’s saying that ‘it is better to go to the house of mourning than to go to the house of feasting (Ecce 7:2). They had come with a sincere intention to comfort Mary and Martha. Therefore they came out comforted by the work of God and believing in the Lord Jesus Christ, the Giver of resurrection. Indeed, ‘he who waters will also be watered himself’ (Pro 11:25). That is why no one should cease to do good works as long as he has the power to do so (Pro 3:27).

Why does the Evangelist state that ‘they had come to Mary’? Why did he not also say ‘to Martha’? It could be that Mary was better known in Jerusalem so that most of the people had come to comfort her. Some scholars consider that Martha tended to work and move around while Mary was inclined to join calm gatherings (Luke 10:38-40). A person who tends to work does not find time to meet with the mourners, whereas the one inclined to calmness desires to sit with them.

‘But some of them went away to the Pharisees
And told them the things Jesus did.’ [46]

This group represents those who worship superficially. The truth is obvious, and the divine deed is tangible; yet they went to report the event despite their knowledge of the leaders’ antagonism towards the Lord.

‘Then the chief priests and the Pharisees gathered a council and said:
“What shall we do? For this Man works many signs” [47]

The chief priests and Pharisees recognized that they could not oppose or deny the truth for the miracle just shouted it out. Therefore they gathered a council. They realized that the decisions of the Sanhedrim would not be fruitful. The people had gathered around the Lord and such danger threatened the safety of the whole nation. The council was gathered to take practical steps by which they could get rid of the Lord Jesus Christ rather than to deliberate or issue instructions to the people.

They colored the issue with a dangerous political aspect. They analyzed the situation in a manner that defied the truth. Actually, the Lord Jesus Christ had not ceased in doing many unique miracles such as healing the man born blind and raising Lazarus from the dead. These deeds attracted people to Him. They believed in Him and accepted Him as King and the awaited Messiah who would left up the fallen tabernacle of David. In this manner the Sanhedrim would lose its power and the religious leaders would lose their authority. If the Romans would sense that the people had crowned a kin, they would invade the land with an army, seize Jerusalem and destroy the temple. There would be no one to oppose or object to that. In this manner, the Romans occupied the land politically and religiously.

* These leaders disguised their envy and jealousy under the screen of protecting the Jewish nation and the temple. To them, this was the most holy place in the world. Besides, it was the grandest and greatest building.

Notice how the Jews acted: they should have been astonished and amazed at the resurrection of Lazarus. However, they wished to kill the One who had resurrected the dead.

How could they be so foolish and imagine that they could send to death the One who conquered the death present in the bodies of others.

Note how the religious leaders and Pharisees spoke of Him as they would of any person and said: “What shall we do? For this Man works many signs?”...and yet you ask what to do? You should have believed in Him and sought to His forgiveness. You should have worshipped Him and not have thought that He was a person.

St. John Chrysostom

“If we let Him alone like this, everyone will believe in Him
And the Romans will come and take away both our place and our nation.” [48]

The Scholar Origen wonders if those who reported to the Pharisees did so in order to allow them to repent and believe, or to arouse them against the Lord so that they would hurry up and plan to discard Him. Origen is inclined to agree with the second possibility.

* What the high priest and Pharisees feared came to be fulfilled in a symbolic way. The high priest represents the lusts of the body that oppose the lusts of the spirit. Therefore, it was impossible for him to conquer the greatest High Priest who is the Lord Jesus Christ. Indeed, the Lord has occupied the seat of the high priest but on a heavenly and eternal level. Instead of adhering to the Pharisees’ literal teachings, we experience the joy His of His Holy Spirit. There is no more place for the Pharisees. Concerning the Romans and their occupation of the Jews, they represent the church of nations that has become the New Israel. This Church has become the occupant of the seat of old Israel and constitutes a sanctified nation and priesthood as well as owner of divine promises<sup>70</sup>.

* ‘The heathen have been snared by the destruction of their own hands and their feet have been caught in the net they had hid (Ps 9:15). This is the condition of the Jews.

They said that they would kill the Lord to prevent the Romans from coming and occupying their nation and positions. When they killed Him, these consequences happened to them. When they executed what they thought would prevent such consequences, they were unable to escape what they feared. The One who was killed lives in heaven and those who killed Him met their reward in hell<sup>71</sup>.

* It is as though they had said: If the Romans saw that the Lord Jesus Christ created anxiety in the nation, they would suspect we rebelled against them and they would destroy our city. We would then ask one of them: when did you hear the Lord teaching rebellion? Did He not recommend the payment of the tribute to Caesar? When you tried to crown Him king, did He not escape? Has He not led a simple life without any boasting? He neither owned a house nor any other kind of property?

These claims did not reflect their expectations. They just made them out of envy. Indeed, the One who had healed the sick and taught about the virtuous path in life and recommended submission to the leaders, did not arouse rebellion. On the contrary, He destroyed rebellions and dismantled it

St. John Chrysostom

‘And one of them, Caiaphas,
Being high priest that year, said to them:
“You know nothing at all.” [49]

According to the law, the high priest is ordained to serve for life (Ex 40:15). They inherit the office which runs down from Aaron and his children. However, the Romans authority interfered and took the authority to exile and appoint a high priest whenever they wished and at any time. Moreover, they did not observe the law except for the rule regarding the lineage of priesthood. The historian Josephine records that Caiaphas is the name by which he was popularly known; that his real name was Joseph. He was a high priest for eight or nine years. He was deposed by Vitellius probably and was exiled in Judah<sup>72</sup>.

The Romans did not consider that the Lord Jesus Christ opposed their empire. They were not concerned about His popularity because he recommended submission to the authorities and the payment of the tribute to Caesar. Indeed, he asked St. Peter to pay the tribute for both of them. When He was judged, we find Pilate exerting several times an effort to release Him.

‘Nor do you consider that it is expedient for us that one man should die for the people,
Not that the whole nation should perish.’ [50]

* The high priest had to wear the breastplate of judgment the ‘Urim and the Thummin’ (Ex 28:30); to pray God to grant him righteous judgment. This matter seemed to have been neglected completely. Thus the high priest presented his advice to the council dictated by his wicked envy and not by consulting God. He presented what seemed to be logical and truthful according to human philosophy. His words seemed to be based on correct thinking. However, the truth was that it was all based on wicked sentiments. He driven by a strong desire to get rid of the One who had revealed their wickedness and seized their popularity. Isaiah the prophet says: ‘Justice is turned back and righteousness stands afar off; for truth is fallen in the street and equity cannot enter’ (Is 59:14).

---

‘Now this, he did not say on his own authority,
But being high priest that year,
He prophesied that Jesus would die for the nation.’ [51]

* Caiaphas did not speak out of his own resources and he was not aware of the meaning of his own words even though he uttered a prophesy. In the writings of St. Paul, ‘we meet teachers of the law, understanding neither what they say nor the thing which they affirm’ (1 Tim 1:7). This is not the condition of a wise person whom king Solomon describes in the Proverbs: ‘The heart of the wise teaches his mouth and adds learning to his lips’ (refer to Pro 16:23)<sup>73</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

* Do you see how the leadership of the priesthood is powerful? Caiaphas qualified to be the head of the priesthood; even though he actually lacked the traits that would qualify him, he prophesied without realizing what he was saying. His mouth was touched by Grace, but He did not touch his unclean heart. Many others foretold matters before they occurred even though they had failed in being qualified for that role. Examples of such people are: Nebuchadnezzar, Pharaoh, and Balaam. Notice the power of the Holy Spirit and how He could use a sly mind to utter words carrying amazing prophecies<sup>74</sup>.

* What is the implication of the words ‘being high priest that year’? Like many other matters, this too had become corrupt since these offices were bought (with money). The high priest was no longer a life time office and lasted for one year only. However, in this case the Holy Spirit was present. Yet, when they lifted up their hands against the Lord Jesus Christ, the Holy Spirit abandoned them and switched to work in the disciples. This was proclaimed by the veil of the temple being torn in two and as the Lord breathed His last (Mark 15:38); when the voice of the Lord saying: “See! Your house is left to you desolate” (Matt 23:38). Josephus, who lived a short time after that, says that certain angels, who had remained with them in the hope that they would relent from their wickedness, abandoned them<sup>75</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

“And not for that nation only,
But also that He would gather together in one the children of God who were scattered abroad.”[52]

These two verses are provided by St. John the evangelist to show how God uses even the evil of the high priest to give testimony for the truth. Moreover, his words predict the redeeming work of Christ for the Jews as well as for God/s children all over the world: both Jews and Gentiles.

Who are the children of God who are scattered abroad? They are the believers from all nations. They will come together as members of the one Body of Christ. Origen the Scholar considers that Israel, according to the flesh, after being scattered, will also accept to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ. Then they too will come to join and be one with Him<sup>76</sup>.

‘Then from that day on they plotted to put Him to death.’

* They really sought to do so before for the Evangelist reports: “The Jews sought all the more to kill Him (John 5:18). The Lord Jesus Christ also asked them: “why do you seek to kill Me?” (John 7:19). Previously, they sought to kill Him, but now they decided to do what they had set their minds upon and they moved to fulfill it.

St. John Chrysostom

‘Therefore Jesus no longer walked openly among the Jews, But when from there into the country near the wilderness, to a city called Ephraim and there remained with His disciples.’ [54]

Ephraim is a small village near Bethel. The Holy Bible mentions it again in 2 Chronicles 13:19. It is also mentioned by Josephus<sup>77</sup>.

It is believed that it is the same village mentioned in 1 Kings 5:46; 2 Kings 12:27. Joshua had given it as part of the lot of the tribe of Judah (Joshua 15:9). Both Josephus and St. Jerome state that Ephraim was about 20 miles away from Jerusalem. Some Scholars believe that the Lord Jesus Christ stayed there from January 24 to March 24: that is for two months<sup>78</sup>.

* We believe that these words and similar ones have been recorded as the Word wishes to warn us against sudden and irrational deeds in an attempt to struggle with death for the sake of truth (Sirach 4:28), and martyrdom.

On the one hand, it is right not to avoid confession. Besides we should not hesitate to die for righteousness sake whenever we are involved in a struggle and confession of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. On the other hand, it is not less important to avoid falling into a great dilemma. Indeed, we need to avoid that as much as possible not only because the result is not clear to us, but also so that we do not become responsible for arousing those who do not actually wish to spill our blood. Otherwise, these would commit a crime and become worst sinners and more evil. That would be the case if we sought our own profit and did not care about those who plot against us and our death. Because of us, they would be sentenced to greater punishment- that is if we focused on ourselves and give no consideration to others. Then we would have saved ourselves by our death while there was no imperative need for that<sup>79</sup>.

* ‘Ephraim’ means ‘giving fruit.’ He was the younger brother of Manasseh, which means ‘forgetful’ who left the people behind him ‘as in forgetfulness’ and this gave rise to the Gentiles. When the Lord ‘turns rivers’ into a wilderness and the water springs into dry ground, it is because of the wicked who live there (Ps 107:33-38). However, the Lord transforms the wilderness which belongs to the Gentiles into wells of water and their dry

And many went from the country up to Jerusalem before the Passover, to purify themselves. [55]

* The Jews wanted to paint their feast red by the Blood of the Lord Jesus Christ. On that day, the lamb was killed and it has become a feast for us through His Blood. The Jews had planned to kill the Lord: the One who have descended from heaven to suffer. He wanted to go near the place where He would suffer because His hour had come.<sup>81</sup>

St. Augustine

* What an amazing purification while harboring a determination to commit a crime, with murderous intentions and hands that would spill Blood!<sup>82</sup>

St. John Chrysostom

‘Then they sought Jesus and spoke among themselves as they stood in the Temple,
“What do you think - that He will not come to the feast?”[56]

The people of Ephraim probably looked for Him where He left their city. He might have gone to Jericho or its suburbs. Maybe those who were looking for Him had been sent by the high priest and were trying to find out so that they would notify him as to where the Lord was staying during the feast celebrations.

* They seized the Feast of the Passover to plot against Him. Besides, they considered this was a good time to commit a crime. He would fall into their hands since He would come to celebrate the feast<sup>83</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

* Those who were looking for Him and those who were not doing so are to be blamed. Therefore, may we look for Him so that we might have and hold Him for ourselves and not so that we may kill Him<sup>84</sup>.

St. Augustine

‘Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a command,
That if anyone knew where He was, he should report it, that they might seize Him.’[57]

* Let them come to our church to hear from us where He is. Let them hear this Gospel... He has left (and has ascended), He is present here. He has returned yet He has not left us. He has carried His body to heaven yet He has not withdrawn His glory from the world<sup>85</sup>.

Meditations Inspired by St John, Chapter 11

May You shout my name with a loud voice and say: Come Forth

*Mary and Martha sent You a message concerning their brother
“The one whom You love is sick’!
Now my faithful fellows plead for me before You and my brothers who rest in Paradise intercede before Your throne
Who can lift me up from my sickness but You, O Healer of souls and bodies!

* Sickness has struck in my whole being, it occupies my thought, heart and all my senses.
Corruption occupies my inner being.
Who will rescue me of this corrupt body but You, O You who is the Resurrection!

*May You hurry to my grave!
For I have caused trouble even to You!
For I am the subject of Your love
May You shout with Your divine voice and call my name and may You say: “come forth”
By coming to my grave, You have granted me the resurrection after being dead.
Death is neared in the presence of the Resurrection!
I admit my sin and I enjoy the apostolic absolution according to Your promise (Matt 16:19)

*Through You, I enjoy the rejoicing resurrected life!
Indeed, You have restored to me the joy of Your Salvation!
And the mourning has become transformed into an eternal feast!
My brethren on earth and in heaven glorify You.
For You are the Deliverer of souls from the corruption of death!

* I do not possess the words
Yet my life has become a living testimony for Your sublime works.
May many believe in You.
As they see You glorified in my weakness!
May the enemy of righteousness and his army go wild
For they cannot tolerate the light of the Resurrection in me!

* Finally, allow me to pass by the graves with You so that You may call each one by name.
How sweet is Your voice as You shout saying: “Come Forth”
O what an enjoyable celebration.
As the souls come out of their graves, shining with Your glory!
And so many are transformed into heavenly brides
Decorated and ready for the eternal and perpetual marriage!

SUPPER IN BETHANY

The previous chapter closed on a depressing picture. The Jewish leaders began a dangerous war against the Lord Jesus Christ. Together with the scribes, they believed that the Lord had betrayed the Sanhedrin. However, we find in this chapter that there are faithful believers who will witness for the truth. They will glorify the Lord and witness for Him in spite of an overwhelming atmosphere of hate and hostility.

The testimony of such believers glorifies the Lord on all levels: on the personal level- as in the case of the sister of Lazarus; and on the communal level- as displayed during the Lord's entry into Jerusalem. Moreover, the heavens witness to Him; and so do the Old Testament prophets; some leaders; and finally the Lord testifies for Himself.

1 - Anointing the Lord's Feet with Spikenard

'Then Jesus six days before the Passover came to Bethany,
Where Lazarus was which had been dead,
Whom He raised from the dead.' [1]

After the Lord had raised Lazarus from the dead, He went to make a friendly visit to his home. It was six days before the feast of the Passover. The home in Bethany was close to Jerusalem, and the Lord's visit seemed to be a preparation for the celebrations of the feast. The Lord wants us to prepare ourselves for spiritual events.

Another factor was that the hour of His crucifixion was drawing near and so He went to Bethany as He knew they would set up their nets to catch Him. He could have escaped and destroyed their nets. However, He had come specifically to offer Himself on our behalf and as a living sacrifice of love.

It was a friendly visit to the home of Mary and Martha whom he loved greatly. He knew that He would be physically separated from them soon. Therefore this was a farewell visit which would be marked by His love and comforting words. Such farewell words would provide support on the day of His trial which was drawing near.

Finally, the Lord had also come to Bethany, after having raised Lazarus, in order to follow up the effects of His deed. It is as though He had come to water what He had planted, and to sanctify it so that it would yield adequate fruit.

The Lord came on the Jewish Sabbath and the feast of the Passover was to be celebrated six days later. Now was the time when each family would choose the lamb which they were going to offer on the day of the Feast. They had to isolate the lamb in a shed for five days and then offer it as a sacrifice on the sixth day which would mark the day of the Passover Feast. Now, here was the Lord who is the true Passover and the Lamb of God. He had come of Himself in order to isolate Himself. He delivered Himself into the hands of His loved ones. They would anoint Him with spikenard and tears on the day following His arrival. Voluntarily, He dedicated His life to be a sacrificial offering on behalf of the whole world. After His visit to Bethany, the Lord He would enter into Jerusalem on the day that would be marked as the Christian Sabbath day (Palm Sunday).

‘There they made him a supper;

And Martha served:

But Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.’ [2]

The family offered thanksgiving in a practical manner. The Lord was the One who had raised the head of the family from the dead. They made dinner and each of the three members of the family played a different role. Lazarus sat among those who were gathered around the Lord and he witnessed for the One who had granted Him life. Martha served, while Mary proclaimed her love by anointing the Lord’s feet. Some scholars believe that this was the same event that took place in the house of Simon the Leper (Matt24:6). Others believe that these were two separate events. The dinner here takes place in the house of Lazarus and his sisters. The fact that Martha was serving proves that point. The dinner mentioned in the Gospel of St Matthew took place on the third day of the Passover week, whereas this dinner occurred six days before the Feast. The two occasions may have occurred in Bethany: during the first dinner, Mary used about one measure of the spikenard; while she used all the spikenard she had on the second occasion (Mk 14:3).

Martha served at the table to express her great appreciation. She considered it to be an honor to serve the Lord in any manner she could. Previously, the Lord had compared her service to that of her sister Mary who had been sitting at His feet. In spite of that, she did not quit the service she did.

But Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him’ [2]...the presence of Lazarus testified to the resurrection that the Lord had granted him. He sat down to confirm that the Lord had truly restored him to life.

* The Lord was eager to visit the person He had raised from the dead. He wished to rejoice on account of the gift of a renewed life. Similarly, the Lord comes to the meal that the Church prepares for Him to celebrate the One who has risen and is now sitting on high<sup>1</sup>.

St Ambrose

* It is clear that the dinner was held in Martha's home as those who loved the Lord received Him in their homes.

The Evangelist tells us that 'Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him' as this proves the reality of his being restored to life. After so many days Lazarus was there, actually alive and eating with those present<sup>2</sup>

St John Chrysostom

* Every time that the Lord raised someone from the dead, He asked for food to be offered to that person. In this manner, no one would imagine that the event is an imaginary one. For this reason, after Lazarus had been raised, he is reported to be present at the table and sharing a meal with the Lord<sup>3</sup>.

St Jerome

'Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly,
And anointed the feet of Jesus,
And wiped his feet with her hair:
And the house was filled with the fragrance of the ointment. [3]

'The pound': a Greek and Roman measure equivalent to about 200 Draohmas.

'Nardine'/ spikenard: a kind of expensive fragrance that people of the ancient world competed to possess. It is mentioned in the Book of the Song of Solomon (1:12; 4:13, 14). The quality of its purity indicated that no wax or resin was added to turn it into a cream.

Mary expressed her love by pouring a pound of pure and costly oil, rubbing the Lord's feet with it and drying it with her hair. Consequently, the house was filled with the fragrance of the oil. She had offered the most valuable thing she owned in order to honor the Lord. With great love, she anointed His feet. It was common to anoint the head but she did not do that. Surely some oil must have run over the Lord's clothes as she poured a whole pound of it. She is like the human soul who speaks to her Bridegroom and King and says: "While the king sits at his table, my spikenard sends forth its fragrance" (Sg of Sol. 1:12)

Mary had poured the fragrance of her love and its smell continues to fill the House of the Lord across all generations. The Father smells it as it carries the sweet smell of the Lord Jesus Christ (2 Cor 2:15). We, the believers, smell the fragrance after so many centuries and desire to offer our whole life as a sweet fragrance of love to Him who has loved us first.

* Martha served. This fact indicates that the meal was served in her house...Mary did not serve for she was a disciple. On this occasion she acted spiritually and not as though she had been called to serve. Moreover, she did not offer her services to all the guests in general. She honored the Holy one solely. She approached Him as her God and not as a person. Consequently, she anointed His feet and wiped them with her hair. She did those things as she believed in Him and in that her concept was different from many others<sup>4</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* The spikenard is a symbol for righteousness. It weighed one pound. However, it was a rare and costly fragrance. In the Greek language the word ‘faith’ has its origin in the word ‘faith’ and is synonymous to it. One prays to act righteously for ‘the just shall live by faith’ (Rom 1:17).

Wipe the feet of Jesus...in other words, walk in the Lord’s footsteps to reap the fruit of a righteous life.

Wipe His feet with your hair: offer whatever you have which exceeds your needs and give it to the poor. In this manner, you will be wiping the Lord’s feet. Hair seems to be an unnecessary addition to the body, therefore present something that is in excess. Even though it exceeds your needs, yet it will be of value when offered at the Lord’s feet.

It could be that the Lord’s feet on earth are needy; or could He be talking about something other than the members of His body when He says: “Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, you have done it unto me” (Matt 25:40). Therefore offer whatever exceeds your needs; and yet you will be offering what would be welcome to His feet<sup>5</sup>.

* ‘...And the house was filled with the fragrance of the ointment’ [3]: The world is filled with the fragrance of the Lord’s personal reputation of righteousness; for a good reputation is like a refreshing fragrant smell. Those who walk in wickedness and bear the name of Christ actually bring dishonor to His name. We are told that because of such people ‘the name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles’ (Rom 2:24). If through the wicked people are led to blaspheme against the Lord, then it is through the righteousness that the name of God is honored.

Listen to the Apostle when he says: “For we are the fragrance of Christ in every place.” In the Song of Solomon, we find these words: ‘Because of the fragrance of your good ointments your name is as ointment poured out’ (Sg of Sol 1:3).

St Augustine

* This fragrance is not different than the one which the bride used and whose fragrance reached the bridegroom: ‘While the king sits at his table, my spikenard sends forth its fragrance’ (Sg of Sol 1:12).

The Gospel mentions that when the oil was poured over the Lord its fragrant smell filled the house where the meal was being served. It appears that the woman who had poured the oil had predicted the mystery of Christ’s death. The Lord proclaimed the act she had done by saying: “For in pouring this fragrant oil on My body, she did it for My burial...” (Matt 26:12).

The Home which became filled with the sweet odor is symbolic of the whole creation and the whole world for “...wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman has done, be told for a memorial of her.” The fragrance of her act would spread as the Gospel is being preached ‘for a memorial to her.’ In the Song of Solomon, we are told that the smell of spikenard spreads out from the bridegroom to his bride. In the Gospel too we are told that the sweet smell of the Lord filled the whole house. That sweet fragrance will fill the whole Body of the Church everywhere all over the world<sup>6</sup>.

St Gregory of Nicea

‘Then one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son,
Who would betray Him, said...’ [4]

* As the sweet smelling aroma of the Lord spread, it brought to some the breath of life, whereas it brought the smell of death to others (2 Cor 2:14-16). This sweet smell became the smell of death for Judas.

St Augustine

* [in a speech addressed to the emperor, Theodosius wrote the following:]

‘Therefore, O emperor, I address my words not only to you but they also are about you. Notice how God seeks to judge severely. Therefore as much as you have been glorified, it is fitting that you accordingly submit to your Creator. It is written: ‘when the Lord your God brings you into a strange land, and you eat and drink of the fruit of others, do not say: ‘Because of my strength and righteousness I have received this’; for it is the merciful Lord who has granted you these things.’ Therefore to show your love for His Body (that is, for His Church) offer water for His feet and kiss them. In this manner you will forgive those who have fallen and committed sin. Besides, you will have corrected and comforted them through your love for peace.

Pour oil over His feet so that the whole house where the Lord Jesus Christ sits becomes filled with your sweet odor. Then will all those sitting there enjoy your fragrance. In other words, honor the humiliated. Then will the angels rejoice because they have been pardoned because they rejoice when one sinner repents (Lk 15:10). Moreover, the apostles rejoice, and the prophets are filled with gladness<sup>7</sup>.

St Ambrose

“Why was this fragrance not sold for three hundred dinarii,
And given to the poor?”[5]

In the middle of this heavenly scene where the sweet aroma of the Lord attracted all hearts towards the heavens, there was the stench of persistent greed, treason, and betrayal that came from the heart of a disciple who seemed to belong to the Lord’s party. His heart could not tolerate the sweet smell of the Lord which grants life: it became the aroma of death to death (1 Cor 2:16).

---

The woman's deed made Judas uncomfortable as he considered it was an act of squandering a big sum of money. He calculated that the value of the spikenard was about three hundred denarii. It could have been spent on the poor. He was unable to comprehend the invaluable price of love which cannot be calculated. Judas was a disciple who preached the good News; yet he did not love the spirit of preaching and of love. For him, preaching became his official career and job. It did not bear the sweet smell of love which fills the 'Church' which the 'House of God.'

By seeming to care for the poor, Judas had found the excuse that would enable him to attack that act of love. The devil too transforms himself to appear as an angel of light. He used human wisdom to calculate the service of the poor versus the proclamation of love to the Lord Jesus Christ. All the while, he concealed in his depths his greed and love of money for he was a thief and stole from the treasury box.

That traitor could not tolerate that act of love. How could Mary pour fragrance that could have been sold for three hundred denarii? Yet he was able to sell his Master for thirty pieces of silver. She put three hundred denarii under the Lord's feet and considered this as nothing. As for Judas, he put his Master under thirty pieces of silver and considered his Master as nothing when measured by that trivial amount.

'This he said, not that he cared for the poor;
But because he was a thief,
And had the bag,
And he used to take what was put in it.' [6]

Some scholars explain that the name 'Iscaiot' means 'bearer of the money box.'

Judas had no feelings for the poor had he did not care about them. The ministry for the poor was only an opportunity for him to steal the money. Why did the Lord trust him with the money box? Rather, He could have given that task to Peter or John who were trustworthy. It could be that Judas sought to get the job and attained what he wanted. It could be that the Lord permitted that to happen so that he would have no financial need that would drive him to sell his Master.

Throughout generations, the Church continues to have a very small number of sanctified members who lay and offer all their possessions at the Lord's feet. As a result, the sweet aroma of the Lord who lives within their hearts fills the whole Church. The Church also includes those who hide behind formalities and money boxes in order to steal what belongs rightfully to the Lord, and to sell Him for the price of a slave. However, the Lord does not expose them for He gives them the chance to examine their depths, discover their wickedness and renew their lives by repentance. Then they would go back to their Savior.

* The Lord was very patient with Judas who was a devil, a thief, and a traitor. He permitted him to be accepted among the innocent disciples. These faithful ones knew that such an honor was a reward for loving Him (that is, being united with the Body and Blood of the Lord)<sup>8</sup>.

* Watch and learn how this Judas had not become corrupt only when he accepted the bribe to betray His Master to the Jews...he did not perish at only that moment. Actually, he was evil and a thief from the time he became a follower of the Lord. He followed Him physically but not sincerely. He became the twelfth disciple; yet he had no share in the apostolic blessing...and when he died, another was appointed so that the number of apostles was then met<sup>9</sup>.

* He is the One that angels serve... so why did He have a money box? He intended to demonstrate clearly that His Church would be obligated in the future to have a money depository.

Why did the Lord delegate a thief to hold that responsible job other than to teach the Church to be longsuffering towards thieves?

Nevertheless, the one who has the habit of stealing the money box did not hesitate to deliver his Master for the sake of money<sup>10</sup>.

St Augustine

* The Love of money is a terrible issue. It corrupts the ears and eyes; and transforms a human being into something worse than a savage beast. It strips a person from his conscience and of any ideals of friendship, brotherhood, or thoughts of personal salvation. His greed attracts him away from all that as it becomes like a fierce woman who subjugates all those she captures...

Greed transformed Gehazi into a leper instead of being a disciple and prophet. It destroyed Ananias and Saphira with him; and it turned Judas into a traitor.

Greed corrupted the Jewish leaders...it caused hundreds of wars, and filled the streets with blood and the cities with wailing and mourning<sup>11</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

‘Then said Jesus,

“Let her alone: she has kept this for the day of my burial”.’ [7]

Judas condemned her, and considered that Mary had acted unwisely. He judged that she had wasted money on something useless; and the money could have gone to the poor. In contrast, the Lord proclaimed that she had performed a sublime prophetic as she had predicted His burial and the rituals involved. Through her love, she could perceive the Lord's sufferings, His death, and His burial; and her deed proclaimed the sweet aroma of redemption.

We have never heard of someone whose body was anointed and prepared for burial while he was still alive. Yet the Lord considered the spikenard as burial material for His body which would not see corruption. He had delivered His Body as a sacrifice and a spiritual food when He instituted the Eucharist on Holy Thursday. On that day, and as he willingly offered his Body, He acknowledged the procedure for His burial. In this manner, the Lord confirmed His free and holy will to accept death and burial for the sake of the world, thereby granting us the power and joy of His resurrection

* The Lord indicated the motive for Mary's act when He said: "Let her alone: she has kept this for the day of my burial"

St John Chrysostom

* Note, dear ones, that the Lord did not say: 'You speak those words because you are a thief.' He knew Judas was a thief; yet the Lord tolerated him and did not condemn him. In this manner the Lord sets the example for us to show tolerance towards evil people within the Church<sup>12</sup>.

St Augustine

"For the poor you have with you always;
But Me you do not have always." [8]

These words carried a hidden significance and they referred to two acts. On the one hand, there was a purpose hidden behind Judas' pretense of loving the poor. While claiming to help them, He was delivering His Master to death in a horrible deed of betrayal. On the other hand, there was the amazing act of Mary. She embraced and honored the Body that had been delivered up to die. She gave Him the costly spikenard which was the most precious thing she had. The Lord secretly admonished Judas because he claimed to love the poor. He then turned to Mary and praised her because she seized upon an opportunity that would not recur for 'Me you do not have always.'

Mary prepared the Body of the Lord for burial while He was still alive. Therefore she was praised by the Lord Himself. Nicodemus and Joseph prepared the Body after His death. They were honored too, though this is not comparable to the honor given to Mary. She had offered one pound of precious oil, while they offered hundreds of pounds. Nevertheless, the first offering to the living Body was far more superior to the second one.

Mary continues to invite us today to anoint the living Body of the Lord Jesus Christ. We can do so by serving His members: the poor, the suffering, those who have been banished, and those who have no one to look after them. Indeed, God has said: "You shall open your hand wide to your brother, to your poor and your needy, in your land," (Deut 15:11). Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea invite us to honor the Lord's Body by honoring the members who have passed away, i.e. the saints and martyrs.

---

It is unwarranted to carry out one task at the expense of another. Our love for the poor should be in harmony with our love for the saints who are still alive. Through prayer and constant thanksgiving, these saints express love towards God as well as towards all mankind.

* The Lord Jesus Christ sought to limit the evil in Judas. He did so by treating him with great humility. By not speaking about His knowledge that Judas stole from the money box, the Lord made a statement that would become an obstacle to the wicked desire of Judas. Moreover, the Lord's words would strip Judas of any form of self defense<sup>13</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

When we speak about His divine presence with us, the Lord Jesus Christ is with us constantly. When we speak about His physical presence, He is the One who told His disciples: "Me you do not have always", [8].

St Augustine

'Then people of the Jews therefore knew that he was there:
And they came not for Jesus' sake only,
But that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead.' [9]

Many of the Jews had heard about Lazarus being raised from the dead. It was the talk of the whole city. Therefore people came not to see the Lord but to see the one who had been raised from the dead. They did not come to hear the Lord, but they came to see and verify the story about the one resurrected from the dead. These people had come to honor Him rather than to arrest Him or report Him to the authorities. Some had come to confirm their faith in Him by listening about the miracle of the resurrection from the mouth of Lazarus himself. Others had been driven to come out of curiosity. How could a person arise from the dead, what had he seen when he was dead, and what news can he tell about the other world? During these days of feasting, Lazarus became an amazing center of attention for many wanted to see and hear him.

'But the chief priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death;'

St Jerome wrote a letter to Marcella in which he praises Blaesilla, the daughter of Paula, whose husband had passed away seven months after their marriage. She then suffered from a dangerous disease. This drove her to have faith and she dedicated all her energy towards serving the Lord. This caused a tide of strong attacks against her. St Jerome considered her to be the new Lazarus because she enjoyed what was similar to being resurrected from the dead.

* Her previous life had been characterized by a kind of carelessness. She was bound by the ropes of wealth and she seemed to be like a dead person lying in the grave of this world. However, the Lord was greatly disturbed and troubled spiritually and cried: "Blaesilla, come forth." She arose at His call, came out, and sat and ate with the Lord (Jn 12:2). The Jews angrily threatened her and demanded that she be put to death because the Lord had raised her from the dead (Jn 12:10). She was content as the apostles offer glory to God. Blaesilla realized that she was indebted with her life to the One who had restored life to her. She could now embrace the feet of the One whom she had feared as a Judge just a short while ago...what greater comfort could she find to help her face the words of her opponents...these seemed lighter than smoke?<sup>14</sup>

St Jerome

* Did not the Lord have the power to raise those who had been killed since He had the power to raise those who were dead? (In other words, could He have raised himself when the Jews sought to kill Him)?

When you were plotting a violent death for Lazarus, were you disarming the Lord of His power?

If you thought that those who had died a natural death were different from those who had been murdered, than just stop and think again. The Lord went through both these situations: He raised Lazarus who had died a natural death, and He raised Himself after having been murdered<sup>15</sup>.

St Augustine

‘Because on account of Him, many of the Jews went away,
And believed on Jesus.’ [11]

As more hearts were fired up with the desire to see the Lord Jesus Christ, and as faith in Him increased, so did the jealousy of the chief priests become more intense. They consulted together; and could find no other means to solve the situation other than by killing Him. They exerted every effort to distort His image before the crowds so that they would abandon Him. Their attempts were futile due to the miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead. There could be no better proof that the Lord Jesus Christ was the Messiah than raising someone from the dead. The Lord had granted Lazarus life because He is real Life.

2-The Lord’s Triumphant Entry into Jerusalem

‘The next day a great multitude had come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem’ [12],
‘Took branches of palm trees,
And went forth to meet him,
And cried out:
“Hosanna:
Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord!
The King of Israel!” [13]

The palm tree branches are symbols of victory. That is why Cicero who had won many trophies was called ‘the man of many palm branches.’ The Lord overcame the powers of darkness through His death. That is why He was worthy to have bearers of palm branches pave His way.

<sup>14</sup> Letter 38:2

Besides, carrying palm branches played an important role during the Feast of Dedication. It was a sign of rejoicing. Similarly, the Lord is our reason to celebrate- He is our Feast as He brings joy to our hearts.

King Solomon states that the soul loved by her bridegroom- who is the Lord Jesus Christ- is similar to a palm tree: “I will go up to the palm tree, I will take hold of its branches...” (Sg of Sol: 7:8).

Coptic (Egyptian) Christians observe the tradition to compete in buying palm branches, weaving, and decorating them with flowers. They often place a specially cooked loaf (Korban) in the shape of a Cross as part of the work. All this has the purpose of expressing the joy of the soul as she prepares to receive her victorious Bridegroom. It indicates a heart that is glad because of her heavenly King, the Savior of souls from all corruption. Many people continue to preserve the woven palm branches from one Palm Sunday until the next Palm Sunday is celebrated. This indicates the continued expression of welcome to the King within the hearts, as well as within the family inside their home.

The people shouted words of welcome taken from Psalms 118:25-26. This reveals how the people’s welcome was in harmony with the spirit of the Holy Bible. It was the result of their perception that He was the awaited Messiah; whereas the religious leaders were struck with spiritual blindness.

Although He came as a poor person lacking glory, yet the crowds welcomed Him as a King and Savior of Israel. They perceived that He was the righteous King who came in the name of the Lord (Ps 2:6). They accepted His kingdom wholeheartedly, and they expressed their feelings by shouting “Hosanna!” or ‘Hoshaana’ which means ‘He has redeemed us.’

The crowds opened their hearts to receive the Lord of glory, and they seemed to sing with the Psalmist, saying: “Lift up your heads, O you gates! And be lifted up, you everlasting doors! And the King of glory shall come in: the Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle” (Ps 24:7, 8).

Palm tree branches are also a symbol of praise and a sign of victory. The Lord came to conquer death by dying. With the power of His Cross He defeated the prince of death.

The word that the crowds used to cheer the Lord was ‘Hosanna.’ Some writers who know the Hebrew language believe that the word indicates a positive state of mind. This is similar to our use of certain expressions. For example, to indicate grief, we say “How sad”; to indicate joy, we say “Ha!” surprise-“Wonderful”; and astonishment- “Oh.” ‘Hosanna’ belongs to that same class of words and cannot be translated into Latin or Greek. There are many such expressions, like: “He who tells his brother ‘Rakka’” as this is a tool of astonishment and expresses anger<sup>16</sup>.

* “Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord! The King of Israel!” [13].

We get a better meaning of the words “...in the name of the Lord” when we realize the implication to be ‘... in the name of the Lord God.’ It is also appropriate to understand that He comes in His own name for He is the Lord<sup>17</sup>.

* What kind of intellectual dilemma must the Jewish leaders have suffered as they heard such great crowds proclaiming that the Lord Jesus Christ was their King!

But what Honor does the Lord receive by being king of Israel?

What is the great thing for the Lord of Eternity to become king over mankind?

The Lord’s reign over Israel is not intended for the collection of a tribute, or for the exchange of swords among soldiers, or to defeat His enemies in a declared war. Actually, He is King of Israel as He rules with kingly power over their inner natures; as He plans their eternal concerns; and as He attracts those who have faith, hope, and love to focus on Him and His divine kingdom. Being the Son of God and equal to Him, His act is one of humiliation that does not involve any elevation or grandness. He is the Word and by Him things were made. He willingly became the King of Israel. It is an act of tenderness and does involve any addition of power. Indeed, the One whom they called the King of Israel on earth is called the King of angels in heaven<sup>18</sup>.

St Augustine

‘Then Jesus, when he had found a young donkey,
Sat on it; as it is written, [14].

The Lord was used to walking when going from one place to another. However, He was now riding on a donkey with astonishing humility. He was not riding like king Solomon- in a carriage (Sg of Sol 3:9-10) decorated with ‘pillars of silver, supports of gold, and covered with purple.’ The Lord’s glory was not a materialistic one. Since His kingdom was not of this world, He did not carry any appearance of grandness.

He ‘sat on it’: we are not told that ‘He rode it’ as the Evangelist wished to underline the Lord’s status as He sits on the throne.

What is briefly reported in this passage has been reported with elaboration by the other three evangelists (Matt 21:1-16; Mk 11:1-11; Lk 19:29-48).

“Fear not, daughter of Zion:

Behold, your King is coming, sitting on a donkey’s colt.” [15]

The prophet asks the daughter of Zion to look up and see her humble and meek King who fills her life with the joy of victory. Therefore he invites her to rejoice and be glad for her King has come to tear away her fear and anxiety. The prophecy of the prophet Zechariah has been fulfilled: ‘Rejoice greatly (do not fear), O daughter of Zion; ... behold, your King is coming to you: he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding on a donkey, and upon a colt the foal of a donkey’ (Zech 9:9). He did not come to take revenge of His enemies- Jews or Romans. Rather, He came so that His heavenly peace and sublime glory may fill them. This is what St Luke expressed in these words: ‘Peace in heaven and glory in the highest’ (Lk 19:38). St Augustine comments on that and says:

---

* She was told ‘Fear not...’ as she would get to know the One whom she would glorify now. She was encouraged to dismiss fear for He had come to suffer. By pouring His Blood, He will erase your sins, and restore you to life. Concerning the colt who had never had someone sit on him before (according to the other evangelists), that was a reference to the Gentiles who had rejected the law of the Lord. As for the donkey...he was a symbol of His people, who came from Israel, and submitted to learn about the manger of their Master<sup>19</sup>.

St Augustine

“Fear not, daughter of Zion...” for most of those who ruled over the Jews were cruel and unjust. They delivered the people to their enemies and put a ransom to stimulate their attackers...this was not the case with that humble One. It was evident as He rode on a donkey, and did not lead an army as He entered the city. He just sat on a donkey<sup>20</sup>.
St John Chrysostom

‘His disciples did not understand these things at the first:
But when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things were written about Him,
And that they had done these things to him.’ [16]

The disciples were unable to comprehend the real implications of the unfolding events and what they entailed. They could not see how the prophecies of the Old Testament were being fulfilled. It was only after the Lord was glorified upon His resurrection that He opened their hearts with love and their minds with the spirit of knowledge. Only then did they realize how they had been granted the joy of the new covenant, and which the prophets had longed for in the old times.

The Evangelist reports this observation about the disciples to indicate their disability to understand that these events fulfilled the prophecies. He states that they remained in this state until the Lord was glorified through His crucifixion and resurrection. Then they understood. Before that, they were like young children who acted without understanding the context of the events unfolding around them. As soon as they reached a stage of maturity, they were able to perceive the divine mystery which lay behind these events. They finally realized that this was God’s plan for salvation

* Do you notice how the disciples did not know most of the prophecies about the Lord Jesus Christ as He had not revealed these to them? Moreover, they did not understand His words: “Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up,” (Jn 2:19). In another Gospel, we are told that: “...this saying was hidden from them” (Lk 18:34); and they did not know that He would rise from the dead...

Note the philosophy of St John the Evangelist and how he did not shrink away from revealing how the minds of the disciples were dim at first.

---

* St John was not ashamed to admit the ignorance of the disciples. Later on, he reveals their knowledge. However, he was not concerned with honoring people for he preached to glorify the Spirit.

St Cyril the Great

People have held different perspectives concerning this unique procession:

1-The Lord Jesus Christ viewed it through the Cross and considered it to be a procession of glory. The hour had come for the Son of Man to be glorified by offering Himself as the Passover Lamb sacrificed on behalf of the world. Then He would carry believers over from slavery to Satan into the heavenly Canaan.

2- The people of the Old Testament looked on this procession while they were in hell and found it to convey the fulfillment of the symbols and the prophecies. The time had come which they had so longingly anticipated for years. They had awaited the One who would carry them into Paradise and bringing them heavenly treasures.

3- The disciples watched the procession but understood nothing! They experienced a condition of great confusion!

4- The chief priests and the Pharisees watched and saw the procession as a great threat. It would cause utter destruction to their position and personal desires.

5- The crowds conceived the procession as a herald to a new age, for that One had come who would free them from the Roman occupation and grant them temporal glory!

6- Finally, the heavenly hosts watched the procession with amazement at the humility of the incarnated Word of God. The One who owned heaven and earth sat on a donkey and was being proclaimed by weak human beings...what were the implications of His humility and His love for mankind?!

‘Therefore the people that were with him when He called Lazarus out of his tomb, And raised him from the dead, bore witness.’ [17]

The reason why all these crowds had come out to meet Him was the miracle He did when He raised Lazarus from the dead. At the same time, it was an opportunity to speak about this miracle, Therefore many got attracted to Him. This increased the envy of the Pharisees all the more. They lost all hope of restricting the Lord’s popularity and power. They could find no other solution to get rid of Him but to kill Him. The Lord had preached often, and had done countless miracles; yet raising Lazarus from the dead attracted the crowds to Him. Nothing could overwhelm and destroy a person like death; and nothing could bring a person more joy like the resurrection from death.

* Many had resisted being converted immediately until they believed in this miracle<sup>21</sup>.

---

<sup>21</sup> Homilies on St John, 66:2

‘For this cause the people also met him,
Because they had heard that he had done this sign, [Jn 12:19]
The Pharisees therefore said among themselves:
“You see that you are accomplishing nothing?
Look, the world has gone after him.” [19]

At this time, all the fears of the religious leaders became real. The chief priests and Pharisees felt especially threatened as matters seemed to slip beyond their control. Indeed, all the people had joined together in a procession that shook the city. On the hand, the Pharisees were faced with the reality of their inadequacy “...you are accomplishing nothing...” [19]. On the other hand, they felt that the whole world had gone and followed the Lord. In this context, the reference is made to the Jewish world- that is every one had become attracted to Him just as a disciple would be. Therefore the Pharisees felt that any further delay in getting rid of Him constituted a danger that would be hard to remedy.

* The Pharisees were referring to the crowds when they said: “...the world has gone after him.” The Holy Bible usually uses the expression ‘the world’ to refer to the creation and to those who walk wickedly. The Lord had told His disciples: “The world cannot hate you, but it hates Me because I testify of it that its works are evil,” (Jn 7:7)

St John Chrysostom

3- The Greeks Honor the Lord Jesus Christ

‘Now there were certain Greeks among those who came up to worship at the feast.’ [20]

Some pagan converts, who were Greeks, desired to see the Lord Jesus Christ. This incident could have taken place a day or two after the Lord had come into the city for the Lord had spent the first day doing general services.

Some scholars believe that these were Jews who had been dispersed and had adhered to the Hellenic culture and were therefore called Greeks, like for example Cornelius and the eunuch of Kadago. Besides, the Jews accepted some Gentiles who were naturally inclines to worship God yet were not familiar with the law of Moses and the prophets. At the same time, there were Gentiles who respected righteous Jewish people and allowed them to worship while they lived among them. They even allowed them to attend their religious gatherings within the established limits. Such Gentiles were the ones whom the Jews considered to be foreigners.

Other scholars believe that these pagans were Gentiles. They note that the Jews in older times had allowed some Gentiles to travel to the temple during the feasts. It is as though they foretold the destruction of the veil that separated the Gentiles from the Jews through the power of the Lord Jesus Christ. These Gentiles used to come to the temple to worship without eating the Passover.

At the Lord’s birth, He attracted the magi from the east. They worshipped Him and offered gifts. They also witnessed for Him in one way or other in the royal palace and among the priests and high priests. When He was crucified, He attracted the Greeks from the west who for the pleasure of seeing Him. It appears that the Lord had come to bring together the east and the west so that all may become one fold under one shepherd. By His birth and death, He opened the way of faith to the Gentiles so that all may enjoy Him. The Macedonian man became entitled to appear to the apostle Paul in a dream and cry out: “Come over...and help us” (Acts 16:9).

These Greeks did not participate in the procession that took place when the Lord made His entry into Jerusalem. It could be that only the Jews were allowed. However, they were able to find out how to participate spiritually as they proclaimed their sincere desire to see Him. It was as though they joined in their own language and shouted with the Jews, “Hosanna (Redeem us) in the highest”!

Although there was a great crowd around the Lord Jesus Christ, these Greeks did not lose their hope of fulfilling their heart’s desire and wish to see Him.

* They were potential converts (i.e. accepting the Jewish faith) and therefore had come to the feast and requested “...to see Jesus”<sup>22</sup>, [21].

St John Chrysostom

‘Then they came to Philip, who was from Bethsaida of Galilee,
And asked him, saying,
“Sir, we would see Jesus”’, [21].

Some writers believe that these Greeks knew Philip, and that they lived close by in Bethsaida- the Gentile area of Galilee. They had probably attended some of the Lord’s gatherings and had seen Philip sitting next to Him.

Their message to Philip conveyed their special appreciation of the Lord and their eagerness to meet and speak with Him separately. They had come to the feast, yet they were not impressed with the grandness of the temple, or with the great throngs coming for the feast. Moreover, they had not come to see the wonders and miracles that the Lord did. All they wanted was to have Him for themselves as they yearned to see Him and speak with Him.

Sadly enough, during the Christian feasts- especially during the big feasts of Easter and Christmas- many Christians are so preoccupied with the preparations for the feast that they do not yearn to see the Lord Jesus Christ and to meet personally with Him.

Some scholars believe that these people came from Phoenicia or from Syria. They were probably inhabitants of the Decapolis which is close to the Pool of Genasereth and Bethsaida.

* Note how the sought to kill Him, whereas the Gentiles sought to see Him.

Nevertheless, there were also Jewish people who shouted: “Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord! The King of Israel!”

We find in the crowd some who belonged to the circumcised as well as others who belonged to the uncircumcised. This is like two walls in a house, each having a different direction. Yet they meet and exchange the kiss of peace and share the one faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Let us therefore listen to the voice of the Cornerstone: “The hour has come that the Son of Man be glorified” [23]. Some may think that the Lord was referring to Himself and that He would be glorified as the Gentiles wanted to see Him. But that is not the case for the Lord was actually referring to His vision of the Gentiles. They were going to come into the faith from all nations. This would occur after His suffering and resurrection. The apostle accordingly says: “that hardening in part has happened to Israel until the fullness of the Gentiles has come in,” (Rom 11:20). When the Greeks came to see Him, the Lord seized the occasion to announce the future fullness of the Gentile. They would believe after His hour had come; and when He Himself would be glorified in heaven, then the Gentiles would come into the faith<sup>23</sup>.

St Augustine

‘Philip came and told Andrew:
And in turn Andrew and Philip told Jesus.’ [22]

It is so wonderful when servants work together! They both came to the Lord to present to Him the souls that yearned to know Him. Philip probably debated with Andrew what they should do. He had often heard the Lord say that He had come to save the lost sheep of Israel. Together they agreed to bring the matter to the Lord.

* Philip went to Andrew as he was his senior. He presented the matter to him and did not act with authority as he had read: ‘Do not go into the way of the Gentiles,’ (Matt 10:5). That is why he spoke and sought the advice of the disciple, then brought the matter to the Lord<sup>24</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

‘But Jesus answered them, saying,
“The hour has come that the Son of Man should be glorified.” [23]

St John Chrysostom states that the Lord had previously told the disciples: “Do not go in the way of the Gentiles” (Matt 10:5). However, as the hour of the crucifixion drew nearer, the door to the Gentiles would be opened and the time for preaching to the Gentiles had come.

The Lord accepted to see them. His words that “The hour has come that the Son of Man should be glorified”, are intended to encourage the Gentiles to come and get acquainted with Him. The Lord saw that the fields were white and ready for the harvest. It is a moment of glory for Him as the doors of His Church were opened to receive all mankind. It happened as a reaction to the Jews who had rejected Him and had departed from the fold of believers. The Lord’s vision would be fulfilled through His death and resurrection. It would be like a mustard seed placed in the earth to bring much fruit.

The disciples and apostles were the first Jews to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ. These Greeks were the first Gentiles to believe in Him after the Cross tore the veil which separated heaven from earth- and the Jews from the Gentiles.

It was necessary for the Lord to be glorified through His death and resurrection in order to establish His glorious Church consisting of Jews and Gentiles. His love obligated Him to die. In order to redeem the world which had been destroyed by corruption, it was necessary to wash it from sin, sanctify it, and glorify it in heaven. These are the many mustard seeds and the harvest of His redeeming act.

The hour had come and no one would ever comprehend the depth and mystery of that time except God alone. This was the hour of glory to the Father as well as to the Son. Three years had gone by while the Lord was performing His wonderful deeds and preaching to the crowds. Now the time had come when the seed would fall into the earth, get buried, and die. The time of the winepress had come. The prophet Isaiah had a vision of it earlier and he had heard the Lord's words: "I have trodden the winepress alone, and from the peoples no one was with Me" (Is 63:3).

The hour had come when the Lord would stretch out His arms on the Cross and accomplish the reconciliation between the Father and mankind. Moreover, He would embrace the Jews and Gentiles together as members of His one Body.

* Do you want to be convinced that He willingly suffered? Others do not know what will happen to them and they therefore die involuntarily. However, the Lord had foreknowledge and said: "The Son of Man will be delivered and crucified." Do you know why? Why did that 'Friend of Man' not prevent death? In order to prevent the whole world from being destroyed by sin. "Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be betrayed...and they will condemn Him to death." So 'He went on ahead, going up to Jerusalem' (Matt 20:18; Lk 19:38).

Do you really want to know how the Cross brought glory to the Lord Jesus Christ? Listen to His words and not our words. As Judas the traitor was about to betray the Lord of the house, he sat at His table and drank of the cup of His grace which grants salvation. He then left to shed the innocent Blood: 'Even my own familiar friend in whom I trusted, who ate my bread, has lifted up his head against me,' (Ps 41:9). Judas was still holding in his hands the gift of His grace when he planned to betray the Lord and receive a price for delivering Him to death...As soon as he heard the Lord's words, "You have said it", he went out (Matt 26:25). Then the Lord said: ""The hour has come that the Son of Man should be glorified." That indicates, my beloved one, how the Cross came to stand for the glory due to the Lord.

Isaiah was not ashamed of being hacked in pieces. Would the Lord be ashamed of dying on behalf of the world?!

"Now the Son of Man is glorified" (Jan 33:32). This did not mean that He was without glory previously. In fact, He had been crowned with the glory due to Him even before the creation of the world (Jn17:5). He has been eternally glorified for He is God. Now He would be glorified as He suffers patiently.

The Lord was not forced to offer His life up. Moreover, He was not obligated to accept death but voluntarily accepted it. Listen to His words: “I have power to lay it down, and I have power that I may take it up again,” (Jn 10:18). In other words: ‘I deliver Myself willingly to My enemies; otherwise this would not have occurred.

The Lord came with a plan that He put down Himself in order to suffer. He was pleased with that noble deed, and smiled at His crown of glory while taking pride in bringing salvation to mankind. He was not ashamed of the Cross for it was intended to be the salvation of this world. He was not an ordinary man- in fact, He was the incarnated God<sup>25</sup>.

St Cyril of Jerusalem

“Most assuredly, I say to you, unless a grain of wheat falls into the ground and dies, It remains alone:
But if it dies, it produces much grain...” [24]

However much the world progresses, it is still unable to comprehend the mystery of harvesting much produce from one mustard seed; or how the harvest gets transformed into flesh, blood, and bones of a human body and of animals. Similarly, the mystery of Christ’s death and resurrection, which constitute the foundation upon which the glorious Church is built, will remain to be an incomprehensible mystery to mankind.

The Greeks had come to see the Lord. Why did the Lord tell them the parable of the grain of wheat? He intended to underline that they could not see Him as He is unless He would come over to them by way of His death and resurrection. He would then enter their world, and would carry them in Him. He is the Way that would attract their hearts to Him. He would carry them over so that they would speak through Him and cross over with Him into the Father’s embrace. They would become ‘of His body, of His flesh, and of His bones,’ (Eph 5:30).

* If you wondered what the Lord meant when He said: “...unless a grain of wheat falls into the ground and dies, it remains alone; but if it dies, it produces much grain...” our explanation would be as follows: The Lord was speaking about His crucifixion. It is as though He was saying: ‘This is what will happen with the grain: it will die and then it will bear much fruit. If this happens to seeds, then it is much more appropriate and essential for this to happen with Me.’ However, the disciples were unable to comprehend the words of the Lord.

* Our present life is beautiful and full of pleasure. However, this not true for everyone, and it is only valid for those who cling to it. Therefore, if someone looked up at the heavens and perceived the beauty there, he would hate this life and disregard it immediately. This is because the beauty of any object attracts someone who has not seen something more beautiful than it. However, when something better appears, that person will hate the earlier object. Therefore if we choose to look up and see the beauty and sublimity of the Kingdom up there, then we shall liberate ourselves of our present bonds...for our present emotional inclinations are a form of bondage straps...Listen to these words: ‘If you are unable to tolerate my death bravely, or rather, if you do not die, then you will attain nothing’<sup>26</sup>.

<sup>25</sup> Essay 13:6

<sup>26</sup> Homilies on St John: 67:1

St John Chrysostom

The grain of wheat became a rare object in the field of Judas for it had died there. In contrast, the oil overflowed like streams in the house of the pagan widow<sup>27</sup>.

St Jerome

“He who loves his life shall lose it;
And he who hates his life in this world shall keep it for eternal life.” [25]

A person who loves himself more than he loves the Lord Jesus Christ, or who loves his temporal life more than his eternal glory destroys himself. In contrast, a person would surely enjoy eternal life if he destroys himself like the grain of wheat; glorifies the Lord and shares His suffering and death.

The Lord’s death has changed the meaning and values of death. It has also altered our view of life. Death has become a requirement that is necessary to the promotion of a full and fruitful life. Where there is no death, there is no real life. When a person buries the ego, the Lord who is ‘life’ proclaims Himself in him. When a person seeks ‘himself’ then the Lord does not find a place for Him within. Consequently, that person loses the Source of his life.

A new life in the Lord Jesus Christ becomes evident in anyone who dies to his old life and crucifies the world. Such a person experiences the warranty of eternal life.

* If you asked: ‘How does someone who loves his life destroy it?’ Our answer would be: ‘Whoever indulges in the lusts of the soul and allows her to cross over the appropriate limits represents such a person who loves his soul and destroys it. That is why Wisdom warns us and says: “Don’t be controlled by your lust, keep your passions in check. If you allow yourself to satisfy every desire, you will be a joke to your enemies’ (Sirach 18:30, 31). This is because lusts obstruct the path that leads the soul to virtue.

The Lord’s words: “...he who hates his life in this world shall keep it for eternal life” carry the same meaning. If you asked: ‘What does ‘he who hates his life’ imply? We would answer: ‘It is someone who neither submits to life nor obeys it when it commands him to do evil deeds.

The Lord did not say: ‘He who does not submit to it’; rather He said: “he who hates his life.’ Just as we find ourselves unable to tolerate hearing the voice or seeing the face of someone we do not like, so we need to step away immediately from our soul if she commands us to disobey God’s commandments.

St John Chrysostom

* If you love, then be ready to suffer loss. If you wish to attain life in the Lord Jesus Christ, then do not fear to die for His sake<sup>28</sup>.

<sup>28</sup> St Augustine: On the Gospel of St John, tractate 51:10

St Augustine

This is surely a deep and strange proclamation. It defines the degree to which a person loves his life to the extent of wanting to destroy it. Moreover, this would drive him to hate his life in order to preserve it! If you love your life in a sinful manner, then you truly hate it. However, if you love your life in a righteous manner, then you actually love it even though you hate it. O, how happy are those who despise their lives and so preserve it: for their love does not result in the destruction of their life<sup>29</sup>.

St Augustine

“If anyone serves Me, let him follow Me;
And where I am, there my servant shall be also:
If anyone serves Me, him will My Father honor.” [26]

First, the Lord presented a new meaning for death and life in the light of His Crucifixion, death, and resurrection. Now, He presents to us a new meaning for service and the ministry. Being a minister does not involve the mere offering services to others. It implies achieving union with the true and unique Servant- the Lord Jesus Christ- and joining and following Him on the road to Gethsemane.

When someone desires to serve and witness for the Lord, the first step he needs to take is to follow Him. That means he needs to become a disciple, learn, obey, and walk with the Lord on the path of the crucifixion and burial. As a result, he would arise and produce much fruit. May a minister/servant forsake worldly pleasures as he focuses on eternal happiness. May he get to be united with the Eternal One and so receive eternal glory from the Holy Father Himself.

Having this new meaning gives a minister the reward for his services. Indeed, he finds himself in the company of His Lord- sharing in His suffering as well as in His joy. Truly, whoever enjoys fellowship with the Lord, and devotes his life to witness for Him, is honored by Him in ways neither he nor others can ever imagine: ‘Those who are wise shall shine like the brightness of the firmament, and those who turn many to righteousness like the stars forever and ever,’ (Daniel 12:3). The Lord also says: “Father, I desire that they also, whom You have given Me may be with me where I am” (Jn17:24). As he serves, a servant finds the unique opportunity to speak with the true Servant- the Lord Jesus Christ. On his way and during a minister’s service, the Lord reveals Himself and the Father and so grants His servant divine knowledge.

Anyone who preserves the honor of God and works through Him, the same is honored by God Himself: “...he who waits on his master will be honored” (Prov. 27:18).

By saying this parable, the Lord intended to lead the Greeks, who had come to see Him, to focus and adopt His view of working for His Kingdom. His words reveal the glory which is prepared for those who work in His vineyard. In this manner, He transforms the beautiful yearning to see Him into a serious task. By working for His kingdom, they would be enabled to see Him in His eternal glory. At the same time they would enjoy this glorious fellowship.

---

* The Lord was speaking about death and the requirements made on those who followed Him. They had to work, and to follow up those they served constantly... “If any man desires to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me” (Matt16:24). In other words, He says: ‘Be always prepared for dangers, for death, and for departure from this world.’ Having stated the difficulties of serving Him, the Lord presents the rewards. What kind of rewards are they? ‘Being His disciples, and being there- wherever He may be found, and underlining that the resurrection always follows death<sup>30</sup>’.

* But where is the Lord Jesus Christ? He is in the heavens. Therefore may we transport our souls and minds to the heavens even before we the resurrection. Why does the Lord indicate that the person who serves the Lord Jesus ‘... him will My Father honor; rather than saying ‘I will honor him’? The reason is that the disciples had not yet attained the correct concept concerning the person of the Lord Jesus Christ. However, they did comprehend deeply all that concerned the Father<sup>31</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* What honor could be greater for the adopted son than to be in the company of the only begotten Son? It is true that he does not attain the rank of a deity, yet he becomes a partner in eternity?!<sup>32</sup>

* The Lord wishes us to understand that those who serve Him should not be seeking their own interests. Rather, they should be seeking to serve and please Him (Phil2:21). He seems to be stating the following: “He who does not follow Me does not serve Me.” This is the implication of the words “Let him follow Me.” It means: Let him walk along My path and not in his own way. In another passage, it is written: “He who says he abides in Him ought himself also to walk just as He walked” (1John 2:6)<sup>33</sup>.

* Everyone is a minister of the Lord just as the Lord is a minister Himself. By serving in His footsteps, a servant will be greatly honored by the Father who will grant him fellowship with the Son. Consequently, such a minister’s joy will be complete for evermore<sup>34</sup>.

* My brothers, when you hear that “Where I am, there My servant will be also” do not think that this applies to good priests and bishops only. Rather, it is intended to encourage you also to serve the Lord within your own means: by living uprightly, by offering donations, by preaching in His name and spreading His teachings as much as possible ...<sup>35</sup>

“Now is my soul troubled;
And what shall I say? Father, save Me from this hour:
But for this purpose I came to this hour.” [27]

The Lord spoke about the need for Him to suffer and to die. As the Son of Man, He lifted His heart and said: “Now My soul is troubled”[27]. Indeed, these are strange words coming from the Lord especially after the disciples had witnessed Gentile strangers seeking to meet Him. Then they heard Him say “The hour has come that the Son of Man should be glorified.” However, because He had truly become incarnated, it was natural that His soul got troubled in the face of all that cloud of suffering that enveloped Him. He probably saw through that cloud the sins of all humanity. It appeared before Him so that He would carry them upon His shoulders; and offer Himself as a burnt sacrifice and redemption for our sins.

While the Lord comforted His disciples, and told them “Let not your hearts be troubled” (Jn 14:1), yet He says “Now My heart is troubled” [27]. His troubled heart releases our hearts from being troubled: His pains constitute the mystery of our eternal peace. By His own will and pleasure, the Lord carried the burden of our sins. In spite of His joy, it was inevitable that His heart got troubled due to the immensity of our sins. He carried the weight of our weakness in order to grant us a Spirit of power.

His troubled heart is the expression of holy sadness that generates joy in the hearts of believers. It gives joy to the Father as it reconciles Him with mankind. It causes angels to rejoice as well. His heart got troubled as He entered the narrow path leading to the Cross. In this manner, we are enabled to share in His pain and enter with Him into the heavenly glory. His pains would endure for an hour and it had now come, and then they would pass away. These would be replaced by eternity which is infinite. Some scholars explain that the Greek word used indicates anxiety rather than fear<sup>36</sup>.

The Lord’s words to the Father reveal the joy He finds in carrying the Cross. He says: “...for this purpose I came to this hour...” [27]. In order to carry us to a life of submission and humility, He cries: “Father, save Me from this hour...,” [27].

* These words do not reflect His divinity. Rather, they reflect His human nature which rejects death and holds on to this present life. In this manner, the Lord underlined that He was not exempt from human suffering. He revealed that holding on to this present life is not a sin, just as hunger and the need for sleep do not constitute failings. The Lord had a body that was untainted by sin, yet it was not released from natural physical needs. That was the wisdom for giving Him a body.

St John Chrysostom

* The Lord took the form of human weakness in order to teach us, that when we are sad or troubled, to say: “...O, my Father, ...not as I will, but as You will...,” (Matt 26:39). In this manner, a person is transformed from being human to being divine as he prefers to do the Father's will rather than his own<sup>37</sup>.

St Augustine

"Father, glorify thy name."
Then came there a voice from heaven, saying,
"I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again." [28]

The incarnate Son submitted to the Father's will by offering Himself as a sacrifice. The Father proclaimed His acceptance through the resurrection which also brings glory to the Father. At this point the Lord indicates the link between death and glory (the resurrection). Although His soul is troubled, He does not ask that this sentence of death be removed. Indeed, the passage into the resurrection brings a reciprocated glory: the glory of the Son and the glory of the Father.

The Lord refers to God Himself as well as to all His characteristics by using the words 'Your Name.' The Father Himself is glorified, as well as His wisdom, mercy, love, holiness, righteousness, etc...All that is achieved through the redeeming act of the Lord.

The Voice of the Father is heard saying: "I have both glorified it and will glorify it again," [28]. It is as though He was saying: 'I have achieved My plan through You. I have sent You to be atonement for the sins of the world. I have executed justice which will never be void of My love and mercy. You have completed My work. That is why You offer Your Blood on the Cross, and I accept it as a sacrifice of love. Your death and resurrection glorify Me and fulfill My mission towards My beloved: Man. I have glorified You and will glorify You at Your death and at Your resurrection.'

The Lord Jesus Christ was glorified through His teachings, His loving deeds, and the wonders and miracles He did. He was glorified when He was tempted in the wilderness when the angels later appeared and served Him. He was glorified at His baptism when the Voice of the Father was heard bearing witness for Him, and when the Holy Spirit appeared in the form of a dove (Mk 9:7). At the time of the transfiguration, He was glorified as He appeared with Elijah and Moses and spoke about His 'decease which He was about to accomplish at Jerusalem' (Lk 9:31). He would be glorified through the astonishing events that were going to take place during His arrest, judgment, and crucifixion. He would be glorified by His resurrection, ascension, and the granting of the Holy Spirit to His disciples. He will ultimately be glorified through his disciples who would successfully preach and spread His Gospel throughout the whole world.

* The words of the Father: "I have glorified it and will glorify it again" may lead you to wonder: 'Where is His glory?' Our response is: 'The Lord has been glorified throughout the previous ages; and He will be glorified after His resurrection.'

St John Chrysostom

and the Father. In the Book of Job we read: "...the thunder of His power who can understand..." (Job 26:14; LXX).<sup>38</sup>

St Ambrose

* "...and I will glorify it again," [28] when the Lord will arise after His death. Then death will have no authority over Him. Indeed, when He ascends into the heavens as God, His glory will cover the whole earth<sup>39</sup>.

St Augustine

'The people therefore who stood by, and heard it,
Said that it had thundered.
Others said,
"An angel has spoken to him." [29]

Some scholars note that the Voice used a language known to the Jews but not to the Greeks. Consequently, the Jews said that an angel had spoken to Him; whereas the others thought that it had thundered. In St John's book 'The Revelation' the voice of one of the living creatures is likened to thunder (Rev 6:1).

* You might ask: 'How could they imagine such a thing?' Our answer would be: 'It could be that the Voice could not be identified; or could have occurred too quickly. This could have been a challenge to those who were physically slow, while others were able to hear the Voice clearly.

St John Chrysostom

Jesus answered and said,
"This voice did not come because of Me,
But for your sakes' [30].

The Lord did not need the Voice from heaven to encourage Him. The Voice had come for the sake of those present and so that they would believe that the Father had sent Him. This would sustain the disciples during the Lord's sufferings and keep them from stumbling. They would find comfort in that Voice just as It filled the Lord with joy.

The Voice could have come for the sake of the Greeks who had come to see Him. They had not seen His deeds and miracles. They had just heard about them. Therefore the Voice from heaven was intended to witness for the Lord in their presence.

What did the Father recommend to His Son? To offer eternal life to mankind. This was something no other being in heaven or on earth could do.

* It is as though He was saying: 'This Voice was not intended to inform Me of something I did not know. Indeed, I know all the hidden matters known to My Father. Truly, this Voice came for you.’ The Lord then led them to ask Him what the Voice had said. However, they were so astonished that they did not ask.

<sup>38</sup> Of the Holy Spirit, Book 2:6:55

St Augustine

* Just as the Voice uttered by God was not intended for the Lord but rather directed to those present; similarly, the Lord’s soul was troubled on account of those present and not on account of His own situation<sup>40</sup>.

St Augustine

“Now is the judgment of this world:

Now shall the ruler of this world be cast out.” [31]

* This is the Voice of the Father whom the Son knows and comprehends His depths. The Voice had come to proclaim the judgment of this evil world, the defeat of the devil- ‘the ruler of this world’-and his eviction after being stripped of all power. Satan loses all his sphere of influence as believers proclaim their victory in the arena of battle. Satan exits in great weakness and utter defeat after having won many rounds earlier. That is how Satan loses in his struggle with the Lord Jesus Christ. His defeat continues as he wrestles with believers who are members in the victorious body of the Lord.

St John writes in the certitude of faith and says: “I have written to you young men because you are strong, and the Word of God abides in you, and you have overcome the wicked one,” (1John 2:14). He also says: “For whatever is born of God overcomes the world. And this is the victory that has overcome the world- our faith” (1Jn 5:4). Those who enjoy the redeeming act of God also sing praises and say: “Now salvation and strength and the kingdom of our God and the power of His Christ have come; for the accuser of our brethren, who accused them before God day and night, has been cast down. And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony; and they did not love their lives to the death,” (Rev 12:10-11).

Through the Cross all those things, which human beings plotted against the Lord Jesus Christ and all what Satan devised in an attempt to get rid of Him, ended in the defeat of evil and the destruction of Satan’s power. The ruler of this wicked world cannot stand before the Ruler of life. The apostle says appropriately: “But you denied the Holy One, and the Just, and asked for a murderer to be granted to you, and killed the Prince of life, whom God raised from the dead, and of which we are witnesses,” (Acts 3:14-15). St Paul also says about the Lord Jesus Christ: “...that through death He might destroy him who had the power of death, that is, the devil,” (Heb 2:14).

The Lord spoke with the certainty of being victorious over death. He knew that His death would restore the light of knowledge to many souls and liberate them from the bonds of Satan.

Note that the word ‘judgment’ is not used with a definite article. This is because the Lord was not referring to the final judgment. Rather, He was referring to the judgment that would begin with

---

His redeeming act. Simeon the elder prophetically says: “Behold, this Child is destined for the fall and rising of many in Israel; and for a sign which will be spoken against” (Lk 2:34).

* If you wonder: ‘What does glory mean?’ Our answer is: According to the Lord Jesus Christ, it is that “...now the ruler of this world will be cast out.”

* What do the words ‘the judgment of this world’ imply? According to the Lord: “It will be a condemnation and disaster.” How and in what manner? Satan had killed the first Man as he led him to sin and so was condemned as a criminal. However, there is no sin in the Lord Jesus Christ. So why was delivered to die? Why was the mind of Judas set on destroying the Lord? Why then is the world to be condemned through the person of the Lord? In the court of justice, the charge against Satan will be: ‘Well, you caused the death of all mankind as they have all been found guilty of sin, but why have you killed the Lord Jesus Christ? Is that not due to your wrong doing? Therefore the whole world will be avenged through Him<sup>41</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* Speaking about the judgment that was about to take place, the Lord says these words: “Now is the judgment of this world”; whereas the final judgment would be withheld until the time when the living and the dead would be judged.

That is why Satan has taken hold of mankind and possesses them since they have been charged of sin. Therefore all mankind stand as criminals waiting to be condemned. He rules over the hearts of unbelievers, deceives, and enslaves them. He tempts them to forsake the Creator and worship the created. However, thousands of believers, through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, have become liberated from the power of Satan. Through the Lord’s death, His resurrection, and the Blood He has poured for the remission of sins, believers have become united into His body. As a result they have become followers of the Head.

This is what the Lord intended when He spoke about the ‘judgment.’ This is the true distinction. It indicates the separation of those who belong to Him and therefore have become liberated from Satan.

* Now the Lord informs us of what He knew: after His sufferings and glorification. Many of the Gentiles spread throughout the world would become believers. Satan had ruled over their hearts but they would reject and cast him out. Through faith they would renounce Satan<sup>42</sup>.

St Augustine

“And if I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all peoples to Myself.” [32]

Satan will be cast out and thrown into hell. In this manner, He would lose the kingdom he had set up among mankind on earth. While the Lord ascends above the earth through the Cross, the enemy descends. The Lord ascends through the Cross in order to enable His followers to ascend with Him into heaven.

We have previously stated that St John the Evangelist looks up to the Cross as a means of elevation (3:14; 8:28) since it is the crowning glory of the Lord.

Here the Lord attributes to Himself the task of drawing “...all peoples to (Himself).” In another passage, the Lord attributes this to the Father (Jn 6:44). He draws the soul through the attraction of love and not by forceful subjugation or violence. Accordingly Hosea says: “I drew them with gentle cords, with bands of love, I was to them as those who take the yoke from their neck. I stooped and fed them,” (Hosea 11:4).

The souls that were estranged from Him could not tolerate meeting with Him due to their darkness. Now it became possible for them to enjoy His light and be attracted to Him. He would be lifted up to heaven and would attract the souls of those who love Him to join and share the heavenly joys with Him.

The Lord uses the expression ‘all peoples’ to stress the efficiency of the Cross in attracting the heavenly and earthly members to join into one Body. The Blood poured on the Cross would reconcile them all to Him. All will be united in the Lord Jesus Christ. We read that: ‘...all things (will be reconciled) to Himself...having made peace through the Blood of His Cross,’ (Col 1:20). The ultimate Plan is to “gather together into one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven and which are on earth...in Him,’ (Eph 1:10). Moreover, the Lord underlines His attraction to all mankind- Jews and Gentiles- yet He does not seek to attract any against their wishes or through forceful subjugation.

* This means that the Lord attracts those who believe even if they are of the Gentiles. He says that He will ‘draw all peoples.’ It is as though these were being arrested by a tyrant and were unable to come to the Lord on their own. These peoples seem unable to escape from the hands of the tyrant who holds them. In another passage, they are considered ‘exiles’ as the Lord says: ‘...how can one enter a strong man’s house and plunder his goods unless he first binds the strong man...,’ (Matt 12:29). He spoke these words to confirm His power, and to indicate here that those attracted Him are the same as those whom he had considered earlier as being exiled.

St John Chrysostom

* The Lord Jesus Christ had become a curse on our account in order to redeem us from the curse of the Law. Then why does it amaze us that He submits to the Father on our account too? Accordingly, He wishes us to submit to the Father, and according to His holy words: “...No one comes to the Father except through Me,” (Jn 14:6). He also says: “And I, if I am Lifted up from the earth, will draw all peoples to Myself,” (Jn 12:32). The Lord is perceived to have submitted to the Father when His believers are taken into account; for all believers- and indeed all mankind- are considered members of His Body. However, He is considered as insubordinate when unbelievers are taken into account; for they are members of His Body, yet they do not submit to faith<sup>43</sup>.

St Jerome

“This He said, signifying by what death He would die,” [33].

The Lord Jesus Christ was lifted up upon the Cross and the whole world looked upon Him. Hanging there between heaven and earth, He was seen as someone who deserved such punishment.

The crowds had heard His sermons and seen the thousands of miracles He had made; yet few remained loyal to Him and remained as His disciples. However, once He was crucified He attracted the whole world to Him. Many became believers and continued to love Him loyally.

‘The people answered Him:

“ We have heard from the law that the Christ remains forever,

And how can You say: ‘the Son of Man must be lifted up?’

Who is the Son of Man?”[33]

The people of Israel expected something different than what the Lord proclaimed. They had heard the Voice from heaven, and the words of grace that he had spoken with His mouth; yet they could not believe that He would ascend, or in other words that he would die. They would not believe even though the Old Testament had foretold His death, still He was the Priest for evermore (Ps 110:4); and the eternal King ( Ps 89:29). In the Book of Daniel, we are told about the Lord that: “...to Him was given domain and glory and kingdom. That all peoples, nations, and languages should serve Him. His dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and His kingdom the one which shall not be destroyed,” (Daniel 7:13, 14). In the Book of Ezekial, we read the following: ‘David, My servant, shall be king over them forever,’ (Ezek 37:25). The people remembered the words about His immortality; yet they forgot the prophecies concerning His death, and how He would sacrifice Himself to die (Is 53:12), and how His feet and hands would be pierced.

“Who is this Son of Man?” [34] They did not ask this question in order to find out His identity. Rather, it reflected their belief that He was the Messiah, the priest and the eternal king. Now they were surprised to learn that He would die. They became doubtful because He proclaimed that His death was imperative.

* They knew that the Messiah would be eternal and would possess eternal life. Had they not also read, in the same context, about His suffering and resurrection in many other passages in the Holy Bible?

Isaiah the prophet places the two issues side by side, and says: ‘He was oppressed and He was afflicted, yet He opened not His mouth; He was led as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before His shearers is silent, so He opened not His mouth,' (IS 53:7). David also links the two issues in the second Psalm as well as in many other passages. Moreover, Jacob- the father of the holy fathers, revealed His sufferings and resurrection, and at the same stated that: 'He bows down, He lies down like a lion; and as a lion, who shall rouse Him?' (Gen 49:9). Nevertheless, the Jewish leaders imagined that they could silence Him and prove that He was not the Messiah. They would use the same issue – that the Messiah would reign eternally- to make their point.

Notice how they handled the matter craftily. They did not say: 'We have heard from the law that the Christ will not suffer or be crucified.' Rather they said the following: "We have heard from the law that the Christ remains forever..." Yet what they said did not constitute any real objection since the Lord's suffering did not obstruct His immortality. That is why we believe that they understood many matters which they claimed to be suspicious; and which they intentionally chose to handle deceitfully. Therefore they asked: "Who is this Son of Man?" They said so slyly and the implication was: 'We ask you not to believe that we say this about you. Do not think that we oppose You due to any enmity between us. Rather, we do not know about whom You are speaking. We are just expressing our opinion<sup>44</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

Then Jesus said unto them,

"A little while longer the light is with you.

Walk while ye have the light,

Lest darkness overtake you,

For he who walks in darkness does not know where he is going." [34]

The Lord indicated that His death was temporary through His words: "Yet a little while is the light with you..." It is like the sun whose light does not end but just gets hidden for a while and then shines again. His words to the Jews to "...Walk while ye have the light lest darkness overtake you ..." are intended to motivate them to believe in Him.

He also told them that "...he who walks in darkness does not know where he is going." How many things had the Jews done up till that moment without being aware of their deeds. They seemed as someone walking in the darkness. They thought they were on the right path whereas they were walking in the opposite direction: they observed the Sabbath and protected the law; they avoided certain foods yet they did not know the right path to take<sup>45</sup>.

"While you have the light, believe in the light," [36]: What was the time frame that the Lord was indicating? Was He referring to the present life as a whole; or was He referring only to the time before His death? We believe He meant both for many came to believe in Him even after His death. On account of His inexpressible love for mankind, He uttered these words to encourage people to believe<sup>46</sup>.

<sup>46</sup> Hom. 68 PG 59:405

St John Chrysostom

“While ye have light, believe in the light,
That you may become sons of light.”
These things Jesus spoke,
And departed, and was hidden of them. [36]

The Lord was concerned with their salvation, therefore He asked them to be preoccupied with their inner depths. This would enable them to walk in the light as long as they had the light, and avoid becoming sons of darkness. Rather than engage with them in worthless arguments, the Lord directed them to issues that would lead them to salvation and growth. He asked them to enjoy the light since He had become incarnated and dwelled among them. Consequently, He would carry them into the eternal heavenly light.

Our life consists of few opportunities which may not come again. Therefore it is appropriate to capitalize on every chance that comes our way to live in fellowship with the Lord. Our Gospel is the light that enlightens the soul. Anyone who rejects its light stumbles into darkness. As for those who enjoy its light, they become children of the light (Lk 16:8; Eph 5:8); and of the sons of daylight (1 Thes 5:5).

The Lord warned them that they would yearn to see just one of the days of the Son of Man but would not be able to see Him (Lk 17:22). He also told them that the kingdom of God would be taken away from them and given to the Gentiles (Matt 21:43).

* “While ye have light, believe in the light, that you may become sons of light.” In other words, ‘that you may become My sons.’ Note that the Evangelist had reported from the beginning of his Gospel that those who believe ‘were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God,’ (Jn1:13). Here the Lord said that He was the One who gave birth to them. He intended to make them realize that the deeds of the Father and the Son were one and the same<sup>47</sup>.

* St John the apostle reports that the Lord Jesus Christ ‘departed, and was hidden of them.’ If you asked: “What was the Lord’s intention by being ‘hidden of them’? They neither carried stones nor blasphemed against Him as they had done before. So why did He disappear?” Our answer would be: “The Lord knew how much their hearts were filled with anger and rebellion. He did not wait for that anger to be vented into the sphere of action, but He disappeared to calm their evil.

St John Chrysostom

The Lord concluded by giving them advice to seize the opportunity of His presence so that His light would shine and dispel their darkness. He explained that time was short and the period left before His departure was very near. He then disappeared to avoid entering into further arguments, and to provide them with the chance to think seriously about their attitude towards Him.

5- The Prophets Testify to His Glory

‘But although He had done so many signs before them, they did not believe in Him.’ [37]

St John the Evangelist presents the testimony of Isaiah the prophet for the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ; and the Jew’s rejection of Him because ‘they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.’[43]

The Evangelist tells us that that the Lord ‘had done so many signs before them’ [37], yet in spite of that ‘they did not believe in Him.’ On the contrary, the Lord’s deeds drove them to be envious and to resist Him. They had not only heard about His miracles, but He had done these ‘before’ them. The Lord had not acted secretly but openly and there were many witnesses. Nevertheless they did not believe for their inner eyes were struck with blindness, and their lusts had hardened and corrupted their hearts.

‘That the word of Isaias the prophet might be fulfilled, which he spoke, “Lord, who has believed our report?
And to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?” [38]

The prophecy of Isaiah was therefore fulfilled as the Jews did not believe the prophetic testimonies and divine proclamations. Moreover, they rejected the ‘arm of the Lord’ which was revealed in His power, authority, and miracles<sup>48</sup>.

St Augustine

‘Therefore they could not believe, because Isaias said again, [39]

St John the Evangelist reveals the condition of the Jews who were characterized by stubbornness and opposition towards God and His prophets. Ever since they lived in Egypt, and even when they left that land and traveled through the wilderness, they rebelled against Moses and Aaron. They did not spare one prophet, and as Elijah the prophet told the Lord God: “...for the children of Israel have forsaken Your covenant, thrown down Your altars, and killed Your prophets with the sword; I alone am left; and they seek to take my life...,” (1Kgs 19:10). St Stephen the Martyr said: “You stiff necked and uncircumcised in hearts and ears! You always resist the Holy Spirit, as your fathers did so do you. Which of the prophets did your fathers not persecute? And they killed those who foretold to coming of the Just One, of whom you have now become the betrayers and murderers, who have received the law by the direction of angels, and have not kept it” (Acts 7:51-52).

An endless chain of rebellion against the work of God, and a constant persecution of prophets have blinded their inner sights and disabled them from seeing. Their hearts had become hardened and they could no longer enjoy the blessing of faith!

* Note, once more, that the words ‘for’ and ‘said’ do not refer to reason for the lack of faith but they do refer to the situation itself. Isaiah did not say that this was the reason for their unbelief. Rather, he said these words because they did not wish to believe. Therefore why has the Evangelist not say this, rather than show that their lack of faith was due to the prophecy and not that the prophecy sprang from their lack of faith? St John chose to deal with the subject in a positive manner, therefore he wrote: “Therefore they could not believe, because Isaias said again” [39]. He wished to underline the lack of error in the divine Word in many varied ways; and that what Isaiah had predicted earlier had become fulfilled and had not fallen away<sup>49</sup>.

* ‘Therefore they could not believe’ was used to replace ‘They did not want to believe.’ Do not be astonished...he did not say that it was impossible for them to be virtuous; but that due to their unwillingness they lost the capacity to believe<sup>50</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* In defense of free will, no one would venture to deprive us of praying and asking God to ‘lead us not into temptation.’ However, no one denies the role of the will and ventures to make excuses for sinfulness. Let us turn to God attentively as He issues His commandments and offers His support. In both cases He informs us of our commitment to obey and His support as we apply them. Some become ever so lofty and vain due to an exaggerated sense of confidence in their own will; while others stumble into negligence due to an exaggerated sense of lack of confidence.

The first group says: ‘Why do we ask God and not strive ourselves to conquer temptation since we are capable of everything?’

The second group says: ‘Why do we need to struggle to live righteously when it is all in God’s hands?’...

On the one hand, we need to thank God for the power He grants us. On the other hand, we need to pray that our limited power does not fail us completely. This is similar to faith that works through love (Gal5:6). God grants every person a certain measure, so that we should boast about God and not about ourselves<sup>51</sup>.

* No wonder they were unable to believe: they had so much pride in their own will. This led them to ignore the righteousness of God and seek their own righteousness. The apostle comments about them saying that they ‘have not submitted themselves to the righteousness of God’ (Romans 10:3). They were proud of their power rather than of their faith, and so they fell against the stumbling Stone. That explains why the expression ‘they could not believe’ is used, while the implication is that they did not want to believe. In the same manner, we are told the following about the Lord our God: ‘If we are faithless, He remains faithful, He cannot deny Himself (2 Tim 2:13). This has been said about the Almighty One: ‘He cannot...’<sup>52</sup>.

<sup>50</sup> Hom 68. PG 59:406

* These Jews ‘could not believe.’ It did not mean that these people could not change into better people; but that as long as their thoughts continued along that path then they would be unable to believe. As a result, they were blind and hardened in their hearts: by denying their need for divine help, they could not get help<sup>53</sup>.

St Augustine

“He has blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart;
Lest they should see with their eyes,
And understand with their heart,
Lest they should turn so that I should heal them.”[40]

They could not believe because they did not want to believe. They neither asked God for His help nor for His grace to support them. Therefore the grace of God did not open their eyes to see the truth and to enjoy salvation. This is the meaning of the words: “He has blinded their eyes...” Their resistance damaged their inner vision and they were not granted healing from the Physician of the heart and body. They became similar to those whose eyes God had blinded. Their persistence and lack of desire to enjoy the truth disabled them from attaining the living faith. This is the subject of Isaiah 6:9, where the reference could be about the judgment that would be pronounced upon them as a nation.

* Consider how the sun dazzles the weak sighted. It is not due to its normal nature. This also applies to those who are inattentive to God’s words. In the case of Pharaoh, we are told that God hardened his heart. Similarly, all those who continue to resist God’s Word will be in that same condition

This is the style of the Holy Bible: it is written: ‘God gave them over to a debased mind’ (Romans 1:28)...The Bible does not present God as the One who inflicts such conditions, but reveals that these happen through the evil in others. The Bible intends the hearer to be in great fear as the Word says: ‘God hardened’ and ‘gave them over.’

In order to underline that God does not deliver or forsake us unless we want it to be so, we need to hear what the holy Word says: ‘But your iniquities have separated you from your God.’ (IS 59:2 LXX). Hosea says: ‘Because you have forgotten the law of your God, I also will forget your children,’ (Hosea 4:6 LXX). The Lord Himself said: “How often have I wanted to gather your children...but you were not willing?” (Lk 13:34)

Having known this, may we exert every effort not to abandon God. Indeed, let us be greatly concerned about our own souls, and love one another. May we not amputate our members, for this is the action of mad men. As we see them in wicked situations may we deal with them all the more gently<sup>54</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

‘These things Isaiah said when he saw His glory and spoke of him. [41]

---

Isaiah the prophet said these words when he saw the Lord's glory. He spoke about the Lord when He saw Him seated on a high throne and His train filled the temple. The glory that Isaiah saw was the glory of Jehovah. In this context, St John the Evangelist said that this was the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ as he perceived Him to be Jehovah. In the Aramaic translation, it is written: 'My eyes have seen 'Shakinnah' the Lord (Is 6:5). As 'Shakinnah' denotes the divine light or the divine presence, then what Isaiah saw was the light or the brilliance of God: the rays of His glory and the image of His essence (Heb1:3).

* If you asked: 'Whose glory did Isaiah see?' Our answer would be: 'He saw the glory of the Father.' You might say: 'Then how does Isaiah speak about the glory of the Father, while John the Evangelist speaks about the glory of the Son, and while Paul the apostle speaks about the glory of the Spirit?' Our answer would be: 'They were not like those concerned with the hypostatic (compound) nature. By speaking in this manner, they intended to clarify one essence or rank present in them. As proof of that, the features of the Father are identical to those of the Son, and those of the Son are identical to those of the Spirit.'

St John Chrysostom

* What Isaiah saw was not God as He really is but it was a symbolic means that was within the scope of the prophet's vision and comprehension. Moses had also had a vision of God, but in spite of that we find him telling Him: "Now therefore I pray, if I have found grace in Your sight, show me now Your way, that I may know You," (Ex 33:13); for Moses had not seen God as He really is... "Beloved , now we are children of God, and it has not yet been revealed what we shall be, but we know that when He is revealed, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is,' (1Jn 3:2)<sup>55</sup>.

St Augustine

6- Some Leaders Witness to His Glory

'Nevertheless even among the rulers many believed in him;
But because of the Pharisees they did not confess him,
Lest they should be put out of the synagogue': [42]

Some of the leaders, like Nicodemus for example, believed in Him (Jn3). They considered Him to be a teacher sent by God. Joseph of Arimathea is another such example, and he was the one who later went to Pontius Pilate to take the Holy Body. He received the blessing of burying the body in his own newly built grave. There were also many others who believed in their hearts but did not dare to proclaim their faith publicly. We will discuss the Sanhedrin at the end of this chapter God willing.

Elijah thought that he was the only one who worshipped God. He did not realize that there were thousands of people who had not bowed to any idol; but God saw them whereas they were unknown to men. This happens in every generation: there are a few undisclosed faithful ones who are esteemed by God but not by men.

---

‘For they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.’ [43]

Some did not proclaim their faith as they feared losing their temporary honor. That was due to their love of receiving honor from people more than seeking the glory of God. The Lord Jesus Christ therefore told them: How can ye believe, which receive honor one of another, and seek not the honor that cometh from God only?

* These were the Lord’s words: “How can ye believe, which receive honor one of another, and seek not the honor that cometh from God only?” (Jn 5:44). In this sense they could really be considered as slaves and not as rulers; since they had strayed away from the faith and followed their lust for vain glory.

St John Chrysostom

7-The Lord Witnesses for Himself

Then Jesus cried and said,
“He who believes on Me, believes not on me,
But in Him who sent me.” [44]

This was the final point which the Lord made in the sermon directed to those wicked ones who persisted in their lack of faith. It is the continuation of the sermon that was interrupted in verse 37. The Lord cried out loudly to underline His great zeal for their salvation.

In this situation, the Lord confirms His mysterious unity with the Father: anyone who believes in the Son believes in the Father who sent Him. He who sees the Son also sees the Father as well; and he who honors the Son honors the Father too.

* The expression “believes not” implies that belief is not limited to the physical form or to the limits of the person seen by the eyes. The Lord here indicates our need to believe that He was not a mere human being. It is vital for us to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as being both God and man (at the same time).

St Ambrose

* It is as though the Lord was saying: ‘Why are you afraid of believing in Me? Having faith in Me is transmitted through Me to the Father. In the same manner, your denial of Me affects Him too. Note how the Lord uses every means to clarify that there is no difference in the Essence<sup>56</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* Honoring the Father includes honoring the Father, and this does not diminish His divinity<sup>57</sup>.

* Now, when the Lord says: “He who believes on Me, believes not on me,

But in Him who sent me” [44], what can we understand other than that He appeared as a person to mankind whereas He remained being the Invisible since He was God? So that no one would imagine that He was nothing more than that which they saw, the Lord indicates the need to believe in Him as being equal to the Father in rank and in character...for he who believes in the Father needs to believe that He is the Son; and he who believes in the Father needs to believe that He has a Son. In such a manner, he who believes in the Father needs to believe in the Son<sup>58</sup>.

St Augustine

“And he that sees Me sees Him who sent Me.” [45]

* What does all this mean? Does it mean that God has a body? This is impossible! The vision that the Lord is speaking about is in no way associated with the body. Vision here implies mental vision and the Lord indicates that His essence is the same as that of the Father. Here the Lord proclaims fellowship in one and the same Essence<sup>59</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* The Lord said these words [44] so that no one would believe that He was a mere person, that is, that he was just the Son of Man. In the next words [45] He intended everyone to believe that He was equal to the Father...

The Lord Jesus Christ sent out His apostles...yet it was impossible for any one of them to say: “He who believes on Me, believes not on me, but in Him who sent me.” This is because there was no basis to validate the words: ‘believes on Me.’

We believe the apostle though we do not believe in him. This is because there is no apostle who can redeem sinners. However, we do believe in Him who does redeem sinners and this ‘faith is accounted for righteousness,’ (Romans 4:5).

The apostle may say: ‘Any one who accepts me accepts Him who has sent me’; or he may say: ‘Any one who hears me, hears Him who sent me.’ Indeed, the Lord says: “He who receives you receives Me, and he who receives Me receives Him who sent Me,” (Matt 10:40. That is how the Master is honored through the servant, and the Father through the Son. As a result the Father is honored in the Son and the Lord in the servant.

Truly, the only begotten Son has rightly said: “...you believe in God, believe also in Me,” (Jn 14:1). Here He also said: “He who believes on Me, believes not on me, but in Him who sent me.” The Lord did not intend to divert the faith of those who believe in Him. However, He does not want a believer to be confined to the status of a slave while having faith in Him. Every one who believes in the Father immediately believes in the Son for without Him the Father would not exist as a Father. In this manner a person achieves belief by equating the Son with Father. This would agree with the words: “...he who sees Me sees Him who sent Me.”<sup>60</sup> [45]

St Augustine

“I have come as a light into the world,
That whoever believes in Me should not abide in darkness.” [46]

Before the Lord, the Sun of Righteousness, came into the world, everything was covered in darkness. By His coming, the darkness faded away. However, only those who possessed healthy eyes were able to see the Sun of Righteousness. He shone on all mankind so that believers could find in Him light and peace. With His light there would be no place for darkness in them; their fears and despair would end; and heavenly joy and hope in eternity would be granted.

* In both the Old and New Testament, the Father bears the same name. The Lord Jesus Christ used that same name too. Therefore St Paul called Him ‘the Brightness’ (Heb 3:1). He learned to do so from the same sources. In this passage the Lord also revealed the strong relationship between Him and the Father, and how there does not exist any separation between them. This is evident when He said that believing in Him did not constitute believing in Him since it was passed or got transmitted into belief in the Father. He called Himself ‘the Light’ because He redeems sins and destroys mental darkness<sup>61</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* How good is He who has lifted the earth up to the heavens?! Even the twinkling planets reflect His heavenly glory as in a mirror. The hosts of apostles, martyrs, and priests also shine as glorious planets and grant light to the world<sup>62</sup>.

St Ambrose

* The Lord did not say to His disciples: ‘You have come as a light to the world so that all who believe in you will not live in darkness.’ We believe that such a statement would have been impossible to accept for He is the One who gives them light. Light is an integral part of Him and therefore can never be isolated from His own self. Indeed, He is not vulnerable to change! Consequently, all the saints are lights and they have attained light through faith in Him<sup>63</sup>.

St Augustine

“And if anyone hears My words, and does not believe, I do not judge him: for I did not come to judge the world, but to save the world.” [47]

The Lord Jesus Christ came to save the world and not to judge it. The words of the prophets who have prophesied concerning the Lord will condemn unbelievers.

* Now is the time for mercy. Later, the time of judgment will come for it is written: ‘I will sing of mercy and justice to You, O Lord,’ (Ps 101:1)64.

The Lord desires the salvation and not the condemnation of everybody. On the last day, His words will condemn unbelievers as these words will be a witness against their crimes. Every word that He has uttered, every kindness He has shown, and every gift He has granted will act as a witness against those who have disregarded them carelessly.

* The words: “the word that I have spoken will judge him in the last day” [48], sufficiently proclaim that the Lord is Himself the Judge who will appear later on. It is He Himself who had spoken and proclaimed that. He is the One who has raised Himself to act as a door through which He can enter as a Shepherd to His sheep. Therefore those who have never heard His words will be judged in a manner that is different from those who have heard but disregarded them. In this context, the apostle says: ‘...for as many as have sinned without law will also perish without law; and as many as have sinned in the law will be judged by the law,’ (Romans 2:12)<sup>65</sup>.

St Augustine

“For I have not spoken on My own authority;
But the Father who sent me gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak.” [49].

Being the Messiah, the Lord fulfilled the mission of salvation that He had received from the Father. He had to preach and fulfill that mission as the agent of the Father. All His deeds were done for God who has so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son on its account.

The first Adam had failed in his mission. He had rebelled against God and was no longer fit to represent the heavenly One. Therefore the second Adam came filled with the spirit of obedience to fulfill the task delegated to Him: a task of God’s ultimate and divine love. In Him we are enabled to practice the obedience which we lacked due to our kinship with our father Adam.

* The Lord surely spoke these words for their good...Do you not observe how He spoke with great humility in order to attract His hearers and silence those who came after them? That is the reason why He spoke in a manner appropriate to simple men. He knew that His words had no reference to His nature, and that they were fitting for weak hearers<sup>66</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* Only the Son is the Word of God and His wisdom. In Him is found all the commandments of the Father and at no time did the Son not know them. This made it necessary for Him to acquire at a certain time what He had possessed earlier. What He received from the Father was that He was begotten and so He acquired them at His birth (the Immortal One)...the Father did not give the Son a commandment which He did not know. Rather, we believe that all the commandments of the Father are found in the wisdom of the Father, and the Word of the Son<sup>67</sup>.

---

St Augustine

“And I know that his commandment is everlasting life.
Therefore, whatsoever I speak,
Just as the Father has told Me, so I speak.” [50]

* Since the Son Himself is everlasting life and He is God’s commandments, then what do these words convey other than: ‘I am God’s commandments’? Indeed, the Lord says: “Therefore, whatsoever I speak, just as the Father has told Me, so I speak.”[50]

We should not interpret the words “...the Father has told Me” to mean that the Father uses words when He speaks solely to the Word; or to mean that the Word of God needs words to proceed from God.

The Father spoke to the Son in the same manner that He gave birth to the Son. It is not like someone who knew one thing but lacked the other (lacked life). Since He is the Son...He is the Righteous One who gave birth to the Truth, so what can He say to the Truth? Truth that is so perfect has no need for additional truth. Therefore the Father spoke with the Truth for He gave birth to Him<sup>68</sup>.

Addendum to Chapter Twelve

The Council of the Sanhedrin

In this Gospel we often read about the high priests and the Pharisees. However, we rarely read about the scribes. Here we wish to present a quick picture of the members of the Council of the Sanhedrin.

The word ‘Sanhedrin’ is the Aramaic word for the Greek term ‘sunedrion’ which means ‘council’ or ‘gathering’ (legal).

This council was considered the top authority in the high court of law in Jerusalem. At the time when the Lord Jesus Christ ministered, and when He was judged, this court was presided over by the high priest of Israel.

Historic Setting

The history of this Council dates back to the period of Greek dominion and rule. However, rabbinic scholars attempt to trace its formation back to the Council of the seventy elders which was established in the days of Moses (Numbers 11:16, 24).

The first time this gathering was referred to as ‘geraousia’ occurred in the days of Eustachius the Great, 223-187 A.D.

The Greek emperors granted freedom in matters pertaining to internal affairs to the local government. Therefore Israel governed itself internally through an aristocratic council of the elders (1Kgs.6:12; 2 Kgs 1:10, 11:27; 18). This council was headed by the chief priest who acquired the position by inheritance.

When the Roman rule took over under Pompey, the chief priest retained his position as ‘ruler of the nation’<sup>69</sup>. This explains the presence of the council of the elders during these days.

Gabinus implemented the division of the Jewish region into five districts or five councils<sup>70</sup>. In this manner, the council in Jerusalem was no longer sole arbitrator in the judicial court.

After ten years, Caesar reinstated Hyrcanus II to his former position and the power of the council of Jerusalem became extended to the region of Galilee<sup>71</sup>. That was the first time for the council of Jerusalem to be called 'the Sanhedrin.'

Herod began his reign by ordering the slaughter of all the members in the council of the Sanhedrin<sup>72</sup>. He then appointed members who were loyal to him.

After the death of Herod and his son Archelaus, the authority of the Council became extensive. By the time the Lord began His ministry and during the age of the apostles, this Council became the high legislative court of justice.

Undoubtedly, this role came to an end when Jerusalem was totally destroyed in the year 70 A.D.

The Members of the Council

1-The Chief Priests: These were considered the aristocratic party in Jerusalem. It comprised former priests as well as current ones- such as Hannaniah the father-in- law of Jaffa and Caiaphas, as well as some other family members of their children. The office of the High Priests became diverted from its main role which was to handle only religious issues; for they used religion to veil their political ends.

2- The Sadducees: These were either called priests or elders. They were not priests in the religious sense and as indicated in the Books written by Moses. They were more like a judicial authority or party and they worked closely with the high priests. They harbored enmity towards the Pharisees which they tried to disguise.

3- The Pharisees: These considered themselves to be the guardians of the law and of Jewish traditions. They adhered to literal interpretations in an extreme manner, and they had immense authority in the local committees. They mixed among the crowds to arouse questions and arguments directed to the Lord Jesus Christ as they sought to accuse Him before the Sanhedrin. They would report how they believed the Lord had abused the law.

4- The Priests: They were scholars in the Law of Moses (Matt 22:35; Lk 7:30). They were called the teachers of the law or nomodidashalos (Lk 5:17, 34). This class began to appear after the days of Ezra the scribe who used to read the law (Neh. 6-10).

The role of the scribes evolved to being teachers from being interpreters of the law and enforcing it. Therefore people were required to honor them more than parents since the children and the parents were obligated to honor their teachers.

The Council of Jerusalem and the Local Councils

According to Jewish customs, there were two types of councils or sunedria: the high Sanhedrin of Jerusalem which comprised seventy- one members, and the preparatory Sanhedrin found in the other countries. Each local council- preparatory Sanhedrin- consisted of twenty three members who were appointed by the high Sanhedrin.

Based on the Mishna, the high Sanhedrin comprised seventy members including a president, vice president, and court guards as well.

It is believed that membership continued for one's lifetime. New members were appointed by current members or by a high political authority.

The Authority of the Council

In the days of the Lord Jesus Christ, the authority of the Council was confined to the twelve Jewish regions. Consequently, it was not possible to issue a judicial criminal sentence against the Lord as long as he dwelled in Galilee. It would only be possible when ever He would enter the boundaries of Judea.

Legally, the Council had no authority over the Jews. However, local councils and the Jews in general- wherever they were- tended to obey the decisions of the high Council of Jerusalem. These local councils were not obligated to take their cases to that high Council unless they needed an opinion concerning issues specifically related to the law.

The Meetings of the Council

The local councils usually met on Monday and Thursday each week, excluding feast days and Saturdays. The Sanhedrin met in the place called Xystos or Xistus which is found on the east side within the house of the high priest.

Legal Procedures

According to the Mishna, the members sat in a semi circle so that they could all see each other. Two court scribes sat before them, one on the right and one on the left side, and their task was to count the votes that would specifically indict or clear an accused person. Facing these scribes, educated students sat in three rows. Every accused had to appear in humble clothes to indicate his grief.

In cases involving a death sentence, the process began with hearing those who pleaded innocent so that they could present their arguments. The students were not allowed to say one word against the accused. However, they could speak if they could find any point to his favor. Whereas those who presented accusations could also present issues to their benefit, those who presented arguments for innocence could not also present arguments against the accused.

Voting began by the youngest of the members, though it sometimes began with the most important member. The vote for the innocence of a person was decided by a majority vote. The vote for the guilt of a person was decided by the majority vote plus two additional votes.

It was illegal to issue a sentence on the same day of the trial; for it was necessary to discuss the case and then issue a verdict on the next day. The exception to that was made in a case where the accused had misled or deceived the public. Then it was possible to judge him on the same day or on the same night. Other than such a situation, it was forbidden to discuss a case deserving a death penalty on a Friday or the day before a feast day. These had to be postponed till after a Saturday or after feast days.

The religious, civil, and criminal authority of the Council was restricted by the ruling foreign body in Israel. This differed from one period to the other and according to current ruler.

When a person was led to his death, he would be announced by a forerunner proclaiming the verdict and saying: "This named person, son of such a named person, has been found to deserve death. Therefore if anyone wishes to contest the matter, let him come forward and proclaim that"<sup>73</sup>.

The person sentenced to death was required to confess his crime so that he may have a share in the life to come.

Your Fragrance is the Mystery of My Life

* Grant me to cross over and come to You
In the company of Your beloved Mary, Martha, and Lazarus,
For wherever You go, You set up a joyful heavenly feast!
With Mary, I pour pure spices at Your feet.
It is not the work of my hands
And I have not purchased it with my money...
What I offer is the fruit of Your Holy Spirit!
I pour out the spices and I smell its fragrance...
Your fragrance has invaded my inner home and has filled my whole being.
Your fragrance is the mystery of my life!

* Truly, Judas the thief smelled it as a fragrance of death to death.
Hence he lost love, for he did not comprehend anything but betrayal.
He counted giving to be a loss;
For the love of money blinded him.
As for me, I smell and live by your fragrance...
Allow me to join Mary and rub Your feet with my hair...
Let me offer all that the world considers to be glorious to serve Your needy children
The poor and needy stand before You, and I carry them and walk to You.
By honoring them, I honor them, I give honor to Your hands.

* With Martha, my hands stretch out to serve Your Body,
For You receive in Your hands every offering made to Your brothers.
Grant me to see Your hand working in and through me in all my actions.
May Your hands embrace my whole being as I work tirelessly!

* With Lazarus, I sit silently:
My life, which You have resurrected, is a living testimony of Your love and glory.
My silence is greater and more powerful than any word can express!

* Here are the foreign Greeks seeking You:
They could meet with You yet they could not rise up upon the Cross.
How could we enjoy the divine Fruit unless we got buried?
You arose, so resurrect us with You!

* See how the heavens witness to You!
You are the subject of all prophecies,
You are the achiever of the Father's will,
You are the Savior of the world!
The fragrance of Your Cross has filled heaven and earth...
The Father joyfully received it,
And the heavens hosts smelled it and comprehended its hidden mysteries.
Mankind recognized Your fragrance and became angels...
The fragrance of Your Cross is the mystery of my life!

The Lord's Farewell Speeches St John Ch 13 -16

The Lord's Farewell Teachings John 13-16

In the previous chapters (1-12), the Evangelist presented the story of Divine Love. In it the Word of God became incarnated and took the form of a human being. This is God's plan in order to save fallen mankind, and to announce the supreme love and care for every needy person. He wishes to direct the eyes of all mankind to Him who loves them. He wishes men to recognize Him as the One who has the power to renew, satisfy, heal, and educate them. Now the time had come to reveal the height of divine love as the Lord walks in the road of suffering, and ascends on the cross for the sake of every human soul. Some scholars have called chapters 13-17, "the Gospel of Love." In these chapters, the Lord meets with His disciples in the upper room, and then takes them with Him to Gethsemane. The Evangelist recounts the service of the washing of the feet, which the Lord undertook all on His own. He did so in order to attract them to participate in His love by washing the feet of their fellow men. The Lord also established, on that day, the mystery of the true Passover which all generations had been anticipating. He had yet to speak about the subject of the praise offered by the heavenly hosts; and finally the Lord gave farewell speeches which have come to be a living legacy for the church.

The Evangelist uses the word "love" as a noun or verb nine times throughout chapters 1 and 2. In contrast, He uses this word 20 times in chapters 13-17. The story of the upper room is essentially marked by its theme of love.

In His farewell speeches, the Lord Jesus Christ revealed many of His mysteries to His disciples. These had to do with the way the Divine Spirit works in their lives. Therefore He reveals the following:

- 1- God's Divine Plan: In order to prepare a place for them in the great heavens, His plan anticipated the coming of all humanity into the joy and fellowship of eternal glory. The Lord revealed to His disciples that all He had gone through including pain and crucifixion was planned by the Father: through the Son His love for mankind would be fulfilled, and He would carry them unto the Father's embrace
- 2- His Divine Identity: He is one with the Father, therefore He fulfills the Father's will joyfully. Whatever the Lord says or does are actually the words and deeds of the Father, who is the lover of mankind.
- 3- He is the New Core: And disciples and believers are the branches of the Divine Vine. Although man was banished from the Garden of Eden, now he had the Lord as His true vine. Indeed, man had become a branch bearing great fruit into nature. The Lord becomes greatly pleased with the fruit, that is the work of His hands.
- 4- Their New Potentials: Sacrificial love for others. The believer considers himself unqualified to sacrifice his life for his fellow men. Yet, he joins the Lord and shares with Him the glory of the cross and of the sacrificial love.

- 5- The Role of the Disciples in the World: Disciples need to love mankind even though the world rejects them. They offer what belongs to their kingdom, the kingdom of light and love. In contrast, the evil world offers darkness and hatred, which belong to the kingdom of darkness and of this world.
- 6- The Divine Support: God would send the Holy Spirit, who would guide the Lord's children through and above the anxieties and sufferings which they face. They would smell the Divine Love as well as experience love towards mankind, glory, and honor, since they are partakers with the Lord in His sufferings. Indeed, they would smell the fragrance of the crucified Lord. The Holy Spirit would raise them above suffering; therefore nothing could trap or bind them. Such hardship would be seen as the path of Golgotha leading them to the crucified Divine One. With Him, they would rejoice in His heavenly kingdom.

The Service of the Washing of the Feet

When the Lord had completed delivering His teachings, He began to hold private conversations with His disciples. This was just before He was arrested and His aim was to comfort them throughout the time of His suffering. Moreover, the Lord desired to reveal His mysteries and offer His final advice to them. He spoke to His disciples as a Father would speak to His children. For His wisdom would be an inheritance that would enrich and support them.

1- The Washing of the Disciples Feet:

‘Now before the feast of the Passover, when Jesus knew that His hour had come that He should depart from this world to the Father, having loved His own who were in the world, He loved them to the end’[1].

St. John Chrysostom comments that the Lord Jesus Christ did great acts from the very beginning of His ministry. Now that the time had come for Him to leave them and ascend to the Father, the Lord embraced them with His ultimate love through the cross. This would support them after His ascension.

We too need to offer sacrificial love to all those around us every second of our lives for we do not know when we will depart from this world. Then we would leave an inheritance of love and memories of unforgettable loving deeds.

Many scholars question the exact day of the Jewish Passover. Was it on Holy Thursday when the Lord Jesus Christ, the Lamb of the true Passover, established the mystery of the Christian Passover? Or was it on Good Friday when the true Passover was fulfilled, and which occurred on the same day of the Jewish Passover, in order to cancel the symbol?

There have been so many writings on this subject, yet there is no doubt that there were some groups that embraced a different calendar than the one the Jewish religious leaders officially used in Jerusalem. This explains why the events reported in the three Gospels reflect a calendar that the Lord Jesus Christ used when He celebrated, with His disciples, the Passover on Holy Thursday. Yet, the Sanhedrin and their followers celebrated the Passover on Friday, so it was not possible to kill the Passover lamb except on Friday. On that day the lamb was presented to the priest on the official Passover day.

The Evangelist is preoccupied with the True Passover: the killing of the Lamb of God who carried the sins of the world on the Cross. This is the Passover that encompasses all ages, it is the one that engages the heavens and the heavenly hosts. Therefore St. John is not concerned with the time when the Christian Passover was instituted, although he states that it was “before the feast of the Passover.” In the book of Revelations, the Lord Jesus Christ is called the Lamb more than fifteen times. The Evangelist had a vision of the “Lamb as though it had been slain.” He also saw the glorified church as the “Bride of the Lamb” and how the heavenly life is “the marriage of the Lamb” who has come, and this wife had made herself ready (Rev 14:7). St. John saw the Lamb, the heavenly Holy of Holies or the eternal Tabernacle and Light (Rev 21).

In Chapter 13, the Evangelist reports the ‘washing of the feet’ as a ministry of love and sacrifice. This took place while the mystery of the Eucharist was being prepared, not during the meal itself. It was the custom of the Jews to wash the feet before supper.

St. John the Evangelist did not report the events of Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of the last week in the life of the Lord. These were reported in detail by the earlier three Evangelists. He also does not speak about the institution of the Holy Eucharist (Matt 26:26; Mark 14:22; Luke 22:19).

Because the Lord Jesus Christ is all omniscient, He allowed the enemy of goodness to have power according to God’s set plan and timing. The Lord allowed the enemy to act and to instigate his followers to resist Him. Accordingly the Lord said: “This is your hour, and the power of darkness,” (Luke 22:53).

St. John’s words that ‘His hour had come’ do not indicate that certain things were bound to be fulfilled over which the Lord had no control. In fact, this would be the Lord’s hour when the salvation of the world would be fulfilled through His Divine power. He would convert the evil of the wicked into goodness without forcing the wicked to pursue their evil acts. If there was anything inevitable about the events of this hour, it had to do with God’s sublime love, which demanded the salvation of the world. In proclaiming that His hour had come, the Lord revealed that He had come of His own will and at that very hour.

Two complimentary issues are related to this hour- or it could be considered as one issue with two facets: His departure or ascension to the Father and proclamation of His infinite love for His followers. It appears that His ascension is not planned solely for Himself, rather it is planned so that His loved ones too would enjoy ascending and meeting with the Father.

In this manner, the Lord accepted all the sufferings leading to His crucifixion in a spirit of sublime love. His sufferings were the source of His joy, as St. Paul explains in Heb. 12: 2: “...for the joy that was set before Him, He endured the cross, despising the shame, and has sat down at the right hand of the throne of God.”

* St. John the Evangelist says, “Now before the Feast of the Passover, when Jesus knew that His hour had come.” Actually, the Lord knew about this hour, from a very long time ago, not only when it was about to come.

The Evangelist proclaims, loud and clear, that the death of the Lord is merely relocation as He was going to ‘...depart from this world to the Father...’

The words ‘He loved them to the end’ indicate that the Lord continued to love them in a constant manner.

* What is intended by: He loved them to the end'? It is as though He were saying 'My love will never cease',<sup>1</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* He has crossed over to the Father in order to feed us: so let us follow Him in order to get nourished.

* We can enjoy the sufferings of the Lord and His resurrection by passing over from this death-prone life into the other immortal life. In other words, pass from death into life<sup>2</sup>.

* This prophetic symbol now gets fulfilled in the Truth when Christ is led, as a Lamb, to be sacrificed (Is. 53:7). Consequently the utmost pillars of our heart are sprinkled with His blood. By making the sign of His cross on our foreheads, we are saved from the destruction awaiting this world. This is similar to Israel when it was saved from the slavery of the Egyptians who were ultimately destroyed (Ex 12:23). This perfectly planned Passover is what we practice as we cross over from Satan into the embrace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and from this unsettled world into His well established kingdom. This is definitely how we cross over or 'Passover' and belong to the eternal God.

The apostle glorifies God for this grace that has been granted to us by saying: this word 'Pascha' means 'passing over' in the Latin language. Therefore this explains how we have a Pascha and a Passover. From where and to where does He cross over? From this world and into the Father's embrace.

He has granted hope to the members through the Head. In that manner they will trustfully follow Him as He passes over and takes the lead.

What about those unbelievers who stand apart at a distance away from the Head and the members? Clearly, they are crossing over. However, there is a great difference between those who are crossing over from the world and those who are crossing over with the world. It is a difference between someone moving to the Father and another moving to the enemy. The Egyptians too were crossing over; yet they were not crossing from the sea and into the Kingdom. Rather, they were crossing from the sea into destruction<sup>3</sup>.

* 'He loved them to the end' [1]. He is our end and in Him we pass over, this conveys that His own love is what drove Him to death<sup>4</sup>.

St. Augustine

'And supper having ended, the devil having already put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray Him,' [2]

<sup>2</sup> Letters 55

The Lord Jesus Christ announced that the time of His death was drawing near, and that one of His disciples would betray Him; another would deny Him; while others would abandon Him. To Him, He perceived that all such events were planned by God to enable Him to fulfill salvation.

At the same time, Satan was preoccupied with dominating the heart of Judas. He planned to move him to betray His Lord. In so doing, Satan imagined he could smother the Divine Light and corrupt the eternal infinite love. However, God, the ever-righteous, transforms Satan's evil into benefits for us.

Some may ask: 'Had not Satan planted the idea of disloyalty unto Judas's mind earlier when he met with the Pharisees and made a deal with them?' Some scholars believe the enemy of goodness had sown from 'the seed of the idea' and that he was watering it with the water of greed and betrayal. Then the enemy of goodness entered in Judas's heart as the established owner and Lord and not just an instigator or tempter of an idea. When we open the door to evil, the enemy scatters his seeds just as a guest would do who tries to invade areas which do not belong to him. Then, when we accept his thoughts and ideas, and we begin to act accordingly, he daringly invades us to reign as an owner. He gets hold of the steering wheel and commands the direction while we are hopelessly unable to resist him, That is why, whenever we are careless in resisting him, we are exposing our hearts and minds to the enemy. Then he believes he is entitled to come in and take control.

* His Lord continued, to the last day, to be generous to him<sup>5</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* Referring to Judas, it is written: '...the devil having already put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray Him....' Consequently, you could apply this to all those who have delivered their hearts to Satan. Satan could put in such a person's heart to commit adultery, or in another person's heart to cheat, or sow a lust for fame...this applies to all the sins scattered by Satan into hearts that are not armed by the shield of faith. Through such a shield it is possible to defeat all the fiery and wicked darts and not just one or two arrows (Eph. 6:16)<sup>6</sup>.

* '...the devil having already put it into the heart of Judas': in other words he had presented the suggestion to his spirit in the form of an idea. Rather than entering through a physical portal like the ears, Satan entered into Judas through his thoughts. Therefore what we consider to be spiritual does not always convey a praiseworthy matter. Notice that the apostle speaks about certain evil spiritual matters- Eph 6:11- that exist in the heavens; and he testifies that we need to struggle against them<sup>7</sup>.

St Augustine

Jesus knew that the Father had given all things unto His hands, and that He had come from God and was going to God.

---

<sup>5</sup> Homilies in St John 70:1

According to our belief, the Father had entrusted the redemption of believers into the hands of the Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore when the Lord says, “All things have been delivered to Me by My Father,” (Matt 11:22), He was speaking about that kind of trust. In another passage, the Lord Himself says, “They were Yours, You gave them to Me,” (Jn 17:6). He also said: “No one can come to Me unless the Father who sent Me draws him,” (Jn 6:44), and St. John the Baptist says, “...unless it has been given to him from heaven,” (Jn 3:27). The Evangelist means to convey that in all cases the Lord takes no lesser role than the Father. Since He came from the Father and has ascended to Him, therefore He possesses all things. Consequently, when you hear that He was delivered and handed over; do not give that a human interpretation. Rather, this illustrates the honor of the Father and the Lord’s fellowship with Him. Indeed, just as the Father entrusted Him, so does the Lord entrust His Father. This is apparent in the following words “But each one in his own order: Christ the first fruits, afterwards, those who are Christ’s at His coming, then comes the end, when He delivers the kingdom to God the Father,” (1 Cor. 15:23), However, St. John reveals this manner in a human way to underline the great care of the Lord Jesus Christ towards mankind. The Lord proclaims His ultimate love by caring for men just as He cares for himself. He teaches us them all the righteous ways, such as humility, which He indicated as being the basis and end of every virtue.

It is not without purpose that the Evangelist states that, “He had come from God and was going to God.” Rather, it is intended to teach us that the Lord acted appropriately according to His origin as well as His destination. In this manner, He crushed with His feet all forms of pride<sup>8</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* He was not entrusted with just a few matters while excluding other concerns, but He was entrusted with “all things.” Accordingly, when David was in the spirit, he had this vision and said: ‘The Lord said to my Lord. “Sit at my right hand, till I make your enemies your foot stool”,’ (Ps. 110:1). Even the enemies of the Lord are a part of “all things” and the Lord with His fore knowledge, knew that they had been sent to Him by the Father. However, in order to enable us to understand more clearly the implications, let us study carefully the statement, “For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ, all shall be made alive,” (1 Cor. 15:22).<sup>9</sup>

<sup>9</sup> Commentary on John, Book 32:26-27

He did not leave His supper, but left His seat at the table after everyone was seated and waited for the supper. The Lord took off His outer garments or coat, and put a towel around His waist to appear as a servant and to get ready to wash and dry the feet of those present.

The washing of feet took place before starting to eat dinner. As the streets and alleys were mostly sandy and the shoes were “open sandals” while socks were not yet known, we can understand why feet got dirty and smelly. This would be especially true of those that had walked long distances in the heart of the land. Therefore the washing of feet was part of the job of the slaves or of one of the least status present at a social gathering.

When David the prophet sent a message to Abigail to marry her, she rose up and said: “Here is your maidservant, a servant to wash the feet of the servants of my Lord” (1 Sam 25:41). Some scholars believe that the Lord started with washing the feet of Judas in the hope that his conscience would reprimand him and make him repent on what he had begun to plan.

Our Lord had humbly told St. John the Baptist: “Permit it to be so now, for thus it is fitting for us to fulfill all righteousness” (Matt 3:15). At that time the Lord revealed the righteousness of humility which He possessed even before the mystery of the Eucharist was established. So who of us would dare draw near to the Eucharist without first bowing down his soul before the Lord and receiving His blessing and then approach and receive His body and blood that have been sacrificed for each one? It would be a sad day for anyone to approach this mystery with a vain or haughty heart and to come without bowing down to wash even the feet of opponents and oppressors.

* The words “rose from supper” indicate that the supper had been prepared and set on the table before the guests<sup>11</sup>.

St Augustine

“Come, O Lord Jesus Christ, remove Your clothes-those that You have worn for my sake. May You be naked in order to cover me up with Your mercy. May you carry a towel around Your waist in order to grant us the grace of eternity. May you pour water in a tub in order to wash our heads as well as our feet-that it may be a cleaning of our souls and inclinations and not just of our bodies. We desire You to take away all the un-cleanliness resulting from our weaknesses.”

St Augustine

How great is Your sublimity! As a servant, You washed the feet of Your disciples, and as a God You send dew from the heavens. You wash not only the feet; but You call us to sit with You. Moreover, in accordance with Your generosity, You encourage us and say “You call me Teacher and Lord, and you say well, for so I am. If I then, you Lord and teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another’s feet” [13, 14]

Consequently, I desire to wash the feet of my fellow men myself. I wish to fulfill my Lord’s command. I do not want to feel ashamed nor do I take lightly what the Holy One did in the first place.

A great good mystery that no one understands!”<sup>12</sup>

St. Ambrose

‘After that, He poured water into a basin
And began to wash the disciples’ feet
And to wipe them with the towel with which he was girded.’ [5]

The Master waited until all the disciples were reclining on the floor around the table. In those days, it was the custom that people did not sit on chairs around the table. A slave would probably sit on a chair to eat; but free people would recline on the floor during meals. They would be leaning on the elbow of the left arm, their head in the direction of the table, and their feet to the other side.

Usually, one of the slaves would do the washing of feet. If there was no slave, then it was expected that the youngest or lesser in rank would perform the task. However, the Lord Himself undertook this role. In this manner, He elevated the status of slaves. Although slaves are forced to do this task due to their social status, yet the Lord did so wholly and gladly by His own free will and through His humility and love.

Consequently, a slave should not resent doing any task as long as he works for the Lord and not out of the fear of men. St. Paul accordingly encourages slaves, saying “Servants, be obedient to those who are your masters according to the flesh, with fear and trembling, in sincerity of heart, as to Christ, not with eye service, as mean pleasers, but as servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart, with good will doing service, as to the Lord and not to men, knowing that whatsoever good anyone does, he will receive the same from the Lord, whether he is a slave or free” (Eph. 6:5-8)

Origen the Scholar believes that the Lord did not wash the feet of Judas as he could have no fellowship with Him due to his determination to do evil. In contrast, St. John Chrysostom comments that the Lord first began by washing the feet of Judas in order to offer him all the loving acts up to the very last moments before his treacherous deed. The Lord did so to grant him the opportunity to examine himself and withdraw from his evil intentions.

* It appears to us that the Lord first began by first washing the traitor’s feet for the verse says “began to wash the disciples’ feet” [5]

* Notice how the Lord demonstrated the way to be humble. He did so not by simply washing their feet but through other clear actions: He got up after they were all reclining and He washed their feet after He had taken off His outer clothes and not while He was fully dressed. Moreover, He girded Himself and filled the basin rather than ordering someone else to do so. He undertook the whole task all by Himself, all the procedures of washing the feet, in order to show us how to apply ourselves diligently in all tasks and not just go through them carelessly.

St. John Chrysostom

* Abraham did not carry water by himself. Neither did he wash the feet of those who had come to him as strangers. Father, he said “please, let a little water be brought, and wash your feet,”

---

(Gen 18:4). Joseph too, did not carry water to wash the feet of his eleven brothers. Rather, it was the man who managed his house who made Simeon bring water to them to wash their feet. In contrast, the Lord Jesus Christ says “I am among You as One who serves,” (Lk 22:27). He truthfully states “...learn from Me, for I am gentle and lowly in heart” (Matt. 11:29). He Himself poured the water into the basin for He knew that no one could wash the feet of His disciples in the way He could. He would wash them in such a manner that would allow them to have fellowship with Him, [8]<sup>13</sup>.

* We believe that the water is the Word that washes the feet of the disciples when they come to be washed and the Lord came before them<sup>14</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

The Bible does not say: “He washed the disciples’ feet”, but rather states that He “began to wash the disciples’ feet.” Origen the Scholar comments, therefore, that the Lord began and has not stopped the washing since they are in need of being constantly washed. Indeed, they became unclean that very night after they had been washed; “all of you will be made to stumble because of Me this night,” (Matt 26:31). The Lord told Peter “...the rooster shall not crow till you have denied Me three times,” (Jn 13:38)<sup>15</sup>.

*Why is it astonishing that the Lord poured water in a basin in order to wash the disciples’ feet? Is He not the One who has poured His blood on the earth in order to wash away the dirt of their sins?

Why is it surprising that the Lord used the towel with which He was girded to wipe the feet He had washed? Is He not the One who, with His own body which enveloped Him, establishes the sound path that His own Evangelists would follow?

In order to gird Himself with a towel, He removed His outer garments. However, when He gave up the glory of His divinity in order to take the form of a slave, the Lord did not abandon what He possessed. Rather, He accepted what He did not possess before<sup>16</sup>.

St Augustine

Then He came to Simon Peter
And Peter said to Him,
“Lord, are You washing my feet?”[6]

It is clear that the disciples were in a state of shocked amazement due to the Lord’s act. None of them had spoken a word until Peter’s turn came. Peter had often witnessed to the Lord’s humility, yet he never imagined it would get to the extent of appearing as a slave undertaking to wash feet.

St John Chrysostom

* It is clear from these words ‘Then He came to Simon Peter’ that the Lord did not start by washing Peter’s feet. This confirms that the Lord did not think of anyone as the leader of the disciples.

St. Augustine

Jesus answered and said to him
“What I am doing you do not understand now
But you will now after this.” [7]

It is as though the Lord is telling Peter “Allow Me to do this now, and I will soon tell you the nature and purpose of this act.”

*What do these words imply “...you will know after this?” When? When you will order devils to come out in My name, when you will see Me ascending into heavens, when you know through the Spirit that I sit at the right of God. Then you will understand what is going on<sup>17</sup>.

* This means that you will know the great benefit you gather from this. The benefit of the lesson you learn is how the Lord leads us to all manner of humility<sup>18</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* For Me, washing your feet is a symbol of the essence of your souls. These get purified and prepared to proclaim the message of righteousness (Rom 10:15, Isa 52:7). Besides, you are enabled to touch the human soul by your pure feet. However, you do not know that mystery right now because you have not yet acquired the knowledge pertaining to His person. You will comprehend this mystery later on. You will consequently be enlightened concerning matters that are neither a symbol nor trivial<sup>19</sup>.

It was not possible for Peter, the apostle, to see his awesome Master take the position of a slave and perform the task of washing the feet. Therefore he objected to His Master’s action. He had not comprehended the scope of the Lord’s deed who through His sublime love, had chosen to occupy the status of a slave. Indeed, it even allowed Judas to sell Him as a slave, and permitted the enemy of righteousness to fulfill God’s plan for salvation through the Cross.

It is as though the Lord is telling Peter: ‘You cannot be My disciple unless I wash your feet.’ Indeed, if the Lord’s hands do not reach unto the inner soul and wash it, a person would not be able to enjoy salvation or become a disciple of the Lord. A believer needs to be washed in the baptismal font by the action of God’s Holy Spirit (1 Cor 6:11, Titus 3:5, 6). Moreover, a believer needs to be washed by the precious blood (1 Jn 1:7). We need to wash the feet based on the premise that our souls get unclean while it walks in this world. This is a task that belongs exclusively to the Lord Jesus Christ. He alone can forgive sins and save the soul from corruption. We are able to enjoy Him through the mystery of repentance and confession. Without Him we are unable to partake of the joy of the Lord’s sacrifice (the mystery of the Eucharist).

What do these words imply: “If I do not wash you, you have no part with Me” The Lord points out here that the action of washing is His own specialty. On the great day of the Lord, a person will not appear to be pure or receive his share (of fellowship with the Lord in glory), through His own personal endeavors. This is granted only through the action of the Lord Jesus Himself who washes the souls of the un-cleanliness of sins.

Often we object to the Lord’s acts due to our inner blindness and our inability to comprehend His divine wisdom and plans for us.

* Peter could not comprehend the mystery and therefore refused the service. He imagined that by allowing the Lord to serve him it would damage the servant’s humility<sup>20</sup>.

St Ambrose

* It is clear that Peter spoke to his own harm, even though he spoke to the Master with respect and good intentions. Life is full of such mistakes that are committed by people who imagine they know what is best. Actually they are ignorant, and speak or do things that lead them to adverse paths<sup>21</sup>.

* Peter, who said to the Lord “You shall never wash my feet!” was reprimanded and warned against persisting in this attitude so that he might have fellowship with the Lord. Similarly, it is far better for all of you to seek wisdom before taking decisions, rather than rush and make hasty decisions and promises to do one thing or another and persisting on taking the wrong course<sup>22</sup>.

* If we do not do so (present our feet to be washed by the Lord) we will neither have fellowship with Him nor will our feet become beautiful. This is a particularly important matter as we are eager and jealous to receive greater gifts (1 Cor. 1 2:31). Furthermore, we desire to join those who preach righteousness<sup>23</sup>.

* We even dare to add, in harmony with the words “If I do not wash you, you have no part with Me”, that the Lord did not wash the feet of Judas because he had actually determined in his mind to betray his Master and Lord. The devil found that Judas was not dressed in the full armor of God. He did not possess the shield of faith that would enable him to quench the fiery wicked darts (Eph. 6:13-16)<sup>24</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

Simon Peter said to Him

“Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head!”[9]

Probably Peter felt that he needed a complete spiritual washing. Consequently, he desired to get his whole being washed and not just his feet. Some scholars consider that Peter’s request here reveals some sort of humility even though it carried some sort of pride too. He has not accepted the Lord’s thought but rather intended to fulfill his own. We often want to advise God so that He would act according to our wishes, even though we would be asking sincerely for spiritual matters.

Origen the Scholar states that Peter did not want to get his hands washed, and that the Lord does not ask for the deadly application of the literal word. An example of that is the washing of hands before meals (Matt 15:2). Besides, Peter did not need to get his head washed. The Lord did not want that to be covered since the glory of God and His likeness rested on Peter (1 Cor. 11:7)<sup>25</sup>.

* The apostle Peter, hastily excused himself from washing his feet. He was even more hasty to request that his hands and head get washed. In both instances he was motivated by his sincere love for the Lord Jesus Christ. Why did the Lord not ask him to follow His example rather than threaten Him? Because Peter was not chosen to do so. Had the Lord said “Allow Me, for in this way I encourage you to imitate My humility”, Peter would have made hundreds of promises in order to stop the Lord from washing his feet. However, the Lord uttered words that would frighten Peter and scare him profoundly. He informed Peter that he would be separated from the Lord. Note that Peter’s constant question was, “Lord where are you going?”[36] He also said, “I will lay down my life for Your sake”, [37].

St John Chrysostom

Jesus said to him

“He who is bathed needs only to wash his feet,

But is completely clean;

And you are clean,

But not all of you.”[10]

It was a Jewish custom to bathe twice, therefore the Lord underlines that the washing with the baptismal water occurs only once. The washing the feet refers to the tears of repentance which represent the second baptism.

Eleven of the disciples were pure even though they abandoned the Lord and took flight in the critical hours (Mark 14:50) The Lord described them as being pure and did not reproach them for their weakness. Even though He said “...you will all abandon Me”, the Lord did not intend to reproach them. He merely wanted to confirm that He understands how a person suffers from isolation in times of trouble. Accordingly, the Psalmist cries, “My father and mother have forsaken me....” Nevertheless, one of the disciples was not pure, for he harbored betrayal in his heart. The Lord had washed his feet though He knew of his deceit. In so doing, He reveals His compassion towards sinners and His desire for them to enjoy His gifts.

---

No one is without sin-no one in the Old or in the New testaments. No one is without blemish except the Lord Jesus Christ, the Lamb of God who is ‘without spot and without blemish’ (1 Pet 1:19). It is therefore possible to say that anyone who needs to enjoy repentance, needs to carry the features of his holy Lord. In other words, such a person needs to become holy by adhering to the Lord. He alone can state that “you are clean” (Jn 13:10). This is due to His blood that cleanses us from all sins (1 Jn 1:7). He Himself is the propitiation for our sins (1 Jn 2:2)

* The eleven disciples who were washed and had become pure, became more so when the Lord had washed their feet. Judas, however, who had actually become unclean-according to the saying: “He who is filthy, let him be filthy still” (Rev 22:11) became even more filthy and impure for Satan had entered into him after he had received a piece of the bread (Jn 13:27)<sup>26</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

* Since the disciples were pure, then why did the Lord wash their feet? He did that in order that we might learn humility. That is why He came: not just for any member of the body, but especially for all those who are considered to be the most repugnant of the members.<sup>27</sup>

* He came for the members of the body which are assumed to be the most honorable. Were the disciples pure, even though they had neither been redeemed of their sins nor had received as yet the Holy Spirit? Where sin was still prevalent and no sacrifice had been offered, then how is it that they were described as being pure?! So that no one would assume that the disciples were pure and had been washed from sin, the Lord explained “You are already clean because of the word which I have spoken to you” (Jn 15:3). In other words, ‘you are pure because you have accepted the Light and have avoided falling into the sin of Judas’... these disciples had driven out all evil out of their hearts and had befriended the Lord with their whole pure mind<sup>28</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* “For to everyone who has, more will be given” (Matt 25:29). Since the disciples were pure, the Lord Jesus Christ added to their purity by washing their feet. He neither wishes to wash those who did not wash themselves, nor those who were not wholly clean. In fact, the Lord was speaking about those who had become pure through Him. Indeed, if there was one person among all mankind who was perfect but had not enjoyed being washed by the Lord, then that person would not be considered to be pure...<sup>29</sup>.

<sup>28</sup> Hom 70 PG 59:416

* The Lord washed their feet because they were pure according to human standards but not according to God. Without our Lord Jesus Christ no one would be pure in the sight of God. This is true even if a person assumes that he had been washed based on his own specific effort<sup>30</sup>.

* The Holy Spirit and the power of the Almighty could dwell in those who have become truly pure even in the eyes of men. It is as though such persons were themselves clothes: they had been washed through the baptism of the Lord, and He had also washed their feet<sup>31</sup>.

* Since the Lord has made the disciples' feet beautiful by washing them, then what could we say about the real beauty that appears in those who are baptized by the Holy Spirit and by fire through the Lord Jesus Christ? (Matt 3; 11)<sup>32</sup>

* Now the feet of those who preach the good news have become beautiful. When they have been washed, purified, and wiped by the hands of the Lord, they become capable of walking in the Holy path and of crossing over to the One who says, "I am the way", (Jn 14:6). He is the only One; and all those who have had their feet washed by the Lord, can travel on that way. The Lord is the living way and through Him we come to God's presence. That way will not be open to defiled or impure feet. On account of that, Moses removed his shoes since the place he was entering and standing upon was holy ground (Ex 3:5). The same thing applied to Joshua the son of Nun (Joshua 5:15)<sup>33</sup>.

* As for the disciples of the Lord Jesus Christ, they needed to walk in the living way that is filled with activity. Therefore it was not enough to travel without sandals as He had ordered them (Matt 10:10). They actually had to let the Lord wash their feet after he had removed his outer garments and put them side. On the one hand, He probably made their pure feet even more pure. On the other hand, He probably washed their feet in order to transfer the dirt on them onto His body through the towel which He solely wore around His waist (Jn 13:4). Indeed, He alone does carry our weaknesses (Matt 8:17; Is 53:4)<sup>34</sup>.

* Notice that when the Lord decided to wash the disciples' feet, He chose no other time than when Satan had entered the heart of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon, and had driven him to deliver his Master (Jn 13:2). This was in fulfillment of the Plan (sufferings) for the sake of mankind. Before that moment, the time had not been convenient for the Lord to wash the disciples' feet. Who else would want to wash their feet in that crucial moment leading up to His sufferings? That time was not yet right...it became right after the fulfillment of the plan (sufferings). The right movement came when the Holy Spirit visited the disciples who had become pure by the washing of their feet. At that moment their feet were prepared and became beautiful. Consequently, they could preach righteousness through the Spirit (Rom 10:15, Is. 52:7)<sup>35</sup>.

* What do you think dear brothers? Indeed, in the holy baptismal font a person is wholly cleaned, every single part in him. In spite of that a person goes on living in this physical world, and does not cease to walk on earth with his feet. Consequently, our own human feelings do not get separated from our deadened life on earth. These feelings resemble our feet with which we walk and which are directly responsible to our human actions. That is why if we said that we were without sin, we would be deceiving ourselves and the truth is not in us (1 Jn 1:8)

Each day the One who intercedes for us (Rom 8:34) washes our feet. We are in need to be washed daily. In other words, we need to plan uprightly the way our steps should go. The Lord's Prayer teaches us to say "...forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us." It is also written "If we confess our sins: then truly He who washed the disciples feet is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 Jn 1:9): that is, He washes our feet with which we walk on this earth<sup>36</sup>.

* The church, as it walks on her way to the Lord Jesus Christ, could be fearful of defiling her feet which she has washed in the baptismal font<sup>37</sup>.

St Augustine

'For He knew who would betray Him,
Therefore He said "You are not all clean." [11]

* If you were to ask "Since the disciples were pure, then why did the Lord wash their feet?" Our answer would be: He did so in order to teach us humility.

St John Chrysostom

'So when He had washed their feet, taken His garments, and sat down again. He said to them "Do you know what I have done to you?"[12]

The Lord had taken off His outer garments in order to wash the disciples' feet. When He had accomplished the task, He put them on again and reclined like them. The clothes are a reference to the body and the Lord's act is a symbol for His will and His resurrection which were achieved by His own personal power.

At this point, the Lord fulfills His promise to Peter the apostle as He explains to Him the implications behind the act of washing the disciples feet. The Lord presents to them a command expressed in the form of a question.

* The Lord asks them: "Do you know what I have done to you?" He directs this question to Peter and to all the others as well.

This dual title “teacher and Lord” corresponds to “Rabbi” and “Lord” and these were commonly used for the official Jewish teachers.

* The One who sits above the Cherubim washed the disciples’ feet. Do you, O earthly person, proudly and vainly overestimate yourself ever so greatly even though you are made of ashes, dust and earth?

St John Chrysostom

“If I then, Your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet,
You also ought to wash one another’s feet.” [14]

* When we bend over at our brother’s feet, the feelings of humility are awakened and strengthened in the heart if these feelings are truly found there<sup>38</sup>.

* May each person forgive the sins of his brother, and pray for other sinners. In this manner each person would wash the other person’s feet<sup>39</sup>.

St Augustine

“For I have given you an example,
That you should do as I have done to you.” [15]

* However, there is no parallel, for He is the Lord and Master, whereas you are slaves and each other’s companions. Then what does “as I” convey? It is intended to express doing this act of humility with the same enthusiasm as Mine. In order to motivate us to perform even lesser tasks with humility, the Lord presented many examples of great actions. This is what teachers at school do when they achieve writing in beautiful letters; they intend the children to imitate them even though with lesser results....and where do those who distance themselves from their colleagues go? Where are they who demand honors? The Lord washed the feet of the traitor who had defiled all sanctities. The feet of the thief who had reached the moment of betrayal and whose condition was hopeless and incurable. In spite of that, the Lord allowed him to share and sit at His table...do you boast and wink your eyes in the belief that you are better? Someone may say: ‘Let us wash one another’s feet’ Is it a great matter to wash the feet of our servants? For us, ‘slave’, and ‘free’, have two different meanings. However, at this point, practical reality presents itself. According to nature, He is God and we are servants. In spite of that, He did not refuse to do the job. Therefore He has made us indebted to one another as He has first performed this task. He has made us indebted to perform even lesser tasks<sup>40</sup>.

Origen the Scholar noted that this custom of washing the feet of others was widespread among the simple and naïve, and that the Lord called for believers to perform this service-whether they were bishops, priests, or officials who occupied worldly offices. Just as we are in need to wash each other's feet, we should accept that others wash our feet too.

* As their teacher, the Lord washed His disciples' feet. At the same time, these were the feet of His servants too since He was their Master. The dust of the earth, which is a product of the world, would be cleaned through His teachings. In this manner, the physical world would not affect the innermost parts of the disciples. Matters which defile the feet may be torn away by the Lordship and control of the Ruler. He possesses authority over those who continue to accept being generally defiled. These still bear the spirit of slavery (Rom 8:15)<sup>41</sup>.

* You can see how the Lordship of our Lord and Savior transcends that of other Lords who do not wish a slave to have equal status with his master<sup>42</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

* The same love that the Father has is found in the Son...and what love does the Son have other than that He sacrificed Himself for our sakes and saved us by His blood? (Eph. 5:2). The Father sacrificed His Son, and the Son offered Himself. He sacrificed the One who was willing to do so before all ages and who offered Himself as a sacrifice. The Father did not sacrifice the Son as a punishment but He offered Him as a blessing<sup>43</sup>.

St Ambrose

* The Lord spoke because He had washed the disciples' feet through His words and by setting the example of a humble Lord. By His help we can apply ourselves to the any task at hand. We need to see clearly and work without delay while seeking to perfect matters that confront us<sup>44</sup>.

St Augustine

* 'Imitate me, just as I also imitate Christ' (1 Cor 11:1). It is for this purpose that the Lord put on our flesh: to teach us to have virtue through His incarnation. God sent His Son having taken the form of our sinful body (Romans 18:3). Accordingly, the Lord says "Learn from Me, for I am gentle and lowly in heart" (Matt 11:29). He has taught us not by words alone, but by deeds as well.

They called Him a "Samaritan", possessed by devils and a blasphemer. They stoned Him and the Pharisees sent servants to catch Him once, and they put Him on trial another time. They insulted Him, and when they could not find any fault in Him He would offer them bread through words and deeds...

Let us watch His actions with His disciples and His attitude towards His traitor. The Lord had chosen Judas to be one of His disciples. He invited him to share His table and His salt (which prevents corruption). Judas had seen the Lord's miracles which called for respect. In spite of that he committed a most dangerous act. This was more serious than any other for he did not stone or insult Him: he betrayed the Lord. Although Judas deserved to be hated, the Lord treated him as a friend and washed his feet because He desired to prevent him from doing evil.

Had He wanted, the Lord could have made him to wither like the fig tree. He could have split him in two in the manner of the rocks that got split, or torn apart as the veil in the temple. However, the Lord did not want to stop him from his act by force. Rather, He wanted Judas to choose voluntarily how to act. That is why the Lord washed his feet. In spite of all that, this wicked and miserable Judas felt no shame<sup>45</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

“If you know these things, happy are you if you do them” [17]

Real blessings are obtained through knowing the Lord in a practical manner and this is revealed in obeying Him. A person does not receive joy on account of his great knowledge but on account of being involved and participating in the divine nature. At this point, knowing the Lord is converted into a practical experience.

* Washing the feet is specifically performed by the Lord Jesus Christ. He is the One who washes the inner depths and forgives sins. A person who forgives those who hurt him through love and humility applies and shares one of the Lord's greatest features. Such a person is counted as one who enjoys the new and blessed life in Jesus Christ. When the Lord says “...blessed are you”, He reveals His heavenly glory and life which we experience as we practice such acts.

Origen the Scholar

* “If you know” is addressed to everyone. However, “if you do” does not refer to everyone. That is why the Lord says: “happy are you if you do them.” Therefore I always say (repeatedly) the same thing, though you know it, you need to create the sense of duty in you. Even the Jews “know”, but they are not blessed as they do not practice what they know<sup>46</sup>.

among them. Notice how the Lord did not generalize when He spoke about that sin. Rather, He praised the others for being pure vessels. At the same time He neither gave details about the crime nor revealed the name of the offender. However, the Lord underlines that all these events had been foretold in the Holy Bible (Ps 41:9).

The Lord did not state the motivation that drove Judas Iscariot. It is true that the Evangelists had referred to him when Judas criticized Mary, the sister of Lazarus, for pouring the fragrant oil on the Lord's feet: 'This he said, not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief and had the money box....' (Jn 12:6). Actually, the other Evangelists are the ones who have recorded the details concerning the betrayal of the Lord, the amount Judas had agreed to receive, how he returned the money after delivering the Lord, and his fall into despair. Still there is no commentary about the inner motives for his act. Scholars have attempted to analyze and elaborate on the reasons and motives for this treacherous deed. However, none of the Evangelists has tried to provide a full presentation of the motives of that traitor

St. John the Evangelist presents this act of betrayal immediately after the Lord had finished the washing of the feet. He reveals the desire of the Incarnate Word to perform the smallest acts in total and sincere humility. Indeed, He offered Himself for the sake of everyone. The Lord served them all even though there was one among them who was plotting a great evil against Him. Judas counteracted the Lord's service in his own manner. He obstinately held on to his own thoughts, and planned for his own profit while he failed to recognize that he was destroying himself.

Our Lord- the true Way, leads us to enter into Him, and work in submission, humility, and sincere love. He is there to raise us, while there is one who seeks to destroy us.

The Lord ultimately stresses that He teaches those He has chosen. It is not that He was uninformed about the personality of Judas when He chose him, but that all events take place by the Lord's consent. The evil in Judas did not indicate he was in control of the situation. Rather, the love of the Lord prevailed. That love transformed that evil into an element used in fulfilling the divine plan of salvation. This grants us total consolation for there is One who loves mankind, who is in control, and who transforms all events so that they work for our well being even when the evil confronts and resists us.

* Could the Lord know those who belong to Him (1 Tim 2: Num 16:5), and those who do not? He had said about some: "I never knew you" (Matt 7:23). Therefore He told Judas who did not belong to Him: "I never knew you" However, Judas belonged to the Lord but he had failed. It would have been possible to tell him "I do not know you, where are you from?" (refer to Lk 13:27). That explains why the Lord did not say 'I know you all' but rather said "I know whom I have chosen"<sup>47</sup>.

* Judas raised his heel against his Master when Satan entered his heart after he had received the piece of bread, [27]<sup>48</sup>.

* The Lord did not say “The one who eats bread with Me will deliver Me.” He said “He who eats bread with Me has lifted up his heel against Me.” He wished to indicate the covert and deceptive nature of His assassination.

St John Chrysostom

“Now I tell you before it comes,
That when it does come to pass, you may believe that I am He.” [19]

The Lord assures His disciples of His presence everywhere. He also underlines His knowledge of everything, to the extent that He informed them in advance about His death and all the events related to that. Consequently, their belief that He is the Messiah was reinforced. That belief became deeper as they realized that He knew all things and that He was the Savior of the world whom their fathers and prophets expected to come.

* Actually, the disciples had once approached the Lord and asked Him to “Increase their faith” (Lk 17:5). They did not condemn themselves as though they were unbelievers. The word “increase” suggests that they had faith and it could become greater. The word “believe” could be interpreted as “so that you might increase in faith”<sup>49</sup>.

“Most assuredly, I say to you,
He who receives whomever I send receives Me;
And he who receives Me receives Him who sent Me.” [20]

The Lord assured His disciples that although there are some people who are ungrateful and disloyal to Him; yet there are those who believe and accept Him. These are therefore counted as having accepted the Father as well.

* What is the relationship between this and what has been said before: “...happy are you if you do them” [17]; and why did the Lord add these words “...receives whomever I send”? There is a strong link and harmony between both, as the Lord was preparing them to go out into the world. He knew that they would face many difficulties and He was comforting them in two ways. First, He clearly explained, “If you know these things, happy are you if you do them” [17]. Second, He says “...he who receives Me, receives whomever sent Me.” Indeed the Lord had opened before them all the homes they would visit so that they would be dually comforted<sup>50</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* He who accepts the Lord’s messenger actually accepts the Lord Himself. And he who accepts the Lord accepts the Father. Consequently, he who accepts the Lord’s messenger accepts the Father who has sent the Lord Jesus Christ.<sup>51</sup>

* Based on these words, it is possible to accept the reverse implications. He who accepts the messengers of the son of destruction accepts the adversary of the Lord Jesus Christ. Moreover, he who accepts the son of destruction accepts Christ's adversary as being the word that appears truthful and that falsely claims to be just. Indeed, this indicates the acceptance of the destroyer himself. Let us beware therefore and act as wise bankers. Let us adhere in our belief in the true messengers and reject the ministry of false ones<sup>52</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

Origen noted that the Lord said: "...receives whomever I send", and did not say instead "whomever believes in you, believes in Me", or "whomever sees you, sees Me" (The Lord wishes us to accept His disciples but He does not wish us to have faith in them too).

When Jesus had said these things, He was troubled in spirit

And testified and said,

"Most assuredly, I say to you, one of you will betray Me." [21]

The Lord was accustomed to speak about His sufferings and death without feeling troubled. However, when He mentioned the fact of being betrayed by one of His disciples the Evangelist reports that 'He was troubled in spirit.' Clearly, sins committed by believers sadden the fatherly heart of the Lord Jesus Christ. In the Old Testament, God says: "I have nourished and brought up children, and they have rebelled against me" (Is.1:2). He also says: "In all their affliction he was afflicted...But they rebelled, and vexed his Holy Spirit" Is.63: 9, 10).

The Lord was troubled 'in spirit' [21]: this refers to the human aspect of His spirit since He had truly taken the form of a full human being. Consequently, His spirit would be troubled on account of betrayal committed by one of His disciples. This feeling was not due to fear of death or of the unknown, but due to anxiety and concern for that disciple who had dared to betray his Master and Lord.

* The one who is going to betray Me is not an outsider or different from My disciples. Neither is he one of many disciples. Indeed, he is one of the apostles who had been honored as I had chosen them.

There are many who have condemned the Lord and who cried out: "Crucify Him, crucify Him" (Lk 23:21)...however, Judas betrayed the Lord even though he had seen and known the Lord. He had known Him as a Teacher presenting many great lessons. He had heard these as he attended the Lord's private meetings with His disciples. He got to know Him as the Lord. Consequently, when he betrayed Him, he betrayed the Lord's greatness which he had come to know...a matter which is inconceivable for someone who has seen the Lord's greatness...

When Judas had learned how great He is; when he had heard the greatness of the Word, the Mind, and the Grace He possessed; then He betrayed the Lord. The weight of his deed was as great as the extent of his acquaintance with the Lord. For this reason it would have been good "... if he had not been born" (Matt 26:24, Mk 14:21). Being "born" could refer to renewal (the second birth) in its deep sense, or to 'birth' in its general meaning<sup>53</sup>.

* Had the wickedness of Judas been apparent to the Lord's disciples, they would have known who it was who would betray their Teacher. He told them "...one of you will betray Me", but the disciples "looked at one another, perplexed about whom He spoke," [22].

The disciples, in fact, felt embarrassed and would not suspect wickedness in Judas because he had acted so nobly previously. Probably Judas was not inclined wholly to wickedness. Even after the devil had entered his heart...he still possessed the sense of being able to make a choice.

When Judas saw the Lord being judged, then tied and delivered to Pilate the ruler ( Matt 27:2), he repented and returned the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priest and elders. He told them "I have sinned by betraying innocent blood," (Matt 27:4). Judas, who had loved money, threw the money and went and hung himself (Matt 27:5). He did not even wait to see the end of the Lord's judgment as He stood before Pilate.

Origen the Scholar

The Psalmist testifies that Judas did not feel hostile against the Lord Jesus Christ (Ps 55:13). Indeed, after Judas had delivered the Lord, he praised the Teacher and Lord as he said he had committed a sin by handing over innocent blood. He admitted his fault before the chief priests and elders. Besides, he threw the money on the ground and did not spend or enjoy it. All these beautiful touches indicate that he could have repented and moved closer to the Lord. However, he sadly opened his heart to the devil for a second time by committing suicide. Consequently, he lost hope in God, the savior of the world.

St. Augustine wonders why the Lord Jesus Christ got troubled in the spirit and said "Most assuredly, I say to you, one of you will betray Me"? Did the Lord not know before hand, and therefore He was troubled in the spirit? Did not the Lord say a little while earlier: "He who eats bread with Me has lifted up his heel against Me," [18]? Or did He get troubled because the hour had come when the execution of the betrayal would actually take place? The Holy One, who has the power to lay down His life and to take it up again, was troubled in the spirit. The Almighty was troubled, the Rock and stronghold was troubled. However, it was the weakness of our nature which He had put on willingly that got troubled.

St. Augustine goes on to say: [That is surely the case in point: May the servants never have inappropriate doubts or thoughts about their Lord. May they comprehend that they are members of the One Head who died for our sake. Therefore the Lord was troubled as He stood in our shoes. The One who met death powerfully, was disturbed in the fullness of His power. The One who will transform our humble bodies into the likeness of His glorified body had also transferred into Himself the feelings of our weakness into His own, as well as His sympathy for us. Consequently, when the One who is great, courageous, steadfast, and invincible is troubled, we should not be worried as though He could fail; for He will not perish but will conquer on our behalf!... In His distress, we see ourselves. Therefore when anxiety gets hold of us we should not despair or perish. Through the anxiety of the One who could never be troubled without His will, the Lord grants us comfort when we involuntarily get troubled.<sup>54</sup>]

* Through His power, He fully took on our human nature. With that same power, He fashioned Himself human feelings which He controlled in an appropriate manner<sup>55</sup>.

St Augustine

St. Augustine comments on the Lord's words "...one of you will betray Me" and says: 'The Lord here refers to the disciples as physical persons and not as a communal spiritual group. Actually, Judas Iscariot was not one of them and St. John explains, in 1 John 2:19, that: "they went out from us, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would have continued with us; but they went out that they might be made manifest, that none of them were of us," (1 Jn 2:19).

Then the disciples looked at one another,
Perplexed about whom He spoke. [22]

It is clear that the behavior of Judas Iscariot did not arouse any kind of suspicion. No one suspected him at all.

When they heard the warning words of their Master, they knew He would not speak lightly or say anything to deceive them. Therefore they turned and looked at each. They were wondering silently: "Who could that be?" Their looks revealed their astonishment and inner turmoil.

When David wept over his rebellious son, all his followers wept with him (2 Sam 15:30). In the same manner, the disciples became troubled when the Lord was troubled and saddened on account of His deliverer. The troubled spirit of the One who grants peace and joy filled the disciples with great fear. The feast was transformed from a time of joy to a time of great trouble and fear.

Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of His disciples, whom Jesus loved. [23]

In these times, the Jews used to sit in a reclined position at the table. They would lean with their left elbow on a pillow as they sat to eat. This was also the habit of the Greeks and Romans. There would be two leaning on the same pillow. Because St. John was so close to the Lord, he used to sit next to him and his head would be in the Lord's embrace.

Simon Peter therefore motioned to him
To ask who it was of whom He spoke. [24]

St. John was the right person who could put the question to the Lord. He occupied a special place and he sat next to Him and leaned on His bosom. Peter, in his usual zeal, wanted to know who would betray the Lord. However, he did not dare to ask and made a sign to John to ask the Lord.

* In every situation, Peter stands out as he reveals his zealous love for the Lord. However, he appears to be in great fear at that moment. He neither spoke nor kept quiet, but he needed to find out through St. John the disciple.

---

Then, leaning back on Jesus' breast, he said to Him,
"Lord who is it?"[25]

St. John addressed the Lord respectfully, even though he had a very close relationship with the Lord and leaned against His bosom. He uses the title "Lord": our closeness with the Lord Jesus Christ should not cancel our sense of awe and respect when we address Him.

St. John was leaning on the Lord's bosom [23]; and when he wanted to ask Him about the person who would deliver Him, he had to lift his head up. Origen the scholar comments that deeds are far more sublime and greater than leaning on the bosom<sup>56</sup>.

* Their Master just gave them a hint. If you seek to know the reason for that, you would understand that He did so on account of His love.

St John Chrysostom

* The beloved John, who leaned on the Lord's bosom, loved the two breasts of the Word (Jn 13:25). He placed his heart close to the Source of life and enjoyed suckling from the hidden mysteries that are found within the Lord's heart. He absorbed them as a sponge would do.

St. John offers us the breasts that richly carry the Word. Consequently, we can be filled with the same goodness which filled him as he drew out of the Source of goodness. He proclaimed the eternal Word. On this account we can truly say now: "...we will remember thy love more than wine: We have become like virgins, our minds are no longer childish or under the yoke of childish trivialities, and we are no longer defiled by sin as we draw closer to death due to old age. Therefore let us fully love the wealth of divine teachings..." (Song of Sol 1:4). John was the disciple whom the Lord loved, and the Lord is the Truth. The expressions used in this passage are far more beautiful and appropriate than those David used when he said, "the Lord is known by the judgment He executes," (Ps 9:16). The Lord here is called the Truth as He makes "the crooked places straight and the rough places smooth" (Is 40:4). This is achieved through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ to whom is due the glory forever amen<sup>57</sup>.

* Those who were Jews by birth could not regain the virginity they had lost on that account just through reading the Holy Bible. In spite of that, we are told that St. John, who was the youngest one of the disciples, was a chaste celibate when he accepted the Christian faith. He maintained his chastity and on this account, he was especially dear to the Lord and leaned on His bosom. Peter, who was married, did not have the courage to question the Lord, so he asked John to find out the answer, [25]. After the resurrection, when Mary Magdalene reported to the disciples that the Lord had risen (Jn 20:4), both Peter and John ran to the tomb. However, John arrived before Peter. Also when they went fishing in the lake of Geneserath, the Lord stood on the shore and none of the disciples recognized that it was Jesus. Only the chaste disciple recognized the chaste One and he said to Peter, "It is the Lord," (Jn 21:7)<sup>58</sup>.

Jesus answered,

“It is he whom I shall give a piece of bread when I have dipped it.”

And having dipped the bread He gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon. [26].

When the Lord dipped the bread and gave it to Judas, the disciples thought He had done so in order to have him hurry up and accomplish a certain task rather than wait to have supper with them.

Just as John whispered his question into the Lord's ear, so did the Lord whisper His response to him so that the other disciples would not hear. Rather than mention the name of His traitor, the Lord was satisfied to give a sign. By so doing, the Lord wants future generations to understand that God desires us to recognize those who rebel against the truth. We are enabled to do so through their wicked fruits and spirit rather than by knowing their names.

It seems that Judas was so embarrassed that he did not dare dip the bread and eat from the same dish out of which the Lord ate. Yet the Lord dipped the bread and gave Judas who had to put out his hand and eat with the disciples. The Lord wanted to remind him of his sublime equal status among the others.

It is clear from the Lord's interaction with Judas that the latter sat closely to Him. This could have been because Judas was the treasurer. Probably the disciples let him sit close to the Lord so that he would be close by should the Lord need anything for the ministry.

Truly, there are many who get close to the Lord Jesus Christ physically. They elbow their way in the crowds wherever the Lord goes. However, they are far apart spiritually from Him. Besides these, there are others who appear far away, yet they carry the Lord in their hearts and thoughts. Such are embraced by the Lord who carries them within Him as members of His own Holy Body.

St John Chrysostom finds that the Lord Jesus Christ used every possible means that would lead Judas to be troubled by his deed. It was common knowledge that even barbarian tribes would not betray those with whom they shared one meal. That is why the Lord used this as the sign that would indicate the traitor. It would be the one who would receive the bread after the Lord Himself had dipped it. He gave Judas to eat of the same food He ate; yet in spite of that, he betrayed the One who offered him food.

* Even the manner by which the Lord reproached Judas should have embarrassed him. The respect for sharing and eating bread did not embarrass him; yet could he not have become overpowered when he received the bread from the hand of the Lord? Yet even this did not overpower Him<sup>59</sup>!

St John Chrysostom

* What he received was good, but he received it to his disadvantage since he received that which is good while harboring a wicked spirit<sup>60</sup>.

* The focus is not on what is given but on the person who receives the gift. The nature of that person is greatly important rather than the nature of the object offered. This is because even good things could be harmful; while evil matters could result in good things. It depends on the person who receives and handles an object . . . why was the bread given to the traitor? It could be for no other purpose but to serve as a witness to a blessing received by an ungrateful person<sup>61</sup>.

St Augustine

Now after the piece of bread, Satan entered him.

Then Jesus said to him,

"What you do, do quickly." (27).

The devil had entered into Judas because he had surrendered completely to the evil one. Judas became even more servile and a son of the destroyer as he never stopped to think of repenting and refraining from the plan against His Master. St. Paul speaks about the devil and says that 'he works in the sons of disobedience' (Eph 2:2), and that often he works more powerfully and clearly when a person submits totally to his evil authority.

After the Lord had given Judas the piece of bread, the devil entered into him. If we consider the bread as a symbol of the Lord's tenderness and blessings, then someone who belittles and abuses His gifts sins against God and opens up the door for Satan. That evil one is therefore able to enter and take control.

The Lord's words; "what you do, do quickly" [27] is not intended as advice but as permission from the Lord that Judas accomplish his plan. The Lord disrobes him of all blessings because he was resolved to surrender to treachery and evil. It is as though the Lord was telling him: 'You insist on betraying Me and are not willing to open the door to repentance or to return into my embrace. Therefore go and do what you want. As for Me, I do not fear death and indeed I am prepared for it.'

Judas had already laid a plan with the wicked ones. They had agreed on a precise time and place. The hour for the execution of that plan was drawing near. Judas probably did not know how to excuse himself and leave. Therefore the Lord provided his heart's desire and need to leave. We hear the Psalmist say: "The Lord grants you the desire of your heart." Through the Holy Spirit, we need to search our hearts in order to receive what we desire: Is there the desire to see God and have fellowship with Him; or is there a love to be evil and practice it?

The Lord probably told him to hurry and leave before his case would be revealed to the disciples. They would have consequently humiliated him.

Some may wonder: Judas had already planned and agreed with the chief priests and Pharisees to deliver the Lord, therefore why does this passage report that: ." . . after the piece of bread, Satan entered him"? Satan had shot one of his fiery arrows at the heart of Judas and discovered an inner response. This opened the doors of his heart and gave access to Satan to enter and reign as king! In the same way, we give access to Satan every time we submit to any evil thoughts and behavior. We would actually be paving the way to a greater evil.

- * The Lord perceived the one who had entered as well as the one who had received him. He also knew of the whole plan against Him and so focused on the fight. He intended to overcome the wicked one in order to save mankind. Therefore He said: "What you do, do quickly" [27]<sup>62</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

- * St John the disciple speaks about Judas and says "Now after the piece of bread, Satan entered him." He is astonished at the traitor's incredible foolishness. The Lord spoke in order to comfort His disciples. He did not wish them to be terrified or filled with sudden dreadful thoughts as this would have added to their anxiety<sup>63</sup>.
- * As long as Judas remained in the company of the disciples, Satan could not attack him and just played with his mind. However, when the Lord revealed his act and dismissed him from His company, Satan fearlessly jumped into his heart<sup>64</sup>.
- * ". . . do quickly" does not sound like an order or an advice. Indeed, it sounds more like a reprimand coming from One who opens the door for a person's reform. However, when it appeared that there was no way for correction, the Lord permitted him to go his way<sup>65</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

- * After receiving the piece of bread, Satan entered into the Lord's traitor. Judas had submitted to the devil's authority and allowed him full reign over his heart so that he led him to sin.

We do not assume that Satan was not within him earlier and at the time when Judas met with the Jewish leaders. At that time he made the deal concerning the price for betraying the Lord. St. Luke the Evangelist reports clearly: "Then Satan entered Judas, surnamed Iscariot, who was numbered among the twelve. So he went his way and conferred with the chief priests and captains, how he might betray Him to them" (Lk. 22:3-4) . . . Satan first came in when he planted the idea of betraying Jesus in his heart. Judas was in that spirit when he arrived for supper. Then, and after Judas had received the bread, Satan entered, not to tempt someone who was another's follower, but to claim and rule the one who had become his own<sup>66</sup>.

However, according to St. John, the moment comes when the Lord reveals His traitor by dipping the Bread and offering it to Judas. Probably this was intended to silence other false claims. Indeed, dipping something does not always indicate washing it for it could be done to prevent altering its color. If taken in a positive sense the act of dipping implies ingratitude for receiving something good and therefore deserved to be condemned<sup>67</sup>.

But no one at the table knew for what reason He said this to Him [28]

Truly, the Lord knows our inner depths more than we do ourselves. Just as He knows the most wicked-such as Judas-He also knows the weakness of saints such as St. Peter the apostle.

- * The Lord did not bring Judas' act out into the light. He knew that, if the disciples would get to know, they would have isolated him. Probably Peter would have killed him. This explains why the Lord did not inform any of those reclining at the table, not even St. John the Baptist . . . the Lord did not want to speak badly of Judas for the rest of the days they would spend together. It is our duty to do the same: we should not reveal the sins of others to those around us; even if they are in the same condition as that one who had gone beyond recovery and when there is no hope in healing him.

St John Chrysostom

For some thought, because Judas had the money box,
That Jesus had said to him: "Buy those things we need for the feast",
Or that he should give something to the poor" [29]

The disciples thought that the Lord had asked Judas to "Buy those things we need for the feast" [29]. It is clear that these events occurred the night before the Passover. The disciples knew there would be no selling or buying on Passover Day. Probably, they thought Judas had to go and buy a lamb to offer it on the day of the Passover which was on the following day.

It is clear that no one heard what the Lord whispered in St. John's ear. That is why no one had any reason to suspect Judas. They believed he was doing charitable deeds during the feast. The Lord actually lived like a poor man, yet he put out of the little He had, into the money box. It was as though He obligated everyone, however poor, to donate to others.

- * If someone were to ask: why did Judas carry a money box whereas the Lord had said: "Provide neither gold nor silver nor copper in your money belts, nor bag for your journey, nor tunics, nor sandals, or staffs; for a worker is worthy of his food" (Matt 10:9, 10). Our answer would be: Judas carried a money box which was used to serve the poor.

Having received the piece of bread, he then went out immediately. And it was night [30].

Judas left the house in Bethany and hurried to Jerusalem which was a couple of miles away. He hurried to accomplish his plan at night when his heart was in a state of darkness. In the middle of a cold and dark atmosphere, Judas left so that no one would see him as he did his evil deed which was worse than the dark night.

- * We would like to ask St. John the Evangelist: ‘Why did you mention the exact time?!’ We know that his answer would be: So that you realize the cruelty of his heart since even the time of day did not prevent him from going ahead with his crime<sup>69</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

- * He actually ‘went out’, not only from the house where the supper was held, but in simple terms, he went away from the Lord Jesus Christ in a final sense. We believe that Judas could not bear to be in the same place as Jesus after having taken the piece of bread and after Satan had entered into him. Indeed, there can be no harmony between Beelzebub (Belial/Satan) and the Lord (2 Cor 6:15)<sup>70</sup>.
- * For the other disciples (the piece of bread) was intended for their salvation. As for Judas, it condemned him (1Cor 11:27-29), for Satan entered him after he had received the bread . . . as we have said, this was symbolic. The bread, which nourishes fully and in a physical manner, increases the pain of the fever. At the same time it supplies health and energy for a person<sup>71</sup>.
- * It is appropriate that we understand the symbolic significance of the night in these circumstances. It represents the night that settled upon the spirit of Judas when Satan entered into him. It is the darkness that covered the depths of the world (Gen 1:2) and the darkness God called Night (Gen 1:5) St. Paul speaks about the night and says that we are not children of the night or of darkness, "But you, brethren, are not in darkness. . . we are not of the night nor of darkness" (1Thes 5:4-5). Therefore let us not sleep, we who are of the light (1Thes 5:5)<sup>72</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

- * The light speaks with the light. In other words, the Lord Jesus Christ spoke with His loyal disciples so that they would obey and love Him as His followers. The night too appeared to recognize the night (Ps 19:2) in the sense that Judas communicated with the unbelieving Jews who plotted to persecute and take the Lord Jesus Christ as a prisoner<sup>73</sup>.

<sup>72</sup> Commentary on St John, Book 32:313

So when he had gone out, Jesus said:
"Now the Son of Man is glorified,
And God is glorified in Him" [31]

Until that point, it was hard for the disciples to comprehend what was taking place around them. They were unable to understand what the Lord's words meant concerning His crucifixion, death, and resurrection. However, they sensed some kind of anxiety as events seemed to take an obscure turn.

In the middle of such anxiety, the evangelist announces the exit of Judas who is on His way to betray the Lord. However, the Son of Man would be glorified and God would be glorified too . . . how?

First: When the corrupt element left and went away from the center of the church, the Lord Jesus Christ, who grants righteousness, became glorified. It was impossible for corruption to remain permanently within the Church. Corruption condemned itself by withdrawing from the Lord's real Church.

Second: When Judas left, the opportunity came for the pure disciples to listen to the Lord's long farewell talks. He spoke to comfort them not only as they were about to go through the events of the Cross; but also to offer divine comfort to the Holy Church through out the ages and until He would appear on the clouds. As that corrupt one, intent on corruption, went out, the opportunity was there for the disciples to witness the great and heavenly Chief Priest as He spoke to the Father. He spoke about the mystery of the divine glory and about granting support to the Church so that she might enjoy fellowship in His glory

Third: The Son of Man was glorified because the Father had chosen Him to be the Savior of mankind. The moment had come when His glory would be all the more greatly fulfilled as the people who were to arrest Him started to move. These would deliver Him to be judged and delivered to die on the Cross. This is the glory of His sublime and divine love.

The Lord assures the disciples that the upcoming events would be extremely joyful. It was impossible to separate the role of the Father from that of the Son in achieving the salvation of the world. It is the Father's love that has offered the Cross for us (3:16; Romans 5:8). It is the Father who, through and with the Lord Jesus Christ, became reconciled with the world (2Cor 5:19). It is the Father who has blessed us through the Lord when He chose us long before He laid the foundation of the world (Eph 1:3-4).

- * By speaking to them, the Lord lifted up their thoughts after they had plunged into anxiety. He succeeded in making them rejoice, besides helping them come out of their depression.
- * These matters have been recorded to enable us to forgive and not hate those who beat us. We need to reprimand them as well as pray for them. Weeping over sinners is more appropriate than weeping over those in pain. A greedy person, who accuses others falsely and commits evil, brings upon himself a greater evil. At the same time, he causes us to receive greater benefits if we do not avenge ourselves. For instance, if a person steals something from you, do you thank and glorify God for that? By giving thanks you would receive hundreds of rewards, whereas the thief would have brought on himself an inexpressible fire<sup>74</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* That is why the Lord says: "Now, the Son of Man is glorified" [31]. That was the moment when the plan (the suffering) began and it ended by the death of the Lord. . . it all began at the moment when Judas left the room. After receiving the piece of bread, he left to accomplish his act against the Lord. It would have been impossible for Christ to be glorified if the Father were not glorified in Him. Therefore the Lord says: "God is glorified in Him."<sup>75</sup>

* Glory was fulfilled as a result of the death of the 'Son of Man' on behalf of mankind. His death was an intrinsic part of His humanity and this is completely unrelated in any manner to the Word and only Son whose naturally never dies. Neither was the Lord's death related to Wisdom and Truth, nor to any other designation used to indicate the Lord's divine attributes. Indeed, death was a physical characteristic of mankind, and the Lord was the 'Son of Man' who was born from the line of David according to the flesh (Rom 1:3)<sup>76</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

*What did the Day say when the Night left?

What did Lord say when the seller left?

"Now the Son of Man is glorified" (31)

The Lord spoke these words to reveal that the time for His ultimate humiliation was getting close. The bonds, the judgment, the ridicule, the crucifixion, and death were about to occur.

Is that glorification or humiliation?

When the Lord worked miracles, did not St John comment, 'for the Holy Spirit was not yet given, because Jesus was not yet glorified' (Jn 7:39)?

When the Lord raised the dead, He had not yet been glorified. So would the Father be glorified while He drew personally closer to death?

He was not glorified when He did works that only God could do; so would He be glorified as He walked on the path of suffering as a human being?

"Now the Son of Man is glorified" [31]: the Lord said these words to indicate the total withdrawal of the chief of sinners (Judas) from his friends. The ones who remained with the Lord were His saints. We are the shadow of His glory which will be fulfilled when the wicked will be separated completely. Then the Lord Jesus Christ will abide with His saints in eternity<sup>77</sup>.

* "Now the Son of Man is glorified" [31]: the word 'now' probably does not refer to the sufferings that the Lord was about to face. Rather, it could be a reference to the events that would follow immediately after His resurrection, and as though these have taken place already<sup>78</sup>.

St. Augustine

If God is glorified in Him,
God will also glorify Him in Himself,
And glorify Him immediately" (32)

The Lord was glorified promptly and at the moment of His arrest, for all those present drew back at His words. They were unable to arrest Him except when He delivered Himself to them (Jn 18:6). The Father glorified the Lord in His sufferings, and crucifixion when nature herself witnessed that He is the Son of God. As a result, the centurion declared his belief, as well as the thief who was attracted by the love of the crucified.

The greater issue is that the Son of Man was glorified though His death on behalf of mankind. This glory proclaimed the love of the Father who sacrificed His only Son for the sake of the world. Just as the Father was glorified through the death of His Son, so the Father proclaimed the glory of the Son through his resurrection from the dead. Consequently, the Son was glorified in Himself as the One who possesses power and authority. This glory was quickly fulfilled through His resurrection. We will see the fullness of His glory when we meet him face to face. This will also be fulfilled very soon when the great day of the Lord will come.

The glory of the Lord had appeared in the tabernacle, and Moses was unable to enter in due to the cloud which covered it (Ex 40: 34-35). Besides, when the priests came out of the temple they could not go in to continue their service because the glory of God filled the holy house of the Lord (1Kings 8:10-11). Again, when Moses came down the mountain carrying the two tablets of the commandments, he did not know that his face was shining with glory. Therefore Aaron and all the children of Israel were unable to come close to him (Ex 34:29-30). At the Transfiguration the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ was reflected on His clothes which became as white as the light (Lk 9:29-31).

In the Old Testament, the glory of God appeared in the clouds and on the face of Moses. In the New Testament, the glory of God appeared during the ministry of the Lord at His transfiguration. At that event, the brilliance of His face was revealed and He shone as the sun. This glory was reflected on His clothes. On the Cross, the glory of the Father and of the Son was mutually recognized. This has led Origen the Scholar to consider that the glory mentioned in this passage implies 'knowledge' which only the Father and the son know, as well as those to whom the son wishes "to reveal Him" (Matt 11:27). This knowledge is not achieved through 'flesh and blood' but by (the) Father who is in heaven (Matt 16:17).

In these words the Lord Jesus Christ presents four important facts:

1. The Son of Man is glorified through the Cross as He becomes the conqueror over the powers of evil as well as the fulfillment of the divine plan for mankind.
  2. The Father is glorified through the Cross by proclaiming His divine love towards mankind.
  3. The Father glorifies His Son through the Resurrection and Ascension of the Son into the heavens while carrying the Church within Him.
  4. The time had come to fulfill the fullness of His glory promptly and without delay.
- * What does "God will glorify Him in Himself" convey? It indicates that God Himself will glorify the Lord and not by using any other medium. . . . "And glorify Him immediately" that is through His crucifixion. This occurred when the veil of the temple got split into two, from top to bottom, and there was an earthquake. The rocks cracked, the graves were opened, and many of the saints who were asleep were awakened (Matt 27:51, 52), this is what is conveyed by these words: "God will glorify Him in Himself." The Lord intended to explain that it would not be long; there was no need to wait for the Resurrection, nor to show His radiance. Rather, His glory would be revealed quickly on the Cross where His glory would appear<sup>79</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

"Little children, I shall be with you a little while longer,
You will seek Me: and as I said to the Jews,
Where I am going, you cannot come,
So now I say to you" [33].

"My children" or 'My little children' or 'beloved ones'- 'Teknia' expresses great tenderness and feelings. These are similar to a mother's tenderness towards her infant whom she loves greatly.

Now Judas had left and the Lord spoke with great tenderness towards His disciples who were like beloved sons to Him.

The short period indicated in this passage could have been a couple of hours at the most. After that, the disciples were scattered, leaving the Lord Jesus Christ alone throughout His judgment. They could not go into the place where His trial was held. The Cross signified the isolation of the Lord from His enemies as well as from His loved ones. No one could accompany Him on that path and Isaiah heard Him say: "I have trodden the winepress alone" (Is. 63:3). Judas forsook the Lord, and all the wicked ones who were intent on their wickedness went with him. They would come to see the marks of the Cross when He will meet them again. Then they will ask the mountains to fall upon them, and the hills to cover them up from the face of the One who sits on the throne. On the way to the Cross, His loved ones forsook Him too for no one other than Him could participate in the sacrifice on the Cross. However, they would be crucified after He has risen so they would be glorified with Him too. They would find His suffering to be glorious and honorable; therefore they would consider that their sufferings are a blessing they do not deserve. Moreover, His loved ones know that sufferings are a means of being in the eternal and joyful presence of the Crucified conqueror.

* The Lord Jesus said these words to the Jews as well as to His disciples. It brought terror in the hearts of the Jews, whereas it awakened the flame of anticipation in the hearts of the disciples.

* .” . . now I say to you” [33] . . . when the disciples will run away, and when the Jews suffer beyond description during the siege of their city, and when the wrath of God afflicts them from every side; then the Lord addresses the Jews concerning their lack of faith. As for you, the Lord warns you so that no unexpected trouble would afflict you<sup>80</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* Do not be disturbed by those who say that the Jesus Christ the Savior is the Father of specific person. Indeed, the Lord told the paralyzed man: "Son, be of good cheer; your sins are forgiven you" (Matt 9: 2). He told the woman who was bleeding. . . "Daughter your faith has made you well" (Matt 9:22). Now, the Lord calls the disciples: "little children" and we believe that the intention was to underline clearly their humility. We need to learn humility from the disciples who possessed this feature up to that time<sup>81</sup>.

* It is necessary to understand that it is not impossible for someone to change from being a child of the Lord into being his brother. On a human level, the son cannot later become a brother to the person to whom he was previously a son.

* After the Lord's resurrection, those He has called "little children" became His brothers . . . they were as though they have been transformed by the Lord resurrection. This explains the Lord's words when He said: "go to My brethren and say to them . . . " (Jn. 20:17).

In the same manner, it is probably possible to change from being a servant of God. The disciples were servants before they could become 'little children.' The following words explain this point: 'you call me teacher and Lord, and you say well, for so I am (Jn. 13:13). The following words explain that idea: "a servant is not greater than his master" (Jn13:16) these sayings were expressed before the words ‘little children, I shall be with you.’

Note that a servant first becomes a disciples and then changes into a young child. Next, he changes into being the Lord's brother and finally becomes a son of God<sup>82</sup>.

Orgen the Scholar

They were going to seek Him. However, He would spend three days and nights in the heart of the earth (Matt 12:40) when His souls leaves to go to Paradise. The Lord spoke about that when He said: .” . . today you will be with Me in Paradise”(Lk 23:43). There He would carry those who had died with hope and bring them from Hades into Paradise. Nevertheless, the disciples could not accompany Him to His Paradise. At that moment in time they were unable to follow Him.

* The Lord did not want His disciples to think that, being glorified by the Father, he would be unable to have any earthly relationship with them. Therefore He said: "little children, I shall be with you a little while longer" [33]. It is as though He was telling them: it is true that I will be glorified through My resurrection. However, I will not ascend immediately into heaven. Rather, "I will be with you a little while longer." Accordingly, we read in the book of the Acts of the Apostles that the Lord spent forty days with them after His Resurrection. During these days, He came, went away, and returned, and stayed in their company, and He ate and drank with them (Acts 1:3) . . . nevertheless, He would no longer share their human weaknesses<sup>83</sup>.

St Augustine

St. Augustine perceives that this short while which the Lord indicated actually applied to the period between His last conversation with them to the time of His crucifixion, death, and resurrection. After that the disciples would seek Him but would be unable to go to Him. During this short while, the Lord would be sharing their human weaknesses. After that He would no longer share these features with them. An alternative explanation could be that the Lord was referring to the forty days between His resurrection and ascension. In that period, He would be with them but would not share the feature of human weakness with them as He would no longer be subject to death. He would then and would no longer be physically present with them<sup>84</sup>.

4. Brotherly love:

"A new commandment I give to you,
That you love one another.
As I have loved you,
That you also love one another." [34]

Even though Judas, who was so ungrateful, was one of the disciples, yet not everyone was like him. The others were loyal, and the reciprocal love they shared indicated their discipleship. This was an old commandment (1Jn 2:7), yet it was renewed by the Lord Jesus Christ as He gave it greater depths and potentials to apply it. The commandment was extended to embrace lovingly every person: even enemies and opponents. The ultimate aim is to redeem every soul. There are two Greek words used in the Holy Bible for the word 'new': one means recent, the one used here embodies a desire to flourish and refresh. The old commandment occurs in (Lev. 19:18). However, the Cross offers it to us with a deeper meaning. Here it gains a refreshing concept due to the potential of applying it in a new light.

The commandment to love is a wonderful song which fills the Church with joy and gladness. It is a new command which will always remain new. All will practice it even the heavenly ones. It does not get old or obsolete (Heb 8:13). Tertullian the scholar informs us that the pagan speak about Christians and say: 'Look, how they love one another!' Minucius Felix reports that the pagan Caecillicus says about Christians: 'they love each other even before they get to know one another.’ This is a testimony from pagans who resist and attack Christians. Lucian of Samosata who never said a good word about Christians, attacked them for being foolish. He said that since they loved one another, it is possible for any pagan to exploit this love and gather from them great wealth.

---

The Evangelist points to two new topics: the new commandment here and the new tomb where the Lord would be buried (Jn.19:21). By accepting this commandment into our depths, our inner being is transformed into the Lord’s tomb. It is a new tomb where the Lord will rest in the company of His angels. Our inner depths will bear witness to His glorious resurrection, and in this manner the new commandment transforms our tomb into a new heaven!

* It is as though the Lord was telling them: you have become anxious because I’m leaving you. However, if you love one another you will be the most powerful<sup>85</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* This is a new commandment since the Lord has stripped away the old and has dressed us with the new human being.

Actually, there is no love that has the power to renew those who submit or obey it. Here the Lord is speaking about a love that is distinctly different from physical emotions as He goes on to say: “ . . . as I have loved you ” [24].

Our Lord has given us a new commandment and that is that we love one another as He has loved us. That is the love that will renew us and transform us into new beings and into heirs of the new promise and testament. Hence we will praise Him with a new song of praise<sup>86</sup>.

* Let us love one another with great concern to win each other and to have the Lord live within us. This love is granted through Him . . . for He has loved us with this goal: that we might love one another. By loving us, He has granted us the power of brotherly love. Consequently we join together in loving fellowship and unite as members joined by the ties of joy. As a result, we become one body to the Almighty Head<sup>87</sup>.

* The Lord seems to be telling us: ‘There are other blessings that those who do not belong to Me share with you. They share nature, life, sensations, reasoning, and security. I grant these as blessings to men and beasts. Besides, I grant all the gifts of language, mysteries, prophecies, knowledge, shelter, faith, generosity, as well as freedom to deliver their bodies even to fire. However, because they lack love, they become as sounding brass; as nothing, they are become good for nothing ( 1 Cor 13:1-3)<sup>88</sup>.

<sup>87</sup> St Augustine: On the Gospel of St John, tractate 65:2

“By this shall all men know that you are My disciples,
If you have love for one another.” [35]

Sin leads the soul to slip into the path of darkness and death. Conversely the work of the Lord Jesus Christ, the word Incarnated leads to resurrection from the grave. He offers divine knowledge and achieves divine wonders. Consequently, through faith the soul adheres to path of righteousness and truth. She shakes away all that is shameful and expands as it is filled with love to God, to His heavenly hosts, as well as towards all his earthly creatures.

With such a heart, a person is enabled to walk in the narrow path while carrying a big heart. In contrast, a sinful heart leads its owner into a wide path yet characterized by a restricted heart. The psalmist says: "I will run in the way of your commandments, for you will enlarge my heart" (Ps. 119:32).

* If you wondered: 'what was the Lord's purpose when He said these words?' Our answer would be: 'This love is grater than all other virtues. It transforms people into saints because it is the basis of all virtue.'

If you asked: 'What do you think: Do miracles help to reveal this love in a more appropriate and devoted manner?' Our answer would be: 'It does not reveal it any way.' The Lord Himself said: "Many will say to Me in that day, Lord have we not prophesied in Your name, cast out demons in your name, and done many wonders in your name?' And then I will declare to them, ' I never knew you; depart from Me, you who practice lawlessness!'"(Matt 7:22-23).

Besides, when the disciples were glad that the devils obeyed them, the Lord told them: 'Nevertheless do not rejoice in this. That the spirits are subject to you, but rather rejoice because your names are written in heaven' (Lk10:20). If the making of the miracles would lead the world into the faith, then love was present even before that. If love does not exist, then the effect of miracles would be short- lived<sup>89</sup>.

* How great is love! It is more powerful than fire. It reaches to the highest heavens and nothing can hinder it<sup>90</sup>.

St John Chrysostom

* It is good to extend and enlarge our hearts as much as possible. This would be a safeguard against limitations such as cowardice or destructive and angry energy. Such limitations would disable us from receiving what the prophet calls 'the large road' of God's commandments into our limited hearts. Moreover, we would be unable to join the prophet and say: "I will run in the way of your commandments, for you will enlarge my heart."<sup>91</sup>

Fr. Youssef

<sup>89</sup> Homilies on St John 72:4

* I would be unable to run in the path of your commandments if you do not enlarge my heart. . . can you do that on your own?. . . The answer is "no I cannot." It cannot be done with my own will, and as though I did not need Your help; yet I can because You have enlarged my heart.

An enlarged heart is filled with joy which we have received as we walk uprightly. It is a gift from God which leads us not to resent His commands. We obey not due to fear of penalty. Indeed, the heart opens up through love and joy which we have found in righteousness.

St Augustine

* The road to life is narrow and difficult (Matt 7:14). However, the heart that walks uprightly, that is in the path of the Lord's commands, is opened up and welcomes the divine word. Being sanctified, the heart sees God. In contrast, the wide road leads to destruction (Matt7:13). The heart that walks on that road is narrow and refuses to set up a house for the Father and Son within (Jn.14:23). Through ignorance, such a heart disregards God and restricts itself due to its own cruelty.

Let us meditate on Solomon's teachings. He tells us how to record the divine word on the tablets of our hearts (Prov. 3:4; 7:3; 22:20) He proclaims "Wisdom calls aloud outside; she raises her voice. . (Prov. 1:20) "Outside" refers to the hearts which God intends to enlarge, and not to the streets. .

Origen the Scholar

* The path of the Lord's commandments is narrow. However, the heart of the one walking on that path is opened up and enlarged. This is because the Father, Son and Holy Spirit live within. Therefore that person walks on swiftly and with a big heart . . . whereas the road taken by evil doers is wide and their hearts are restricted for there is no place for God within them.

Anthimus, Bishop of Jerusalem

5. Warning to Peter and Denial of the Lord:

Peter said to Him,
"Where are you going?"
Jesus answered him,
"Where I am going you cannot follow Me now,
But you shall follow Me afterward." [36]

The Lord had told His disciples previously that they could not go where He was going [33]. In spite of that, Peter dared to ask: "Lord where are you going?" His curiosity led him into a discussion that was not needed as it ended by a confirmation that he would deny His Master three times. This was something Peter could not accept logically. It would have been appropriate for him to accept the Lord's words and to meditate on the commandment of love rather than to inquire about matters outside his scope.

In spite of Peter's impulsive question, the Lord candidly responded with enough information to support him on the road of suffering: he would eventually die with Him, drink of the cup with Him. Yet this would happen later on and then would attain the blessing of joining the Lord. The Lord did not give Peter the answer he wanted. Peter wanted to know the place to which the Lord was going. Peter had accompanied the Lord everywhere and he did not imagine he could be separated from Him. Maybe Peter thought that the Lord was getting some temporal glory or earthly status. However, the Lord revealed to him where he could not accompany His Lord to heaven. Peter had not yet accomplished his earthly task, nor was he mature enough to be raised with the Lord into eternal glory.

* Great love is stronger than fire itself. It lifts us to the heavens. There is no obstacle to hinder its great progression. Peter, the apostle, was so aroused with anticipation when he heard the Lord's words: 'where I am going you cannot come. . . '(33), and he asks "Lord, where are you going?" He said that to reveal his state of mind and emotions, as he was anxious to follow the Lord, and so was not just seeking for just more information. This explains his hasty response 'I will lay down my life for You.'

St John Chrysostom

* The Lord announced that the possibility of following Him had to be postponed. Yet He did not lead Peter to lose hope. On the contrary, He granted him that hope by saying: ." . . but you shall follow Me afterward" [36] why are you so impulsive, Peter? The Rock had not yet blessed Him with steadfastness that proceeds from His Holy Spirit. Do not lift yourself up to the heights for "you cannot . . now": and do not fall into despair for "you shall follow Me afterward"<sup>92</sup>.

St Augustine

Peter said to Him, "Lord, why can I not follow you now?
I will lay down my life for your sake." [37]

Probably Peter thought the Lord was going on a long difficult journey and He could find no reason that could prevent him from accompanying the Lord. He was ready to accompany Him even it entailed death. Poor Peter did not know his own weakness and his inability to follow the Lord without the divine grace. He did not realize that without the Lord Jesus Christ he could do nothing (Jn. 15:5).

* When Peter heard the words of the Lord, ." . . but you shall follow Me afterward", he could not restrain his strong desire and impulsively asked, "Lord why can I not follow you now? I will lay down my life for your sake!" We ask Peter the apostle: 'What are you saying Peter? The Lord told you; you cannot follow Me now.' Do you ask: 'Why can I not follow You?' With experience, you will learn that your love means nothing if it is not accompanied by help from above.

St John Chrysostom

Meditations Inspired by St John's Gospel, Chapter 13

Allow Me to be daring and wash My Brother's Feet!

* Greed opened the heart of Judas so Satan could sow his seeds.
He put his hand out to steal more than once so the enemy entered into him.
When he became intent on betraying His Master, the enemy held sway over his heart.
He entered in as one vested with authority and as master of the house!
He found a dark kingdom ready to receive the head of the realm.

* You have chosen him to be a disciple and entrusted him with the money box.
You granted him to work miracles just as the other disciples...
In your tenderness, you concealed his name and did not humiliate him publicly.
Hoping he would retreat from his evil,
Furthermore, you bowed down to wash his feet.
You dipped the Bread in the plate and offered to feed him out of Your hand,
And no one suspected him!

* Humbly, you carried out the task of slaves.
You removed your outer cloths, and tied your waist with a towel
You were not embarrassed to fill the basin with water
And You were not ashamed to wash your disciples' feet.
You began to wash their soiled feet with water
In order to wash our hearts and consciences with Your holy blood.
Who dares to take your place, O You who have washed the feet of mankind!

* May I be bold and share your love.
In your tenderness, allow me to receive this honor
Allow me to gladly wash the feet of my fellowmen who have wronged me!
My heart lovingly washes each deed that seems evil.
With your Holy Spirit, my heart expands to embrace everyone in it
My heart grooms as it yearns to see all feet pure and sanctified.

* Purify me wholly with water and the fiery Spirit in the baptismal waters
When will I see the whole world pure and sanctified in You?
May Your hand wash me from every daily corruption!
May You wash, O Lord, all the feet of Your believers.

* Judas went out at night with a darkened heart to accomplish deeds of darkness.
The disciples remained with you, O True Light
They had true love, for they followed Your example
For darkness cannot invade a heart that is occupied by love.

* Peter yearned to follow You wherever You would go
The poor man failed to realize his weak potentials!
He imagined he could lay down his life on Your behalf

He could not comprehend that he could not make an offering before you had offered Yourself first on his behalf ...

You clearly revealed his weakness to him

And you filled his heart with amazing hope.

You announced to him that he would ultimately follow You

When he too would be crucified with You for the rest of his life

And when he would die as a martyr for the sake of Your Holy Name!

* You know me, O my Redeemer, more than I know myself!

You are my support,

Fulfilling all the desires of my heart!

May Your hand wash my heart daily, O Lord,

So that Satan's traps would fail to catch me

And the enemy would fail to reign in my heart.

Your Words spread rays of light over me...

Therefore the kingdom of darkness will fail to creep within me.

Amen

THE OTHER COMFORTER

The Lord delivered three farewell talks. St. John the Evangelist provides a record of these in chapters 14-16.

The heavenly Shepherd talks with the remaining few that represent His weak flock. The storm is about to strike in all its power; and Satan, the savage wolf, believes he will surely destroy the Shepherd with his sheep. As for the Shepherd, while He is fulfilling the Divine plan, reassures His flock. He asks them not to be troubled and tells them that it is more appropriate for them to comprehend the mystery of Divine love:

Concerning the Father, the Lord states that the Father has many mansions that are big enough to receive everyone. At the same time, He finds pleasure to come with His Son and abide within the depths of each believer.

Concerning the Son, the Lord states that the storm blowing against Him is just the path that has been prepared to carry His flock through the Cross and onto the Throne. There, they would enjoy the fellowship of His glory. In these talks, we hear the Father speaking with His young children. Even though He would be separated from them physically, He will send His Holy Spirit to comfort them. They would not be left as orphans. Indeed, the Holy Spirit will lead them into the heavens where the risen Lord Jesus has ascended!

Concerning the Holy Spirit: The Lord indicates that the Holy Spirit is the other Comforter who will lead the flock to the full Truth, who is the Lord Himself. The Holy Spirit will grant them the power to witness before the whole world: He will judge the world for not believing, and consequently attract unbelievers to believe through the preaching of the disciples. The world will be judged for righteousness as men will come to know that no one can be righteous except through the righteousness of the Crucified Lord. It will also be condemned when Satan will be destroyed and condemned.

These farewell talks continue to constitute the mysterious power of the Church. She finds in them the mystery of salvation which preoccupies the Holy Trinity. This will be the main concern until the salvation of mankind is wholly fulfilled and all come to enjoy what God has prepared.

Chapter 14 is an extension to the conversation which the Lord Jesus shared with His disciples after establishing the mystery of the Eucharist. He had just condemned the act of Judas and predicted Peter's act of denying the Lord three times. The Lord wanted to comfort and support the rest of the disciples since they were troubled and saddened to know that one of them would betray Him, and another would deny Him. In the previous chapters, we saw how the gathering of the disciples with the Lord was more like a conference characterized by open debate

Anxiety is often the result of fear of the unknown, or due to the expectation of a great loss that would affect the soul, body, or possessions. The cure for anxiety is to have faith. This lends insight to the soul that enables her to recognize her eternal resting place. She realizes that through God she is enabled to destroy obstacles. No power could stand in her way as she enjoys steadfastness in the Trinity of God who governs heaven and earth and all visible and invisible creatures.

1- Eternal Rest

St. John Chrysostom comments that the disciples were greatly disturbed especially after the Lord Jesus Christ had revealed to them what Peter would do. If that disciple, who was known for his fiery zeal, had always accompanied the Lord, and had proclaimed his desire to sacrifice his life for the Lord's sake, would deny his Master three times, then what hope could they have? That is why the Lord spoke to them these words: He sought to remove their anxiety and open before them the gates of hope and heavenly joy!

“Let not your heart be troubled;
You believe in God, believe also in Me” [1]

The Lord warns us against anxiety and confusion. He offers us faith as a practical cure against the pain of anxiety. Anxiety was evident in the look on the disciples' faces. ‘Then the disciples looked at one another, perplexed about whom He spoke,’ (John 13:22). The Lord not only saw this, but He also saw their hearts that were inwardly bleeding. Therefore He did not ignore their state as He was concerned about our inner peace. He is also concerned about our inner peace. Now, He opened the door of security and peace before them. This door opens up through believing in Him. They had to believe in Him as the Savior who would suffer and die for them. Consequently, He would grant them the power and joy of the resurrection, open the way to heaven, and grant them the right to pass over into the place of eternal rest.

The disciples had begun to lose the hope of establishing a kingdom on earth. Their dreams concerning the Lord began to disappear. As for the Lord, He raised their minds and sights to the eternal spiritual inheritance. He lifted their hearts to heaven so that they would yearn for the things prepared for them over there.

* Notice how the Lord Jesus Christ comforted them by saying: “let not your heart be troubled.” In these opening words He clarifies His divine power as He knew the thoughts that were going on in their minds. Consequently, He incorporated the answer into His words.

By saying: “... you believe in God, believe also in Me”, the Lord intends to say that ‘all these difficulties will surely pass away since by having faith in Me and in My Father you become far more powerful than all the hardships that you will encounter. That faith will shield you from being conquered by any evil.

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord constantly confirms this definition of the faith of the Church. It embraces the teaching that there is one God the Father. However, He is never separate from the mystery of the One God. The Father is neither another God nor is He different from the sole Almighty God.

Since the nature of the One God is found in the Lord Jesus Christ, then it is impossible to have a God that is different from Him...for God can neither be separate from the Lord Jesus Christ nor can He be merged in Him. This explains why the Lord spoke carefully and used well chosen words. What He proclaims to be a feature of the Father, indicates in humble terms that these apply to Him too. To illustrate this point, the Lord says: “... hold steadfastly to faith in God, and believe in Me.” He and God are equal in honor. We therefore ask: ‘How can He be separated from His nature?’ The Lord says: “...believe also in Me.” He also says: “...believe in God.” Do not the words “in Me” refer to His nature?<sup>1</sup>

St. Hilary, Bishop of Boitier

* You fear death that is about to engulf the likeness of that slave; but “...let not your heart be troubled” [1]. Indeed, the likeness of God will raise Him up again<sup>2</sup>.

St. Augustine

“In My Father’s house are many mansions;

If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.”[2]

The Lord Jesus Christ calls the heavens His ‘Father’s house’ for He will return to His Father’s house which is His own as well. There, He will prepare places and mansions for His followers. Therefore everyone will feel that he is returning to the house of his heavenly Father or to the home awaiting him/her. By saying ‘many mansions’, the Lord assures us that God has many children; and that the heavens are big enough to hold them all. In the Greek language, ‘mansions’ denotes permanent dwelling places or permanent residences.

Rather than a temporary kingdom, the Lord directs their sight to the kingdom of eternal glory. This is a huge kingdom that can embrace all mankind if they want; for ‘... in My Father’s house are many mansions (places)’ [2].

Even though the Lord was leaving them physically, He was doing that to bring them to glory: to ‘prepare a place’ [2] for them. He was not leaving them to seek His personal comfort and glory. Indeed, His intention was to prepare for each one a specific place in His kingdom.

The Jews boasted that the temple was the house of God and it contained many rooms- (1 Kings 6:5; Ezra 8:29; Jeremiah 35:24; 36:10). However, the heavenly temple consists of many varied houses, so that every believer will find a place there that is ready for him.

‘If it were not so, I would have told you’: I am not offering you an invalid hope. I have promised you an eternal inheritance so that you would be in the same place where I am going. If there was no place for you, I would not have spoken these words to you.

* The Lord supported Peter who he was saddened by His words ‘... you shall follow Me afterward,’ (13:36). In the same manner, the Lord offered to His disciples this glimmer of hope. So that they would not think He had made that promise to Peter only. He told them: “In My Father’s house are many mansions.” He also said: “I go to prepare a place for you.” This reveals that the place which will receive Peter will receive them as well; for there is plenty of room in these mansions<sup>3</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Jovinianus comments that these many places in our Father’s house refer to the churches that are spread throughout the world. St. Jerome responds to that by saying that the Lord, in this passage, was referring not to the number of churches but rather to the heavenly houses and eternal residences.

* In spite of the variety of heavenly glory, yet everyone will enjoy being in one and the same place. The Lord has ascended there to prepare many mansions. Indeed, He will prepare one kingdom and all will have fellowship in it. Consequently all will feel content and satisfied, even though the glory of each star will differ from that of the others<sup>4</sup>.

St. Jerome

* Is it possible for anyone not to be fearful? Peter who was the most confident and bold disciple was told: “...the rooster shall not crow till you have denied Me three times,” (John 13:38).

Beginning with Peter, they all felt doomed to destruction, therefore they became fearful. Then they heard the Lord’s words: “In My Father’s house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.” This refreshed and pulled them out of their anxiety. Now they could walk confidently and be assured in the knowledge that, after overcoming the horrors of temptation, they would live with the Lord Jesus Christ and in the presence and embrace of God.

Even though one person could be stronger than the other, or one more righteous than the other, yet “...in My Father’s house are many mansions.” None of them would remain outside that house for everyone will receive a place according to his merits.

All workers are similar with respect to the talents which the master of the house commanded to give out to all those who worked in the vineyard. There was no distinction between those who worked more and those who worked fewer hours (Matt 20:9). This payment definitely refers to everlasting life where no one lives for a longer period than the rest. Indeed, there are no variant measurements or discrepancies in eternal life. Besides, the numerous dwelling places indicate the levels of entitlement in the one eternal life. We consider that the sun has a certain glory, the moon another, the stars have yet another. One star could possess a more distinct glory than the other. The same will apply at the time of the resurrection of the dead.

---

The saints are like the heavenly stars. They are granted various places and various degrees of brilliance. However, according to the talents we have referred to, no one is deprived of the kingdom. God will be the All in all (1 Cor 15:41, 42); and in His own very special way, which is expressed by love: for God is love ( 1 John 4:8). Love will achieve this general condition- in a kingdom that will embrace everyone. This is how everyone can truly possess that (kingdom): each one will desire to see in others what he does not possess... due to this wide variety of brilliance, all jealousy will disappear while the unity of love reigns over all<sup>5</sup>.

* May the Lord Jesus Christ go and prepare for us a place. May He leave and not be visible; and may He remain invisible so that we may practice faith. In this manner, He will prepare a place for us. Having faith in Him, we shall live. May we have the desire to believe in that place in order to attain the spot prepared for us. Yearning for love is the means of getting ready to attain that mansion. May you have ready, O Lord, what you are preparing. You are preparing us to receive You; while You are also getting Yourself ready for us. As much as You are preparing a place in us for You; You are also preparing a place in You for us. Accordingly, You have said: "...Abide in Me and I in you" (John 15:4). Just as each one has fellowship in You ...some to a lesser, others to a greater degree- so also will the various rewards be: each according to his different entitlement<sup>6</sup>.

St. Augustine

St. Augustine wonders 'how does the Lord Jesus Christ promise to go and prepare a place for us, whereas He simultaneously states that: "...in My Father's house are many mansions"...which indicates that they have been actually prepared already?' He comments on that by stating that these had been prepared in hindsight for our sake. Yet He would be literally fulfilling all that in a practical manner. In the Gospels, we read how the Lord chose His disciples and called them. However, the apostle reports that "He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world," (Eph 1:4). In this manner, the disciples had been appointed before the foundation of the world, and according to His Divine plan. Moreover, He fulfilled it in a practical manner when He became incarnated and called the disciples and apostles to Him<sup>7</sup>.

"And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also." [3]

The departure of the Lord Jesus Christ from our world opened the way. By leaving our world, He prepares the place and grants us the right to pass through Him into the kingdom of eternal glory. He reminds His disciples of the old times when He led the nation to the place where they would find a home (Numbers 10:33). Similarly, the Lord will go before His followers, and He will enable them to walk for three days, that is the journey of the resurrection and the victory over death. Ultimately, all will find places in heaven!

The Lord saw the religious leaders. They were greatly disturbed and desired to get rid of Him. Therefore they joined the crowds and shouted: “Crucify Him! Crucify Him!” Therefore He urged His disciples not to allow this confusion to touch their hearts. Whereas the world around the Lord was in turmoil and sought to get rid of Him, He willingly went out to open the door of glory even to His opponents. Truly, He seeks to redeem all mankind!

The words ‘...receive you to Myself’ in the Greek language denote great love, yearning, and attraction toward the Lord Jesus Christ. This is the work of the Holy Spirit who pours love into the heart. Consequently, it yearns to meet Him face to face and to be received into His embrace. There the heart will enjoy the warmth of the supreme power of the Lord’s love. The attraction to the Lord Jesus Christ, which we enjoy now, and our steadfastness in Him, is a warranty of what we will attain. Yet, it is impossible to make any comparison.

God the Word accepted to become Man and to live among us. He became a citizen of our world in order to carry us into His heavenly kingdom. He sought to grant us fellowship in His Divine nature so that we might be considered ‘members of the household of God’ (Eph 2:19). Therefore, our heart yearns to say with the apostle: ‘...for me, to live is Christ and to die is gain’ (Phil 1:23). We desire to follow Him wherever He goes’ (Rev 14:4). This is the prayer of the heavenly bridegroom for His bride: that she “...may be with Me where I am” (John 17:24). In other words: that the bride might enjoy the heavenly feast.

* It is as though the Lord Jesus Christ was telling His disciples: ‘I have taken great pains to fulfill that.’ He intended to underline that they had to trust, have faith, and yearn intensely to be with Him<sup>8</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

2- Christ is the Way of Rest

“And where I go you know and the way you know.” [4]

The Lord had told His disciples about the Cross, and He had offered to them His sacrificial Blood and Body. He considered that by then they knew where He was going; and the road He would take through the Cross. As a result, He would open the door for them to enter into the embrace of the heavenly Father.

The Lord offered them the blessed heavenly life. To comfort them in the midst of their pain, He indicated the path leading to that life. His words to the disciples conveyed the following: ‘...you have come to know the heavenly home, the home of your Father which is your resting place; and you have learned of the path that would lead you there. I have repeatedly spoken clearly to you about these things and you should have understood all these matters.’

* The Lord spoke these words as He knew they would seek to know this information later on. By telling them: “...the way you know ...”, He underlined the yearning in their minds!<sup>9</sup>

<sup>8</sup> Homilies on St John, 73:1

St. John Chrysostom

* The Lord informs us that in our Father's house there are many mansions (John 14:2). In that context, the Lord defines the status of righteousness that every person achieves. Through the rejection of evil and its claim to be a healing prescription, we stay on the Lord's path.

For example, a person who inherits certain talents early on in life, lives according to the truth, and follows the good path, could be equal to another person who has strived and progressed in the pursuit of truth and goodness.

Another person may develop through a desire for goodness. Another may steadfastly persevere in reaching a peak of virtue; while another may have surpassed him in achieving higher levels.

Some may surpass these, while others may struggle hard to progress.

God the Almighty receives every person coming to Him by his own free will. He ranks each according to his merits. Consequently, He grants rewards to persons who are of a nobler status, as well as to those who are less deserving<sup>10</sup>.

St. Gregory of Nicea

Thomas said to Him:

“Lord, we do not know where You are going
And how can we know the way?”[5]

In spite of all the Lord's teachings about the Cross and the Resurrection, the disciples could not comprehend the Lord's words. Probably, they thought He would be taken up in a fiery chariot in the manner of Elijah; or that the angels would carry Him up to heaven; or that He would rest in the bosom of Abraham which was the desire of every Jew. Thomas was at a loss. So were the two disciples as they were on their way to Emaus, and after they had heard the women reporting and confirming to all the disciples that the Lord Jesus Christ had risen from the dead.

The Lord opened the way for a debate with His disciples through His gentle words to them. At least two of the disciples spoke with Him: Thomas and Philip. Thomas questioned the Lord about the path, without apologizing for contradicting His words “where I go you know.” Thomas was not embarrassed to admit that he could not understand the Lord's words. Moreover, he admitted he did not know where the Lord was going and consequently he could not know the way. Peter was different: he supposed he could go with the Lord, even if that would cost him his very own life (John 13:37)

It is good that Thomas admitted his ignorance. However, he is to be blamed for thinking of an earthly kingdom. This made him suppose that the Master was going to leave for another country, and therefore he could not know the way. Thomas did not know if the Lord was going to Bethlehem, Capernaum, or any of the cities of the Gentiles. David had gone to Hebron where he was anointed, and there proclaimed to regain a kingdom for Israel. Did Thomas think that the

---

Lord was going to the invisible world of the spirits...we do not know!

*Peter said these words “Where are you going?” (John 13:36). He asked in order to follow the Lord rather than to get information. However, the Lord rebuked Peter and revealed that what is feasible seemed to be impossible at that time (that the disciples follow the Lord). This obstacle led Peter to desire to know more details. That is why the Lord told the other disciples: “...the way you know” [4], but He told Peter ...“you will deny Me” (13:38). Before anyone could say another word, the Discerner of the hearts said: “Let not your heart be troubled.” Then He said “... you know” to reveal the desire in their hearts. Therefore, the Lord excused them for wondering, and for being at a loss. Note that Peter’s question “where are You going?” was prompted by pure love, whereas Thomas’ question was prompted by cowardice.

St. John Chrysostom

Jesus said to him:

“I am the way, the truth and the life.

No one comes to the Father except through Me.” [6]

Thomas allowed his mind to roam all over as he tried to search, and to find where the Lord would go. Similarly, Martha was troubled, to the last day, when the Lord informed her that her brother would come to life. In both cases, and in most cases if not in all, the Lord Jesus Christ draws the attention of the hearers to Himself by saying: “I am.” In this manner, He underlines that He is the way, the truth, the life, the resurrection, the shepherd, the door, and the bread descended from heaven. In Him we have full satisfaction and contentment. There is no path outside Him and no truth without Him. Life can be found only in Him.

He is the way that leads us to the Father without quitting the Son, for the Son is in the Father. Therefore, by uniting with the Son, we enjoy union with the Father. The Lord presents Himself as the way, the truth and the life. These are inseparable, since the Lord is all of that to us. He is the way: we believe in Him and therefore remain steadfast in Him. He lives in us in order to carry us unto the Father’s embrace. He is the truth, whose light shines in our depths and reveals the ultimate knowledge of divine mysteries. He is the life and as we receive Him, He grants life to us. In this manner, we are enabled to enter into the Father’s presence, get acquainted with Him, and rejoice in Him.

The Lord corrected the thoughts of Thomas by revealing to him that He is the way that leads to the Father and to an understanding of His way. The Lord is the way based on His teachings (John 6:24); His life (1Peter 2:21); His sacrifice (Hebrew 9:8-9); His spirit (John 16:13). He is the way, where all the divine promises will be fulfilled (2 Cor 1:20). No one can go to the Father except through Him; and no one can know the Father unless the Son informs that person about Him.

The Lord Jesus Christ is the way and Isaiah spoke about that, saying: “A highway shall be there, a road, and it shall be called the highway of Holiness. The unclean shall not pass over it, but it shall be for others. Whoever walks the road, although a fool, shall not go astray. No lion shall be there, nor shall any ravenous beast go up on it. It shall not be found there. But the redeemed shall walk there” (Is 35:8-9).

He is the way on which He has offered His Blood in order to carry us into His Holy Place (Heb 9:12). There we will rejoice in the Cross which is the tree of life.

He is the truth in whom all shades and symbols mentioned in the Old Testament have been fulfilled: He is the real manna descending from heaven (John 6:23), He is the Holy Tabernacle (Heb 8:3).

He is the truth that erases all that is false and all that is incorrect.

He is the truth that destroys all deception; for in Him we find true confidence and truth (2 Cor 1:20)

He is the truth and the resurrection: "...consider yourselves to be dead indeed to sin, but alive to God in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Rom 6:11).

He is the way, the truth, the life. He represents the beginning and the end; as well as all that lies in between. Through Him, we start life, travel on the way, and reach the destination.

* Therefore, the way is itself God's ultimate power. Since the Lord Jesus Christ is our way; and He is the good way, then He is the way that opens up the heavenly kingdom to believers. The Lord is the initiator of our virtue and the beginning of purity<sup>11</sup>.

St. Ambrose

* "I am the way": these words are evidence that "No one comes to the Father except through Me."

"I am the truth, the way, and the life"...due to that, all these matters will be fulfilled. I am the truth and there is no falsehood in Me.

Since I am also the life, then even death cannot impede you from coming to Me.

Besides, since I am the way, you will not need anyone to take you by the hand and lead you. Since I am the truth then My words are not lies; and since I am the life, then even though you will die, you will receive what I have revealed to you...

The disciples were greatly comforted by knowing that the Lord is the way. The Lord seemed to inform them that 'since I have the sole power to go to the Father, then you will definitely come to Him, for there is no other way to get there.' Previously, the Lord had said: '...no one can come to Me unless the Father who sent Me draws him...' (John 6:44); and "...and I, if I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all peoples to Myself" (John 12:32). The Lord also said: "No one comes to the Father except through Me" (John 14:6). All these words indicate that He is equal to the One who created Him.

* The Savior Himself says: “I am the way, the truth, the life”, [6]. The apostle comments: “When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall you also appear with him in glory” (Col 3:4). This is also expressed in the Psalms: ‘Because your loving kindness is better than life’ (Ps 63:3): life is so much richer because the Lord Jesus Christ is the life within each person<sup>12</sup>.

* This way is the way of righteousness, and it leads a good person to the righteous Father. A person shows righteousness out of his good treasure; and he is the good and faithful servant (Matt 7:14; Luke 6:45; Matt 25:21). However, this way is narrow and the majority, who have material inclinations, are unable to travel through it. The road is also narrow for those who struggle as they travel through it. In fact, the Lord did not say that it was ‘limited’ but that it was ‘narrow’<sup>13</sup>.

Origen the Scholar

* Now the way is not susceptible to error. By that we refer to the Lord Jesus Christ who tells us “I am the way and the life.” This way leads to the Father, as He says: “No one comes to the Father except through Me” (John 14:6)<sup>14</sup>.

St. Ignatius of Antioch

* The Almighty and Honorable Father is the Father of truth Himself. In other words, He is the Father of the only begotten Son. The Holy Spirit possesses the Spirit of truth. Therefore, those who worship the Father in spirit and in truth, and hold steadfastly on to this faith, receive great power. The apostle says: “...for we offer glory and prayer through the one Holy Spirit” (John 4:23, 24). The only begotten Son says: “No one comes to the Father except through Me”; therefore, those who honor the Father through My name, do so in spirit and in truth, and they are real worshippers<sup>15</sup>.

St. Gregory Palamas

* Every person seeks the truth and the life, yet not everyone finds the way<sup>16</sup>.

* As a human being, He gave joy (for He became the way of our salvation through his incarnation). As a result, we are enabled to come to God: we come with Him and in Him.

Do not look for any way other than Him to get to the Father. Had the Lord not offered Himself to be the way, we would have been lost constantly. He has become the way that leads us to Him.

We are not saying: seek for the way; because the way Himself has come to you. Get up and walk in Him. Walk with Life- not with your feet, for many are able to walk well with their feet- but they take their lives into evil ways.

<sup>14</sup> Epistle to the Eph. 9

Often, even those who walk in godliness run outside the way. Therefore you may find people who live in godliness yet they are not Christians. They run well, yet they are not running in the way. The more they run the more they get lost, for they are running outside the way. However, if such people come and walk in the way, and stay steadfastly on course, their faith would become ever so strong. As long as they pursue godliness, they will never get lost! However, if they do not persevere in the way, how terrible will their suffering be! Those who know how to be godly will greatly lament! It would have been better had they stopped on the way rather than to have walked steadfastly outside it<sup>17</sup>.

* The Lord told His disciples that they knew both matters: (where He was going and the way He would take). However, Thomas declared that he did not know- that is, he neither knew where the Lord was going nor the way to get there. Thomas was not aware that he was uttering lies. Although the disciples knew, yet they were unaware of that knowledge. Therefore, the Lord convinced them that they actually knew what they thought they did not. When the Lord said: "I am the way, the truth, the life"- [6], they realized that He is the truth and that they knew Him. Since they knew Him who is life, then they knew the way. Notice how they became convinced that they had known but they had not realized that they had known Him already<sup>18</sup>.

* The Lord Himself was going back to Himself. Therefore to whom are we going other than to Him? What way are we taking other than through the Lord Himself? Through Him we go to Him. In the same manner, and through the same way, we, together with Him, get to the Father<sup>19</sup>.

* The apostle Thomas was granted to see you, O Lord Jesus Christ, in order to ask you questions. In spite of that, he could not comprehend until he accepted You within himself.

I ask You because I know You are superior to me.

I ask and search as much as I can in order to extend myself into that place which is so high above me. There I would listen to You, O You who does not use an external voice in order to convince me of Your teachings.

I pray You to inform me, how do I come to You?

Since You have not come from Yourself but from the Father who has sent You; have You abandoned Yourself in order to come to us?

Truly, we know that You have disrobed Yourself by taking on the form of a slave. However, You have neither stripped Yourself of the Godhead to which You need to return; nor have You lost Him as though this needed to be retrieved...You have come in the form of a slave, yet You were and still are residing where You came from. Moreover, You will be returning there without leaving the place to which You have come.

Since You have come and have returned in this manner, then You are not only the way through which we will travel to You, but You are also the way through which You Yourself will go and will return<sup>20</sup>.

* It seems that the Lord is asking us: 'Which way will you take?' "I am the way."

Where are you going? "I am the truth."

Where will you live? "I am the life."

Let us therefore walk confidently in the way. However, let us be on guard due to the nets set up on either side.

The enemy would not dare to set up his nets on the way because the Lord Jesus Christ is the way. Nevertheless, the enemy will not stop from putting them up on the side tracks.

That is why the words of the Psalm say: '...they have spread a net by the wayside' (s 140:5). In another holy verse, it says: 'Be conscious that you are walking among hidden traps' (Sirach 9:13). These traps are not found in the way but they are in the wayside and we would walk in them if we went there.

What do you fear? Walk in the way!

Be fearful if you have abandoned the way.

That is why the enemy has been allowed to set traps on the wayside: for through pride you might forget the way and fall into the trap<sup>21</sup>.

* The humble Lord Jesus Christ is the way: He is the truth and the life. The Lord is the Almighty Glorious God.

If you walk humbly you will attain glory.

If you are weak in the way you now are, do not belittle the humble, for you will remain gloriously steadfast and empowered<sup>22</sup>.

* He is the way: 'The Word became flesh' (1:14)

He holds the way: 'He made Himself of no reputation, taking the form of a slave' (Phil 2:7).

He is the home to which we are going; and He is the way we will take to get there. May we go to Him and through Him. Therefore we shall not get lost<sup>23</sup>.

The soul has withdrawn from Him, and does not live any more within herself. She resists herself, has been expelled from herself, and has fallen into matters that do not relate to her...

The soul has neglected herself due to her love of the world.

Now, let her forget herself, but let it be due to her love for the Creator of the world!<sup>27</sup>

St. Augustine

* Many roads, or ways, open up before those who belief in the Lord Jesus Christ. Under His leadership, they need to travel on these roads before they can enter into the Holy Land. After leaving Egypt, and passing through the many stages mentioned in the Holy Book, they then rested: ‘These are the journeys of the children of Israel...at the command of the Lord’ (Numbers 33:1, 2)

Who is the One who planned the roads that the children of Israel had to take throughout these stages of the journey? Who other than God? He planned them by setting a pillar of fire and a cloud of light...

Now, meditate how the same thing is happening to you spiritually as you walk on your journey. If you have come out of Egypt, and are able to follow the Savior Jesus Christ-(Joshua), He will bring you into the land.

Moses (the Law) seems to be the Leader. However, Joshua is there at his side without openly leading.

Wait for Moses to lead until the moment when his time is up. Then when the fullness of time comes (Gal 4:4) the Lord Jesus Christ will lead...He takes over the role of teaching the people, and proclaiming publicly His laws. Therefore let us walk in them and pray: ‘Teach me, O Lord, the way of your statutes and I shall keep it to the end (Ps 119:33).

We seek to follow Him since there is “the way of Your statutes”

It is not an easy way, and it does not need two or three or even ten days. Actually, we need all the days of our lives as we seek to find the way of His statutes.

In the same manner, we need to find ‘the way to witness’: “I have rejoiced in the way of Your testimonies as much as in all riches.” (Ps 119:14). Besides, there is the ‘way of commandments’, “I will run in the way of Your commandments, for You will enlarge my heart” (Ps 119:32)

All these roads are really one way telling us: “I am the way” (John 14:6). Let us, therefore, walk in all these roads until we reach our destination. That destination is ‘the Lord Jesus Christ’

. Origen the Scholar

* A person does not become contaminated again with the earth’s dust after having washed his feet: the bride says: “I have washed my feet; how can I defile them?” (Song of Sol 5:3). Moses removed his sandals (made of dead animal hides) because he was walking on sacred ground (Ex 3:5)

The Holy Bible tells us that Moses did not put on his sandals again. He obeyed the instructions that God gave him, when he was on top of the mountain, to make the robes of the priests. They had to be sewed with gold, blue, purple, and red threads; and were to be done of fine linen material so that the beauty of the coverings would throw rays around them ( Ex 28:5,8). Moses did not use any ornaments on his feet, for the feet of priests had to be naked and uncovered. This is because a priest walks on holy ground, therefore he should not use shoes or sandals made of animal hides. This explains why the Lord Jesus Christ forbade his disciples to wear shoes for He commanded them to walk in the way of holiness (Matt 10:5, 6).

You know that road of holiness on which the Lord commanded His disciples to walk when He said: “I am the way” (John 14:6). We will be unable to walk on that way unless we remove the dead clothes of the old man<sup>28</sup>.

“If you had known Me, you would have known My Father also;
And from now on you know Him

<sup>28</sup> Song of Songs: St Gregory, Bishop of Nicea: Translated by Dr George Nawar: Sermon11

And have seen Him.” [7]

These are words of reproach uttered by the Lord Jesus Christ. Many of the fathers and prophets had recognized Him through the many symbols and shadows; and had desired to see and adhere to Him. He was their only hope. Sadly, the disciples who had lived with Him, had accompanied Him during His ministry, His journeys, and His retreats, had not come to know Him as they should have. Now, it was time for Him to depart from the world.

The Lord Jesus Christ desires that all believers get acquainted with Him and comprehend their fellowship with Him. This is the prayer of the apostles on behalf of all mankind. St. Paul accordingly wrote to the people of Ephesus: “I do not cease to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers; that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give to you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Him...that you may know what is the hope of His calling... and what is the exceeding greatness of His power toward us who believe, according to the working of His mighty power which he worked in Christ when He raised Him from the dead and seated Him at His right hand in the heavenly places” ( Eph 1:16-20).

The Lord’s words: .”.. from now on you know Him and have seen Him” [7], indicate that the hour of the Cross had come now. The world hated the Lord and He was crucified because His followers loved the world. Believers see and recognize the all loving Father in the crucified Son who arose from the dead. The hour of the Cross is a divine opportunity offered to believers in order to recognize and see the Father. Through the Cross, they are reconciled to Him and enjoy stability within His embrace.

A person who truly knows the Lord Jesus Christ understands that He is the Son and the divine God whose kingdom is not of the world. He descended from heaven and ascended to it as He lives in the Father’s embrace. Therefore a person who comes to the Lord comes into the divine embrace of the Father, gets acquainted with Him, and His divine mysteries.

St. John Chrysostom, as well as other fathers, note that the Lord Jesus Christ sometimes told His disciples that they have seen and known Him; while at other times he told them that they have seen Him but have not known Him. At times, the Lord tells them that they have neither seen nor heard Him. So is there a conflict or contradiction? St. John Chrysostom makes a distinction between seeing the Son as flesh only which the disciples could touch with their hands and see with their eyes; and yet they could not see His essence or comprehend the brilliance of His divine glory. Therefore they looked but did not see. At the same time they did not know Him. Even the disciples, who had seen and had adhered to Him, were unable to comprehend sufficiently His divinity up to the moment of His ascension and the coming of His Holy Spirit on Pentecost. Similarly, a person could know the Lord and yet not know Him. He would know the Lord without comprehending His true identity.

A person who sees the reality of the Son, and gets deeply acquainted with Him, sees the Father and gets acquainted with Him.

* The Lord Jesus Christ was not contradicting Himself. It is true that the disciples knew Him.

However, their knowledge was not as deep as it should have been. They knew God yet they still did not know the Father. Later on, when they received the Holy Spirit, He worked in them and offered them full knowledge.

That was the implication of the Lord's words: 'When you comprehend my essence and stature, you will also come to know the Father and His stature. You will know and see Him through Me.' To see indicates knowledge acquired through mental understanding. Often, there are people that we see but do not know. That explains the Lord's intention in saying 'have seen Him.' As for those unknown to us, we cannot know or recognize them. We are told in another verse that He is "seen by angels" (1Timothy 3:16). However, the core or essence is invisible; and in spite of that we are told that He is visible... to the extent of our ability to see.

These words were said to inform you that those who see Him recognize Him who gave Him birth. However, they did not see Him in His revealed essence, for they saw Him in the form of the flesh.

The Lord seeks to equate seeing with knowing. He says: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God" (Matt 5:8). By pure in heart, the Lord refers to those who have become free of all sin- and not from adultery alone- for every sin defiles the soul.

St. John Chrysostom

St. Augustine comments on verses (7-10) and says that the Lord Jesus Christ stresses that a person who knows Him, knows the Father. This is because no one can come to the Father except through the Lord. While the Lord confirms His unity with the Father, yet He distinguishes between the Father and the Son<sup>29</sup>.

Philip said to Him:

"Lord, show us the Father, and it is sufficient for us." [8]

When the Lord spoke about the Father, Philip yearned to see Him. However, he was not able to see Him yet.

First: He was unable to see the Father as He yearned to see the Divinity physically. He wanted to see with his physical eyes and in just the same way he was seeing the Lord Jesus Christ at that time.

Second: The cause of his disability to see was that he could not recognize the reality of the Lord Jesus Christ Himself. He saw the Lord according to the flesh and without recognizing His Divinity.

Finally: He could not comprehend the unique unity of the Father and the Son as one in essence. Therefore he asked the Lord: "...show us the father and it is sufficient for us."

Philip's request resembles the request of Moses who yearned to see the glory of God (Ex 33:18). It is true that seeing God would be satisfying and sufficient. It is a request that brings joy to the heart. However, what was wrong with Philip's request was his ignorance concerning the unity of the Son and the Father. This is because he had not enjoyed the transfiguration like Peter, James and John. Besides, he also could not understand, up to the end, the reality of the Lord Jesus Christ; and he could not see the essence of His Divinity.

* Philip reversed the order and said: “show us the Father” as though he had come to know the Lord Jesus Christ sufficiently well. However, the Lord set him on the right course and urged him to get acquainted with the Father through Him. Philip wanted to see the Father with his own physical eyes. He had probably heard about prophets who had seen God. Yet these cases had occurred as God condescended to appear to them; and the Holy Word says the following: “No one has seen God” (John 1:18); and “everyone who has heard and learned from the Father comes to Me” (6:45); and “you have neither heard His voice at any time, nor seen His form” (John 5:37). In the Old Testament we are told: “...you cannot see My face, for no man shall see Me and live” (Ex 33:20).

What does the Lord Jesus Christ say? “Have I been with you so long and yet you have not known Me, Philip?.” The Lord did not say: ‘you have not seen Me’ but He said ‘...you have not known Me.’

Philip could have asked: “Why do I need to learn about you? I am now asking to see Your Father and you are telling me that I did not know You. What is the relationship between this and my question?” Definitely, there is a strong link; for if the Lord is the One who is the Father and He is at the same time the Son, then it will be through Him that we will know the One who gave birth to Him. In order to distinguish between the two hypostasis, the Lord says: “He who has seen Me, has seen the Father.” He said these words so that no one would think that the Father Himself is identical with the Son.

Why did the Lord not answer by saying: ‘You are asking for things that are impossible and which are not permitted to any person, yet are possible to Me only?’ Because Philip said: “...it is sufficient for us.” Although he acknowledged that he knew the Lord, he revealed that he had not seen Him. Indeed, had Philip known the Father, he would have been able to see the Son. Therefore, the Lord told him: “...he who has seen Me has seen the Father.” It is as though He was telling Philip: “It is not possible to see Me or see the Father.” This is because Philip had based His knowledge upon his physical vision. Accordingly, he believed he had seen the Son. In the same manner, he wanted to see the Father. However, the Lord revealed to him that he had not seen even the Son Himself.

If anyone wishes to claim that knowledge is vision, then we would not contradict Him if the Lord Jesus Christ had said: “...He who knows Me knows the Father.” However, the Lord wanted to proclaim the fellowship in the essence. He who knows the Essence of the Lord, also knows the Essence of the Father. Is the Lord speaking here about the wisdom of the Father? Or about His goodness? That is not the case. The Lord is speaking about the reality of God, and His intrinsic essence... Indeed, the Lord reprimanded Phillip and said: “Have I been with you so long, and yet you have not known Me”? You have enjoyed all these teachings and have seen the miracles that I have done with authority. Besides, you have watched all the divine things that only the Father can do, such as the forgiveness of sins, revealing the hidden secrets, raising the dead, and creating from the earth (eyes), and yet you have not known Me? The Lord had become incarnate and therefore said: "...yet you have not known Me?" You see the Father, so do not ask for more since you see Me in Him. Once you see Me, you should not become more inquisitive, for you know Him in Me.

* "Do you not believe that I am in the Father and the Father in Me?" In other words: I can be seen in the same essence. "The words that I speak to you I do not speak on My own authority, but the Father who dwells in Me does the works", [10]. How is it that the Lord mentioned the words first and then the works? This resulted naturally as He could have said: 'It is the Father who speaks the words.' However, the Lord placed the two elements together: the teachings and the miracles. Probably the Lord said so because the words represented deeds as well. But how does the Father perform both? On another occasion, He says: "If I do not do the works of My Father, do not believe Me" (10:37). But, why does He say in this context that the Father does the works? Again, His intention is to reveal that there is no separation between the Father and the Son. His words convey the following: 'My Father does not work in one direction, while I work in another. In another context, the Lord says: "My Father has been working until now and I have been working" (5:17). In the first instance, the Lord indicates the harmony between the work of the Father and the Son. In the second, He underlines the divinity of the Father and the Son<sup>30</sup>.

St. John Chrysostom

Jesus said to him,
"Have I been with you so long and yet you have not known Me, Philip?
He who has seen Me has seen the Father;
So how can you say, show us the Father?" [9]

While the Lord reprimanded Philip, He actually was reprimanding all the disciples as He tells them all: "I will be with you." He did not say: 'you will be with Me', for He has descended and lived among us. He is the One who came to us and took the initiative of loving us. Our part is to progress towards Him and let our inner vision be enlightened. In doing so, we can progress and move towards Him. Let us walk with Him as He walks with us. He has descended to us, so that through His Spirit we may ascend to Him.

The Lord Jesus Christ came and lived with the disciples. It was not a fleeting vision, or a few minutes or hours as He had done in the past. He had appeared to the fathers and the prophets in visions, appearances, and dreams. However, He had come and lived among the disciples 'for a period and known measure of time.' That is why they should have seen both Him and the Father. They should have been able to comprehend the Father and be united to Him through the Lord Jesus Christ Truly, the person who has seen the Lord Jesus Christ has also seen the Father!

Can any creature in heaven or on earth dare to proclaim such a thing? Impossible! The Lord considered that anyone who has seen Him has seen the Father. This is achieved once a person discovers the reality of the Lord Jesus Christ. That is why the Lord reprimanded Philip: because he did not get to know the Lord after living with Him for about three years. The Lord reprimanded Philip not because he yearned to see the Father but because he did not comprehend
